Marks Writes Songs On Three Faiths

By DOC QUINN
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — "This," said Gerald Marks, "is the love of my life — and let me tell you it's a long way from Tin Pan Alley to the Vatican."

The author of such resounding popular song hits as "All of Me," "About Dixie?" held in his hand three record albums containing 30 songs about the Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish faiths.

Five years ago Marks, who has contributed music for such diverse outlets as the Ziegfeld Follies, the poetry of Carl Sandburg, and safety duties for children, discovered that he didn't know much about the holy days of his own Jewish faith.

He began studying their history and writing songs explaining, describing, and celebrating them. When he had finished 10, he began thinking about reports he had heard that the Vatican and various churches in Italy had sheltered refugees from Hitlerian persecution during World War II. He decided to do something in gratitude.

Gets Enthusiastic Response
Marks journeyed to the Vatican, explained his plan to write original songs about Catholic holy days, and got an enthusiastic response. He returned to New York and with the aid of a priest put in seven months of intensive study of Catholicism and of the history of the times in which the holy days originated.

He wrote songs explaining and describing 10 Catholic holy days. Then, going through the same study process, he did 10 Protestant days. Ray Middleton was secured to sing and do the narration on the three albums, which were issued recently under a new label set up specifically for them, Candle Records.

Marks described the tunes have a "semi-sacred standard music." He's enthusiastic about this latest project but says it doesn't mean he's going to quit Tin Pan Alley.

"I keep writing songs all the time," he said. "And let me tell you what Tin Pan Alley is—it's a state of mind. Wherever, at this moment, somebody is laboriously trying to compose a popular tune and set some words to it—that's Tin Pan Alley."

Hits Involve Luck
As for the secret of turning out a hit tune, Marks believes much depends on luck, including the luck of finding the right person and circumstances to present it.

"Back in 1931, nobody wanted my song 'All of Me,' no publisher. Around the Middle West—I'm a native of Saginaw, Mich.—I got 8 or 10 pretty good singers to sing it on radio, and I didn't get a call for a single copy."

"But one day I ran into a singer named Belle Baker and this song hit her. Her husband had died a month before, and she was lousy with such lines as 'Your goodbye left me with eyes that cry—how can I go on dear without you?'"

She sang it one Saturday night on a New York local station, and on Monday morning it was a hit. Matter of fact, a publisher wired me right after he heard it that night, and I'll never forget the words: 'You will have a worldwide hit in 20 minutes.'"

Minnesingers was the name given to the German lyric poets of the 12th and 13th centuries. The minnesinger usually belonged to the lower ranks of the nobility.

Indonesia Destroys Compromise Chances

EDITORS NOTE: United Press Vice President for Europe's Thomas R. Curran has obtained an exclusive interview with Dutch Prime Minister Dr. Willem Drees in which the prime minister expresses the Netherlands view toward Indonesia's claims to Dutch New Guinea and the return of Dutch property in Indonesia. Curran telegraphed his questions to Dr. Drees and the following dispatch constitutes the prime minister's reply.

E. G. Robinson Jr. Writes Own Story

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press Hollywood Writer
HOLLYWOOD — Edward G. Robinson Jr. has been cold, stone sober for six straight months, an achievement that has eluded the 24-year-old son of the movie "Moby-Dick" since he was a juvenile delinquent of 15.

To his background of actor, alcoholic and jailbird, young Robinson adds the title "author." And it's possible his autobiography may clear the way for a normal life in the future.

Junior's fortunes already are looking up. He read the galley proofs in the cozy white serving 60 days on a drunk rap.

Expresses Optimism
"I think I'm finally over the hump now," the bottle-browed Robinson said, sipping on a lemonade. "But then I've said that in the past only to have my life go to pieces again. This time I feel like an individual instead of the son of 'Little Caesar.'"

"I also feel closer to my dad, and he seems to have some respect for me."

According to Eddie—his friends call him "Manny"—Robinson Sr. has been the bugaboo of his mixed up past.

