Carroll With ACL For 50 Years; Is Presented Emblem

In the presence of Supervisory Officials and friends, Edwin Marvin Carroll was presented the Atlantic Coast Line's Fifty-year, solid gold, diamond-studded service emblem.

The emblem was presented by George R. Gibbs, Master Mechanic of Jacksonville, yesterday at 3:30 for 50 years of continuous service on the ACL.

The 50 years of service was completed by Carroll on Jan. 28, having first entered the ACL railroad service on Jan. 28, 1907 as a machinist at Sanford.

Two days later, on Feb. 2, 1907, Carroll was promoted to a Supervisor at Port Tampa where he remained until Jan. 1, 1920. He was then transferred back to Sanford and has worked on various supervisory jobs until the present date, and is still employed as such.

Carroll received his 25 year service emblem from officials of the ACL Railroad which he has worn until replaced yesterday by the diamond-studded 50-year pin.

Gibbs, in presenting the pin explained the meaning of it: A—the winged hourglass symbolizes the flight of time; B—the laurel wreath signifies honorable service; C—the gold from which the emblem is made is the most precious of metals and denotes the value placed upon the wearer's long and faithful service; D—the diamond is known to be the most precious of stones.

In presenting the pin, Gibbs told Carroll "The management appreciates your very fine services through these years, and it is a pleasure for me to present this beautiful 50-year, diamond-studded emblem in recognition of your long years of service."

Those present for the ceremony were: Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Carroll, George R. Gibbs, M. M. Nikarik, retired engineer, George M. Shipp, retired machinist, J. A. Gainey, diesel instructor, J. S. Tillis, foreman car department, Mrs. J. A. Cunningham, Mrs. S. W. Smith, C. A. Milton, asst. storekeeper, Miss Charlotte Smith, secretary, and L. G. Cornell, general foreman.

Club Seeking Good Turn Out For Boat Regatta Feb. 17

"You have no idea of the work it takes to put on a project like this, especially for a small club like ours," Harry Robson told the Sanford Kiwanis Club yesterday at its noon luncheon meeting.

Robson spoke to the Kiwanis Club on the "work the Sanford Boat and Ski Club is doing to promote our waterways." He explained, in detail, the Regatta scheduled for Sanford on Feb. 17 at 1 p.m.

"What we want," said Robson, "is a good turn out and I hope the water is as smooth as it is today there will be some world records broken here."

Robson emphasized that "This is of national importance and we're seeing that Sanford will get national publicity."

"If the regatta goes over we hope our next one will be expanded for it has excellent possibilities," he said.

The Kiwanis Club's guest speaker pointed out that the Regatta is a branch of the Grapefruit Circuit operating in seven Florida cities: Miami, Daytona Beach and

Gen. Sanford Had Many Interests

By Charles Edward Ironside
The forthcoming dedication on February 8 at four o'clock of the General Sanford Memorial Library has excited much discussion of this magnificent gift to the community, and aroused a great deal of speculation as to what this collection contains and as to how its contents can be used.

Curious inspection of the list of books reveals at once that General Sanford was a man of great intellect and wide interests. The collection comprises about 2700 volumes, covering mainly the 18th and 19th centuries. Of these works about one half are in English, about one third in French, one tenth in German, with a sprinkling of Latin, Italian, Spanish, and Dutch. The large number of professional legal works in English, French, and German indicate General Sanford's keen interest in international law and in diplomatic questions. The works in Latin, the oldest dated 1608, are mostly works dealing with the history and teaching of law. The above professional works represent however only one aspect of a many-sided individual. We have a truly amazing collection of works on art, literature, music, sculpture, painting, economics, education, law, diplomacy, history, travel, and philosophy, together with many complete sets of encyclopedias, and bound volumes of magazines of these periods.

Local Vets Prove Good Credit Risks

701 Loans Are Made Since '44

Since World War II, Uncle Sam has bet six million dollars that the home buying veterans of Seminole County are good credit risks, and thus far, he has lost practically nothing in the bargain.

Since December, 1944, 701 Seminole County veterans have bought properties valued at more than six million dollars under the Veterans Home Loan Program operated by the Veterans Administration. Tom C. David, Loan Guaranty Officer, Jacksonville, gave these figures to the builders of Seminole County today. He stated that to date, 12 years after the beginning of the Veterans Home Loan Program, only two of the 701 loans guaranteed by his organization for Seminole County Veterans have resulted in losses to the government.

It was pointed out further that for the entire State of Florida, 116,000 Florida veterans have taken advantage of the Veterans Home Loan Act to buy homes for their families. To date, only six (Continued on Page 3)

President Seeks Aid For Refugees From Communism

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower asked Congress today for new immigration legislation that would grant a haven in the United States to persons who "flee from Communist persecution and tyranny."

In a special message to Congress, the President also requested liberalization of the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act, basic immigration law of the land.

At the outset of his message the President outlined the need for emergency legislation to help Hungarian and other refugees.

He said the eyes of the world have been fixed on Hungary where thousands of men, women, and children have fled to seek asylum abroad.

Two Basic Steps

"Our position of world leadership with other nations of the free world, we are in a position to grant ship demands that in partnership that asylum," Mr. Eisenhower said.

He called for two basic steps to help anyone—not Hungarians alone—fleeing from communism: "First, I recommend that the Congress enact legislation giving the President power to authorize the attorney general to parole into the United States temporarily under such conditions as he may prescribe escapees selected by the secretary of state, who have fled or in the future flee from Communist persecution and tyranny."

"Second, I urge the Congress promptly to enact legislation giving the necessary discretionary power to the attorney general to permit aliens paroled into the United States, who intend to stay here, to remain as permanent residents."

The President said he would call for special judicial duty at the determination of the chief justice.

Grants Retirement

The President wrote in reply: "I am most appreciative of your courtesy in giving me advance notice of your intention to retire from active service on Feb. 25, 1957."

"In accepting your resignation from active work as a Supreme Court Justice, I seize the opportunity to tender my congratulations on your long and splendid record in public service, as well as official appreciation of the dedication and devotion that are so much a part of your reputation."

"I am sure there lie ahead of you long happiness and satisfaction as well as opportunity to continue the contribution to the richness of American life even though you may do so in a less formal way."

15 Paintings Hung In Memorial Library

The fabulous collection of pictures, a part of the General Henry Shelton Sanford Memorial Library collection, has been hung in the new library building.

Hanging of the pictures was done by Senkarik Glass and Paint Company and was under the direction of Jerry Senkarik, a member of the firm.

Life size portraits of General Sanford and Mrs. Sanford were the first to be placed yesterday and will be seen on the north wall of the library building facing the entrance. The painting of General Sanford's portrait was done by artist L. DeWinn. Mrs. Sanford's picture was done by the Belgian Court Artist L. Gallait.

Completion of the placing of the 15 paintings was at noon today. Other pictures that appeared in the collection which will be seen hanging on the library walls include a life size portrait of General Sanford's mother Mrs. Schenckel Curtis Sanford; a bust portrait of General Sanford made about 1832; a portrait painted of Henry Shelton Sanford Jr., on a white bear rug done by Artist Cesar Del Agua; and a bust portrait of His Majesty King Leopold I of Belgium. The portrait of the king, first king of Belgium, was signed by Winterhalter.

There is a smaller picture of General Henry Shelton Sanford at about 11 years of age when he attended the Charter, Conn. Academy, and another of General Sanford which was probably completed in 1835, the artist was C. Curtis.

Krider Says Proud Of Efforts Made Toward Progress

"We feel proud of the efforts our people have put out," John Krider, Manager of the Seminole Cold Coffee Club, says this morning, as he described the successful completion of getting the Sanford Manufacturing Company building under way.

"We feel, in the Chamber of Commerce," Krider said, "that we are making some progress."

"We have changed completely our methods—we are more aggressive," said Krider as he explained that "We are going to be progressive and take an aggressive stand on everything."

On the United Fund drive plans, Krider said that it is expected that a meeting will be called, probably next week to make final plans for the forming of an organization here.

Another thing, he said, "we would like to do is organize a calendar. There are so many conflicting things going on and the Chamber of Commerce is the place to register them."

Don Bales, master of ceremonies for the Coffee Club introduced visitors to the last Thursday of each-month meeting.

President Declares Eastern Floodlands Major Disaster Area

By UNITED PRESS

President Eisenhower declared Kentucky floodlands a major disaster area today as the death toll mounted to at least 10 in a four-state area where more rain, cold and snow added to the misery of thousands left homeless.

The chief executive ordered federal aid to help the suffering in Kentucky, one of the hardest hit states. West Virginia has made a similar appeal.

Virginia and Tennessee also were hard hit by days of rain that turned placid mountain streams into raging torrents that pounded into one town after another.

Several towns were isolated and not even helicopters could land with desperately-needed food and medicine. Damage soared in an estimated $1 million dollars.

The President acted in response to an appeal by Kentucky Gov. A. B. Chandler who said a large part of eastern Kentucky have been inundated by the worst floods in state history.

