NEXT DRAFT COMES SOON FILL ARMY

SECOND DRAFT SHOULD ROUND OUT RANKS

Washington, March 6.—While a large number of men will be called out during the present year to fill up the army and complete its organization, it was learned tonight that war department plans do not call for the creation of any additional divisions in 1918. The announcement concerning the second draft, expected soon from Provost Marshal General Crowder, may outline the manner in which less than one million men—probably not much in excess of 800,000—are to be summoned gradually during the year to complete the existing organization.

Delay in the announcement as to the next draft is understood to be due to uncertainty as to what method of allotting quotas as to the states is to be followed. The senate already has passed, and the house military committee has favorably reported an amendment to the law to base the quota on the number of men in class one, instead of upon the total registration of a state. This change is regarded as certain to be made, but to avoid further delay schedules of allotments under both systems are ready to go out as soon as final action is taken.

As to the date of the second draft, members of congress from agricultural sections have been practically assured that no withdrawal of men from civil life was contemplated which would embarrass harvesting. It has been indicated, however, that a relatively small number of men must be called to the colors prior to June 1 and that process may start in April when equipment, clothing and quarters will be available.

The men are needed to fill up to full strength divisions slated for early departure to Europe and also for field army and corps troops not attached to divisions.

The replacement detachments also must go forward at an accelerating rate since American troops are actually holding a sector of the French front and men are being killed or wounded in action every day.

The completion of the full program of the war department without creating any additional divisions probably will absorb in the neighborhood of 600,000 men.

The last increments of the first draft now in process of mobilization totaling about 800,000 men are being used to fill regular and national guard divisions shown by their efficiency reports to be available for duty abroad. Some of the men are being used to fill up the special forces, although an additional source of supply for highly specialized technical units is being used continuously. This is by special drafts of particularly qualified men of the trades necessary. Orders were issued today to local boards calling for 528 artisans of various sorts for non-commissioned units.

Even with all of the first draft men mobilized there are considerable deficiencies among the national army and some of the national guard divisions. The first purpose of the second draft will be to make up this shortage.

Sunday at Congregational Church
"Has the Church a Message for the Hour?" will be the subject at the morning service at 11 o'clock.

"Seventeen Cent a Day," will be the evening subject. That is all it costs to save some lives from starvation. Christ counted not His life dear unto Himself that He might be our Savior. Miss Edith Stewart will sing at this evening service, which begins at seven. The Christian Endeavor meets at 6:15 and has for its topic "Making the Most of Ourselves." The young people are getting up boxes to send to their companions who are in the army service. Gifts are to be brought Sunday evening.

Mrs. Wren McGuin will assist in the Lyceum benefit concert Tuesday evening, March 19. People love to hear her.

FLORIDA PRODUCTS TO SUFFER

UNLESS BETTER TRANS- PORTATION CAN BE OBTAINED

Unless better transportation is afforded Florida growers and shippers, and is afforded at once, they stand to lose from two to four million dollars within the next sixty days. In the Sanford section alone, unless we can arrange to get an improved movement to our eastern and western markets on celery, lettuce and vegetables, our farmers will suffer a loss of not less than half a million dollars within the next forty-five days, and the same delays in transportation, affecting this section is common today all over the state.

Since last December a close study of the transportation situation discloses as the main cause for these serious delays one prominent factor: The overloading of engines. Today solid cars of vegetables under refrigeration that under normal conditions and service should make the trip from Sanford to New York not later than the fifth morning out, are now consuming from eight to twelve days, and in doing this, lose entirely market day identity and frequently reach destination in bad shape, which results in the grower or shipper having to produce additional money with which to pay freight charges.

To distribute these abnormal delays, a check of yards and service between Sanford and New York City was made last December, and has since been followed up, and it was found that movements between given points or terminals that should consume around six to eight hours, and that this is caused in many cases by trains being sidetracked between terminals because of their being caught on the "sixteen hour" law, due to overloaded locomotives. It is a well known fact that the average locomotive of the 20-inch cylinder type is designed to handle not over 1200 tons of freight on track having nothing heavier than one per cent grades, and it is further a fact that these locomotives are being given daily everywhere from sixteen hundred to two thousand tons of freight, and that this practice is directly responsible for railroad conditions as they exist today. The railroads know this and practical men know the results, but possibly, because of a reason, since government ownership or operation has become effective, the railroad owners and operators wish to continue these methods regardless of results.

