Some Parts Effective Immediately

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower today signed the new labor reform bill designed to clean up racketeering and other abuses uncovered in the labor-management field.

The new law is officially called the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959. Many of its provisions take effect immediately, but others will not become effective until later.

The wide-ranging and complicated law makes the biggest change in the nation's labor statutes since the Taft-Hartley law passed 12 years ago.

Its enactment was the outgrowth of the Senate Richard Committee's disclosures of corruption, racketeering and disregard of union members' rights during a three-year investigation.

The new law turns the spotlight of publicity on union operations and requires public reports from employers in some cases. It also imposes new curbs on union picketing and secondary boycotts.

Major provisions: Give rank-and-file union members equal voting rights, free speech at union meetings, freedom from unjust dues increases, protection of the right to sue union officials and against improper disciplinary action.

Require all unions to publicly report on their operations to the Labor Department. Union officers and employees must report financial holdings that might cause a conflict of interest. Employers and labor relations consultants also required to report, 30 days after their fiscal year end, any payments or loans to union officials or employees for the purpose of interfering with workers' rights to organize and bargain collectively.

Impose restrictions on national unions that place locals in trusteeship, with criminal penalties for violations. Trusteeships are limited to 18 months.

Require local unions to elect officers by secret ballot every three years and national unions every five years, either by secret ballot or delegates chosen by secret ballot. Provide for removal of union officers for misconduct and permit candidates for union office to inspect membership lists.

Require union officers to be bonded up to a $50,000 maximum and assume fiduciary responsibility for union funds. Prohibit union loans over $2,000 to officers. Bars Communists and certain ex-convicts from holding union office.

Permit a state agencies and courts to assume jurisdiction and apply state law to cases which the National Labor Relations Board declines to accept.

Outlaw "shakedown" picketing, with criminal penalties for violations. Ban organizational picketing when another union has been certified to represent employees. Permit informational picketing that does not affect deliveries or services.

Ban all hot cargo contracts under which an employer agrees not to handle goods from other firms unless union demands. Permit garment unions to continue agreements to keep employers from farming out work to non-union subcontractors.

Miss America Says She's 'Scared'

NEW YORK (UPI)—A nervous, blue-eyed southern belle today began work at being Miss America of 1960 scared that she would be a flop as a beauty queen.

Lynda Lee Mead, of Natchez, who captured the second consecutive Miss America crown for Mississippi Saturday night as a dark-skinned contender in the home stretch, confided her qualms to her college roommate.

Lynda, 20-year-old daughter of an automobile dealer, talked to her college roommate and closest friend, Martha Lovelace, on the telephone after she defeated 53 other beauties for the $100,000 Miss America crown.

"I'm so scared I won't be a Miss America," Miss Lovelace quoted Lynda in Jackson, Miss. She said Lynda was in tears.

Miss Lovelace also divulged Lynda's best kept secret — the name of her football hero boyfriend who sent her a gold heart bracelet charm she used as a good luck charm in the contest.

The young man is none other than Martha's brother Kent, 22, voted the most popular man on campus at the University of Mississippi, where he and Lynda met.

Lynda held her first official press conference as Miss America at Atlantic City Sunday.

She said she would like to meet movie Premier Nikita Khrushchev this week in the interest of world peace.

The University of Mississippi junior, who succeeds her Chi Omega sorority sister Mary Ann Mobley as Miss America, said such a meeting would further President Eisenhower's "people-to-people" program.

The new Miss America weighs 135 pounds and is 5 feet, 7 inches tall. She measures 36-24-36.

Lynda came to New York from Atlantic City with a police escort Sunday. She spent today being fitted for her wardrobe for her year-long tour, which will cover some 150,000 miles in every state and western Europe.

Lynda will get down to work Tuesday. She will make a television commercial for Lorretta Young's television show, the first of countless public statements by Miss America, who will endorse products, open auto shows, dedicate bridges, give up to 10 speeches a day and sign autographs on an almost non-stop agenda. Thursday and Friday she spends at a Niagara Falls festival. She will be paid from $100 to $2,000 for each appearance, plus expenses. A chaperone goes with her everywhere. She will not be allowed to have a moment alone with any man except her father during the year. She is barred from being seen in public in a bathing suit.

