BRIEFS

Cline responds to Trepanier

HEATHROW — Joseph Cline, a Heathrow resident who in a Nov. 11 letter to John Dwyer, current planning manager for Seminole County, complained about the noise level of a music event held recently at L. & L. Acres Ranch, responded late yesterday afternoon to the property owner's announcement that he would suspend the use of the property for festivals and other events and move forward with plans to commercially develop the 83 acres located on the southwest corner of Interstate-4 and Lake Mary Boulevard.

"I don't have a problem with the development," Cline said in a telephone interview. "Development versus what's happening over there now would be an improvement."

Land owner Leo Trepanier has a preliminary master plan for the development of part of his ranch into a mixed-use park which might include a hotel, condominiums, retail and office space.

When Cline learned Trepanier would proceed with development plans, he said the traffic signage and litter created by the handful of festivals held annually on the property did not bother him. "I don't have an issue with anything at all except the noise."

Hattaway appointed

SANFORD — Sanford resident and attorney Jim Hattaway has been appointed by Governor Lawton Chiles to the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council (ECFRPC). The council is a public agency established in 1982 and is one of 11 regional planning councils in the state. Its goal is to undertake strategic planning connected to regional resources and interests.

The ECFRPC comprises Seminole, Brevard, Lake, Orange and Volusia counties. Membership is made up of an elected official from each area's municipality and county, and by persons appointed by the governor.

Hattaway is a native of Seminole County, and resides in Sanford with his wife Kathy. He practices law at the firm of Hutchison, Mamele and Coover, P.A.

On the job again

SANFORD — Seminole County Deputy Sergeant Mike Weipert returned to duty last night for the first time since he was stabbed on Saturday, Oct. 5. Weipert is with the Dist. 6 night shift in Altamonte Springs, Forest City and Wekiva areas. He is also a member of the SWAT Team, and worked in that capacity in Geneva.

Weipert sustained cuts to his face and upper arm during a struggle with a suspect behind the Ramada Inn near Longwood as he was pursuing a suspect through a wooded area.

The sheriff's office Major Crimes Section continues to investigate the case. There are no suspects at this time.

The sheriff is offering a $5,000 reward to anyone who provides information leading to the arrest and conviction of the suspect. CrimeLine has also posted a $1,000 reward for the same information.

Help Habitat

SANFORD — Habitat for Humanity is seeking volunteers to wrap gifts at Seminole Towne Center, Nov. 29 through Dec. 24. Proceeds will fund future building projects in the Seminole County area.

Wrapping shifts will be 10-1, 1-4, 4-7 and 7-10. Groups of four per shift are being planned.

To sign up or for further information, contact RSVP office at 323-4440, or the Habitat for Humanity office, 788-1187.

Longwood holiday tradition continues

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The tradition in Longwood continues this weekend.

For two decades, the weekend before Thanksgiving has meant some of the best shopping for handcrafted Christmas gifts you can get anywhere in Central Florida. And this year is no different.

The 20th annual Longwood Arts and Crafts Festival will take place in that city's historic downtown district on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 23 and 24.

The festival takes over the downtown area, blocking off several blocks of Church, Warren and Wilma streets between County Road 427 and Milwee Street to accommodate tents, display cases and a variety of food vendor facilities.

"It's bigger and better than ever," Mary Carrico, who heads the organizing committee for the festival, said. "We've become one of the best festivals in Central Florida."

So good, she said, there are hundreds of artisans and crafters waiting for the opportunity to be selected for the chance to participate.

Due to space restraints, only 400 booths can be accommodated at the festival.

"And there are people who are willing to wait years for the chance to participate," Carrico explained.

All of the downtown historic district is transformed into a delightful Christmas village. Stores are decorated top to bottom with Christmas ornaments, trees and sparkling lights. City buildings are also dressed to the hilt in their

Guiding girls

By VICKI DeBORNER

SANFORD — While the government is launching a new campaign to warn girls in their early teens about the dangers of drinking, drugs and premarital sex, Seminole County students of all ages and both genders are being taught there are healthy alternatives to those activities.

"We need to take a real proactive approach to the problem," said Jim Shupe, principal of Lakeview Middle School in Sanford. "But, it's not just the girls who need to be taught these things. The girls are only half the equation."

Nationally, however, the approach is geared toward the females, teaching them to stand up for themselves.

More trails land OK'd

By NICK PEIPHAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Following on the heels of announced expansion of the Greenways and Trails program in Seminole County, the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) has announced approval of the purchase of 500 more acres of land in Dixie, Levy and Gilchrist counties.

The program, formerly known as Florida Rails-To-Trails, was created by the governor and cabinet in 1986, and enacted into law in 1987.

In 1996, the Legislature expanded the program's purpose and renamed it the Florida Greenways and Trails program. The purpose is now to facilitate the establishment of a statewide system of greenways and trails by acquiring linear corridors, open space connectors and trails.

The difference in the determined and approved purchase price for these two future trails areas is indicative of the difference in land values in Central Florida as compared to the big-bend area counties.

In Dixie, Levy and Gilchrist counties, the 500.7 acre purchase of former CSX Transportation land has been approved at slightly over $1.9 million. In Seminole County, the purchase of 114.18 acres of land, also from CSX, has been approved at $6.9 million.

In Seminole County, the Oviedo to Spring Hammock south leg acquisition is the ninth

From birth to death and in between

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — As they start to school and graduate, get their first jobs and retire to Florida, marry, divorce, buy cars, build homes, sprain their ankles, mail their letters and pay their bills — from first breath to last gasp, Americans are counted relentlessly.

The latest results are in. The 116th edition of the Statistical Abstract of the United States goes on sale today, a 1,022-page tome jammed with 1,468 tables chronicling the incidental and the important, the minuscule and the massive in the nation's daily life.

"All that goes on in a single day in America is hard to imagine," Glenn King, chief of the abstract staff, said in releasing the book's 1996 edition. For example:

—Every day, nearly 11,000 babies are born.
—Some 7,000 marriages get under way and 3,000 end in divorce.

—There are 27 million transactions at automated teller machines.

—Some 170,000 people suffer personal injuries.

—The post office handles 495 million pieces of mail.