Florida this season will turn out approximately fifty thousand cars of foodstuffs and perishable freight for distribution to the nation, and of all years this should be the banner one for the farmer and producer, but as things stand now, with railroad facilities virtually fallen down, a big portion of these fifty thousand cars will have freight bills attached to them after sales, as is already the case, and will certainly not serve as encouragement to the farmer to plant even normal acreage of foodstuffs this spring and summer.

We propose to leave nothing undone toward securing better movement. The shippers are entitled to it, and since it is evident that such is easily possible, it is proper for every one to take an interest in this matter and help the producers of our state. If a maximum tonnage rating for locomotives is established and enforced, almost over night will show us a 50 per cent improvement in railroad service, and this method will automatically within a few weeks, eliminate terminal congestion and afford at least a 20 per cent increased car efficiency.—Jacksonville Metropolis.

STATE TAX COMMISSION MET HERE YESTERDAY WITH CO. COMMISSIONERS

BOARDS FROM SEVEN ADJACENT COUNTIES WERE PRESENT

The tax commission of the state of Florida met here yesterday for the purpose of hearing from the county commissioners of the counties of Brevard, Flagler, Lake, Orange, Seminole, St. Johns and Volusia.

The meeting was held in the county commissioners room at the court house and was well attended by those from other counties and from Sanford and Seminole county. The following letter was read and resolution adopted by a vote of 18 to 2: To the County Tax Assessors of Florida:

Gentlemen:
The county tax assessors of Florida, at a meeting of the Association held in Jacksonville on December 19th and 20th, 1917, adopted for purposes of assessment of taxes for 1918, the same schedule used in 1917, EXCEPT THAT RANGE CATTLE ARE TO BE ASSESSED AT $8.00 PER HEAD INSTEAD OF $6.00, as in 1917.

Dear in mind that other property is to be assessed on same basis as in 1917, and you are hereby required to carry out this agreement in every detail, in order that uniform assessments may result, and the burden of taxation be properly distributed among the several counties in Florida.

We urge you to spare no effort in assessing all personal property, as we believe a considerable amount of personal property has escaped taxation in the past.

Thanking you, we are
Yours truly,
THE TAX COMMISSION.
John Noel, Chairman
R. J. Patterson
J. V. Burke.

Resolution defining full cash value for 1918 assessment:
Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that we all hereby agree to assess for 1918, all the real estate in each county at 50 per cent of its value, and the personal property as follows:

Farm pogies, $20.00 to $50.00 each
Horses, $50.00 to $100.00 each.

AMERICANS ARE THERE
Take Up New Position And Strafe Germans

American troops have now taken up another position on the front in France, and with their usual business like methods already have frustrated an attempt by the Germans to raid their trenches. The new position is somewhere in Lorraine. Altogether, more than eight miles of trenches are now being held by Americans on the western front.

From Flanders to the Swiss border, artillery duels of more or less violence are taking place on various sectors, and here and there raiding parties of both sides are frequently in operation. The British have successfully carried out forays against the Germans east of Bullecourt and near Lens, in which latter sector the Germans for the past few days have been heavily shelling them.

Although the snow has ceased, there has been but little activity on the chief American sector, northwest of Toul. The men of both sides have kept to their trenches and there have been only spasmodic exchanges of shells.

German reinforcements continue to be sent up behind the lines in Belgium and France, according to Gen. Maurice, director of military operations at the British war office. At present, he says, although the enemy has sixteen more divisions than the allies along this front, the allied troops are numerically stronger and also hold the upper hand in rifles, guns and aircraft, but that this superiority is diminishing. The major preparation of the enemy for a big offensive are now more or less complete, and the allies must watch for the local preparations which signal the approach of an attack, General Maurice said.

Reports from the potato belt of St. Johns county says that spuds are now several inches high and are growing with rapidity. St. Johns county has the largest acreage planted to potatoes this year in its history. Rain is needed, but nearly all of the farmers have irrigating facilities and a drouth has no terrors for them.

Ground Glass in Prunes
Marionette, Wis., March 6.—Prunes may be abolished in the family fare in the homes of this city and Menominee as a result of the discovery of ground glass in a shipment of the fruit received by a local grocer through a commission house which obtained it from California.