Rush Food, Medicine

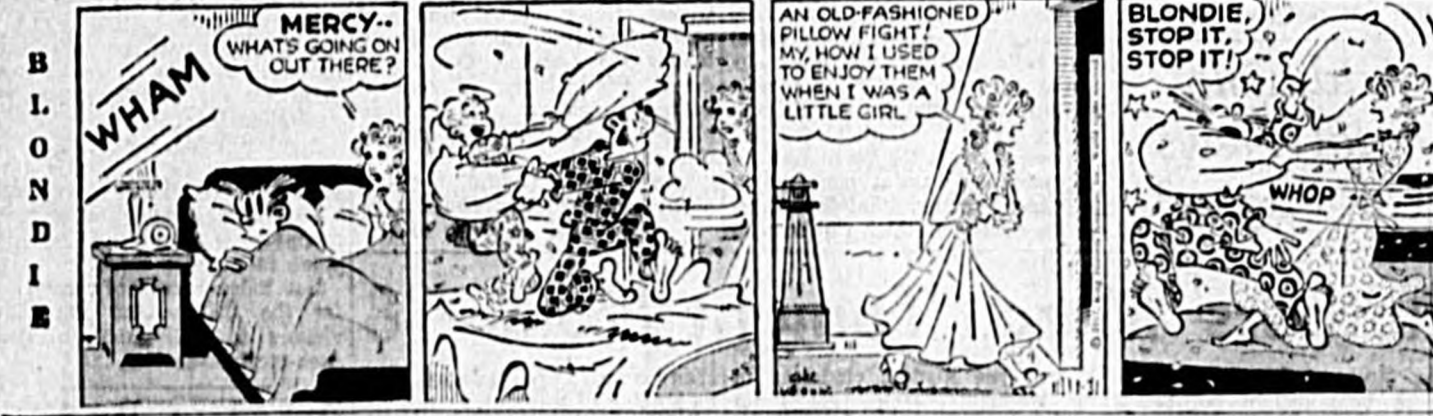

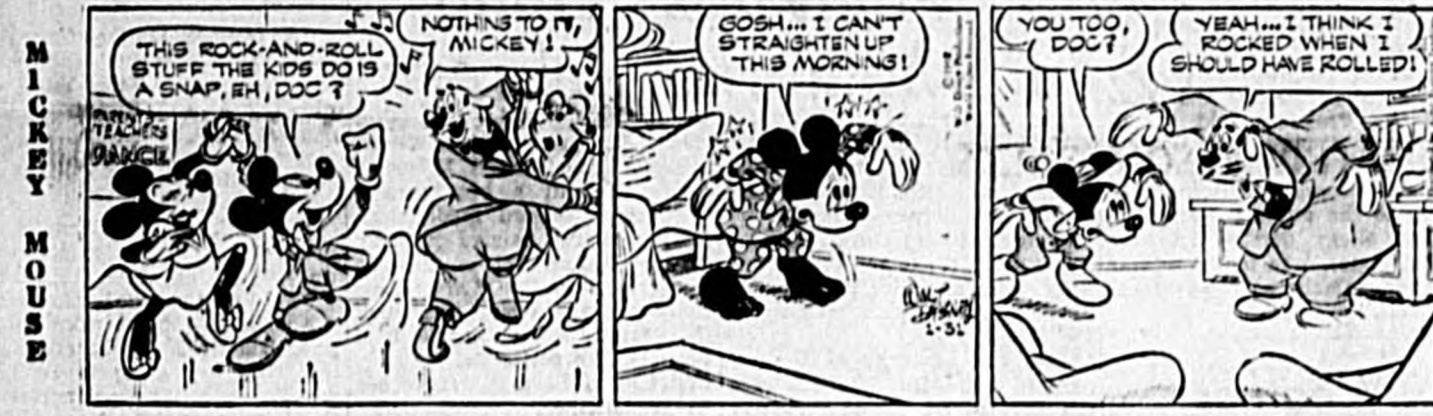

The Army, the National Guard, Red Cross and civilian volunteers worked together against the natural barriers of water, mountains, and mud to try to move food and medical supplies into the stricken regions.

Cold, rain and snow were predicted for Kentucky, Virginia, and West Virginia. The weather bureau forecast cold and more rain for eastern Tennessee, where TVA installations have held the flood waters partly in check.

tents of 1 per cent of these loans have resulted in partial losses to the government. The cash loss has been less than one dollar out of every $1,000 guaranteed. David stated that the veterans of World War II and the Korean War are building an enviable record by promptly repaying the indebtedness which they created in the purchase of homes. Lenders have made loans to Florida veterans totaling $88 million dollars, and as of this date, not a single lender has lost a dime in the transaction. Nationally, more than 3 million veterans have taken advantage of the program, and their repayment record is almost as good as the record established by the Florida veterans. "You can search the files of the entire government, and very few instances could be pointed out where government and private industry have joined hands to accomplish a more worthwhile undertaking than they have through the VA Loan Guaranty Program," David stated. It was pointed out furthermore that these young home owners are taking care of their properties and are proving to be excellent housekeepers. "We are constantly checking the conditions of houses ranging in age from 12 months to 12 years," David stated, "and it is very seldom that we find a piece of property which has been allowed to deteriorate to the point where the mortgagee has to step in and require repair work to be done."

By way of describing the activities of the program, the Loan Guaranty Officer pointed out that the government merely says to a lending institution "If you will sign this note," thereby guaranteeing the lender against the loss of 80 per cent of the loan so long as the guaranty does not exceed $7,500.

In the case of proposed construction three to four inspectors are made by approved inspectors to see that the properties meet the VA's minimum property requirements. One inspection is made when the foundations are poured, the second when the house is dried in and electrical and plumbing fixtures are exposed, and the final one when the house is finished (or when clean).

The VA representative stated that due to the mortgage market at the present time, VA home loans are proving very difficult to get. The number of homes built for veterans in 1956 was below the peak year of 1953. Until the mortgage market is stabilized, the Loan Guaranty Officer stated that he expected the present situation regarding the difficulty of getting VA loans to continue.

others. "But officials liked our waterways and had an opening for another race."

The only thing we were asked provide was $600 prize money, and in view of the magnitude of the Regatta, the Sanford Boat and Ski Club obligated itself for that amount, said Robson. "We're not here asking for money," Robson explained, "but to tell you about our plans and what the Regatta will mean to Sanford."

National champions will be brought to Sanford to compete in the six races which are divided into 12 heats, explained Robson as he displayed pictures of some of the boat drivers and the type boats which they operated. Robson was introduced by Ed LeCout, program chairman for yesterday's Kiwanis Club meeting.

Dean Reeder, director of the High Fever Follicles appealed to the Sanford Kiwanis Club to attend the Follicles and explained that a number of Kiwanians were in the cast. He named, especially, Ed Lane and Floyd Palmer.

Robert A. Cobb, a guest at yesterday's luncheon, spoke briefly on the Girl Scouts and their growth. He said "I encourage all of you, when solicited for contributions to the Girl Scouts or Boy Scouts, to support them."

Visitors at yesterday's Kiwanis Club meeting included: R. A. Cobb, Sanford; Charles W. Ireland, Winter Park; Dean C. Reeder, New York; Earl Gheen, Huntington, W. Va.; R. E. Pillsbury, DeLand; and J. P. Milberg, Moorehead, Minn.

PAA Hiring Ground Service Personnel

PATRICK AIR FORCE BASE, Fla.—Pan American Airways began hiring ground service personnel today to keep the nation's top-secret guided missile center operating during a confused walk-out by workers seeking union affiliation.

Both Air Force and Pan American officials announced the work stoppage had not in any way affected the center's main functions, the testing of guided missiles. Pan American Airways holds the primary contract with the government for administering, supporting and maintaining the operations of sprawling Cape Canaveral, an isolated and heavily guarded site on an island cape on Florida's central east coast.

Gen. Sanford

material can be used, even this preliminary inspection suggests a number of possibilities. To the students of Sanford much is offered. For instance, the list includes a number of standard works on history and literature. One of the best-known professors at Columbia University was fond of saying that children are more interested in some standard works in history than in their text books, these latter being supposed to be simple. The reason he gave was that text-books are not always as simple as supposed, since they crowd into a limited number of pages a large number of abstractions, while standard works often contain many concrete descriptions that are more easily understood by quite young children. A copy of a volume of McMaster's American History on the list suggests this thought and brings to mind an experiment of one of this professor's students who directed work of teachers in training in several demonstration schools where they set up projects for sixth grade children in history. The children read McMaster, and from his vivid, accurate descriptions built a whole New England colonial village in paper mache. Similar reconstructions of other towns and villages for the middle states and southern states followed. This is the best kind of history teaching, giving the child an unforgettable basis for his later work, besides correlating the work of art, literature, and other subjects with history, and making possible the working together of hand and mind—a result in education devoutly to be wished.

Another possibility that comes to mind is the use by our elderly citizens who have retired to live in Central Florida. This area contains many persons of great intellectual interests who also have a broad background of educational training. How nice it would be for these wonderful people to spend a few hours of their time each day pursuing further research along the lines of their former interests, writing short papers on human interest stories or on more serious subjects, to be published in newspapers or magazines. This would give them not only an interesting way of spending their years of retirement but a source of income so badly needed today by those on small pensions.

One of the greatest uses for this material would, of course, be for research. This area of Florida contains several colleges like Stetson and Rollins, and a great number of men in the armed service at the various bases within motoring distance of Sanford who are interested in following up various types of research. The students are writing term papers, masters' theses, and later, no doubt, doctoral dissertations. In the armed services, there are always men who in their former education have specialized in subjects included in this collection and no doubt hope to continue such work while within the services, or when they leave the services. The General Sanford collection is particularly valuable for research of this kind, especially in the history of law and diplomacy.

Another great possibility for its usefulness is to make known its contents to other colleges and universities throughout the country. This material would certainly supplement materials in libraries of the great universities of Columbia, Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Chicago, Stanford and others, at which their Ph. D. students are writing doctoral dissertations. They would, I am sure, be glad to know what is available. This can be done by the publication of booklets distributed and sold to the great libraries of the county. How pleasant it would be for a student from snow-bound cities to spend a semester writing a dissertation in this quiet, pleasant library in sunny central Florida, not to mention how much more economical it would be. This heavenly thought can only be appreciated by those who have struggled with snowstorms and the high cost of education in our northern universities.

Another more extended use will become possible as more funds are available. Since this material supplements materials in other colleges and universities, it will be needed for research by many students who will find it impossible to leave their home schools. Universities are solving this problem by the use of microfilm. Certain of these more valuable works could be put on such films, and loaned or sold to the various universities in need of them. The above suggestions would require some investment at first, but could be made to pay their own way in time.

The City of Sanford is very fortunate indeed in possessing an invaluable collection of this nature. It must have been a source of great pain to Mrs. Dow to part with objects that held such precious memories for her. The people of Sanford own her a great debt of gratitude for this princely gift.

Substantial Gains Made By Church Of Nazarene In '56

The Church of the Nazarene, an international Protestant denomination, recorded substantial gains in every area of its work during 1956, it was reported here this week.

The annual statistical report by Dr. S. T. Ludwig, Kansas City, Mo., General Church Secretary, showed that new churches and 9-day schools were established at the rate of two a week in 1956. The denomination had a net gain of 109 churches for a year-end total of 4,433.

A net gain of 8,031 members, or a 2.8 per cent increase, brought the denomination total to 287,890. The vast majority joined on profession of faith.

