Sanford Loses Round In Land Suit

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Having voted to ignore a courthouse bomb threat, litigants in Seminole's Yankee Lake tug-of-war left a four-hour hearing in Melbourne Monday with Sanford's case dismissed.

As a sidelight to the event, an Evening Herald reporter who accompanied city officials to the hearing in a motor home was ordered not to take notes on the return trip by a commissioner's wife.

Seminole-Brevard Circuit Judge Thomas Waddell Jr. ruled that the city, in initiating its condemnation suit against Seminole County for a 2,867-acre potential wastewater disposal site, failed to notify all of the city commission members in writing of a special meeting and thus failed to follow its own charter requirements.

The meeting was called by Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith to launch the condemnation issue, but Commissioner Milton Smith was out of town at the time and did not receive notice of the meeting.

Monday's hearing was scheduled in Melbourne before Waddell because circuit judges in Sanford removed themselves from the case to eliminate any possible accusation of partiality.

Win or lose, Sanford pays, SA

Waddell's ruling, delivered at 5 p.m. after a 4-hour hearing that started under an unrelated bomb threat in the Brevard County Courthouse, places further action — either an appeal or refiling of the suit — on Sanford's shoulders. At least two city commissioners expressed desire to refile the suit.

The issue is expected to be discussed at a yet-to-be-scheduled commission meeting.

The bomb threat was the second one at the Melbourne courthouse since Friday. Although lawyers and city and county officials stayed in the courtroom, witnesses were evacuated. The building was checked out and reoccupied in time for testimony. Although about 18 potential witnesses were on hand, seven testified.

After Waddell's ruling, several city commission members said they were anxious to hear what city co-counsel's William Colbert and Ken McIntosh will suggest the city do in light of the court's decision. The mood of some commissioners was that while the city may have lost some time in its effort to solve its sewage disposal problems, the loss could be beneficial in the long term if the city chooses to refile the condemnation suit after eliminating the defects the judge cited.

"We did our best. It is too soon to comment further," said Mayor Smith Monday night. City commissioner Dave Farr said he feels the suit was tossed out on a technicality but possibly could be reintroduced with the problems

Students Write About Shuttle

By Paul Schaefer
Herald Staff Writer

"I really didn't know Christa McAuliffe, but deep in my heart, I felt she was very special. Remember, you didn't lose a teacher. She's still in (our) hearts," wrote Elizabeth Padilla, 11.

Jennifer Laws, 10, said: "While I watched the shuttle go up, I thought that it was going into space and Mrs. McAuliffe could come back and teach the students all about what she learned. I wish none of this went like it did."

"Mrs. McAuliffe was the first teacher in space," wrote Nicole Banks, 10. "and will always be remembered for her bravery."

These comments from Goldsboro Elementary School students are among hundreds Seminole County students are writing to Concord High School, where Mrs. McAuliffe taught social studies, and to President Reagan.

Some students expressed shock at the tragedy and a feeling of being scared, but most wrote that they want the space program to continue and some still want to ride the Shuttle someday. They said they are sorry first teacher-in-space Christa McAuliffe and the other Challenger astronauts died.

Much of Seminole's 40,000 student population was to have participated in Mrs. McAuliffe's lessons that were to be broadcast from the shuttle last week.

Now, they are trying to cope with the loss by sharing their feelings.

Goldsboro Assistant Principal Beth Ransom said, in addition to showing their support for students at Concord High School, Seminole County students are also able to "release some of their feelings", indicating the project is also therapeutic for some students, many of whom were watching television or outside looking skyward at the time of the explosion.

She said students were not required to write, because for some Tuesday's disastrous shuttle explosion was a difficult experience.

But most Goldsboro students polled Monday were in favor of continuing the shuttle missions.

Brian Bose, a ten-year-old fourth grade student in Diannetta Alexander's language-arts class, shared his letter to McAuliffe's students and associates, as the class took turns reading their messages Monday. Brian's letter said:

"I'm sorry about the explosion of the shuttle. Your teacher was very brave. I know how you must feel. I saw it on TV. It scared me enough that I didn't sleep. I used to want to go into space. Not anymore. You have my love and respect."

He explained his letter saying, "I used to want to go into space because the weightlessness sounded like fun, but the explosion scared me, and I changed my mind." But he said he thought the shuttle launches should continue, and is still interested in the exploration of space.

Another student in Mrs. Alexander's class, Victoria Murphy, 9, wrote, "Your teacher was just like my teacher because they both know alot about history. It was a very bad loss."

Andre Moore, 10, wrote, "I am sorry about the accident that happened to your history teacher. I know she was a fine teacher..."

The fourth grade language-arts students of Marilyn Hunt, one of the Seminole school district applicants for the teacher-in-space program, were preparing letters they are sending to President Ronald Reagan, asking questions and supporting the continuation of the shuttle missions.

The students are asking the president if another teacher will be going into space, if kids would ever fly in a shuttle, and what name would be selected if a new shuttle were built. All told the president the shuttle program should continue.

"I think NASA should go on," Karsara Reed, 11, wrote. She said she would like to see Mrs. Hunt, and teacher's aid Valerie Burke have the opportunity to fly in space.

Eleven-year old Curtis Williams' letter to the president said:

"I would like to go on the shuttle and I loved every astronaut that went in the space shuttle. How old will I have to be to go in the shuttle?"

"I think you should continue what you are doing" about the space program Valabrina Campbell, 11, told the president.

"Mr. President, I have these questions," 9-year-old Delores Rouse wrote. "The first one is: Would you like to go into space? The second one is: Will kids be able to go into space? The third one is: How many parts of the space shuttle did NASA find?"

"I think the space program should go on," she concluded.

Ten-year-old Yuleyma Otero wrote, "I watch the space shuttle every time. I think NASA should keep on going."

Fifth graders in Margie Bledsoe's class were writing to Concord students.

Jenny Lin Willis, 10, wrote that her family cried together following the explosion Tuesday, and Jon Rogers, 10, said he hoped Mrs. McAuliffe's students would "recover from this catastrophe."

To the children of the lost astronauts, Marie Kaye, 12, wrote, "I'll bet you're going to miss your parents. Boy, if I had to leave my parents for even a month, I would cry."

The hundreds and perhaps thousands of letters from Seminole County schools to Concord High School will be mailed at the Sanford post office at 11 a.m. Thursday. The Seminole County Council of PTAs is paying for the postage, and representatives of that group, along with Superintendent of Schools Robert Hughes, will oversee the post office activities.

Marines Die On Leave To Visit Others

In a bizarre chain of events, a U.S. Marine killed in a motorcycle accident Saturday was in Seminole County for the funeral of a fellow Marine who was killed in a freak traffic accident in Longwood Thursday. That Marine was on emergency leave at the time to visit his terminally ill father, who died before he could get home.

Roger C. Raduns, 20, of Gainesville, was killed Saturday on Markham Woods Road when he lost control of his motorcycle on a curve and crashed head on into a pickup. Raduns had just left the funeral home to change for visiting hours for fellow marine and friend Michael Francis Dougherty, 21, of Sanford, according to a spokesman for Gramow-Gaines Funeral Home, Sanford.

Dougherty was killed Thursday after being thrown from the back of a kennel truck he hop a ride on. The driver did not know Dougherty was aboard. When he turned, the marine, clinging to a spare tire, was tossed in front of an on-coming vehicle. He died at South Seminole Community Hospital in Longwood, the same hospital his father died in the day before. Daniel F. Dougherty, 54, of Longwood, died of natural causes hours before the younger Dougherty arrived.

No charges have been filed in the traffic accidents.

State Of Union Speech To Spotlight Family

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, calling 1986 a year of opportunity for his conservative agenda, intends to spotlight the American family and call for an overhaul of federal welfare programs in his State of the Union address tonight.

Under the constraints of the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law, Reagan will propose major cuts in domestic spending but demand that lawmakers continue his military buildup lest they send the wrong signal to the Soviets.

Aides said Reagan's speech will last perhaps just 20 minutes — about half the length of recent addresses — and will feature somewhat punchier rhetoric than his first four.

The president's fiscal 1987 budget proposal goes to Capitol Hill Wednesday, and on Thursday he will deliver a 40-page list of legislative, administrative and foreign policy initiatives.

The address, to be delivered at 8 p.m. EST before a joint session of Congress, was delayed a week because of the space shuttle Challenger disaster.

In a speech to religious broadcasters Monday, Reagan called 1986 "a year of opportunity" for his conservative goals, including outlawing abortion and a return to state-sponsored prayer in the schools. He said that abortion was "a moral issue as profound as slavery."

Aides said the president will call for a Cabinet-level study of the $110 billion spent on federal welfare programs, with a report due on Reagan's desk by Dec. 1. He also will propose an evaluation of federal programs and strategy to meet financial, educational, social and safety concerns of families.

There was speculation in the White House that the administration could save money and move some of the poor above the poverty level by providing cash benefits rather than financing specific aid programs. Reagan believes he can slash welfare spending down to $60 billion under a new system.

Tot Drowns In Pool; Senator's Brother Killed

A one-year-old Longwood boy died early today in an Orlando hospital after a Monday swimming pool accident at his home. And in a separate accident, the brother of a state senator was killed in a single-car crash in Oviedo, also on Monday.

Kenneth Wade Tabb, 804 Sweetwater Blvd. S., was found by his grandmother, Linda Williams, in the swimming pool of their home at about 4:20 p.m. Monday, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

The boy's mother, Cara Tabb, 20, his grandmother and another adult were at the home when the tot apparently wandered over to the backyard pool and fell in, the report said.

Sheriff's Investigator Terry Huf-

man said Kenneth apparently entered the screened-in pool area through sliding glass doors which had been left open. He had been in the water for from five to 10 minutes when he was found, Huffman said.

When Ms. Williams found the boy in the pool two neighbors came to the home and began CPR on the child. When Seminole County Fire Department paramedics arrived they took over that duty, the report said.

Kenneth was first taken to South Seminole Community Hospital in Longwood and transferred to Orlando Regional Medical Center via helicopter at about 7 p.m., Huffman said. Kenneth, who apparently suffered brain damage, was pronounced

Reagan Names Panel To Probe Shuttle Disaster

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — President Reagan named an independent panel to report on the crash of the shuttle Challenger, sidestepping the space agency's own probe, with the search for wreckage shifting to the bottom of the sea.

NASA officials said search and recovery teams today would resume work "refining" some 17 targets on the sea floor that could be fragments of the spaceship, obliterated by an explosion 73 seconds after launch one week ago today at 11:38 a.m. EST.

In Houston, sources said investigators were checking the theory that a tiny gap between the lower two fuel-loaded sections of Challenger's right-hand solid rocket booster may have let 6,000-degree gases burn through a steel seam between fuel segments. That, in turn, apparently detonated the shuttle's fuel tank.

Sources said such a gap might have been caused during assembly by damage to the rocket casing or to the fuel, which has the consistency of hard rubber, or by misalignment of the rocket segments when they were put together at the Kennedy Space Center.

"It's pretty obvious we had a leak at that joint," one engineer said. Another said the joint was identified as the apparent source of the flame jet by investigators studying enhanced photographs of the launching.

A short film of the last 15 seconds of Challenger's flight, released during the weekend, showed a jet of flame shooting out of the right rocket booster.

President Reagan announced the formation of an independent panel Monday to review the disaster. An internal NASA investigation presumably will continue to sift through a growing mass of data about the accident.

With diminishing returns from surface searches that have covered some 60,000 square miles of ocean, a security zone near the spaceport was eased Monday, although fishermen were told not to drag nets or bottom fish 17 miles to either side of a line extending 80 miles due east of Challenger's launch pad to prevent snagging any remaining shuttle debris.

Three NASA ships were using robot submarines to search the ocean floor about 15 miles off the coast for objects believed to have plunged into sea after the shuttle disintegrated when its giant fuel tank exploded.

But NASA officials said no shuttle objects have been identified on the sea bottom or recovered.

Doctors Turn Away Patients In Insurance Flap With State

BOSTON (UPI) — Hospitals in Massachusetts promised to use ambulances and helicopters, if necessary, today to transport ill and injured patients to other medical centers if doctors protesting soaring malpractice insurance rates refuse to treat them.

Scores of orthopedic surgeons, obstetricians and other "high risk" physicians, saying they can't afford malpractice premiums as high as $60,000 a year, began refusing to care for pregnant women and new patients Monday.

The problem became acute when obstetrician-gynecologists, along with neurosurgeons, orthopedic surgeons and other "high risk" medical specialists, were ordered by the state insurance commissioner to pay retroactive insurance increases dating back two years.

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis called the slowdown "inexcusable" and urged the doctors "to work with us to achieve a legislative solution."

"If there is no short-term legislation to remedy the situation, no one will be around to benefit from long-term legislation," warned Medical Society President Dr. Barbara Rockett.

Options Few; Mini-Jarvik Used

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Doctors say they had few options when they decided to implant a recalled mini-Jarvik mechanical heart into a dying 40-year-old woman because her kidneys and other vital organs were failing.

Bernadette Chayrez remained in critical condition at the University of Arizona Medical Center late Monday but a hospital spokeswoman said that was to be expected after the transplant surgery.

A surgical team led by Dr. Jack G. Copeland implanted the mini-Jarvik into the Phoenix assembly worker at the medical center in a five-hour operation Monday morning.

Copeland said the situation Chayrez faced was "grim" before the transplant.

"The mini seems to be working very well," Copeland said, adding that the next four or five days will be the most critical period for Chayrez.

FAA Chief: No Safety Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Aviation Administration chief Donald Engen says the government will hire more air traffic controllers and airline inspectors despite budget reductions — even if it means layoffs and cuts in other areas.

Engen, testifying before a Senate aviation subcommittee, said while he expects some reductions in the agency's fiscal 1987 budget proposal, safety operations will be spared from deep new cuts that would cripple the agency.

The FAA administrator's remarks came as his agency emerged from the deadliest year in U.S. commercial aviation since 1977.

Fire Causes State Of Emergency

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A state of emergency was declared as potentially toxic fumes spewed from a massive fire that burned out of control for nearly five hours at a jet parts manufacturing plant.

Mayor Stephen Reed lifted the emergency at 12:40 a.m. today, about five hours after the fire had erupted in the TRW plant, located about a quarter-mile from the state capital building. There were no serious injuries reported.

Cracks Found In Boeing 747s

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal aviation officials have ordered U.S. airlines to inspect their Boeing 747 jumbo jets for cracks that safety experts say could trigger a rapid loss of cabin pressure and even a crash if left unrennated.

The Federal Aviation Administration said Monday the "emergency airworthiness directive" was issued after three cracks were found in the frame of a 747 owned by Pan American World Airways and a single crack was discovered in a British Airways 747.

Noose Entered In Ugly Tie Contest Won't Go To Khadafy

MARY ESTHER (UPI) — A merchant who plans to send Moammar Khadafy every entry submitted in an ugly tie contest says that at least one of the "ties" he's received won't get in the "Khadafy Collection."

