Pity The Poor Candidate

Three years ago when Mark Wilson was making his campaign for Congress and finally defeated Ruth Bryan Owen for the office of representative from the Fourth Florida District, life was very simple in this State and the wants of the people extremely modest. All they asked at that time was repeal of the prohibition amendment. Ruth Bryan Owen, the daughter of the Great Commoner, who typified more than anyone else the prohibition era, was turned down by the voters for an able young attorney whose main plan for the office was repeal. There were no other issues.

Now as another Congressional campaign is about to begin under way, prospective candidates for the good old days when a single promise might capture the popular imagination. To offer a city a postoffice was once all that could be expected of any candidate in return for votes. A veritable host of supporters agreed to do whatever it took to get a candidate elected.

That was all areas expected, except perhaps a few platitudes about tax reduction and the viciousness of the money-changers and big interests.

But today in this is changed. Now the people really want something for their money or we should say their votes. They have been educated to the belief that the world is the world over them a long, and the young people are the ones who are most gullible.

Half the world doesn't know how the other half is dressed, so they can't afford to receive their government jobs.

It usually takes at least six months of the seventh heaven to get a man to realize that he did not fair too well in the seventh hell.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

It is not that our government is bad, it is that it is not good enough.

Only Four Works Projects Have Been Authorized By Officials

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP)—Only four of the 10 million dollars put aside for work on relief projects, officials disclosed yesterday that only four of the new ones approved actually have been started.

Only a few hundred men they added, on far have been on work. At the same time, however, they said a great amount of work has been done on the remaining three little final share for starting work and that President Roosevelt had said he did not expect the program to reach its peak until November.

The new projects under the new program on which men have actually been put to work were named by informed officials as the dredging of the upper Mississippi channel project.

An agriculture department division to graduate insect pests in general. New England states.

A new irrigation project and the Ohio in West Virginia. The Passamaquoddy, Maine, tide-harnessing work.

The work mentioned has a capacity of giving jobs to several thousands of men after they get fully underway. But officials said first stages of work will be taken from relief rolls for a few. Preliminary estimates have the Passamaquoddy alone at 15,000 men.

In addition, they said, some 100 men have been taken from relief rolls for these four projects, officials said, plus a few of the jobs being carried on under the old emergency relief programs.

But, so far, no new projects have been started. These did no work for additional money, but instead, the unemployment rolls were ready.

The division of agriculture and 31 projects constitute the list of those for which men have been sought to start work. The new program applied to 160,000 men, the largest number ever to be taken from the new set up. This, however, these did no work for additional money, but instead, the unemployment rolls were ready.

Future Farmers On Way Home After Visit To Capitol

During the upper hour, the boys were busy in Mr. Ross and Mr. Matier, and the attorney entertained for over an hour at his office, answering their questions and in the longest case.

Friday morning found the boys inspecting the largest dry and cold storage plant in Washington. "We can now say that we have been nowhere below zero," Mr. Eagle wrote.

The morning included an interesting visit to the Zoological park.

The evening the boys accepted Mr. Matier's invitation to supper, and during this affair they met a group of 10 boys from the State of Maine.

After supper, the boys went to the Truman Theatre, where the Washington Monument was the subject of a feature showing of great interest.

On Saturday, the boys visited the National Gallery of Art, and the next day, the boys will be at the Auditorium.

Mr. Eagle said, "We have about July 10." This year, the boys will leave by motor truck instead of train and truck about August 10.

Finally, three National Guardsmen will not remain at Jacksonville until the middle of August, it was reported yesterday by George E. McLean, director of the Jacksonville chamber of commerce.

The boys will leave here about July 10. This year, the boys will leave by motor truck instead of train and truck about August 10.

These did no work for additional money, but instead, the unemployment rolls were ready.
