BUDGET OF OPINION "JUST BETWEEN YOU AND ME."

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH. "HE'LL PRENT 'EM"---SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

"I am afraid that the city election in November will be very commonplace as the mayor's race is slow I note by the Herald last week that Mr. Whitner has come out of the race for mayor and this leaves J. D. Davison monarch of all he surveys. There are rumors of other candidates and it may be that after the summer sun grows less ardent that other candidates will leave their mountain retreats and shy their hats in the ring. The candidates for the office of alderman are shy about the position and while it is understood that several of the present board will stand for re-election they have not so stated to their closest friends. It is much too warm and also too early to start any politics but I want something to talk about and wish the boys would begin to tell about their future plans for saving the country

"I can't get the pesky sparrows killed as the city officials all seem to sparrow hearted about killing the English sparrows. I'll bet if my friend Runge was on the council he would be in favor of killing the English sparrows right now.

"It always does me good to see the Sanford boys making good and especially those who have gone out in the world. I saw Arthur Doyle here the other day and learned afterward that he had plugged for a good position as head of the southern territory for the Burroughs Adding Machine Co. I remember Arthur when he was a youngster here in Sanford and also remember him after he left here to take a position on the road for a packing house. He stuck right to the job and the first thing we knew he had changed positions. This did not seem to be much of a machine or much of a job but Arthur knew what he was doing and he has worked steadily to the top of the ladder. You can't down the Irish.

"On account of our peculiar winter and the rains that came out of season a great many people have been discussing the effect of the heavy guns on the atmosphere and trying to dope out the science of heavy gun fire making a greater rain fall.

A close study of the effect of gunfire on the weather has been made during the whole of the war in northern France and has resulted in the statement by scientists here that cannonading does not "make rain" according to the popular fancy.

A lecture on "Battle Weather in Western Europe," just delivered by Charles Harding, one of the investigators, explains the real effect of this series of tremendous explosions. He says:

"In the recent wet weather the rainy conditions have not caused being caused by gun firing, but it seems quite possible that at times, when the conditions are favorable to rain, the rains have been augmented or accelerated by the concussion initiate over the battle grounds.

"While it happened that during the battle which preceded the fall of Louvain an inch of rain fell in Dunkirk, it must also be taken into account that Dunkirk was at the time the center of an area of low pressure that would have brought a heavy rain without any undue disturbance. In this case the precipitation probably was augmented.

"The battle of Ypres-Armentieres was fought during a period when conditions were antagonistic to rain, and despite the days of heavy cannonading there was very slight precipitation.

It seems from this that when the conditions are anti-cyclonic that is when the whole character of the weather is opposed to rain, no amount of concussion or explosion could produce rain in anything like a measurable quantity."

"The women who make up the personnel of the State Federation women's clubs are opposed to the bill board nuisance, and if they accomplish some practical results along this line, it will aid materially in making of Florida the beauty spot it should be, and would be, but for this publicity freak, which is becoming so great a detriment to the state. A member of the art department of the Federation says:

It is no longer the fashion to let geniuses starve in garrets and it is only business policy to patronize home talent. The need of having the professional artists and the resulting benefits to both parties is fully apparent. To that end the committee has started to compile a directory of artists living in Florida.

The first object in the path of our practical work was a huge bill board. We therefore embarked on a crusade against unsightly street advertising. The civic committees have already made efforts in this line and I am sure they will welcome our co-operation in trying to overcome an evil which does more than anything else to mar the beauty of our scenery.

As the railroads are notable offenders, along their right-of-way especially near the stations, we propose a monster petition to the roads operating in the state to assist in making Florida beautiful. The first view of a tourist or prospective seeker is from a car window, and it is to the financial advantage of the roads, to protect the natural beauty of our state and to make the stations so attractive that the traveler will desire to alight and remain within our borders.

We appeal also to the county commissioners to protect our highways from a misdirected commercial zeal which threatens to rob us of a landscape which is famed in all the world.

POINT HE HAD OVERLOOKED

Wife's Question Made Broker Wonder Whether He Might Not Have Been Deceived.

A Wall street broker of English parentage and an unusual name was talking to several other brokers, business not being particularly rushing at the moment.

"If anybody in this crowd has a gold brick for sale," he said, "I wish he would try to dispose of it to me at a good figure. Why? Well, I'm in the market since yesterday for that sort of material.

"It happened this way. About 4 p. m. a very nice appearing man of the working class came into my office and asked for me. I saw him and asked him his business. He told me he had seen my name in the papers, and as his name was the same as mine he thought, the names being so unusual, he would call on me.

"He was very unmistakably English, and the similarity of names was of some interest, even though I hardly thought he was in my class. Still he might have been a hard-up titled nobleman working for his living, as some of the best of them do rather than sponge it off somebody else.

"He talked along about his family and where they lived and asked me where mine came from and said he had been living in Canada for fifteen or twenty years, where his father had gone from England. Times were hard and he had come to this country, where they were no softer and--well, it ended by his touching me for $5. His name was good for that, I thought, whether he was wholly deserving or not.

"When I went home in the evening I told my wife about it and did she applaud my respect for my family name? Not on your parish register she didn't. She looked at me critically and said: 'John, did the man show you any papers to prove that his name was the same as yours? Right then I awoke, and if any of you gents have a gold brick to sell will you please pass it on to me?'

MADE THE BELLBOY GASP

Senator Sherman's Response to Imperinent Imp Something New to Him.

Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman of Illinois never gives tips. Refusing to tip he is not prompted by a sense of economy so much as the idea that one should have the courage of one's convictions. He knows of no reason why a man should pay the highest price for hotel food and then bribe a hotel employee to fetch it to him. Likewise he sees no logic in paying a bellboy to hover about in one's way performing useless service.

As a rule Sherman eats in old-fashioned restaurants where he can sit on a neat little revolving stool, and he stays at the medium-priced hotels, simply because he dislikes the pomp and glitter of the more pretentious places. A little while ago, however, Sherman went to New York to make a speech, and a reception committee escorted him to one of the big hotels, where a bellboy carries up one's grip, asks if the guest desires any ice water, takes a tip, goes, and sends the ice water by still another bellboy, who also expects a tip.

The boy who carried Sherman's modest little satchel to his room bustled about, turning on electric lights, raising window shades, lowering window shades, messing with the lace curtains, changing the key from the outside to the inside of the door, and by divers other methods making himself generally obnoxious. After he had exhausted his entire repertory of ways and means to annoy a guest, he asked Sherman if he wanted any ice water. Sherman said he did not. Then the boy inquired if there was anything else he could do, and Sherman shook his head.

Still the boy hung about, as if waiting for something.

"I think that'll be all," remarked Sherman, becoming rather annoyed. "Thank you, sir," replied the boy, with much overpoliteness, backing out of the door, "thank you, thank you." A bellboy, of course, always says thank you three times when he has received no tip, but only once when he has. Sherman noted the three thank yous, all in a row, and savagely he responded somewhat as follows:

"You're welcome, goldarn you, goldarn you, goldarn you!"—Kansas City Star.

Boy Scouts as Coast Guards.

The British Boy Scouts have proved their value since the outbreak of war. Four hours after the call came thousands of boys were at the disposal of their country. One morning a telegram reached a British commissioner asking for a thousand scouts. The same evening he had four thousand standing by waiting for orders.

Many an adult warrior in the British Isles first knew he was wanted when a scout brought him a letter telling him where to report himself. The emergency substitution work of the lads was wonderful.

The suddenness of the war meant that many coast guards had to return immediately to the navy. Yet their work was more necessary than ever. Hundreds of scouts took their places and had the time of their lives staying out all night or watching all day through big telescopes for the enemies' ships.

It was a hardened journalist who confessed that a lump came into his throat when late one night he met a small group of scouts dragging their trek cart, laden with bivouac gear, and moving quietly through the dark to their vigil on the cliffs.

Ruling Passion Strong.

The German paper Boersenblatt culls from a Leipzig daily an amusing little anecdote of the war from the point of view of the lover of books and learning. The story runs thus:

A certain sergeant of reserves whose occupation in private life was that of professor of romance philology, was one of a company escorting a troop of French prisoners from Mauthausen to Germany. The lieutenant in charge was alarmed by hearing sounds of quarrelling behind him. He turned and saw the sergeant in violent altercation with one of the prisoners. The Frenchman gesticulated wildly, and the sergeant's blue eyes blazed angrily behind his steel-rimmed spectacles. The officer flew to separate them, but burst into hearty laughter when the cause of the dispute was explained to him by his excited comrade. The Frenchman, whose ragged boots were bound up with string, was a professor of the Sorbonne, and the two had almost come to blows over a difference of opinion . . . concerning the use of the subjunctive in old Provençal love songs!

Dress Reform for Women.

Boston, father of reforms, mother of movements, cradle of progress, has undertaken its biggest task. Boston is to reform the dress of women. Don't fling the ready gibe at the ambitious effort that is domiciled in civil service house, but wish these Boston women joy and success. Their aim ought to enlist all womankind—but it won't. They seek to make woman's garments comfortable as well as pretty, to read sense as synonymous with style, and to have utility pass as chic. It might be done, of course. It is not for us to throw the cold water of doubt on the idea. But women are altogether likely to go on wearing these extraordinary devices when they call clothes and to blame the men for them, hugging to themselves the delusion that the men want them thus arrayed.

MEASURED BY INCHES

LITTLE THINGS GOVERN LIFE'S SUCCESS OR FAILURE.

A Little Contemplation Will Show the Truth of the Statement—Man Who Considers It is the One Who Succeeds.

Everybody knows what a little thing an inch is, but few realize what a big thing it is. Few stop to contemplate what the difference of an inch really means, says a writer in the New York American. A tailor knows when an inch too much or too little has cost him anywhere from $18 to $80. A dressmaker knows when an inch too little of the goods on hand may cause her, after an arduous day of planning, to abandon a chosen pattern for another. An engineer knows when his train, with its carload of human freight, has gone one inch off the track over a precipice.

Some men have minds one inch off the judgment track, and that causes all their schemes, gigantic and brilliant as they may be, to run amuck.

Every calamity and every success in life is controlled by inches. Men rarely go to their doom in an hour; it is inch by inch.

All successes are won inch by inch. As inch by inch the waters of life creep in to engulf us, so inch by inch the obstacles that impede our progress move aside.

The man who attempts to leap over the inches to reach his goal gets there with a broken leg.

The word inch has a forbidding sound. It is because it holds us in its clutches. We cannot ignore an inch, or it immediately thwarts our intentions. Every simple thing is performed by man, as the saying goes, "within an inch of his life."

All diseases move inch by inch. Before the scarlet fever breaks out in a child it has been developing inch by inch for nine days.

A man built a magnificent structure the other day at an enormous expense, and when it was proved that he had encroached a few inches on the land of another man the law accorded the other man the right to pull it down.

The overstepping of an inch in the properties of life brands us. If a girl in a theater laughs an inch too loud the audience looks around and puts upon her the stamp of "not a lady."

Art is controlled by inches. A picture an inch too high or too low, and the entire artistic effect of the wall upon which it hangs is lost.

Department is measured by inches, and woe unto the man who fails to observe its dictates. Even in the deepest grief, if one goes too far in his wallings the grief is questioned, if not ridiculed, and sympathy turned aside. An inch too far in the poet's flight to imagination's realms and the world laughs at his best efforts.

A single inch in any direction may throw away a man's chances for the world's approval, and yet some men do not even consider the yards.

It is the man who considers life within an inch of every detail present who succeeds.

World's Richest Church.