It's a hangman's noose.

Al Hearn said the "Hideous Tie Contest" he launched last month has attracted 250 entries, including some from New York and California. The winner will be chosen "Valentine's week," then all of them will be sent the following week to the Libyan leader who has been at odds with the United States.

Hearn said sending the noose would be tantamount to endorsing violence. "I think discretion is the better part of valor. The last thing I want to do is irritate," he said.

At least one resident expressed fear over the publicity the contest is generating. In a letter to the editor published in Monday's Fort Walton Beach Playground Daily News, a woman said she was "sure" Khadafy knew of the "escapade," and said she feared retaliation.

"It is like putting a big white cross on the map and saying, 'Come and get us,'" the Fort Walton Beach woman wrote.

Gas Tanks Said Threat To Water

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A group of Florida lawmakers called for a 10-cent per barrel gasoline tax to fund a $50 million superfund for cleaning up water supplies contaminated by leaking underground fuel storage tanks.

They said Monday as many as 6,000 aging steel gasoline storage tanks may be leaking, creating a "critical threat" to the underground deposits that supply 92 percent of Florida's drinking water.

Cleaning up an average leak costs about $250,000, while cleaning a bad leak could cost uncounned millions, said House Natural Resources Chairman James Ward.

"Every day action is delayed our risk increases, the leaks increase and the cost of clean-up grows greater," said Ward, D-Fort Walton Beach. "This could easily be the number one environmental problem in our state today."

New Study Asserts:

G-R Axe Will Cut States $10 Billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new budget-balancing Gramm-Rudman legislation will plunge state and local governments into "financial chaos," a study by three organizations said today.

The new Gramm-Rudman budget-cutting law, which goes into effect March 1, requires across-the-board cuts in all government programs if lawmakers fail to come up with an alternative to reduce the national deficit.

The report said that more than $10 billion will have to be cut from federal programs administered by state and local governments. Another $2.4 billion will be cut from Medicare and student financial assistance, the study said.

"If state governments were to attempt to fully offset this loss of federal funds, 39 of the 50 states would run deficits," said the report, which was prepared by Fiscal Services Inc. for the Villers Foundation, the National Council of Senior Citizens and the Service Employees International Union.

"State and local governments across the country will be plunged into financial chaos if the Gramm-Rudman automatic budget-cut process triggers for fiscal 1987," the report said.

The report said the hardest hit programs would be those in education, including federal assistance to college students, $1.2 billion, Head Start, $278 million, programs for educationally deprived children, $1 billion, and handicapped education, $280 million.

The biggest cuts, the report said, would be made in transportation "with drastic decreases in federal aid to highways, $3 billion, and urban mass transit, $1 billion. And although Medicare cuts are limited to 2 percent under the Gramm-Rudman process, the nation's only public health care insurance program will be cut $1.2 billion," the report said.

The report said New York and California would suffer cuts of more than $1 billion each and Texas, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio would each face cuts of more than $500 million.

"What is surprising," the report said, "is that, measured on a per capita basis, the brunt of the Gramm-Rudman cutbacks is borne by smaller, less urbanized states." The five hardest hit states will be Alaska, $72.8 million, Wyoming, $40.4 million, Montana, $64.6 million, Vermont, $41.3 million, and South Dakota, $54.4 million, the report said.

"It is staggering to think that most of these cuts will affect poor and handicapped children, students struggling to attend college, the elderly and the unemployed," said a spokesman representing the three organizations that did the study.

The report decried the lack of taxes paid by corporations.

"If just one corporation, General Electric, had paid a minimum tax of 25 percent on the more than $9 billion in

Bogus Bomb Used In Kennel Club Threat

A Seminole County sheriff's bomb expert has determined that it was a bogus bomb that brought the Saturday night evacuation of about 4,500 persons at the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club in Longwood.

"It was not a bomb, but made to look like a bomb," sheriff's Capt. Roy Hughey said today of the device found in a men's restroom at the dog track on Dog Track Road, after the building was evacuated at about 9:50 p.m. Saturday.

The evacuation was triggered by a call received at the track at about 9:20 p.m. and a search turned up the device which had wires sticking out of it, wires attached and an apparent extortion note attached.

Sheriff's Lt. Marty LaBrusciano examined the device Monday, Hughey said, and determined that it was not a bomb.

The bomb threat and extortion attempt, which sheriff's Sgt. John Thorpe said, demanded a "large sum of money" and said there were four bombs at the track, are being investigated by Longwood police, with sheriff's agents taking custody of the evidence, police said.

Spectators were told the evacuation was because of faulty equipment, not a bomb threat. Police said the evacuation was very orderly and this was the first such incident at the track.

OPEC Cancels Summit

VIENNA (UPI) — OPEC has called off a planned emergency summit because it might have suggested the 13-nation oil group was prepared to end its oil pricing war with independent producers, OPEC sources said Monday.

The cancellation of the meeting was disclosed as five OPEC oil ministers met to define OPEC's "fair share" of the world oil market amid signs that the cartel's campaign against non-OPEC members is intensifying.

Oil prices plunged on world markets Monday on fears of an all-out price crash.

A ministerial source said the full ministerial OPEC meeting, which was to have been chaired in Geneva Thursday by Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, was scrapped because it might have sent the "wrong signal" to Britain, Norway and other non-OPEC producers.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, led by Saudi Arabia, has been flooding the already glutted world market with surplus oil in a bid to force non-OPEC members to prop up prices by curbing their output.

France Expels Four Soviets For Spying

PARIS (UPI) — France has expelled four Soviet diplomats who are believed to have been involved in buying information about nuclear submarine and missile bases, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said Monday.

The four Soviets, whose identities and posts were not immediately announced, boarded a plane for Moscow on the weekend, the spokesman said. He said France expected the Soviet Union to reply as usual by expelling an equal number of French diplomats from Moscow.

It was the largest expulsion of Soviet personnel from France since 1983 when 47 Soviets were sent home from Paris. More than 100 Soviet diplomats were turned out of Western countries that year.

A government spokesman said the four, believed to be members of the Soviet military intelligence agency GRU, apparently were identified following the arrest on Jan. 30 of retired air force non-commissioned officer Bernard Sourisseau.

Sourisseau, 44, was arrested by officers of the French counter-espionage unit in Rennes, 200 miles west of Paris, on charges of selling information to the Soviets about military installations in the Brittany region, where France has nuclear missile and submarine bases.

Sourisseau, who continued to make regular visits to the bases after his retirement, was charged in a Rennes court and held in jail pending trial.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Heavy rain that dumped up to 10 inches on drought-parched Texas continued today, prompting a flash flood watch, while fog and freezing rain plagued motorists from the northern Ohio Valley to the upper Midwest. Up to 4 inches of snow was expected today in Flagstaff, Ariz. — already hit with 3 inches Monday — and travelers advisories were issued for Flagstaff and northern California. Travelers advisories for gusty winds were issued for parts of southern California. Heavy showers and thunderstorms drenched parts of Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas early today, with a flash flood watch posted for the southeastern third of Texas. Monday's storm ended a two-month drought in Texas with a deluge, dumping 10 inches on Quitman since Sunday night and more than 7 inches on Mexia in a 7-hour period Monday. "We've been about two months without any kind of precipitation," said Larry Vaughan of the Texas State Highway Patrol at Quitman. Vaughan said there was some street flooding in Quitman and a few weather-related traffic accidents were reported, including one that killed a woman on Highway 37 just south of town. Monday's rain ended 52 straight days without precipitation for the Dallas-Fort Worth area. The drought was the longest dry spell since 1955, when the two cities saw 54 days pass without rain. The gush of almost 6 inches of rain in nearby Bonham caused some flooding in low-lying areas. "Until today, it's been real dry here," Bonham Police Communications Officer Kim Kavanaugh said. "Looks like we got our rain all at once."

"It's nice — long overdue," said Johnny Meredith, a cook at Kel's Kitchen in Dallas. Rain and fog spread from the central Plains to the middle Atlantic coast early today, and freezing rain glazed roads from the Ohio valley to the upper Midwest. Travelers advisories for fog and icy roads were issued for parts of Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas. A mixture of sleet and rain slickened roads near Fargo, N.D., Monday night, forcing about 30 semitrailer trucks to pull off I-29 north of Fargo. "We had very icy conditions," said Mike Grande of the Cass County sheriff's department in Fargo. "Traffic was moving about 20 mph and vehicles were sliding off the road at that speed. In spots it was very slippery." Heavy fog sent students in many Iowa school districts home early Monday and all but closed the Des Moines airport Monday night, but some flights resumed when the fog lifted for a time.

Boats For Coastal Sheriffs

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A south Florida lawmaker who is running for Attorney General filed a bill Monday to arm coastal sheriffs with high-speed boats and high-caliber weapons to battle drug smugglers.

Sen. Joe Gersten, D-South Miami, estimated the proposal would cost $10 million in its first year and $3 million for subsequent years, but would plug holes smugglers sneak through along Florida's 1,200-mile "swiss cheese" coast.

"There are 35 counties in this state with ocean borders, proven international highways for narcotics. And there are 35 sheriffs having to fight a lonely, frustrating war against drugs with their hands tied behind them," Gersten said at a news conference.

"This bill will give each of our coastal sheriffs the additional manpower and equipment to maintain around-the-clock surveillance of Florida's shoreline," he said. "We can't afford to continue to wait on the feds to act, while the lowest form of life — drug traffickers — destroy our children."

Gersten said he got the idea after coastal sheriffs complained their older, slower boats could not keep up with speedy smugglers.

He said his bill would provide each sheriff with a $80,000 to $100,000 boat, plus four additional officers to supplement existing deputies. The one-man patrol boats would radio for help if they spotted smugglers, but would pack the same sophisticated weapons smugglers tote, in case of attack.

The bill would also allow sheriffs to cross county lines during drug patrols.

Sanford Man Charged With Sexual Battery And Lewd Acts With Minor

A Sanford man charged by police with sexual battery and lewd and lascivious acts on a minor was being held without bond following arrest Saturday.

The man is accused of performing sexual acts on a 15-year-old girl over the past three years. He allegedly threatened to harm the girl's mother if she didn't submit, a Sanford police report said.

Michael Edward Grant of 2101 1/2 Magnolia Ave., Sanford was arrested at the Sanford police station at 2:10 p.m. Saturday.

RAPE BY LOVER

An 18-year-old Sanford woman reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies she was raped at about 12:30 a.m. Saturday by the father of her child. The woman told deputies she has had a relationship with the man for about three years, but alleged he forced her to have sex Saturday.

The woman said the assault occurred in a home on Southwest Road in Sanford, where the man allegedly took her, grabbed her and put his hands over her mouth and removed part of her clothing, a sheriff's report said.

The woman said the man told her not to make a sound and kept her arms pinned down during the alleged assault, the report said.

The woman walked to her sister's home after the attack and was transported by ambulance to Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford, where she was questioned by deputies, the report said. Deputies have the name of a suspect.

ONE STORE TO ANOTHER

A man spotted by a Sanford policeman as he ran from the Lil' Champ on U.S. Highway 17-92, to the 7-Eleven at First Street, was confronted by the officer because he reportedly matched a police radioed description of a man who had just brandished a knife in the Lil' Champ, a police report said.

The incident occurred at about 6 a.m. Saturday and the man was charged with aggravated assault after a police search reportedly turned up a knife in his pocket and he was reportedly identified by the clerk at the Lil' Champ, the report said.

Bobby Nathaniel Harrison, 32, of 1309 W. Seventh St., Sanford, has been charged in the case and was being held in lieu of $1,000.

PASSED OUT FIGHTER

with officers who tried to help him leave.

The man was arrested at 5:46 a.m. Saturday at Denny's on State Road 436, Altamonte Springs. Police allege once they got the man outside and into the backseat of a car and friends were going to drive him home. He allegedly began to resist that time.

Ronald Ray Hanson, 21, of Davenport, Iowa, was being held in lieu of $3,500 bond.

GUN IN CAR

A man whose car was clocked traveling 95 mph on Rinehart Road by Lake Mary police has been charged with possession of a concealed firearm after a .357-magnum handgun was found in his car after the police stop.

Arthur Louis Fairman Jr., 21, of 2448 S. Polinsettla Ave., Sanford, was arrested at 6:24 p.m. on State Road 46A. He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

PREGNANT WIFE BATTERY

A Longwood woman who said she's five months pregnant alleged to Seminole County sheriff's deputy her husband had "thrown her around the house" and then outside had thrown her against a pickup truck, hitting her in the abdomen.

Deputies reported seeing no sign of injury, but the Cecelia Hoglen of 319 Marjorie St., told them she was "bleeding and had abdominal pain." She refused treatment at the scene, a sheriff's report said.

Jack Duwayne Hoglen, 25, was charged with battery-spouse abuse at his home at 10:31 p.m. Sunday. He was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

—Jerry Douglas Wood, 38, of Orlando, was arrested at 5:28 p.m. Sunday after his car was in an accident on State Road 426, Oviedo. He was also charged with driving with a suspended license and possession of cocaine after a small packet of cocaine was reportedly found in the backseat of the Oviedo police patrol car which transported him to jail, a police report said. He was being held in lieu of $3,000 bond.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

Willie Eddie Long, 50, of 2430

Crawford Drive, Sanford, reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies a $360 check was picked from his coat pocket at the Club 2 Spot on Brissom Avenue at State Road 46, east of Sanford around 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

A thief took the 1984 Honda of Scot Randolph Kutz, 20, of 170 Willow Creek Cove, Longwood, from a lot at his workplace, the Shell station at 1998 State Road 434, Longwood, on Saturday. The car is valued at $9,000, a sheriff's report said.

Two circular saws with a total value of about $300 were stolen from the booth of Richard M. Cavanaugh, 56, of Longwood, at Flea World on U.S. Highway 17-92, south of Sanford, around 1 p.m. Saturday, a sheriff's report said.

Spy Swap? 'No Comment'

By Jim Anderson
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A member of Congress acknowledged that "very sensitive" negotiations are under way for a possible spy exchange involving Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky despite the administration's repeated "no comment" on the matter.

In the past, the State Department, congressional sources and Jewish organizations have made Shcharansky a principal figure in their public drive to push the Soviet Union into compliance with the human rights accord signed in Helsinki in 1975.

The exchange negotiations reportedly involve Reps. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., and Tom Lantos, D-Calif., both of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"Some very serious negotiations are under way, very sensitive," Gilman said Monday but added he was "not at liberty to disclose" anything further.

Shcharansky, a computer programmer and translator, was a key figure in a group formed to monitor Soviet compliance with the Helsinki agreement. He was convicted of spying for the West — a charge President Jimmy Carter labeled "ridiculous."

The West German newspaper Bild, quoting "Moscow Kremlin circles," first reported agreement had been reached on the largest East-West spy swap since World War II.