RUTH ROLAND & PATHE

LYRIC THURSDAY

AMUSEMENT

First "Neglected Wife" Episode Opens at Lyric Theatre Thursday

Margaret Warner... Ruth Roland... Horace Kennedy... Roland Bottomley... Mary Kennedy... Corene Grant... Edgar Doyle... Neil Hardin... Frank Norwood... Philo McCullough... Ruth Roland, one of the most popular stars on the motion picture screen will appear for the first time in her new serial, "The Neglected Wife" at the Lyric Theatre Thursday.

"The Neglected Wife" is a thrilling story dealing with the complex problems of married life and based on Mabel Herbert Urner's famous novels "The Journal of a Neglected Wife" and "The Woman Alone."

The first episode is entitled, "The Woman Alone" and it shows Ruth Roland in a deeply interesting and moving situation supported by Roland Bottomley, the celebrated English star, Neil Hardin, one of the best heavies on the screen, Corene Grant and Philo McCullough.

The serial was produced in the sunshine of California by Balboa from the scenarios of Will M. Ritchey, the author of the two original stories on which Miss Roland's previous serial successes "Who Pays?" and the "Red Circle" were based.

The story in brief is as follows: Horace Kennedy, a successful lawyer is slowly drifting from his attentive and loyal wife Mary, for no apparent reason save that she is fading and he is losing interest in her.

On the charge made by Margaret Warner, a struggling magazine writer, Kennedy disbars Attorney Doyle, contending that as a man must protect the honor of his wife and home, so must we guard our courts from prowling jackals.

Because of his wmasterly handling of the disbarment case, a magazine requests Kennedy to write twelve articles dealing with the subject. Mary persuades him against his wishes to write these articles, suggesting that she will take his dictation on the typewriter. She proves an insufficient helper and the first night on which they work she falls and sprains her wrist, making it necessary for Kennedy to look elsewhere for assistance. Margaret living in a cheap boarding house is desperately poor as her short story manuscripts are returned day after day by the magazines. Desiring to help her Kennedy engages her for the work.

Doyle forced out of his profession continues his work in the field of crooked stock jobbing, taking the hard earned savings of the poor for bogus mining stock.

The last night of their joint work, Kennedy accompanies Margaret home; but on the way they are caught in an accident, Kennedy escapes injury but Margaret faints. Calling to her to speak to him, Kennedy with Margaret in his arms rushes to a physician. Is the girl he is beginning to love to be thus taken from him?

How to Write Novels

Hard work, the use of every mechanical device possible to aid in writing, unceasing observation and absolute simplicity and sincerity—these are the things that make a successful writer, according to Mabel Herbert Urner, who has more readers among the newspaper public of America than any other woman writer.

Mrs. Urner is the author of the "Helen and Warren" stories and also "The Woman Alone" and the "Journal of a Neglected Wife," the two novels on which Pathe's big serial, "The Neglected Wife," in which Ruth Roland, the popular star begins an engagement at the Lyric Theatre Thursday is based.

"Inspiration is welcome," says Mrs. Urner. "A successful writer depends more upon technique and willingness to persevere. Note-books, indexes, stenographers, scrap-books are the tools of the writer's trade," says Mrs. Urner.

Human lives, not the stories about them, should be the source for strong fiction, Mrs. Urner thinks. The heart gripping novels she believes are those which deal with the ordinary lives of ordinary people, the tales of the homely tasks and the unromantic but nevertheless poignant sorrows and the undramatic, but still the more real loves of you and me.

It is the intimate touch, the relation of an incident that parallels one that you and I have known in our own lives, that makes the highest art in the work of Mrs. Urner. And the way to be able to write such stories she says is to be brave, brave enough to break away from the path that has been trodden down by the feet of other authors, courageous enough to explore for one-self the maze of the lives of ordinary people.

It is the obvious that is overlooked by so many writers in their search of the unusual that Mrs. Urner has seized for her own. In an interview recently she gave her own theory of the trivial, in its relation to literature.

"Have you ever thought how amazingly interesting it would be if a child could be raised and in some way educated without ever being allowed to read a line of fiction?" she asked.

"Let him live but not read. Then at the age of maturity let him write a novel. What an intensely interesting novel that would be!"

"He would write without being hampered, consciously or unconsciously, by all the restrictions of the books he had ever read. All the limitations we have unconsciously absorbed he would never know. All the trite observations, that even the best authors embody in their work, would not be part of his stock in trade. He would not be cursed with the tendency to keep on expressing, with the tendency to keep with slight variations what has been expressed so many times before. He would be able to get away from "type." He at least would have the courage of his thoughts.

