New County Rating System Shakes Up Building Dept.

Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County government has gotten tough with its estimated 575 employes by initiating a new evaluation system which for the first time provides for the firing of any workers who draw "unacceptable" ratings.

The new rating system has triggered some controversy and a minor shakeup in the building department where one inspector with 14 years service received an "unacceptable" rating and a second received a "needs improvement." Employes who are marked "needs inprovement" are placed on 90-day probation. If performance doesn't improve, that employe is then rated "unacceptable" and terminated. "We're not fooling around," Exec. Asst. Roger Neiswender said today. "The new policy will lead to some changes." About 200 workers were evaluated for the first

However, Neiswender insists any workers who do not perform with a minimum "satisfactory" rating are in for trouble. Those carrying "unacceptable" ratings will be fired. Thames explained there is an appeals procedure. Any employe dissatisfied with his rating can file a written appeal to Thames' office. Then the personnel director will evaluate the case and make recommendation to the department chief. The new evaluation process, on the positive side, provides for 10 per cent pay hikes for those workers who receive an "outstanding" rating. Prior to initiation of the personnel policy, county workers received across-the-board pay hikes each year. Performance wasn't as great a factor as Neiswender says the new evaluations are part of county government's reorganization, which included reduction of 25 supervisors who reported to the board to six department chiefs. Reorganization also created the position Neiswender holds, plus a purchasing department and the Office of Management Analysis and Evaluation (OMAE). Bob Ellis, the director of administrative services, says evaluations are a "positive management tool" which allow supervisors to "sit down" with workers and improve skills. In Ellis' department, no "unacceptable" ratings were handed down. But he says a number of employees were placed on 90-day probation.

Board OKs Spanking Policy A new corporal punishment policy was approved Wednesday night by the Seminole County School Board, bringing the local district into strict compliance with a recent state law which governs spanking in Florida's public schools The law, which went into effect July 1, forbids school boards from adopting any policy that would ban corporal punishment for Seminole's new spanking policy differs little from the old one, which was already almost identical to the statute provisions passed in Tallahassee last spring. The spanking policy endorsed by board members provides that the punishment shall be administered by the principal or by a member of the professional staff designated by him, after consultation with a teacher or other staff members familiar with the The punishment shall be administered "posteriorly" striking the student below the waist and above the knees, and while no other student is present.

While the previous policy called for spanking to be "witnessed by at least one other member of the staff," the new procedure requires that corporal punishment take place "only in the presence of another certificated member (teacher) who is informed before hand, and in the student's presence, of the reason for the punishment." In addition, the new policy makes it possible for the parent or guardian of a student who has been spanked at school to request a written explanation from the person who did the paddling. The explanation will include the reason for the punishment and the name of the teacher or principal who was on hand when the leave permanent marks or permanent ill effects." Ralph Ray, the school system's public information officer, first submitted the proposed changes to the board Sept. 22, then advertised the amendments in the newspaper and at all county schools prior to seeking final approval. Panel members also approved policy changes involving atendance for students in grades 9-12 and student expulsion

The new attendance policy specifies that students are allowed eight "unexcused" absences each semester (four per quarter) before they are penalized by losing credit toward graduation

"Excused" absences are defined as "illness of student or illness in the family which requires the student to be home, death in the immediate family, or for any emergency as determined by the

"For an absence to be excused," the policy states, "the parent Around The Clock (or guardian) must send a written excuse following the absence. Bridge or call in, or appear in person prior to or on the day of the absence Calendar and report the absence."

The amendment also recognizes as legitimate excuses "a Crossword signed note from the doctor immediately following an illness" and Editorial absences resulting from class-sponsored activities, as long as Dear Abby "the teacher of any class to be missed has been properly notified Dr. Lamb prior to the absence."

The board adopted a switch in the county's expulsion policy to Hospital remove a student from public school for the remainder of the Obituaries term or school year in which his expulsion took place. SEA Expects Raise Okay

The executive director of the Seminole Education Association (SEA) said today that he expects the special mediator who presided at impasse hearings between his association and the Seminole County School Board to find in the SEA's favor on at least half of the contract items discussed - including a $500 raise for the county's 1.500

"I do think that we'll get a favorable ruling on salary," said F. E. (Gene) Grooms, "because I think that we proved that even on the line items in the budget of the Seminole County School Board there is enough money to give the teachers the $8,600 salary base they're asking for. "The school board proved that there might be $300,0000 lacking in the line items," Grooms went on, "but that $300,0000 can easily be found in federal funding areas, and in fact several teachers are being paid out of federal funding now."