A source in New York's Jewish community said the swap "could be any day now," but White House and State Department spokesmen declined to confirm the reports.

However, Shcharansky's older brother, Leonid Shcharansky, told the Washington Post that his assessment of reports of his brother's imminent release have given him his first hope in nine years that release will, in fact, be forthcoming.

"This time I believe it is possible," he told the Post. "This is the first time I believe it. There were rumors before and I hoped, but I didn't really believe them."

However, former Soviet dissident Eduard Kuznetsov said on the ABC "Good Morning America" program today that the Soviet Union "never does anything just for humanitarian reasons" and added that if the initial information about a swap originated from Moscow, "It is very suspicious."

Jeffrey Smith, a former assistant legal adviser at the State Department, said on the same program that all the publicity about the possible swap could be "harmful, if not very destructive."

Secretary of State George Shultz, interviewed Monday on ABC's "Good Morning America," said he had "no comment to make at all" on the reports.

But, he added, "There is no subject that we have worked on harder or that makes more difference to people in the West — not just in the United States — than release of dissidents in the Soviet Union, more emigration for those who wish to emigrate, more respect for people expressing their religious beliefs in the Soviet Union."

"These are things of tremendous importance to us all and of the Soviet Union decides to move forward in some of these areas, I'm sure it will be a positive development," he said.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said the department had "no comment" on the reports and whether Shcharansky would be released in a spy swap was a "hypothetical question."

Shcharansky has been seeking permission to emigrate since the 1970s. He has served eight years of a 13-year sentence for alleged spying.

Reports indicate the exchange will take place on the Glienicke Bridge between East Germany and West Berlin, where captured U-2 pilot Gary Powers was traded for Soviet master spy Rudolf Abel in 1962.

The Bild identified the two key agents to be freed as Yevgeni Deliakov, a Soviet spy arrested in 1985 in Köln, West Germany, and Lothar-Erwin Lutze, a former West German Defense Ministry official serving 12 years for betraying NATO pipeline secrets to the East Bloc.

The Soviets offered Shcharansky the same deal two years ago, but he turned it down on grounds he was not a spy.

2 Killers Granted Execution Stays

STARKE (UPI) — A federal judge in Tampa and a state circuit court judge in Fort Lauderdale granted last-minute stays of execution to two condemned killers who were to die in a double execution in the electric chair at today.

U.S. District Judge Elizabeth A. Kovachevich Monday granted a stay in Tampa to condemned murderer Larry Eugene Mann, who was scheduled to die in the electric chair at 7 a.m. at the Florida State Prison.

Broward County Circuit Judge Stanton Kaplan granted a stay for Omar Blanco Thursday evening at Fort Lauderdale.

The two stays of execution extended their death warrants beyond the Wednesday noon, effectively voiding them.

Burn Victim Still Critical

Lowry Hugh Wynne, 623 Second Street, Sanford, remained in critical condition Monday in Orlando Regional Medical Center from burn injuries received at his home last week.

The 80-year-old man suffered second-and third-degree burns over more than 60 percent of his body when his robe ignited while cooking on a gas stove shortly before 3 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 28. He was initially taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital, then transferred to ORM.

His wife, Eva received second- and third-degree burns of her fingers and arms while attempting to put out the fire, according to a family member. She was treated and released by the emergency room of the Central Florida Regional Hospital.

Wynne is a life-long resident of Sanford and a retired city employee.

Elections Must Be Fraud-Free

The possibility of a rigged presidential election in the Philippines on Friday is of concern to the United States.

There are reports that extra ballots have been printed, that ink for the ballot markers is not indelible and can be altered and plans for computerized tabulations have been dropped. Twelve people have been killed and nine others wounded in incidents related to the election.

The National Endowment for the Democracy has arranged for 40 observers, many from foreign nations, to monitor the election. Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, says he has serious reservations about fraud, but he is willing to serve with the delegation.

The U.S. State Department is concerned that fraudulent voting will result in chaos and violence. It fears post-election violence will add new strength to the communist-backed New People's Army, which has infiltrated several major islands in the Philippines.

A rigged election would bode ill for U.S. foreign policy in the Western Pacific. Subic Bay Naval Base and Clark Air Force Base, two of this country's largest overseas bases, are located on the island of Luzon. If the communists gain strength and the bases eventually are lost, it will require a major restructuring of U.S. military strategy.

Marcos is being challenged for the presidency by Corazon Aquino, widow of opposition leader Benigno Aquino, shot to death at Manila airport in August 1983. Mrs. Aquino has accused Marcos of ordering the assassination.

In a major speech to businessmen in the Manila Hotel recently, Mrs. Aquino also accused Marcos and his cronies of plundering the economy, draining the national treasury and hiding the wealth abroad, torturing and killing defenseless citizens, prostituting the military and dismantling every major institution of democracy in the country.

Marcos, despite indications that he is seriously ill, has been busy campaigning and refuting allegations that his leadership in a Filipino guerrilla unit against the Japanese in World War II was pure fabrication. These allegations seem to be blown out of proportion. It is a fact that Marcos was a guerrilla fighter on Luzon during the Japanese occupation. Apparently, he did not perform so important a role as he has led his people to believe.

More serious charges have been made before a congressional committee in Washington. It is checking into reports that Marcos and his wife, Imelda, have invested as much as $250 million in real estate in the United States — financing the purchases by tapping into U.S. economic aid to his country.

Marcos seems to be steadily slipping from power. He will make a serious mistake, however, if he attempts to recover the reins of government through election fraud.

It is said that Philippine law now prevents the government from allowing foreign observers access to the polling places on election day. It is in the polling places where the ballot boxes can be stuffed, ballots can be altered and the count can be rigged.

Observers must be allowed to observe, and they cannot do so if they are kept outside. Marcos made the law that could keep them out. He can change it before the election and he should do so at once.

George And Jerry: A Political Odd Couple

By Leon Daniel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When the Rev. Jerry Falwell's Moral Majority slipped in public opinion polls and was born again as the Liberty Federation, Vice President George Bush was the first White House aspirant to kiss the new baby.

The leadership of the new group on the religious right returned the favor by joining the prime-time preacher who leads them in endorsing Bush's 1988 White House race.

On the surface, it would seem that Falwell, the fundamentalist Baptist who built a television empire, and Bush, the Episcopalian scion of a wealthy Connecticut family, are a politically odd couple.

Politics, it is said, makes for strange bedfellows. But Falwell and Bush believe each has something the other needs.

Bush believes Falwell, who boasts of electing President Reagan, has a following that could help win him the presidency.

Falwell, who believes Bush has a good shot at the top job, has seen his own political clout wane and needs to back a winner.

When Falwell summoned 500 of his followers to Washington to set a political agenda for the Liberty Federation, Bush was on hand to salute them for injecting "moral visions" into American politics.

While endorsing separation of church and state, Bush said clergymen should exercise their right to participate in politics.

That includes, Bush said, television evangelist Pat Robertson, who professes some "moral visions" of his own, not to mention presidential aspirations.

Then, grinning, Bush added, "But I don't wish him too much luck."

Bush spoke with conviction for voluntary school prayer, but some on the religious right still are skeptical of his stand on abortion, which they see as softer than that of Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., another presidential aspirant.

But Bush assured the Falwell followers that he firmly supports the GOP's dedication "to the sanctity of human life."

Introduced as "the next president of the United States" by Falwell's wife, Bush concluded his address with "God bless the United States," which won him a standing ovation.

As speeches go, Bush's was no stemwinder, but Falwell said, "That's good preaching."

Scorning at the notion that the influence of the religious right is on the wane, Falwell boasts that his Liberty Federation will register 1 million new voters this year.

He said his new group will continue to crusade against abortion, homosexuality, pornography, sex education and the Equal Rights Amendment, while expanding its interests to such issues as communist aggression abroad, tax and education reform and foreign and defense policy.

For his part, Bush told the Falwell faithful that "America is in crying need of the moral visions that you have brought — that this new organization has brought — to American political life."

Larger questions may be whether Falwell and his forces can register 1 million new voters and how many of those ballots they can deliver to Bush.

PERSPECTIVE

Swiss To Vote On UN

By John A. Callcott
UPI Senior Editor

BERN, Switzerland (UPI) — Unless all the political tea leaves are wrong, the fiercely neutral Swiss will soon be firmly dismissing the idea of joining the United Nations. Opinion polls before the March 16 referendum show a majority of voters prefer to stay outside the world organization — along with mini-states like San Marino, Liechtenstein and the Holy See.

In the latest poll, 51.4 percent opposed joining the United Nations against 43.9 percent in favor and 4.7 percent undecided.

That was bad news for the governing seven-member Swiss federal council, which hesitated for 20 years before finally taking the plunge and putting the issue to the people.

Only rarely do the Swiss reject a proposal by the council, whose members correspond to cabinet ministers and are popularly known as the "seven wise men" — actually now "seven wise people," since Switzerland got its first woman federal councillor last year.

Some years ago the government did suffer a rare defeat in suggesting the introduction of value added tax, or VAT, to replace the simple sales tax. The sticking point was that a VAT system would need more bureaucrats and that would be an unnecessary expense — always important to the frugal Swiss.

Money is not a significant issue in U.N. membership, however, since Switzerland already pays $65 million a year to belong to many of the U.N. specialized agencies.

Full membership would cost an additional $10 million or so.

Instead, what is at issue is Switzerland's centuries-old system of permanent armed neutrality.

Foreign Minister Pierre Aubert — who pushed through the proposal in an otherwise generally reluctant and dubious cabinet — says U.N. membership would be "a logical extension" of Swiss neutrality.

Aubert, who may have to resign if the proposal is defeated, argues that Switzerland can no longer afford politically, economically and diplomatically to remain outside. He says there would be a formal declaration that Switzerland will maintain its constitutional neutrality.

"It borders on the criminally misleading to claim that membership will not threaten our neutrality," said Otto Fischer, president of a specially-formed citizens' Action Committee against U.N. Membership.

Rent-An-Army Costs Cash And Praise

WASHINGTON — The wellspring of patriotism tapped so successfully by Ronald Reagan has also produced a gusher of war movies reminiscent of those made in Reagan's acting heyday, the 1940s. While there seems to be little difference in the cinematic heroes of the two eras, the new crop of macho movies often achieves greater realism in the use of weaponry.

The reason: If the movie makers are lucky, they get to use genuine military hardware, operated by members of the armed services. No more plywood airplane mockups or toy boats bobbing around in studio tanks.

Movie producers who play their cards right are allowed to use everything from sophisticated fighter planes to machine guns and soldiers who know how to use them. There's a price for this cooperation,

DICK WEST

Hi! Ho! Chopper

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The press release starts out: "It is a huge state ... It has plants where cars are assembled. Coal, bauxite, gold, copper and lead come out of the ground in large quantities. There are ... international airports and a major national park that is the key to a large tourist industry."

At first, I thought they were talking about Texas. I should have known better.

If Texas had been the subject, the list of stuff coming out of the ground in large quantities would have included oil.

Turns out the release was referring to Queensland, Australia, which is a lot like Texas in many respects. Take size.

Queensland is to Australia as Texas is to America — only the country's second largest state. Nevertheless, vast distances require cowboys "to resort to techniques never dreamed of by Hollywood scriptwriters."

For one thing, on the larger ranches in Queensland, cattle are herded by helicopter. Hollywood scriptwriters to the contrary, there are some ranches like that in Texas, too.

I must have seen a thousand cowboy movies but I don't recall a single one in which a Texas roundup included helicopters. Autogyros, maybe, but not helicopters. Could it be the scriptwriters were having the wrong dreams?

In partial answer to that question, I have composed a western scenario in which the hero wears a white helmet and flies a helicopter named Ol' Paint. It do hope he makes enough out of the picture to afford to give the helicopter a new paint job.

In the opening scene, the protagonist is flying low over the lone prairie. (We know he is a western pilot because his fierce-lined boots have high heels.)

Finally, he spots the ranch house and lands near the corral, where the rancher's beautiful daughter is breaking horses.

One feisty nag, spooked by the copter rotors, bolts and runs down the canyon with the rancher's daughter still in the saddle. Whereupon, the pilot leaps back aboard the helicopter, bent on rescuing her.

[This, however, is no ordinary leap. I forgot to mention that Ol' Paint is an open-top helicopter that permits the pilot to vault over the rear wheel.]

Tex, as the pilot is called, overtakes the runaway just before the horse races over a cliff, and snatches the rancher's daughter to safety, depositing her, skirts flaring, in the passenger seat.

The light back to the corral is uneventful, giving her plenty of time to powder her nose and straighten her skirts. Her first name, incidentally, is Dale.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, Dale's silver-haired Daddy is figuring on hiring a helicopter pilot for the next roundup.

All good western movie fans can guess the rest of the plot, including the part where Tex and Dale fly forth into the sunset, holding hands. (He keeps both eyes on the instrument panel, however.)

But wait 'til you dig that crazy stampede. And these cowhands don't just eat beans around the chuckwagon at the end of the day. They send out for pizza.

Triassic Fossils Found

By Jan Ziegler
UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The famous brownstones of New York and New Jersey hold history within their walls — they are made of sandstone millions of years old from quarries that contain fossils of creatures alive when the Earth was young.

The sandstone is from a rock formation believed by many to be fossil-free that in reality is a rich source of fossilized bones from animals that lived hundreds of millions of years ago, according to two scientists.

The Newark Supergroup, as the formation is called, appears in lengths along the East Coast from Nova Scotia to South Carolina. A large exposed pod lines the north and eastern shore of the Bay of Fundy. Another, the longest, runs mostly covered from lower New York State to central Virginia.

The rocks, between 225 million and 175 million years old, are the result of a divorce between the North American and African continents. Once joined in a single land mass, the continental plates pulled apart, stretching and rupturing along many faults.

The sedimentary rocks filled in the rift valleys that were created during the separation. Similar formations have been found in Morocco, at the opposite side of the split.

Geologist Paul E. Olsen of Columbia University, with biologist Neil Shubin of Harvard, found more than 100,000 fossilized bones along the bay in Nova Scotia. Olsen said he had been told and had read in textbooks for many years the supergroup was a meager source of fossilized bones.

But Olsen had been going to the Bay of Fundy since the age of 14 to tramp along the rocks. Another scientist, he said — Donald Baird, curator of Princeton University's Natural History Museum — had found bone bits there.

"Most people just didn't give it the time of day," Olsen said of the supergroup. "They walked over it, they didn't see anything, they said, 'Ah, there's nothing in it.'"

"That's very common."

He cited the example of a quarry in Virginia in which black shales had been deposited in lakes. Black shale is considered a good source of fossils, but for some reason geologists had labeled this group fossil-free.

"That proved to be incredibly wrong," he said.

would have done these (unpaid spots) for the National Guard."