Wanted Recognition
"My life might have been happier and less complicated if I'd been anyone else's son," he says. "I always hungered for some recognition of my own. It's been a great disadvantage for me to be his boy. But I'm still proud of him, and I realize that I caused most of my troubles myself."

"Trouble" This kid invented the word. Junior has been in jail uncounted times. He cost a companion an eye in an auto wreck and served time for drunk driving.

He was thrown out of the family home when he was 17 years old, attempted suicide at 22 and was divorced by his wife, Frances, when he was 23.

Shows in His Face
Robinson tells all in his book, "My Father-My Son." The things he has left out are written on his face—the tragedy of a spoiled kid who thought he had the world by the tail simply because his father was a movie star.

There is hurt in his eyes. He looks at people hoping they will say a friendly word. He behaves as if this might be his last opportunity to straighten himself out. Meeting him, you feel as though you want to help.

"I'm trying to get back on my feet," he sighs. "I guess I had to hit rock bottom before I could start going up again, clearing away the wreckage."

Coal Mining Once Wet Job

WASHINGTON — Sixty diving may be a 20th century sport, but it was a 19th century livelihood for Alabama coal miners.

One of the cheapest methods of producing coal over a century ago was by mining it under the waters of the Black Warrior River or 50 miles from Tuscaloosa, Ala.

An Alabama Geological Survey report for the year 1850 described the "submarine" mining operation this way:

"A floatboat is moored parallel with the joints, and near the edge of the coal long, wedge-shaped crowbars are driven into the seams by means of manual maneuvered by the men in the boat. When a ledge of about two feet is loosened in this way across the seam, the men take to the water and dive two or three together. . . and lift the coal bodily to the surface and place it in the boat."

A later improvement on this method was the use of chains to haul up the blocks of coal. Some of the blocks weighed from 800 to 1,000 pounds.

When rains made the river navigable, the coal was floated down-river to Tuscaloosa, where it was sold at 10 to 12 cents a bushel, or farther on to Mobile.

The floatboats, which cost about $70 each were a losing commodity, since they could not be brought back upstream.

The miners were mostly farmers who worked in the mines only in August, September and October. Today there are 198 underground and 39 surface mines in Alabama. More than eight thousand workers produced 13 million tons of coal last year.

Johnson Warns Against Reprisal

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson asserted today that the nation which controls space will gain "total control over the earth."

"The United States must win that control," he said, "or Russia will exploit it for the purposes of tyranny."

Johnson made the statements at a meeting of Senate Democrats shortly before the 85th Congress. Its attention focused on the arms race, opened its second session. He also issued an implied call for a new peace or disarmament talks with Russia. "The conference table is more important now than it ever has been, and we should welcome to its chair all men of all nations."

The Texas Democrat blamed President Eisenhower's emphasis on a balanced budget for the U. S. lag in the space weapons race with Russia.

Warns Against Reprisal
Meanwhile, Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin said there still is a "50-50 chance" he won't quit his job of directing Army's development of space-age weapons.

Gavin also stepped up his public fight for money to increase weapons research and nearly double army manpower to 28 divisions.

Gavin expressed his views in an interview after he appeared before the Johnson's subcommittee Wednesday. He told the senators he decided to retire after being informed he was no longer being considered for a command position equivalent for four-star rank.

Johnson warned against "even a hint of reprisal" against military men who speak frankly before Congress about administration policies.

U. S., Soviet Union Are Fighting Propaganda War In Egypt

CAIRO (UP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are fighting a propaganda war in Egypt today with the country's bookstalls and box offices for battle.

This year the United States will spend $200,000 on its information program here, the Soviet Union considerably more.

The money goes into books, magazines, movies, cocktail parties and exchange visits — anything that can affect the way 22 million Egyptians think about the two countries, or win some of their goodwill and sympathy.

The propaganda war here is just one phase of the broader battle going on globally for the world's uncommitted millions; the people whose sentiments may eventually decide the East-West struggle.