Trinity church, New York, which has just voted a handsome donation to the preservation fund of St. Paul's cathedral, is the most richly endowed parish in the world. It has a fast-increasing income—not fully disclosed, but believed to be about $2,500,000 a year—which is mainly "unearned increment" derived from lands given by Queen Anne that have become priceless through the growth of the city during two centuries. Out of this vast revenue are paid the stipends of the clergy and choirs of Trinity and of eight daughter churches, and the expenses of Trinity hospital and Trinity cemetery, and contributions to poorer parishes, and charitable institutions. Some time ago Trinity vestry voted a subscription towards the repair of the organ of Bow church, Cheapside, England, and were delighted with two return gifts, which consisted of a Roman tile and a chunk of stone from the old Norman crypt.

Salts Down Frog Chorus.

Cudahy, Cal., boasts of a musician who has power over frogs. This marvel, a woman, lives where the ground is low and the water gathers when it rains. And in the rain the frogs come home to roost and to croak.

Mrs. M. H. Murphy, who lives on Mary street, stood the serenade the first night very well. But the second night her nerves got ragged around the edges and on the third night she raked her brains for a way to silence frogs.

Her subconscious mind came to the rescue and suggested a remedy she first heard in childhood. This was to feed the melodious frogs with salt. Five pounds of salt covered Frogtown next morning and the singers moved out.

Entirely Too Modern.

"Chicago censors say three feet of film is long enough for a moving picture class. Los Angeles censors think two feet a plenty. What is your opinion?"

Measuring kisses by feet, eh? Well, personally I prefer the old-fashioned method of measuring a kiss by the clock on the mantelpiece.—Exchange.

Fires Caused by Lightning.

Of the 3,691 fires occurring in the forests of Idaho, Montana, Oregon and Washington last year 3,032 were caused by lightning.

GOOD TRAINS OF COAST LINE NOT RESTORED

TRAINS NO. 27 AND 28 WILL NOT BE PUT BACK ON RUN

That the Atlantic Coast Line cannot now put back trains Nos. 27 and 28, taken off last fall and which furnished local service between Sanford and Lakeland, this serving Tampa, was the bad news broken to a delegation of Tampa business men by General Superintendent J. N. Brand of the Florida division of the Coast Line this morning.

Yet so diplomatically was the news broken and so satisfactorily were the reasons advanced that it is doubtful if any one of the men affected, serious though their loss is by reason of trains being kept off, did not agree with Mr. Brand that the road could not afford to put them back on at present.

Mr. Brand relied, on the figures of earnings, freight and passenger, of his road for the past year to prove his case. The passenger earnings for May showed a decrease of about 22 per cent and for the months back of that showed decreases ranging from 15 to 25 per cent. Freight earnings made much the same showing. That for some time the road's expenses did not fall in a like sum as its receipts was also shown. Then the road got busy, cut off trains, cut down in other ways and is now where its expenses and receipts more nearly match than they did a short time after the war began.

Mr. Brand freely admitted the desirability not only to Tampa but to this section, of having these trains and the daily Sunny Jim from Lakeland to Ocala put back on. The present fast trains make many of the stops made by the accommodations, but they come along at most inconvenient hours. Mr. Brand admitted as freely. He said that the records showed that Nos. 27 and 28 were making but forty-eight cents a train mile, while authorities held that a train could not be run with profit at less than $1 a mile.

"Whether these trains ever I will be made to pay for or not, I am somewhat doubtful," he said. "The hauls are short and the run is not long."

That he would when times were better be glad to consider putting them back on he stated, but when this would be he did not make the least attempt to guess, saying frankly that it looked as if the war might last through the coming winter. He admitted the possibility of freight receipts making up for the loss of passenger revenue, but did not think the two trains would produce enough freight to make up for running them at a loss.

Asked if it would not be possible to run 27 and 28 three times a week like Sunny Jim, he pointed out that Sunny Jim's train crew and equipment work three times a week between Dunnellon and Wilcox on the days it is off the Lakeland-Ocala run while there is no similar arrangement possible for the Lakeland-Sanford run.

Mr. Brand was perfectly frank about the whole matter, putting it up to those present as a business proposition and made a very favorable impression. Business men present were:

Frank Bentley, W. A. Gallaher, J. Edgar Wall, Abe Maas, and C. D. Pettigill. Mr. Brand, who is general superintendent of the Florida division, was accompanied by Division Passenger Agent J. C. Kirkland of Tampa. Mr. Brand takes the place occupied by the late Morton Riddle and seems to be a fit successor to him.

Key West Bank Closed

Key West, July 23.—The Island City National Bank failed to open its doors Wednesday morning. No particulars have been given out, and it is hoped that the institution will simply go into liquidation. Officers of the bank have issued no statement.

The Island City National is the youngest of the two banks in Key West, having been organized about ten years ago. G. S. Waite is the president, the other officers being E. M. Martin, Vice-president; J. L. Johnson, cashier; J. W. Gibb, assistant cashier. The First National is another financial institution.

About Saturday Closing

An honest effort has been made to bring about earlier closing on Saturday evening.

Nearly two hundred representative housekeepers of Sanford pledged themselves to do their Sunday shopping before six o'clock Saturday afternoon. A petition with their signature was carried to the merchants, asking for ten o'clock closing, some of the merchants heartily favored the plan and signed the agreement, but there were so many who refused their co-operation that the movement was abandoned regretfully by the ladies who were exerting themselves to bring it about. All members and friends are urged to remember that our next communion service and reception of members will occur next Sunday morning. All the other services at the church, except the Union service which will be at the Star.

THE PRESIDENT'S LATEST NOTE TO GERMANY VERY POSITIVE BUT FRIENDLY

THERE WILL BE NO SECOND CHOICE FOR THE THE GOVERNMENT OF THE KAISER THIS TIME

Washington, July 23.—President Wilson and his Cabinet decided today on the general principles of the note to be sent to Germany renewing efforts to secure for American citizens rights on seas.

The President read to the cabinet a tentative draft of the note. In its character and purposes there was unanimous agreement, and Secretary Lansing was at work tonight putting in more precise language the idea set forth.

Members of the cabinet generally reserve secrecy regarding the probable contents of the communication. It is made clear, however, that it would not be an ultimatum or make threats as to the future purposes of the United States.

At the same time they pointed out that it probably would have an air of finality, curtailing the field of discussion and negotiations, and placing squarely on Germany the responsibility for any action that might subsequently be taken against friendly relations of the two countries. This communication will be couched in friendly terms.

Today's conference was devoted somewhat to a discussion of what the American people really wanted said and done, so far as cabinet officers could judge by public expressions, the nation has voiced an insistent desire that the honor and dignity of the United States be upheld in the correspondence with Germany, but that a course be followed which will maintain peace.

On Germany's next reply and the crystallization of public opinion there after will depend, to a large extent, officially intimated, the action of the United States concerning future violations of American rights.

Secretary Lansing said today that no complete report of the encounter between the British liner Orduna and a German submarine had reached the State Department. An investigation has been instituted through the Treasury Department and a report is expected within a few days, but the dispatch of the note to Germany will not be delayed.

A statement from William O. Thompson, counsel of the Industrial Relations Commission, who was on board the Orduna, was referred to by Secretary Lansing as giving only a part of the information necessary to form a judgment of the legality or illegality of the attack.

Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, was at the State Department on what he referred to as routine business. He did not see Secretary Lansing.

BIG CORN CROP BRINGS RESULTS ON SANFORD LAND

ENTIRE STATE OF FLORIDA EXPECTS EXPECTS TO HAVE A BUMPER CROP OF CORN

If Florida's corn crop can be judged by the bumper crop raised around Sanford, the state need not worry about long much corn to be raised in the corn states farther north. The corn raised here this season beats anything in this line anywhere in the state. It is a well known fact that the irrigated fields around Sanford filled with the fertilizer left over from the winter and spring crops make the greatest corn in the South and the crop raised here is compared and will be compared with the crop raised on the fertile river bottoms of the Northern corn states.

Twelve to fifteen feet high, the stalks are and many higher and they contain from two to six big ears of the finest kind of flinty corn that is waxy proof and will keep several years. There are some 500 acres of land in corn here and it will harvest about 100 bushels to the acre. Being easily worth a dollar a bushel means that there is some money to be made for the farmers here in corn as a side issue to be raised after the other crops are marketed. It has been estimated that the farmers of the Sanford section can raise all the corn necessary to feed the cattle, horses and mules and hogs and other live stock on the farms. In fact hogs should be raised here on a small scale by all the celery farmers and made to pay by raising all the feed for fattening them. There have been many visitors to Sanford in the past few weeks from other states and they have been greatly surprised to note the great crop of good corn raised here. And not only corn but the finest kind of hay can be raised with but little effort and the farmers who formerly bought all their hay and corn are now raising their own and not only saving money but making money on these crops. The entire state is waking up to the possibilities of the corn crop and the following from the Gainesville Sun is but one of the many articles from all parts of Florida telling about the great corn crop:

"George Ellis, who travels out from Gainesville, and is perhaps better acquainted with Florida farms than any other man in the state, is telling some remarkable stories of big corn yields."

"He says that T. L. Hodgson of Williston, until he was 40 years of age, was a seaman, and knew nothing of farm life, but about 20 years ago he lost his fleet of boats in a great storm, which put a quosus to his seafaring career. He married about that time, after a very romantic courtship, and the couple settled upon a farm."

"Mr. Hodgson studied the farm as he had studied the sea and kept his eye just as steady on the wheel."

"For instance he gathered his seed corn before he gathered his crop and made the selections from the biggest ears, from the most robust stalks, and as a result every year he got a larger yield."

"In 1912, from 24 acres he garnered 92 bushels by actual measurement and weight."

"In 1913 he gathered from 40 acres 2,000 bushels."

"From 4 acres of oats Mr. Hodgson harvested 480 bushels."

"Mr. Ellis vouches for these figures. He says that before her marriage Mrs. Hodgson was a court stenographer, is a thorough business woman and keeps an accurate account of the farm operations, and the total cost of the yield in 1913 was 24 1/2 cents a bushel."

"All that was not needed for the home consumption was readily sold for $1.00 per bushel."

"Mr. Ellis says that W. B. Phifer, living near Rochelle, has a corn yield record of 127 1/2 bushels per acre."

"Mr. Ellis says that there is wealth and happiness in living on a farm if our people could get rid of the speculation and get-rich-quick spirit."

Roads are Bad

Travelers are complaining that the road through Winter Park to Sanford which is the only road to Sanford now in use on account of the brick work, is in such condition as to render travel a trial rather than a pleasure.

"The road should be dragged at least once a week said a prominent citizen, who has occasion to travel the road much. The road shouldn't be neglected just because the brick road is being built. We will have to pass over this road for some time to come, and it is being neglected now, to the great discomfort of all who have to use it."

Engineer Ramsey says the Winter Park road will be completed by August 1st, or soon thereafter in any event. Brick laying has reached the bend in the road between Orlando and Winter Park where the maul starts. The work is progressing rapidly in the direction of Orlando.

Brick is being placed at Oakland for the bricking of the Oakland-Winter Garden-Orlando road. This work will be taken up when the Winter Park road is completed.

A ROAD WILL BE RUN THROUGH THE EVERGLADES

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 23.—That the Florida Everglades will be traversed by wonderful roads is assured by the action of Dade and Broward counties, which have gone on record unanimously to vote bonds to meet Lee county, this completing the Tamiami Trail across the state. This is one of the offshoots of the Dixie Highway that grew out of the Orlando road meeting.

The present plan is to run the road out along the banks of the Miami Canal, using rock excavated from the canal for building the road, into the Glades to the point where it intersects the Fort Lauderdale canal, where it would also run into another road through the new county of Broward from Fort Lauderdale, the county seat. This insures two terminals at the Atlantic end.