The Pentagon film critics can be tough. Here's what they wrote about "Commando," starring Arnold Schwarzenegger: "Revision of the script could not eliminate our concerns, which include portraying Army personnel as bloodthirsty murderers, and implying that the U.S. Army has or has had a special unit trained solely for the purpose of committing murder and pillage."

Also rejected was "First Blood," Sylvester Stallone's first Rambo flick. "Support to a film of such overwhelming violence with a character portrayed as a killer, only because of Army training, would not be in the best interest of the Army," the rejection slip read.

Stallone didn't even ask for the Pentagon's help with his Rambo sequel. Both movies were huge box-office successes — which may indicate that pretty pectorals are all the ammunition a movie needs.

District Soccer

Lady Greyhounds Face Rockier Path

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

Although Lyman High's Lady Greyhounds are ranked first in the state poll and are odds on favorite to win it all a second straight season, getting out of the district will not be as easy as it was the past two years.

Lake Brantley, ranked 10th, and Lake Mary are very talented teams that, if they put it all together, can give anyone a run for their money. The darkhorse of the district is Lake Howell which, if it gets its offense on track, can give the top teams some trouble.

The District 3 Tournament will open tonight (all games start at 7) at the sites of the top four seeds. Top seeded Lyman hosts Seminole, second seeded Lake Brantley entertains Oviedo, number three seed Lake Mary hosts Winter Park and number four Lake Howell takes on Bishop Moore.

Lyman goes into the tournament with a 17-0 record this season and a win streak of 41. The Lady Greyhounds have not lost since the state

Sluggish Seminole Wakes Up To Win

After 48 minutes of sluggish play Monday night, Seminole High's Lady Seminoles woke up and figured they would rather end the season against Lyman than Trinity Prep.

Seminole bounced back from a 1-0 deficit with two quick goals in the second half and held on for a 2-1 victory over Trinity Prep's Lady Saints in the opening round game of the District 3 Tournament at Seminole High.

The Lady Tribe goes up against the state's top-ranked team in Lyman tonight at 7 at Lyman High.

"The first half, it looked like the girls weren't even on the field," Seminole coach Suzy Reno said. "But they played well the second half. We can give Lyman a game if we play them the way we did the second half tonight."

Although Seminole was outplayed in the first half Monday, it managed to keep the game scoreless thanks to 16 saves by goalkeeper Sherri Rumlir.

Trinity Prep took a 1-0 lead eight minutes into the second half on a goal by Beth Freeman who scored after a deflected throw in.

Seminole came back 10 minutes into the half to tie the score on a goal by Tracy Farrelly. On a corner kick, Vicky "Spuffy" Pakovic centered the ball and Rachele Denmark deflected it to Farrelly who headed it in.

"That was a beautiful goal," Reno said. "It was like zip, zip, zip and it was in the goal."

Seminole took the lead less than a minute later when, after a Trinity hand ball, Pakovic launched in a free kick from 35 yards out. "That was a beautifully placed ball by Vicky (Pakovic)," Reno said. "From that moment on, we kept the ball on offense most of the time."

Seminole took 14 shots on goal for the game compared to Trinity's six. Nine of Seminole's 14 shots came in the second half.

While Rumlir kept Trinity from getting on the board in the first half, defenders Melissa Shuckman, Kim Machnik, Jennifer Roberts and Kim Walsh combined to shut down the Lady Saints the rest of the way.

Reno also said Cindy Bengé did an excellent job at midfield along with Pakovic while Farrelly and Rachel Morton played well up front.

Lyman Trio Has Merry Time Reversing Record

By Sam Cook

T.J. Scaletta, Ralph Philpott and Brett Marshall have been playing together long enough to rival the 3 Musketeers. The Lyman High trio began playing varsity basketball for coach Tom Lawrence as sophomores.

All three suffered through growing pains as sophomores and juniors. The Greyhounds limped along with a 4-19 record two years ago and 5-20 last year.

At times, one basketball wasn't enough to feed the healthy appetite of the three "Greyhound Gunners." All three agree that assists were the last thing on their minds when the basketball crossed mid-court. They only had eyes for the hoop.

The pain, however, has turned to euphoria for their senior year. And the basketball allotment has returned to normal.

Lyman is currently riding the crest of an eight-game winning streak and a 16-3 overall record. Tonight at home, the Greyhounds encounter Seminole in the biggest Seminole Athletic Conference game of the SAC's initial season.

Seminole, 11-5 overall, is 5-0 in the conference. Coach Bill Klein's "Noles updated Lyman, 74-71, in the first meeting. Lyman is 4-1 and desperately needs a win tonight. Lake Mary, which is 3-2, plays both teams one more time each. The Rams are legitimate darkhorses, having lost to both teams by one point each time.

Regardless of what happens tonight, the Lyman turnabout borders on the miraculous. The three veterans, along with sophomore Craig Radzak and Juniors Robert Thomas and Vince Florence, even adhere to a jingle befitting the Musketeers of old.

Just call it "Lyman's Law." It goes: "All for one and one for all — but whoever has the first open shot better put up the ball."

"That is the law," Scaletta, the Lyman floor leader, emphasized. "We've got five or six guys who are good shooters. It's just understood that whoever gets the first open shot takes it. There are no hard feelings who shoots as long as he shoots when he's open."

Fans and foes only have to see the Greyhounds once to realize "Lyman's Law." No one on this team could ever be accused of being shy. Scaletta (13.6), Philpott (13.4) and Marshall (11.7) are in double figures for point production. Florence (9.2) Thomas (8.7) and Radzak (8.5) aren't too far off.

"With our three good shooters outside and good inside attack, it makes it tough for teams to play us," Lawrence said. "They can't match up very well."

Scaletta, Thomas and Florence handle the guard spots. Any time they get within 20 feet, up she goes. Marshall, a forward, has guard's range with his jumper, and loves to wear it out from the corner. He also takes it to the hole with authority.

Radzak, the 6-2 youngster of the group, is a fierce rebounder (7.7 rpg) and good short-range shooter. Philpott (7.8 rpg), the defending 4A high jump champion, rules in the paint with his leaping ability and power moves to the bucket. He averages better than a block a game.

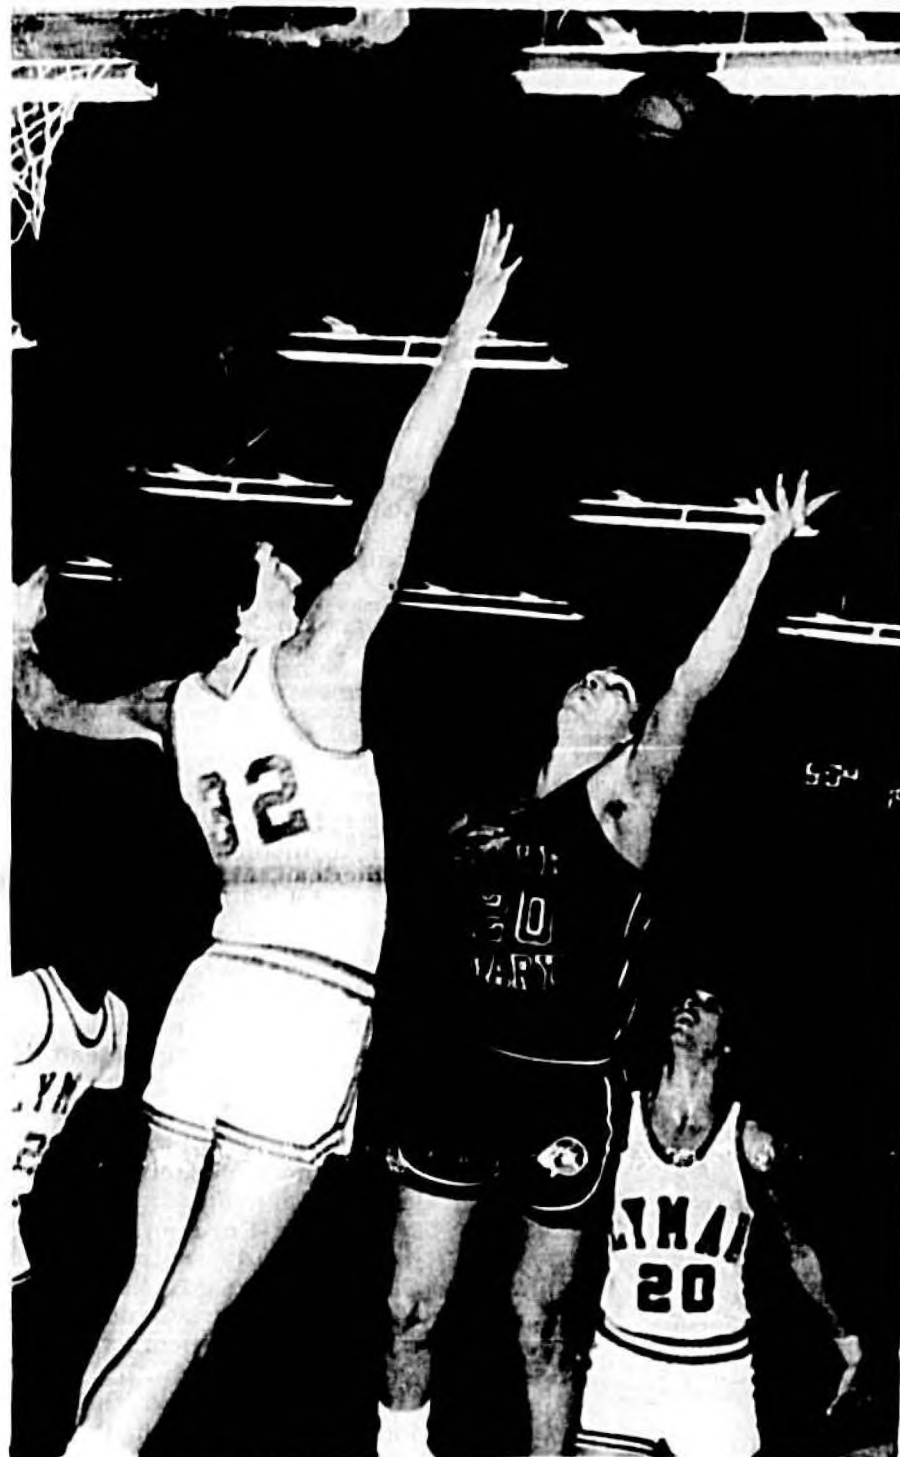

The 3 Musketeers and Lawrence maintain an improved attitude and unselfish behavior are the key ingredients in the reversal.

"This is the most unselfish group of kids I've coached," Lawrence said. "They are good shooters and good passers. And they're not afraid to do either. They will find the open man."

Scaletta agrees. "Last year, everyone thought everyone else was shooting too much," the 17-year-old senior said. "No one cares this year. Ralph and Brett and I have played together so many years, we knew this was our last chance to make it."

Philpott, 17, said, "We're more mature. We're playing as a team. Last year, everybody was more worried about their personal game and self-satisfaction."

Marshall, also 17, agreed. "We have a lot more confidence now and leadership," he said. "This team now just wants to win. No

Tribe-Greyhound Kleinism: Winner Deserves To Win — Loser Deserves To Lose

Bill Klein has yet to rank in the Yogi Berra category of quotes which are fundamentally simplistic but this gem conjured up on the eve of the Seminole-Lyman basketball game could qualify.

"The winner will deserve to win and the loser will deserve to lose," was the Kleinism offered by the first-year Seminole skipper.

The ramifications of tonight's 8 p.m. liftoff are just as basic. Seminole has a 5-0 SAC record while Lyman is 4-1. If Lyman loses, it can kiss the Seminole Athletic Conference good-bye. That would give the "Noles a two-game cushion and with Lake Brantley, Lake Mary, Oviedo and Lake Howell left to play, the Fighting Seminoles are not going to lose more than one game.

In the history of the school's basketball program, Seminole has lost just once each to Lake Howell and Lake Brantley. Former Lake Howell standout Bruce Brightman engineered one of the upsets and the Patriots pulled off the other in the mid-70's, according to Bill Payne, former Tribe boss.

Lake Mary played a one-point game with Seminole at its gym but the Rams have yet to beat the "Noles in four years in Sanford. Oviedo continues to struggle and also must battle the Tribe at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

"They need to win it to stay in the conference race and we need it to stay in first place," Klein continued. "It should be a good game. Last time we played them we were up by a few, but they kept coming back.

"They cut it down like it was nothing. We were celebrating too early last time. Hopefully we won't celebrate until it's over this time."

The last game finished, 74-71, and Lyman played without power forward Craig Radzak. Lyman coach Tom Lawrence said it could be a different story with Radzak.

"We're looking forward to playing them at our place," Lawrence said after the Jan. 7 setback. "I think Radzak could have made the difference. He's not afraid to throw his weight around underneath."

Joining Radzak underneath are 6-5 Ralph Philpott and 6-3 Brett Marshall. T.J. Scaletta heads up the backcourt along with either Robert Thomas or Vince Florence. Lawrence said Matt Fitzpatrick, a move-in from Ohio who played backup guard, is no longer with the team.

"I think we've got the edge outside and they've got the edge one cares about personal stats." Even though the "Hounds are on a make and not a break, the degree of the success has been somewhat overwhelming. After all, 9-39 is 9-39. Complete reversals are rare and seldom accomplished in one year.

Lyman's three losses are to Bishop Moore, Clearwater Countryside and Seminole. Lawrence is still trying to comprehend the first one. Lyman came back and beat the Hornets soundly (12 points). Countryside held off a Lyman comeback to win by two in the Central Florida Classic. Seminole held off a similar closing surge to win by three at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

Lawrence is quick to evaluate the success. "Maturity and the leadership from the seniors has been very important," the 10-year veteran said. "You can't win in our league without some seniors."

The return of Florence, who attended Orlando Luther the past two years, and the emergence of Radzak have also been a timely infusion. "Vince has really given us a big lift," Lawrence said. "And Radzak does an incredible job on the boards for a kid his size (6-2). He's like Kevin McHale of the Celtics. He rebounds with his arms straight up and he's a very hard worker."

Scaletta is also impressed with Radzak's precocious skills. "Craig is an animal on the boards," Scaletta said the muscular 185-pounder. "He can really get the boards and he's improved a lot since last year."

Scaletta, who handed out a school-record 12 assists against Winter Park 10 days ago, ranks in the top six in the county in scoring, assists (4.1), steals (3.6) and free-throw percentage. He leads in steals.

He and Marshall teamed together on father Mickey Scaletta's Seminole Youth Sports Association squad. "Brett has really improved since middle school," Scaletta said. "He's worked and on the weights and built himself up. He's a good rebounder and shooter.

And Philpott? "Ralph knows his game is inside," Scaletta said. "He knows we'll get it to him whenever the defense gives it to us."

Philpott, always a good rebounder and intimidator, has been particularly awesome the past week. "Ralph averaged 20 points a game last week," Lawrence pointed out. "It's amazing how his shooting has come around. He's a lot smoother and more confident. And he's not shooting dunks and layups either."