Douglas Stowell, a Tallahassee attorney, served as special master at the impasse hearings which lasted a total of 181/2 hours Tuesday and Wednesday. Representatives of both bargaining units presented arguments on seven disputed contract items, including class size, teaching loads and assignments; compensation and supplements; term of agreement, and medical and health

Ernest Cowley, chief negotiator for the school board, said he felt Grooms and other SEA representatives had attempted to exceed the intended scope of the hearings. "My reaction to the whole thing," Cowley said, "was that we had items of dispute and this was supposed to be a fact-finding session. But I believe the SEA tried to turn it into another negotiating session when it was suppose i' to be just a fact-finding hearing. "I think the special master got probably a clear picture of the two sides," Cowley continued, "with the exception of the budget. I think possibly the SEA got a lot of facts yesterday (during salary discussions) that were new to them, and I think this may have helped the SEA to understand-I hope they understand-that the money they thought was there (in the school budget) is not

Grooms, however, gave no indication of having reached this "understanding," and criticized the school board for what he called poor preparation.

"There were some facts that were not known by the board," Grooms said, "that they should've known. I think it proved that the teachers put in many, many hours preparing and researching our position on the different issues. This is all work that they do on their own time, on a volunteer basis.

"Whereas for the school board," Grogms added, "this is their job, where they're presumably working eight hours a day, and they've got the benefit of the computer and all that. And for them to come to the special master hearing as ill-prepared as they were makes a bad showing for them. I feel, in terms of preparation."

from a list submitted by the Florida Public Employes Relations Commission (PERC), will not officially close the hearing until he receives final written arguments from both sides. These must be mailed to Tallahassee postmarked no later than Oct. 16.

Stowell told negotiators that he will then have 15 days to review the position of each bargaining unit and submit mendations to PERC, which will forward them to local representatives five days later. The recommendations will be discussed further in a negotiating session between the SEA and the board.

If both sides are satisfied, the contract will be settled. But if either group offers a formal rejection of all or part of Stowell's decision within 15 days of its receipt, the school board will be required to hold a public hearing for the purpose of airing objections to the special master's TALLAHASSEE (AP) - President Ford and Jimmy Carter will be joined by Eugene McCarthy and Tom Anderson on Florida's presidential ballot, elections officials have announced. McCarthy is the latest addition to the list.

His name was put on Wednesday when the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals rejected a Florida move to keep him off the ballot. The New Orleans-based court upheld a ruling by Fort Lauderdale federal Judge Norman Roettger that the state's election law unconstitutionally violated McCarthy's rights by having no procedures for independents to get on the presidential ballot.

Canal Briefing Unnecessary? TALLAHASSEE (AP) - There's no reason for the House Rules Committee to convene Friday for a special briefing on the controversial Cross-Florida Barge Canal, the House Republican leader says. House Speaker Donald Tucker, D.

Tallahassee, has called the rules panel to a Friday briefing by Col. Donald Wisdom, Jacksonville district engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Officials Responsible For Bias

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - Lt. Gov. Jim Williams says he'll hold top state administrators responsible if their agencies fail to curb job bias.

Williams, also secretary of the Department of Administration, said Wednesday that agency heads must take the lead in curbing employment discrimiation in government by hiring more women and minorities.

Lawmaker Backtracks On Bill

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - A senator who co-sponsored a proposed constitutional amendment which would limit state employment says he's "a little bit embarrassed" because he wasn't aware of its full impact. "I have the feeling that I should have looked into the side effects in a little more detail before I got into it," Sen. Kenneth MacKay, D-Ocala, said Wednesday.

Solar Energy Test Scheduled

OCALA (AP) The Ocala City Council has agreed to test a solar energy system that its designer says will drastically cut the use of electricity in the home. "I got a total 'go' situation," said Ken Wilson, president of Wilcon Corp., and developer of a BTU meter designed to measure solar energy used to heat water.

The 31st session of the United Nations General Assembly got under way recently without generating many headlines. Not that there aren't issues enough to fill the agenda — Southern Africa, the Middle East, Cyprus, international terrorism nuclear proliferation, and the economic relations between developed and developing countries, to name a few.