From this point the road runs to an old trail near the line of Lee county to Sam Jones old Town, one of the most famous settlements in the Glades. From here it follows the same trail to Immokalee and from there along a shelled road into Fort Myers. From Fort Myers it runs north across the bridge the Lee county commissioners are building over the Caloosahatchee, thence to Punta Gorda, Arcadia, Fort Meade, Bartow, Lakeland and Tampa. The distance will be about 235 miles. The Miami Board of Trade has been very active in pushing this project, which is considered one of the biggest ever attempted in Florida.

They stated that the financial and business outlook in the North was improving. —Orlando Sentinel.

BANK ROBBER IS CAPTURED IN ATLANTA

IS SAID TO BE THE MAN WHO LOOTED BANK AT APOPKA

In Atlanta, Ga., Saturday the police of that city captured one Harry Mason, alias "Vincent Briscoe," alias "Hefty Lou," aged 23, who gave his residence as Orlando, Fla., and who confessed that he and another Yegg named Will Jones robbed the bank at Apopka, Fla., and escaped with $3,000 which he declared was his share of the loot. The other $2,000 of the Apopka robbery was or must have been distributed between Mason's pals, totaling $5,000.

Cashier W. G. Talton of the State Bank of Apopka, was in Orlando yesterday en route to Atlanta where he was called by authorities. He showed the Sentinel reporter a copy of the Atlanta newspaper containing an account of Mason's confessions. Sunday, Monday and yesterday a Atlanta papers piled on the Sentinel desk tell of additional crimes committed by the youthful desperado.

On Friday night at Atlanta, Mason cracked a safe and was captured later. He confessed to this crime and others which he had perpetrated in the last few years, the Apopka bank robbery being among the list.

Mason stated that during his ten years as a crook he had robbed no less than 150 safes, and accrued $25,000, the most of which he declared he sent to his old mother in Orlando.

The confession continues, "In June 1913, he secured $3,000 with Will Jones, another Yegg, from a bank at Apopka, Fla. In the confession Mason said his mother's grandmother was a full blooded Indian.

According to a special yesterday Mason is reported as saying: "I'm willing to serve my term. When I get out I'll go to my mother. She has plenty of money I sent her. I want to be honest now and make a new start. Yesterday's Atlanta Journal says:

"A man named Lane, who was in Atlanta Sunday on his way to Apopka, Fla., read in the Journal an account of Mason's confession, and called at police station Monday to see whether he could identify the prisoner. He said he had summered at Apopka for years past and recalled the bank robbery there some time ago which "Mason" confessed.

"The robbery of the postoffice at Tiger Bay, Fla., which, "Mason" said was his first crime, will probably result in his detention by the federal authorities. His trial before Recorder Johnson is set for 8 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The news that the Apopka bank robber or robbers had been captured was of great interest and caused a sensation on the streets yesterday Sheriff Gordon was taken with surprise, and he intimated that two other persons living in or near Orlando and in or near Apopka might have been connected with the crime and might be pals of Mason's.

A wire is looked for by the sheriff at any minute and he may be called to Atlanta. As the developments proceed and as the coils of justice tighten sensational disclosures are expected from several sources hitherto kept under cover.—Orlando Sentinel.

The Indian Ball Team

The greatest athletic novelty in the world is the Nebraska Indian Base Ball team which has created so much comment by its brilliant playing and wonderful success it has achieved during its seventeen years of travel throughout the United States and Canada. It is a rare and novel sight to see a team of ball players all of whom are marvelously expert and also who are genuine Indians. When they come to the field with scowling faces and savage warwhoops some of the people in the grand stand grow nervous but the Indians are only showing their irrepressible spirits and never have trouble with anyone. It will be a great treat to see them play the Sanford team at Holden Park on August 6th.

ALL KINDS OF LOTS FOR ALL KINDS OF PEOPLE

The extensive Holden Estate properties have just been acquired by the THATCHER REALTY COMPANY, and their sale will be vigorously pushed.

This company bought these properties because of the belief that from the stand point of opportunity and development, Florida is the best State in the Union, and that Sanford is the best place in Florida.

Sanford's celebrated celery lands are unrivalled. Nowhere else on the face of the earth can there be found such a combination of fertile lands, cheap and unlimited water supply for irrigation purposes, perpetual summer climate, and adequate shipping facilities by land and sea to the world's greatest markets.

THREE REASONS WHY.

Sanford is unmatched as a fruit and trucking center.

Sanford is at the head of navigation on the St. Johns River, and has, thereby, water contact with Jacksonville and the sea. Freight rates are thus cheapened to Sanford, and the city is destined to be a wholesale center, and Florida's interior metropolis.

Sanford's wonderful lake and river system, its unsurpassed fishing and hunting preserves, and its delightful climate, render it the Nation's ideal resort.

There are many more reasons which might be given to prove that Sanford is bound to rapidly grow; but for the present, these are sufficient.

No better, safer opportunities for investment can be found anywhere than we now offer the public. We have twelve hundred Sanford lots for sale, and they are situated in every desirable part of the city.

Lots for Sanford citizens in the city's most desirable residence sections.

Lots for railroad men convenient to their work.

Lots for thrifty colored folks in sections convenient to their churches and schools.

Lots for those of other communities and States who want to invest their money in splendid real estate that is rapidly enhancing in value.

ITEMS OF INTEREST ABOUT FLORIDA CUDLED FOR BUSY READERS

The new naval stores law enacted by the Florida legislature of 1915 is being put into successful operation by Supervising Inspector E. S. Cravens and it is revolutionizing and improving the industry to such a great extent that all engaged in the business, especially the producers are delighted with it and wishing it had been in operation years ago. Big returns are expected from the naval stores industry as soon as the European war is over, but even now it is showing a marked improvement.

Citizens of Gainesville are considering a proposition by the Carnegie Institute for a free public library with $10,000 to start on, the rest to be given by the city in yearly payments.

Gainesville is made to suffer from the effects of the war. The cresoting plant of the Atlantic Coast Line, built at the cost of $250,000 for the treatment of cross-ties, and employing about 150 men, will suspend operations August 1st, indefinitely, for lack of crossots with which to treat the wood. Crossots has in the past been bought in Europe, and the war has cut off the supply.

All architects in Miami will be asked to compete for a job of preparing plans for a new $30,000 hospital building, to be erected in the Magic City.

A new daily publication will soon be started in Tampa with government authority behind it. The plant will be located in the Federal building adjoining the weather bureau, and daily weather bulletins and forecasts will be issued.

He was 78 years of age at the time of his death and was the dean of the medical fraternity of Putnam county. He has been in failing health for some time which caused him to retire from the practice of his profession about six years ago. The immediate cause of his death is said to be heart failure. A Palatka note in The Times Union of yesterday says: "Dr. W. H. Cyrus was in deed and in truth one of nature's noblemen. His hand was always extended to the needy and his sympathy was ever with the sorrowful and distressed. Kind hearted, generous true, he was a friend without guile, a gentleman without reproach. In all things of a public and progressive character he took a lively interest and was at all times a booster of his adopted city, county and State and a champion of the sacred rights of his fellowmen."

Silo Helps Save Corn Crop

Corn is the primary silage crop in the United States and no other crop is so well suited for the purpose. Florida is particularly fortunate in having a large number of silage crops, but none is so suitable in every way as corn. Corn silage is particularly useful in tiding over seasons of short pasture. It duplicates as nearly as is possible a green succulent feed.

There is a still greater reason for making corn into silage. Under customary methods of handling, a large part of the feeding value of the plant is lost. Consequently the silo is the very best method of preserving corn.

The Missouri Station estimates that the silo saves from 25 to 35 percent of the feeding value of that corn which is ordinarily lost under usual methods of handling. Professor C. L. Willoughby of the University of Florida College of Agriculture said recently that even a greater percentage would be saved in Florida because it is subjected to greater losses. The plant and foliage is rendered worthless after standing a short time in the field. Very often the grain is damaged by rainy weather. It is especially difficult to cure fodder in this state because of the excessive rainfall and furthermore the sun will overcure it.

On His Dignity.
Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, who has equipped a $250,000 field ambulance for the allies, told many interesting war stories during her recent visit to America.

"The new English army is wonderful," she said at a studio tea in New York. "The officers themselves are surprised at the rapidity with which the young English volunteer can be trained into a splendid soldier. Of course, though, amusing mistakes often happen before the military rules are mastered."

"An English officer told me of an incident which occurred in his regiment. One day the colonel had to reprimand severely a recruit. The next day this recruit was on sentry duty when the colonel passed by. Noticing that the sentry failed to give him the usual salute, the colonel intentionally passed him a second and even a third time. To his astonishment the salute was each time omitted."

"Do you know who I am?" the colonel asked indignantly.
"Yes, sir," the sentry answered.
"Don't you know you ought to salute me, then?" pursued the colonel.
"Aye, but," said the sentry, "there and me fell out yesterday."

For Love of the Work.

The Russia of today has no social life, its women have no thought of dress and amusement. All are working for their country, and an exceptional number of the women of education in that country are specially qualified to be of service to the wounded soldiers. Speaking of her country, the wife of a Russian attaché in London said: "Perhaps the women of Russia study medicine and nursing more generally than in the case elsewhere, for in Russia the poorer classes look more naturally to those who are blessed with a larger share of this world's goods for care and protection. This feeling is now on the decline in towns, but in country places, where doctors have rounds of a hundred miles' radius, the poor of a district, in the absence of the medical man, are looked after and tended by the daughters of the house on whose estate they live. Thus every young girl goes in for medicine because she loves the work."

Swift Horses.

"Horses!" said the Yankee. "Guess you can't talk to me about the horses. I had an old mare, Matzypp, who once licked our best express by a couple of miles on a 30-mile run to Chicago."

"That's nothing," said the Canadian. "I was out on my farm one day, about fifty miles from the house, when a frightful storm came up. I turned the pig's head for home and, do you know, he raced the storm so close for the last ten miles that I didn't feel a drop, while my old dog, only ten yards behind, had to swim the whole distance." — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph

Should Have Sealed It.

Through some slight error in the use of the old Hebrew letters it seems that the official seal of Yale university has been embellished with the motto, "Blasphemers and Farmers," instead of "Light and Truth." This may emphasize anew the old saying that a little knowledge is a dangerous thing, but the fearful mistake should never have been exposed. If the wise ones who detected the error had only maintained a discreet silence there are very few who would ever have known the difference.

Gambler's Man Led to Repentance.

During the recent revival in Ebenezer chapel Goat Simmons, the gambling man, "came through" amid a thunderous concomitant of triumphant hosannas. He sprang to his feet with a loud shout and immediately tumbled down in a fit on the floor, where he postured and gyrated like an unfortunate toad in the embrace of a hot corporee. An especially animated squirm sent a couple of dice flying from the pocket of the groveling wretch, to be followed a moment later by another which caused a deck of cards to be widely scattered.

"Halleluoyer!" shouted good old Parson Bagster. "It's de sin dat's belin' shuck out'n our sufferin' brudder! Shake him ag'in, Lawd!—shake him twell all de sin am purged fum him!"

"Dat's right, Lawd!" yelled Brother Bogus. "Keep on uh-shakin' de scamp twell he rattles out dem two dollahs he won off'n me at de lodge last night!" — Kansas City Star.

British Army's Black Bands.

At one time much of the music played to enliven British troops was furnished by black bandsmen. These were first attached to the army in the seventeenth century, owing to one of the guards' bands having refused, in a body, to play at an entertainment organized by the officers. As none of the men were attested, they could not be punished for insubordination, so the officers petitioned the duke of York, then commander-in-chief, that bandmen should in future be made subject to military law. To this the duke would not agree, but he brought over from Hannover for the guards a complete German military band, which included negro players of the bass drum, cymbals and triangles. Nearly every regiment in the service has tried to reorganize its band, engaging colored performers for all percussion instruments. Down to 1841 the band of the Scots Guards included a negro musician.