"Only once have I had anything like all the courage of mine. But that one story I think I wrote unhampered and uninfluenced by anything I have ever read or by the fear that I would not be understood. And it was because I wrote it for myself, with the grim determination that I would write one story the way I wanted to write it—and then never try to publish it. For I felt no one would publish it.

"As it happened, my literary agent called a few days later; and this manuscript was lying on my desk. He picked it up casually and read it.

"This is the best thing you have ever done," was his excited comment. And in less than forty-eight hours he had sold it to a prominent magazine.

Woman's Club Notes

The March business meeting of the club will be held on Wednesday, March 6th at club house. On this occasion the election of officers for the ensuing year will take place and it is urged upon each member to be present.

Artistic Treat for Sanford

The recital to be given Monday evening by Mrs. Jessie Eldridge, Southwick, one of the instructors at Emerson College of Oratory and the wife of Henry Lawrence Southwick, the president of Emerson and himself a celebrated Shakespearean interpreter is an opportunity too good to be missed. The Literature Department of the Woman's Club are offering this one excellent number rather than several poor attractions, and it is hoped that Sanford will show her appreciation of the best in dramatic art by filling the club rooms Monday evening to overflowing.

The Boston Times says: "Mrs. Southwick's cycle of dramatic interpretations will not soon be forgotten by those who have attended. It is doubtful if it would take all the fingers of one hand to count the resident artists capable of giving such a series of entertainments. Mrs. Southwick's art is so finished that it baffles criticism. Her characters, especially in this true of her Shakespearean interpretations are presented as she has learned to know them by study and experience illumined by the art of a gifted and magnetic elocutionist."

As another evidence that hogs are profitable in this section—a source of good revenue—G. M. and A. A. years recently sold to the Chipley Packing Company another bunch of 93 hogs which brought them $2,075. Altogether Myers Bros. have sold the packing company 130 head and received therefor the net sum of $3,400 and some odd cents. With proper care hogs do well in Washington county where all food stuffs are abundantly and very cheaply grown. The advent of the packing house creates a steady demand and good cash prices.

MONEY VERSUS COMFORT

Subject of a Great Sermon Preached by Dr. Brownlee Sunday

Dr. Brownlee, pastor of the Presbyterian church, preached a sermon Sunday morning that should have been heard by every citizen of the Sanford section. It was on the subject of Money and Comfort and was taken on the subject of the present jump in prices of our products here and the fact that so many people are apt to be blue over the prospects of the celery and lettuce crop. Dr. Brownlee said that the gloom was so thick around the table at the hotel Sunday morning that you could cut it with a knife and he then launched into the sermon of looking ahead for the better things in life and not letting the idea of money exclude all else. He cited many instances in history where the really great men of the world had struggled along and made themselves famous although they never had and never wanted only sufficient of the world's goods to feed and clothe themselves. That money did not mean everything and few people that had money were as comfortable and contented as those who with little money were content to do something for their fellow men, for their city, for their county and for their country.

He closed a magnificent sermon with the admonition for all to seek first the kingdom of heaven and all things then would be made plain to them for "what profiteth it a man if he gain the whole world and lose his soul."

He also punctuated his sermon with many good points taken from the present great war and that service means so much to every man, woman and child and that service means not only service to the country in war and peace but service to your church and your God.

THE KAISER AND THE DEVIL

WILL OCCUPY DUAL THRONE, BUT NOT IN GERMANY

Some time ago The Herald published the letter from Satan to the Kaiser written by a Creston, Iowa, man. Here is the reply, a later work of the same writer:

Royal Palace, Berlin.—My Dear Lucifer—Your kindly letter received and its contents noted. Undeared, my dear Satan, you flatter me, but I cannot help but feel that your praise is not misplaced.

I will tell you frankly I was a little incensed when you compared me with Nero. To my mind, Nero was a piker. But on second thought I realize that he did not possess the many advantages I do for carrying on his devilish work. He had no guns that would shoot for twenty miles. He had no gas bombs or flame throwers. He had never had the opportunity to drop bombs on school houses and kill little children. He could not send his aviators over towns and drop poisoned candy for the children to eat. He did not have submarines by which he could sink passenger ships and kill hundreds of women and babies. Taking all this into consideration, I think that Nero did pretty well, considering the disadvantage under which he worked. If I had lived in those days I do not know as I could have improved on his method of raising hell, although some of it looks crude to us now with our refined cruelties.

Nero simply murdered his mother in cold blood. I made mine suffer all the agonies of a broken heart before death relieved her sufferings.

