Injection Of 18-Year Olds Is A Political Plus

The landmark ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court giving the right to vote in federal elections to 18year-olds comes at a time of change. And in no areas of our domestic scene is change so obvious and so rapid and so hard to keep up with than in the realm of youth.

There is no sound way to appraise results of the ruling before this revolutionary change in citizen responsibilities has an opportunity to define itself in the 1972 presidential election. Yet there are guidelines which history presents. One of which comes to mind quite naturally are the forebodings before the enactment of the right of The record shows that even such an enfranchise-est and best of the nation. But this Vietnam morass produced a mental missma which the thinking youth were quick to see and evaluate.

It encouraged a search by these young fighters and their peers for an answer to the "why" which no official or traditional reply satisfied. This, we believe, was the spark that ignited the demand for the right to vote which now has blazed into a national

Now the 18-year-olds have it. At present only at the federal level but sure to be extended, one way or another, to the state and local elections. Now the young voters are the ones challenged. Now the responsibilities of citizenship will actually rest on the young shoulders. Now the theory of gov-tinuing result of the decision. This is the high interest the political planners will now place on the youth vote. There will be those like Senator Ted Kennedy (D) of Massachusetts who immediately aligned himself with broadening the decision to cover the state and local elections.

There wil be those who have knit brows among the GOP hierarchy as the Nixon-youth relationship has not been any asset. Thus the mere fact of the Supreme Court ruling may produce another change in the Nixon election drive aimed at 1972 which already has surfaced.

We welcome, most sincerely, this advent of the 18-year-olds into the body politic of our nation. We believe that it will have a leavening effect on the ernment, the selection of issues and candidates, jumps out of the textbook and into the ballot booth. democratic process.

True Values Need

The Commerce Department did its best t make an historic occasion recently of the moment when the value of the gross national product of the United States of America for the first time edged past $1 trillion.

Somehow the event failed to send a wave of pride sweeping across the country. The reason, we are sure, is that the American people have been learning through the bitter experience of inflation that dollar values alone are not a true measure of the size of our economy. I the inflation factor were removed, our productivity this year would still be less than $1

MY MOTHER was a gentle literary lady. She didn't work time. After Mills College. She had written fiction, poetry, critical treatises. Once, in the Depression, when gifted girls walked streets in search of sailors, I asked my mother what one book in all of literature meant the most to her, and she said, "My cookbook." Later, at the University of Pittsburgh, I asked the same question of Prof. Edwin L. Peterson, another literary scholar of even greater depth, and he said, "My checkbook." Remember that, young fellow, Learn a trade.

CUSTOMER SERVICE-Q. "Do lions get TB?" A. They do. So do elephants, birds and snakes. In fact, tuberculosis i the most universal of all the contagions, it's said. . . . Q. "What kind of scent do the dog track boys smear on the artificial rabbit to make the greyhounds chase it?" A. No scent. Greyhounds have bad noses. They don't follow much of anything they can't see.