No one was more surprised than Lynda when she walked off with the title. She had not won a single event during the week of competition. Even she had become discouraged.

But then, on Saturday, she suddenly perked up. She was named one of the top 10 semi-finalists on the basis of points she had picked up in preliminary swim suit, talent and evening gown appearances and chats with the judges. Only the girls who had placed first in all those events had been mentioned, but Lynda apparently had rated high.

In the final minutes of the contest, the list reduced to five finalists, the girls from Arizona, California, Mississippi, Washington and Wisconsin.

Each was required to answer two questions, one light and one serious, for the final judging. Lynda, who had scored heavily all evening in the swim suit, evening gown and talent divisions, proved she was the fastest at thinking on her feet.

First she was asked if she would beat a young man at tennis or golf if she knew she could. "I wouldn't and I shouldn't, because I'd never see him again if I did," she said. "I've had that experience before."

Then she was asked what guidance and advice she would give a daughter today to prepare her for life.

"I would tell her to endeavor to understand herself to realize the things she needs to make herself happy because so many of us don't know what we need to be happy, and I would tell her to trust in herself and trust in God."

That did it. Lynda wound up first.

Citrus Commission To Begin Meetings

LAKELAND (UPI) — The Florida Citrus Commission holds its first meeting of the new citrus season here Tuesday.

General Manager Homer E. Hooks said the commission will consider some fundamental regulation changes which would tighten inspection procedures.

The agency also will hear numerous committee reports, as well as consider a protest from 13 chilled juice processors that chilled juice made from thawed frozen orange juice should be clearly labeled.

One regulation change to be studied would provide for destruction of fruit which fails to meet required sugar to acid ration standards at both fresh fruit and processing plants.

Worry Clinic

Girls, suppose you were in Alice's predicament with a violent man, parked in a remote spot in a Forest Preserve and with him waving a revolver at you to make you submit. How could you get out of that dilemma? Read this case carefully, for it may save your life someday. And send for the sex booklet below.

CASE C — 42: Alice G., aged 23, was one of my psychology students at Northwestern University.

"Dr. Crane," she told me one day after class, "psychology has been a life saver to me, maybe literally."

"For example, you once told us that a girl can prevent assault if she can keep her escort talking and thus make him 'celebrate'."

"Well, two weeks ago I accepted a blind date. The boy was supposed to be very nice, but after the dance, he drove out to the Forest Preserve and parked."

"Then he started getting fresh and even pulled a revolver out of the pocket of his car."

"I was scared and almost panicked. The only thing that saved me was that lecture in our psychology class."

"For I began to ask him questions. He tried to brush them aside and crush my lips to his, but I'd turn my head and let him kiss my cheek instead."

"Soon he began to reply to my questions and after a few minutes he was docile. He finally took me back to the dormitory, but I never had been in such a dangerous situation before."

"So please remind your readers about that rule that a man can't celebrate and emote at the same time, so keep him celebrating with judicious questions."

North Has Mix Problem, Too

NEW YORK (UPI) — Negro parents from Harlem today refused to call off an attempt to register 200 students at an all-white junior high school in the fashionable Riverdale section of The Bronx.

But other Negro groups postponed plans for a boycott of Harlem public schools by about 4,000 students. They have complained bitterly that schools in Harlem are segregated and inferior to other schools in the city.

Parents threatening the registration move said Sunday that if they are refused they will stay at the school until the board of education acts. Paul Zuber, lawyer for the group, said the 200 children will not attend school today and Tuesday.

The boycott was put off to allow time for studying a new city program aimed at resolving the grievances, a spokesman for the other groups said.

Phoenix, Ariz., claims more swimming pools per capita than any other place in the country — about three per cent of all the nation's pools with only three-tenths of one per cent of the population.

