

Seminole's Charges Against Robinson May Wait Year

Clarence Robinson

By Diane Petryk
Herald Staff Writer

It may be a year or more before surrendered fugitive Clarence Eugene Robinson can be tried in Seminole County for his alleged part in the murder of reserve sheriff's deputy George Pfeil.

Assistant State Attorney Alan Robinson, no relation to the prisoner, said federal authorities "will go first" in bringing their charges.

This is partly because Robinson surrendered to federal authorities, Robinson said, and partly because the FBI charges are more current.

The assistant state attorney said he does not feel the year or so delay at this point — the Pfeil killing occurred in 1977 — will hurt the case.

Clarence Robinson turned himself in to federal authorities in Miami

June 7 after a nationwide manhunt that began when he allegedly gunned down two FBI agents outside a restaurant in Orange City on June 3.

Alan Robinson said it may be four months before there is a verdict in the shooting cases. Then there are other federal charges pending against the man who has been labeled a dangerous career criminal.

A decision on when Seminole County may be able to try Robinson here could be made within a year, the assistant state attorney said.

He can't be tried on federal and local charges simultaneously, attorney Robinson said, because "there is a significant logistical problem in shifting a prisoner back and forth."

Robinson, 38, is being held in the Orange County jail.

But while he stands trial on two charges of assaulting a federal officer, for which he faces a maximum 10-year prison sentence on each count, Seminole County authorities will not be idle, Robinson said.

They'll be busy preparing their case against the man who, according to court testimony, masterminded the 1977 robbery of the Longwood Village Pharmacy during which reserve deputy Pfeil was shot and killed.

The assistant state attorney would not say what specific charge would be brought against Robinson in connection with the pharmacy heist.

Testimony at the trial of Terry Melvin Sims, who was subsequently convicted of first degree murder in the incident and waits on Florida's death row, pointed the finger at Robinson as the man behind the robbery.

Although Robinson was apparently not present during the actual crime, Florida's felony murder statute provides murder charges may be brought against anyone involved in a felony when someone dies as a result of the crime.

The assistant state attorney said he can't reveal what Robinson may be charged with because all matters relating to the pharmacy robbery/killing were grand jury matters, which are secret.

"Until we have an opportunity to have possession of him," he said.

During the Sims trial, admitted accomplices in the pharmacy robbery, Curtis Baldree and James Halsell, turned state's evidence, testifying against Sims, who pulled the trigger against Pfeil, in exchange for lesser charges against themselves.

Baldree subsequently served two years in prison; Halsell 18 months. Both were later gunned down and killed.

Robinson is suspected in those crimes, reportedly having put the word out after they testified that Baldree and Halsell's days were numbered, according to Seminole County Sheriff's Capt. Jay Leman.

The Baldree and Halsell murders took place in Jacksonville and Brunswick, Ga., respectively.

The former witnesses against Sims were gunned down with a .45-caliber weapon. So were the FBI agents this month in Orange City. Assistant State Attorney Robinson said, "There's no doubt in my mind the FBI will do a very thorough job in cross checking every possible link."

Open Meetings

Board Cannot Hold Secret Mitchell Case Sessions

Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Circuit Court Judge Kenneth Leffler issued a "temporary restraining order" Wednesday prohibiting the Sanford Civil Service Board from conducting any sessions concerning a fired Sanford city utility department employee that are not open to the public.

But he was "reluctant" to issue a blanket order applying to all board meetings because "possible exceptions (to the sunshine law) may exist which the court cannot conceive that would warrant closed and executive sessions."

"The court is loathe to make a blanket order applicable to all except the Bernard Mitchell case," Leffler said.

Leffler noted, however, "established law is clear... members of the news media have the right to enforce where laws require meetings to be open." He added the state sunshine law requires "every part (of the meeting) must be open and the executive session (of the Civil Service Board) on May 31 was not entirely open to the public." The judge said that Sentinel Communications has the legal right to the temporary restraining order.

No hearing date has yet been set to decide the other issues in the case.

Leffler's decision came at the end of a nearly 90-minute hearing on the petition of Sentinel Communications Co., publisher of the Orlando Sentinel, which is charging in a lawsuit that the Sanford Civil Service Board barred its reporter, Leslie Kemp Poole, from attending a 55-minute executive session on May 31.

Sentinel Communications and co-plaintiff Mrs. Poole are seeking a permanent injunction against the board to halt future closed sessions, claiming closed meetings are banned under the state's "government in the sunshine" law.

And the newspaper publishing company is asking the court to levy lawyer fees and court costs against the board and its five members individually.

The May 31 meeting involved the city's request for a rehearing by the board of a case involving Mitchell, a fired utility department employee whose firing was overturned by the board on May 12. The city in requesting a rehearing on May 31 contended the board acted improperly in holding a closed door meeting on May 12 in violation of not only the state's sunshine law, but also the special legislative act under which it was created and which calls for open meetings of the board.

At the May 31 hearing, City Attorney Bill Colbert warned the board that if it went into a closed door meeting, the members individually could be charged with violating the sunshine law and could be prosecuted for that misdemeanor. The board ignored his advice by voting to go into executive session in the City Commission conference room adjacent to the City Commission Chambers at city hall.

The Sentinel introduced into evidence certified minutes of the Civil Service Board noting the board not only held executive sessions on May 12 and May 31, but also on March 10 in another matter concerning Mitchell.

Also introduced into evidence with the approval of Mack N. Cleveland Jr., special legal counsel for the board, were portions of the civil service law and the board's rules and regulations requiring its meetings be held in the City Commission meeting room and open to the public.

All five board members — Dr. John Darby, Dr. Luis Perez, Gordon Frederick, Don Jones and William McQuatters — were present and two, Frederick and Darby, were called to testify by Sentinel attorney David Evans.

Under oath, Darby, the board's chairman, testified the board has held "executive sessions" for the past 15 years that he has been a member "to deliberate among ourselves."

"If anyone had really wanted to come in, they could have," Darby said. He insisted that the board could more easily deliberate while sitting closer together in the conference room than they could scattered out over 30 feet at the table in the city commission meeting room.

In Lake Mary

RCA Seeks 748-Home Plan OK

A zoning change to permit the development of 748 housing units on a 222-acre tract will be considered by the Lake Mary City Commission at a 7:30 p.m. meeting today at city hall.

Residential Communities of America (RCA) is requesting a change in zoning from agricultural use to single family residential on 138 acres of its property at Rantoul Lane and State Road 46A (West 25th Street) and from agricultural to R-3 multiple family district on 86 acres.

Preliminary plans for the development call for 348 single family homes on individual lots and 400 "attached single family units," known as golf villas. The city's planning and zoning commission has recommended approval of the rezoning.

With the announcement in early April that this development, the largest of its type in Lake Mary, came word from the city of Sanford which supplies Lake Mary with water that Lake Mary should begin preparing for its own water supply.

Sanford officials expressed concern that the city's water reserves will be depleted if Lake Mary keeps up its rate of growth.

Officials of RCA are expected to report to Lake Mary officials tonight on how it plans to assist the city with acquiring a water supply. At a meeting of city officials and developers who are proposing new construction in the city, an RCA representative said his firm will make a proposal to the city.

Mayor Walter Sorenson is also expected to report to the commission that the county is willing to serve part of the city, especially some new developments, with a water supply. Sorenson discussed the matter with County Commissioner Bob Sturm recently.

Officers of Storer Cablevision are slated to appear to explain recent increases in rates to city subscribers.

In other business at today's meeting, the commission will decide whether to approve a plat of Lake Bingham Woods for construction on a 22-acre parcel south of Main Road and east of Second Road near Seminole Community College.

Thirty-one homesites are planned in the project.

The commission will also discuss a job description for the city manager position and Sorenson is to appoint members to a committee to prepare a job classification and pay plan.

In authorizing the appointment, the City Commission two weeks ago agreed that the committee should include City Treasurer Madeleine Minns, Sorenson, a citizen of the community, one city commissioner and one city employee.

Goat Lady

Already a half hour late turning herself in to start serving her 30-day sentence Wednesday, goat-keeping Ingeborg Morris, flanked by her attorney Tom Greene, stops to talk with television reporters outside the Seminole County jail to insist once again her 36 pygmy goats are not livestock. Livestock are not permitted by zoning regulations covering Mrs. Morris' residence at 2331 Oak Drive in the Lake Brantley subdivision in Forest City. And that's what has gotten Mrs. Morris in trouble the past two years. Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize ordered Mrs. Morris to report to jail.

5-Year Court Fight Resolved

Mertz Drainage Ditch Done

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County has met a court-imposed deadline of installing a drainage ditch around the 11-acre home of Harold E. Mertz in Sweetwater Club, a Seminole County official said.

Today is the deadline set by Seminole Circuit Court Judge Robert McGregor and County Attorney Nikki Clayton said the ditch is substantially completed.

Construction of the runoff ditch concludes a five-year legal battle between the founder of Publisher's Clearinghouse and the county.

When Mertz bought the property at 131 Variety Tree Circle from Everette Huskey, developer of Sweetwater Club, he was under the impression it had a lake, he testified in court.

After Mertz returned to the property and found that the lake was actually a sinkhole, he spent $35,000 to construct a vinyl-lined pond and brook on the site.

In 1978 as Magnolia Service Corp. was developing property adjacent to the Mertz property in Wekiva Hunt Club, a coffer dam was breached by a contractor and the water behind the dam cascaded onto Mertz's property pouring silt and sand into the man-made lake and destroying the alterations Mertz had made.

Mertz filed suit shortly after that against Magnolia Service Corp. and Seminole County.

The county accepted a cash settlement from Magnolia and assumed total responsibility for the suit so that Magnolia would be allowed to continue development of additional property.

McGregor made his initial ruling in 1981, giving the county six months to construct the ditch around the Mertz property. The county appealed to the 5th District Court of Appeal in Daytona Beach. That appeal was rejected in May 1982 and the state Supreme Court also refused to hear the case in December.

McGregor reinstated the six-month deadline in January.

The ditch, designed by the Sanford engineering firm Porter, Conklin and Holmes, carries water collected from a 200-acre drainage basin and diverts it around the Mertz property into a stream on the other side of the property.

Construction of the ditch cost $72,480 and engineering fees pushed the total cost of the project past $80,000, county officials said.

The county has claimed that McGregor's ruling could upset current land management regulations pertaining to drainage.

The county claimed four sinkholes on the Mertz property were recharge areas and by filling them with vinyl Mertz had altered the natural drainage pattern in the area.

Currently, developers must hold runoff water in retention areas and then release it gradually into natural drainage systems.

County officials have speculated that the Mertz ruling could force developers to keep retention water on their own property or acquire extensive drainage easements.

Ironically, the Mertz property was placed on the real estate market several months ago at a price of $4.5 million.

Mertz has had several battles with neighbors from Wekiva Hunt Club over actions he's taken including the placement of a strand of barbed-wire fence atop an eight-foot masonry wall that separates the Mertz property from Wekiva Hunt Club.