Perhaps most notable was the record of $129.4 in per capita giving in 1956. This was an increase of $4.33 over the previous high of $125.09 in 1955.

Denominational giving for all purposes also increased by $2,550,065 in 1956, or a denominational total of $37,404,741.

Sunday school enrollment reached an all-time high of 611,310. All three principal societies—missionary, junior and young people—recorded gains in members and income.

The denomination stands for the spread and conservation of the Wesleyan doctrine of entire sanctification. It marks its start at Pilot Point, Tex., in 1908, and plans are being completed for its golden anniversary observance in 1958.

the other of Henry Shelton Sanford Jr., appear in twin frames. They were framed in London probably about 1871. The picture of Mrs. Sanford was made when she was probably about 18 years old. The picture of Henry Shelton Sanford Jr., was done when he posed in kills.

A portrait of Mrs. Nehemiah Curtis Sanford, in a widow's cap, was done by Artist C. Curtis about 1832. Another portrait, to be seen in the collection is Nehemiah Curtis Sanford.

Considered one of the most beautiful pictures of the collection brought here is of Mrs. Nehemiah Curtis Sanford as a bride. Adding historical interest to the family collection of portraits, all to be seen in the General Sanford Memorial Library, are portraits of Joseph Shelton, maternal grandfather of General Henry Shelton Sanford and of Mrs. Joseph Shelton, nee Charity Lewis, maternal grandmother of General Sanford.

Hanging of the portraits, two of which were valued at $12,000 when shipped here from Derby, Conn., will make way for the placing of furniture and other items that appear in the collection and which will be thrown open to the public on Feb. 8 when dedication ceremonies will be held at 4 p.m.

King Saud's Son Examined Today At Walter Reed

WASHINGTON—King Saud's partly-crippled little son undergoes examination of his paralytic ailment at Walter Reed Hospital today. President Eisenhower personally ordered the Army's vast medical facility be out at the child's disposal.

The President instructed his physician, Major Gen. Howard Mc C. Snyder, to arrange the examination shortly after he greeted the 3½-year-old boy Wednesday.

Prince Mashhur Ibn Saud, 18th of the King's 21 sons, was scheduled to enter famed Walter Reed Army Medical Center this morning for an examination by some of the nation's top specialists.

IF EVE HADN'T KNOWN
WASHINGTON—Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla.) thinks the earth would be unpopulated if Eve had been as ignorant about fruit trees as the senator claims President Eisenhower is. Kerr said he "was amazed to read" that the President, during his recent tour of the nation's drought areas, "mistook a peach tree for an apple tree."

Relations Between U. S., Japan May Face Serious Test

TOKYO—Relations between the United States and Japan may face a serious test as a result of reported American desires to intensify restrictions on exports to Communist China.

The American move comes while the Japanese are making plans to increase their sales to Red China. It also follows close on the heels of an agreement to limit Japanese textile sales in the United States.

The Japanese probably would strongly resist any request which would result in reducing the number of items that now can be shipped to Communist areas. The Japanese are complying with the law prepared by the Coordinating Committee for Export Control.

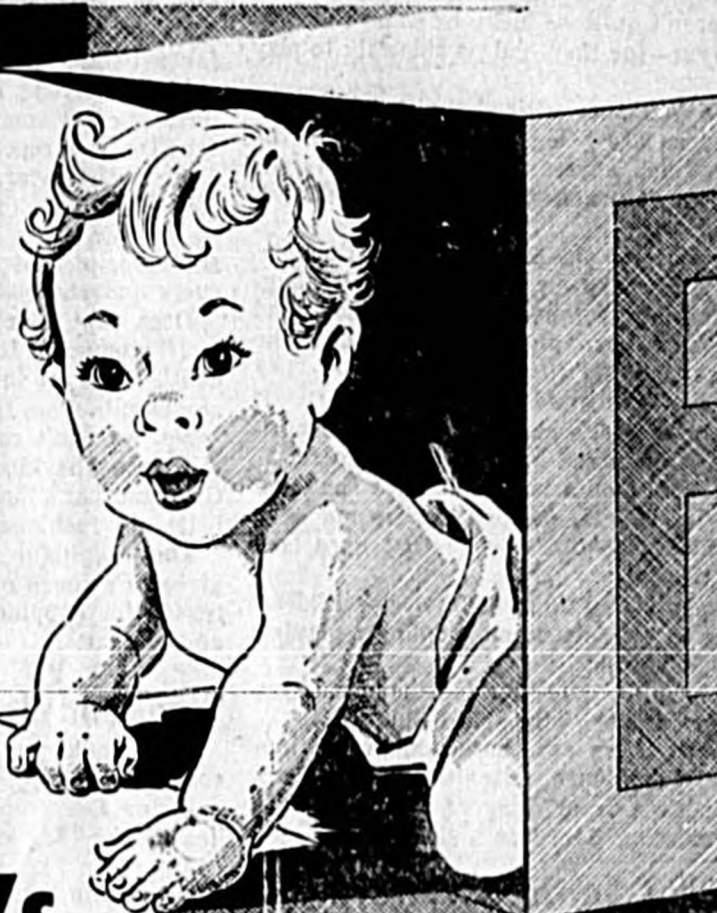

There has been a drive here to get the list of approved items expanded. Increased trade with Red China is one of the aims of the new Ishibashi cabinet.

really an ignorance of fundamentals," Kerr said. "Just think, if Eve hadn't known the difference between an apple and a peach, what a barren world this would be."

Sidewalks Needed For Children To Play On Instead Of In Street

Something has been missing for quite sometime—but to discover what that missing item might be took days upon days to find.

Traveling through crowded areas, new subdivisions, across town and out of town, eyes were constantly on the alert for something that has been missing.

Finally, a sign started the unfolding of that missing bug-a-boo.

The sign read "Careful—Drive Slowly—Children at Play."

It had a special meaning for in that sign was the solution to the item that was missing.

True, one had to be very careful driving, for there was no alternative. Children riding bikes were all about—there were children with their new skates skidding in front of the car—to the side several youngsters digging sand from the gutter—youths jumping rope with the ends of the rope in opposite curbs being held by the two young girls who were "it."

There were youngsters chasing footballs, basketballs, baseballs—playing with wagons and scooters, dolls and tea sets.

And there was the answer—these children weren't quite so lucky as some that had been seen—for they had no sidewalk to play on.

Have you ever noticed that? Children are being forced to play in the street which causes more and more signs to go up "Caution—Children At Play—Drive Slow."

Did you ever skate up and down the sidewalk? And ride your bike? Push a doll buggy? Play hop scotch? And the thousand and one things boys and girls do today the same as they did 40 years ago.

But you had a sidewalk.

To be sure—it's modern to have a beautiful lawn unmarred by a strip of concrete. But, then again, you don't have that row of salvia, violets, pansies, or anyone of a myriad of beautiful flowers that once bordered sidewalks.

Anyway—it's that difference—children playing in the street and children playing on the sidewalk.

One is safe—the other is dangerous! One is modern and the other old-fashioned.

Perhaps there are those who would like to be old-fashioned but still have their children free from danger.

The missing item was a sidewalk!

Many Short-Changed On Education

By LOUIS CASSELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — At least 10 million American kids are being short-changed on their education because of the nation's school-room shortage.

That is the "conservative" estimate of education officials here. It is based on surveys by the U. S. Office of Education, the National Education Assn. and other agencies.

These surveys show that at least 40,000 children, mostly in the primary grades, are attending public schools in shifts this year. They are on half-day or other part-time class schedules.

Another 5.7 million elementary school children are trying to learn how to read, spell and multiply in classrooms that have 35 or more students in them. To say that 35 children of this age "overcrowd" a classroom and make teaching difficult is, in the opinion of educators, a massive understatement. Thirty is considered a maximum for effective teaching and many experts favor 20 or less.

Many Schools Dilapidated
Finally, upward of 3.5 million children are attending schools which are so old as to be dilapidated and, in some cases, dangerous. Nearly a fifth of all U. S. schools are more than 50 years old; some in use are close to 100 years old. These schools lack the facilities for ordinary comfort, let alone the use of modern educational techniques.

This is the situation that President Eisenhower wants Congress to relieve with a four-year, $2.3 billion federal aid program.

New Fangled Foods

No thanks, we don't care for new fangled foods either.

We prefer a dinner, like we had in the home of our beloved Grandmother when we visited at her farm in the 1910s to 1915 era.

Sure, she served turkey and chicken with lot of trimmings but that wasn't all. There was also a dish filled with half a dozen ham hocks and sauerkraut. Her home made bread cooked in dutch ovens in the back yard, covered with butter and home made strawberry or blackberry jam, was a treat. We finished with a wedge of mince pie and then came a round of cup cakes or gingerbread which had been immersed in a mixture of brown sugar and honey. The coffee which was passed around in a huge silver pot, had been brewed from famous old Arabbucks which cost less than a quarter a pound. Grandmother's coffee was strong enough that even the aroma was not soon forgotten.

Grandad sat at the head of the table and constantly invited guests to have more of this and that. Wonder what he would have said if Grandmother had put before him some of the foods reported to be gaining favor today.

If you haven't seen the list it will be interesting to you to know that escargots (snails) are reported to be quite popular, along with caviar, fried grasshoppers, kangaroo tail soup, rattlesnake meat, octopus on skewer, baby bees in soy sauce, shark fin soup, pickled cockles, roasted locusts and chocolate covered ants.

Does that give you a queasy feeling in your stomach? It's true, these weird and exotic foods are in demand, which merchants say results from the new gastronomic trend.

No, we don't care for them either. We'll still take the kind of dinner served at Grandmother's home even if it may be a little old fashioned.

The delightful memory of that occasion gives us a touch of nostalgia and is another reason for happiness at this particular time of the year.

Weekend Jail Sentence

How would you like to spend your week ends in jail?

A new law proposed for the North Carolina General Assembly, with the approval of the State Prison Advisory Council, would allow certain "minor offenders" to continue their week-day jobs but spend nights and weekends in prison. They would be required to turn earnings over to the prison department, which would deduct the cost of the prisoner's maintenance and turn the remainder over to the Welfare Department for the use of the prisoner's family.