"CELERY SEED"

THE VERY FINEST STRAIN OF GENUINE GOLDEN SELF-BLANCHING FRENCH GROWN

This seed is new stock and imported direct from France by us to be used in the Manatee section, in which locality we have sold as much Celery Seed for the last three seasons as any one firm in the country, which within itself speaks for the quality of the seed. But owing to the unfavorable conditions that prevail in the above mentioned section for planting Celery, we see that we will not be able to place our entire stock. But in an effort to dispose of this seed we are going to make a sacrifice price of $14 per peck, quarter pound at pound rate. We have never before sold a pound of this seed for less than $20.00. There is no better Celery Seed imported to this country, and as best evidence, we will, if desired, refer you to dozens of the best growers who have used our Celery Seed.

TRUE TO HIS TRUST

Out in Denver an editor has just received a $250 fine for contempt of court because he refused to divulge the name of the man giving him the hunch upon an attempt in the legislature to bribe a member. The grand jury called upon the editor to state the name of his informant—which he refused to do. Whereupon he was fined as stated and the judge gave him a very caustic lecture. It happened that the article the newspaper published was true—and there seemed to be no need of the breach of faith upon the part of the newspaperman. Few men in the same position would have broken faith with the informant but would have stood the penalty as did the Denver man.—Palm Beach Post.

FEW PEOPLE ARE DROWNED

That everyone should be careful about going in bathing at the many resorts is demonstrated everyday by the reports of people dying from going in the water when their system was not right for it. Few people are actually drowned, most of them die from other causes but mainly from the chill of the water, acute indigestion or other causes. The Orlando Reporter-Star sums up the matter in the following good advice: "Every season about this time the importance of learning to swim is stressed in the newspapers and magazines, particularly those printed in districts where people are more or less frequenters of water resorts. It is well enough to learn to swim. But the water has other dangers than depth, and the person who goes into the water has other reasons to be cautious than a mere venturing beyond his depth. During the past few days several deaths in the water have been recorded. In not a single case was inability to swim a cause of the disaster. In every case it appeared that the victim was seized with cramps or congestion and became temporarily paralyzed. Every person should learn that it is dangerous to plunge into the water soon after eating watermelon. Caution should be exercised also not to enter the water when extremely warm. Always take time to cool off before taking the plunge. Observance of these simple rules will result in avoidance of much needless trouble if not actual loss of life. The family physician should be consulted before one makes a habit of going in for resort bathing. The "don'ts" that should be memorized and regarded are few. If records were accurately kept we would find that comparatively few who lose their lives in the water actually die from drowning."

OTHER ADVERTISING

We do not believe in bill board advertising for many reasons. We have never yet seen the efficacy of this advertising and there are dozens of reasons why this unsightly method of obscuring the beauties of nature should be abolished. There are other methods of advertising that are equally displeasing and the newspapers and the public generally will start a crusade against them. Editor Wright of the Florida Grower recently made a vigorous protest against advertising in the moving picture shows and bill board advertising. Pointing out the demerits of the proposition and the fact that the two are losing ground all over the country and doomed to disappear as the advertiser realizes their lack of real value and the people follow their prejudice against advertising that displeases and annoys, he says: "Whenever I go to a movie show and at the end of the run the management springs a lot of advertising signs on the screen I feel disgusted and imposed upon. We go to a show to see pictures and not a lot of advertisements, and I submit that the display of such signs are an imposition upon the patrons of the theater. I long ago made up my mind that I would never patronize any firm so advertising, and I feel sure that there are many others who feel just as I do.

"It's the same with billboards. Our landscapes all over this great America are disgraced by huge glaring advertising sign boards; it is truly disgusting, and seems to show that the American public has no sense of the beauty in nature and very well put is the accusation made against us by foreigners that we care for nothing but the dollar; have no conception of art or the beautiful in art or nature. Like the movie advertisement, the billboard advertiser finds no customer in me.

"Soon we may expect to see the end of the atrocious billboard. Several states have enacted laws against it; all the New England states, New York has just passed a drastic law, Pennsylvania has two laws on the subject, and Maryland and Nebraska restrict the billboard. Lately the National Federation of Women's Clubs of America representing something like 3,000,000 women, not only pronounced against the billboard, but has appointed a strong committee, which is endeavoring in every way to prevent the extension of the billboards, and to reduce the number already existing. I understand that in New York state any one has a perfect right to tear down a billboard erected anywhere along the highways of the state. Away with such ugliness.

Fungi Helps Fight Whitefly

Some fungi are the natural enemies of whitefly and in many cases will work an effective control of that insect in citrus groves. Fungi need moist conditions and consequently their introduction. Insecticides are also effective and where spring spraying has not been resorted to, if the weather is too dry for fungi, or if the trees are too young to afford ample shade for fungi, it is necessary to use insecticides. If the large number of whitefly larvae demand spraying, the oil emulsions or smicisole oil sprays should be used. Instruction for mixing and applying the sprays and also for the introduction of fungi are contained in Bulletin 123 of the University of Florida Experiment Station, Gainesville, which will be sent free to any one who will request it.

The brown red and microcera fungi are the ones most commonly used. If one has a large orchard the best method of application is with a spray. Take some of the leaves from trees infected with the fungi and put them in water. This water he sprayed on the trees. The spores will germinate and grow upon the bodies of larvae. The fungi may cover a considerable portion of the leaf surface in their quest for larvae but they will not attack the leaves. J. R. Watson, Entomologist at the experiment station of the University of Florida, recommends that all three fungi be introduced at the same time so that the expense of introduction may be lessened. For the summer months, however, the brown and red are the best. Both of these should be introduced by all means. The microcera grows better in the cool fall months.

For small trees and small groves the fungi may be introduced by rubbing the leaves infected with the fungi spores on those of the trees to be treated. Sometimes the spore bearing leaves are pinned on the tree leaves. Often small trees are dipped or an atomizer is used in applying the spores.

The Weather of the South

A bulletin recently issued by the census bureau estimated the value of property in the different states, and from this we take the following estimates for the states south of the Potomac and Ohio rivers:

Rank	Total	Per cap.
Texas.....	$6,859,900,000	$1,698
Oklahoma....	4,581,000,000	2,47
Oklahoma....	4,581,000,000	2,475
Georgia.....	2,382,800,000	883
Virginia.....	2,289,900,000	1,086
Kentucky....	2,267,700,000	977
Louisiana...	2,164,400,000	1,260
Alabama....	2,127,000,000	964
Tennessee...	1,920,300,000	864
Arkansas....	1,829,500,000	1,120
N. Carolina..	1,807,500,000	794
S. Carolina..	1,351,400,000	869
Mississippi..	1,344,860,000	726
Florida.....	1,049,100,000	1,307

It will be observed that in per capita of wealth Florida is third, being surpassed by Oklahoma and Texas only.

It will also be seen that as a rule the states with the largest proportion of negro population have the lowest per capita, remarks the Jacksonville Times-Union, in commenting upon the recent bulletin. This is to be expected as the negroes on the average do not own one-tenth as much property as the whites. But for the larger proportion of negroes in Florida this state would surpass Texas in the per capita of wealth. Forty per cent. of the population of Florida is colored, while this is true of only 18 per cent. of the population of Texas.

If we suppose the average wealth of the negroes is one-tenth that of the whites the white per capita of wealth in Florida would be $2,216, as compared with $2,095 in Texas, and the per capita for the colored population would be $222 in Florida as compared with $210 in Texas.

Florida's per capita is nearly 50 per cent. higher than that of any other state of the Southeast.

Ford Band Goes to Coast

The Ford Motor Band consisting of 55 skilled musicians, will leave for an extended tour of the Pacific Coast on July 20th. Every member of this band is on the factory payroll of the Ford Motor Co., and this transcontinental tour to San Francisco and San Diego Expositions is complimentary, a tribute of appreciation by the company to the splendid musical work of the band, which has been achieved without, in any way, interfering with their regular work in the factory. The members of the band have given of their own time for much practice. They have studied hard, they have worked assiduously in perfecting a musical organization which takes first rank with any others in the country, not excepting the best professional bands.

The concerts will be given in each of the large cities, and the band will be entertained by Ford representatives and the huge army of Ford owners. At the Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, where they will remain six days, concerts will be given in the Palace of Transportation, and the counter attractions will be offered by such famous bands as Sousa's, Cassassa's (a French band recently from the war zone) Conway's and a band of native Philipinos.

Much care has been given in planning the itinerary and providing the best accommodations and comforts for the members of the band, and when they get back to Detroit, about August, they will have covered pretty nearly 5,000 miles in their travels.

A genuine musical treat is assured wherever this band plays and there is no doubt that the royalty and enthusiasm of Ford owners will be extended to the band and that their concerts will be attended by multitudes.

New Bank Paper

Washington, July 21st—The Federal Reserve Board issued and promulgated last week a regulation as to "trade acceptances," making them a distinct class of commercial paper, "for which the board is ready to approve the establishment of a discount rate somewhat lower than that applicable to other commercial paper.

The board expresses the belief that the new regulations will "considerably enlarge the scope of service of the Federal reserve banks and incidentally assist in developing the class of double name paper which has shown itself in so many countries a desirable form of investment and an important factor in modern commercial banking systems.

The new class of rediscount paper is popular, it is said, in England and has long been recognized there as very safe commercial paper. In order that a "trade acceptance" may be eligible for rediscount at the Federal reserve bank at a rate to be established for such acceptance, it must meet the following requirements:

Be indorsed by a member bank, accompanied by a waiver of demand notice and protest; have a maturity at the time of discount of not more than ninety days; must be accepted by the purchaser of goods sold to him by the drawer of the bill, and the bill must have been drawn against individual indebtedness expressly incurred by the accepted in the purchase of goods.

"Trade acceptances have not been negotiable in the United States heretofore and have had no benefits of preferences as commercial paper. In adding them to the class of commercial paper that may be the subject of rediscount, the Federal Reserve Board has borrowed a form of commercial exchange quite popular in Europe and asserts that it has authority under the Federal reserve act to declare such paper subject to the rediscount.

To be eligible to rediscount, the "trade acceptance" must bear on its face, or be accompanied by evidence in a form satisfactory to the Federal reserve banks, that it was drawn by the seller of the goods on the purchaser of such goods. Such evidence, the Reserve board says, may consist of a certificate on or accompanying the acceptance, to the following effect:

"The obligation of the acceptor of this bill arises out of the purchase of goods from the drawer. Such certificate may be accepted by the Federal reserve bank as sufficient evidence, provided, however, that the Federal reserve bank in its discretion may inquire into the exact nature of the transaction underlying the acceptance.

INFLUENCED BY MUSIC

EFFECT OF SWEET STRAINS ON DOMESTIC ANIMALS.

Lecturer Urges Farmers to Place Phonographs Near Their Bee Hives and Stables—Tells of Her Own Experiences.

Farmers who want better honey, richer milk, and more of both, should put phonographs near the hives and in the pasture or stable. Dr. Alma Webster Powell, LL. D., M. B., A. M., Ph. D., of New York and Columbia University is authority for the assertion. She declared to an audience at the University of Washington recently, while lecturing on "Music is a Human Need," that she herself had tried the experiment on her farm, and that it had proved absolutely successful.

Nor are bees and cows the only creatures influenced by music. Doctor Powell and her daughter keep four or five crickets in their hearth, and evenings they attract them forth to a dance in the middle of the living room in their farm home by singing to them. Madam Powell says she has had many scientists as her guests to witness the phenomenon.

Six little crippled girls, of particularly unlovely natures, whom she found in the slums of New York, were other objects of Madam Powell's study. She gave musical training to these children, putting phonographs in their homes, and not only succeeded in entirely reforming their dispositions, but in effecting marked changes in all of those with whom they associated.

