Here and there come announcements from concerns who are ready to get in on the ground floor of this structure of prosperity and are staking out

Happily these foresighted executives are receiving assistance from many sources. Three of which we can name. One is the senior of the trio in age, ex--County Chamber of Commerce with its long list of county and city leaders who are chairmen of its ac-

Most recent and already with a record of action is the Lake Monroe Industries, Inc. This group of men with courage and vision combined their various resources and formed a corporation to build a "shell" building and to have in being something visiting industrialists could see and investigate.

Thus there is the plastics complex on Grapeville Avenue with Seminole Plastics, Inc., in operation and Howe Industries, Inc., a manufacturer of plastic cases expected to be going within 60 days. Most recent of the industries which the Chamber has had a hand in helping locate in the county is Water Bonnet, Inc., of Orlando which is coming to Casselberry with its established business of manufacturing pleasure boat windshields and tops. Another is the municipal operation of the Sanford Industrial Commission. Its life is limited to the 11,000 square foot plant of the Fort Lauderdale Steel mast few years when it was created to handle the re- and Manufacturing Co., at the Sanford Airport to manufacture small parts for air conditioners and mobile homes.

Of these firms, the Water Bonnet holds the greatest promise of employment. Its payroll is expected to reach 800 before the year's end. Others are comparatively small with as few as four and as many as 200 predicted. Yet it must be recognized that these are, in fact, but the very early evidences of what should be a major crop, before harvest time in the fall. Nor are our hopeful anticipations resting alone on industrial prospects. There are major possibilities taking shape in the line of shopping plazas, major apartment construction and park creation.

Yet it would be unfair to overlook one major fact: the Sanford Airport and its development as a prime air facility is the key unlocking the greatest flow of industrial good. At present the airport is bending its efforts in at least two directions. One is to get the physical selection of a fixed base operator. For it is on this choice that so much of the future prosperity of the Sanford Airport - indeed, of our entire area - rests. We applaud the care in which SIC is proceeding to look hard and long at those who want this contract. It is common knowledge that the air industry, especially here in Central Florida is faced with a challenge of growth which has confounded some of the most expert analyzers.

we again state our position that the best is none to good for Sanford Airport. We commend the hard-eyed look by the experienced Sanford men who make up the commission

To compete in this industrial climate, therefore,

We urge an extension of this attitude until an industry of importance with significant payrolls that mean more employment for Sanford residents decides to come here as the best for all concerned.

who have served and excelled. It is also a means by which opportunities, trends and implications of past actions get center-stage. As a chamber of commerce it does and has concentrated on those affairs which are naturally its concern.

This year, however, the event like so many other similar affairs in Sanford bears the stamp of awareness that this is a time of promise and change.

nior College receives the chamber's laurels. If this seems strange to anyone, it must be because the old-fashioned "Halls of Ivy" concept of an institution of higher learning hangs breach of confidence, as well worth the time and attention of our fellow residents. In fact, it can be described as of "towering" importance, if a pun may be allowed in not-ing that basketball and the championship SJC

Yet the importance of SJC to our entire community in terms of business, of employment of construction, of services to be required, of new residents cannot be over-emphasized.

A surprising number of inventions do come from sudden, ranflom flashes of inspiration, rather than from the steady, or ganized search for something better. However, to qualify for patent protection, the invention must include a special element of creativity. It must be "new," as that word is understood in the law of patents.

Suppose, for instance, that you think of a way to combine two products into a single unit for greater convenience. Generally speaking, that would not be con-enough to deserve a patent. One famous case involved the man who first attached a rubber eraser to the end of a lead pencil. Although this was certainly a convenience, the United States Supreme Court decided it was not new-because neither the pencil nor the eraser, when put together, did anything better than they did apart.

By contrast, said the Court, Charles Goodyear did create something new when he combined sulphur with india-rubber. This combination yielded a kind of rubber which for the first time, could be vulcanized and thereby put to commercial use. What if your idea is to improve some product by making it out of a better material? If all you add is merely durability, that won't do. Thus, a toymaker who switched from wool to metal, without otherwise changing his toys, was held not entitled to patent protection. But it is another story if the new materials works in a new and different way. Making garter button out or rubber, instead of metal, was held a pat entable invention. The court said this was a truly creative change, because the rubber meant less tearing and better gripping of the hosiery. True, the Patent Office has made the statement that all of the important inventions have a the important inventions have already been made. But that statemen should not be too dis couraging. It was made in the An American Bar Association public service feature by Will