Seminole County commissioners ordered Mertz to remove the barbed wire last year.

NATION

Senators Likely To Give Themselves A Pay Raise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senators, coming to grips with the issue of their pay, appear ready to vote themselves a raise and delay until 1984 putting a cap on how much outside income they can earn, a GOP leadership source says.

The leadership aide said the senators, scheduled to vote on the pay issue today, are likely to compromise and give themselves a raise to $69,800 annually on July 1 and then limit outside income, which mostly comes from speechmaking, to 30 percent of their salary beginning in January 1984.

This compromise would bring the senators into line with the House and would reverse last week's vote, in which the senators voted not to raise their current $60,662 wage and to put a limit on outside earned income.

Sirhan Wants To Go Home

SOLEDA, Calif. (UPI) — A clean-shaven and calm Sirhan Sirhan told the state parole board he was remorseful about the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and pleaded for an "unlikely" parole so he could return to the Arab world.

The parole board, officially known as the California Board of Prison Terms, completed its nine-hour hearing Wednesday night and today's concluding session was to begin with closed-door deliberations followed by an open meeting.

The parole board has four options; to release Sirhan on an approved parole plan, which a prison spokesman said was "unlikely;" reaffirm his Sept. 1, 1984, parole date; set a future date, or deny parole and set another hearing in one to three years.

Eagle Poachers Hunted

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (UPI) — Interior Secretary James Watt and two Sioux tribe leaders displayed 23 carcasses of "our national emblem" and announced a crackdown on "blatant commercial killing" of bald eagles — most often by other Indians.

Watt announced Wednesday 50 people in a nine-state area would be arrested in a U.S. Fish and Wildlife crackdown he called "Operation Eagle." Three of the suspects were from south Florida.

Watt said bald eagles, the national emblem and an endangered species, were sold for as much as $1,000 per carcass, and the feathers were used to fashion artifacts resembling those made by American Indians.

WEATHER

NATIONAL WEATHER: The eastern seaboard sweltered in pressure cooker temperatures today for the fifth day running and air pollution increased the discomfort in New York and Washington. A warming trend threatened more snowmelt trouble in the West. A brief, intense rainstorm in southern Indiana Wednesday triggered a chain reaction collision involving a truck and four cars on Interstate 65 in which six people — all occupants of one of the cars — were killed. The National Weather Service warned thunderstorms could sweep the central Rockies and central high Plains, stepping up flood problems. Melting snow along Nevada's Carson River was expected to fill the Lahontan Reservoir east of Carson City today and cause flooding downstream by the weekend. Unseasonably hot, stale weather gave the nation's capital its worst case of air pollution in two years.

AREA FORECAST: Mostly sunny today with highs in the low 90s. Light mostly northeast wind. Tonight fair and calm with lows in low 70s. Friday partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of afternoon thunderstorms. Highs in the low 90s.

BOATING FORECAST: St. Augustine to Jupiter Inlet out 50 miles — Northeasterly wind around 10 knots today decreasing to less than 10 knots tonight. Wind easterly less than 10 knots Friday. Seas 2 to 3 feet. Isolated thunderstorms.

Kmart Re-opened

Source Of Fumes A Mystery

The source of irritating fumes that closed the Kmart store in Sanford Tuesday and sent four employees to the hospital remain a mystery today.

The four employees were treated for chemical bronchitis at Central Florida Regional Hospital and released.

A strange odor was detected at the store about mid-morning. By 3 p.m., some employees were complaining of irritated eyes and breathing passages. The store was closed at 3:30 p.m.

Kmart district manager John Mestan said the plumbing, air-conditioning and electrical system were checked, but the cause of the odor was not found.

After having been ventilated all night, the store re-opened Wednesday.

GRAND JURY MEETS

The Seminole County grand jury investigating complaints that sheriff's department employees stole property from people they were evicting was meeting this morning in closed session at the Seminole County Courthouse in Sanford.

Last week, the grand jury indicted three former sheriff's department employees, including two former deputies and a former communications officer on charges of grand theft. One of the indictments also faces a charge of perjury. The grand jury was expected to return its final report today.

Alachua County State Attorney Eugene Whitworth presented evidence to the grand jury after a governor-commissioned investigation into allegations that 40-50 sheriff's department employees were involved in a theft ring.

But Sheriff John Polk, who said last week he thought the three indictments would be the end of it, said he "knew in his heart and mind" it could never have been that many. He said the three indictments were a vindication of his department.

STRONG ARM ROBBERY

A Sanford woman was knocked to the ground when a man grabbed her purse as she was leaving the Pizza Hut restaurant on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford at about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, police report. The victim, Dorothy Waller of 125 East Woodland, lost $75.

TOOLS TAKEN

A cardboard box containing about $115 in tools and assorted building materials was stolen from the garage at 357 Ridgewood Street, Altamonte Springs, between 3:30 p.m. Saturday and 10:15 a.m. Monday, police report.

The tools are the property of Juan Antonio Cabrera, 430 Alderwood St., Winter Springs, who is moving into the house at that address.

VANDALISM

Someone painted all the ceilings and walls of a Longwood residence with black spray paint, police said. Sami Elmaari of Altamonte Springs, told police the residence he rents at 118 Gum Street, Longwood, was spray painted between 10 a.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Monday. There were no signs of forced entry.

DUI ARRESTS

The following persons were arrested in Seminole County for driving under the influence (DUI):
-Jorge Charles Counella, 25, of Rose Drive and Sanford Avenue, Sanford, was arrested at 8:44 p.m. Monday at Wilma Avenue and Bay Street in Longwood. Police said they stopped Counella, southbound on County Road 427 at Applewood for driving a motorcycle with an expired tag.

-Eric William Akina, 20, of 1904 Poinsetta Lane, Maitland, at 11:55 p.m. Tuesday at Esplanada Way and State Road 436 in Casselberry. Police said they observed Akina driving a vehicle that was weaving from lane to lane eastward on State Road 436 from U.S. Highway 17-92.

...Meetings In Mitchell Case Must Be Open

Darby said there was no one posted at the door of the conference room to keep people out and no signs were posted announcing an executive session. "If the door (to the conference room) was locked, I don't know anything about it," he said.

Darby said an Evening Herald reporter came to the doorway of the conference room and Frederick spoke to her about the meeting, but he couldn't recall what Frederick said. Darby said he had not authorized Frederick to speak for him.

Frederick said he told the Evening Herald reporter (Donna Estes) that if she got out of the way the door to the meeting room would close by itself.

Frederick reiterated the opinion that he gave to his colleagues on the Civil Service Board on May 31 that the board has the right to closed meetings because of a Florida First District Court of Appeal decision in 1975 upholding that right for similar boards.

Evans insisted, however, that a later

Supreme Court decision concerning the state's Public Service Commission while not referring directly to the earlier appellate court decision affirmed the law that meetings of government boards must be open to the public.

In addition, Evans said a First District Court of Appeals decision is not binding on the courts in Seminole County, but a state Supreme Court decision is.

Evans also pointed to numerous attorney general opinions that all the meetings of public bodies must be entirely open to the public, not only for a final decision but during all deliberations and discussions leading to the decision.

Cleveland insisted that "no one attempted to enter the room (where the executive session was being held) and no one was barred from admission into the executive session."

"The labors of the Civil Service Board are not unlike those of a petit jury," Cleveland said. "Their labors are quasi-judicial." He added that although Supreme Court decisions since the appellate court decision may differ, the specific appellate court decision has not been overturned.

He said as long as that specific decision is there and it is not addressed by the Supreme Court, it is law and closed door sessions can be held.

Evans said while there is no report the board physically picked up and removed anyone from the meeting, "the clear intent was that this would be an executive session."

In declining to expand his order, Leffler said Wednesday's hearing was a "rushed type hearing" and it was "as far as the court ought to go today."

Cleveland, earlier, noted he was retained to represent the board at 10 a.m. Wednesday for the 2 p.m. hearing and hadn't had time to confer in depth with his clients, nor time to do much research on the issue.

The Sentinel filed its lawsuit against the Civil Service Board last Thursday.

At a meeting earlier Wednesday, the board selected Cleveland as its attorney and rescheduled the city's rehearing on the Mitchell case for 8 p.m. June 28.

The board was created by a special act of the Florida Legislature in 1944. The law creating the board has been amended several times since then. The board performs various functions, including hearing appeals from city employees on disciplinary actions taken against them by city supervisors, preparing lists of persons eligible for various city jobs and approving the classifications of all positions in the city.

Two of the five board members are appointed by the city commission for two-year terms, two are elected by the city employees for two-year terms and the fifth member is selected by the other four and serves a one-year term. Board members receive no compensation.

Their actions are appealable only to the courts and the only persons with authority to remove a civil service board member, according to the law, is the civil service board itself.

Insurer Unfairly Fought Tax?

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Senate Appropriations Chairman Harry Johnston has accused Blue Cross-Blue Shield of lying in a letter to its policyholders that may have helped kill a $48 million insurance premium tax.

Johnston called the letter "intellectually dishonest" and "irresponsible," but said it has been effective because he has received dozens of telephone calls from angry policyholders and the proposed half-a-percent tax on premiums collected by Florida domestic insurance companies probably is dead now.

Budget talks have collapsed and the two houses are developing budgets that don't require new taxes, he noted.

The West Palm Beach lawyer charged that Jacksonville-based Blue Cross falsely claimed the tax would cost it $6 million a year and ignored the fact that Florida is the only southeastern state not already collecting an insurance premium tax.

He also contended that the company has fought efforts by the Legislature over the last several years to control health care costs and said that Bill Flaherty, the company's president, is paid an excessive salary, $180,000 a year.

Dave Fountain, a Blue Cross spokesman, said nothing in the letter is false because at the time it was written, the Senate was considering a 1 percent tax, not the half-a-percent, and Blue Cross would have paid $6 million under a 1 percent tax.

Fountain also said that Johnston and other Senate leaders had decided to pass the tax without holding a public hearing to find out what the impact on the state insurance companies would be and if there is any confusion over the impact, it's their fault.

House-Senate budget talks are at an impasse now, but before the negotiations broke down, Johnston outlined a $250 million package of spending and taxes, including the premium tax, which would produce $48 million.

The company "intentionally failed, in my opinion, to accurately inform its policyholders of the proposed tax," Johnston said. It would have to be carrying $2.4 billion in premiums in Florida to pay $6 million in taxes under the proposed tax.

"They did not misrepresent the facts," Fountain said. "The statement was based on what was being proposed at the time."

Fountain denied that Blue Cross has fought health cost containment efforts and noted that Flaherty is a member of the Florida Hospital Cost Containment Board.

He denied that Flaherty's pay is excessive, contending that the average salary for the president of companies the size of Blue Cross is $259,000 a year.

Countdown Begins For Shuttle Blastoff

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The streamlined 40-hour countdown began today for Saturday morning's launch of space shuttle Challenger with a record crew of five — four men and the first American woman to go into orbit.