At Coney Island, she said she ran a tent where mobs were incited to riot every evening by radical speeches. After a few months of experiment in this direction she introduced music at the meetings, and though the speeches became more fiery than ever the crowds were invariably peaceful.

She contended, as a result of these experiments, that music stirred the sluggish and tranquilized the nervous person, animal or insect.

Madam Powell believes in ragtime for all who like it and she is one, though a highly educated and successful prima donna soprano and pianist. "A good ragtime piece sets me beating time, and if I don't do it on the outside I feel it on the inside," she said.

The Leading Nation. In every age of the world there has been a leading nation, one of a more generous sentiment, whose citizens were willing to stand for the interests of general justice and humanity at the risk of being called by the men of the moment chimerical and fantastic. Which should be that nation, but these times?—Emerson.

In Memoriam

Mrs. Laura Reed was born in Island Pond, Vt. June 30th, 1842, died at Sanford, Fla. July 20th, 1915.

Mr. Reed was the wife of our fellow citizen Mr. C. A. Reed. They were married in Orlando, Fla. making that place their home until 1903, coming to Sanford where they have made their home up to the present time. During the absence here of Mrs. Reed she had drawn down to her many close friends. To know her was to love her.

She leaves behind a loving and devoted husband and one son, who have the deep sympathy of their many friends in this their great bereavement.

After the funeral service at the house at 10 10 Wednesday morning by Rev. Strong of the Congregational Church, the remains were laid to rest in Lakeview Cemetery.

May the Heavenly Father's tender mercies and care be abundantly with the husband and son who are so sorely bereaved, in the sincere prayer of their many friends.

Married in Michigan

The following from the Cadillac (Mich.) Evening News will be of interest to the many Sanford friends of Miss Mabel Anderson who for several years was a resident of this city being secretary of the Howard-Packard Land Co.—

"At 8 o'clock last evening at the Swedish Mission church was celebrated a very pretty wedding when Miss Mabel Charlotte Anderson became the bride of Carl Arthur Carlson, the Rev. Axel Rapp officiating.

The bride was gowned in white pussy willow silk, trimmed with real Irish point lace. She wore a tulle veil held in place with rose buds. She carried bride's roses and sweet peas. Victor Johnson of Chicago served his cousin, the groom, as best man. Miss Alice Anderson, sister of the bride, who attended as maid of honor, was attired in a dress of yellow crepe de chine. She carried yellow roses and sweet peas. The Misses Bessie Magnuson and Naomi Anderson, cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids. The ushers were Harry Benson and Edgar T. Anderson, the latter a brother of the bride and a resident of Chicago. The little Frances Andreen and Evelyn Anderson were flower girls; Musters Axel Rapp and Russell Larson served as ribbon bearers; and Master Rudolph Holmberg was ring bearer. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Osterberg were master and mistress of ceremonies. The bride was given away by her father Solomon Anderson. The Swedish Mission ring service was used.

Just preceding the wedding march which was played by Miss Ruth Orin of Manton, Miss Ananda Nelson sang "O Promise Me," and following the congratulations she again pleased the 225 guests with the rendition of Carrie Jacobs Bond's "A Perfect Day."

Following the congratulations a banquet was served in the church parlors, Charles G. Mohl acting in this capacity of toastmaster. There were toasts in both Swedish and English and a number of congratulatory telegrams were read. The bride and groom received many beautiful presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlson left early this morning on their honeymoon. They will make their home in Battle Creek, where the groom has been employed for some time. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Anderson, formerly of Hobart and now of this city, while the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Carlson of this city.

Auction Bridge

Mrs. R. C. Bower and Mrs. R. R. Deas were hostesses Wednesday evening at a charming auction bridge party in honor of Mrs. E. B. Brown of Tampa. The home of Mrs. Bower was attractively decorated for the formal appointments consisting of quantities of miscous, effectively arranged in bowls and vases. Alamander combined with clusters of greenery appeared in attractive baskets, and other receptacles, in every nook and corner where space was available.

The tables were arranged in the house for the players, while many of the guests not playing auction were entertained on the veranda. The hostesses were assisted in looking after the pleasure of their guests by their sister Miss Fern Ward and Miss Alice Caldwell, who served delicious punch throughout the evening.

The score cards were hand-painted and were done in a field daisy design. At the conclusion of the game scores were counted and it was found that Mrs. E. B. Brown had top score. She was presented with first prize, a beautiful work-basket of Oriental design. Mrs. Brown also received the guest prize a silver plate-lifter, decorated with blue ribbon and forget-me-nots. The consolation fell to Mrs. Toole and was a decorated plate lifter.

The guests were daintily served with luncheon consisting of shrimp shamrock salad, frozen cheese wafers, stuffed dates and leed grape juice; each plate was decorated with a spray of asparagus fern.

Those invited were: Mesdames J. W. Dickens, D. L. Thrasher, C. O. McLaughlin, T. A. Neal, S. Puleston, J. L. Hurt, Forrest Lake, C. E. Henry, G. D. Hart, Harry Ward, R. J. Holly, F. J. Gonzales, G. F. Smith, G. D. Bishop, Geo. A. DeCottes, W. E. Watson, F. L. Miller, Braxton Perkins, A. Lilja, L. C. Toole. Misses Florence Frank, Saidee Williams, Peachea Lefler, Lillie Fair Smith, Elizabeth McLaughlin.

For Mrs. Rogers

In honor of her sister Mrs. J. D. Rogers of Savannah, Ga. Mrs. Alfred Lilja entertained with a very pretty afternoon affair on Thursday. The charming little bungalow home was lovely with potted plants and cut flowers. A color scheme of yellow being used in the dining-room, and pink and white in the living room. With a background of ferns, pink and white roses featured the parlor decorations. The dining table was laid with a handsome cover of crochet over yellow silk and centered by a large bowl of cut flowers. Punch was served throughout the afternoon and delicious peach ice cream and cake at the refreshment hour. Mrs. Griffin assisted in serving. Mrs. Lilja's guests were the wives of the engineers, who were invited to meet Mrs. Rogers and discuss the possible organization of the G. I. A. in Sanford.

Mrs. Rogers who was a delegate from Savannah to the convention of the B. of L. E. at Cleveland, Ohio quite recently gave an informal talk on the work of the G. I. A. and discussed with the ladies present the advantages and privileges to be derived from a local auxiliary. Mrs. Rogers is an enthusiast and quite capable of arousing an enthusiastic interest in others. No definite plans made for such an organization here but it is believed that as a result of Mrs. Rogers' earnest talk an auxiliary will be formed in Sanford. In the course of her discussion she gave an interesting outline of the Cleveland Convention.

Invited to meet Mrs. Rogers were: Mesdames Ernest Krupp, Griffin, Crosby, James Moye, Mack Moye, Radford, R. E. Tolar, W. T. Shelley, J. C. Bennett, W. H. Peters, McConnell, Smith, Telford, H. C. Gorrer, Ed Rowland, Stafford, Aycock, Bandy and Courier.

BIG TIME AT MEETING OF ELKS LODGE

Last Wednesday night was an epoch in the annals of Sanford lodge of Elks, for with four candidates to initiate and fifty members from Orlando lodge of Elks to help in the ceremony, the antlered herd had the time of their lives. The officers of Orlando lodge were requested to put on the work and they occupied the chairs in the most approved manner.

There were four fawns required to walk the hot sands and before they finished they had spouted horns in best Elk patterns. The evening was devoted to a good time and the visitors stayed until a late hour assisting the Sanford Elks in all that good fellowship implies. It is said by the boys here that they have never had a better time since Sanford lodge was organized and they expect to go to Orlando at some future time and repeat the dose. The Orlando-Reporter Star gives those who attended the meeting as follows:

A large number of Orlando Elks went to Sanford yesterday afternoon and took charge of the Sanford lodge, upon invitation by the latter, and operated the machinery of that part of Elkdom for the evening. The Sanford Elks proved royal hosts as usual and the Orlando crowd and the visitors they took along enjoyed it to the fullest. They went and returned by auto, reaching home during the early hours of the young day. Those who went from Orlando were: M. M. Smith, exalted ruler; L. P. Hutton, esteemed leading knight; W. E. Drennon, esteemed loyal knight; H. H. Yowell, esteemed leading knight; J. Van Huskirk, secretary; J. L. Fenberg, trustee; A. R. Daniels, inner guard; D. E. Drennon, chaplain; H. Killing at Trenton

Following a series of sensational incidents in the usually quiet community of Trenton, Alachua county, Dr. H. M. Owens, a well known physician of that city, was riddled with bullets late Wednesday afternoon. Although the coroner's jury which was empanelled after the affair rendered the verdict that Dr. Owens came to his death at the hand of unknown parties, Mrs. Elizabeth McGuire, with whom he had boarded, and L. M. Boyd are being held at Gainesville for safe keeping, pending further investigation.

Another Cutting in Prison

Milledgeville, Ga., July 23.—Charles Miller, convicted of burglary in Atlanta, was cut and seriously wounded by Frank Reid, convicted of murder at Columbus, in an altercation at the State prison Farm today. The official explanation is that the men were recently removed as stewards in the tuberculosis hospital and blamed each other.

Phosphorus

The discovery of phosphorus by Brandt in 1669 was first applied commercially as a means of obtaining fire by Godfrey Hanlitz of London, who in 1860 under the direction of Robert Boyle, prepared and sold large quantities. It was used for procuring fire by rubbing small particles between the folds of brown paper, and a sulphur match was ignited from the resulting flame, but as phosphorus was both costly and dangerous this invention was not long employed.

SYNOPSIS.

The New York police are mystified by a series of murders and other crimes. The principal clue to the criminal is the warning letter which is sent the victims, signed with a "clutching hand." The latest victim of the mysterious assassin is Taylor Dodge, the insurance president. His daughter, Elaine, employs Craig Kennedy, the famous scientific detective, to unravel the mystery. What Kennedy accomplishes is told by his friend Jameson, a newspaper man. Enraged at the determined effort which Elaine and Craig Kennedy are making to put an end to his crimes, the Clutching Hand, as this strange criminal is known, resorts to all sorts of the most diabolical schemes to put them out of the way. Each chapter of the story tells of a new plot against their lives and of the way the great detective uses all his skill to save this pretty girl and himself from death.

NINTH EPISODE

THE DEATH RAY.

Kennedy was reading a scientific treatise one morning, while I was banging on the typewriter, when a knock at the laboratory door disturbed us.

By some intuition Craig seemed to know who it was. He sprang to open the door, and there stood Elaine Dodge and her lawyer, Perry Bennett. Instantly Craig read from the startled look on Elaine's face that something dreadful had happened.

"Why—what's the matter?" he asked, solicitously.

"A—another letter—from the Clutching Hand!" she exclaimed breathlessly.

Craig took the letter and we both read, with amazement:

Are you an enemy of society? If not, order Craig Kennedy to leave the country by nine o'clock tomorrow morning. Otherwise a post-strain will drop dead outside his laboratory every hour until he leaves.

The note was signed by the now familiar sinister hand, and had added to it a postscript which read:

As a token of his leaving, have him place a vase of flowers in his laboratory window today.

"What shall we do?" queried Bennett, evidently very much alarmed at the letter.

"Do?" replied Kennedy, laughing contemptuously at the apparently futile threat. "Why, nothing. Just wait."

We got up as usual the next day, and quite early went over to the laboratory. Kennedy, as was his custom, plunged straightway into his work and appeared absorbed by it, while I wrote.

"There is something queer going on, Walter," he remarked. "This thing registers some kind of wireless rays—infra-red, I think—something like those that they say that Italian scientist, Ulivi, claims he has discovered and called the 'F-rays.'"

"How do you know?" I asked, looking up from my work. "What's that instrument you are using?"

"A bolometer, invented by the late Professor Langley," he replied, his attention riveted on it.