U. S. At A Disadvantage

The United States starts off with a disadvantage. First, U. S. policy gets an almost daily roasting in the press. Rightly or wrongly, U. S. policy is read by Egyptians as supporting her two biggest enemies, Israel and Western colonialism.

"We could spend all the money in Ft. Knox here and not overcome the psychological success the Russians scored with the Sputnik," said a United States Information Service official.

But on the other hand, the United States has one enormous advantage:

American films, books and magazines have a following here the Soviets have not been able to crack.

The Soviet offerings suffer from one universal shortcoming — their propaganda value is high, but the entertainment value is low.

Russian publications range from dense Marxist ideology to soya bean raising and the care and feeding of babies.

Their biggest advantage is their price. Most are practically given away for one, two or five piasters (three, six or 15 cents), a fraction of what Western publications such as Life and Newsweek sell for.

But they are dull as yesterday's dishwater and after a splashy start, follow-up editions usually gather dust on the newsstands.

The USIS official answer to the Russian output includes a weekly paper in Arabic mailed free to 50,000 people, and newsletters on economics, science, military affairs and current events going to some 70,000 people each month.

But they suffer, though to a lesser degree, from that same disease: dullness.

West Strong At Box Office

USIS men say their most effective action is in subsidizing the publication of anti-Communist books in Arabic. The agency finds locally-written anti-Communist publications or hires a translator for international works and quietly subsidizes their printing.

In the last six months, the USIS has spent almost a third of its budget on translations.

At the box office, the West outdistances the Soviets easily, since Russian films just do not measure up to their Western counterparts for entertainment value.

But in the person-to-person department, the Soviets are ahead of the United States. Most of their information people speak Arabic; only one of USIS's dozen odd officers does.

More important, the Soviets have their exchange visits program.

The United States has nothing to match the exchange program.

The reason, USIS men answer: NO MONEY.

Today's Atlas Missile Firing Is Successful

Head-On Collision Sees $600 Damage; One Person Hurt

A two-car head-on collision, shortly before 7 o'clock Wednesday night caused more than $300 property damage. One person was injured.

A 1937 Studebaker, driven by Mrs. Julia Denton Dillon, 59, of Casselberry, was traveling north on 17-92 in the construction area near the County Home when it met head on a 1935 Buick, traveling south and driven by William E. Lightfoot, 33.

Patrolman Olin C. Garrett of the Florida Highway Patrol, said in his report that damage to each car was estimated at $300.

Mrs. Dillon was taken to Seminole Memorial Hospital suffering from internal injuries. Mrs. Elmer Ashley, a passenger in Mrs. Dillon's car, received a cut on her chin while another passenger, Miss Dawn Ashley was uninjured.

Lightfoot, a Navy chief attached to VAH-3 at the Sanford Naval Air Station, was uninjured. He was charged, according to Patrolman Olin Garrett, with reckless driving while drinking.

Deputy Sheriff J. L. Kriz assisted in the investigation.

Civic Club Group Sees Exhibition Of Drunkometer

The Sanford Jaycees were shown exactly how a Drunkometer works when Ben Butler, Sergeant on the Sanford Police Department, demonstrated the machine's operation and spoke on its value to the local law enforcement agency.

Sergeant Butler, speaking to the Jaycees on traffic safety, by actually operating the machine before the members of the local civic club, pointed out its value in determining the extent of intoxication before charging those taken into custody with "driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquors."

The local police officer explained in detail the machine's operation and tested its performance when two Jaycees volunteered as subjects to take the tests.

He also demonstrated the Breathalyzer, another instrument for finding intoxication. Butler expressed his preference for "the Drunkometer in police work."

"I'd like to recommend that the Jaycees organize a Traffic Safety Committee," said Sgt. Butler as he climaxed his talk and demonstration. "We need one badly," he said, "and with the cooperation of the Jaycees a program to successfully promote safety would be successful."

New members presented badges and credentials at yesterday's Jaycee luncheon were Jack Wilbur, Bill Slaton and Bill Hinesfelder. Dan Hatten was introduced as a visitor.