Vanguard To End Unlucky Career

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Project Vanguard will be tucked away in the "officially closed" files sometime in the next few days, but the hard-luck Vanguard rocket will live on in U. S. plans for the exploration of the moon opposite Russia's Luniks.

The next American effort to reach the moon probably will come about Oct. 2-4.

The last of the Vanguard satellite-launchers is expected to lift from a pad here within a few days. The pencil-shaped rocket, this nation's first designed expressly to carry satellites, will bear a 50-pound two-in-one moonlet to do research on solar radiation and on the earth's magnetic field.

The Vanguard is described as "quite sensitive" to weather conditions, especially winds, and for that reason the exact date of the launching remained somewhat in doubt.

After that, the Vanguard will be used in piece-meal fashion with other rockets and missiles in U. S. space exploration programs.

Several Vanguard components will be worked into the four-stage Atlas-Able vehicle that will go after a lunar orbit when the moon makes a comparatively near approach of 220,000 miles to the earth Oct. 2-4.

The increasingly reliable Atlas will be the first of booster stages, with the Vanguard's liquid propellant booster linked in as the second stage. Informed sources said Vanguard's solid propellant third-stage rocket will give the final boost that scientists hope will propel a 375-pound payload into an orbit around the moon.

The U. S. moon probe will include an electronic scanner designed to take crude pictures of 40 per cent of the moon's "far-side" surface which man has yet to see.

Later, a vehicle similar to Atlas-Able will incorporate a modified Atlas ICBM and the Vanguard booster in a space program named Vega, whose main task will be to "soft land" a 30-pound payload on the moon.

Quotable Quotes

United Press International
NEW YORK—Vice President Richard M. Nixon, commenting on the possibility that Russia might make territorial claims on the moon because its rocket, bearing Soviet pennants and emblems, was the first man-made object to reach it:
 "I'm not too concerned about that at the moment. In view of the climate of the moon, very few of us care who occupies it at the moment."

CHICAGO—James T. Mangon, who claims he owns space on the basis of a deed obtained from the Cook County Chicago recorder's office in 1949, protesting the Soviet moon shot:
 "They're entirely out of order in shooting a rocket to the moon. I put the moon, as well as Mars, under my protection in my proclamation of July 25, 1958."

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Evangelist Billy Graham, describing the men accused of setting off Labor Day explosions after meeting and praying with them in their cells:
 "They were very humble and, I would say, repentant."

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Former President Harry S. Truman, warning that the "enemies" of the United States are trying to create prejudice between groups and faiths:
 "The beliefs on which we founded our form of government, and our hope for a better world, are under attack"

OAKLAND, Md.—Roy Dixon, 14, describing the crash of a school bus and a train that killed seven children and injured 19 others:
 "It seemed everybody rushed to the doors of the bus all at once. One girl—she got stuck in the door. I didn't know what to do. Finally somebody pushed her out . . . Later I saw some blood on the door."

'Here We Go On Road To The Gutter!' Wife Says

By DOC QUIGG
NEW YORK (UPI)—William S. Samuels was born 52 years ago in Manhattan, and during his life in the big city he never got a chance to strike up even a nodding acquaintance with a horse. Today he's wondering where this noble creature has been all his life. He means the kind of horse that goes around in circles on a race track. He became an expert in one day on the science of making money betting on the horses. The day was Tuesday; the place, Belmont Park.
 He had been to a race track only once before, 22 years ago, and he hadn't paid too much attention then. Tuesday he had $1,000 in lettuce—crisp cash, five $100 bills and the rest $20's. Samuels, a buyer, a food distributor, had won a sales promotion contest sponsored by a food processor.
 The prize was a day at the races with $1,000 to bet — if he lost the company to give him another $1,000; if he won, to keep it all.
 He arrived at the track two hours before the race, his mind alive with two dozen different "systems" that business friends had wished upon him. With him were his wife, son William Jr., 19, and daughter Barbara, 18.
 The track officials installed the family in a box. "Who's the better rider, Arcaro or Shoemaker?" he asked. "Difference of opinion makes horse racing," he was told.