—There are 33,000 new cars and trucks built, and 18,000 existing vehicles are involved in accidents. Births and deaths are important to society as well as to the happy parents and bereaved survivors. The arrivals and departures have been chronicled in church Bibles and government listings for centuries.

Last year, 3,981,000 new Americans were born, an average of 10,852 a day. Meanwhile, 2,329,000 people died, an average of 6,381 a day.

But the statistical abstract doesn't stop there.

It tells us that of the 4 million births in 1993, 12.8 percent were to mothers who were still teen-agers and 31 percent of the new moms were not married.

White women accounted for 3,150,000 of the babies, blacks for 659,000, American Indians for 39,000 and Asians for 183,000.

There were 105 boys born for every 100 girls, a statistic that even out in mid-life. Thanks to males' shorter life spans — 72.3 years compared with 79.0 for females — elderly women outnumber old men — grumpy or otherwise.

What about marriage and divorce, then?

They're just not what they used to be, the abstract shows.

There were 9.1 marriages and 4.6 divorces and annulments per 1,000 people in 1994. That's down from 9.8 marriages and 4.7 divorces in 1990 and 10.6 marriages and 5.2 divorces in 1980.

In 1990, the median age at first marriage was 24.0 for women and 25.9 for men, up from 21.8 for brides and 23.6 for bridegrooms a Christmas holiday best.

"It's the official start of the Christmas season in Longwood," Carrico said.

Christ Episcopical Church, a nineteenth century rural church which sits at the center of Church Street, participates in the festival in a number of ways, but most notable is their traditional barbecue which is prepared by the men of the church. The tasty meals have been a favorite of festival goers for many years.

The Bradlee-McIntyre House will be open to the public for those who want a glimpse into what life was like in the early days of Central Florida as a winter home to many of the northeast's elite. Tours of the downtown district will also be conducted.

All of the downtown merchants will be open for decade earlier.

While marriage may be slipping in interest, Americans are spending more time with their ATM machines — posting nearly 10 billion transactions last year. That's nearly double the 1990 total. In 1990, the Census Bureau didn't even bother to collect statistics on the machines.

The book reveals there were 62.1 million personal injuries recorded in 1993, 170,137 a day, including 14 million sprains and strains, 12 million open wounds and 8 million fractures. Ouch.

The most likely victims were men aged 18-to-44, with women in that age group coming in second.

The 180.7 billion pieces of mail handled annually by the post office include 96 million first-class pieces — cards, letters, bills, etc. — 71 million third-class items such as advertising and 10 million or so newspapers and magazines.

There were 12.3 million motor vehicles made in the United States

Deer Die despite enforcement efforts

TALLAHASSEE — The endangered miniature deer of the Florida Keys have died in record numbers this year even though federal and state agencies stepped up efforts to protect them.

Officials have tried to lower Key deer deaths by raising penalties for violating regulations that protect them. But through mid-November, 80 of the less-than-waist-high deer have died out of a total population estimated at 250 to 300. Cars and trucks killed at least 51, mostly near deer refuge areas on Big Pine Key.

That fatality rate is slightly ahead of the worst year on record — 1985 — when 94 Key deer died.

"I thought stepping up traffic enforcement would have a significant effect," National Key Deer Refuge manager Barry Stieglitz said. "We're basically in the same boat we were in last year. We're seeing a lot of young animals struck on the road."

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service also is trying to determine whether Key deer deaths have increased partly because there are more deer.

"We've got a record number of fawns this year," Stieglitz said.

The Key deer are among the rarest American mammals. The tiny white-tailed deer can swim from island to island, drink salty water and eat mangrove leaves.

In one effort to protect the deer, Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission officers have joined traffic patrols on Big Pine Key. In a recent six-hour span, they handed out 88 tickets for exceeding a 55 mph night speed limit.

In another effort — unpopular with some Keys residents and visitors — U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service officers handed out 8350 tickets for feeding Key deer, which can draw them to populated areas.

Twenty people have been fined for illegal feeding, and others have been warned not to entice deer to approach them.

Mike Hunt, a local crusader against government regulation, said some residents secretly feed deer inside homes to escape federal detection.

"The Key deer are totally urbanized," Hunt said. "A deer in the wild, he sees you, he's gone. These deer really do want to socialize with people, and not because they've been fed. They live with people."

Experts fear that if the tiny deer get too much non-natural food, they'll literally grow out of their uniqueness.

State transportation officials have been considering ways to keep the deer off U.S. 1, the highway through the Keys.

One option would build fences and underpasses to direct deer under the highway, at an estimated cost of $3 million.

Another would be to build a mile-long bridge over a stretch where many of the deer deaths occur, for an estimated $30 million.

FAA takes heat over cargo inspections

MIAMI — The Federal Aviation Administration, under scrutiny in the ValuJet crash, isn't checking hazardous material as much as it used to because staffers have to deal with terrorism and other threats, an agency official said.

The FAA should do more to monitor how potentially dangerous cargo on planes is stored and shipped, Thomas Kenny, senior FAA hazardous materials specialist, testified Wednesday at the National Transportation Safety Board hearing into the crash.

Improperly stored oxygen-generating canisters in a cargo hold are suspected of igniting a blaze that caused Flight 592 to crash into the Everglades on May 11, killing all 110 people aboard.

While the airline has blamed a maintenance company it hired for not putting 81 safety caps on the canisters, the FAA has also been criticized for lax oversight in its hazardous materials inspection program.

The number of such inspections of passenger airlines has dropped by nearly half in the last three years, primarily because staff has had to deal with security threats, Kenny said. There were 3,819 such inspections in 1983, and 2,058 last year, according to NTSB records.

In addition, the FAA doesn't inspect hazardous material at maintenance stations, like the one where SabreTech stored the oxygen generators, Kenny said.

The fully charged generators sat around SabreTech's maintenance hangar for weeks until, in a housecleaning move, they were packed up and driven to ValuJet's cargo area for a flight to airline headquarters in Atlanta.

Two other airlines, Delta and TWA, were also improperly shipping oxygen generators until recently, The New York Times reported today.

In earlier testimony, a ValuJet executive left relatives seething by repeatedly avoiding questions and blaming SabreTech for putting the oxygen canisters aboard the jet without safety caps.

David Gentry, ValuJet's vice president of heavy maintenance, appeared rattled several times during nearly three hours of questioning.