Two other issues - Korea, and the proposed admission of a unified Vietnam — were put on the back-burner at the outset, in deference to the preelection political uncertainties in the United States. Otherwise the opening of the session found the General Assembly preoccupied with its favorite subject - status.

First the newly independent Seychelles Islands had to be accorded the status of U.N. membership. The Seychelles have a population of 56,000, but now have their flag waving on a new pole outside the U.N. building. In fact, there are five extra flagpoles waiting for other new members yet to come so none will suffer the indignity of having to wait for a pole to be erected for their flag after they are voted in.

Then there was the thorny problem - statuswise — of which delegation gets to sit closest to the speaker's rostrum. This was solved by drawing lots. Indonesia won. It was tougher, though, to deal with the Palestine Liberation Organization, which demanded a nameplate at its desk like those which identify each nation in the assembly.

The PLO, of course, is not a nation or a U.N. member, but has been admitted under Arab pressure as an "observer," like a dozen other organizations which have seats in the assembly hall, but no nameplates. The Arabs went to bat for the PLO. The result: all the "observer" delegations now get a nameplate.

rinally there are the parties, luncheons and dinners. A good U.N. diplomat can't go to nation A's reception without also going to nation B's. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim looked at the social schedule and calculated it was adding as much as five or six hours to the working day. "The time and energy involved, not to mention the expense," he told U.N. correspondents, "detract heavily from resources that should be devoted to our work, as well as imposing a burden on the health of those involved."

But status and protocol must be served, it seems. All we can say is that some of those diplomats should worry less about their own status and more about the status of the U.N. as a whole, which has been going from bad to worse. With a budget of around $400 million - plus another $1.6 billion in programs its agencies administer - the organization is beginning to strain even the more about treatment for nervous disorder or mental seek to go non-Communist? South Africa Embargo Sought

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Africans sought support in the U.N. Security Council today for a binding arms embargo on South Africa aimed at forcing her to get out of Namibia. A similar embargo was vetoed by Britain, France and the United States last year. Informed sources said recently that if such a resolution is submitted, the Western Big Three would veto it again. African diplomats have given council members a private, informal and unofficial draft of an embargo resolution, hoping to negotiate a final text that could be submitted to the council next week.

Watergate A Vote-Getter For Maverick Weicker

HARTFORD, Conn. - Sen Lowell P. Weicher is a rare breed of Republican — an incumbent who is actually trying to ride the Watergate scandal into election to a second term. While other Republicans shudder at the very mention of the name "Watergate," Connecticut's 45-year-old junior senator actually seems to revel in it. He is making his service on the 1973-74 Senate Watergate committee the fulcrum of his campaign in this normally Democratic state. Weicker was tougher on the Nixon administration during those Watergate days than most of the Democrats on the committee

The image of the political maverick who doesn't hesitate to condemn his own party is what Weicker is attempting to sell in his

Opposing Weicker is Gloria Schaffer, Connecticut's secretary of the state, who led the Democratic ticket in vote-pulling power in the last two state elections. Even Mrs. Schaffer concedes, however, that she is a decided underdog in her try to become the second woman in two years to win a major Connecticut election. Democrat Ella T. Grasso in 1974 became the first woman in the history of the nation to win a governorship in her own right — without in some way succeeding her husband.

Underdog though she is, the 45-year-old Schaffer from the wealthy New Haven suburb of Woodbridge believes that a compination of the state's built-in Democratic registration edge and a persistent campaign to prove that Weicker has really done little r Connecticut can carry her to a narrow victory.

New Census Bill Could Mean $$$

NASHINGTON — Florida could gain $50-million a year more in federal aid in coming years because of a mid-decade census and annual estimate bill, just passed by the House and Senate, that will help target federal spending more accurately by providing better population information.

The measure, H.R. 11337, was introduced in the Senate by Sen. Richard (Dick) Stone and in the Hou Rep. Patricia Schroeder of Colorado. Rep. William Lehman and Rep. Dante Fascell supported it.
"Since I came to the Senate two years ago I've tried to end the tax drain on Floridians and urge the federal government to put its money where the people actually are—not where they used to live according to outdated statistics," said Sen. Stone. "This bill and a parallel regulation by the Office of Management and Budget OMB) help to do that."