The countdown clocks started ticking down on schedule at 3 a.m. with a "call to stations" for ground crewmen who have been through this six times before.

Astronauts Sally Ride, Robert Crippen, Frederick Hauck, John Fabian and Norman Thagard are already adjusting to the early-to-bed, early-to-rise schedule for their six days in orbit. Wakeup today was set at 5 a.m. It will be 3:13 a.m. Saturday.

Although Ms. Ride is the first American woman to venture into orbit, two Soviet women have done it. Today is the 20th anniversary of the launch of Valentina Tereshkova, the first woman in space.

The Challenger crew flew to the spaceport from Houston Wednesday, landing in three jets on the same three-mile runway the ship will return to June 24.

Deer Relocation Scrapped

MIAMI (UPI) — Wildlife officials say they will no longer attempt to relocate deer since "stress" claimed the lives of three deer rescued from the Everglades' "mercy hunt" as they traveled to their new home.

"The philosophy of the game commission is it doesn't work," said Don Holway, wildlife officer with the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. "That's why we're no longer moving deer."

He said "stress" caused the deaths of three of six deer Saturday as they were en route in a rented Hertz van from environmentalist Jack Kassewitz Jr.'s south Dade County animal farm to a small island south of Naples.

They were the last deer rescued from the "mercy kill" in the Everglades National Park's Conservation Area, which was called last July to thin out a starving and diseased herd of Florida deer whose food supply had been virtually wiped out by high water.

Kassewitz and other environmentalists launched a rescue effort to relocate some of the deer. Nineteen of the animals — six of them fawns — were rescued. All the adult deer died, either at Kassewitz's farm or at Lion Country Safari in Palm Beach County.

Graham Signs Prison Reform Bill Into Law

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A measure making far-reaching changes in the state's criminal justice system has been signed into law by Gov. Bob Graham.

Attorney General Jim Smith called it a rational and courageous program for dealing with the state's prison overcrowding problems and providing guidance for trial judges.

The bill, signed into law Wednesday, strengthens probationary programs, allows for the emergency release of inmates with less than 30 days remaining on their sentence when the prison system reaches capacity and gives the governor and Cabinet final authority for prison siting.

The bill was the second major corrections measure Graham has signed in recent days. Last week, the governor signed a sentencing guidelines bill that gives judges a narrower, more determinant range of sentences they can impose.

In its effect, the new law means more non-violent criminals will be going into community-based probation programs.

Crime Rate Dropping

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Officials say Florida citizens were a major factor in reducing the crime rate by more than 10 percent in the first three months of 1983 compared to the same period the year before.

Florida Department of Law Enforcement figures released Wednesday show that Florida's crime rate in the first quarter of this year dropped by 10.3 percent from the same period in 1982.

"It is the general feeling of law enforcement in the state that one of the major factors leading to continued crime reduction has been the willingness of the general public to get involved and to support crime prevention programs," said FDLE commissioner Robert R. Dempsey.

The decline in serious crime for January through March 1983 followed a drop of 4.8 percent for all of 1982. In recent years, crime reductions in one period have been followed by upsurges in subsequent years, said Dempsey.

FPL will pay you up to $600 cash if you replace your money-wasting old air conditioning system with an energy-efficient central air conditioner or heat pump.

You get cash back on your installation now, and your new system will also pay you by lowering your cooling costs now and for years to come. In addition, FPL will pay you $177 more if you have a contractor add a heat recovery unit to your new central air conditioner or heat pump. By using waste heat from your air conditioning system, this unit can almost eliminate water heating costs during the air conditioning season.

For qualifying details, contact any air conditioning dealer displaying the Watt-Wise™ Products Program symbol, or call FPL's Watt-Wise Line for a list of dealers participating in this program. And an FPL representative will personally check to see that the completed job meets our rigid standards.

This program benefits you and all our customers. Because it costs less than the oil necessary to generate the electricity wasted by inefficient cooling systems.

So pick up the phone. And pick up as much as $600.

We're working hard at being the kind of power company you want.

A free Home Energy Audit will provide more information. To arrange for one, send us this coupon or call the Watt-Wise Line weekdays 8 to 5.

Court Upholds Windfall Oil Tax

The Supreme Court has unanimously upheld the constitutionality of the windfall oil profits tax, the largest tax ever imposed on a single industry.

The tax levies a 30 to 70 percent excise tax on the difference between the free-market price of oil and the price in 1979, before oil was deregulated. Windfall profits were taxed as a part of the bargain struck by Congress to deregulate the oil industry. President Carter proposed deregulation as a means to break the grip of OPEC, to promote energy conservation, to increase incentives for oil exploration and to make oil more plentiful. It has succeeded on all counts.

But a federal district judge in Wyoming ruled that the windfall profits tax was unconstitutional because it exempted oil from the Arctic Circle region in Alaska. The judge said this violated a constitutional guarantee that "all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States."

It was this ruling that the Supreme Court struck down. The oil tax does not violate the uniformity clause, the court said.

This is good news for the federal treasury. The windfall profits tax has already added $30 billion in revenues, since 1980. It is expected to bring in another $30 billion in revenues, since 1980. It is expected to bring in another $30 billion in the next six years.

This is far less than the $200 billion predicted when the bill was passed. But deregulation of oil increased production, as it was expected to do. An oil glut developed worldwide. This lowered oil prices from historic highs, cutting windfall profits — and tax revenues.

The Independent Petroleum Association protested the Supreme Court's decision: "The continuance of this tax will only make it that much more difficult for domestic producers to find oil; it means we'll continue our dependence on imported oil for a longer period in the future."

Americans are now much less dependent on imported oil than they were before deregulation. Imports totaled more than 8 million barrels a day by the end of 1979. They are now less than 5 million barrels a day. Meanwhile, as a result of higher prices, drilling for oil in this country set new records in 1980 and was up even more in 1981. After a decade of decline, oil production stabilized in the lower 48 states.

The threat of the United States being blackmailed by the OPEC cartel has been greatly reduced by the deregulation of oil.

Americans have broken OPEC's hold by paying free market prices for oil. That took courage, but it showed that, given the chance, the free market ultimately will help the consumer.

But the burden on drivers and consumers has been heavy. It was right for the people of the United States to share in the profit the oil companies reaped from deregulation.

Oil deregulation and the windfall profits tax remain a model of sane government action and a lasting legacy of the Carter administration.

CBS Is Vindicated

The recent verdict returned in Los Angeles in the jury trial of a slander suit against "60 Minutes" and CBS anchorman Dan Rather was a good one, defending the freedom of the press.

The Rather report was an investigation of insurance fraud. He named a Los Angeles physician as one of those implicated at a clinic. The physician said his name had been forged on the document which Rather showed to the television audience. Rather testified he had complete faith in the authenticity of the document and that due care had been taken to check the facts.

The jury heard all the evidence and arguments and held for CBS in this case.

That does not get CBS off the hook on other lawsuits, such as the one filed by retired Gen. William Westmoreland. He seeks $120 million in damages, charging that CBS libeled him by reporting that, while commanding U.S. forces in Vietnam in the late 1960s, he conspired to falsify reports on enemy strength and to deceive his superiors in Washington and the American people.

The power of a news program like "60 Minutes," which is the most-watched program on U.S. television, is awesome. Its very success in attracting a large audience compels its producers to seek sensational subjects, in order not to lose that audience. The pressure is intense.

The power of the press (whether printed or electronic) must be used responsibly.

BERRY'S WORLD

"I wanted, 'My son, the doctor,' or, 'My son, the lawyer.' What did I get? 'My son, the skyscraper scaler.'"

By Jane Casselberry

The Casselberry Senior Center in Secret Lake Park, open to all Seminole County senior citizens, will continue activities during the summer. Swimming and Hobbycraft classes have been added to the already full program of sewing, art, square and line dancing and exercise. The swimming is scheduled from 1-2 p.m. on Thursday. A van will be available at the center to transport swimmers to the city's Wirz pool.

Pauline Stevens of Sanford, an RSVP volunteer, is the Hobbycrafts teacher and the class is at 10 a.m. each Tuesday.

A beginner's workshop in typewriter keyboarding and computer programming will be offered this summer at the University of Central Florida.

The daily sessions, which begin July 18 for two weeks, are designed for anyone from the fifth grade up, and will feature hands-on experience with electric typewriters and microcomputers.

The main objective of the workshop is to introduce students to proper procedures to follow on the two machines, which they will most likely be using during their school years, according to Dr. Michael Hynes, UCF professor of education and one of the two workshop instructors. For further information on the workshop, call the UCF College of Extended Studies at 275-2123.

Looking for a little culture this summer? The Council of Arts and Sciences' Publications Department has compiled the Summer Catalog of Cultural Classes listing courses in painting, music, drama, sculpting, photography, dance and many other art disciplines. The catalog is free courtesy of the council and may be ordered by sending a self-addressed, stamped legal-sized envelope to Summer Catalog of Cultural Classes, in care of Council of Arts and Sciences, 1900 N. Mills Ave., Suite 2, Orlando, FL, 32803.

The council is presently compiling its 1983-84 Artist Registry, a comprehensive listing of visual, performing and literary artists in Central Florida. Determined to list as many artistically talented individuals in the vicinity as possible, the council is issuing a plea for artists of all disciplines to call about listing information at 843-2787 (THE-ARTS). There is no charge for the listing.

Deadline for entries in the Artist Registry is July 30.

Construction on the new Seminole County Humane Society animal shelter at Highway 17-92 and County Home Road is progressing, but according to Helen Wolk, society president, there is still much to do before details are finished enabling the operation to move from the old facility at the Sanford Airport. The society is still struggling to meet its goal of raising $50,000 by Aug. 1 in order to receive the Edyth Bush Matching Challenge Grant and, of course, it must be complete and in operation by Oct. 1 in order to honor the land lease it has with the county.

It is estimated that monthly operating expenses will rise in excess of the present $5,000 a month cost to $8,000 per month expenditures in the new expanded and improved facility.

ROBERT WAGMAN 'Wait For Reagan' A GOP Theme

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Many Republican insiders thought it was the long-awaited signal that President Reagan was off and running for re-election. But apparently it was too clear a signal — and so the White House canceled a July 4 presidential visit to New Hampshire.

Will Reagan run? GOP party chairman Sen. Paul Laxalt was repeatedly asked that question during his recent cross-country visits with party stalwarts. But while the White House response to the question has been a knowing smile and a shrug, it's reported that Laxalt's private answer was a bit different.

Laxalt reportedly told party insiders that he personally believed that Reagan would run, but that they could expect no formal announcement until at least Labor Day. However, he cited July 4 as the key date on which to learn of Reagan's plans.

As Laxalt reportedly put it, party leaders could be sure that Reagan was running if, by July 4, the White House had given no firm statements of non-candidacy. However, a formal announcement would almost surely not come before summer's end.

In light of Laxalt's remarks, many insiders viewed the announcement that the president would spend July 4 in New Hampshire — the first primary state — as the signal they'd been waiting for. Word spread through Republican ranks: Reagan is running.