I thank you from the bottom of my heart for your gifts to me. My abnormal ambition has made me the most hated man in the world. It has sent my soldiers through peaceful villages, bent on murder, rapine and arson. It has made a million widows, and has made a million mothers childless. It has produced an army of a million men maimed, without arms, without legs and without sight. It has bereft some of them of reason and they will go through life with their minds a blank. It has robbed thousands of women of their virtue, and has brought thousands more into my realms as slaves. My name is coupled with curses in every clime.

Until now I have always cursed the fate which left me with a withered arm, but now I discern your inscrutable wisdom. Without that I might have had human instincts, which would interfere with my ambitions, and might have made me show a semblance of pity as I saw the result of my fiendish work. Without that twist in my normal make-up I might have told my generals to treat the Belgians with consideration and kindness. I might have told Terpitz to order his submarine commanders not to sink ships without warning and to give passengers a chance to save themselves.

Indeed, my dear Mephisto, I share with you a hatred for things English. It was England that stopped my victorious soldiers at the Marne and prevented me from conquering the world and making all nations my vassals. It was England that tried to interfere with my plans by proposing mediation when I had all my plans set for a world conquest. England has taught savage peoples Christianity and the love of their fellowmen, while I have endeavored to instill hatred into their hearts and make them fiends in human form.

My hatred for England is only exceeded by my hatred for America. Had it not been for that country, all Europe would have been helpless at my feet long ago. Shells made with American money killed my soldiers and for this I can never forgive America.

So, the secret is out. You hint that I had a hand in the Sarajevo assassination. I flatter myself that I had kept this covered up and no one would suspect that I had any hand in it. Well, it is all right. I suppose. You inspired it in me, and have a right to share in the secret. You will have to admit that it was clever in me to be on the yacht at the time of the discord and treason among the Russians and thousands of those brave people perished through treachery.

Lycifer, you make me laugh at times. You express surprise at my posing as a personal friend of God and telling my people that God will help them to victory. Can you not see my plans? My friendship with God is simply to delude the poor, simple fools, who are dying that my ambition may succeed. I have to hand them this bunk once in awhile to keep their breast bared to the enemy. Without it they would quit fighting. I tried the same bunk on the neutral nations, but they were too clever to believe it.

I have taught my people thi-spread civilization in conquered countries, while I have spread kultur—mine is to rule the world.

You talk of abdicating in my favor. Don't do it. Let us have a dual throne. With your experience coupled with my nature, we should be able to make a hell that would surpass all previous efforts. And, I am saying this in strictest confidence I feel that I am soon to join you. I fear I have overstepped my ambitions and I can see my ruin. A victory by my enemies will mean my end, as my life will be forfeited. Well, I do not regret it. It will put me in, hell all the sooner, where I will be with kindred spirits. There is too much love and charity on earth to suit me, and when I join you I will be in my element. I'll bring the boys, too, as I am sure you can find a use for them. They are fine devils. Well, good-bye, Lycifer, will see you later.

Wilhelm.

You need not fear that your work will be slighted. I have six sons who are as capable of ordering cruelties as myself. Sometimes I believe the oldest boy had a little more subtle cruelty in his nature than I have.

Some have compared me to Napoleon. That makes me incensed. Napoleon never battered down historic cathedrals, the work of centuries. Napoleon never ordered his men to make war on women and children; Napoleon never left a trail of illegitimate children where his armies passed; Napoleon tried to

Enthusiastic About Mrs. Southwick
The following excerpts in regard to the work of Mrs. Jessie Eldridge Southwick who is to give a dramatic recital for the benefit of the Woman's Club in the club rooms Monday evening, March 11th at 8 o'clock will be of interest: "By far the most difficult selection of the evening was that of 'Faust' by Jessie Eldridge Southwick of Boston. Mrs. Southwick showed wonderful power. Her rendition was excellent and the audience was ready for more and applauded the gifted speaker until she responded with the "Swiss Good Night."—The Brooklyn Eagle.

The Boston (Mass.) Journal says: "The lecture recitals given by Mrs. Jessie Eldridge Southwick in Steinert Hall the past week were a source of pleasure and profit to all who attended, and added to Mrs. Southwick's reputation as an interpreter of the classics. Her Shakespearean readings were of especial value to students of the great dramatist."

The Omaha (Neb.) Daily News: "At a meeting of the Woman's Club Mrs. Southwick of Boston was the star and gave one of the best programs ever given before the club."