Some time previously Kennedy had had installed on the window ledge one of those mirrorlike arrangements, known as a "busybody," which show those in a room what is going on in the street.

As I moved over to look at the bolometer I happened to glance into the "busybody" and saw that a crowd was rapidly collecting on the sidewalk.

"Look, Craig!" I called hastily.

He hurried over to me and looked. We could both see in the busybody mirror a group of excited passers-by bending over a man lying prostrate on the sidewalk.

The excited crowd lifted him up and bore him away, and I turned in surprise to Craig. He was looking at his watch.

It was now only a few moments past nine o'clock!

Some time later our door was excitedly flung open and Elaine and Perry Bennett arrived.

"I've just heard of the accident!" she cried, fearfully. "Isn't it terrible! What had we better do?"

For a few moments no one said a word. Then Kennedy began carefully examining the bolometer and some other recording instruments he had, while the rest of us watched, fascinated.

Somehow that "busybody" seemed to attract me. I could not resist looking into it from time to time as Kennedy worked.

I was scarcely able to control my excitement when again I saw the same scene enacted on the sidewalk before the laboratory. Hurriedly I looked at my watch. It was ten o'clock!

"Craig!" I cried. "Another!" Instantly he was at my side, gazing eagerly. There was a second innocent pedestrian lying on the sidewalk while a crowd, almost panic-stricken, gathered about him.

"It's no use," he muttered, as we gathered about him. "We're beaten. I can't stand this sort of thing. I will leave tomorrow for South America."

I thought Elaine Dodge would faint at the shock of his words coming so soon after the terrible occurrence outside. She looked at him speechless.

It happened that Kennedy had some artificial flowers on a stand, which he had been using long before in the study of synthetic coloring materials. Before Elaine could recover her tongue he seized them and stuck them into a tall beaker, like a vase. Then he deliberately walked to the window and placed the beaker on the ledge in a most prominent position.

Elaine and Bennett, to say nothing of myself, gazed at him, awe-struck. "Is—there no other way but to surrender?" she asked.

Kennedy mournfully shook his head. "I'm afraid not," he answered slowly. "There's no telling how far a fellow who has this marvelous power might go. I think I'd better leave, to save you. He may not content himself with innocent outsiders always."

Nothing that any of us could say, not even the pleadings of Elaine herself, could move him. The thought that at eleven o'clock a third innocent passer-by might lie stricken on the street seemed to move him powerfully. "I'm so sorry—Craig," murmured Elaine, choking back her emotion and finding it impossible to go on.

"So am I, Elaine," he answered, tensely. "But—perhaps—when this trouble blows over—"

He paused, unable to go on, turned and shook his head. Then with a forced gaiety he bade Elaine and Perry Bennett adieu, saying that perhaps a trip might do him good.

They had scarcely gone out, and Kennedy closed the door carefully, when he turned and went directly to the instrument which I had seen him observing so intently.

Plainly I could see that it was registering something.

He walked fairly close to the window this time, keeping well out of the direct line of it, however, and there stood gazing out into the street.

"We are being watched," he said slowly, turning and looking at me fixedly, "but I don't dare investigate lest it cost the lives of more unfortunates."

He stood for a moment in deep thought. Then he pulled out a suitcase and began silently to pack it.

Although we had not dared to investigate, we knew that from a building across the street emissaries of the Clutching Hand were watching for our signal of surrender.

The fact was, as we found out later, that in a poorly furnished room, much after the fashion of that which, with the help of the authorities, we had once raided in the suburbs, there were at that moment two crooks.

One of them was the famous, or rather infamous, Professor LeCroix. The other was the young secretary of the Clutching Hand.

This was the new headquarters of the master criminal, very carefully guarded.

"Look!" cried LeCroix very much excited by the effect that had been produced by his infra-red rays. "There is the sign—the vase of flowers. We have got him this time!"

LeCroix gleefully patted a peculiar instrument beside him. Apparently it was a combination of powerful electric arcs, the rays of which were shot through a funnellike arrangement into a converted or, rather, a sort of concentration apparatus from which the dread power could be released through a tubelike affair at the end. It was his infra-red heat wave, Fray, engine.

"I told you it would work!" cried LeCroix.

I did not argue any further with Craig about his sudden resolution to go away. But it is a very solemn proceeding to pack up and admit defeat after such a brilliant succession of cases as had been his until we met this master criminal.

He was unshakable, however, and the next morning we closed the laboratory and loaded our baggage into a taxicab.

Neither of us said much, but I saw a quick look of appreciation on Craig's face as we pulled up at the wharf and saw that Elaine's car was already there. He seemed deeply moved that Elaine should come at such an early hour to have a last word.

Our car, stopped, and Kennedy moved over toward her car, directing two porters, whom I noticed that he chose with care, to wait at one side. One of them was an Irishman with a slight limp; the other a wiry Frenchman with a pointed beard.

In spite of her pleadings, however, Kennedy held to his purpose, and as we shook hands for the last time I thought that Elaine would almost break down.

We finally tore ourselves away, followed by the porters carrying as much as they could.

"Bon voyage!" called Elaine, bravely keeping back a choke in her voice. Near the gangplank, in the crowd, I noticed a couple of sinister faces watching the ship's officers and the passengers going aboard. Kennedy's quick eye spotted them, too, but he did not show in any way that he noticed anything as, followed by our two porters, we quickly climbed the gangplank. "In there," pointed Kennedy, quickly to the porters, indicating our stateroom, which was an outer room. "Come, Walter."

I followed him in with a heavy heart.

Outside could be seen the two sinister faces in the crowd watching intently, with eyes fixed on the stateroom. Finally one of the crooks boarded the ship hastily, while the other watched the two porters come out of the stateroom and pause at the window, speaking back into the room as though answering commands.

Then the porters quickly ran along the deck and down the plank to get the rest of the luggage.

They took a small, but very heavy box and, lugging and tugging, hastened toward the boat with it. But they were too late. The gangplank was being hauled in.

They shouted, but the ship's officers waved them back.

The porters argued. But it was no use. All they could do was to carry the box back to the Dodge car.

Miss Dodge was just getting in as they returned.

"What shall we do with this and the other stuff?" asked the Irish porter.

She looked at the rest of the tagged luggage and the box which was marked:

Scientific Instruments
Valuable
Handle With Care

"Here—pile them in there," she said, indicating the taxicab. "I'll take care of them."

Meanwhile one of our sinister-faced friends had just had time to regain the shore after following us aboard ship and strolling past the window of our stateroom. He paused long enough to observe one of the occupants studying a map, while the other was opening a bag.

"They're gone!" he said to the other

Craig donned the rough clothes of the porter and added a limp and a wig. The same sort of exchange of clothes was made by me, and Craig clapped a Vandyke beard on my chin.

"Mum's the word," cautioned Kennedy. "You must smuggle us out of the house some way."

Kennedy lost no time in confirming the suspicions of his bolometer as to the cause of the death of the innocent victims of the machinations of the Clutching Hand.

Both of them, he had learned, had been removed to a nearby undertaking shop, awaiting the verdict of the coroner. We sought out the shop and prevailed on the undertaker to let us see the bodies.

As Kennedy pulled down the shroud from the face of the first victim he disclosed on his forehead a round, dark spot about the size of a small coin. Quickly he moved to the next coffin and, uncovering the face, disclosed a similar mark.

"What kept it?" I asked, awe-struck.

"Why," he said, "I've heard of a certain Viennese, one LeCroix, I believe, who has discovered, or perfected, an infra-red ray instrument which shoots its power a great distance with extreme accuracy and leaves a mark like these."

We thanked the undertaker for his courtesy and went out.

Meanwhile Elaine had called up Perry Bennett.

"Mr. Bennett," she exclaimed over the wire, "just guess who called on me?"

"Who?" he answered. "I give it up."

"Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Jameson," she called back.

"Is that so?" he returned. "Isn't that fine? I didn't think he was the kind to run away like that. How did it happen?"

Elaine quickly told the story as I had told her.

Had she known it, however, Bennett's valet, Thomas, was at that very mo-

As Bennett hung up the receiver Thomas entered the room.

"If anyone calls me," ordered Bennett, "take the message, particularly if it is from Miss Dodge."

"Yes, sir," nodded the valet with a covert glance at his master.

It was not long afterward that a knock sounded at the door of the new headquarters of the Clutching Hand. LeCroix and the secretary were there, as well as a couple of others.

"The Chief!" exclaimed one.

The secretary opened the door, and, sure enough, the Clutching Hand entered.

There came another knock. This time, as the door opened, it was Thomas, Bennett's faithless valet, who entered.

"Say," blurted out the informer, "do you know Kennedy and Jameson are back?"

"Back?" cried the crooks.

"Yes—they didn't go. Changed clothes with the porters. I just heard Miss Dodge telling Mr. Bennett."

Clutching Hand eyed him keenly, then seemed to burst into an un governable fury.

Quickly he began volleying orders at the valet and the others. Then, with the secretary and two of the other crooks he left by another door, from that by which he had sent the valet.

Leaving the undertakers, Kennedy and I made our way, keeping off thoroughfares, to police headquarters, where, after making ourselves known, Craig made arrangements for a raid on the house across the street from the laboratory where he had seen the opera glass reflection.

Then, as secretly as we had come, we went out again, letting ourselves into the laboratory, stealthily looking up and down the street. We entered by a basement door, which Kennedy carefully locked again.

No sooner had we disappeared than one of the Clutching Hand's spies, who had been watching behind a barrel of rubbish, gave the signal of the hand down the street to a confederate, and, going to the door, entered by means of a skeleton key.

We entered our laboratory which Kennedy had closed the day before. With shades drawn it now looked deserted enough.

Kennedy went over to a cabinet, and from it took out a notebook and

Then, as secretly as we had come, we went out again, letting ourselves into the laboratory, stealthily looking up and down the street. We entered by a basement door, which Kennedy carefully locked again.

No sooner had we disappeared than one of the Clutching Hand's spies, who had been watching behind a barrel of rubbish, gave the signal of the hand down the street to a confederate, and, going to the door, entered by means of a skeleton key.

We entered our laboratory which Kennedy had closed the day before. With shades drawn it now looked deserted enough.

Kennedy went over to a cabinet, and from it took out a notebook and

COULD SCARCELY WALK ABOUT

And For Three Summers Mrs. Vincent Was Unable to Attend to Any of Her Housework.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—"I suffered for three summers," writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, "and the third and last time, was my worst. I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework. I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, sinking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, until it wore off. I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn't taken it. After I began taking Cardui, I was greatly helped, and all three bottles relieved me entirely. I fattened up, and grew so much stronger in three months, I felt like another person altogether." Cardui is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients have a mild, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution. Cardui makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks, fresh and rosy. Cardui has helped more than a million weak women, during the past 50 years. It will surely do for you, what it has done for them. Try Cardui today.

The Exploits of Elaine

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

A small box. Opening the notebook on the laboratory table, he rapidly turned the pages.

"Here, Walter," he remarked. "This will answer your question about the mysterious deadly ray."

I moved over to the table, eager to satisfy my curiosity and read the notes which he indicated with his finger.

INFRA-RED RAY NOTES.

The pure infra-red ray which has been developed by LeCroix from the experiment of the Italian scientist, Ulivi, causes, when concentrated by an apparatus perfected by LeCroix, an instantaneous combustion of non-reflecting surfaces. It is particularly deadly in its effect on the brain centers.

It can be diverted, it is said, however, by a shield composed of platinum backed by asbestos.

Next Kennedy opened the case which he had taken out of the cabinet, and from it he took out a platinum-asbestos mirror, which was something of his own invention. He held it up, and in pantomime showed me just how it would cut off the deadly rays.

He had not finished even that, when a peculiar noise in the laboratory itself disturbed him, and he hastily thrust the asbestos-platinum shield into his pocket.