Survey: S. Beach home of risky sex

By WILL LESTER
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — People who come to South Beach, the trendy Art Deco district at the southern tip of Miami Beach, "seem to think they're on a holiday from everything — including AIDS," says a pioneering AIDS researcher.

But a new study released this week in New York City shows that HIV infections are rampant in the resort community and many gay men who must know better are practicing unsafe sex. South Beach is a popular destination for gays from around the country.

Dr. William Darrow, one of the early researchers to help discover the spread of the disease in the 1980s, said his survey showed three fourths of the men declining to follow safe sex practices.

"Most recent studies have shown that if you provide gay and bisexual men with accurate information on safe sex and give them motivation they will protect themselves," Darrow said. "That's not true in South Beach."

Darrow released his final study at the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association in New York City. Preliminary results were first published at the 11th International Conference on AIDS in Vancouver last summer.

His 1986 survey through October found that one in six men aged 18 to 39 were infected with the AIDS virus, a rate almost as high as that reported in a similar 1984 study of gay males that ago in San Francisco, long the epicenter of the AIDS crisis among gay males.

The HIV infection rate among gay men in San Francisco in the mid 1980s was as high as 80 percent, but that has dropped slightly to about 40 percent, said Dennis O'Connell, an epidemiologist at the University of California-San Francisco.

Darrow surveyed 87 gay and bisexual residents of the Art Deco district of Miami Beach between 18 and 39 years old and another 70 who were 30 and older. The infection rate among men age 30 and older in South Beach was two out of five.

Almost three fourths of the South Beach men in both age groups had participated in unprotected anal sex in the last year, the survey found.

That is far higher than the one-in-four gay men in San Francisco who participated in unprotected sex over the course of a year, O'Connell said.

"We've got an AIDS epidemic among gay and bisexual men in South Beach," said Darrow, a professor at Florida International University who worked at the Centers of Disease Control in Atlanta when reports first began arriving that gay men were dying at an alarming rate.

The investigative work done by Dr. Darrow and his colleagues at the CDC led to the first solid understanding of how AIDS was spread, documented in the late Randy Shilts' book "And the Band Played On."

PSC tries for new area code

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Utility regulators will try to get some Jacksonville-area opinions on which section of the Panhandle should get a new telephone area code.

The state Public Service Commission scheduled a public hearing in Jacksonville tonight to get feedback on possible ways to divide up the current 904 area.

There was little interest in earlier hearings in Pensacola, Panama City, Tallahassee and Daytona Beach on what part of the 904 area BellSouth should change to a new code — 850.

Attendance ranged from zero in Daytona Beach and Pensacola to one in Tallahassee and three in Panama City.

BellSouth has said the boom in mobile phones, beepers, faxes and modern-equipped home computers is pushing the 904 area perilously close to the 7.6 million seven-number combinations possible with any one code.

Options include:

• Letting Jacksonville keep 904 area and switching Tallahassee and the Panhandle to 860. Part of Jacksonville would need another new area code in six years.

• Letting Tallahassee keep 904 and giving 860 to Jacksonville and Daytona Beach. That would also require another new area code in about six years.

• Switching the western Panhandle to 860 and leaving Tallahassee and Jacksonville in 904. Another new area code would be needed in four years.

The state Department of Management Services has vigorously lobbied to leave Tallahassee in the 904 area.

That way, everyone in the state — or outside it — wouldn't have to reprogram speed dials, faxes or computer modems that automatically dial hundreds of different state agency numbers.

Father gets life for raping daughter, killing her baby

WEST PALM BEACH — A man who pleaded guilty to sexually abusing his daughter, drowning the baby she bore him and burying the newborn in the backyard, was sentenced to two life terms.

Mendum Paul Corvin, 63, stood shackled and silent before Palm Beach County Circuit Judge Karen Martin after entering pleas to first-degree murder and capital rape for the crimes committed in Boynton Beach in 1982.

His daughter, Sharon Moore, sat at the rear, wiping away tears. The 40-year-old declined comment, but Corvin's attorney, Assistant Public Defender Peggy Natale, said one reason he accepted the plea bargain was to spare his daughter the trauma of a trial.

"She obviously still cares about her father, and he cares about his daughter," Natale said. "I don't think he wants to see her father dead or see him suffer."

Boynton Beach police Detective Jim Mahoney, who listened to Corvin's confession in a Pennsylvania jail, wasn't happy with the sentence.

"In my opinion he should have gotten the electric chair," Mahoney said. "He showed no remorse whatsoever. He's a despicable excuse for a human being."

Martin ordered the sentences to run concurrently with a life sentence Corvin received in August, when he pleaded guilty to a Pennsylvania murder charge.

Police say Corvin continued to abuse his daughter, and she gave birth to a girl. That newborn also was killed, then buried beneath a coal bin in the family home in Scottsdale, Pa.

The family secret turned into a police investigation when Moore's boyfriend went to Boynton Beach police in April 1985 and told them about the baby buried in the back yard. Moore confirmed the story and led detectives to the skeletal remains of the two infants.

Corvin is scheduled to return to Pennsylvania to serve his sentence. But under Wednesday's plea, he will have to serve out his sentence in Florida should he ever be released from prison in Pennsylvania.

Safety advocates: Air bags can be changed to save lives now

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Safety advocates say lives would be saved if the government required air bags that deploy with varying amounts of force depending on the speed of a crash.

Automakers should be forced to install so-called dual inflation air bags that deploy less forcefully in low-speed accidents to save the lives of children and smaller adults being killed by air bags, the advocates said Wednesday at a press conference.

The air bags would deploy with the current higher levels of force in more serious accidents, the kind in which hundreds of adult lives have been saved already, said Joan Claybrook, president of Public Citizen, and Clarence Ditlow, executive director of the Center for Auto Safety.

At least 30 children have been killed by the force of passenger-side air bags deploying in the blink of an eye at up to 200 mph even during low-speed accidents, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The highway safety agency's data also shows 15 smaller women have been killed by driver-side air bags in low-speed accidents they otherwise would have survived.

NHTSA spokesman Tim Hurd said highway safety agency officials have 120 days to study groups' petition and respond to it.

Meanwhile, USA Today reported in today's editions that the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration "in the next few days" will rewrite regulations to allow motorists to have their air bags disconnected by dealers and mechanics.