What's the advantage of such an odd procedure? First of all, according to Prison Director William F. Bailey, "it would find a place for the violator who is somewhere between the man placed on probation and the man given a prison sentence." Many of these violators would be persons convicted of breaking traffic regulations, who would get "a little dose of prison" to remind them to be more careful in the future. Their innocent families, however, would not be deprived of their support.

One of the best advantages of the plan is that it would encourage lenient judges to bear down more heavily on first offenders in traffic cases, for if these first offenders are allowed to get off scot-free, they are all too likely to turn up in court again as serious offenders responsible for someone's death or injury. Try and Stop Me

By BINNETT CERN

TWO DYED-RED-IN-THE-WOOL Communists met, reports Joe E. Lewis, and one of them beamed. "At last I've got me a visa for Moscow! I'm off tomorrow. Now for vodka, women and caviar! Why don't you come with me?"

"I want to be sure first," said the cautious one. "I wish you'd write me after you get settled—if it's good or not."

"That crazy I'm not," was the response. "If I don't like it, I wouldn't dare tell you so on paper."

"Not if we have a code," said the comrade. "If it's good, use black ink. If it stinks, red ink."

Two months went by. Finally the Comrade who stayed in America got a letter from his pal. It read: "Russia is mostest and bestest. You can get anything—vodka, like I told you, and caviar, and women—in fact, everything but red ink."

Living Costs Rise Last Month

By MAUREN GUTLIN

WASHINGTON — The government has reported that the cost of living climbed to another record high last month, boosting consumer prices nearly 2 per cent above December a year ago.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics BLS reported that the average factory worker's take-home pay rose to a new high in December. His purchasing power likewise hit a new record despite the rise in living costs.

The Bureau said its cost of living index rose two-tenths of one per cent of average 1947-49 prices. December to a new high of 118 per cent of average 1947-49 prices. It was the sixth month out of the last seven that living costs have reached new peaks.

Pay Boosts
The increase brought pay boosts ranging from one to three cents an hour for about 500,000 workers in the electrical, aircraft and trucking and other transport industries. Their wage contracts have escalation clauses tied to living costs.

President Eisenhower, in two recent messages to Congress, has warned of the danger of runaway inflation. He appealed to industry and labor to exercise "self-discipline" in holding down price and wage increases.

The BLS said higher housing costs were chiefly responsible for last month's increase in its consumer index. Commissioner Ewan Clague said rents rose more than usual, reflecting the rise in home owners costs, particularly interest rates.

Coal, Oil Up
The Bureau reported higher prices for home maintenance and repair, coal, fuel oil, gas, electricity, some household furnishings, laundry, dry cleaning and domestic service. Average prices of food

Help Kids To Realize What Christmas Means

By HERMAN H. BUNNELL, M.D.

If there are young children in your home anxiously awaiting the visit of Santa Claus this evening, there is something I wish you would do.

Even if Santa is the one who traditionally decorates the tree on Christmas Eve, I suggest you change the scheme of things to let the older youngsters help Mom and Dad trim the tree tonight.

And while the family is doing the decorating, or maybe after it is finished, sing some carols.

Religious Significance
Take time, too, to explain the religious significance of this hallowed day.

Let even your tiny tots prepare and wrap the presents they are giving to each other.

Suggest that they leave Christmas cards for the milkman and let them pick out the cards they want to give him. Better still, let them make their own cards.

Now I know all this means a lot, however, because of pretty hectic Christmas Eve for your youngsters. But there's a lasting blood.

purpose behind my proposition. The youngsters will realize that there is more to Christmas than just waiting for a jolly old gent in a red suit whom they never see.

This will help to prepare them for the disillusionment that all children suffer to some extent as they grow older and learn more about good old St. Nicholas.

I don't want to tire the children unnecessarily. If one or two of the suggestions I've given you take up the entire evening, all right.

You can repeat them and some of the others next year during the days preceding Christmas. Eventually, your youngster will be glad you did. You will be, too.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
J. B.: Is there any danger from a blood transfusion?

Answer: Transfusions can cause serious illness if the blood is improperly matched. This rare-ly occurs, however, because of modern methods of typing and your youngsters. But there's a lasting blood.

Britain, Yemen Fight Informal War

By CHARLES M. McCANN

Foreign News Commentary
United Press Staff Correspondent
Great Britain and the kingdom of Yemen are fighting an informal war at the southwestern tip of the Arabian Peninsula.

Britain accuses Yemen of engaging in raids on the frontier of the British colony of Aden, one of the key naval bases of the world. Yemen accuses Britain of attacking its territory with British troops and war planes.

Yemen appealed to the United States on January 12 to intervene against the alleged British aggression.

The British-Yemen fighting has been going on at intervals for years.

The "battles" usually engage anywhere from a dozen or two men to a couple of hundred on each side.

But behind the fighting is competition for oil, Russian intrigue, and an attempt by Arab nationalists to throw the British out of their positions in the Arabian Peninsula.

How Big As U. S.

The peninsula does not look very big on the map. But it covers about 1.35 million square miles—nearly half the size of the continental United States.

Saudi Arabia occupies about four-fifths of it. The remainder includes Aden, Yemen and a tangle of "sheikdoms," some of them with immensely rich oil resources, under British protection.

Yemen made it known recently that it had started to get arms from Czechoslovakia through the Soviet Russian government.

Britain accuses Saudi Arabia of aiding the Yemen tribesmen who are engaging in frontier fighting.

There seems to be no doubt that both the Soviet government and President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt are stirring up the tribesmen—Russia in pursuit of its new campaign of penetration in the Middle East and Nasser as part of his general anti-British campaign.

Sporadic fighting along the Yemen-Aden border has been due in the past to the fact that the frontier never has been firmly fixed. But it increased in its significance because of the discovery of undeveloped oil deposits in the Yemen-Aden border region.

Enter Oil
This brings oil into the picture. The United States and Britain exploit most of the great oil deposits on the Arabian Peninsula. Competition in the oil industry is as tough as that in any industry in the world. Oil men don't talk. But rivalry for the newly discovered Yemen-Aden deposits is likely to play its part in the situation as it develops in coming months and years.

King Saud of Saudi Arabia, who has a lot of oil but wouldn't mind having more, is likely to take part in the Yemen-Aden situation with President Eisenhower when he arrives in Washington Jan. 30 for a state visit.

Yemen would like to take over the entire British colony of Aden, to which it claims it is entitled. Britain has no intention of giving up Aden. Aside from possible oil development, Aden now has an important oil refinery. In addition, it is of great strategic importance as a naval base. It lies on the southwest tip of Arabia, where the Red Sea and the Arabian Sea meet. It thus commands the southern approaches to the Suez Canal.

With Russia, Egypt, Saudi Arabia and the United States involved or potentially involved in the Yemen-Aden situation, a lot more is likely to be heard of it.

Conning The News

Charley's Aunt, as done by Player's Inc. was the success of the season so far. I believe in the Mutual Concert series. There was a large crowd on hand for the performance Tuesday night at the Pinerest School. The play was smoothly done, and the audience responded with laughter to the amusing situation in the play itself. The set was lovely, and the costumes well designed. Seats at the school were Rita Bauer, Doreen and Tom Killiney, Allie and Mildred Lopez, Bob and Anita Haden, Cy and Ann Fliton, Betty Lemox, Jim Guy, Bill Steason, Betts and Doe Linker, Kay and Ben King, Cliff and Jane McKibbin, Harry and Bill Jean Robinson, Betty Tully, Bill Hallett, Ruth and Joe Tully, all of the Roommates, and of course many, many others.
Wednesday was Ladies Day at the Main Country Club, but it certainly didn't help my score any. Comic relief was provided by a little Boston Bull who laid in wait by the eighth tee for our drives. Then he would chase the ball and chew on it for awhile before giving it up in a mutilated condition. This can be very distracting. If you have a good drive, but if at least you get the benefit of the doubt and can throw the ball where you think it should have been. Joan Fliton found a baby turtle which was finally abandoned on the putting green. And I guess there is little else to write about the golf course, unless this column is to appear on the sports page.
Am so glad to see the new column for the enlisted people "Now Hear This" by Betty O'Connor and Irene Dulek. It is very well done, and there has been a need for one for a long time. These girls do so many things that should be brought into the public eye, aside from their social activities. It's all off to "Now Hear This!"
There has been some misunderstanding about the ticket exchange of the High Fever Follies. If you are a patron, your ticket will be delivered to you, and you need not go to the box office, just tell the patron committee what night you want to come. All seats are reserved, even those costing $1.50. So no matter what you buy, if you are not a patron, go to the Box Office Exchange booth at the Chamber of Commerce next week, and pick out your seat in the section allotted. The booth will open Wednesday at 11:00.

'Daily Lives' Is Devotional Topic At Class Meeting

Mrs. R. F. Crenshaw presided over the meeting of the Truth Seekers Sunday School Class which was held Monday afternoon at McKinley Hall.
The devotional chairman, Mrs. Lee Anderson, opened the meeting with the singing of several of the old church hymns. Her scripture was part of the 6th Chapter of Matthew, and the subject was "Living Our Daily Lives." She closed the devotional with prayer.
The Sunshine chairman gave a report on Christmas, and birthday and Sunshine cards were sent to members of the class.
The routine business meeting of the class was then conducted. The hostesses, Mrs. J. B. Crawford and Mrs. W. S. Thornton served refreshments to the following: Mrs. R. F. Crenshaw, Mrs. T. E. Wilson, Mrs. Octavia Rumbley, Mrs. F. P. Hickock, a new member, Mrs. C. L. Hewson, Mrs. W. P. Castle, Mrs. R. W. Turner, Mrs. Lee Anderson, Mrs. W. P. Chapman, Mrs. W. J. Davis, Mrs. C. H. Tate, Mrs. Frank Bush, Mrs. J. F. McClellan, Mrs. L. E. White, Mrs. Mabel Blount, and the teacher, J. H. Stephan and Mrs. Stephan.
During the refreshment hour, Mr. Stephan offered a special prayer for a member of the class who is very ill in the hospital, and other sick members of the church.