 He invested $52 on four horses in the first race and got $18.50 back. "Wow!" said Samuels. "It was over so quick; what a fast way to lose your money."

State Has Mental Patient Space

MACLENNY (UPI)—Florida has conquered the problem of space for mental patients for the time being, according to Gov. LeRoy Collins.
 Collins spoke here Sunday at the official dedication of the Northeast Florida State Mental Hospital.
 "With mental illness ranking as the number one health problem in our state and nation," Collins said, "it is particularly appropriate that mental health should be the first of our institutional programs elevated to a status of minimum current adequacy."
 The new hospital, already housing 100 patients, will be expanded to a 2,000 bed facility under plans now underway.

Brahman Field Day Stated Saturday

The Eastern Brahman Association Field Day is scheduled to open 11 a. m. Saturday at the Kissimmee Livestock Pavilion.
 "The Brahman's place in the livestock industry" will be discussed by American Brahman Breeders' Assn. Executive Secretary Harry P. Gayden. Cattle from outstanding Florida Brahman herds will be displayed in the barns and will be judged and typed in the afternoon.

He put $60 on three horses in the second and lost it. He invested $26 on 12 combinations of the daily double and came within three-quarters of a length of winning it. Harking to daughter Barbara's advice he went with Bonnie Belle in the third, a hurdle race. Bonnie Belle, leading, stubbed a wee toe on the 12th hurdle.
 "So far, I'm lucky in love—and nothing else," moaned Samuels.
 Stabbing away at random, Samuels bet on six horses in the fourth race. Nothing. In the fifth he picked up $177.50 by going with Fundit, the favorite, but suffered an overall loss of $22.50 in poor side-investments.
 In the sixth, Barbara picked the winner but he ignored her advice and lost $200 on a couple of nags ridden by Shoemaker and Arcaro. Came the seventh, and Samuels put $50 in Tharp, a heavy favorite, to win.
 Tharp won, paying him $35. By this time, Samuels, blue-eyed, hawk-faced, horn-spectacled, bow-tied, and tension-washed, had shed his coat and was yelling like a veteran. He quarreled with his wife, snapped at his son, and looked askance at this daughter. He had only $540 left. He bet $600 on Laurels the favorite, to win and, as an afterthought, told his wife to bet the $40 on Laurels to place.
 She made a mistake and bet the $40 on something that finished last. It didn't matter. Laurels won, paying him $850. He bet the entire $850 in the ninth and last race on Dr. Hab, with Shoemaker up. Dr. Hab won, enabling Samuels to leave with $1,530 in his pocket.
 Fingering his riches, he began making a date with a veteran horse player to attend the opening of the new Aqueduct race track next week.
 "Here we go on the road to the gutter," said Mrs. Samuels.

DAR Reminds Us All Of Constitution Date

The Herald is happy to welcome a great editorialist, Mrs. Mary E. Talar Nance, publicity chairman of the Belle Harrison Chapter, National Society of Daughters of the American Revolution. The chapter is joining its sister groups in commemorating the signing of the Constitution of the United States and its members like to refresh the reader on the history of the most important document ever signed.

Here's Mrs. Nance's reminder: The week of Sept. 17 to 23 marks the observance of Constitution Week and commemorates the signing of the Constitution of these United States of America on Sept. 17, 1787.

Throughout the United States local chapters of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution held special meetings in commemoration of the signing of this great document.

Although the Declaration of Independence marked the birth of a new nation, its survival was not well assured until the ratification of the Constitution.

Prior to the drafting and signing of the Constitution, there was neither an Executive nor a Supreme Court. The amendment of important legislation required the assent of at least nine of the State Delegations in Congress, and this body sometimes had no quorum for weeks at a time.