"Though we had not realized it, our return had been anticipated."

Suddenly from a closet projected a magazine gun, and before we could move Clutching Hand himself slowly appeared behind us.

We started to our feet, but in an instant found ourselves sprawling on the floor.

In the cabinet, beneath the laboratory table, another crook had been hidden, and he tackled us with all the skill of an old football player against whom we had no defense.

Four of them were upon us instantly.

At the same time Thomas, the faithful valet of Bennett, had been dispatched by the Clutching Hand to commandeer his master's roadster in his absence, and, carrying out the instructions, he had driven up before Elaine's house at the very moment when she was going out for a walk.

Thomas jumped out of the car and touched his hat deferentially.

"A message from Mr. Bennett, ma'am," he explained. "Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Bennett have sent me to ask you to come over to the laboratory."

Unsuspectingly, Elaine stepped into the car and drove off.

Instead, however, of turning and pulling up on the laboratory side of the street, Thomas stopped opposite it. He got out and Elaine, thinking that perhaps it was to save time that he had not turned the car around, followed.

The door was opened quickly by a look-out of the Clutching Hand and the valet naked if Craig and Elaine's lawyer were in. Of course the look-out replied that they were and before Elaine knew it she was jostled into the dark hallway.

As the door slammed she caught sight of the fearsome Clutching Hand himself.

She drew back, but was too frightened even to scream.

With a harsh, cruel laugh the super-criminal beckoned to her to follow him and look down through a small trapdoor.

Unable now to resist, she did so. There she saw us. To that extent the valet had told the truth. Kennedy was standing in deep thought, while I sat on an old box, smoking a cigarette—very miserable.

Watching his chance, when the street was deserted, the Clutching Hand and his followers had hustled us over to the new hangout from the laboratory. There they had met more crooks and had thrust us into this vile hole.

As the various ineffectual schemes for escape surged through my head, I happened to look up and caught a glance of horror on Craig's face. I followed his eyes. There, above us, was Elaine!

I saw her look from us to the Clutching Hand in terror. But none of us uttered a word.

"I will now show you, my dear young lady," almost hissed the Clutching Hand at length, "as pretty a game of hide and seek as you have ever seen."

As he said it another trapdoor near the infra-red ray machine was opened and a beam of light burst through. I knew it was not that which we had to fear, but the invisible rays that accompanied it, the rays that had affected the bolometer.

Just then a spot of light showed near my feet, moving about the cement floor until it fell on my shoe. Instantly the leather charred, even before I could move.

Kennedy and I leaped to our feet and drew back. The beam followed us. We retreated further. Still it followed, inexorably.

As we dodged from corner to corner, endeavoring to keep the red ray from touching us, the crooks seemed in no hurry, but rather to enjoy prolonging the torture, as does a cat with a mouse.

"Please—oh, please—stop!" begged Elaine.

Clutching Hand only laughed with fiendish delight and urged his men on. The thing was getting closer and closer.

Suddenly we heard a strange voice ring out above us.

"Police!"

"Where?" growled the Clutching Hand in fury.

She Looked at Him Speechless.

"Outside—a raid!" "Run!" How told them!

Already we could hear the hammers and axes of the police whom Kennedy had called upon before, as they battered at this outside door.

At that door a moment before the look-out suddenly had given a startled stare and a suppressed cry. Glancing down the street he had seen a police patrol in which were a score or more of the strong-arm squad. They had jumped out, some carrying sledge hammers, others axes.

Almost before he could cry out and retreat to give a warning they had reached the door and the first resounding blows had been struck.

The look-out quickly had fled and drawn the bolts of a strong inner door, and the police began battering that impediment.

Instantly Clutching Hand pushed to LeCroix at the Gray machine.

"Push them," he shouted.

We were now backed up against a small ell in the wall of the cellar. It was barely large enough to hold us, but by crowding we were able to keep out of the reach of the ray. The ray shot past the ell and struck the wall a couple of inches from us.

I looked. The cement began to crumble under the intense heat.

Meanwhile the police were having great difficulty with the steel bolt studded door. Still it was yielding a bit.

"Hurry!" shouted Clutching Hand to LeCroix.

Kennedy had voluntarily placed himself in front of me in the ell. Carefully, to avoid the ray, he took the asbestos-platinum shield from his pocket and slid it forward as best he could over the wall to the spot where the ray struck.

It reflected the ray.

But so powerful was it that even that part of the ray which was deflected could be seen to strike the ceiling in the corner, which was of wood. Instantly, before Kennedy could even move the shield, the wood burst into flames.

Above us now smoke was pouring into the room where the deflected ray struck the floor and flames broke out.

"Confound him!" ground out Clutching Hand, as they saw it.

The other crooks backed away and stood hesitating, not knowing quite what to do.

The police had by this time finished battering in the door and had rushed into the outer passage.

While the flames leaped up, the crooks closed the last door into the room.

"Run!" shouted Clutching Hand, as they opened a secret gate, disclosing a spiral flight of iron steps.

A moment later all had disappeared except Clutching Hand himself. The last door would hold only a few seconds, but Clutching Hand was waiting to take advantage of even that.

A last frantic effort he sought to direct the terrible ray at us. Elaine acted instantly. With all her strength she rushed forward, overturning the machine.

police man stuck his head and shoulders through. His revolver rang out and Clutching Hand's automatic flew out of his grasp, giving him just enough time to dodge through and slam the secret door in the faces of the squad as they rushed in.

Back of the house Clutching Hand and the other crooks were now passing through a bricked passage. The fire had got so far beyond control by this time that it drove the police back from their efforts to open the secret door.

Thus the Clutching Hand had made good his escape through the passage which led out, as we later discovered, to the railroad tracks along the river.

"Down there—Mr. Kennedy—and Mr. Jamecon," cried Elaine, pointing at the trap which was hidden in the strife.

The fire had gained terrific headway, but the police seized a ladder and stuck it down into the basement.

Choking and sputtering, half-suffocated, we staggered up.

"Are you hurt?" asked Elaine, anxiously, taking Craig's arm.

"Not a bit—thanks to you!" he replied, forgetting all in meeting the eager questioning of her wonderful eyes.

HOW DAUBIT ROSE TO FAME

Painter May Have Had Successful Qualities All the Time, and Then Again—

"Realism may not always prove up as an artistic quality," explained the old critic, "but it sometimes hits the spot as a business proposition."

"I'm thinking of Daubit. Daubit was a middle-aged painter with a future behind him in the little town he hailed from. He stuck to idealism until he saw that it was no use, then he turned realist and took the step that made him."

"About this time he met a splinter in ill health, fifty years old, and rich as Croesus. The splinter was passionately fond of cats, and of one big old tabby in particular."

"Daubit saw his chance. He pulled the strings and arranged for a business interview with her. He talked glibly and persuaded her to sit for her portrait. She agreed to let him paint her as she liked best to sit at home, with the stipulation that if the picture did not suit she need not pay one cent."

"But our painter wasn't to be balked or daunted. He borrowed money on his dress suit and fixed his studio up and had her easy chair and other things hauled down and back every sitting. He posed her in the chair, and he put beside it the basket in which her favorite tabby always took her ease. He painted this basket empty.

"When the picture was done he let her wait for a day or two before he invited her and her friends to come and see it. He sent a special invitation to the big old tabby, too. That pleased her, but she kept her critical air and made ready to declare that she did not want the picture enough to pay real money for it. Just when she was ready to speak the tabby approached the picture, seemed to notice it for the first time—it was on the floor—and then, smelling, mewling, and evidently delighted, did her best to get at the basket."

"The splinter changed her mind instantly. She took the cat's word for its excellence and bought the picture at a good round price."

"She hung the picture in her home, and in six months Daubit was there with her to help her enjoy it. His marriage to her made him a celebrity among all the rich people, and now he sells more than he can paint."

"How do you account for his sudden success?" asked the inquiring friend. "Had it in him all the time, I suppose, and just needed an opportunity?"

"Maybe," went on the old critic, "but a friend of mine who runs a little animal store near Daubit's old studio told me that Daubit came in the day before the exhibition and bought some catnip."

"For my part, I make no rash charges—genius is genius, even when it pursues a dark and devious way."

Eyes Front!

The drill instructor passed his hand wearily across his forehead. He had been breaking in some raw recruits and instructing them in the elements of company drill.

The majority were intelligent fellows, and found no difficulty in obeying his instructions, but one, in particular, didn't seem able to understand even a simple order.

At last, losing his temper, the drill instructor determined to bring him to his senses by holding him up to ridicule. Calling him to the front, he proceeded to put him through his paces.

"Eyes front!" he roared. To everybody's astonishment the recruit gazed absent-mindedly about him.

"Do you mean to say," bawled the instructor, "that you do not know where your front is?"

"Yes, I know, sir," he replied. "Well, then, where is it?" demanded the instructor.

"Please, sir," he faltered, "it's gone to the laundry."

Woman Hobo Calls Again for Drug Cure at Hospital in Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo.—"Box Car Annie" is back at the General hospital again, seeking a second trial of the drug cure. It was in March, this year, that the stringent enforcement of the federal drug act sent the woman hobo to the City hospital. After taking the cure she "bummed" her way south, visiting Oklahoma, Louisiana and Texas.

A few days ago she felt the old desire for drugs coming back to her and immediately started north for Kansas City where, she said, "they have a fine bunch to help you."

Maggie Draper, alias Annie Smith, alias "Box Car Annie," is thirty years old and a well-known character in the western part of the United States. She has been a professional hobo for about twelve years.

NEGRO SHOT BY POLICEMAN VICKERY SUNDAY DAY NIGHT

HAD BEEN ACTING SUSPICIOUSLY AND WENT FOR GUN WHEN HALTED

Either Burglar Bill or one of his pals, or at least a negro who has been loitering around the residences of Tenth street lately was shot and killed on Sanford Ave., last Sunday night by Policeman Vickery.

This city has been bothered by the depredations of a burglar or gang of burglars for the past three weeks and the citizens and the police force have been keeping a sharp look-out for intruders. On Sunday night about eleven o'clock police headquarters received several calls from the vicinity of tenth street and Magnolia and Park avenues where a negro had been seen around some of the homes. Policeman Vickery responded and upon his arrival a negro going down Tenth street toward Sanford avenue was pointed out to him as the one who had been acting suspiciously. He followed caught up with the man and stopped him. Calling upon him to throw up his hands the negro went after a gun or some other weapon in his pocket and was warned by Officer Vickery to take his hand out of his pocket. Still acting as though he would shoot the officer decided to take no chances and shot him dead. A pistol and knife were found upon him and this morning at the coroner's inquest it was found that the negro's name was Gillison and that at one time he had worked at the stable of E. E. Brady. He answers the description of the negro who broke into the Parrish home where young Harvey Parrish had a good look at him.

If Gillison is not the principal in the housebreaking affairs he is probably one of the loiterers in the suburbs and his presence on Tenth street at that time of the night and his refusal to throw up his hands at the request of the officers, the attempt to draw his gun and the fact that he had an arsenal on him are sufficient to prove that he was acting in a very suspicious manner. If Gillison is not the real burglar the rest of the bunch will be rounded up for the police force have a dragnet out that will capture anyone who is trying to break and enter the homes of this city.

The killing of the negro is deplored by Officer Vickery and city officials but they feel that an officer in the discharge of his duty should take no chances and they are determined to break up the gang of thieves that have been terrorizing the citizens of Sanford for several weeks.

There were several indications of the burglars being in evidence on Saturday night and they were getting very bold in their depredations.

Orlando Auto City

Orlando, July 26.—Orlando rides in motor cars! For years this city has claimed to be the automobile city of America. Now just after the completion of the new city directory, which gives her credit for 8,000 population, it may be interesting to know how many cars there are owned in the city, and what part of the total population is in the auto class.