Philpott, who plays tight end and wideout in football along with his basketball and track talents, said extra work has made the difference. "I work a lot on my jump shot. I'm not just a threat on the inside," he said. "I can handle the ball and shoot it. On Sundays I go out and shoot on my own."

Thomas, meanwhile, splits starting assignments with Florence. Each complements Scaletta's fondness to getting the ball out and going with it. "Robert and Vince like to run," Scaletta said. "Robert is a good penetrator and good defensively."

The last attribute is one Scaletta really appreciates. The quick-handed guard leads the county with 3.7 steals per game, the highest average in county history. "I've got to credit that to the press," he said modestly. "Robert knows how to turn his man which sets it up for me. When someone turns his back, I go after it."

And "going after it" is something the Greyhounds have been doing all year.

Wrestling USA: Troy Turner Nation's Top 155-Pounder

Seminole's Troy Turner, who was just a win away from a state wrestling championship last year, was recently honored by the magazine Wrestling USA as its top wrestler in the 155-pound weight class.

Wrestling USA's associate editor Cal Johnson solicited nominations from all the prep wrestling coaches in the U.S., then compiled his first "Top 240" selections for all of the weight classes.

Troy, pictured in his hunting hat, was named the top 155-pounder for compiling a 58-5 record over his freshman and sophomore seasons. Along with being the Class 4A state runnerup, Troy has been Sunshine State Games freestyle champion three years in a row.

The aggressive junior is 16-0 this year and looking for the big victory which got away from him last year.

Keeping things in the family, sophomore brother Tracy was listed fifth among the top 145-pound wrestlers. Tracy rated the honorable mention category for a 26-4 record his freshman year. He also finished fifth in the state last year.

The Turners were nominated by coach Glenn Matolini.

Lyman High School will be the host school for the District 4A-9 Wrestling Championships on Feb. 14-15. Weighin (3-5 p.m.), the seed meeting (5 p.m.), and the first round (7 p.m.) will be held on Friday. On Saturday, the semi-finals will be held at 10 a.m., the wrestlebacks at noon, Seminoles travel to Edgewater tonight for a tri-match with the Eagles and Evans.

Wednesday, the undefeated Lake Mary Rams travel to Winter Park to grapple with the Wildcats and the Lake Howell Silver Hawks take on the Blue Darters at Apopka.

Thursday the Seminole jump onto the mat to take on the Yellow Jackets of Leesburg and the Lyman Greyhounds battle the Wildcats of Winter Park.

Friday has the Silver Hawks at the Wildcats and the Lake Brantley Patriots tangle with the Blue Darters and the DeLand Bulldogs at Apopka.

Saturday the Rams travel to Colonial and the finals of the 3A District Tournament at Leesburg begin.

Seminole county has a number of wrestlers who have remained unbeaten thus this season. Most of them hope to keep the ball rolling with tournaments coming up.

For Seminole, Troy Turner stands alone with a 16-0 record to his credit and the Lyman Greyhounds have one better with Chad Dubin (16-0) and Pat Perkins (18-0).

The only other team in the area with a horde of unbeaten is the Lake Mary Rams. The Rams have five standouts who haven't tasted defeat this year. Among them include Craig Johnson (9-0), Rob Richards (9-0-1), Matt Broberg (10-0) and Scott Ross (9-0-1).

The Rams also have the only unbeaten team in the area with a 10-0 record.

Lady Rams Escape Howell, 57-55

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

For a while, Lake Mary's Lady Rams must have believed the old saying that "you can never go home."

Monday night, Lake Mary played its eighth consecutive away game and, for the eighth straight time, the Lady Rams were pushed to the limit. Lake Howell's inspired Lady Silver Hawks did the pushing this time. And, for the sixth time in eight tries, Lake Mary came through down the stretch to pull out the victory.

Cynthia Patterson hit a pair of crucial free throws with 15 seconds remaining to cap off a solid performance as the Lady Rams came away with a 57-55 Seminole Athletic Conference victory before 201 fans at Lake Howell High.

Lake Mary ran its SAC record to 6-0 with the win and now leads the league by two games over Lake Brantley (4-2), with four SAC games remaining. The Lady Rams boosted their overall record to 15-4. Lake Mary will play the remainder of its regular season games at home starting Thursday night with Spruce Creek.

"To win six out of eight road games isn't bad at all," Lake

Mary coach Bill Moore said, "I hope our home will be as kind to us as the road was."

Lake Howell, which has lost three straight SAC games by a combined total of nine points, now stands at 2-4 in conference and 14-6 overall. While Lake Mary is at home the rest of the season, Monday night was Lake Howell's last home game. The Lady Hawks return to action Thursday at New Smyrna Beach.

"It's hard to lose three tough games like that," Lake Howell coach Dennis Cudrey said. "To keep losing the close ones back to back like that and to keep playing as hard as the girls did tonight tells you something about this team."

Lake Howell came out blazing Monday night as it connected on its first three shots from the floor, two by Kellee Johnson and one by Erin Hankins, for an early 6-2 lead. Lake Mary came back behind four points and two assists by Anquetette Whack to take a 15-12 lead after one quarter.

Lady Hawk Jolee Johnson hit a free throw for the first point of the second quarter but the Lady Rams, led by the strong inside play of Marcie Dalziel, then ran off seven straight points for a 22-13 lead with 4:06 left in the first half. Lake Howell came back within six, 29-23, by halftime with four points in the late going by Carey Manuel leading the way.

Lake Mary would go on to build a seven-point lead, 55-48, with 2:40 left to play but the Lady Hawks came back with five straight points to pull within two, 55-53, with 1:19 remaining.

Lake Mary then went to the delay game and, after a near steal by Jolee Johnson, ran the clock down to 15 seconds before Patterson was fouled on a move to the hoop. Patterson, previously 0 for 5 at the line, connected on both free throws for a 57-53 lead. Lake Howell scored with seven seconds left and fouled immediately, but the Lady Hawks didn't have time to get off the last shot.

JONES MAULS OVIEDO

In other girls basketball action Monday night, the Jones Lady Tigers wiped out the Oviedo Lady Lions, 68-29, at Jones High School.

The Lady Lions shot a mere 21 percent from the field and dropped to 5-15 for the year. Trying to get on the winning track, the Lady Lions host the Kissimmee Osceola Cowgirls this Thursday and welcome the Lady Seminole on Friday.

After holding the Lady Tigers to a 8-8 first period score, the Lady Lions lost the game in the second period when they were outshot 22-5 in a typical Lady Tiger spurt.

"They (Jones) were hot tonight," Oviedo coach John Thomas said. "They were hitting everything. They were throwing anything and it would fall for them. We weren't as lucky."

The Lady Lions had only one girl in double figures as Michelle Eck popped in 10 points.

Hawks, DeLand Tie

By Chuck Burgess
Special to the Herald

The Lake Howell Silver Hawks and the DeLand Bulldogs played 40 minutes until finally ending in a 3-3 tie in prep soccer action Monday night at Lake Howell.

With the tie, the Silver Hawks' record is 9-6-4 and the Bulldogs moved to 10-6-1 for the season. Both teams are on a short break until the District tournament begins next Tuesday.

The Silver Hawks moved the ball well against the Bulldogs in the first half, but couldn't seem to find the groove to put the ball in the net. The Dogs weren't much better and the two teams remained deadlocked at 0-0 at the end of the half.

"Both teams are pretty evenly matched," Lake Howell coach Norm Wight said. "We started coming on strong in the middle of the first half, but we couldn't put it in. We dominated the field and still couldn't get a goal."

With 12 minutes gone in the second half, the Bulldogs scored when Terry Hernandez ripped the first of his three goals over the Silver Hawk goalie.

"That was a beautiful shot," Wight said of Hernandez's goal. "He can really play. If we could have stopped him, we would have won."

The Silver Hawks answered two minutes later with an unassisted shot in between the pipes by Eric Bird. Bird got control of the ball on a Silver Hawk breakaway and took the shot from the outside to tie up the score.

Soccer

The Bulldogs went ahead on Hernandez's second goal, but David Bird answered with a shot that was too tough for the Bulldog goalie to handle, according to Wight.

"David (Bird) had a very nice shot right at the DeLand goalie," Wight said. "He (DeLand goalie) couldn't get a hold of the ball and it trickled in for the score."

With only six minutes left in regulation, Hernandez scored his third goal to complete the hat-trick. Hernandez's shot was on a breakaway and was unassisted as he fired the ball into the left corner of the net.

After the Bulldogs went into the lead, the Silver Hawks couldn't get untracked. That is, until two minutes later.

With four minutes left on the clock, David Bird connected on his second goal of the evening to tie the game at three apiece.

"David (Bird) played exceptionally well tonight," Wight said. "I switched him from sweeperback to center forward and he played a much better game from the new position."

The Silver Hawks had a chance to go ahead on a controlled fast break but the Bulldogs stopped the shot.

Robert Tucker trumpets the cause for the Seminole Community College Raiders. Tucker, a Lake Howell High graduate who catches for the SCC baseball team, is one of the main ingredients in SCC's "Rag Patrol," a rambunctious gang of baseball players who congregate for the Raider basketball games, had something else to salute today.

The Raiders regained the top spot in the Florida JuCo Basketball Poll. SCC had 88 votes and Gulf Coast, which is nationally ranked, had 85. The Raiders travel to Daytona Beach Wednesday for a rematch with the Scots and their "Sanford Connection" of Willie Mitchell, Fred Miller and Darryl Merthie. Tipoff is 7:30 p.m.

Barnes said. The Lady Greyhounds' last regular season game was scheduled for this past Saturday but was called off because Gamesville High could not field a team as a result of the flu. Instead, Lyman used Saturday to prepare for the district. "We got in a real fine training session Saturday in place of the game," Barnes said. "The girls really enjoy our training sessions."

Lyman's offensive attack has been awesome to say the least. Leading the scoring assault are senior forwards Dawn Boyesen and Sheila Mandy along with senior midfielders Alyson Barnes, Nancy VanVoorhis and Lori Ocacek and sophomore midfielder Bonni Steeves. Kim Mitchell, the teams' third-leading scorer, has been moved to goalkeeper in place of injured Lisa Chatman.

"Kim (Mitchell) had a real good game against Lake Howell on Friday," Barnes said. "She saved a penalty kick and whenever a keeper does that it boosts the confidence."

Also boosting the confidence of Mitchell is Lyman's defense, which is anchored by junior Karen Abernethy. Also providing strength on defense are juniors Diana Boyesen, Stacey Roy and Laura Russell.

Lyman's opponent, Seminole High, is coming off a 2-1 victory over Trinity Prep in Monday's opening round game. The last time the two teams met, the Lady Greyhounds came away with a 10-0 victory.

Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots pose the biggest threat to Lyman. Brantley goes in with a record of 17-3-1 and recently won the Wendy's Tournament Championship in Gamesville. All three of Brantley's losses are to Lyman and beating the Lady Patriots a fourth time, if the top two seeds advance to the finals, will be a tough task.

"The girls have been playing really well together," Brantley coach Larry Kasky said. "I feel confident the girls will play well in the tournament."

Offensively, the Lady Patriots have a number of scoring threats led by Colleen Lievertz, Cara Marien and Julie DeRusso. At midfield, the return of Michelle Herbst has made Brantley a much stronger team.

"Michelle (Herbst) is looking a lot better,"

Kasky said. "She has a lot of heart. She won't be 100 percent from districts but she'll make up for it with her attitude."

Defensively, Brantley has two of the best around in senior Pam Anderson and sophomore Reenie Deaver.

Oviedo lost its leading scorer of a year ago when Kris Geltz transferred to Bishop Moore. The Lady Lions have not been able to find a player to fill Geltz' shoes. Leading the Lions is goalkeeper Jennifer Whitaker along with midfielder Jill Knutson.

Lake Mary's Lady Rams have one of the top scoring tandems in junior Kelley Broen and freshman Donna Rohr. Usually, when one is on the scoring end of a goal, the other is on the passing end.

Anchoring the Lake Mary defense is senior goalkeeper Laura Hellegard who always plays well in the big games. Marjan Stonerock, Dorrie Ehlers and Marice Lazar give the Lady Rams a solid defense while seniors Maria Casella and Sheryl Pashe are strong at midfield.

"I'm happy that we scored 10 goals the last two games of the year," Lake Mary coach Bill Eissele said. "Hopefully, it will give the offense confidence enough to put ball in the net when they need to."

Probably the most improved team in the district this season is Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks. Last year, in the first season of the program, the Lady Hawks suffered through an 0-17-1 record. But Lake Howell turned it around the season and ended up with a 7-9-4 record which was good for the fourth seed in the district.

"The girls worked pretty hard in the offseason in improving their skills," Lake Howell coach Art Raynor said. "And we've had about five ninth graders that came out who are very good players."

Leading the list of freshman is striker Tori Campbell who is the teams' leading scorer. Campbell, though, missed the last few games with a knee injury. "She hasn't been running much since the injury but we hope to have her in the lineup for the districts," Raynor said.

Two other freshman who are starters and who have made a big difference for the team are wing Niki Compton and defender Dawn Towle.

While the freshman are making their mark for the Lady Hawks, the team leader is goalkeeper Darcy Misiak. Misiak has recorded seven shutouts this season and is a big reason the Lady Hawks have gone from last to fourth in the district in one year.

Asplen 'Ice' Cold As Brantley Falls

By Chuck Burgess
Special to the Herald

Former Seminole High star April Peterson poured in a game-high 26 points to lead the Evans Lady Trojans to a 53-41 victory over the visiting Lady Patriots of Lake Brantley in girls high school basketball action last night at Evans.

"She's (Peterson) pretty tough," Lady Patriot coach Cindy Frank said. "It was the same thing that beat us the last time we played them. We didn't execute at all tonight."

The loss dropped the Lady Patriots to 9-6 overall. Trying to get something started, the Lady Patriots, 4-2 in the Seminole Athletic Conference, go on the road this week as they travel to DeLand Wednesday.

Sherry "Ice" Asplen was much like her name from the field — cold. Asplen, the third leading scorer in the county, had an off night and only shot 3-14 from the field and scored a season low eight points.

"Sherry (Asplen) was really sick tonight," Frank said. "She wasn't even going to ride the bus tonight, but she wanted to play. It was a rough night for all of us."

Sanford-Orlando 'Hounds Run For UCF Athletic Fund Tonight

LONGWOOD — The University of Central Florida's athletic scholarship program, at no extra charge to Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club customers, will be the recipients of all proceeds tonight at SOKC beginning at 7:30, racing director Tom Bowersox announced Monday.

Bowersox said it was SOKC chairman of the board Jerry Collins, when a member of the Florida Legislature in 1949, who introduced and made certain a bill passed to allow pari-mutuel wagering facilities to conduct programs where proceeds are directed into the coffers of college scholarships and to charitable organizations.