Finally, Congress met May 14, 1787, and Independence Hall, Philadelphia, as the date and place of a meeting of representatives from all the states for purpose of strengthening the Confederation by the drafting of the Constitution. The 55 delegates who attended the Convention included many men of outstanding ability and service. Eight had signed the Declaration of Independence; seven had served as Governors of states; 21 had fought in the Revolution; and 29 had been in Congress.

By early September, the work of the Convention neared completion and on Sept. 12 the revised draft was submitted. Five days later, on Sept. 17, 59 members signed the completed document.

For almost a century and a half, the Constitution has stood as a guardian of individual liberty and the supreme law of the land.

No Justice, Please!

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — The Harvard Alumni Bulletin tells this story about the late Prof. Zachariah Chafee of Harvard Law School: Chafee was posing for a portrait by artist Gardner Cox one day when a colleague told the professor: "I hope Cox does you justice."

Replied Chafee: "I don't want justice. I want mercy!"

Letters To The Editor

The members of the Anna Miller Circle wish to extend to you their thanks for the wonderful publicity in connection with the Emergency Relief Drive. Your cooperation was greatly responsible for the success of this drive by making the general public, as well as the volunteers, who aided this cause, aware of the depleted funds that existed in Seminoles County.

The main objective of our drive is to support the Harry-Anna Crippled Childrens Home, therefore we were proud to be of assistance in sponsoring this needed emergency.

BIG TROUBLE IN THE BRAIN WASHING DEPT.

Germany Is 'Question Of Question'

MOSCOW (UPI)—What does the Soviet Union hope to get out of Premier Nikita Khrushchev's visit to America?

There is, of course, no one answer to that question. But Khrushchev himself has put his finger on what he calls "the question of questions" in his man-to-man talks with President Eisenhower.

It is a plain talk on the present and future of Germany. The two men will talk about co-

Employer Rewards Workers With $1 Million Gift

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Harmon P. Elliott, 72-year-old head of the Elliott Addressing Machine Co., was enjoying "the fun of giving while living" to the hill today.

Thursday, he handed out $1,450,000 in cash to 875 employees as his "thank you" for their years of faithful service. They found the cash in the envelopes containing their regular pay checks.

In 58 years of operation, Elliott has never had a strike. The money came from a trust fund Elliott established 20 years ago. He recently sold the plant to Bessemer Securities Corp. but only with the understanding that all his present workers would be kept on.

Employees with only three years of service got $2,500 plus $41.80 for each year. Those with long periods of employment received as much as $4,800.

Elliott had little to say about his own generosity. Asked what effect he thought his action would have, he said with a chuckle, "Maybe the sale of 375 new automobiles."

Assignment Washington

WASHINGTON — When President Eisenhower signed into law the veteran's pension bill, a number of fellows around here interested in genetics were intrigued by one provision.

The pension law has a little package for almost every veteran and his kin — and that includes almost half of us people in the United States. But it brings out a point in old-time virility.

I refer to the part that gives to children of Spanish-American War veterans the same educational benefits already provided offspring of deceased vets of the last three wars.

Children of Spanish-American War veterans, that war was in 1898. By all odds, the average child of a veteran of that war should now be a grandfather, or even a great-grandfather!

Did the Veterans Administration want to educate grandfathers? When this was brought to my attention by Howard Dunes, the Senate press gallery's expert genealogist, I took it upon myself to expose this obviously preposterous act of VA featherbedding.

But a look at the record uncovered the fascinating statistic that there are indeed 20 children — possibly more — who could legally benefit from this clause.

There are grand men and women between the ages of 18 and 25 whose dad, dad, dad, were fighting men in the day when the battleship Maine blew up and Admiral Dewey destroyed the Spanish fleet at Manila.

By simple arithmetic, it comes out that the fathers would have had to be at least 60 when their child was born. And since fathers may have been 70 or 80 before they died of a service-connected disability which thus made their children eligible.

The Spanish-American clause is probably the least costly thing in that new pension law. The VA people figure it won't cost Uncle Sam more than $20,000.

That's only a pittance on the debit ledger when you figure that GI benefits will have cost us taxpayers (which, of course, include you and your grandchildren) the sum of $115 billion in the next 40 years.