A tip to the tax assessor's office is a most convincing method of proving Orlando's claim to motor precedence. Recently obtained figures from that source show that there are 584 autos licensed here. Take these figures and divide them into the total population and you will find that there is one auto to every fourteen persons in the city.

Taxes Well Paid Up

The taxes on real estate in this county have been remarkably well paid, as the records in the Tax Collector's office will show. At the recent tax sale only 442 tax sale certificates were issued, the most of these were to the state, and no doubt will soon be redeemed. This is considered an excellent showing.

Cattle on Commission

Nineteen carloads of Osceola county cattle were shipped on Thursday to the National Live Stock Commission Company, of St. Louis, for sale in the open market there. This is the first time that cattle have been shipped by this method from Kissimmee. This plan is being tried by the stock men at an experiment in contrast to the past plan of selling outright to packing house concerns.

The shipment was arranged for by M. G. Gardner, representing the National Live Stock Commission Company who was first attracted to Kissimmee at the time of the cattle sale held here on May 8th last. Mr. Gardner was impressed with the opportunities here for his company and returned several weeks ago to put his plan before cattlemen. He spent a week or ten days here with the result that the shipment was arranged.

Those who furnished the cattle for the shipment and the number of cattle for each were as follows:

- Malloy-Lesley Cattle company, and Lesley & Bass, five carloads.
- Southport Cattle Company, five carloads.
- J. R. Donagan, five carloads.
- Carson Cattle Company, three carloads.
- Steve Acree, one carload.

The big shipment of cattle went forward by a special train on Thursday morning and big banners on the cars announced that the cattle were from Kissimmee, Florida, and were being shipped to the National Live Stock Commission Company, of St. Louis. The cattle went from here direct to Montgomery, where they were unloaded and red and other taken on to St. Louis to be placed on sale there.

J. R. Donagan, W. M. Davis, of Orlando representing the Southport Cattle Company, E. L. Lesley and son, Leroy, and M. H. Halley left Thursday afternoon for St. Louis as superintendent of the shipment to watch the sale of the cattle there.

It is hoped that the shipment will be a success and that the future shipments will be made by the same route.

Resting Land Loses Forty

work. In the North, land is usually left idle during a part of the year. No part of the land is more idle than such practices as it does not work, but there is another and more important reason for the idleness of the land. The soil is not fertile and the land is occupied by a crop than when it is idle.

On idle land the plant food leeches away, especially in loose sandy soil, because there is no plant there to use it as it becomes available. Then, too, the sun beams down unimpeded on the soil and burns out the organic matter which would otherwise be protected by a growing crop. The University of Florida Experiment Station is advocating that the land be planted to catch crops between seasons for the foregoing reasons.

EIGHT HUNDRED BODIES HAVE BEEN RECOVERED FROM STEAMER EASTLAND

TERRIBLE LAKE DISASTER AT CHICAGO IS BEING THOROUGHLY PROBED AT PRESENT BY OFFICIALS

Chicago, July 27.—After a two days search of the wreck of the steamer Eastland, which turned turtle at the dock Saturday with 2,500 excursionists aboard, 809 bodies had been recovered, and it was thought that possibly 200 more were held in the mud of the Chicago River by the superstructure of the boat. With the excitement calmed, the estimates of the total number of dead run to about 1000.

Federal and State authorities today took up the task of fixing responsibility for the disaster. Examination of the crew was continued, with a view of learning if all regulations were complied with. Efforts also were made to ascertain whether the vessel was properly constructed. State's Attorney Hoyne began the preparation of evidence for the Cook county grand jury on the theory that the United States Inspection Bureau erred in granting a license to engage in trans-lake business. Mr. Hoyne declared the evidence he had in hand indicated that the Eastland was an unsafe vessel.

Dickerson N. Hoover, acting superintendent of inspection of the United States steamboat inspection service and Captain Charles H. Wescott, of Detroit, joined Inspectors Mansfield and Nicholas in examination of the crew to determine any negligence in operation and whether the water ballast compartments were properly filled. They did not credit the theory that there was a hidden sudden shift of weight.

Coroner Hoffman announced that he would not hold an inquest until the search for the dead was completed. This was continued throughout the night and additional squads of 25 divers was sent into the hull

THRASHER TO KITCHENER

SANFORD MAN NOW IN SWITZERLAND GIVES SOME IDEAS OF THE EUROPEAN WAR

Col. A. M. Thrasher, formerly of Sanford but now residing in Switzerland recently wrote the following letter to Lord Kitchener which caused considerable comment in military circles in England and elsewhere. Thunm Switzerland, May 24, 1915.

His Excellency, Earl Kitchener, of Kartum, London, England. My Dear General—

The writer is an Ex-Confederate soldier, of the Civil War in America, and served four years, part of the time in the trenches, under Gen. R. E. Lee.

I happened to be in Switzerland when this, greatest of all wars, began, and I have watched from day to day, with deep anxiety and grave concern, the progress made on the lines of battle, the advances, the retreats, the victories and the defeats as well also, the long death-tolls and the brutal and savage methods of German warfare on land and from the sky; on the sea and under the sea; and I am as anxious for the success of the Allies as any British soldier at the front, altho I am an American citizen.

At no time in the glorious past have Englishmen fought as they have in this conflict, among giants, and so resolved to win or die.

But you are a busy man, your time is valuable and I beg your pardon for writing this letter.

Your fame as a soldier and general is world wide. You know your business and your armies, their needs, the extreme gravity of the situation today, and the momentous issues involved.

But, My Dear General, in my humble opinion, when you made the recent call for three hundred thousand additional men, you should have called for six hundred thousand. You will need them, a number of serious, level-headed men with whom I have talked agree with me as to the number of new men you will surely need.

There's a lot of hard fight yet. Get them by conscription and "Rob the Cradle and the Grave" if it becomes necessary. "England Expects Every Man to Do His Duty Today" so that England, the soul and center of a grand empire upon whose dominions the sun never sets, shall continue to live, the once sunny snow bleeding France shall live and heroic (but ravished) Belgium too. The Allies shall not fail. The Allies must win. Civilization demands of them and for them triumphant victory.

May Heaven smile upon you and the Allied Armies. Again asking your pardon for this presumption, I beg to subscribe myself, as ever your friend and admirer.

A. M. THRASHER.

Mr. Thrasher received the following reply from the private secretary of Lord Kitchener.

War Office, Whitehall, May 27, 15.

A. M. Thrasher, Esq., Hotels Bellevue et du Parc, Thun, Switzerland.

Dear Sir—

Lord Kitchener asks me to thank you for your letter, with its enclosure that you sent him on the 24th inst.

Yours faithfully,

Camping on Harney

Everybody happy, enjoying camp life, getting cabbage from the trees, catfish, mullet turtle etc. from the lake. In short, we are basking in the sunshine of peace and plenty. The only unpleasant visitors we have had so far are the swine. We usually treat them to a shower bath and they leave us alone for a while.

Some of us who are here for our health are rapidly improving.

Miss Corrine Raulerson one of "Our Girls" left yesterday for a visit to friends in Volusia but will return tomorrow in time to attend the social and pillau which is planned tomorrow evening at 7.30 o'clock. Camps No. 1 and 2 are requested to be present and will furnish music for the occasion. Instrumental I mean, the other will be vocal and all will be cordially invited to join in the singing, as we are all lovers of good music. "Let Everybody Sing".

During our stay on the beach we have had a goodly number of visitors among the number of the most distinguished ones are Mr. W. R. Depriest of N. C. Capt and Mrs. J. Ury of Americus, Ga., others will come later.

We had a good rain yesterday.

We like to hear the birds sing, the frogs croak, the hens cackle etc., but we don't like the bugs, snakes and lizzards much.

Mr. and Mrs. Eph Brown and family motored over from Chuluota Friday a m and will pay a visit to Camp No. 1. Well, I'll let you hear from us again. Mr. Editor, if this escapes the waste basket.

Cutting Out The Dead Beats

With seeming unanimity the thinking press of Florida agrees that too pulling of politicians is coming to be to say the least, an imposition and if the sentiment in evolved into action the time will come when campaign expenses will not be cut by depriving with the newspapers certain facts or political opponents who news and should be published for the information of the readers. To go further however and throw out the politicians is a step which is not to be taken. It will be an exploit his wares. It will be a most sensible condition of affairs when the politician who wishes to reach the readers of papers with his message comes to realize that the only way to reach them is to be a man of substance and to be a man of substance is to be a man of substance.

FLORIDA CELERY ERY IN YEAR BOOK GETS CRITICIZED

TOO MUCH BORDEAN MIXTURE MAKES IT UNHEALTHFUL --- NEED BETTER MACHINES

Florida celery growers are charged with carelessness in a bulletin just issued by the Department of Agriculture, which says:

"An investigation of a number of complaints received by the Department of Agriculture indicates that many Florida celery growers have been careless in spraying their celery and that, as a result, quantities of copper in excess of what is believed to be necessary or healthful have been found on the celery when ready for consumption. The use of salts of copper in food products has been officially pronounced injurious to health, and in previous seasons the department has warned growers of the necessity of their complying with this decision.

"The copper is deposited on the celery in the form of dried Bordeaux mixture lime and copper sulphate, which is used extensively to prevent the destruction of the crop by blight. Unless the plants are sprayed at certain periods of growth with this mixture, it has been found impossible to bring them to market in good condition. With proper care in spraying, however, there is no reason why any injurious quantity of copper should be deposited upon the stalks. The excessive amounts of copper sometimes found on the stalks of celery are due to faulty methods of spraying, a frequent cause being the use of knapsack instead of power outfits. The knapsack sprayers do not operate at a sufficiently high pressure to make a fine spray or mist; hence, by their use, the Bordeaux mixture reaches the plants in a number of fine streams which fail to cover the leaves as does the mist or fog, but run down between the stalks. The mixture that accumulates at the base of the plants, giving a blue-green appearance to the base of the celery.

"With an efficient apparatus working under high pressure—one hundred and fifty pounds or more—this trouble does not exist. The spraying should be stopped as soon as the leaves are thoroughly covered with the mist or fog. Thus there is no opportunity for the mixture to run down the stalks. As for the leaves, when there is an excessive amount of copper salts upon them, they should not be eaten under any circumstances.

"That growers have not been careful enough in the use of their spraying apparatus is indicated by the fact that the Department of Agriculture has found as much as 34.9 parts of copper per million on washed inner stalks. In other cases, the proportion has run as high as 17.4, 13.0 and 11.3 parts per million. On the other hand, in many of the specimens examined it was found that copper was not present in undue amounts, which emphasizes the point that care in spraying is all that is necessary.

"As a matter of fact, if bunches of celery are broken up and the stalks thoroughly scrubbed before being eaten, practically all the copper from the Bordeaux mixture will be eliminated and there will be no danger of bad effects to the consumer. It is recommended therefore that this practice be followed wherever there is any reason to suspect from the color of the celery or otherwise that copper has been allowed to accumulate upon the stalks."

The celery farmers around Sanford use the high pressure sprays and Sanford celery is not in the above class.

Dr. and Mrs. Brownlee expect to leave tomorrow for a month a trip to South Carolina and North Carolina where they will visit friends and relatives.

Mrs. Hines has returned from a visit with friends in Clearwater and expects to leave in a few days for North Carolina where she will make her future home.

The Boys Scouts and the Camp Fire Girls have returned from a week's outing at Palm Springs under the chaperonage of Rev. and Mrs. Geo. Hyman. The boys and girls had the time of their lives and that they spent a week in the woods and returned without an accident speaks well for Rev. and Mrs. Hyman. Strict rules were observed at the camp at all times and the scouts were given their rules to observe and the week was full of good instructions. Those who attended the camp are enthusiastic over the outing and think that the outings are ideal for stunts of this kind.