Through the years, in a program adopted on a nationwide level, millions of dollars have been raised and thousands upon thousands of people have benefited from Collins' efforts many years ago in the legislative halls of Tallahassee.

In 1985 alone, SOKC customers helped contribute $171,325 during five performances designated for these worthwhile projects.

"This is the way we've done it for many years, and we're going to continue doing it as long as I have anything to say about it," Collins has often said. "We've got to help each other out, and our customers, at no extra charge, have really helped us to be a leader in these programs for scholarships and charities through the years."

Lyman JV End Tribe Win Streak

In a junior varsity upset special Monday night, the Lyman Greyhounds snapped a Seminole six-game winning streak with a 50-45 shocker at Lyman High School.

The 'Hounds had three players in double figures and came from behind in the fourth period after leading the entire game to pull out the victory.

The win pushed the Greyhounds to 10-6 overall and left the Seminoles at 8-3 on the season.

"We played a very balanced attack and played together," Hound coach Norman Ready said. "Our man to man pressure was the difference in the game."

The Seminoles took the lead in the fourth period, 41-39, with a Walter Hopson layup, but Willie Brown got one of his six steals on the night and scored to tie things up. Brown then took a feed from J.J. Miller to put the Greyhounds up for good.

Starks led the 'Hounds in scoring with 11 and Brown and Miller added 10 each as the Greyhounds overcame a 18-point performance from Seminoles Hopson.

Lucas Keys Houston Comeback

The Denver Nuggets played an outstanding second quarter Monday night and the Houston Rockets looked like they would be blown off their own court.

John Lucas put an end to that possibility.

With the Rockets trailing by 16 in the third quarter, Houston's veteran guard scored 19 points — including 2 3-point jumpers — and handed out 12 assists to rally Houston to 104-102 victory over its Midwest Division rival.

"I score when I have to score," Lucas said. "But I think the job Robert Reid and Rodney McCray did on (Alex) English was the game."

Elsewhere, San Antonio defeated Utah 112-104 and Sacramento beat New York 94-90.

Carr Drives Rams Past Hawks

The Lake Mary Rams used a game-high 26 points from Tarance Carr and 17 from Bernard Washington to hammer the Lake Howell Silver Hawks, 78-40, in freshman basketball action at Lake Mary Monday evening.

The Rams improved to 8-3 for the season after seven straight away games and host the Lake Brantley Patriot freshman in their last game of the season this week.

On boards for the Rams was Calvin Davis who crashed the glass for 12 rebounds en route to a 43-19 halftime lead. Carlos Hartsfield added 10 rebounds to Davis' game high total.

Coach Don Hughes' Rams never let the Silver Hawks into the game, outscoring them 16-9, 27-19, 23-11 and 12-10 for four periods.

Tar Heels Retain Top Rank

NEW YORK (UPI) — Led by top-ranked North Carolina, five teams from the Atlantic Coast Conference made the top 20 today in the UPI Board of Coaches weekly college basketball ratings.

North Carolina, despite losing for the first time this season, remained in the No. 1 position for the ninth straight week. The Tar Heels' top challenger from a week ago, Memphis State, also suffered its first defeat and dropped two places to No. 4.

North Carolina, 22-1, received 39 first place votes and 605 points from the 41 coaches who participated in this week's ratings.

Bryant Unanimous Pick For Hall

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bear Bryant, winner of 326 games in almost 40 years as a head coach, was a unanimous choice Monday for the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame.

Bryant died in 1983, 37 days after retiring as coach at Alabama, where he had led the program since 1958.

Starting his head coaching career at Maryland in 1945, Bryant also coached at Kentucky and Texas A&M before moving on to Alabama. He compiled a total record of 326-106-7.

Bryant surpassed Amos Alonzo Stagg's record of 315 victories for a college football coach, but his mark since has been broken by Eddie Robinson of Grambling.

Wood, Defense Lift Oviedo JV

Audrienne Wood scored 13 points and the Oviedo defense shut down Jones in the fourth period as the Lady Lions walked away with a 25-22 victory in girls junior varsity basketball action Monday night.

With the Lady Tigers leading by one and only two minutes remaining in the game, Wood, Julie Dames and Cheryl Buntz got control of the ball and the game to claim the victory.

"Our defense really stifled Jones," head Lady Lion coach Mickey Norden said. "We really shut them out of the final minutes. Our defense did the job."

Rogers Captures Feature — Hawthorne Takes Thundercar

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — "We'll be going even faster during the World Series, when there's more rubber on the track," David Rogers said after he turned fast time, then won the fast heat and the feature in the Wayne Densch Budweiser Firebird.

Finishing second was Daniel Keene followed by Frank Wood, who shortened his car's wheelbase to the minimum allowed, was extremely strong and completed many successful passes. Fourth and fifth were Jack Cook and Lee Faulk in the Champion TV Firebird.

Making it a "One-two" punch for the same brewer, Casey Hawthorne drove Ray Jones' Busch machine to his second thundercar feature win in a row.

Behind Hawthorne, the battle for position was tough an merciless, with runner-up Kenny Copley holding off Pete Starr, newcomer Ron Thiel Jr. and Harry Brazee.

A.J. Rinehart took the roadrunner main.

"Rebounding the basketball will be what the game is all about," Klein agreed. "It will come down to rebounding and defense," he said. "The teams are pretty equal. We both throw a lot of zone pressure and man to man and presses."

Seminole's backcourt is spearheaded by point Andre Whitney and two-guard Jerr "Stick" Parker. Like Lyman, Seminole also relies heavily on its sixth man — Mike Wright — a good penetrator and excellent rebounder.

The frontcourt is made up of 6-8 Rod Fossitt, 6-7½ Craig Walker and 6-3½ Rod Henderson. Brad Baird, a 6-9 junior, Joe Holden and Steve Hathaway have been key additions from the bench.

Lyman is on a tear. Half of the 'Hounds 16 victory have come consecutively. They are also 8-0 at home, another point Lawrence is quick to make.

Seminole lost Friday to Spruce Creek, 47-45, to interrupt a six-game win streak and of 10 of its last 11. Our kids played really hard against Spruce Crek). "It was a very disappointing loss," Klein said. "All losses like that are tough." Klein would like nothing better than a rebound against Lyman tonight.

Elsewhere tonight, Lake Mary, 7-9 and 3-2, journeys to Lake Howell, 6-12 and 1-3, in SAC action. Oviedo, 8-12, braces for an invasion by powerful Orlando Jones.

At Lake Howell, coach Greg Robinson hopes his frontline of 6-4 Kevin Lenard and 6-5 Fred Hicks will keep Lake Mary's 6-1 Oscar Merthie and 6-3 Chris Jackson off the boards.

The Hawks figure to have their hands full with guards Eric Czerniejewski and Ray Hartsfield along with 6-4 sophomore sharpshooter Kelly McKinnon. All three have been playing well as coach Willie Richardson's Rams have turned it around.

"This is a different team than a month ago," Richardson said. He's right. After slumbering along at 2-8, Lake Mary caught fire and reeled off five consecutive wins before losing a heart-breaker (64-63) at Lyman last week.

Czerniejewski turned in 20 assists and 11 steals while the Rams won two of three last week. McKinnon, the best pure shooter in the county, continued to pepper away from the outside. Hartsfield is still among the top scorers in the county while Merthie and Jackson strengthened their rebound totals against Pierson Taylor and Mount Dora.

At Oviedo, coach Dale "Digger" Phillips is looking for consistent guard play to get his Lions going. The frontline of Allen Unroe, Robb Hughes, James Walker and resurgent Mark Stewart has played well.

The backcourt, manned by junior Terry Campbell and sophomore Garth Bolton, is gaining experience. Phillips sometimes goes to a big lineup, which moves Unroe to point and injury-prone 6-5 sophomore Steve Kandell to forward. Randy Ferguson is a sturdy backup at guard.

"Kandell's back," Phillips declared Monday. "Hopefully, he's got all of the injuries (ankle and flu) out of his system for the next 20 years."

Jones, per usual, is stocked with talent but Phillips said tonight may be the night. "We usually upset some real good team at home one time during the season," Phillips, whose Ronnie Murphy-led cagers did a number on Kissimmee Osceola's state champions three years ago in the Lions' Den. "We hope we can pull the upset tonight."

Oviedo is 0-5 in the SAC and 3-4 in the Orange Belt Conference. This will be the last year it plays in the OBC.

Lake Brantley, 8-9 and 2-3, returns to action Wednesday at Winter Park. Coach Steve Jucker's Patriots are looking for revenge since the Wildcats nipped them by one point in the first meeting.

Mark Moser and David Hardwick make up the backcourt while sophomore Darren Leva, junior Brent Bell and swingman Wade Wittig form the frontcourt. Barry Shirley, an impressive junior, has been pushing for more playing time. He poured in a career-high 24 points in Saturday's win over Wymore Center.

Oviedo's Unroe continues to lead the county scorers with 15.1 points per game. Seminole's Walker heads up the rebounders and shot blockers with 8.9 boards and 8.9 blocks per game.

Lyman's Scaletta is tops in steals with a 3.6 average while Seminole's Whitney heads the assists with 6.4 per game. Lake Howell's Todd Peterson is the best free throw shooter with 24 of 30 for 80 percent.

Storm Cancels Pro-Am Action

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Mother Nature, not eventual winner Fuzzy Zoeller, was the only to complete the course in the final round of the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

The round was cancelled after eight holes Monday when a Pacific storm pounded the Pebble Beach course with a combination of heavy wind and rain, lightning and hail. The deluge turned the greens into streams and the bunkers into swimming pools.

However, that storm was only a prelude to a larger one brewing in the players' locker room. Tournament, PGA and AT&T officials huddled and decided to extend play to Tuesday.

The decision touched off an angry protest from the Tour players, led by veterans Raymond Floyd and Peter Jacobsen.

"This is a pro-am and really doesn't follow the normal rules," Jacobsen said.

worked out. Commissioner Bob Thomas echoed Farr's sentiment. Commissioner Milton Smith regretted missing the contested Nov. 8 meeting, the heart of the arguments presented Monday, and commissioner John Mercer didn't have an immediate comment.

Colbert and McIntosh both said they would have to study the decision before making comment on it or what course of action they may recommend.

Ken Hooper, Seminole County administrator, said the ruling supports the county in its regional approach to sewage disposal.

In a related matter, county officials are scheduled to meet with the city commission and representatives of the DER Thursday to see if there still is a possible out-of-court solution. Thursday's hearing was scheduled before Monday's Melbourne hearing.

The city initially filed the condemnation suit because it is being pressured by the Department of Environmental Regulation to halt the dumping of treated effluent into Lake Monroe. The city had planned to end the dumping by spraying the effluent on land. The land site the city wanted to use was an area west of Sanford known as Yankee Lake, owned by Jeno Paulucci. In November, however, the county successfully out-negotiated the city and struck a multi-million-dollar deal with Paulucci for the property, receiving the deed stamped "pending litigation."

The county also wants the land for a sewage disposal site. As part of his Nov. 5 deal with the county, Paulucci is to receive sewage services for his luxury Heathrow development west of Lake Mary.

Sanford officials, under the DER's shotgun, were faced with the loss of the only possible site for land spreading. Acquisition of the land and change in treatment was the basis for the city getting grant money from the state, and the launching of a related bond issue, and the stalling of legal action against the city by the DER. On Nov. 8 the Sanford commission, with one member absent, voted to wrestle the property away from the county by condemnation.

Focal point of the Melbourne hearing was the events surrounding Sanford's decision Nov. 8 to proceed on the condemnation tack.

The county argued the Nov. 8 meeting was flawed thus invalidating the city's condemnation suit. Paulucci's lawyers, who joined with the county in the case, said the city acted improperly by passing a condemnation resolution rather than a condemnation ordinance.

The city maintained it followed its charter and statutory requirements as best it could and that if it did err the errors were correctable and that the suit should not be dismissed.

Waddell, who often appeared impatient with the nine attorney's involved on both sides, wiped out Paulucci's contention that the city used the wrong legal vehicle to start the condemnation suit, namely a resolution.

Paulucci's lawyers, Jim Spoonhour and Mack Cleveland, argued the action should have been in the form of an ordinance which would have required public hearings and notifications, since it was major city business, not "housekeeping business." Waddell said he saw no problem with the resolution route the city took.

Waddell, however, agreed with the county's assertion, argued by Howard Marsee, Ross Stanton and Nikki Clayton, that the commission members were not properly notified of the special hearing, as per Sanford's city charter. That created a violation of state statutes. An argument that the minutes of the meeting were also improper should be passed onto an appeal court, the judge said. That argument centered on whether the controversial vote to go ahead with condemnation action should have been a by-name vote, with each city commissioner stating his vote, or a unison all-yes vote. There is case law for and against the issue.

Waddell said, as the county argued and as per state law, the city must comply with all statutory and charter requirements before it can file a condemnation suit. Sanford's city charter requires that all commission members be notified in writing at least 24 hours before a special meeting is scheduled.

According to testimony, none of the special meeting notices for the Nov. 8 meeting were delivered to the commissioners. Wives accepted the notices for two of the commissioners, two notices were left at commission members' homes and one was given to a neighbor. Despite the delivery hassles, and the fact that the first notice carried a typographical date error and had to be redelivered, four of five commission members showed up for the hearing

Nov. 8. The fifth member, Milton Smith, was out of state and was notified by telephone.

The telephone notification proved to be the downfall for Sanford's case even though Marcia K. Lippincott, an attorney specializing in appeals hired by Sanford, argued that the impracticability of contacting Smith, who was in South Carolina, waived the city requirement that he be contacted in writing. If Smith had been at the meeting, he could have waived not receiving the written notice.

At that Nov. 8 meeting, the city commission voted 4-0 in unison to proceed with a condemnation suit and then voted, again 4-0 to direct the city attorney to start working on the suit. It was not a roll call vote, as called for by state statute, that is each vote recorded by name. City charter does not require roll call votes.

Monday, prior to the Melbourne hearing, the Sanford city commission met in a special session to amend the Nov. 8 minutes but this time with Smith present and by roll call. At the special Monday city commission meeting, they voted 5-0 in favor of the condemnation resolution and did so by roll call vote.

That action was to head off the county's argument that the original vote was not a roll call vote. Monday's vote was done none pro time, that is changing something today — in this case inaccurate minutes according to the city — to correctly reflect what occurred in the past as long as the change does in fact accurately reflect what did happen. The city cited case law supporting its position.

While the city argued by case law that it had the right to amend the minutes, the county countered by saying the city only amended part of the minutes of the Nov. 8 meeting but not all of the minutes. The county cited case law supporting its position.

Win Or Lose, Sanford Pays

Win or lose the Yankee Lake condemnation suit, the city of Sanford in the long run will foot the bill for all of the litigation, according to comments made Monday at a hearing on the issue before a circuit judge in Melbourne.