The newspaper said government and industry officials believe that giving motorists the option of disconnected the safety devices entirely is a "reliable alternative" to installing switches that would allow drivers to turn the air bags on and off.

Such cutoff switches are now allowed only in cars and trucks without back seats. The law now also prevents dealers and mechanics from disconnecting safety devices. Users are not covered, but few know how to do it.

The domestic automakers said their recent proposal to reduce the deployment force of all air bags by about 20 percent to 30 percent is the quickest way to address air bag deaths and injuries.

Last week, international manufacturers endorsed their approach, which involves a single inflator and requires only six months lead time.

Claybrook and Ditlow said the technology allowing air bags to inflate at two different levels of force and speed has been available since the 1970s.

"The auto industry is guilty of not developing this technology of two decades ago for the cars of the 1990s. It chose to produce cheaper air bags instead of better ones," said Claybrook, who was the head of NHTSA under President Carter.

The Washington Post, citing industry and federal documents, said auto manufacturers and the government knew as far back as 1980 that air bags could pose a danger to children and small adults. In today's editions, the newspaper quoted a 1989 General Motors research paper as saying "a small child close to an instrument panel from which an air cushion is deployed may, in our present estimation, be severely injured or killed."

It also quoted Claybrook as dismissing that evidence in October 1979 as "fragmentary and speculative," saying "the trade-off in terms of savings thousands of lives clearly outweighs these extraordinary and infrequent risks."

In the mid-1970s, General Motors Corp. sold about 10,000 cars that had "dual-stage inflators" in the air bags. In moderate crashes, a sensor would trigger a low-level air bag inflation. A severe crash would trigger a much more forceful air bag inflation.

The safety advocates argue that research conducted by NHTSA in the late 1970s and early 1980s demonstrated children who were out of position — not wearing seat belts and possibly standing in front of the dashboard — could be protected by such air bags.

However, GM officials said two people were killed by the air bags installed in the 1974-76 model cars.

GM spokesman Randy Fox said the company believes multi-inflator technology could be used in the future, but it would take time to develop because the technology used in the 1970s is now obsolete — too heavy and large for today's cars.

Electing a chairman

Every person who sits on the Seminole County Commission, at the time they ran for election, promised the citizens (in one way or another), that they would serve to lead the county toward a better future.

In their official swearing-in oaths, they pledged to serve the State and County to the best of their ability.

Yet in failing to even select one from their number to serve as chairman of the governing body of our county, we believe they have already broken their vows.

Although newly elected Commissioner Grant Maloy nominated Dick Van Der Weide, and Commissioner Win Adams nominated himself, Commissioners Randy Morris and Daryl McLain didn't even bother to vote for one of them or nominate another in this matter.

There have been indications that the county may be facing some difficulty, with discussions about an audit to be made, perhaps to uncover some financial spending difficulties.

The county manager has already resigned upon request by the commission even before the election results were known.

We can only wonder why, immediately following the swearing in of a newly-elected commissioner and two who were re-elected, the problem of leadership has emerged. Is there some question about electing someone to serve as chairman? Is someone worried about what the audit (if undertaken on more than a small scale) may prove?

Is there some concern over who sits at the head of the county table? While many consider the chairman's title as "mostly ceremonial" there is no doubt the chairman does hold some clout. He is generally the spokesman for the commission, and public statements made by the chairman are usually considered as expressing the feelings of the entire commission.

The Seminole County Commission members, as has been the case every year, will be facing many important decisions during the next few years. They will be voting on taxation, expenditures of possibly millions of dollars, major land and property developments, public safety needs, and many others.

Hopefully, the decisions they make will be beneficial to everyone in the county.

But if they can't even agree on who will serve as chairman, we don't see much of a bright future in these other decisions.

Do some of the commission members have hidden agendas: items they plan to push through the commission? That may well be possible because in most circumstances, the chairman does not make a motion. Therefore, a commission seat from where motions can be made may be a better position for some.

Seminole County commissioners presently receive a salary of $54,279 per year plus travel pay and other benefits. The chairman receives only a few hundred dollars more in annual salary.

We believe the citizens deserve better treatment from their paid elected officials. Seminole County needs leadership in the form of a county commission. The commission however, also needs leadership.

In the next year or so, it will be interesting to observe why certain members of the commission have found making this singular decision so difficult.

Filing the Year of the Soccer Mom

BOSTON—One last word before we file The Year of the Soccer Mom into the political calendar of clichés.

Somewhere along the way, the stressed-out, minivan-driving juggler of lives and roles was rewarded the title of MVP in the competition for voters. She became the icon of 1996, nearly running over the Angry White Male of 1994 in her new Dodge Caravan.

But in politics, as in soccer, you have to use your head. A trip through the postelection world is a reminder that her role was a touch inflated.

Suburban, married moms with kids at home were never more than 6 percent of the voters. Gary Langer at the ABC News Polling Unit calls them simply the "group du jour." He fairly sputters at the idea that they could swing anything but a headline.

More to the point, they didn't vote differently from what computer junkies like to call their "parent" group. In this case, their parent group was their gender group.

It was women as whole, women of all ages and athletic pursuits, who lived up to their political notices. If the exit polls prove to be right, this is the first time in American history that men alone would have elected a different candidate than women alone. Men chose Dole 44 percent to 43 percent, while women chose Clinton 54 percent to 37 percent.

Suburban, married moms with kids at home were never more than 6 percent of the voters.

This is precisely the doom that the anti-suffragists of the 19th century predicted for our forefathers if they let women get the vote.

This gender gap does not entirely compensate for the other one—among winning candidates. In this election, it should be noted, only one woman—"volleyball mom" Jeanne Shaheen of New Hampshire—won a governor's seat. The number of women in the Senate and the House will remain virtually unchanged at nine and 48 or 49. The number of women in state legislatures may go down.

But it does say something about a successful strategy of appealing to women's concerns. Much was made of the "feminizing" of this campaign as if C-SPAN were now Lifetime, but it turned out that women cared most about--ta dah!--issues.

The Republicans based their campaign on anti-Clinton, anti-government, anti-taxes. Then they tried to "soften" this message with a few pink ribbons, adding babies and biography to the convention rhetoric.