It's interesting to note the evolution of benefits to kin of veterans. The education bill, referred to above, started off in 1924 as a benefit only to children of World War I and the Korean War veterans.

Then, the bill was amended to include children of vets of World War I. Next came the Spanish-American War clause.

Are there any earlier wars which could benefit children? The VA looked seriously into the Indian war of the 1800s and '20s, but couldn't find any eligible children.

However, the people at the Veterans Administration have turned up another interesting tidbit for students of genetics. And that is: The VA is still paying benefits to five widows of veterans of the Mexican War. And, figure it out, that war ended in 1848!

Stop Those Confederate Money Jokes

ATLANTA (UPI)—Those who saved their Confederate money in hopes the South would rise again have been vindicated. That bundle of bills in the attic can buy 48 wash today as it could 95 years ago.

Compare these prices: Feather pillow for each, overcoat $600 to $800 each; diamond earrings $95 apiece; tobacco $1.15 a pound; granite dishes $17 each; wool $2.50 per pound, and washcloths $125 to $250 each.

That was the going rate for such goods at an auction in Augusta, Ga., Oct. 8, 1864. The Augusta Chronicle & Sentinel of Oct. 11 considered it worthy of mention on Page Two.

Just two months ago Mrs. Helen Harding, a French-speaking Negro woman from Weeks Island, La., mailed the Montgomery Ward store at Lafayette, La., $202,000 in Confederate bills along with a whopping order for everything from lawnmowers to radios. The store kept $50 worth, mailed her back a portable radio and the rest of her money. Montgomery Ward may have passed up a good thing.

The fact is that the approaching Civil War Centennial and the sudden growth of coin collecting into one of the nation's favorite hobbies have created an intense interest in Confederate money that was just about worthless in 1864. A few of the bills now are worth up to $4,000.

All told, there were 72 types of paper currency printed by the Confederacy. Toward the end of the war the printing firm of Keatinge and Ball of Columbia, S. C., was grinding out the stuff night and day. The last series authorized was that of Feb. 17, 1864 and nobody knows exactly how much was printed.

Without awaiting a reply, he cited a paragraph from one of Nixon's speeches to the effect that the world has reached a situation where we must learn to live together or perish together.

"This sounded," he said, "like the sober voice of a responsible American leader. For, until recently, we have been accustomed to hear your generals threaten they can wipe us out within a few minutes."

Stop Those Confederate Money Jokes

Federal troops captured and destroyed the plates for this series after the outbreak of hostilities. The Confederacy never got into the metal coin business. It experimented briefly with 60-cent pieces in 1861 at the mint in New Orleans, but only about 100 of these are believed to exist now, and collectors will pay up to $500 each for them.

Now, at last, there's a market for a lot of it. Roy T. Payne, president of the Atlanta Coin Club and an authority on American currency, explains that just about every new coin collector wants at least a few Confederate bills for his collection. Most collectors will pay about 35 cents for bills from the 1864 series, and most antique shops here get from $1 up for them.

The wedding of Miss Frances Ruth Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fishugh Lee, 1501 North Atlantic Ave., New Smyrna Beach and Michael James Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Martin, Deland, was solemnized during a nuptial mass at Sacred Heart Catholic Church, New Smyrna Aug. 29.

The Rev. Francis Salmon of Sacred Heart Church officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. Charles J. Woolley, organist, presented a program of wedding music and accompanied Miss Elizabeth Da-Rosa, soloist.

Miss Sara Ann Martin, Deland, sister of the groom was maid of honor and William M. Martin Jr., his brother was best man. Serving as ushers were John Kasper, Joel Strawn, John Summers, Thomas N. Lee and Leslie Dyer. Joy Lynn Lee and Cathy Cavanaugh were flower girls and O. C. Guest and Hal Clifford Lee, nephews of the bride served as ring bearers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a gown of embroidered schiffli with basque bodice, scalloped Sabrina neckline, short sleeves and skirt made in tiers of full gathered scalloped ruffles cascading into a long chapel sweep.