The case was transferred to a Melbourne courthouse in the Seminole-Brevard circuit because circuit judges in Seminole County removed themselves to prevent any accusation of partiality.

The decision to take the case to the judge, a two-hour drive from Sanford, rather than bring the judge to the case is apparently an expensive one.

Circuit Judge Thomas Waddell said the case had to come to him because he had cases he was obligated to try in Melbourne and could not travel to Sanford to hear the issue.

That meant a small armada of Sanford and Seminole County employees, elected and non-elected officials and their gladiator lawyers — about 30 people not counting three reporters — left Sanford to spend most of the day in Melbourne, apparently at Sanford's expense, according to county attorney Nikki Clayton.

Ms. Clayton said the loser in an action usually pays the court costs and attorneys' fees. In this case, nine lawyers in total squared off in what will probably be the first of many legal skirmishes. Further, if Sanford should win the condemnation suit, the city, as initiators of the suit, would by law also have to pay for the litigation.

The county, she said, was in the issue out of principal referring apparently to the turf squabble between the governments over the Yankee Lake site and how they choose to conduct business with each other.

No one had an estimate of the cost of the litigation leading to Monday's hearing, or what the final bill will be when the issue is all sorted out. But one attorney, noting the extra lawyers present, said it would be expensive.

One city commissioner, however, commented that $20,000 in legal fee could be worth it if, in the long run, it saves the city millions of dollars in future sewer costs. — Deane Jordan

Also helping to bolster the improper notification argument for the county was the sworn deposition by Thomas and its disparity with Smith's actions. In the deposition, Thomas said he knew of the meeting, but not what it was really about. Whereas Smith, who wasn't notified of the meeting in writing, was ready to vote for the resolution though he had not read it.

In the end, Waddell said Sanford's logic that it could amend its minutes and the impracticability of contacting Smith in South Carolina was compelling, the city charter was what swayed him. All members had to be notified in writing and Smith was not notified.

Throughout the afternoon meeting, Waddell chided the lawyers to stay on the topic of the in-contest meeting and not to drag out the hearing.

At one point he told McIntosh to be brief and when Howard Marsee raised an objection to McIntosh's line, Waddell said, "I have tried to guide Mr. McIntosh but, I will leave him alone." He also told McIntosh as he asked a similar question already asked that he was "beating a dead horse," and that he was going to "turn (him) off," and let the county proceed with its case.

Waddell later had spiky words for Marsee when he asked him how long he thought it would take to present the county's witnesses. When Marsee appeared to start a long statement, Waddell said "look at my lips," and re-asked the question.

The judge also told one of Paulucci's lawyers, Spoonhour, that he didn't have to ask questions if he did not have any to ask. Waddell also interrupted testimony about the delivery of meeting notices by saying "We don't have to go through a route of Sanford" and at another point told McIntosh he wanted to hear about the meeting problem only, not the history of Sanford's sewer situation.

"I don't care (about the sewer plan). I'm just concerned about these meetings. The rest of Sanford's problems can stay in Seminole County," the judge said.

As the meeting neared 4 p.m. with several witnesses to go, Waddell suggested everyone agree to agree on what they were going to say since they had already collected depositions and knew what was going to be presented.

"We can get on with this unless you guys want to stay the night," he said to the attorneys.

The hearing ended at 5 p.m. After the hearing, Juanny Mercer, wife of Commissioner John Mercer, told an invited Evening Herald reporter not to take notes of the conversation or quote anyone on board or walk back to Sanford.

When he began to take notes at the ride back began she told him to stop and not to quote anyone. She said she would also come the newspaper office "beat on somebody or something if any quotes from the ride back appeared in the paper."

In the motor home were four Sanford commissioners, Mrs. Mercer, a commissioner's neighbor and the Herald Reporter.

Acting NASA administrator William Graham refused to discuss whether any remains of the seven astronauts have been located or identified.

In a short announcement, Reagan named former Secretary of State William P. Rogers chairman of the "blue ribbon" commission and Neil Armstrong, the first man to walk on the moon, as vice chairman.

Other commission members include astronaut Sally Ride, the first American woman to fly in space, famed test pilot Chuck Yeager and Richard P. Feynman, a winner of the Nobel Prize in physics. Seven others also were named.

The commission was charged with preparing its report on the tragedy in the next four months. That all but ruled out the possibility that shuttles could be flying again before late summer at the earliest.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Castro To Be Self-Critical In Economic Report To Party

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Cuba's Communist Party Congress faced a critical report today from President Fidel Castro on how he and the party have managed the nation's economy, Cuban sources said.

Cuban sources said Castro's report would be highly self-critical, especially of how he and the party have handled the economy, which still depends heavily on sugar exports and Soviet aid.

More than 200 foreign delegates were in Havana for the meeting. The Soviet delegation was headed by Egor Ligachov, a Politburo member. Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega flew into Havana to lead his delegation.

Castro's speech was expected to last much of the day. The Congress was to devote Wednesday and Thursday to closed deliberations on political and economic documents before adopting policy proposals Friday.

The congress culminates more than a year of sweeping changes in Cuba that touch on leadership, the economy and the relationship between the state and the Catholic church. Cuban observers and foreign diplomats said.

Duvalier Scoffs At Election Call

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — President Jean-Claude Duvalier scoffed at Secretary of State George Shultz's call for democratic elections, telling a reporter, "I am president for life. What elections are you talking about?"

The 34-year-old president, who has declared a state of siege to combat anti-government rioting, sped through the countryside Monday in a motorcade of 30 jeeps with sirens blaring. Duvalier rode in a beige land cruiser driven by his wife, Michele.

Hundreds of Haitians cheered "for life, for life," as Duvalier's motorcade sped past the militia headquarters in the hillside suburb of Petionville, where many of the rich live.

Over 200,000 At Aquino Rally

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — More than 200,000 supporters of presidential challenger Corason Aquino converged on a downtown Manila park today for the last big opposition rally before Friday's elections.

Unofficial estimates placed the crowd in the seaside Luneta Park at more than 200,000 by 6 p.m., with tens of thousands more marching, driving and cycling to the rally from 19 different gathering points around the capital.

Huge traffic jams choked nearly every street leading into central Manila. Earlier, President Ferdinand Marcos challenged Aquino to a debate within 24 hours to beat a government-set deadline on campaigning.

died at 4:34 a.m. today.

The boy had been on a life-support system at the hospital before his death, deputies said.

An investigation continued today into the traffic death in Oviedo of James Peterson, 60, of 41 Fourth St., Chuluota. He was the sixth traffic fatality in Seminole County this year in as many weeks. Peterson's brother is Senator N. Curtis Peterson, of Lakeland, according to Oviedo police.

Police said Peterson's east-bound car left County Road 419 some time Monday before 7:26 a.m., then overturned. He was alone in the vehicle and no one else was involved in the one-car accident. An autopsy was expected today to determine the cause of death.

Police said it has not been determined how long it was after Peterson's car left the road before it was discovered. It did not hit anything.

These are just a few of the more than 60 guests who attended 5-year-old Madison Murphy's birthday party Sunday at Hampton Gardens in downtown Sanford. The child's Winter Park parents said they heard about Sanford's efforts to upgrade the downtown area's buildings and motif and decided to treat their guests to a train ride and birthday party in the "Friendly City."

All had a great time, said Mrs. Blair (Kathy) Murphy, the child's mother. Madison (child at table with mouth open in delight over presents being opened) is center photo next to her dad, Dr. Blair Murphy, bending over, as mom, Kathy, next to Madison displays one of the more than 100 gifts child got.

and so on. I'm certainly going to tell our friends in Winter Park about this pleasant experience," she added.

Mrs. Murphy said because there is no return trip by Amtrak to Winter Park until the following day, several adults rode up to Sanford in private autos in the morning, then returned to Winter Park in one or two of them, leaving the remainder at the Amtrak parking lot. Then all the children and adults boarded the train at Winter Park and arrived in Sanford around 3 p.m.

Mrs. Blair (Kathy) Murphy of Winter Park, the wife of a prominent anesthesiologist at an Orlando hospital, said she invited guests for her 5-year-old daughter Madison's fifth birthday celebration in Sanford to take Amtrak and assemble at Hampton Gardens on First Street.

And assemble they did, amid colorful balloons inside the downtown restaurant and on the patio as well. Mrs. Murphy said there were about 40 adults and 20 children at the party and "they all had a great time and love the way Sanford's downtown area looks. I'm formerly of Longwood, and since we moved to Winter Park we've heard about the many nice things going on in downtown Sanford. I mean the remodeling

Dear Abby

Kids Across Country Saying 'No'

DEAR ABBY: Last August you printed a letter from Angel Wiltz describing the "Just Say No" clubs, made up of children 7-12 years old who use positive peer pressure to support each other in their commitment to lead drug-free lives. As a result of Angel's letter in your column, 8,000 people wrote or phoned for information, and hundreds of clubs have formed in cities and towns across the country! Oakland Parents in Action, sponsor of the "Just Say No" charter club, has published a book explaining the clubs and how to start one. The book includes suggestions for projects and activities, discusses fund raising, the recruitment, and lists a number of resources for information about preventing drug abuse. "Just Say No: Stopping Drug Abuse Before It Starts" costs $3.50. Checks should be made out to OPA, and orders under $10 must be prepaid. (Quantity discounts are available.)

"Just Say No" clubs are organizing an international Walk Against Drugs on May 22. Five million children and teen-agers are expected to take part. Information about the walks is contained in the book. Oakland Parents in Action is compiling a national "Just Say No" directory, and is asking clubs around the country to contact us so that they may be included. We now have a toll-free "Just Say No" information line — (800)258-2766 — which operates Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Pacific time.

Abby, you have helped us so much already. Will you please help us again and put this in your column?

JOAN BRANN, PROJECT DIRECTOR OAKLAND PARENTS IN ACTION
DEAR JOAN: I just said yes!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I am vastly smarter than virtually everyone I know—at least I think I am.

This troubles me, because shortly after I have begun a conversation with someone—anyone from my dentist to my wife—I begin to realize that they are intellectually inferior, and I regard what they say as only amusing. If not utterly stupid. Yet, I don't want to become an isolated hermit, or associate exclusively with super-intellects. What should I do?

SMART BUT CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: For openers, you could quit rating everyone you meet by where you perceive them to be intellectually. Why not relax your standards a bit, and try harder to find something worthwhile in what your wife has to say—and your dentist as well?

I think your chances for becoming a hermit are infinitely better than associating exclusively with the super-intellects, who may find you more confused than smart.

Linda Johnston, co-owner of The Office Source, Sanford, which has computers, computer supplies, and office supplies.

Savings On Supplies At The Office Source

The Office Source is one of the new and growing businesses in Sanford's Downtown business district. Owned and operated by Linda Johnston and Donna Konya, The Office Source specializes in saving its customers time and money when it is time to purchase computer and office equipment and supplies.

Linda explained, "We have several ways of doing that. We shop many different sources for the items we sell and find our vendors flexible enough to give us the savings we need to pass on to our customers. Because we warehouse most products in Orlando, we do not pass on the high cost of maintaining a large inventory."

"Although we stock some items on a very regular basis," Linda said, "we pull most things into the Sanford location when one of our customers needs that item. We also canvas our vendors weekly to take advantage of their special pricing. Even though this means our customers may have to wait a day or two, sometimes longer on special items or back-order items, they are happy to plan for that when we can save them money."

"We encourage telephone orders and welcome the buyer who just wants a price quotation to prove our low prices," she added.

At the request of a customer wishing to furnish a warehouse facility, Linda and Donna began to look for used office equipment. "We found the desks, chairs and filing cabinets the customer needed, cleaned them up a little and sold them to him used, for less than half of what he would have paid for new equipment. In some businesses that would not work, so we want to sell new and used. We will actively be looking for used items in reasonably good condition, now."

Both Linda and Donna are starting to see an awareness by the consumer that says the office manager of today realizes the cost of supplying their office with paper, pens and file folders is an important cost to watch. Also, the customer is educated about computers and supplies now and won't settle for paying $30 to $40 for a box of diskettes, when they can get them for $20 or less.

"The reason we sell as low as we do, is that we recognize the customer's awareness and want to answer their needs. We want to sell what they want to buy, not what we need to sell," Linda said.

Because computers and printers are also sold at The Office Source, service and supplies for these items are primary. "We offer a special service of cleaning computers and printers from inside out. Most people are not aware of how much damage can be caused by dust and dirt that accumulates in and around their computers. Most jobs can be done in an hour and the cost varies from $15 to $25, depending on the machine.

Soon, The Office Source plans to institute a special pricing plan with accumulative discounts available. "When a customer passes our normally low prices they are happy, but to offer them the cost break we get from our vendors, we will keep track of the number of times a customer buys one item and when they reach the next price level, we will pass that savings on to them. We realize that a customer may not need five or ten boxes of diskettes all at one time, but may purchase that many over a period of several months. We want to help them take advantage of all the special pricing we can."

To find everything from computer supplies to office supplies and equipment, call The Office Source. Free delivery and great prices can be found right here in Sanford!

Located at 111 Magnolia Ave., The Office Source is open 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The telephone numbers are 323-5815 or 365-8111.

Agencies Seek Tax Increase To Cut Deficit

By David E. Anderson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Leaders of the nation's public housing and community development agencies Monday called for a federal tax increase to reduce the deficit and asked for level funding in housing and development programs.

"We are convinced that proposals to reduce the deficit solely by making additional program cuts, including massive cuts in remaining housing and community development programs, are unworkable and unconscionable," said Melvin Adams, president of the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials, a group representing more than 2,200 local agencies.

Adams, also director of the Metropolitan Dade County (Fla.) Department of Housing and Urban Development, said his group "recognizes the need to deal with massive federal budget deficits."

"We are also aware that federal expenditures to house the needy and to revitalize our distressed communities have plummeted even as the deficit has soared in recent years," he said.

Congress must "face the fact that no 'magic sword' such as the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction law" can achieve the necessary cuts without "devastating basic programs that are fundamental to the nation's well-being," Adams said.

"Unless they face this fact... Gramm-Rudman will ultimately destroy not only housing and community development programs, but also such essential federal functions as those provided by the FAA, the DEA, the FBI, the Coast Guard and the Customs and Immigration Services," Adams said in remarks prepared for a news conference.

The association, therefore, "urges the president and the Congress to enact a federal tax increase directed solely to deficit reduction," he said. "In addition, recognizing that all must contribute to the effort to deal effectively with the federal deficit, NAHRO recommends generally level funding, not increases, in program appropriations."

"While these levels will not approach those necessary to meet actual needs, they are the minimum required to avoid a total dismantling of the federal role in housing and community development," he said.

Since 1980, he said, new budget authority for assisted housing programs administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development has been cut by more than 60 percent and the number of new rental housing starts under HUD programs declined by almost 80 percent.