But the Democrats made a much more concerted and successful attempt to speak the female language. The sound bites and policy nibbles about V-chips and family medical leave were just one way that Clinton connected with voters, who told those exit pollsters that he understood their lives.

The deeper differences came out of women's lives. Women seem to carry with them into the polling booth a complex view of the economy and of caretaking that goes beyond "jobs" and "taxes." It's a connected sense of family and community, a wide-lens portrait of their self-interest and government's role.

Mexican border is site of drug 'cancer'

WASHINGTON -- Retired Gen. Barry McCaffrey is proud of the way his agency, the Office of National Drug Control Policy, is waging the war on drugs. But there's one caveat: McCaffrey, who spent his entire career in the military, won't refer to his current calling as a war.

The new metaphor is "cancer." As in, drugs are a cancer eating away at America's families. "Don't use those macho words like 'war,'" a McCaffrey aide tells us as we leave an interview with the recently appointed drug czar.

No matter what words one uses, the battle against illegal drugs continues to rage, not just in Washington but on the streets of Southern California and along America's border with Mexico.

Just a few years ago, most of the illicit drugs that entered this country came through south Florida, where Colombian drug lords imported tons of cocaine for the American market. These days, the front lines have moved rapidly westward. McCaffrey told us he believes that as much as 70 percent of all illegal drugs comes in over the Mexican border.

Most of those drugs come across the Texas/Mexico border, in part because stepped-up enforcement efforts in Southern California have made the border crossings there less attractive to drug dealers. McCaffrey estimates that 45 percent of all drugs that come from Mexico now arrive through the border crossing at El Paso, Texas.

"For the first time in the country's history, there actually is a U.S.-Mexican border in California," McCaffrey told our associates Aaron Karp and Sammy Linebaugh. "Not a great one, but there is a border.... There's a fence there. There are guards, and human rights are protected."

But all the high-tech surveillance equipment in the world can't protect against human greed, as shown by the story of a recent $3.7 million drug bust.

The stories of operations Motorcross and Broken Border were detailed in the pages of a Justice Department report, yet they read more like Hollywood thrillers. That's not surprising, since these real-life clandestine operations took place not far from the soundstages of Hollywood.

It began when Justice Department officials learned that a major drug trafficking organization in Southern California was planning to offer bribes to U.S. immigration officers in exchange for their cooperation.

Bribes are nothing new when it comes to drug enforcement. The Colombian cocaine king who once flew their illicit loads into Florida have learned that lesson well -- and many have applied that knowledge in Mexico. It's now estimated that government officials and law enforcement personnel in Mexico take in as much as $500 million per year in bribes from various drug dealers.

In exchange for money, the drug gangs wanted immigration documents and assistance in smuggling 100-kilo loads of cocaine into the United States. Justice officials shared the information with the Drug Enforcement Administration, and the two agencies planned a joint sting operation.

According to the Justice report, Operations Motorcross and Broken Border were soon initiated. It began with a Justice agent posing as a crooked immigration inspector. Soon he was given a $32,400 bribe to hand over immigration documents and look the other way as cocaine was smuggled across the border. The DEA allowed the "controlled" deliveries of cocaine to the drug traffickers.

As in, drugs are a cancer eating away at America's families.

The brainwashing of America

The brainwashing we Americans are undergoing, provided by the Clinton cadre and backed up by the major media, is almost unbelievable and enough to make us think we are living in pre-Nazi Germany. Considering the direction we are "aimed," it will surely prove to be devastating to our nation and could continue sending our freedom downward to the point of no return. The forward march to our self-destruction is what our elected officials have chosen for us because of their biased Harvard-Yale-like background, ignorance to the real world, selfish greed and their desire to do "good" in the eyes of their mentors. So far, we are accepting their premise-by-media-brainwashing that a one-world government is preferable to our American sovereignty. Our "acceptance" is proven by our belief in what we read, see and hear on television and in print. Our government has put us on a pre-planned path to a cashless society--money soon to be replaced by a computer chip inserted into your body by a syringe which will transfer assets and/or "pay" for everything you purchase. The chip will also be a complete decoder and tracking device for the control and location of your body at any given time by our "new" government. This plan is being preceded by "smart" cards, debit cards, the reduced handling of real money by ourselves and banks and other gradually-induced entities and "tests" such as the Olympic games where an attempt to pass no real money was accomplished. The plan is proceeding to slowly replace our armed forces with UN "peacekeepers". Michael New (a patriotic, American soldier to say the least) tried to test the waters on that one only to find a court martial starring him in the face, compliments of Bill. Our school curriculum is being replaced by "Goals 2000" and "Outcome Based Education". The plan is galling to take away all guns from honest, law-abiding, tax-paying, patriotic Americans (along with all countries around the world, Australia being one of the latest victims). This will be our last means of protection against criminals and our increasingly tyrannical, out-of-our-houses of worship, is being penetrated by the infectious idealism of the UN-promoted Baha'i and off-shoot testing in favor of the world "Constitution" they have already written and is waiting for us.

The so-called election was a race between two of the same. The difference between the agenda of Bill Clinton and Bob Dole was about the same as the difference between identical twins. Clinton and Dole both voted for NAFTA, GATT, the $50 billion tax-payer gift to the eastern banks that was disguised as "the Mexican bail-out", the "assault" weapons ban, any "anti-terrorist" bill that is in the offing, the most favored nation status for the barbaric Communist, Chinese government, etc., etc., etc.

There was no discussion between the two camps whatsoever on:

- 1) why the United States sovereignty is being handed over to the UN;
- 2) what the real reasons were for invading

Scot Eakman is a firefighter and paramedic.

He is a family man who ardently follows national politics.

Somalia and Haiti:
3) why foreign troops are being trained on U.S. soil
4) how Janet Reno, all of a sudden, had the power to authorize the use of tanks and other unlawful military equipment to barbecue more than 80 innocent men, women and children at Waco;

5) who should stand trial for the murders of Randy Weaver's wife and son, and why that isn't being pursued;

6) the Federal Reserve Board, which illegally prints our money so the international bankers can "collect" their interest and continue to drain our money supply;

7) secretive, private, elitist groups to which our president and former presidents and their cronies belong such as the "Bohemian Club" or Yale University's "Skull and Bones". Most of these clubs are male-only, homosexual groups. It's only "people" like the David Rockefeller, the Harrimans, Henry Kissinger, George Bush, Gerald Ford, James James Baker and their likes who belong to these perverted clans.