'Fluid' Shape Is Featured At Spring Fashion Showing

By BARBARA MILLER
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS 40 — Designer Pierre Balmain unveiled his spring silhouette today to world fashion experts, here to decide the "shape" of feminine figures for the next six months.
Thus far the haute couture collections are taking a "fluid" shape. Loose, mobile and drapable styles, or "frou" and "mou" as the French put it, have been interpreted by Jean Paulou, Jacques Heim and Coco Chanel.
But late Monday, young Pierre Cardin presented the best collection seen this season.
Cardin, considered to be up and coming by the fashion world, won fame the past year for his coats and suits, eagerly sought by American buyers.
He is the first "fluid line" to flow gracefully and have a cut and technique almost impossible to copy.
To date, many of the "loose look" clothes could be thrown together in a day or so by most amateur dressmakers.
Patou filled his collection with silk and organdy dresses composed of a simple shirred skirt tacked on to a shapeless blouse which refused to fit the wearers' waists, wide "gullotine necklines" and wide shapeless sleeves.
Heim presented a more luxurious version of the old fashioned peg-top skirts, blown up at night like a balloon, but collapsing slowly through the daylight hours. A "revolutionary" cut, he said.
But Cardin's "almond" shape drapes has a grace and simplicity making it difficult to describe. In dresses, it falls from a high waist, with a scooped harem-like drape, to the hemline.
All couturiers prefer high rounded bustlines, rounded shoulders and long swan-like necks.
Short hemlines, 16 inches up, are in the majority. Dior's ankle-length skirts, his "new look" bombshell of last season, have not as yet appeared.

MRS. JAMES P. MITCHELL (top right), wife of the Secretary of Labor, calls at the white House and collects Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower's contribution to the 1957 Mothers' March on Polo. Some four million mothers will take part in the nationwide fund drive. At bottom are two of the dresses that were shown at the March of Dimes Fashion Show in New York on January 28. At left, Betty Bridges models a $2,000 ball gown. It is embroidered with gold-plated beads. At right, Dorothea McCarthy wears a bell-shaped tulle silhouette of Swiss organdy, which is completely hand-embroidered in flame motifs.

Shellcraft Expert To Be Here Feb. 7

Don Rice, of Orlando, expert in the art of shellcraft, will be in Sanford on Feb. 7, from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., at the County Council Center, 401 25th St.
Anyone interested in learning something about this art is invited to drop into the center anytime during the day. Mrs. Alan Boutwell, president of the Lake Mary Demonstration Club, will be on hand to help Mr. Rice with his demonstrations. A special invitation is being extended to the members of the Osteen Club, in Volusia County, who have expressed a great deal of interest in shellcraft.

Brighten His Breakfast

For winter mornings, serve a platter of grilled sausages and Eggs Baked in English Muffins.

If the man in your house takes pride in reporting the reading on his outside thermometer on blustery winter mornings the chances are that his appetite, at the same time, starts roaring. This is the season for hearty man-sized breakfasts—little pig sausages and eggs at their best, baked in English muffins.
Baked eggs add welcome variety and the use of table-ready English muffins, purchased from bakery or food mart, is the easiest way to bake eggs. Breakfasts need to be simple all the way with no later fussy washing of sticky, baking pans.
Eggs Baked in English Muffins
4 large English muffins
4 eggs
4 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
4 teaspoons cream or milk
1/4 cup grated process cheese
Using a 3-inch cookie cutter, remove a center circle from each English muffin, but allow crust and bottom layer to remain. Lift out circle with a fork. Spread inside of muffins and circles with butter. Place on a baking sheet. Break an egg into each cutout muffin and cover it with 1 teaspoon cream and 1 tablespoon of cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for about 15 minutes, or until eggs are soft-cooked and set. Bake muffin cutouts and serve separately.

Sleep-Inducing Tricks Help You To Dreamland

HERMAN M. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Do you have a difficult time getting to sleep? Well, maybe these suggestions will help speed you off to slumber.

Warm baths or showers usually are helpful, since they soothe you and calm your nerves. But don't wash. Take a leisurely bath.

Avoid cold baths or showers at night. Cold water is invigorating. It's fine for waking you in the morning, but it might hamper your sleep at night.

Soft Music

Listening to soft music on your radio or phonograph might help you get to sleep. Clock radios which switch off by themselves are useful—providing you don't like awake listening for them to click off.

Dr. Henry Dantzig, author of "Radio Your Bedtime" in "Blue Print for Health," advises music from woodwind and string instruments as especially relaxing.

Don't be cautious, try to go to sleep listening to loud, fast brass music or martial airs. Like a cold shower or bath, these should be reserved for waking you in the morning.

Reading May Help

You might find reading for 15 or 20 minutes relaxing. But don't expect to read an exciting "blood-and thunder" novel and then quickly drift off to peaceful dreams. Stories of violence are apt to excite you and wake you instead of calming your body and mind.

One night, recently, I read a story of a World War II naval aviator in which the skipper of a destroyer remained on the bridge for something like 48 hours or so. While the action was exciting, the captain's almost utter exhaustion made me feel tired, too. I soon dropped off to sleep.

Regular Routine

It's probably better to incorporate these suggestions into your regular pre-bedtime routine; that is, each night take a warm bath, listen to the radio or read a little.

These final acts will serve as a signal that your day is through. They will tell you that it is time to go to sleep.

For the last four days we've been talking about how to sleep. Tomorrow we'll discuss how to avoid fatigue.

Teen-Agers Learn About Art Cliches

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. —The root of the painter's inspiration in the world of "visual cliches" is the object of a research study conducted with teenagers at Rutgers University.

The youngsters, ranging in age from 12 to 15, are students of Samuel G. Weiner, an assistant art professor at the university, who is conducting the project for the Peoples Art Center of the Museum of Modern Art in New York City.

The topic is "Visual Cliches and Stereotypes in the Art of Children."

Weiner, an artist who has taught in the field for 10 years, said artistic cliches—fixed expression forms—are gradually eliminated from the child's realm through exercises and criticism.

"He is, if he responds, capable of expressing himself in a more varied and personal way," Weiner said.

The professor said elimination of the "cliches" calls for re-education of the subject in his misconception that art is primarily a skill rather than feeling and thinking. This is easier with teen-agers, who have limited realms of experience. "Visual cliches at their worst represent one of the strongest types of intellectual and emotional conformity," Weiner said. "This leads to insensitivity for it surps the individual's right to create his own world."

A work of art is more than a "picture," Weiner emphasized: it is a symbolic exhibition of a person's own attitude toward himself and society.

Weiner said his research project, which tries to help the students achieve "honest and vigorous expression," is aimed at determining how other persons than proven artists can learn to express themselves artistically.

Coating Medicinal Tablet Is An Art

BUFFALO, N. Y. —Skill in the coat business is not confined to tailors, according to Albert Manton and Edward W. Hepp, who have been outfitting medicinal tablets by the millions for over 30 years for a pharmaceutical manufacturer (Arner).

They pointed out that the tablet tailor's job is a tough one, for too much or too little color can ruin a batch containing 25,000 to 1,000,000 units, worth more than $50,000.

Too much color is about the same as no color at all as it will wash off previous applications. And too little will result in color variations that neither distributors nor consumers would accept.

They give each of their tiny subjects as many as 18 or 20 coats, with some special tablets requiring up to 73 coats where a particular action medication is desired.

Color is applied by pouring or spraying to rolling tablets to insure color distribution.

TIME TO TELL your young fry the facts of life? You might borrow a leaf from Donald Ogden Stewart, who wrote his pride and joy as follows: "Dear Boy: Now that you have reached the magic age of 14, the time has come to tell you about the bees and flowers. There is a male bee and a female bee, although I haven't the slightest idea which is which. As for the flowers—we get ours from the Plaza Florists, Inc. Well, that takes care of that. Write soon. Affectionately, Dad."

At the Miss America contest, the fair representatives of the states of New Hampshire and Alabama met in the dressing room. "We might as well face it," sighed the miss from New England. "Men are all alike." The Alabama beauty smiled her agreement, and murmured, "Men are all Ah like too."

A famous after-dinner speaker was invited to preside over a convention banquet of psychiatrists. "I suppose," he conjectured, "they expect me to lie down and say a few words."

All 1956 Economy Activity Shoots To Record High

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Federal Reserve Board reported today that virtually all economic activities shot to record highs in 1956 and prospects point to an even better year in 1957.

The Board reported expansion in such key economic areas as personal income and savings, industrial production, business spending for plants and equipment and the gross national product the total output of all goods and services.

Tight Money

The Board said in its monthly bulletin that the only weak spot last year was in farm machinery purchases and in new housing starts. It said this generally reflected the difficulty of obtaining loans in the "tight money" market.

The Board's optimistic report generally was echoed by a panel of economists who appeared before the House-Senate Economic Committee, which is studying President Eisenhower's recent economic report to Congress.

Ewan Clague, head of the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, predicted "more stability in the price picture" if there is only a moderate increase in available consumer credit and if other factors held steady.

A Good Year

George Katona of the University of Michigan said large consumer purchases will help make 1957 "a good year." He warned of some "soft spots" in the consumer outlook.

Oris V. Wells, administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Service, said demand for farm products is expected to continue strong. He cautioned that there may be some cut in farm marketings as a result of smaller hog production and diversion of land to the soil bank.

Martin R. Galbraith, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board, told the committee the outlook is good for business spending for plants and equipment.

The Federal Reserve Board said a private business survey shows that for the full year 1957, business anticipates expenditures for fixed investment 11 per cent above the record 1956 level.

It reported that the gross national product climbed to a new

Fewer Hurricanes Are Seen For U.S.

NEW YORK — The United States appears to be in for fewer hurricanes during the next few years.

Gordon E. Dunn, head of the weather bureau at Miami, said there is evidence that the Atlantic area is moving from a period of maximum to minimum hurricane frequency.

But Dunn cautioned that even in a period of reduced frequency, an average of one or two hurricanes probably would strike the United States each year.

Dunn, attending the 150th national meeting of the American Meteorological Society, said hurricanes tend to occur in cycles lasting about 20 years. The latest cycle, he said, began with the 1938 hurricane that lashed the East Coast.

Authorities, Dunn said, believe the weather in this area is passing from a warm cycle to a cold cycle. He noted that hurricanes occur less frequently during a cold cycle.

high of 412 billion dollars last year "in response to further expansion in demands for goods and services." This was an increase of 22 billion dollars over 1955.