H.R. 11337 mandates an accurate population count every five years, instead of every 10. It also requires the Census Bureau to publish estimates of total population and other population characteristics annually where possible. The cost of the five-year census probably will be offset completely by reducing the need for special interim studies.

The conference report passed the Senate on Sept. 30 and the House on Oct. 1. The President is expected to sign it. Most federal money for education, health care, transportation, law enforcement assistance, pollution control and other services is allocated according to formulas that use population as a factor to determine need. When outdated population figures are used, fast-growing states like Florida are

"Florida now has two million people more than it had the last time a census was taken, in 1970," said Sen. Stone. That's an increase of almost 25 per cent. If federal bureaucrats don't take into account the true size of our population we don't get back as much of our federal dollars as we deserve. This bill helps end that

Still in its infancy stage, of course, the Schaffer-Weicker race has yet produced no real "issue" battles, with present signs indicating that the whole campaign may wind up basically as a

Mrs. Schaffer is generally regarded as a moderate to liberal Democrat, while Weicker has given up most of the conservatism he displayed in the mid-1960s as a member of the state legislature for a membership card in the GOP's liberal wing.

Mrs. Schaffer knows she can't do anything about Weicker's trump card — his outspokenness on the Watergate issue and his readiness to criticize GOP nations, policies and the party platform at the drop of a hat. However, her strategy seems to be aimed at proving the affluent senator from Connecticut's "Gold sonal publicity to really come to grips with matters that plague the state — unemployment, energy prices and tax problems.

In return, Weicker is practically ignoring Mrs. Schaffer's candidacy, as far as public statements are concerned. (He did, owever, play with her in a recent benefit tennis match. The sixfoot-six lawmaker relishes the fact that he is one of Congress'

He has even threatened to leave the GOP on a few occasions and run as an independent.

Whether the anti-Weicker Republicans will vote for Mrs. Schaffer or simply ignore the Senate race is another question. Some Democratic leaders privately admit that the senator may even pull more than a smattering of Democratic votes because of

Ulinois Governor Campaign Follows Bitter Primary

It's Daley 'Puppet' Vs. Nemesis Of Demo 'Machine'

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — The next governor of Illinois will sither be a young, aggressive prosecutor or an experienced the lowest order, so it's no surprise that the political scars are question of whether a tax increase will be necessary to fund politician who looks and talks like his political ally, Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.
The early favorite is James R. Thompson, the fresh new face of Illinois politics.

of Prior to becoming the Republican candidate, Thompson received national attention for winning convictions against numerous members of Daley's political "machine," including the Inte U.S. Appellate Judge and Gov. Otto Kerner.

The Democratic candidate is Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett, a veteran office-holder who defeated the incumbent governor, Dan Walker, in a vicious primary Election. Walker's defeat marked the first time since 1928 that an in-Sumbent governor had been denied renomination by his party.

"One-man rule over the long haul produces political and governmental conditions which are not healthy," Thompson says. Thompson, who lives in Chicago, was propelled into the governor's race on the basis of his impressive record as a U.S.

The Republican candidate has spent his summer shaking hands at county fairs and issuing white papers on governmental issues. As a practical matter, the only issue which has attracted much

After a career in business, the 62-year-old Howlett was elected auditor of public accounts. He was re-elected twice and in 1972 he moved up to secretary of state, a license-plate and patronagedispensing office.
"We will use the prestige of the governor's office to draw talent from business, industry, labor, education and the professions to evaluate programs, to cut out waste and duplication and streamline operations." Howlett enjoyed an enviable reputation for political honesty until a disclosure this year that he had a second job paying $15,000 annually ever since he was elected to state office. His job with Sun Steel Co. exploded into a major issue of the primary campaign.

Walker alleged during the primary that Howlett's position constituted a conflict of interest because he was in a position to financially benefit the steel company. The governor said Howlett had taken action on junked cars which helped the company. During the heat of the battle, Howlett resigned the steel company job but continually said he had done nothing wrong. After the primary, the allegations were not forgotten by the Republican attorney general. His special assistant is used a report which substantiated portions of Walker's charges, and a court must now determine whether Howlett owes the state any money because of his outside employment.