The media doesn't dare discuss things like the seven topics mentioned above for, if the truth were known, it would be found that both parties not only believe in but advocate a one-world government. The words for a one-world government now used by the press is "Global Union"; they have found the words "New World Order" starting to be recognized by the people so they switched. Therefore they have to focus our attention instead on diversionary topics by squabbling over taxes, the stock market, abortion, church burnings, drug busts, immigration, Boris Yeltsin, Cuba and non-issue things like the Olympics, O.J. Simpson and tons of sports contests, scores, personalities, player trades, interviews, statistics and trivia. The facts I have mentioned above are all documented and can be verified. If we don't take it upon ourselves to be interested in the future of our country, the Clinton theory of "peace" will overwhelm us like a bolt of lightning in the middle of the night. As the lightning crackles we will surely wake up to a storm of unparalleled proportions maybe sooner than we might think.

Girls

The campaign, which will feature Hollywood celebrities and sports stars, will combine anti-drug and anti-smoking ads with messages encouraging girls ages 9 to 14 to devote themselves to school, sports and the arts.

The initiative will require no new money, according to HHS officials, who said the $750,000 for the campaign will come from the agency's Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration.

Dee Schumaker, director of curriculum for the Seminole County schools, said the message is being sent to the students as a part of the curriculum, but it's not a formal topic.

"I think it's part of the soft skills that we teach the students," she said. "We just teach the students to have pride in themselves, to take part in healthy activities and to do the right things as a part of the curriculum in all areas."

According to Tony Durham, a prevention specialist for the district, a great deal of emphasis is being put on the importance of staying off drugs and staying in school and that that message is being sent to all those students who are at risk of dropping out...not just the girls.

A 1996 study found that daily cigarette use for eighth-grade girls jumped 48 percent between 1991 and 1996; drug use also increased at a slightly faster rate for girls than for boys.

In addition, one-quarter of the eighth-grade girls surveyed said they had used alcohol in the previous year.

Seminole County schools offer alternative education programs in the Teen Age Parent Program (TAPP) at Crooms Academy in Sanford for young women who are pregnant or already have children. Some think that's too late.

"I believe we probably need more emphasis on the issue before girls end up (in the TAPP program) at Crooms," said Dr. Teresita Leeson, a guidance counselor at Lakeview. "I believe more training is necessary on peer pressure and those kinds of issues that affect all the young people in middle school."

Survey: Parents want TV ratings

Bob Dole, media star

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Just two weeks after his presidential loss, Bob Dole is making a smooth transition from politician to media star, with an appearance in a print advertisement for Air France.

The ad, scheduled to begin running Thursday in six U.S. newspapers, is believed to be the first time the presidential candidate of a major political party has allowed his image to be used for commercial purposes. The New York Times reported in Thursday editions.

The ad follows humorous appearances by the failed Republican candidate on CBS' "Late Show with David Letterman" and NBC's "Saturday Night Live."

Dole will donate his $3,000 fee for the ad to a Washington community center for the elderly, the Times said.

The ad pitches a sale on round-trip weekend fares to Paris, priced from $299 to $449 with restrictions.

It shows a photograph of a smiling, waving Dole. A headline reads: "Not doing anything?"

"If you have a little time on your hands," the text reads, "there's never a better reason for a getaway to Paris than our special fare."

The ad concludes with the claim that "a fare this low might be the best news you've had in a long time."

Doug Wurth, who served as general counsel to the Dole presidential campaign, also was the intermediary between Dole and Blum/Herbstreit, the New York advertising agency that created the ad for Air France.

"The senator is a good-natured, good-humored man," Wurth said.

content-based ratings system — citing one used by cable network HBO as an example — over an age-based ratings system like the one used by the motion picture industry for 28 years, according to industry sources who have seen the survey results.

Eighty percent preferred a system that identifies program content rather than the age group it is intended for, said one source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The National PTA, the Institute for Mental Health Initiatives and researchers from the University of Wisconsin conducted the study, which was being released in Washington today.

The groups said they would forward the study to a TV industry panel that is devising a system to rate programs on broadcast, cable and public television for violence and sexual content.

To be in place by January, the industry-devised plan is supposed to be based in part on the motion picture industry's system. The industry panel has yet to make decisions on the type and number of ratings categories, ratings symbols or guidelines for each ratings category.

The HBO ratings system, in place since the 1980s, provides information on the intensity of on-screen sex, violence and language.

For example, violent content in a given program may be described as either mild, graphic or rape. On-screen sex is described as either brief nudity, nudity or strong sexual content. And language is described as being mild, adult or graphic.

The motion picture ratings system uses: "G" for general audience, all ages admitted; "PG" parental guidance, some material may not be suitable for children; "PG-13," parents strongly cautioned, some material may be inappropriate for children under 13; "R," requires parent or guardian for people under 17 years old; and "NC-17," no one 17 years old and younger admitted. The study, based on 679 responses of randomly surveyed parents, also found that parents prefer detailed descriptions of a program's content over a general summary.

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., who wrote a provision into the 1990 telecommunications law that called for the television industry to create a ratings system, said the study's findings were welcome but not a surprise.

"In the era of 100 TV channels, the Internet, shock radio and gangsta rap, parents are desperate for family-friendly filters for restoring order in the home," Markey said. "The more they know about what is about to come around the corner, the better job they can do to keep their children safe."

Eventually, the ratings system will work with a computer chip, called a v-chip, that would allow a viewer to use a remote control device to block individual programs or entire categories of shows.

Contraceptives and disease

GAITHERSBURG, Md. — Contraceptive foams and gels are a step closer to approval as a way for women to protect against two sexually transmitted diseases. But the government is trying to sort out confusion around who should use them and when.

Scientific advisers to the FDA said Wednesday that spermicides appear to protect women against gonorrhea and chlamydia, two of the most common sexually transmitted diseases, although not nearly as well as condoms do.

But the panel left unclear just who should be using spermicides and how to make that decision. And its action comes as the FDA also is charging that some spermicides fail to do the basic task of preventing pregnancy — and conflicting studies suggest the gels or foams may actually increase women's chances of catching the AIDS virus.