The gross national product increased 5.5 per cent between 1955 and 1956. This was a slight decrease from the 8 per cent rise recorded in 1955 when the economy recovered from a minor recession.

Tooth Decay Begins In Childhood Years

By HERMAN M. BUNDESEN, M.D.

TOOTH decay is more common among children than any other disease. Yet, surprisingly, too few parents do much, or even know much, about preventing it.

Decayed Teeth

According to recent surveys, at least 90 per cent of the nation's schoolchildren have one or more decayed teeth. And the teeth of youngsters under the age of 14 are decaying six times as fast as the cavities are being filled.

The average boy between the ages of 13 and 19 has at least five teeth which need fillings. And most adults have a minimum of one cavity right now.

In fact, only about two per cent of the nation's population never experiences any tooth decay.

Dental caries destroys the enamel and the body of the tooth. Research indicates that cavities are caused primarily by the action of certain bacteria on fermentable carbohydrates, especially sugar. The resulting fermentation produces an acid that can and often does dissolve the tooth structure.

Outside of Tooth

Decay always begins from the outside of a tooth, never from the inside. It may attack in a variety of locations, depending on the shape of the tooth and its position with relation to adjacent teeth.

The spots most vulnerable to decay are the crevices and fissures and the surfaces that are in contact with adjoining teeth. One decayed tooth surface may cause other surfaces to decay.

Most toothaches are caused by decay and warn that a tooth needs repair.

When It Begins

Usually, decay begins at an early age. And that is when a child has no great interest in his general health. There are other things, baseball, football and the like, which are much more important to him.

So it's up to you parents to make sure your youngsters' teeth get the proper care.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

H. R.: Can fractures occur without injury?

Answer: At certain times, fractures occur due to bone disease. In such cases, the bone is eaten away, so that in the normal process of walking and moving, the bone may break or fracture.

"CHAPTER 32
"Dick still talking of coming up to New York Christmas?" Bill asked Pricilla.
She smiled. "That's what he says. Rita doesn't believe it, though."
"Do you?"
"I'm keeping my fingers crossed." Her voice sounded gay. Then she said, more soberly, "Yes, Bill, I do believe it."
"Right lead to a serious situation, you know?"
Pricilla looked at him inquiringly, and he said, "Matrimony."
"Oh—"
"I'm talking like a Dutch uncle, Pricilla. Dick is a fine fellow, but if the visit should lead to the serious situation, matrimony, have you thought how you would like living in a place like Apalachicola? I imagine day in, day out, year in and year out, it would be deadly monotonous."
"It isn't monotonous for Peggy. And yes, I've thought of it." She turned her gaze off to the sea, to the far horizon where land and sky seemed to meet, and said simply, "I know of nothing in the world I would love more than to live here always, with all this beauty and the quietness and peace."
"And hurricanes," Bill added, watching her.
"That wasn't bad. And they strike other places, too. Seems Florida is getting sort of a breathing spell from hurricanes and it's the Eastern states that are getting them now." She was silent for a moment. "Of course if Dick doesn't like me that much, then all this will be remembered as a lovely interlude. I shall never forget it, but it will be just that—an interlude."
"I think he'll come, Pricilla. And I'm sure that for him it is more than an interlude."
"If I had never come to Apalachicola—" She left the sentence suspended.
"But that was fate," Bill said. "She has a way of arranging her cards."
"They're not arranged that way yet," Pricilla said lightly, "but it's all wonderful, anyway."
One of the men said, "This is it, Duval. There she is."
Pricilla had no idea what he meant. The excitement in his voice made little chills go up and down her spine.
There were several boats tied up at the dock at the island, dim lights twinkling, but there was no sign of life anywhere.

"We're coming in now, Pricilla," Bill said. "You stay out of sight. I'll let these fellows handle this. It isn't quite time for me to enter the picture."
"What did they mean when they said, 'There she is'? Are they looking for someone?"
"Boats are called 'she.' It's Red Gallagher's shrimp boat they're referring to. See it over there, all the lights out?"
The men approached the boat while Pricilla and Bill watched unseen.
Gallagher pretended to have just awakened in response to their call.
One of the government men said, "Sorry to have bothered you, but we're inspecting all boats in the harbor. Over here and in Apalachicola."
"In the middle of the night?" Gallagher asked, barely concealing the panic he was feeling.
"That's right. We're doing it now."
"Ain't nothing on my boat to interest you. If you're looking for something, why don't you look on them nifty boats?" Gallagher had been on the watch all night for the government boat. He had seen the little cabin cruiser approaching, but had suspected nothing.
"Why are you anchored over here?"
"Wanted to get an early start. Too many boats over there."
"Well, we'll have to come aboard."
"Nobody ain't coming on my boat this time of night," Gallagher said stubbornly. "Ain't nothing here, anyway. Who are you?"
The man turned back the lapel of his coat. His badge was plainly discernible even in the dim light. Gallagher's eyes bulged, and he swallowed.
"What's that covered with tarpaulin?"
"Bait, boxes, ballast," Gallagher said, his voice shaking a little. He seemed rooted to the spot. He had had nightmares of just such an experience. Alvarez had been so cocky, so sure nothing could go wrong.
"We'll take a look," Bill strolled up, his right hand in his coat pocket. He said, "Hello, Gallagher."
"You bin snoopin' around here

a long time, haven't you?"
"Oh, he's one of us," the government man said lightly. "We're going to have to ask you some questions."
"You can ask," the fisherman said, shrugging. He had a gun in his pocket, too. But he knew that Bill would be quicker than he with a gun. Besides, he wouldn't get anywhere that way. The others were armed, too. He didn't have a chance against the three of them.
Bill said, "You were talking to a couple down on the dock this morning."
"What couple?"
"A man and a woman."
"I talked to lots of people this morning."
"These two later went aboard the Silver Song."
Gallagher shrugged. "How would I know about that? Lots of people asked about that boat; guess some of them wanted to see it. What's that got to do with me?"
"Do you know who they were?" Bill persisted. "What their business was in Apalachicola?"
"I don't know what you're talking about."
"Gallagher, I think it will be better for you if you talk."
Gallagher looked at him and said nothing.
"That couple left town a short while ago."
"The fisherman's expression did not change."
"But they didn't get very far," Bill said softly. "They were stopped in Port St. Joe."
"I don't know nothing about it," Gallagher said.
One of the men said, "And now we'll take a look around, especially under the tarpaulins." Gallagher himself lifted the tarpaulin. As he had said, there were boxes of fish bait, ropes, ballast, and a general mixture of odds and ends.
The man's flashlight played over the boat.
"It's like I told you," Gallagher said, a little bravely in his voice. "Ain't nothing here."
"You're under arrest, Gallagher!"
"Because of what is contained in the two small chests under those things. Your junk doesn't quite cover them, you see."

Memories in Motion

Some time ago an item in a newspaper caught our attention. It was datelined Hollywood and the headline in bold print proclaimed, "Now It's 'Do-It-Yourself' Movies." The article went on to explain that famous names in the Hollywood movie industry had suddenly discovered how much fun it was to make their own home movies—with their own cameras, their own homes, their children, their neighbors and neighborhood activities given star billing.
Well, if anybody had asked us, we'd have told them just what we've been telling all of you now for a long time—that home movie-making's more fun than winning an "Oscar!"
With a movie camera in hand—and you can now own one for as little as $29.95—every family activity is a potential scenario. The children at play with a new pet... the family on a vacation... visitors at the house... a sports event or a civic parade—the possibilities are practically endless. And, in every case, a few reels of film can capture these happy times so vividly that they can be relived by the family and shared by your friends every time you show movies on your home screen.
For home movies that are every bit as smooth as the professional product, there are a few simple points to remember. First of all, plan your story theme in advance—whether it's Father on the fair-

Minimum Range Of Russian Missile Said Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson says the United States must assume that H-bomb missiles launched by Russian submarines can reach any spot within at least 200 miles of the American coast and in the future may reach everywhere in the nation.
The Washington Democrat, a member of the Senate Armed Services and Senate House Atomic Energy committees, said in an interview that Russian missiles now "have a minimum capability of 200 miles, and maybe in excess of that."
He said U. S. development of similar missiles is "lagging."
"We have to assume that the Russians have the ability to launch atomic and hydrogen warheads on these missiles from submarines," Jackson said.
"When Russia obtains the intermediate range ballistic missile ICBM which will travel 1,500 miles and adapt it to launching from submarines, she will then be able

BOTH NBC AND ABC ARE trying to get Bing Crosby's signature on a TV contract, now that his long-time deal with CBS has expired. Whoever gets him, however, will get only one or two shows a year out of him. He may still do one more 90-minute spectacular for CBS... Dinah Shore wants—and will probably get—Nanette Fabray for her February show. She'll have Dinah Shore coming up for a third time, too, when she finishes her current five week, 10-city goodwill and benefit tour... There will be an impressive lineup of supporting actors for the Audrey Hepburn-Mel Ferrer "Mayerling" show on Producer's Showcase. Those signed include Diana Wynyard, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Raymond Massey and Judith Evelyn... Charles Boyer, formerly with Four Star Playhouse, has signed with a new TV agent and is seeking a new television series... La Traviata, scheduled for NBC's TV Opera Theater next month has been postponed till March.

NBC PLANNING AT LEAST THREE shows on the current Navy expedition to the Antarctic as soon as its correspondents accompanying the expedition return with their film, probably in March or April... ABC, now scouring the TV woods for a new live dramatic series, has let it be known it wants one with a gimmick... Paul Ford, the Colonel Hall of the Phil Silvers Show, set for the male lead opposite Shirley Booth in the upcoming movie, The Matchmaker... Dagmar and her husband, Danny Dayton, guest on the Silvers' show in February and will do a spoof of—the Silvers' Show... Steve Allen taking a page from Ed Sullivan's book has signed Lilli Palmer and Yehudi Menuhin for upcoming shows... Frances Langford has been signed as one of the five singers to appear in the new color film series, Five Star Show... Hal March has changed his mind about doing the George M. Cohan spectacular and NBC has signed Mickey Rooney for the show...