Her full fingertip veil of silk illusion fell from a mother of pearl crown of orange blossoms and leaves and she carried a cascade bouquet of white bride's roses and pearlized orange blossoms.

The maid of honor wore a pink nylon chiffon dress with full skirt and softly draped waistline, giving a cummerbund effect, pink matching headpiece, short pink pearl trimmed mitts and carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses, fast skirt with matching shoes and white gloves. She wore a blue feather hat and a corsage of pale pink rosebuds. Mrs. Martin, mother of the groom, wore a pink lace sheath dress, pink and white hat, white gloves and a corsage of deep pink rosebuds.

Church decorations included tall standing baskets of white gladioli, pompons, potted plants and greenery. Arrangements were placed on all three altars and in the windows. The altar rail was swagged with fern and pompons tied with white satin streamers. Pew seats were marked with mossy green pompons, jade foliage and satin ribbon streamers. The entrance of the church was decorated with arrangements of combined white flowers.

The more than 300 wedding guests were joined by additional friends and relatives at the Smyrna Yacht Club for the reception which followed the ceremony. A profusion of flowers and greenery decorated the commodore's room, ball room and cocktail lounge of the clubhouse.

One of the outstanding tables was the bride's book table, where a lace parasol was leaned to a vase containing white pompons and shading a miniature bride and groom.

The bride's table was centered with a large white tiered cake. Guests were presented tiny net containers holding pink rice and tied with white ribbon. Following a honeymoon trip the couple will reside in their new home, in Valencia Villa, Deland.

In addition to the many friends and relatives from nearby towns Dayton, Ohio, Miami and Monroe, Ga., were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Sieg and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McLain Jr., and son Tommy of Geneva; Mr. and Mrs. William T. Haynor and family of Sanford, and Mrs. William L. Liedke, Bradenton and Mrs. Helen Linhart of Oviedo, all members of the bride's mother's family.

AT THE AGE OF 104, Mrs. Ella Ann Divoll played the piano at her Montpelier, Vermont home and had this comment on the modern generation: "People just don't seem to stay and think anymore. They seem to be running, running, running. It's like they are on an endless highway."

All-American Private Eye Is Clinker-Fortissimo

BY FRED BARKER
THEY'RE BACK! (UPI) — The new series starring the sleuth, Staccato, started Thursday night and promises to be a winner — terrific.

For the thing, there is a disconcerting degree of the Peter Gunn-type Diamond influence here. The show's inclusion may be quite a bit of a gamble, it doesn't indicate quality, necessarily.

Johnny Staccato, portrayed by John Casavetes, is one of the wonders of this age: A part-time jazz pianist in a Greenwich Village club, who can walk off the bandstand to become a part-time private eye. I assume Staccato is given a sideline so that he can be a boy in a trade where leggy, legato blondes and violence are obligatory for TV purposes. Musicians, after all, never lead adventurous lives.

Chase Establishes Book Memorials

A standard citizen has established four memorial memberships in the Rollins Book-A-Year Club to honor his father and uncle.

Prof. Alice Hansen, the Librarian, said the donor was Randall Chase, president of Chase & Co., and a frequent benefactor of the 50-year-old liberal arts institution.

Two of the Book-A-Year memberships will honor Sydney O. Chase, and two, Joshua C. Chase, Randall's father and uncle.

Both Sydney and Joshua Chase were among the early Florida citrus growers. Sydney was a co-founder of Chase and Co.

A trustee of Rollins College from 1927-31, Joshua was a resident of Winter Park. His efforts on behalf of Rollins were publicly recognized in 1935 when he received the college's Decoration of Honor.

The Rollins Book-A-Year Club, which is seeking 1,000 memberships as its Diamond Jubilee Goal, provides that each year, as long as an endowment brings income, a book is purchased and placed on the shelves of the library in the name of the honoree.

The club serves a two-fold purpose — it establishes a growing and living memorial for its members and helps in the education of our youth through valuable books.