"Is a balance between a decrease in gonorrhea and chlamydia offset by an increased risk" of the AIDS virus?, Dr. Penelope Hitchcock of the National Institutes of Health asked Wednesday. "We don't have the answers."

Fighting espionage charges

WASHINGTON — In a first move to fight the government's espionage charges against CIA officer Harold J. Nicholson, his lawyer says a tape of a CIA-administered lie detector test will refute some of the allegations.

Nicholson, bearded and dressed in tan and green jailhouse overalls with the words "Alexandria Jail" on the back, sat stone-faced in U.S. District Court in Alexandria, Va., on Wednesday as his court-appointed attorney, Jonathan Shapiro, made a plea for extra legal assistance and said he wanted to subpoena the polygraph tape.

U.S. Magistrate Thomas R. Jones Jr. said he would appoint a second attorney to help Shapiro, and he invited Shapiro to submit a request for a budget from which the defense team could pay the costs of its investigative work. Shapiro told reporters afterward he had never worked on an espionage case.

Nicholson, 48, a 16-year veteran of the CIA, was charged Monday with selling highly sensitive national security secrets — including the names and assignment plans for many new CIA officers — to Russia since 1994, for $120,000.

Telephone records show

WASHINGTON — Using her government credit card, former Commerce Department official Melinda Yee made numerous calls to the Democratic Party, a donor's company and the homes and offices of executives of an Indonesian conglomerate, her telephone records show.

The calls raise questions because federal regulations and laws prohibit employees from making personal or political calls using government telephones or credit cards, or using their government positions to financially benefit themselves or their immediate family.

The phone calls from Yee, whose relationship with Democratic donor Nora Lum has been under federal investigation, included one to Lum's Oklahoma company just two days before the company approved a $12,500 payment to Yee's mother, according to records obtained by The Associated Press.

The schedule is: 9 a.m. — 11-Under (boys and girls); 10:30 a.m. — 13-Under; noon — 15-Under; 1:30 p.m. — All girls (ages 12-15). Boys and girls 8-Under need sign-up only, no tryouts. ### AROUND THE STATE

Panthers 4, Kings 1

MIAMI — Scott Mellanby scored a goal and assisted on another to spark the Florida Panthers to a 4-1 win over the Los Angeles Kings. John Vanbiesbrouck, the NHL's leader in save percentage, stopped 37 shots — including 15 in the third period. The victory was his 270th, tying him for 20th place on the all-time list with Bernie Parent and Gilles Meloche. Florida led 2-1 in the third period before Dave Lowry and Jody Hull scored to break the game open. Lowry scored his sixth goal of the season after a wild scramble in front of Stéphane Fleet. Ray Sheppard's slapshot was stopped but Ed Jovanovski, while on his back, stuck a pass on net and Lowry drilled it past a prone Fleet. Hull's wrist shot over Fleet's left shoulder at 11:34 secured the victory. Florida outshot the Kings 16-3 in the first period, but didn't score until there were 38 seconds left when Mellanby fed Brian Skrudland in front from behind the net.

Rapp Gets $1.1M from Marlins

MIAMI — Right-hander Pat Rapp and the Florida Marlins agreed Wednesday to a one-year contract worth $1,125,000, more than triple his $350,000 salary last season. Rapp, 29, is the Marlins' career victory leader, with 33 from 1993-96 and is the only pitcher in the team's brief history to pitch more than 100 innings in three seasons. Last season, he was 8-16 with a 5.10 ERA in 30 games and 29 starts. His signing leaves the Marlins with three players eligible for arbitration: infielder Kurt Abbott; first baseman, outfielder and pitcher Robb Nen. Florida also purchased the minor-league contracts of pitchers Tony Saunders, Rob Stanifer and Vic Darenbourg and outfielder Todd Dunwoody. The Marlins sold the contract of outfielder Jerry Brooks to the Nippon Ham Fighters of Japan's Pacific League.

ELSEWHERE

Heat 94, Grizzlies 75

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Isaac Austin scored a season-high 17 points and the Miami Heat held the Vancouver Grizzlies to 30 points in the second half of a 94-75 victory. Tim Hardaway made five 3-pointers and finished with 19 points and Dan Majerle added four 3-pointers and 16 points as Miami won its third straight game. Austin, a third-year center from Arizona State, took over for Alonso Mourning after the Heat's starting center got into foul trouble. Austin ended up playing 30 minutes to Mourning's 21 and outscored his teammate 17-14. The Grizzlies lost their fourth straight despite 16 points and 10 rebounds from Bryant Reeves. He didn't have much support in one of the poorest efforts of the season for Vancouver before an announced crowd of 15,064 that appeared much smaller.

Smoltz resigns with Braves

NEW YORK — Atlanta's John Smoltz joined Albert Belle in the record books, re-signing for the largest contract ever given to a pitcher. Smoltz, the NL Cy Young award winner, agreed to a $81 million, four-year contract. His average salary of $7.75 million tops the previous record for pitchers, $6.5 million in David Cone's deal with the New York Yankees. Smoltz's average is third overall behind the $11 million per year in Belle's $55 million, five-year contract with the Chicago White Sox, and the $8.5 million in Ken Griffey Jr.'s $34 million, four-year deal with Seattle. Smoltz, coming off a $16 million, four-year contract, gets $7 million in 1997, $7.75 million the next two years and $8.5 million in 2000. The Braves have an $8 million option for 2001. In other free-agent signings, third baseman Dave Hollins agreed to a $3.5 million, two-year contract with Anaheim, and second baseman Delino DeShields agreed to a $1.9 million, one-year deal with St. Louis.

Leaders falter on final night at Chase Park

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Beer:30 and Stoooges threw a monkey wrench into the plans of Lillie Quinn, D.D.S., P.A. and Wells Contracting in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Fall Wednesday Night Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park.

Lillie Quinn, D.D.S., P.A. came into the night's first game figuring it needed to win to force a playoff for first place. But Beer:30 had other ideas, scoring five runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to erase a 9-6 deficit and then added nine more runs over the next two innings to bounce Lillie Quinn, D.D.S., P.A. 20-11.

With Lillie Quinn, D.D.S., P.A.'s loss, all Wells Contracting needed was to beat Stoooges to win the league championship, which would be the team's second straight after also winning the Spring title.