I LOVE LUCY'S DESILU PRODUCTIONS will plow $21,420,000 back into the business in 1957... taking note Eddie Fisher and Edward R. Murrow will take part in the salute to Eddie Cantor. One of Jackie Gleason's vacation spots will be turned over to a salute to Eddie on his 55th birthday... NBC is revamping its daily 7:30 to 8 P.M. time period. It will drop the present quarter hour shows (Dinah Shore, Eddie Fisher, Jonathan Winters, Nat King Cole, and Chat Huntley and David Brinkley) and replace them with five new half-hour shows... Bob Hope's Christmas Show, filmed in Alaska, cost him $25,000 over the budget. Came out of his own pocket... Lady of Tangiers, new hour-long film series planned for Corinne Calvet, will be produced entirely in Italy, utilizing some of the Captain Gallant exterior sets... Test films for two new color series, Pioneer Trails and Fort Courageous, will be made in Hollywood in March and April.

Italy To Restrict Velvetene Quota

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department has announced that Italy has informed the United States it intends to restrict 1957 shipments of velvetene to this country to 1,375,000 square yards.

Italy's move to limit shipments to the United States of cotton-backed velvetene came just two weeks after Japan's announcement it would sharply cut her velvetene shipments to the United States during 1957.

The department said the Italian government informed the U. S. of its decision to impose a voluntary quota on Jan. 17. The department said the information was made public today "in view of the number of inquiries received on this question."

The Italian quota for 1957 represents a reduction of more than 25 per cent below 1953 shipments to this country from Italy of 1,800,000 square yards. Italian figures for 1956 are not yet available.

The Japanese on Jan. 16 announced that they would hold down their velvetene exports to the U. S. in 1957 to 2,500,000 square yards, a reduction of 50 per cent from the estimated 5 million square yards they sent here in 1954.

Last year's resentment against the large volume of Japanese textiles being imported was reflected by the passage in South Carolina and Alabama of state laws aimed at curtailing the sale of Japanese textiles in those states. A similar law has been introduced in the Georgia Legislature.

On the basis of information available here, there has not been similar action against Italian velvetene.

PERSONALITY PINPOINTS

from EDWARD R. MURROW'S "PERSON TO PERSON" on CBS-TV

ARTIST, author, gourmet, Ludwig Bemelmans divulged to Edward R. Murrow on "Person to Person" that he plans to take along his own trailer—completely outfitted as a kitchen—on his next painting tour of the U. S. Although he'll stay in hotels, Bemelmans will eat all his meals (prepared for him by a chef who'll go along from Le Pavillon) in the trailer.

While Janet Murrow had never appeared on television before she sat in for her husband while he was out of the country, she follows the fortunes and misfortunes of "Person to Person" closely. She too can be critical of Ed on occasion. One such incident occurred when Murrow returned home after a Janet Murrow telecast with UN Secretary Dag Hammarskjöld. Ed asked her how it went. "Oh, pretty good," she said. "But I thought you should have talked a little about that beautiful rug." "What rug?" Murrow asked. "Why, the rug that was hanging on the wall." Ed admitted: "I didn't even see it!"

The "Person to Person" staff which has been treated to a candlelight dinner with Perle Mesta accomplished—possibly for the first time anywhere—by Rutgers University's agricultural school.

The fertilizer was spread over nearby Reemerville in the hope that it would stimulate growth in the 28-year-old trees in low-fertilizer soil.

John Andersen of the Rutgers Forestry Department said the fertilization consisted partially of nitrogen, phosphorous and potas-

It's Cozy Family Buffet Time

Your family will enjoy a buffet supper planned just for them. It's a welcome change these cold winter nights to have each person serve himself — then find a cozy spot in front of the fire or the TV, or just relax in a favorite chair while eating.

Here is a simple, delicious and easy-to-prepare recipe for onion lamb stew. Seasoned with robust, flavorful condensed onion soup, it gives the meat and gravy that "please-may-have-some-more" taste! Accompany the stew with lettuce and tomato wedges with Russian dressing. And, of course, hot rolls — either your own or store bought.

Top off this repast with pineapple upside down cake and coffee or milk. Your family will love you for ever.

Onion Lamb Stew

1 pound lamb cubes (shoulder, breast or neck of lamb)
1 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons shortening
1 can (1 1/2 cups) condensed onion soup
1 cup can water
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 teaspoon marjoram
1 pound turnips, peeled and cut in large pieces
1 pound potatoes, peeled and cut in large pieces
1/2 pound green beans

Brown lamb and celery in shortening; add soup, water and seasonings. Cover and cook over low heat for 1 hour; stir occasionally. Add prepared vegetables; cover and cook about 40 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Thicken gravy if desired. Makes 6 servings. PMS

How To Protect Foods In Atomic Bomb Attack

By HERMAN N. BUIJSESEN, M.D.

THERE has been a lot of talk about how we can protect our food supplies from the hazards of atomic fallout in the event of a nuclear attack. Ordinary paper containers, the simple truth is that most U. S. Public Health Service food stores in your home are not protected against these four types of contamination.

Frozen Foods
Frozen foods probably are the most well-protected, if their packaging was not broken, they would be entirely edible even after an A-bomb attack. They are also protected fairly well from contamination by chemical or biological agents.

The Federal Civil Defense Administration devised into the ability of such foodstuffs to withstand an A-bombing in tests conducted in Nevada.

Sealed cans, the Defense Department says, afford complete protection against radioactive dust, biological organisms, liquids and vapors.

Metal foil and cellophane packaging also provide complete protection — providing the cellophane has been kept dry and all of radioactive fallout in the event of a nuclear attack.

Ordinary paper containers, the simple truth is that most U. S. Public Health Service food stores in your home are not protected against these four types of contamination.

However, put any of these foods in a home freezer or commercial freezer warehouse, and protection is near perfect.

Contaminating Agents
The nature of home freezing units and commercial warehouses generally is an assurance that no known contaminating agents will be able to penetrate to the individual food packages.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
D. B.: What causes perspiration to be a light brown color?
Answer: This is due to a pigment called melanin of the skin, which is hereditary. Most of these cases are due to a low-grade infection of the skin by bacteria or germs that produce pigment or coloring.

Tips for Photographing Your Pet Parakeet

"PATTY AND FRIEND" — by George Wetzel, Rochester, N. Y. Taken with Speed Graphic; 1/200 at 1/32 with electronic flash.

IF YOU have a parakeet and haven't taken his picture, you're overlooking one of the most talented models in the neighborhood.

A parakeet is a vain little creature who loves being the center of attention. His curiosity and playfulness provide picture possibilities by the score — sitting on your dog's shoulder, talking into your youngster's ear, investigating a variety of household objects, looking happily at his image in the mirror, toaster or other shiny surface.

Here are some suggestions for successful parakeet photos by T. T. Holden, photo director of Graflex, Inc., Rochester, N. Y.: As a parakeet's movements are quick, you'll need a fast shutter speed (at least 1/200th of a second) and a quick shutter-release. It's best to keep your working

Winter Helps To Set Your Table

Set your table with a winter theme. Illustry winds are howling about the roof tops. Your red-nosed, stiff toed and "mittened" family members are bound to stamp into the warm, cozy and good smelling kitchen, asking "What's for Dinner, Mom?" Be prepared with handy, convenient cans of Spaghetti with Meatballs (the 15½-ounce size). Each is packed full of hearty, Italian-style spaghetti, those long thin strands, and beefy meatballs all cooked to a just right doneness in a bright red tomato sauce. Spiced just right too!

Vary the way of serving spaghetti. SPAGHETTI STUFFED ONIONS are extra tasty. Easy too, just spoon the spaghetti with meatballs into parboiled large yellow onions (or parboiled eggplant or even winter squash). Bake, then serve with large chunks of crusty Italian bread, a green vegetable and fruit dessert.

The sound of snacking lips will assure you of successful planning... all with convenience foods.

Spaghetti Stuffed Onions

4 large yellow onions
 1 can (15½-ounce size) (1½ cups) spaghetti with meatballs in tomato sauce
 1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Peel onions and parboil until tender (about 20 minutes); drain. Remove centers from onions; fill shells with spaghetti; sprinkle tops with parsley. Place onions in a 1½-quart casserole. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F) for 30 minutes. Makes 3 servings.

Living a righteous life, being filled with God's love and good which are ours for the seeking and accepting, is not a grim, solemn, sour experience. It is the only real and lasting happiness, something of gladness and joy that is kindly, unselfish, eagerly shared with others.

Mayor Handles Civic Problems On Lunch Hour

DAYTON, O. — Dale Binkley, rubber worker here who is also mayor of nearby Brookville, says he not only has to sleep on civic problems, he has to eat on them as well.

Many of his constituents are co-workers at the Dayton Rubber Co., where Binkley is a truck tire builder. During lunch hour, they bring their grins, suggestions and problems to him, but he doesn't mind.

"I give them a lot of advice, some good, some bad, but all of it objective," he pointed out. "Helping a lot of work out of the way so I can devote myself to other activities."

Binkley ran for mayor when he became angry about his high wage for bill. In addition, he is state chairman of youth activities for the American Legion and headed the Montgomery County polo fund raising campaign. At one time, he had 15 non-paying jobs. Now, with mayoralty responsibilities, he is down to a mere nine.

Binkley feels more people who work in factories are taking more active interest in civic affairs. He has proof in his own community of 2,600. His assistant chief of police and a councilman work with him in the plant.

Town Tres Culture As Presley Antidote

WAYLAND, Mass. — Culture-minded Waylanders have formed the Association for Advancement of Musicians, Inc. as a kind of harmonic antidote for Elvis Presley.

Incorporators of the group said their project was two-fold — to help advance the careers of youthful musicians and to off-set the cacophonous reign of Presley in this Boston suburb.

The first concert sponsored by the group featured Egyptian composer-pianist Halim El Dabb, pianist Allen Barker and Roger Volin, first trumpet of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Woodpeckers Don't Wreck Houses

CHICAGO — House owners needn't rush out and get insurance if a woodpecker starts drilling a hole in a wall, a zoologist says.

The fine feathered friend isn't going to wreck the house. He simply wants a nice, fat worm for dinner—or a cozy place to take a snooze.