New Orders Of Goods Up 2.7 Percent Led By Aircraft Industry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New orders for manufactured goods, led by the aircraft industry, increased $5.2 billion, or 2.7 percent, in December, the largest one-month gain since the 4.4 percent increase in November 1984, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

The report said most of the month's increase was in the durable goods sector, where the aircraft industry was up 100 percent from November. Non-durable goods were up $800 million, or 0.9 percent, to $93.9 billion.

The department said the $5.2 billion increase took new orders for manufactured goods to $202.1 billion.

Unfilled orders in December were up $1.9 billion, or 0.5 percent, to $363.6 billion, the department said, adding that the increase was attributable to the aircraft sector. Manufacturers' inventories decreased $1.4 billion, or 0.5 percent, to $280.6 billion; the durable goods sector accounted for the decline as non-durables showed little change from November.

New orders for 1985 totaled $2,350.4 billion, 2.2 percent above 1984. Shipments were $2,342.5 billion, 3 percent above 1984. Unfilled orders at $363.6 billion were 2.2 percent above December 1984 and inventories at $280.6 billion were 1.8 percent below December 1984.

The increase in new orders in durable goods followed declines in four of the five previous months, the department said. Transportation equipment was up $6.1 billion, or 25.2 percent, mostly as a result of large orders for commercial aircraft. There also was a large increase in defense shipbuilding.

Electrical machinery was up $1.1 billion, or 7 percent, to $17.4 billion, the largest increase since June, and the largest one-month volume since the record $17.9 billion in January 1985. Non-electrical machinery declined $2.2 billion, or 12.4 percent, to $15.8 billion, more than offsetting the 7.6 percent increase in November and the third decline in the last four months.

Shipments of durable goods declined 0.3 percent to $106.7 billion. Increases in transportation equipment and electrical machinery were more than offset by declines in non-electrical machinery and fabricated metal products.

The $500 million, or 1.8 percent, increase in transportation equipment resulted from an increase in aircraft of $1.2 billion, more than offsetting a decline in motor vehicles of $700 million.

Manufacturers' unfilled orders were up 0.5 percent. Excluding the large aircraft increase, the backlog of orders declined 0.6 percent.

Non-electrical machinery declined $1.6 billion, or 2.6 percent, to $59.3 billion. Primary metals decreased $100 million, or 0.6 percent, to $19.8 billion as an increase in non-ferrous partially offset a decrease in steel. Electrical machinery showed a small increase of 0.2 percent.

Unfilled orders for non-durables increased 3.2 percent, with most of the increase in the paper industry.

It's Not For Whom They Vote... But How They Count The Ballots

By Joan Hanauer UPI Feature Writer OSSINING, N.Y. (UPI) — The Rev. Niall O'Brien arrived in the Philippines in 1964, a 24-year-old Roman Catholic priest on his first appointment — ready to help souls in preparation for the next world but with little idea of how people lived in this one.

After 20 years there, including about a year in jail on a murder charge, he sees the Philippines very differently. O'Brien's view of the Philippines — where elections will be held Feb. 7, pitting President Ferdinand Marcos against Corazon Aquino, widow of assassinated opposition leader Benigno Aquino — can be summed up in a phrase he likes to use: "Those who make reform impossible make revolution inevitable."

Ask him how the people will vote, and he says it is the wrong question.

"It is not who they vote for or whether they vote," he said, "but whether the vote is counted. I feel that the degree of cheating and the high or low profile of the cheating will be very pivotal to the future development of the Philippines."

The reforms he wants to see involve the poor.

"I arrived in the Philippines directly from Ireland," said O'Brien, a member of the Order of St. Columban, his voice still tinged with lilt and brogue. He sat back in his chair at the Maryknoll headquarters not far from New York City — a stone fortress overlooking the Hudson River with bright red, Chinese decorative touches and in the courtyard a Buddhist bell once used to summon missionaries on their way to China.

"In those days I lived in the old, traditional church. My vision was spiritual in a narrow sense of the word," he said.

He was enthused with the spirit of the Second Vatican Council and the need to reform the liturgy and the catechism.

"If you asked me about the poor," he said, "I would have seen them as objects of charity. I would have seen the kindly mission of the church to lead the poor to God. I would not have been immensely scandalized by the idea of poverty because I didn't even know it existed."

On his second night in the Philippines, he was taken to the movies by an older priest. On the way home saw a boy of about 7 or 8 — obviously an orphan — sleeping in a doorway. The thought of the boy kept him awake all night and began what became a 20-year journey among the poor.

"Another time I was going to a far part of the parish where a priest hadn't been before," he said. "I took along a couple of sandwiches. It started to rain and I ducked into a house and asked to stop there to eat. I sat on the floor, as there were no chairs, and as I was eating I noticed the children around me, their eyes on the sandwich.

"So I shared it with them — I must admit reluctantly," he said with a laugh. "They gobbled it down and I realized nobody in the house had any food. The children had only scorched ears of corn they were gnawing on."

Then in 1970, after running two retreat houses on the island of Negros, he was stationed on a sugar plantation and saw the semi-feudal conditions under which the migrant workers lived.

That's when he began re-reading the documents of Vatican II.

"One of the biggest things," the priest said, "was the re-finding of the fact that we are not just made of flesh and blood but of a body and soul and neither can be neglected without a lot of trouble being caused."

From organizing retreats, the priest became involved in organizing small Christian communities based on sharing of time, treasure and talent; group decision; the struggle to eliminate injustice; reconciliation and forgiveness; and last of all, prayer.

"Then our mayor was killed," the priest said. "That was in 1982. We presumed it had been the New People's Army — the guerrillas in the mountains."

Six months later O'Brien, two other priests and six lay leaders were arrested for the murder of the mayor and his four companions. Those arrested became known as the Negros Nine. The three priests spent about a year in jail or under house arrest — although O'Brien was hundreds of miles away in Manila at the time of the killings and could not prove it.

"Why were we arrested? I would say two or three reasons," O'Brien said. "First of all, the land. The land was being taken off the people by bigish land-owners and by military people. And in each of our parishes small Christian communities always stood their ground on the matter of land. We also had the services of the diocesan lawyers. That was a thorn in their side.

"Second, since martial law was declared in 1973, any opposition to President Marcos was driven underground and became insurrection. The army then retaliated with terrible brutality, killing anybody who even touched them. Terrible massacres took place and we protested immediately. We Telexed to newspapers all over the world. The army realized massacres could not take place in great secrecy any more.

"A third reason was that the barons of the sugar industry in Negros were sick and tired of the church, sick and tired of the labor unions started by priests, sick and tired of continual sermons in an awful lot of churches, and the books and pamphlets we brought out about poor people's rights and all that.

"There had been one terrible sugar strike; the sugar industry lost millions, the strikers stuck it out and, of course, the church fed the strikers.

"There was a feeling it was about time an example was made of some priests and that the lid was put on the church's activities."

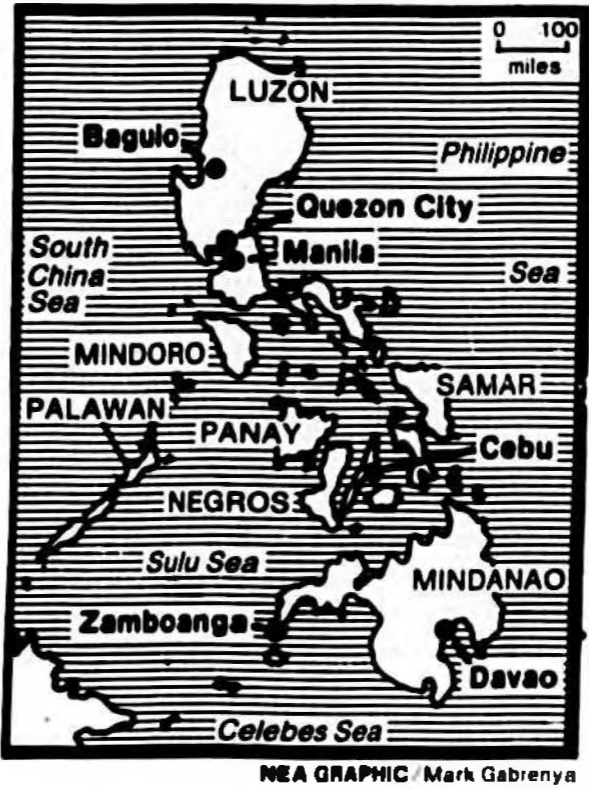

The three priests originally were held under house arrest, but eventually demanded incarceration with their lay leaders.

"The jail consisted of 10 cells facing a quadrangle," O'Brien said. "Inside the cells there was nothing but floor and walls and a hole in the ground for a toilet. Food for the day was about two and a half glasses of rice and five little fishes.

"The first day there we caught a rat. A deputation came over from cell No. 1 and asked for it. We didn't know what they wanted with it, but of his life in jail. As for the future of the Philippines — to which he would like to return someday — he said:

"I'm inclined to be a person who has hope. I've seen so much goodness in the Philippines."

they took it and skinned it and ate it.

"There were about 200 of us in that high security prison, all of us in for murder, I suppose. There were five types, the way I categorized it. There were those who shouldn't be there at all because they were falsely accused. There were those who killed in self-defense. There were those who killed for revenge, which is a kind of self-defense in reverse. I don't agree with it but I understand it. There was another, more sinister group, the hired killers who had been paid by politicians. Lastly, there were the armed robbers."

The charges against the priests finally were dismissed after a major international campaign for their freedom — not enough evidence, was the official verdict — with the understanding that they leave the country.

"It was very bizarre," the priest said.

Trouble Spots Identified

By Ron Redmond
MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — The leader of a citizens' watchdog group said today that 56 of the Philippines' 74 provinces have been identified as potential trouble spots in Friday's presidential election.

Jose Concepcion, chairman of the National Citizens Movement for Free Elections, or Namfrel, said forgers already are preparing fake ballots.

Concepcion said it will be difficult for an official U.S. observer team to detect election fraud "because the Filipino way of cheating cannot be detected by foreigners."

"It pains me to announce here today that I believe the chances of a clean and honest election on February 7 amount to only 50 percent," Concepcion told a Rotary Club luncheon.

"We have identified today a total of 56 provinces as critical provinces in this election, along with 375 municipalities."

He defined "critical" areas as those where local officials are being harassed, where election-related violence has already broken out and where cheating was reported in 1984 parliamentary polls.

Concepcion said his group had received reports of villagers being intimidated by armed men and noted that "killings have left people indifferent to elections."

Military officials said today that at least 60 people have been killed in the past two weeks in clashes between government security forces and communist rebels. Government figures showed 40 people have been killed in election-related violence since Dec. 11.

"Some of our volunteers have been threatened and harassed for their involvement with Namfrel," Concepcion said.

Concepcion said he, his family and household help have had criminal charges filed against them by Manila-area members of President Ferdinand Marcos' KBL Party in an attempt to discredit Namfrel, and the group's headquarters was "picketed" last week by government intelligence agents.

Concepcion said Namfrel also is investigating reports that "about 70 master forgers" are preparing fake ballots that will be switched with valid votes when boxes are transported from polling places to the nearest municipal offices.

"It seems that we have enough documentation," he said of the alleged fake ballot scheme, dubbed Operation Heart-to-Heart.

"There are too many ballot boxes. Ballots are now being stuffed in these ballot boxes," Concepcion said.

He vehemently denounced pro-government newspaper reports charging that Namfrel is backed by opposition candidate Corazon Aquino and the American Central Intelligence Agency.

A 19-member U.S. team appointed by President Reagan to observe the polls was welcomed by Namfrel, but the Americans will find it difficult to detect cheating, Concepcion said.

Nanfrel was organized in 1983 and was credited by Washington for its work during the 1984 parliamentary polls in which the opposition made strong gains.

In Friday's election, the group expects to field up to 700,000 citizen observers at 85 percent of the country's 90,000 polling places.

Ultrasonic Lithotripsy Now Proven Effective

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband has two big kidney stones. The doctor says he should have wave therapy. Does it work?

DEAR READER — The treatment of kidney stones is undergoing a revolution. In addition to the traditional manner of removing stones surgically, urologists are now using sound waves to fracture and pulverize these troublesome deposits. The technique is called ultrasonic lithotripsy and is so effective and so safe that surgery for kidney stones may soon become antiquated.

Lithotripsy is administered in two ways. The first method involves passing a probe up the ureter (the tube leading from the kidney to the bladder) or into the kidney itself through a flank incision. Then the stone is bombarded by sound waves until it dissolves. For the procedure to work, the probe must touch the stone.

The second method is called the "blitz bath." After the patient is placed in a tank of water, the stone is pulverized by extracorporeal (outside the body) sound waves. This technique is still considered to be experimental; it is not reimbursable by Medicare and there are only a few available units in the country.

If your husband's doctor has suggested lithotripsy, I say "go for it." This new treatment may save him — and millions of other Americans — from more painful and dangerous surgery.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Every time I walk into a health-food store or pick up a tabloid newspaper, I am bombarded by health claims about vitamins and minerals. These substances are touted to cure all kinds of disease, fight old age, prevent colds and neutralize cancer cells. Do you know of any factual source that will give me rational information on this subject?

DEAR READER — There is indeed an enormous amount of misinformation being circulated about the value of vitamins and minerals — everything from vitamin-megadose cancer cures to the faddish orthomolecular treatment of mental disease.

Although there are many well-written books on the subject, I have found one in particular that is especially useful: "Vitamins and Minerals: Help or Harm?" by Charles W. Marshall, Ph.D. Marshall gives a reasoned approach to a pertinent topic. His review is accurate and up-to-date. The book was reprinted in paperback in 1985 and won several awards. It is available at $10.95 from the publisher (George F. Shickley & Co., 210 West Washington Square, Philadelphia, PA 19108).

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Although there seems to be an inexhaustible variety of bridge deals, the general rules of play are constant. Here is one of those important rules, expressed in two sentences. When a contract looks easy, search for a way to go set. Then avoid it.

Declarer started with seven top tricks, and forcing out the club ace would soon provide trick number eight. The ninth trick would then apparently come from a long club trick or a successful diamond finesse, but it looked easy enough. Accordingly, declarer won the spade ace and played a club to the king. That held. A second club disclosed the bad news in that suit as East won the trick as cheaply as possible and continued spades. Now came the diamond finesse, losing, and the last spade continued. When diamonds failed to split, declarer was a trick short.

Declarer must start as soon as possible to guarantee two club tricks. His first step is to win the opening spade lead with his king and play a club to dummy's queen. If that wins, he can play a second club back to his king, and there is no division that will prevent declarer from making two tricks. When in actuality East's club ace captures the queen, declarer has a subsequent safety play. He must reach dummy and play a low club away from the 10, intending to insert the eight if East plays low. Of course, if East were to show out, he would rise with the king and play toward the 10. Irrespective of the club layout, declarer can thus assure two tricks and his contract.