Howlett maintains that his experience is the main issue because of the state's financial condition coupled with a unique two-year

The two-year term was established in the state constitution for this election only so the governor would be elected at a time other than when the nation was choosing a president. Beginning in 1978, the state will return to four-year terms.

Funny the way a football bounces. First hop low, next one high. One straight, the other to the side. It's the same way with football teams. The weekly job of keeping a team's players pysched to the correct degree is perhaps a head coach's toughest task. By IRA BERKOW

Whenever someone wishes to make a statement about an exploitive black sports star, Walt Frazier's name is trundled out. In a recent article, for example, on the New York Times op-ed page, William Serrin wrote:

"But the problem is one of private people, too. The young blacks of Detroit) did not learn what they know by themselves. Magazines said that wearing wide-brim hats and carrying canes was black cool. The basketball player, Walt Frazier, who did not sweat, was cool . . . Black people like Fred Williamson and Jim Brown found they could make a bundle making violent, sex-filled movies. And the young blacks started in the fashion of the Hollywood actors, and it was no longer acting. It was violence and death on Detroit's East Side."

Lumping Frazier with those alleged catalysts of mayhem is muddle-headed. The marauding black youths of Detroit, to say the least, impose themselves on others. No one says to Walt Frazier, "get away from me," except, perhaps, a man he is guarding on the basketball court. Frazier's cool is marked by restraint.

Frazier has never been called for a technical foul, for example, in his entire nine-year career in the National Basketball Association. He almost never even grimaces at a call by a referee, let alone complains about it. He has never gotten into a scuffle on the court; his reserve was dramatically demonstrated to a nationwide television audience, when, a few seasons back, an opponent on the Baltimore Bullets slugged Frazier in frustration. Frazier simply continued on the game.

A few years ago I was at a game the Knicks played in Atlanta, Frazier's home town. I noticed that Frazier left the pre-game warm-up drills to talk with a member of the band that played at courtside. The band was made up of inmates of a nearby Georgia prison.

After the game I asked Frazier who it was he spoke with. He said it was a guy he had played with on his high school basketball team. I asked Frazier what the difference was between himself and guys like that fellow. Frazier said that he

Like many of us, the better Frazier dresses, he says, the better he feels. Even on the court. The neater he feels in his uniform, he says, the better he usually plays. It is a matter of pride and self-respect. Psychologists tell us that we must respect ourselves before we can or will respect others. And who should judge how wide another's hat brim ought to be?

As for being an example to youth, Frazier says, "The only thing about me that I'd want kids to identify with is that I'm my own man. I don't use people and I don't let "I believe what Bill Russell says: black kids can look

Q. Do you think the Olympic decathlon here, Bruce Jenner, will complete in any more decathlons or the 1900 Olympics? — Mark Smith, Falls Creek, Pa.

As has been well publicized, Jenner is already a pro lectaring himself so right after Montreal — and has ended his Hympic competition. And he's through with the decanthion, too. He wouldn't want to continue the strenuous training grind, and there's no payoff for decathlon as a pro.

Q. Since the Roselle rule was declared illegal, and now th layers' draft has been judged as illegal, too, what effect do you hink those court decisions will have on pro football if they're sheld? V.S., Fountain Valley, Calif.

The owners, of course, insist that the game will go down the drain. I don't think so. There was no Rozelle rule until 1962, and pro football was already well into its popularity upswing by then. The draft is something else. It has existed since 1935 and no doubt it has equalized competition, but I feel that even with an open talent market pre football wouldn't be hurt if there is keen, aware management. There are more than enough players, and a lot of them don't mind playing in Green Bay instead of New York — if they're treated as people instead of cattle.

Q. At the Montreal Olympics, there were nearly 100 countries

Most instructions at the Olympics are hand-signalled. When they are oral, they are given in the language of the host country. I don't think it affects world class athletes, especially in this case, because most of them have been exposed to English commands in track and field

Your friend is right. The NFL did a recent tabulation and ound that USC leads all pro rosters with 35 graduates. Q. I have a question about baseball. Can you tell me the year and date of the rule requiring players to remove their personal equipment (gloves and glasses) from the playing field between

The rule was enacted in 1954. The year before, in a game etween Cincinnati and St. Louis, a batted ball nestled under a glove lying in the outfield and allowed the runner to take an extra ase, prompting the new rule.