Austin L. Rand, chief curator of zoology at the Chicago Natural History Museum, wrote in the museum's bulletin that estimating insurance risks were out of his line but woodpecker habits were not. So when an insurance adjuster wanted information recently on the feathered jackhammers, Rand obliged.

Properly speaking, Rand said, woodpeckers don't eat wood. They chisel into wood in search of wood-boring insects. And they excavate nest sites and sleeping places in wood—usually in a tree.

The insurance adjuster wanted to know whether the offending woodpecker and all its young would come back and keep drilling holes until the house collapsed.

That's contrary to woodpecker custom. Rand told the worried adjuster. The birds usually scatter out when they become full-grown and independent, and the claim they stake out next spring may be far from the first nest.

The zoology also assured his caller that it was improbable any house in the Chicago area would be sufficiently infested with insects to attract a woodpecker year after year. Chiseling into houses usually would be for a nest or sleeping place, he said.

News Of Men In Service

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (FHT NC)—Odell Hunt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester L. Hunt of Castle Brewer Ct., and George Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Davis of 2104 W. 10th St., Sanford, have completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C.

Relatives and friends of many of the new Marines were on hand to witness the graduation ceremonies.

The 12-week training schedule included drill, bayonet training, physical conditioning, parades and ceremonies, and other military subjects.

Three weeks were spent on the rifle range where the recruits fired the M-1 rifle and received instruction in basic Marine infantry weapons.

Presley Vs. Valentine

NEW YORK —Coming out at the bell, it's Presley vs. Valentino: Which caused who and how many to swoon and why?

If you ask Dan Eisenberg, an expert on women who leave home, Valentino, the film lover-boy of the 1920s, is still champ as an attraction for women. Valentino, who died in 1926, attracted the whole cross-section of galhood — ages 16 to 60.

Presley can't even carry Valentino's sideburns. Not, at least, with elderly female, above 16. It's the youngsters who scream on the feathered jackhammers, Rand obliged.

That's Eisenberg's opinion after examining the missing-gal figures for the last year. He is president of Tracers Company of America, an outfit which has just turned its 33rd year of sleuthing for missing persons.

Why Girls Leave Home

The 1956 figures show a significant rise in teen-age disappearances, mainly young girls "who set out determined to hook Elvis Presley but came back in two or three days, tired and broke."

"If they have three or four bucks in their purse, they'll take off from the home town to the place where they can see Presley," Eisenberg says. "Strictly the young ones go for him." In the cases coming to my attention you can break them into 13, 14, 15 or 16 years old — I wouldn't go beyond those ages. The mothers call up frantically that the kid were supposed to be home at 8 o'clock last night."

Eisenberg remembers the blocks-long line of women of all ages at the funeral parlor when Valentino died. It is his feeling that elderly women are not interested in Presley.

Permanent Problem

However, he doesn't give a hoot either way. His interest is purely cynical. "I still got to make up my mind what good or harm guys like that do. They come up all during the years. If it's not Rudy or Elvis, it's Charley Glutz, or somebody. I remember once I had a case of a woman who went wherever a certain singer went; she went all over the world. Kept me busy."

And if you'll pardon an old man for interjecting himself, I have a theory about Valentino and Presley. Valentino had a flare that Presley doesn't have. That's flare—not flair. I'm talking about nostrils, and their manipulation.

Three weeks were spent on the rifle range where the recruits fired the M-1 rifle and received instruction in basic Marine infantry weapons.

Why Children Stutter

By HERMAN H. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT'S perfectly natural for a child to hesitate and lack fluency in his speech when he starts to talk.

Whether he will eventually develop spontaneous and free-flowing speech depends a great deal upon his parents. Insisting upon perfect diction from a young tot may only cause stuttering.

Vast Majority

About 1,300,000 persons in our country stutter. Half of them are children. The vast majority of these cases—about 90 per cent—begin before the age of 10. Most of them start even before the age of five.

Don't be concerned if your young child repeats himself. Statistics show that repeating about 45 times for every 1,000 words spoken is average for a child between the ages of two and six.

Vocal Mistakes

If you don't overemphasize perfection in speech and don't constantly correct a youngster's vocal mistakes, he'll probably learn to speak quite normally.

Insisting upon flawless speech from a child, however, fills him with anxiety and even a certain dread.

Being over-protective can have the same result. Parents who take over for a youngster in virtually every instance can greatly hinder a child's desire to speak for himself.

For this reason don't insist that your child "should be seen but not heard." If you do, the apprehension he feels toward almost every effort at speaking may make talking a thing to dread.

Both attitudes make speaking a conscious effort when it should come with natural ease.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

B. M.: What are the symptoms of Bueger's disease?

Answer: The earliest symptom of the disease is a pain in the calf of the leg or foot, especially after exertion. Color changes usually appear in the foot, which becomes a purplish red when held down and white when elevated.

In severe cases, gangrene may develop.

Pineapple Mint Fluff Pie

Pineapple Mint Fluff Pie has all the requisites of a perfect dinner dessert or a snack later in the evening with coffee.

A generous quantity of golden crushed pineapple with marshmallows folded in, delicately flavored with mint, combine to make this a pie with a really intriguing difference. The pastry can be a pie mix method.

For a special occasion, garnish with an extra puff of whipped cream, a ring of pineapple and fresh mint leaves.

PINEAPPLE MINT FLUFF PIE

1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple
 2 teaspoons chopped fresh mint (or a few drops mint extract)
 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
 1 cup cold water
 1 cup sugar
 Dash of salt
 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 4 marshmallows
 1 cup whipping cream
 1 baked 9-inch pie shell

Drain the syrup from pineapple. To the syrup add mint leaves, if used. Simmer one minute. Soften gelatin in cold water. Strain hot pineapple syrup. Stir in sugar, salt, softened gelatin, pineapple, lemon juice, and mint extract. If fresh mint is not used, Cool until slightly thickened. Fold in marshmallows cut into small pieces. Refrigerate until thick, but not yet firm. Whip cream stiff and fold in. Fill into baked pie shell. Refrigerate several hours, until firm. Garnish with an extra puff of whipped cream, if desired, pineapple and fresh mint leaves. Serves 6 to 8.

HOW MUCH IS A USED CAR WORTH?

Depends on the make, the model, and the year, of course. Every dealer tries to tell you his make is worth the most.

Here are the facts! The resale value of every make, model, and year is listed in the NADA Used Car Guide, the official "bible" of the industry. And here's what the NADA Guide shows:

A used Studebaker is worth more than other cars in the low price field, model for model, year for year. For example, the 1956 Studebaker 4-door President has the highest average resale value of all comparable V8's in its price class—both in percentage and in actual dollars and cents.

DR. WILLIAM RULE III

Missionary Will Speak Monday At Rotary Club

The Rotary club Monday noon will have as its guest speaker the widely acclaimed Presbyterian missionary, Dr. William Rule, III, of Lubumbashi, Belgian Congo, Africa. He now is in Central Florida as an ambassador of the Florida Chain of Missions, of which he has graciously arranged the Sanford date.

Practicing clinical medicine in the Lubumbashi hospital, Dr. Rule also is Director of the Ecole d'Infirmiers (school for Medical Assistants). Humphrey Sees 'Hair Curling Depression'

Expenses Must Come Down

WASHINGTON (UP)—Budget Director Percival F. Brundage believes a tax cut still may be three to five years away.

Brundage also said he fears that government expenses will continue rising, despite efforts to reduce them. But unlike treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, he foresaw no economic recession if expenses are not cut.

Humphrey has predicted a "hair curling depression" eventually if federal expenses do not come down.

He has appealed to the American people to demand that Congress force through an economy drive in the executive department. He also has said he hopes taxes can be cut next year.

The House Appropriations Committee today made public Brundage's views which he gave it in recent testimony.

Brundage estimated that the national debt of about 270 billion dollars could be paid off in 50 years if the same sum were poured into interest and principal each year as is being set aside for this purpose in President Eisenhower's 72 billion dollar budget for the next fiscal year.

Brundage said he thought a tax cut might be possible in 1959 provided the budget rose no further and if the economy continued to expand. But he said he is afraid the budget is going up.

He based his forecast on a tax reduction in three to five years on the basis that the world situation is going to get better, making possible some cuts in defense spending.

"I don't think we will have any serious recession," he said, "but if we do I would be perfectly willing to see some tax cuts made because I believe it would stimulate the total receipts."

Merchants Protest To Board Against Parallel Parking

Seventeen members of the Sanford Merchants Association, headed by its president, H. L. Perkins Jr., met with the Board of Sanford City Commissioners to discuss parallel parking in the downtown shopping district.

Perkins explained that the meeting was called at the request of several merchants—"We didn't know this was to happen," he said and added "We believe that parallel parking will not be used as much as angle parking."

City Manager Warren E. Knowles explained that "streets are used for the movement of traffic and the recommendation for parallel parking was made by the National Safety Council."

"We will lose only 43 parking spaces in changing from angle to parallel parking," said Knowles, "and we have 234 parking spaces in the Municipal Parking lot just off Commercial Ave."

He explained that if the width of parking spaces on First St. was corrected to accommodate angle parking there would be a loss of 24 parking spaces.

Director Predicts High Fever Follies As 'Big Success'

Members of the Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce learned more about the High Fever Follies and its directors at yesterday's noon luncheon meeting.

Dean C. Reader, a graduate of Muncie College, Ohio and Ohio State University, with additional training with the Philadelphia Little Theatre and the American Theatre Wing told the Jaycees about himself and the production that will be seen here next week under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the Seminole Memorial Hospital.

"I'm with Cargirl Producing Corp., Inc., of New York," said Reader "which produces these shows all over the country for charitable organizations."

He described the local show as one of two hours length, a cast of from 100 to 125, with a variety of musical and specialty numbers.

"This is quite an interesting business—working with people—and I wouldn't trade it for anything else," he said.

"There's a little of everything to be done such as costuming, stage managing, makeup by the 15 or 20 directors all over the country during the four winter months," he said.

Reader said it looks now as if the Women's Auxiliary will make about $3,300 to go toward the orthopedic table for the hospital.

"It's going to be a big success," he said.

Ambrose Oliff, program chairman for the luncheon who introduced the speaker said "I wanted to find out what qualifications a man must have to walk into a town a stranger, take the cream of the crop and work with them practically night and day to produce a show."