But it seems that it was a clearer signal than Reagan was ready to give, and so the visit was scrubbed.

Despite this turnaround, there is ample evidence that Reagan will run. Recently, his top advisors have begun in earnest to assemble a campaign staff.

Insiders say that White House chief of staff Jim Baker had hoped to assemble a campaign organization headed by former Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis, with longtime GOP political operative Stu Spencer as the No. 2 man in charge of day-to-day political activities. Lyn Nofziger — the former White House political affairs director, who is highly regarded by conservatives — would be a chief advisor and director of communications.

Most party members and White House insiders think highly of Lewis, and he would seem to be acceptable to all party factions — including the conservatives, who fear that the GOP's moderate wing might dominate Reagan's re-election effort. Having Lewis at the top would at least partially allay this fear.

While Lewis seems to want the job of campaign chief, he might not be able to accept it. He left the Cabinet to head the troubled Warner-Ames cable television operation — a company in such deep trouble that, as Lewis has told the White House, he will be unable to leave anytime soon. It reportedly was suggested that Lewis start as campaign head in February; however, Lewis said that he would be unable to work full-time on the campaign much before the GOP convention in July, if then. Whether he will still get the job is now seen as an open question.

JACK ANDERSON

Nuclear Plant Security Inadequate

WASHINGTON — Incidents of sabotage in the nation's nuclear power plants have been increasing ominously. So far, the acts of sabotage have been discovered before any harm was done, but the potential for disaster is terrifying.

In this situation, you might expect the Nuclear Regulatory Commission — the government's nuclear safety watchdog — to take vigorous action to strengthen security at nuclear plants. This would reassure the American public that thousands of lives won't be endangered by terrorist gangs, disgruntled employees or deranged troublemakers.

Well, the NRC has taken action, after a fashion. It issued a bulletin warning plant operators to be on the alert for sabotage.

But the bureaucrats have tried to lull the public by giving the incidents of clear sabotage a soothingly euphemistic label: "possibly deliberate destructive acts." This sounds more like a 3-year-old's temper tantrum than the malevo-lent act of a terrorist that could lead to a nuclear meltdown.

What is far worse, though, is that the NRC has determinedly kept secret how ill-prepared nuclear plants may be to defend themselves against saboteurs. One reason they could be sitting ducks is that the NRC's safety regulations are ridiculous. And that, of course, is the reason for all the secrecy. The agency doesn't want the public to know how ludicrous its anti-sabotage standards are.

According to the NRC's rules, every plant must have a minimum of five guards on hand to defend against "several" attackers. But the agency has taken great pains to cover up its definition of the key word, "several."

For example, in 1981 the NRC's Atomic Safety and Licensing Appeal Board issued an opinion approving the security plan for the controversial Diablo Canyon nuclear plant in California. But the panel — and later the commissioners themselves — classified as secret the number of attackers it expects the power plant operators to defend against. Each reference to the number of attackers was deleted from the board's opinion.

The commission even swore to secrecy lawyers for the California governor's office and the San Luis Obispo Mothers for Peace, who had challenged Diablo's security plan as inadequate. The lawyers were forbidden to tell their clients the secret number.

Why all this sensitivity about a mere number? The NRC's official position is that the number of attackers is "safeguards information" that could give terrorists damaging information.

But the real reason is that the NRC has something to hide — namely, the absurdly low level of protection it requires of its nuclear plant license holders.

According to classified documents seen by my associate John Dillon, the number is — are you ready? — four.

The NRC's internal documents define the attacking group as a "small external group (two to three people), armed with legal weapons, with the possible assistance of a plant employee."

A handful of rent-a-cops — or even a troop of Girl Scouts — might be able to handle two or three intruders, who may or may not have a buddy inside the plant. But what could the minimum guard force of five do against a dozen or more professional terrorists armed with submachine guns and bazookas? The NRC doesn't say.

Oddly enough, the NRC itself recognizes in an internal memo that "the major threat of sabotage to a nuclear plant is associated with the insider or plant employee who has access to vital areas." Another memo warns that current regulations "do not provide enough protection against threats by insiders."

Footnote: An NRC official said the agency is working to improve them.

ROBERT WALTERS OSHA Buckles Down

WASHINGTON (NEA) — After several years of indifference — if not hostility — toward its mandate to protect the nation's workers, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration is belatedly displaying some enthusiasm for its mission.

Throughout the first two years of President Reagan's tenure, OSHA appeared to be more concerned about catering to the concerns of insensitive employers than adhering to the 1970 law that established the agency and directed it "to assure every working man and woman in the nation safe and healthful working conditions."

In recent months, however, a flurry of activity has produced a series of significant initiatives designed to limit worker exposure to toxic, carcinogenic and otherwise hazardous materials often found in manufacturing facilities.

After considerable prodding on the part of public interest organizations, congressional committees, labor unions and even the federal courts, OSHA has moved to reduce allowable workplace levels of substances such as cotton dust, inorganic arsenic and ethylene oxide.

In addition, the agency reportedly is preparing to issue strict new proposed standards governing occupational exposure to two other deadly materials — asbestos and benzene.

The benzene issue vividly illustrates the need for forceful federal regulatory action to protect workers from the hazards posed by the myriad lethal compounds that have become commonplace in many industrial plants.

In 1977, OSHA issued an emergency temporary standard reducing the allowable workplace air concentration of benzene from 10 parts per million to 1 ppm. "Clinical and epidemiological data conclusively establish that employee exposure to benzene presents a leukemia hazard," the agency said at the time. "Therefore, a grave danger currently exists."

But the American Petroleum Institute, the Chemical Manufacturers Association and other industry groups successfully challenged OSHA's action in a civil suit filed.

JEFFREY HART

Reagan More Popular

In a recent column in the New York Times, Mr. James Reston casually described President Reagan's record so far as "embarrassing," without further qualification or explanation, as if all intelligent people would agree as a matter of course.

Some embarrassment. Albert M. Wojniłowicz, economist for the First Boston Corporation, is forecasting sharp declines in interest rates and rising prosperity. Henry Kaufman of Solomon Brothers, Wall Street's favorite guru, has recovered from his pessimism of a year ago and is putting out similar predictions of a bull market.

All of this is based upon the fact that we are in the midst of the single most sustained upthrust in stock prices since World War II.

During the last week of May, volume on the New York Stock Exchange approached 100 million shares per day, and the Dow Jones Average finished at 1,218.14, up 28.12 points, a rise of 88 percent since last August.

The news on smaller capitalization issues on the over-the-counter market is even more startling; they have doubled since last summer, as smaller investors become more venturesome.

As Reagan put it somewhat ruefully in my presence recently, we don't hear much talk about "Reaganomics" any more. The issue has disappeared. The reason? A tight money policy at the Fed has beaten inflation down to less than 5 percent levels, giving investors confidence that their profits will be worth something in the near future. And second, Reagan's tax cuts, modest enough, have given investors some cash to invest. The term "voodoo economics" has not been heard much lately.

Reagan has also been held to be ignorant of foreign affairs, and yet he orchestrated a remarkable Western performance at Williamsburg. Particularly in lining up the Western leaders in support of the deployment of a U.S. intermediate-range missile in Europe. I quote from one report:

"Even French officials and correspondents, who regard such meetings as something of a diplomatic match and have sniped in the past at Mr. Reagan's inexperience in foreign affairs, said he had dispelled his 'cowboy' image. They talked of him as a 'very clever player' who had held his own in long private conversations with the other leaders and acquitted himself well as a fair and skillful moderator.

"In the long economic discussion held this morning without aides, the president had called on the others in turn, using their first names. He kept notes with a blue ballpoint pen in a neat hand, listing them on his pad as 'Amintore' for Prime Minister Amintore Fanfani of Italy or 'Yasu' for Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone of Japan."