M. J. Rolfe, Litt. D., one of our foremost Shakespearean critics states: "Mrs. Southwick's 'Portia' was absolutely the best that I remember."

Nova Scotia's Fish Army.
Nova Scotia is literally "the land of fish"—cod, herring, mackerel and the giant albacore or tuna. Nova Scotia is so much a land of fish, says a writer, that it produces over one-fourth the value of the entire Canadian catch, or $2,100,000 worth. Every tiny haven around the extensive Blue-nose Land coast harbors fishing smacks galore, while Lunenburg, Canso, Liverpool and Chester are home ports for hundreds of fleet-winged deep-sea banking schooners.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Like the regular Ford cars the Ford Model T One Ton Truck is a real farm necessity, just as it is the necessity of manufacturer, contractor and merchant. There is no question about it proving a money saver right from the start. It is flexible, turning in a 46-foot circle; has 124-inch wheel base; the regular Ford motor with worm drive—and has proven as economical in operation and maintenance as the Ford Touring Car. The price of the truck chassis is $600 f. o. b. Detroit. We urge placing orders without delay in order to get reasonably fair delivery. The demand is big—come in and let us talk it over.

HERALD ADVERTISEMENTS BRING RESULTS

The U. S. Food Administration says: "Save Fats"

AND IT ADDS: "To save does not mean to do without. Use vegetable fats instead of lard and butter in your cooking."

THAT is the direct appeal of your Government. It calls for no sacrifice on your part.

—No sacrifice of nutriment because vegetable fats are rich, wholesome and pure.

—No sacrifice in economy because vegetable fats cost less than butter or lard.

The only change you are asked to make is a slight change in the way you cook—the shortening you use.

Fortunately, the country has right at hand an abundant supply of nutritious vegetable fats—of which Cottolene is a well-known and dependable example.

The change from lard and butter to vegetable fats is both simple and patriotic. Cottolene meets the needs of wholesome cooking, the requirements of economy, the wishes of the Government.

And what is the reason for the Government requirements? Simply this:

"Pork, ham, bacon, lard, condensed milk and butter can be shipped in concentrated space"—to feed the under-nourished women and children in stricken countries—to feed our own fighting men and the men of our Allies who are fighting in our defense.

WITH these compelling facts in mind, is it not a clear duty to put patriotism above cooking customs and use the nutritious, economical vegetable fats which nature has abundantly supplied?

Make your kitchen a patriotic kitchen and remember as you cook—every ounce of vegetable fat you use instead of lard and butter may mean saving the life of someone somewhere in the world.

The Sanford Board of Trade is the biggest order in the city and every citizen of Seminole should be in it. The Board of Trade is doing more for the city and county than can be conceived on the surface and is working while most of you are asleep.

Trotzky the traitor who sold the Russians out for German gold bombastically states that he will keep the republic intact if he has to retreat to the Ural Mountains. We hope he retreat as far as Sanford. We would like to get just one good crack at that bird.

The Herald would like to convince the pessimists that knocking will never get you anywhere. No matter how you feel you should never advertise your troubles for back of the clouds the sun is still shining and your troubles are small compared to the other fellow's. The newspaper man's for instance.

One of the first lessons the majority of Sanford people should learn is that you have good hotels in Sanford and that while they may not be as fine as some of the big ones they are certainly fine enough and much better than the average hotels that are being boosted by the loyal people where they are located. That old story of Sanford's hotels is past history and you can consistently and honestly boost your hotels here. Ask the patrons who are here now what they think of them and then get busy with your horn and lay away your hammers. And if a travelling man knocks our hotels our merchants of Sanford stop buying from him. We have the goods here if you people will only get out and tell the world about it. And while you are waiting for something to turn up join the Sanford Board of Trade and help them start something.

Every little town is full of loafers, says a writer in Country Gentlemen. If it has a pool room there they will be found. If there is no good loafing place they will be lined up at the depot when the trains come in, standing about the street corners, livery stables and blacksmith shops between times; or, in summer, sitting along the curbing on the east side of the favorite streets in the forenoon and on the west side in the afternoon, in rows like pigeons on the ridgepole. As one farmer put it: "Wonder how many I could string on a good long ramrod?"

Try to get one of them for a day's work and the answer is "Gotta help Jim plant his taters tomorrow" from the older men, or "Go chase yourself" from the younger specimens with a more modern outlook and vocabulary. Beside the tramp, these men represent static unproductiveness. They personify idleness to the ninth degree. The tramp is a bird of passage, but he works sporadically. These men never work; and their name is legion.