But Wells Contracting saw a 3-1 second inning lead disappear during an eight-run Stoooges third inning and they could never recover as Stoooges built a 15-4 lead on the way to a 16-11 triumph.

Stoooges then kept the momentum into the nightcap, scoring seven runs in the first inning and 10 runs in the second inning on the way to an 18-5 victory over Haley's Lame Ducks.

Lillie Quinn, D.D.S., P.A. and Wells Contracting finish the regular season tied for first with 9-3 records. Completing the standings were: Stoooges (7-5), Beer:30 (4-8) and Haley's Lame Ducks (1-10).

Lillie Quinn, D.D.S., P.A. and Wells Contracting will meet in a winner-take-all game on Wednesday, December 4th at a time to be announced.

Is arthritis remedy a 'cure'?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Have you heard that 2 ounces of gelatin mixed in any liquid consumed every day will almost cure arthritis completely in four months? My husband says it is a miracle, but I would like your opinion.

DEAR READER: This is a new one on me. Gelatin, a harmless substance, has been used for decades to strengthen the nails, but I have never heard of it helping patients with arthritis. If any other readers have had this experience, I'd like to hear from them.

The pain of arthritis is traditionally treated with ibuprofen or one of many prescription anti-inflammatory drugs. To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Understanding Osteoarthritis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $8 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10154. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have celiac sprue. My symptoms are water retention, loss of energy, protein deficiency, constant diarrhea, and a bloated stomach. Is it contagious or hereditary, and how in the world did I get this disorder?

DEAR READER: Celiac disease (also called non-tropical sprue) is a chronic, non-contagious intestinal affliction caused by a hereditary inability to digest gluten, a cereal protein found in wheat, rye, barley, and oats.

When eaten by susceptible individuals, gluten leads to a variety of complications - usually, frequent and malodorous bulky stools. However, the bowel movements may be relatively normal.

Nonetheless, children with celiac disease may suffer abdominal cramps, iron deficiency anemia and malabsorption (protein deficiency). In adults, the affliction may be associated with short stature, infertility, anemia, mouth ulcers, and weak bones.

The diagnosis is confirmed by biopsy of the jejunum (part of the small intestine).

Treatment includes meticulous avoidance of products that contain gluten. Supplemental vitamins and minerals are helpful. Because gluten is virtually ubiquitous in processed foods (soups, sauces, ice cream, hot dogs, and so forth), a gluten-free diet may be a daunting challenge. Therefore, celiac patients often require nutritional counseling from a licensed dietitian.

This disorder is one of the few diseases that promptly and completely responds to a special diet.

Hence, dietary modification is the only effective therapy. In my opinion, patients with celiac disease should be under the care of gastroenterologists.

MEDICINE
PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Our son is in his 20s and has a problem that is controlling his life. He has eight to 10 bowel movements every day, and he won't go anywhere that doesn't have a bathroom. He doesn't socialize much, doesn't date any more because of the embarrassment. He's handsome, doesn't smoke, drink or do drugs. It hurts to see him missing out on a lot of fun and opportunities because of his "handicap."

DEAR READER: This embarrassing problem could be caused by a variety of afflictions, ranging from trivial lactose intolerance (inability to digest milk sugar) to serious forms of colitis.

I urge your son to be examined and tested by a gastroenterologist, who will probably obtain blood tests, stool analyses and X-rays, and may choose to perform a colonoscopy (examination of the colon with a fiber-optic tube).

There is no reason why your son should have to modify his life to accommodate his bowel-movement pattern. Once a diagnosis is made, the specialist will suggest treatment, which will depend on the cause of your son's excessive evacuations. Get him to a gastroenterologist.

New Zealand Bridge magazine is edited by Richard Solomon. He does a great job in difficult circumstances. Despite having a full-time job and a family, he still manages to put out six issues a year. This magazine contains more material for the less serious player, though there is a fair amount for those on the tournament trail.

I am doubtful that this deal was defended as described because no names are given. But perhaps the writer, Jane Skipper from Christchurch, was being modest.

They like the weak no-trump in New Zealand, showing 13-14 points. North used Stayman, and then invited game with his two-no-trump rebid. Knowing his partner had four spades, South bid game in that suit. He had only 13 points, but aces are undervalued at four.

West led the heart king, which was allowed to win. West continued with the heart jack.

Things look easy, don't they? Draw two rounds of trumps, take the diamond finesse, and sail home when West has no entry to cash his heart queen. Yet when South played the spade ace, West dropped the queen! Worried that this meant trumps were breaking 4-1, South turned to diamonds immediately. But when he ran the diamond 10, East made a great play, ducking his king.

Taken in, South repeated the diamond finesse. After East won with the king and gave his partner a diamond ruff, West cashed the heart queen. East still had a trump trick to come: two deuces.

Our Birthday

Friday, Nov. 22, 1988

In the year ahead, more opportunities than usual could help you to improve your financial position. It will be imperative to rely on yourself. Bypass the middleman.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You must be strong enough to say "no" if a friend makes an unreasonable request today, particularly if it has to do with money. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10158.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Unless there is some specific thing you can gain, it might be wise to steer clear of competitive situations today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're trying to interest others in a new idea today, make your presentation as simple as possible. Do not be coy or wordy; try to be direct.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You will not close a deal on time today if you attempt to work with associates who are trying to enjoy themselves socially.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You must be firm if you're trying to negotiate an important agreement today. If your opponent would be indifferent, your opponent could stall your thunder.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Impulsiveness and impatience will be your two worst enemies today. Working with engines, machinery or tools could be dangerous.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Your feelings might get hurt today if someone who is dear to you acts in a thoughtless manner. This relationship is important, so you must express your feelings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Merchandise

you purchase today to beautify your surroundings might look better in the store than it will at home. Make sure you can return things you don't like.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you want to be on the safe side today, don't lease a sensitive friend who sometimes takes herself too seriously. This could be one of these times.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This will not be a good day to go shopping, because you might be tempted to buy something on impulse. This attitude could blow a hole in your budget.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone with whom you're closely involved will resent it today if she thinks she is being taken for granted. Demonstrate your appreciation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Today, if you attempt to manipulate others from behind the scenes, things will not work out as well as you expected.