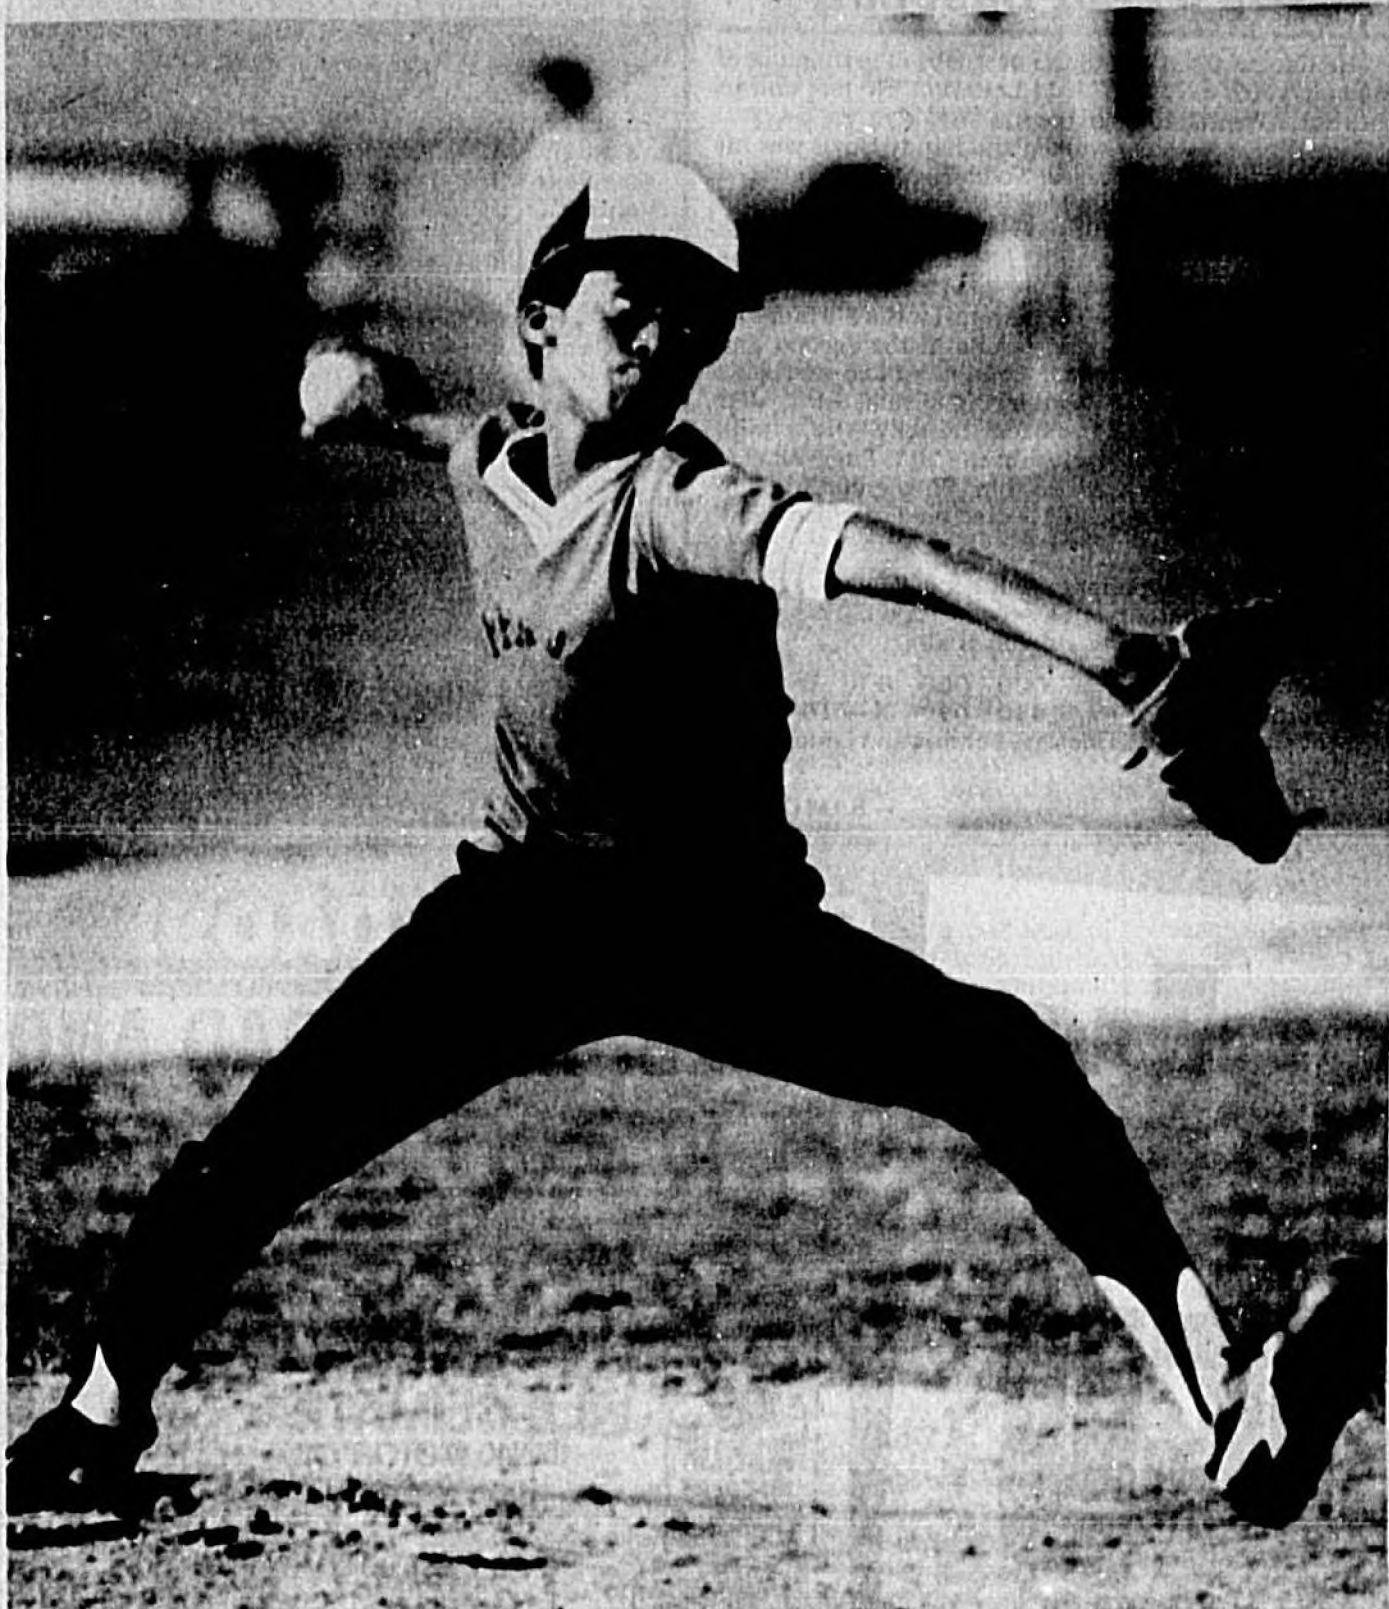

The endorsement of the Pershing II by all of the Western leaders at Williamsburg may have killed the nuclear freeze as an issue, even as the boom is removing the economy as a Democratic issue. Thus Alexander Cockburn and James Ridgeway, two sophisticated writers on the left, observe in the Village Voice that "only a year after the mighty rally last year in New York City, the freeze movement is now, in the estimate of a few realistic leaders, a ragtag parade of good intentions." The Soviets were never interested. The Catholic bishops and most Democratic candidates — with the notable exception of John Glenn — leaped aboard a transitory fashion with a life-span of two years.

In politics, the unpredictable can happen — indeed, it is predictable that it will — but Reagan on the record seems to be in excellent condition right now. He could always face something like the Iranian hostage crisis that helped to defeat Carter, but that is less likely simply because the ayatollahs of the world know that Reagan would handle it in an entirely different way than Carter did. There are indications that the Soviets are prepared to sell Qaddafi ground-to-air missiles capable of knocking down airliners — but, if Qaddafi tries that, he could have a big problem on his hands.

So the winds are fair for 1984, and the seas relatively calm, and if that is an "embarrassment," as Mr. Reston claims to think, well, many presidents would like to have been thus embarrassed.

A determined Jeff Blake fires away at Adcock Roofing. The 12-year-old Poppa Jay's righthander allowed just four hits and struck out nine as Poppa Jay's won their second straight Little Major League City Championship.

Blake Wings Poppa Jay's To Major Title

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

If there were ever any doubts that, other than Willie "Sugar Tex" McCloud, Poppa Jay's didn't have any pitching, they were put to rest Wednesday night at Fort Mellon Park.

Jeff Blake got the call against Adcock Roofing to start the second game of the "City Series" and he tossed a three-hitter as Poppa Jay's cruised to a 11-2 victory. It was the second straight Sanford Little Major League City Championship for Poppa Jay's and the second straight runner-up trophy for Adcock Roofing.

"It was the best ball game I've ever seen Jeff pitch," Poppa Jay's manager Sylvester "Slick" Franklin, Jr. said. "He got a little shaky in the fifth inning, but he got through it all right."

In the two games of the City Series, Adcock Roofing managed a total of two runs on just four hits off Poppa Jay's pitching.

Adcock Roofing threatened to take an early lead in the first inning, but came away empty. With two outs, Adcock Roofing had runners on second and third but John Bryant's grounder to second was handled by Steve Johnson who threw on to first for the final out.

Poppa Jay's broke the game wide open with nine runs in the bottom of the first, taking advantage of the same shoddy Adcock Roofing defense which committed 11 errors in Monday night's game. With one out, Leo Ford drew a walk and went to second on a wild pitch. Blake then drilled a double off Adcock starter Bryant to knock in Ford for what turned out to be the game-winning RBI. McCloud followed with a double to left to chase home Blake for a 2-0 lead. Rick Jones then drew a walk and two straight errors enabled one run to score. Mike Gibson then reached on a sfielder's choice to load the bases and Demetris Presley and Steve Johnson both walked to force in two runs for a 6-0 Poppa Jay's lead.

Adcock Roofing then lifted Bryant and put in Patrick Dougherty with still only one out in the inning and the bases full. Dougherty gave up a single to Ford and walked two more batters before getting out of the inning as Poppa Jay's increased its lead to a comfortable 9-0.

After the first inning, Dougherty pitched pretty well, allowing only two runs and three hits.

Adcock Roofing scored its first run of the series in the top of the third, after going scoreless for eight straight innings. "Steady Eddie" Charles reached on an error to lead off, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on a balk when Blake delivered a pitch without having his foot on the pitching rubber.

'Sugar Tex' — MVP

Poppa Jay's took a 10-1 lead in the bottom of the third as McCloud ripped a solo homer to right center. McCloud came back to clout another solo shot in the bottom of the fifth, giving him three hits and four RBI for the game. Combined with his one-hit, 14-strikeout pitching performance on Monday night and his fireworks at the plate Wednesday night, McCloud was a unanimous choice for the City Series Most Valuable Player trophy for the second year in a row. For the two games, McCloud was 3 for 6 at the plate with five RBI.

Blake allowed only one hit after the first inning, struck out nine and walked only four. Adcock Roofing stranded eight baserunners Wednesday night and a total of 18 baserunners in the two game series. Adcock Roofing committed four errors in the second game for a two-game total of 15.

"I'm proud of all of you guys for the effort you made this year," Franklin told his team after the game. "And, for you guys coming back next year, I want you to do even better."

Malone Wins 3rd MVP In 5 Years; Cummings Is Top Rookie

NEW YORK (UPI) — For showing his followers the way to the promised land, Moses was recognized as a leader.

Moses Malone, the overpowering center who helped the Philadelphia 76ers finally end years of frustration with an NBA title this year, Wednesday was named the league's Most Valuable Player for the 1982-83 season. It was the third time in five years he has won the award.

Coupled with his selection as the playoff MVP, Malone, who was acquired from the Houston Rockets before the season, became the first player to win both honors in a season since Lew Alcindor (now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar) captured the two awards in 1971 with Milwaukee.

Philadelphia, with its first NBA title in 18 years, gained another honor when Bobby Jones was named recipient of the Sixth Man Award.

The Milwaukee Bucks matched the Sixers in post-season awards as guard Sidney Moncrief was selected Defensive Player of the Year and Don Nelson was made the Coach of the Year.

Other awards went to Terry Cummings of the San Diego Clippers as Rookie of the Year and Paul Westphal of the New York Knicks as Comeback Player of the Year.

In a special category, Zoltie Volchok, retiring general manager of the Seattle

NBA

SuperSonics, was named Executive of the Year by the league's general managers and owners.

Philadelphia coach Billy Cunningham, accepting for Malone, who had previous commitments, said, "Moses became a complete player in Philadelphia. He came to Philadelphia and fit in so well. When you have players like Moses and Doctor J (Julius Erving), it makes a coach's job a lot easier."

Malone, who was signed for $2.2 million per year for six years, was the league's leading rebounder with a 15.3 average, ranked fifth in scoring at 24.5 and 10th in blocked shots. He was the only player named on all 75 ballots.

Erving, who finished fifth in the MVP voting, called Jones "a dedicated pro who gives his all on the court. Whatever the final voting for the sixth man, it should not have been that close. Bobby is a super player who never tires of helping his fellow man."

Jones averaged 23.8 minutes per game off the Philadelphia bench and registered nine points and 4.6 rebounds.

Nelson guided Milwaukee to the Central Division title and scored a four-game sweep over the Boston Celtics in the playoffs. Moncrief, the Bucks' leading scorer, was also a standout on defense with 113 steals and an average of six rebounds per game in the backcourt.

Cummings, hampered by a heart problem, vowed he would return after his runaway selection as top rookie based on an average of 23.7 points and 10.8 rebounds.

"Terry Cummings will be back," he said. "I've overcome every obstacle in my way and I'm not going to stop now."