How do they get a living? That's the mystery of it. Some of the younger accept a few jobs now and then. More are supported by weak-minded fathers and mothers who have lost control of the situation, if indeed they ever had it. Others have married hard working women—somehow the Fates are awfully unkind to women that way. Still others make a regular profession of stealing chickens, and where that has become fashionable the farmers in that locality have largely gone out of the chicken business. It is affirmed by those who know, that chicken stealing is even more fascinating and profitable than fishing, depending less upon the weather and upon luck, besides requiring no worms.

And in general these men beat the draft as they beat the call for labor. They are invariably the sole support of a widowed mother or of a dependent wife with children. They are almost invariably poor; which fact adds to the claim, and of course in this, as in other matters, affidavits can be had in plenty to substantiate almost any claim. If their number were small it would matter little, but more than one farmer has averred that out of his own town of less than 15,000 inhabitants he could fill the county quota from able bodied loafers and make no essential disturbance in any legitimate industry.

But the farmer boys have gone instead, leaving the cornfields, the wheat fields and the meadows. Production has been curtailed, while these men remain to loaf and consume as heretofore. The farmer sees them every time he comes to town, for they are fixed institutions, like the lamp post and the watering trough. Think you he will consent that his wife and daughter shall pitch hay while these parasites continue loafing? As one farmer put it: "Yes, I rather guess not."

There is no surplus labor on or about the farm; the profession cannot afford it; and there is a robust job awaiting every man and boy, every woman and girl that lives upon the land—a fact, of course, that partly accounts for the exodus.

So far as the farmer has means of knowing, there is a considerable surplus of labor in the city fortified by a general effort to make the work go round; whereas with the farmer the problem always is to get the work done. Getting the job finished and out of the way seems to the farmer about the last purpose of the city workman, and it is difficult for him to understand how conditions can be so diametrically opposite in regions so close together.

If he pursues the matter with a kiew to possibly evening up the situation he finds that in the city as on the farm, the need for labor is irregular, even sporadic, and that the business of the city seems to require a vast supply of unemployed men on which it may draw at will. What more natural than that these men should make the most of a job when they do get one?

PEP AND PATRIOTISM
 Many who heard the great array of speeches made at Jacksonville on Governor's Day are positive that in "pep and patriotism" Forrest Lake "went over the top." When Mr. Lake gets warmed to a subject he puts his entire strength of mind, body and eloquence in it, and he never lacks for words to fit an occasion. He is a speaker of persuasive power, and it is hinted that his eloquence will be heard to the confounding of some congressional aspirants along the "shoe string district" this spring.—Tampa Tribune.

NEW FOOD RULES
Administrator Huff Publishes Some Changes
Sanford, Fla., Mar. 7, 1918.
Editor Sanford Herald, Sanford, Fla. Sir: - May I impose upon you further by asking space in your paper to publish the following announcements:
By ruling from Washington, the porkless day has been eliminated. This means that the sale of pork, bacon, ham, lard or pork products, fresh or preserved is no longer prohibited on Saturdays. The rest of conservation schedule remains in effect, Monday and Wednesday being wheatless and Tuesday being meatless. There is to be no let up on the conservation of wheat.
All licensed hotels and restaurants are notified that the number of their licenses should appear on their menu cards.
All grocers are notified that peanut flour has been added to the list of substitutes for Florida. May be purchased by consumers or others on same basis as other wheat substitutes.
Bakers are advised that they may make twelve (12) ounce loaf of bread and are urged to popularize it instead of sixteen ounce loaf. Use this slogan: "Make the twelve ounce loaf do what the sixteen ounce loaf did before."

Rye flour is a substitute for bakers only; has never been on a fifty-fifty basis. Bakers can only use rye flour as a substitute until March 31 but no longer, and must procure other substitutes before that date.

Any baker found guilty of violating the Victory bread rule will suffer penalty of losing his license.

All restrictions against eating mutton and lamb are removed until April 15th. This will afford added meat for use on "meatless days."

The Food Administration wishes to increase the planting of "Home Gardens" and I wish to urge everyone who can command the space to at least plant for their own requirements.

Yours very truly,
T. S. Huff,
Food Administrator for Seminole County.

Approved by Braxton Beacham,
Federal Food Administrator for Florida.