Q. Some time ago you mentioned Johnny Evers and stated hat he weighed 145 pounds. I read a book years ago that stated he reighed only 30 pounds when he first played major league ball and never got over 126 pounds. The story also said he caught a line rive that knocked him down and was not able to get up and throw he ball before two men who were on base scored.—T.J. Copas,

Your story writer had a vivid imagination. "The Baseball Encyclopedia" lists the 5-9 Evers as weighing 125 pounds. "Who's Who in Baseball" has him at 140 pounds. You take your choice. Evers, of course, was immortalized in Franklin P. Adams' Tinkers to Evers to Chance" poem. Second baseman Evers efused to talk to shortstop Tinker for years.

Q. Where can I purchase tickets, right now, for the Super Bowl in Pasadena?-Vincent Barajas, Santa Ana, Calif. It would help if you know someone connected with an NFL team or a corporate sponsor. All the tickets have been alloted for Super Bowl XI.

The green eyes sparkle in the angular face as she recalls, "When I went to the bank for a loan to get Tillie they not only looked at me as if I had recently escaped an asylum they as much as told me to get back in my kitchen where I belonged. That banker had NO imagination," she laughs. She went to her friends. "I figured I had 20 good friends and if each of them loaned me $50, I could get the downpayment together for Tillie and have enough more to set up my business." (Tillie costs a nice, round ten thousand dollars.) Having left her former position and paid off all outstanding family bills, Dale put in the order for her Compugraphic II machine. About six weeks passed and Tillie was delivered and "I could see us going down the drain that first month. It was awfully slow," she said. "I printed invitations to come meet Tillie and mailed them to a number of people-friends, people I'd set type for, potential customers. Two of the invitations went to editors of publications I once set type for. Now both those magazines are set right here." With a sweep of a delicate hand she indicates the room in a small frame house where Tillie now "lives". Tillie's old home was a tiny storage room, offered free by a friend.

"There was a lot of praying there at first. I promised exactly what I planned to do - that no matter what the job was, would give a fair price to everyone

Paul, who had backed Dale from the beginning, was once again working at his carpentry. "But one week I discovered that I'd spent so much time running around delivering and picking up copy that I'd only completed about 15 per cent of what was waiting! So I told Paul, 'Come on in. I need you.' " At first Paul was mostly a "gopher" - dashing around

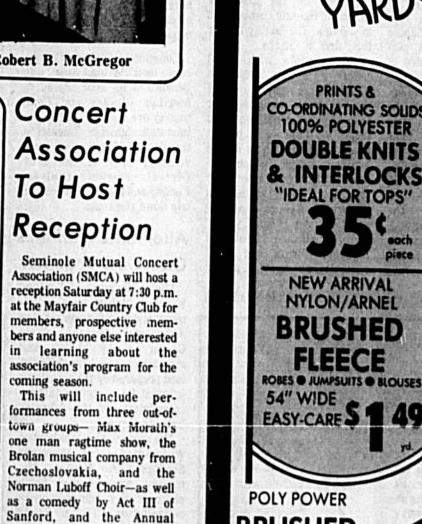

Dale began teaching him layout - the technique of deciding what looks best where on the page of a book, magazine or poster. "One of the first pieces of layout he did was on a brochure for a political candidate," Dale says proudly. "It was so successful that it was picked up and used on all his advertising posters.

"Now," says Dale, "Paul is here to push and prod, to cope with my temperament. He is the vice president, general manager, layout man and coffee maker. I'm president, I take out the garbage—and I type."

Next step-expansion or addition to the family?-will be Willie, Tillie's little brother - a machine for creating interesting headlines. "And we won't charge fancy fees for Willie, either," says Dale firmly.

Forty guests and members enjoyed the delicious food prepared by the members, followed by a cordial tasting, compliments of the Schenley imports Company. The next meeting was held on Wednesday at the Altamonte Springs Civic Center. The meeting was followed by a program on cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) by David Thompson of the Altamonte Springs Fire Department, sponsored by the Central Florida Heart Association. The club has an interesting year planned and invites all interested women in the area to join in the activities. The Altamonte Springs Woman's Club was started in 1946, has two charter members still active in club work and members look forward to their 31st year. The club is also one of 14 clubs in Seminole County that make up the Seminole County Federation of Women's Clubs. For further information, please call membership