Westphal, who may not even be back with New York next season, saw the comeback award as a vindication of sorts.

"It feels really gratifying to get the award," Westphal said. "I had to change my style of play when I came to New York, so this award means I was able to adapt well."

Murphy, Bedrosian Throttle Dodgers, 3-2

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In 1982, Atlanta's Dale Murphy batted .281, hit 36 home runs, had 109 RBI, won a Gold Glove and was named National League MVP.

Last Sunday, Murphy was introduced to a 6-year-old girl at Atlanta Fulton County Stadium who had lost both arms and a leg in an accident. A nurse jokingly asked Murphy to hit a home run for the girl, and Murphy hit two that day.

Comparatively speaking, what Murphy did Wednesday night is hardly worth mentioning. All he did was hand the Los Angeles Dodgers a 3-2 loss with a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning.

With out in the ninth, Rafael Ramirez walked and pinch hitter Chris Chambliss singled. Claudell Washington then lofted a fly to center that Ken Landreaux misjudged. The ball dropped, loading the bases, and Jerry Roster singled off loser Dave Stewart's leg to tie the game 2-2.

Stewart was replaced by Tom Niedenfuer, who was greeted by Murphy's deep sacrifice fly on a 3-and-2 pitch to score Chambliss with the game-winner.

The Braves, who have not fared well against Los Angeles in a handful of games this season, moved within 2 1/2 games of the front-running Dodgers in the NL West.

"It feels good to be on the winning side once against the Dodgers," Murphy said. "In the ninth I was just trying to hit the ball to the outfield somewhere. Niedenfuer's adrenaline was flowing and the crowd was screaming and all I could do was get the bat out there. I'm just happy I was able to poke one out there."

"You don't like to say you can't get excited if there's only a few fans in the stands, but having 30,000 every night sure gets you going. We've got that in Atlanta this season and they've always had it in L.A."

Gene Garber, 2-1, who pitched two innings, got the win and Steve Bedrosian picked up his ninth save by working the ninth.

"I think Stewart was a little tired," said Dodger manager Tom Lasorda. "Both he and Tom Niedenfuer have pitched a lot. But you have to go with the guys who have been doing the job."

"It's always tough when you have to play Atlanta, but there are 18 games left in this series and there's still plenty of chances."

Steve Sax cracked a first-inning double and scored both runs for Los Angeles. Pete Falcone, who moved up in the Braves' pitching rotation because of Phil Niekro's hamstring injury, was the starter and yielded just four hits in six innings.

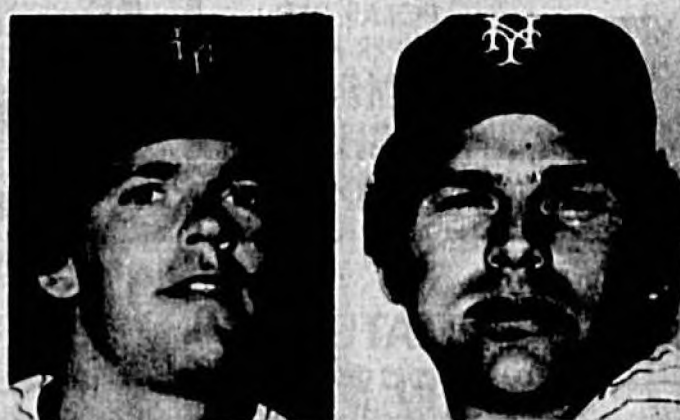

After Sax doubled leading off in the first, he was sacrificed to third by Bill Russell and scored on Pedro Guerrero's single. Sax opened the third with a walk, took second on a grounder, stole third and scored on catcher Bruce Benedict's throwing error.

Dodgers starter Jerry Reuss blanked the Braves until the sixth, when Roster reached on Russell's throwing error. He was forced by Murphy's grounder, and after Terry Harper's walk, Bob Watson singled home Murphy for an unearned run.

Stewart, who got the loss and fell to 5-2, took over in the eighth inning with one out after singles by Watson and Harper and retired the side on a double play.

Both dugouts and bullpens emptied in the eighth but no blows were struck during an incident involving the Dodgers' Dusty Baker and Garber. Russell led off with a single and was sacrificed along by Baker, who collided with Garber while being tagged out on the first-base line. Baker and Garber exchanged words and were quickly mobbed by players from both teams.

Jackson, Studomire Lift Deluxe

Men's Softball

"Steady Eddie" Jackson doubled home two runs in the sixth inning and Bill Studomire tossed a three-hitter as the Deluxe Bar stopped Season Time. 4-1. In Sanford Men's Softball League action at Pinchurst Field.

In other games, Uncle Nick's Oyster Bar clobbered Central Florida Regional Hospital, 14-3, and the Express won by forfeit over Harcar.

Deluxe opened a 1-0 lead in the first when Levi Raines walked and when Fred Washington reached on an error. The lead grew to 2-0 in the third when Ben Green walked and scored on a single by Ned Raines. Deluxe opened up its 4-0 advantage when Jackson followed a single and a double by Ned and Levi in the sixth.

Season Time scored its run in the seventh on a single by Ricky Bryson and a double by Robbie Hanrahan. Levi and Ned Raines and Studomire each had two hits for the Deluxe. John Myers took the loss.

Danny Cannon's two-run double highlighted a six-run second inning which launched Uncle Nick's past CFRH. Rick Balesentis, Don Hibbard, Mike Laubert preceded Cannon's two batter with singles. Russell Adams and David Lively added RBI singles later in the inning.

Laubert, Cannon, Adams and Alan Cook had three hits apiece for the winners. Tommy Szabo singled home a run and spaced 12 hits to pick up the victory. Gary Snell took the loss.

Jim Butler had a perfect 4-for-4 evening for CFRH. Steve Letchworth added two singles. Paul Garland and Scott Milson each had RBI.

In Tuesday's softball action, Season Time broke out the heavy aluminum to annihilate Mobilite, 22-2. Robbie Hanrahan and Bryson each clubbed a homer to head the attack. Hanrahan also had a triple and a single. Kerry Meyers had three hits while Dave Kent, Brian Hanrahan, Russell Holkoman and winning pitcher Steve Scribner had two hits each.

Meck Ewing singled in a run for Mobilite. Bruce Davidson was the loser. Mobilite was hammered again in Tuesday's second game by Uncle Nick's Oyster Bar, 15-0. Cook and Laubert had three hits apiece while Laubert drove in two runs. Szabo gave up just four hits to pick up the win. Manny Rivera was the loser. Wayne Russell had two hits for the winners.

In Tuesday's other game, the Express erupted for six runs in the last inning to tip Central Florida Regional Hospital, 7-6. Linc Larson and Sonny Eubanks each drilled singles to chase home two runs apiece to highlight the inning.

Eubanks had three hits while Larson and Kenny Daniels each rapped two. Wayne Onger picked up the win. Gary Snell took the setback.

Mark Snell roped a double, a triple and two singles to drive in two runs for the Hospital. Roger Stewart added three base hits.

Rowdies Blank Sockers

By United Press International
After a championship season, most clubs sit back, relax and let old wounds heal. Not the San Diego Sockers.
After capturing the Major Indoor Soccer League title, the Sockers traded electric light for sunshine almost immediately and joined the NASL outdoor season in progress.

And although coach Ron Newman has seen some improvement lately, he's still not satisfied.
"I think we are fit now after the indoor season, but our timing seems to be off and we look awkward and clumsy," Newman said after the Sockers were blanked 4-0 Wednesday night by the Rowdies at Tampa.

"We seem to give up and throw in the towel before it's time," he added. "We don't seem to be able to put the ball into the net. It amazes me that this team does not score a goal."

Tatu scored two goals for the second straight game.
In other games, Chicago edged Montreal 3-2 and Seattle edged Golden Bay 3-1 in a shootout.

Mike Schmit walloped a three-run homer and struck out 17 as Altamonte's Seniors turned back Maitland, 10-0, in Top Team Tournament action Wednesday night at Maitland. The Seniors will send Mike Pinckes against Deltona tonight.

Schmit Rips Homer, Whiffs 17 As Altamonte Mauls Maitland

This one was over early. Real early. Winning pitcher Mike Schmit walloped a three-run home run in the first inning as the Altamonte Seniors broke loose with eight runs en route to a 10-0 whitewash over the Maitland Seniors in District 14-2 Top Team Tournament play at Maitland Junior High.

The stylish Lake Mary sophomore whiffed 17 hitters and allowed just one hit — a clean sixth-inning single to right center by losing pitcher Mark Stevens. It was sandwiched between two walks and gave Maitland a bases-loaded, no-out situation. Schmit, nevertheless, bore down to get the next hitter on a pop out and fan the following two to smuff out the threat. Schmit faced just 26 hitters, five over the minimum.

"Mike had a very exceptional game," said Altamonte skipper Gene Letterio. "He said he hadn't felt this good since he beat Seminole High (during the high school season). He was very loose."

And also loose were the Altamonte bats against Stevens in the first inning. Shane Letterio and Dan Beaty started the inning with walks before Schmit deposited a fastball beyond the right-field fence for a 3-0 lead.

Mike Pinckes reached on an error by the third baseman and moved up on a nice sacrifice bunt by Pat Lusk. Bill Henley then whacked a single which sent Pinckes to third. Henley then stole second.

Letterio flashed the squeeze, but Sean Casterline missed the bunt and Pinckes was hung up between third and home. Several relays later, nevertheless, Pinckes had alluded the posse with Altamonte's fourth run.

Top Team Baseball

"He (Pinckes) did one of the best jobs of getting out of a pickle you'll ever see," said Letterio. "He just outran the third baseman to score the run."

Casterline eventually walked and Sandy Hovis was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Todd Fuggi then induced another walk to make the lead 5-0. Letterio, batting for the second time, walked to force into another one, but Fuggi was picked off at third for the second out. The seventh run scored on a passed ball and Beaty then ripped a single to chase home Letterio for the 8-0 bulge.

Altamonte picked up single runs in the second and fifth innings. In the second, Schmit walked and stole second and was gunned down trying to steal third. After Pinckes flew out, Lusk restarted the rally with a walk and scored on a hit by Henley. In the fifth, Fuggi singled and stole second. He went to third on a ground ball to the right side by Letterio and scored on a sacrifice fly by Beaty.

Today at 5:30, Altamonte will send Pinckes against Deltona in the tournament's second round. This game will also be at Maitland Junior High.

Mr. Cub Is Not Mr. Cub Anymore

The way things are turning out for Ernie Banks, it's not such a great day to play two.

For the past 31 years, he has symbolized the Chicago Cubs more than any other man who has ever worn their uniform; more so even than Gabby Hartnett, Charlie Grimm, Billy Herman and Phil Cavarretta, and now the club and he have split.

First as a player and then as a good-will ambassador employed by them in a promotional capacity, Banks has been an integral part of the Cubs for more than three decades. He was certainly the best known and most identifiable member of their "family," but last Saturday he was told his services were no longer required.