Praise for Seminole.
The following letter was received by R. C. Maxwell of this city, local representative of the Wilson & Toomer Fertilizer Co.:

Dear Maxwell:
I was out at the Fair Monday and again yesterday and looked, of course, with a great deal of interest at the agricultural exhibit from the different counties in the state. Seminole county certainly showed up awfully well. It looked so green, and such a world of produce, that it attracted a great deal more attention than many other exhibits did that even got higher awards or prizes. Mr. Jacobs was certainly right on the job, and I wish it were possible for more of your citizens to see the splendid display he has worked out of the products sent him. Sorry you can't come yourself. I wish it were possible, but I know it will be a very busy period with you. Just compliment your Chamber of Commerce and civic organizations for me on the splendid exhibit made.

My best wishes and beg to remain,
Yours very truly,
Lorenzo A. Wilson.

SCORES CIGARETTE SMOKERS
Kelly at the Carnival in Living Example
It is an almost foregone conclusion that the vendors of cigarettes will experience a rapid decrease in their sales of those coffin nails from this week on, judging from the large crowds who visit That Strange Man Kelly now exhibiting at the Elks Carnival, and many a young man is seen to cast his cigarette aside with the avowed resolution never to smoke another one, after seeing That Strange Man Kelly and listening to his wonderful and interesting lecture. For Kelly is a sure and everlasting example of what the excessive smoking of cigarettes will do to the human system, and I dare say, that Kelly, the strange man, with his exhibition is doing more to help and eliminate the cigarette habit than all the sermons and various other propaganda would in a century. Kelly is assisted in his entertainment by an Indian clay modeler who is a master in the art of artistic clay manipulation. Speaking of art reminds one that just across the Midway is a perfect demonstration of the handicraft, patience, workmanship and thrift of the average native of Belgium. This is an attraction named The Busy City, and is a genuine replica of a busy city somewhere in Belgium before the ravages of the present war destroyed it, with its churches, schools, factories, stores and homes and some 300 miniature figures that are all working in a realistic and life like manner at their different trades and occupations. This is the handiwork of a Belgium refugee and took him some 5 hours a day to complete. It is all hand carved and is a most wonderful conception and the acme of perfection in every detail, so your visit to the Carnival would not be complete should you fail to see the Busy City. - Lakeland Telegram.

Vice President at Daytona
Vice President Thomas R. Marshall and wife are at Daytona for a few weeks rest. R. J. Holly is in receipt of a letter from Mr. Marshall expressing regrets that he could not come to Sanford for a visit. Mr. Holly inviting him here upon behalf of the Board of Trade as Mr. and Mrs. Marshall are friends of the editor of the Herald. High honors have never turned the heads of these estimable people and they retain the true democratic spirit of the Indiana Hoosiers. We hope to have them here some time in the future to meet the Sanford people.

The Hotel Carnes was the scene of a very lovely birthday party recently (by the way, they are becoming very popular, and when you want to celebrate your natal day come down). Of course we are not discussing Aunti Wilson's age because this was her birthday party. She is one of the fortunate ones who will never grow old, no matter how many candles she is forced to put on the cake. As usual Mr. Carnes did himself proud, as the party was a great success from start to finish. The table was beautifully decorated with Duchess roses and asparagus fern. Big War Meeting
By request of the Government, and under the auspices of The Church Peace Union, The League to Enforce Peace, and the Federation Council of the Churches of the United States, on March 15, next Friday, at the Methodist church Sanford, Dr. Charles S. McFarland, Secretary of the Federation Council, and Glen Frank of Boston, organizer of the League to Enforce Peace, will speak.

Citizens of Seminole county rally to this meeting. The war is on, and these men have a vital message for us.

We need all the enthusiasm possible, punch to push the work we face. Turn out to this meeting. The Committee.

Strength and Value to a Board of Trade
A Board of Trade has no power beyond moral suasion. It has no capital for investment, nor has it authority to compel others to invest. It is designed to promote the civic and industrial betterment of existing conditions in the community where it exists. It is a promoter of civic pride and confidence that must form a permanent basis for all present and future work in order to be productive of results. The urgent need of cooperation along right lines is apparent, lines of concentration and systematic efforts to accomplish results. Herein lies the strength and value of the Board of Trade.

"If there was ever a time when the serious minded and patriotic business men of every community needed to get together in an organization such as the Board of Trade, it is now under the extraordinary conditions existing as a result of the world contest into which the United States has now entered." - S. C. Mead.