One of the reasons for the break was economy. Perhaps more important was the fact Banks had missed several scheduled appearances in the past few years, and that led to his being labeled "unreliable," something he never was called during the 19 years he played for the Cubs.

Maybe it won't be much consolation to the generally happy-go-lucky, personable 52-year-old Hall of Famer, but he's not alone in what has happened to him. He merely happens to be the latest victim.

Banks' circumstance isn't that much unlike Willie Mays' following Mays' retirement as an active player with the Mets at the end of 1973. He had signed a 10-year contract with them when they got him from the Giants in 1972. The question then became what he could do to earn the money the Mets would pay him for the next eight years after he was through playing.

A job in the front office was out because Mays didn't have the inclination or patience for that. It was extremely difficult for him, and still is, to sit in the press box and watch a game because the instinctive desire to play is still so strong inside him.

"I know I can still go out there for a few innings or even play a whole game," he said to me not long ago, "but what about the next day?"

Mays was given the designation of part-time coach for the Mets and his duties were loosely defined. The Mets have to be blamed for that. Willie wasn't crazy about going to some of the places in the country they suggested he go because nobody's really that eager to go back to the bushes, even to work with young players, once he's gotten accustomed to star status in the majors.

When it came to appearances, Mays was no different than Banks. He got tired of making appearances, but since the club was paying him for it, he was expected to go.

Sports Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN

Mays and Banks aren't the only ones to have gotten themselves caught in such a box. I never saw a top star who was all that eager to make an appearance even when he was getting well paid for showing up. Curiously or not, the more "medicore" a player is regarded, the more reliable he generally is about appearances. That's because he hasn't become jaded or weary yet from making that many appearances.

Practically every ballclub has been faced with the problem of what to do with some of its top players after they obviously are all through. The clubs can't just throw an Ernie Banks, a Willie Mays or a Stan Musial out on the street. Occasionally, when there is no place else, some clubs have found a place for a few of their special retired players in the radio or TV booth, but only so many of those jobs are available.

There have been few more popular men in baseball history than Ernie Banks. Some of the other players occasionally kidded him about all those wonderful things he'd say about the Cubs or about how he always insisted it was "a great day to play two," but everybody loved Ernie. It was hard not to. So the club comes out the villain for letting him go. I don't think that's right, either. Neither he nor anyone else had a right to expect any club to keep a player on its payroll for the rest of his life.

Ralph Kiner, the former home run king who does the Mets' games on TV and radio now, has a viewpoint I agree with in regard to what any club owes one of its stars after he's through playing.

"To my way of thinking," he says, "if the player is contributing to the organization after he quits playing, then he's entitled to fair remuneration just like any other employee. But when it comes to the point, in the eyes of the ballclub, that he isn't contributing, then the club has a right to get rid of him."

Kiner played with the Pirates most of his career and also with the Cubs and the Indians. He never received anything from any one of them after he finished playing but still feels he was treated fairly.

"I never expected anything," he says.

TAC Track Meets At Lyman

The Track Athletic Congress (TAC) Association Meet for 15- to 18-year-olds will be held at Longwood's Lyman High School Saturday, June 25, according to Lyman track coach David Huggins.

The javelin begins the competition at 2 p.m. while the other field events begin at 3 p.m. The preliminary running events are at 5 p.m. with the finals following at 7 p.m.

All participants must have a TAC card which is available at the meet for $6. It covers the track and cross country season. A participant's age will be determined by this calendar year, said Huggins.

The top four qualifiers will go to the July 16 regional at Winter Park's Showalter Field.

Also, on July 30 at Lyman, the TAC will sponsor its TAC Association Meet for ages 13-14, 11-12 and 10 and under. Field events at 3 p.m., prelims at 5 p.m., and finals at 7 p.m. make up the schedule. Again, a TAC card is needed. If participants do not have one, they must show a birth certificate and pay the $6.

Huggins said one of the biggest meets of the summer will take place on July 9 at Lyman when the Sunshine State Games District gets underway involving Brevard, Indian River, Ocala, Seminole, Orange and Volusia counties.

Winners and runners-up in the three age (13-15, 16-18 and 19-39) will go to the State Games on July 23 at Showalter Field. Age requirement is determined by your age as of last Sept. 1. No TAC card or entry fee is charged.

For any information regarding the meets, call Huggins at 831-5800 or 862-2275.

Porter's Surprise Hit Pins Another Loss On Carlton

The most trouble Darrell Porter had in his pinch-hit appearance against Steve Carlton Wednesday night was getting up to home plate.

Porter, a left-handed hitter, stroked the game-tying single off perhaps the best left-handed pitcher in baseball during St. Louis' four-run eighth inning that produced a 7-6 victory over Carlton and the Phillies.

Porter was stunned when manager Whitey Herzog summoned him to hit for winning pitcher Kevin Hagen. "When Whitey called for me, I thought I was going to go in and catch," Porter said. "And then he told I was going to hit for Kevin. I just had time to get my glasses cleaned, get my helmet on and get a bat in my hands and I was up there."

Entering the eighth, Carlton was working with a C-3 lead against a team he had beaten 35 times in 46 career decisions and the Cardinals had no right-handed pinch-hitters available.

"I think that's the first time we've beaten him (Carlton) two times in a row since we traded him," Herzog said.

George Hendrick, who started at first base after the pre-game trade of former N.L. batting champion and MVP Keith Hernandez to the New York Mets, started the rally with a single and Floyd Rayford followed with another single.

With one out, Dane Iorg — who usually does not bat against left-handers — stroked an RBI single and Glenn Brummer followed with a run-scoring groundout before Porter hit an O-1 pitch for a single to right to drive in Iorg.

Another left-hander, Al Holland, relieved Carlton and walked Ozzie Smith before Green hit Holland's first pitch up the middle to score Porter and give Hagen his first major league victory.

Giants 7, Astros 1

At San Francisco, Darrell Evans smashed three home runs and drove in six runs to power the Giants. The three home runs gave Evans 18 for the season and increased both his RBI and runs scored total to 44. Fred Breining went the distance on a four-hitter for his third victory in 10 decisions. Mike LaCoss, touched for seven hits and four runs in five innings, was the loser.

Expos 7, Pirates 4

At Pittsburgh, Andre Dawson drove in four runs with a home run, a single and a sacrifice fly to lead the Expos. Ray Burris pitched 7 1/3 innings to raise his record to 2-2, gaining his first triumph as a starter since he blanked Los Angeles in Game Two of the 1980 NL playoffs. He gave way to Jeff Reardon after allowing 11 hits and four runs. Reardon notched his ninth save. Jim Bibby fell to 2-7. Tim Lincecum was 0-for-2, but scored three times and stole two bases, giving him 18 for the year.

Cubs 7, Mets 4

At New York, Jay Johnstone's bases-loaded single in the 10th inning drove in two runs to lift the Cubs. Mel Holman opened the 10th with a single off loser Scott Holman, 1-5. Ryne Sandberg then bunted and reached first safely on an error by first baseman Rusty Staub and both runners advanced on Bill Buckner's sacrifice. After Ron Cey was intentionally walked, Johnstone singled to right, scoring Holman and Sandberg. The victory was Chicago's eighth in its last 11 games.

Padres 5, Reds 1

At San Diego, Ed Whitson pitched a three-hitter and drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single and Terry Kennedy hit a two-run homer to lead the Padres. Whitson, who went the distance for the first time in six starts, gained his first victory of the season after four losses. Charlie Puleo, 2-3, took the defeat.

A's 10, Blue Jays 1

While things remained relatively quiet on the

DAVEY LOPES

GRAIG NETTLES

American League trading front, Davey Lopes raised enough noise to leave Toronto in ruins. He didn't stop on the field, either.

"I know that a lot of the media have tried to write me off but I just don't pay any attention to them," Lopes said Wednesday night after driving in seven runs with a grand slam, triple and double to lead the Oakland A's to a 10-1 pasting of the Toronto Blue Jays.

"If I had," continued Lopes, "I would have quit three or four years ago. It's a type of thing every athlete has to put up with. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had to listen to it through four games of the playoffs."

Lopes, who went 3-for-4, raised his RBI total to 33. Bill Krueger, 5-5, struck out eight and walked two to record his first major-league complete game.

In the only significant deals swung in the AL, Oakland dealt right-hander Matt Keough to the New York Yankees for pitcher Ben Callahan and first baseman Marshall Brant, both minor leaguers. And Seattle sent Julio Cruz to the Chicago White Sox for Tony Bernazard in a swap of second basemen. The relative lack of action left the spotlight to Lopes.

"I know some of them (the media) may not like my color, or my mustache, or the way I wear my pants, or those kinds of things, but I don't pay any attention," said Lopes. "The only thing I care about is what my peers think."

Oakland opened a 3-0 lead in the second. Carney Lansford doubled off loser Luis Leal, 5-6, and advanced on Bill Almon's single. One out later, Lopes doubled both runners home and scored on Bob Kearney's single.

Orioles 11, Brewers 6

At Milwaukee, Cal Ripken hit a three-run homer in the seventh and doubled in two more runs in a four-run 10th to lift Baltimore, which trailed 7-0 after six innings. Tippy Martinez, who worked the final two innings, raised his record to 4-2.

Tigers 4, Red Sox 2

At Detroit, Chet Lemon hit a tie-breaking solo homer with two out in the sixth to ignite the Tigers. Lemon's seventh homer of the year, all of which have come in Tiger Stadium, gave Detroit a 3-2 lead. Dave Rozema improved to 4-0 and remained unbeaten since 1981 by allowing four hits in seven innings.

Yankees 8, Indians 5

At Cleveland, Graig Nettles capped a five-run first with a three-run homer and Steve Kemp doubled home two runs to help the Yankees snap a four-game losing streak. Shane Rawley scattered nine hits in raising his record to 7-5.

White Sox 5, Angels 2

At Chicago, Carlos Fisk tripled in a run with two out in the fifth to lead the White Sox. LaMar Hoyt, 7-7, hurled seven innings to get the victory and Juan Agosto pitched the final inning for his second save. Tommy John, 6-3, took the loss.

Twins 6, Royals 2

At Minneapolis, rookie Scott Ullger doubled twice and added a single to pace a 13-hit attack and guide the Twins to a sweep of their three-game series. Frank Viola, 3-4, allowed eight hits for his second complete game. Paul Splittorff, 4-2, took the loss.

Mariners 6, Rangers 4

At Arlington, Texas, Al Cowens tripled in two runs with two out in the ninth to end the Rangers' five-game winning streak.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Terrorists Attack Israeli Army Post Near Beirut

United Press International

Terrorists firing rocket-propelled grenades today attacked an Israeli army position south of Beirut and four bombs rocked Moslem west Beirut in explosions that injured five people and left shops and cars burning.

The new attacks on Israeli positions came a day after Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens said Israeli forces should withdraw from the Beirut area and re-deploy in southern Lebanon.

An Israeli military spokesman said the attack came at 1 a.m. local time at an army post on the old Sidon road, a major Israeli supply route linking the south with Israeli positions in the mountains east of Beirut. Two car bombs have exploded on the route in the past week.

"Gunmen fired two rocket-propelled grenades against an Israeli Defense Forces position. There were no casualties," an Israeli military spokesman said. He gave no further details.

The assault was the latest in a series of hit-and-run raids and car bomb attacks against the Israeli army, which has lost 500 men killed since the invasion of Lebanon last summer.

Andropov Is President

MOSCOW (UPI) — Communist Party chief Yuri Andropov today was named president of the Soviet Union, consolidating his control over the Kremlin by accumulating in seven months the power it took Leonid Brezhnev 13 years to assume.

Andropov's election by the Soviet legislature gives him the three top titles held by Brezhnev on his death in November — president, Communist Party chief and chairman of the defense council.

Andropov, who turned 69 Wednesday, showed no emotion after the vote but stood to acknowledge the standing ovation from members of the Supreme Soviet, the nation's legislature, meeting in joint session.

Blacks Urged To Boycott

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Militants urged black workers to boycott today to mark the seventh anniversary of the Soweto riots that left 300 people dead, but government harassment and execution of three black nationalists may limit the impact of a walkout.

The Zambia-based youth-wing of the outlawed African National Congress also threatened attacks to commemorate the Soweto riots in 1976, which killed at least 300 people — all but two black.

Begin Beats Back Lebanon War Inquiry

Menachem Begin

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin, accusing his opponents of trying to undermine the nation's morale, has defeated two opposition motions for an official inquiry into the government's conduct of the war in Lebanon.

Parliament voted 56 to 50 Wednesday to strike from the agenda a Labor Party motion for an investigation. It defeated a second motion by the small Shinui faction, 56 to 49 with one abstention.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin lambasted the opposition, accusing it of trying to undermine the morale of the nation.

"Why are you all trying to create the impression that Israel was the aggressor at one stage in Lebanon?" Begin asked. "Is this the first war in which difficulties arose?"

Begin spoke in a strong voice, occasionally pointing a finger in the direction of the opposition benches. But he surprised observers by speaking for only six minutes to defend his government's conduct of the war.

The two-hour parliamentary debate revolved around the actions and statements of two members of the Begin government who were not present at the session — former Defense Minister Ariel Sharon and Deputy Prime Minister Simcha Ehrlich.

Sharon was on a speaking tour in Paris and Ehrlich was hospitalized Tuesday for an apparent stroke.

Ehrlich had charged that Sharon duped the Cabinet into widening the scope of the June 6, 1982 invasion of Lebanon. Ehrlich also said that contrary to reports he received from Sharon, the Israeli Army provoked the Syrians into combat.

"From an operation limited in its aims and scope we moved on to a long, continuing, bloody and purposeless war contrary to the wishes and decisions of the Cabinet and contrary to government statements to the Knesset." Labor party Chairman Shimon Peres said.

Begin has said the aim of the invasion had been to push the Palestine Liberation Organization 24 miles from Israel's northern border. But Peres noted that former Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Rafael Eitan publicly said the army received no such limitation.

Pointing to Begin, Peres said, "You told the Knesset and you didn't tell the army? How could this be?"

Mordechai Virshupski, of Shinui, said senior army officers were prepared to testify about irregularities they had witnessed at the beginning of the war.

"Pilots had received instructions on the first two days of the war to search for Syrians and get into battle with them," he said.

Party Hostess's Put-On Leaves Guest Put Out

DEAR ABBY: A woman friend (?) phoned and invited me to a wedding anniversary party for mutual friends. She said, "I'm having a money tree for the honorees, so make your check out to me. I will cash it and hang the money on the tree, and put your name on the card listing all the donors."

Dear Abby

I agreed to send my check, although I thought the idea was in poor taste since the honorees were wealthy and had much more than I. Then she said, "I'm sure you won't want to attend as the party is set up for couples only and you are a single woman, so just mail the check to me. Goodbye." Since I had already agreed to send a check, I meekly mailed it.

I later learned that several single men attended the party and had a good time. The honorees never acknowledged my gift, and since they're not the type to disregard a gift, I can only assume that my name was not put on the card.

I welcome your comments.

STUNG IN COLUMBIA, MO.

DEAR STUNG: Your "friend" could author a book on how to lose friends and alienate people. As any Monday-morning quarterback can tell you, when your friend said she was sure you wouldn't want to attend because the party was set up for couples and you were single, you should have told her you would either bring an escort or come alone and take your chances.

It's not too late to tell her that your gift has not been acknowledged, and knowing it is unlike the honorees to ignore a gift, you are writing them to ask if your name was on the card — or inadvertently omitted.

DEAR ABBY: When flying on a commercial plane, I find that it is a rare flight when an infant doesn't scream or cry for a good part of the trip. I am extremely sensitive to noises, and the constant cries of a baby upset me no end.

I pay a large sum of money to fly, while the infant who flies for free ruins my trip. I feel that this is an infringement on my rights.

What are your thoughts about having a section on planes for passengers with infants? Just as there is a "No Smoking" section, there can also be a "No Infant" section.

ALLERGIC TO CRYING BABIES

DEAR ALLERGIC: "No Smoking" sections on planes are not entirely smoke-free because smoke has a way of drifting.

A "No Infant" section would offer little relief from a screaming baby because sound (like smoke) also "travels." Given a choice, I'd opt for the crying baby and use earplugs or a headset.

DEAR ABBY: "Looking Ahead at 72" writes that she hopes that when the time comes (to die), some loving person will remove the hair from her upper lip because she wouldn't want to be caught dead with her moustache showing.

Abby, you seem to think it's the mortician's responsibility to make the deceased appear as "natural" as possible. I have been in the funeral business for over 30 years, and it's our policy to allow the family to view the deceased before the public visitation in order to be certain that the deceased looks "natural."

Here are some of the requests we have had:

1. "Can't you put a smile on Dad's face? He looks so sad."
2. "Stick a pipe in his mouth, or nobody will believe it's Joe."
3. "Put Dad's glasses on. Nobody ever saw him without them."
4. "Take the rouge and lipstick off Grandma. She never wore any."
5. "Put a Wall Street Journal in Dad's hand, so he'll look more natural."

Brittle Bones: The Bane Of The Elderly

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband was very ill and I reached over to help him as he started to faint. I fractured two vertebrae. Before then I had never had any back trouble as I have been athletic all my life. I am 75.

I went to the doctor and was told I have osteoporosis. He said there was nothing they could do for me. I have lost some of my height and about 17 pounds.

I asked about exercise and was told to swim and ride a bicycle, but I don't think I could as my back hurts a lot.

I asked about therapy and didn't get an answer. Isn't there some kind of exercise a person could do at home? What can I do?

DEAR READER — Your story points out that the underlying cause of many fractures in older people is osteoporosis, the dissolving bone problem. That includes fractures of the hip or fractures of the arm from minor falls.

Osteoporosis is asymptomatic until a fracture occurs or the deformity is so great that it causes pressure on nerve roots. It causes the humped back you see in so many smaller women.

It is hard to treat and reversing the damage is almost impossible. But you can do a lot to prevent the disease in the first place and to stop its progression. As your condition stabilizes you should stop having so much pain.

The condition is common in small women after the menopause. It occurs in men about 20 years later. It is usually associated with a decrease in absorption of calcium, perhaps because of changes in the way the body handles vitamin D. New studies indicate that as you get older this happens.

For that reason it is particularly important to include lots of calcium in the diet. In women after the menopause some recommend 1.5 grams of calcium a day, about the amount you find in a quart of fortified skim milk. Estrogen and other hormones have been used to prevent degeneration. Vitamin D and even fluoride has also been used.

I have discussed the condition and treatment more fully in The Health Letter 6-10, Osteoporosis: Bone Softening, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me. In care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have heard that vitamin B will help a failing memory. When I look at all the types of "B" on the shelves I am daunted. Can you tell me which is the "B" that is supposed to help memory? Or is this another exploded theory?

DEAR READER — It really doesn't matter because not one of them will improve your memory unless you have a vitamin B deficiency. If you do, it is important to find out why and receive proper treatment.

If you are eating a well-balanced proper diet about the only one that you could be deficient in would be B-12. In that case you would have pernicious anemia. We do know that a B-12 deficiency that causes pernicious anemia may cause mental confusion and those problems.

But B-12 deficiency is usually caused from an inability to absorb B-12 from your food. For that reason B-12 is given as an injection, not as pills.

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY

JUNE 17, 1983

You could be successful in two unrelated areas this coming year, provided you manage your time and efforts wisely. Learn how to walk the narrow line.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be sure to go to the right people for advice today. An ineffective counselor could get your more confused than when you started. Gemini predictions for the year ahead are now ready. Romance, career, luck, earnings, travel and much more are discussed. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic combinations and compatibilities for all signs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Much valuable time could be wasted today by worrying too much about how things will work out before you even try them. Act first, fret later.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In situations today where you are handling another's resources, treat this as a sacred trust. Make every effort to live up to the faith placed in you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Protect your self-interests today, but don't do so in ways which could offend or hurt the feelings of persons who like you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be able to distinguish today between your hunches and feelings of apprehension. Negative thoughts should not be treated as intuitive insights.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't be taken in again today by a friend who never seems to have money on his or her person when it comes time to pay the tab.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If your resolve is not strong enough today where your objectives are concerned, you could easily be thrown off-track by doubting onlookers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be extremely attentive to your work today, even if you're merely performing routine tasks. Mistakes will occur if you allow your mind to wander.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to avoid situations today where you have to take a position that is in direct opposition to a friend. Each may overreact.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You are not too well-suited for the role of an arbitrator today. Don't place yourself in the middle by trying to appease two hostile factions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be grateful rather than critical to those who try to be of help to you today. If you put down their efforts, they might not be around when you need them again.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be very careful in joint ventures today, especially if you're involved with someone who tends to be a bit impractical.

October. An interesting coincidence is that Barry Crane won his first national pair championship in this same event with Oswald Jacoby in Seattle in 1964.

Mike Passell sat East in today's hand. South reached four spades after a Jacoby transfer sequence, won the first trick with the jack of clubs and led a spade to dummy's 10. Passell won with the ace and shifted to the ace and three of diamonds.

Declarer went right up with his king in the expectation of taking the rest of the tricks. He assumed that he could pick up the queen of trumps, which he was sure nestled in West's hand, and would get to discard dummy's last diamond on a long club. When West showed out on the spade, poor South looked as if he had been pole-axed. He rose with dummy's king and tried to get a diamond discard on a club, but Mike was able to ruff the third club and score his diamond for just about the only East-West plus.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

The outstanding performance award at this year's Spring National Tournament in Hawaii went to Mike Passell of Dallas, who was second in the men's pairs, third in the men's team, quarter finalist in the Vanderbilt and winner with Barry Crane in the open pairs.

Mike will be Jim Jacoby's partner in the World Championship in