M. L. Raborn Jr., president of the young businessmen organization, announced the first meeting of the newly-formed Langwood Area Jaycees on Tuesday night, 7:30 p. m., at the Langwood Library. "Several Jaycee State officials will be there," said Raborn, and "we would like to have a good representation there."

Members Urged To Be At Male Chorus Practice

Members of the Male Chorus are reminded that there will be a rehearsal at 8 o'clock Monday night at the First Presbyterian Church.

Director Harry M. Weir emphasizes the importance of a good attendance at this practice as plans for a forthcoming appearance of the group must be made.

Ginder, Krider Discuss Waterways Development

Adm. S. P. Ginder of the Florida Development Commission and Governor Leroy Collins' appointed member to the Florida Waterways Committee, met in Sanford yesterday to confer with John Krider, chairman of the Florida Waterways Committee and Manager of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce.

Adm. Ginder requested the text of the Army Corps of Engineers report which was announced from Washington as "unfavorable."

"I will definitely go to Washington to protest the 'unfavorable' report," Adm. Ginder told Krider yesterday at his noon conference.

Adm. Ginder's purpose in Sanford yesterday was to confer with Krider regarding waterways development throughout the state, Krider said immediately following the meeting.

"I can certainly say that Adm. Ginder was both concerned and upset over announcement of the Corps of Engineers report released earlier this week," Chamber of Commerce Manager John Krider said.

"To learn that this project, as important as it is to the development of all of Florida, could be again turned down was a shock, surprise and terribly upsetting," Adm. Ginder said.

Krider commented that "the job is just half done with a 13-foot channel dead-ending here at Sanford."

"I have talked with Adm. Malcolm Fortson of Jacksonville, a member of the Waterways Committee and with Col. Herbert Geed of West Palm Beach, consulting engineer, and as soon as other members are contacted and we have an opportunity to study the Corps of Engineers' report available today, we will come to some decision as to what steps must be taken immediately," said Krider.

"We will definitely hold our meeting here in Sanford and in the very near future," the Waterways Committee chairman said.

Krider pointed out that Adm. Fortson, a member of the state-wide waterways committee, is also a representative of the Cross State Barge Canal with offices in Washington, D. C.

McAnulty Apparent Low Bidder On Two School Projects

The apparent low bidder on two school projects for Seminole County schools was McAnulty Construction Company of Bradenton and Orlando, when bids for the 10 rooms for Seminole High School and eight rooms and a heating plant for Crooms Academy were opened yesterday by the Seminole County School Board of Education.

McAnulty Construction Company, according to a representative of the firm attending the bid opening yesterday, has constructed more than 28 schools in Florida.

The bid was for $195,000.

"This is the closest bidding we've ever had on schools," Architect John Burton IV said yesterday as the bids from nine firms were compared.

This morning, R. T. Milwee Superintendent of Public Instruction said that the contract for construction of the new facilities has not yet been awarded.

"We hope to start construction of the new classroom facilities within the next two weeks," Architect Burton said at yesterday's meeting. He also said that the bids were all "well within the estimate of $219,615 for the combined projects."

There was an unusually large number of bidders for the proposed building, Milwee said at the meeting.

The Board of Education, in regular session for the first time in 1953, also act as the tentative date for the School Bond Election, Sept. 9. This date will coincide with the Democratic Primary. Milwee told the board at its meeting yesterday morning.

Driver Falls Asleep At Wheel; Hits Tree

A 1956 Pontiac sedan went out of control early this morning on the Old Lake Mary Road when its driver fell asleep at the wheel.

Shortly before 2:30 a. m., Theodore Levett Johnson, Crooms Academy Professor, crashed into a tree on the west side of the highway. The car, owned by Eunice Wilson of 1110 Pine St., was traveling north at the time of the accident.

Damage was estimated at approximately $600.

Trooper John Worden of the Florida Highway Patrol was the investigating officer. He placed charges of "failing to have control of his vehicle" against Johnson.

Volunteer Firemen Install Officers

Officers were installed last night in DelRay at a meeting of the DelRay Volunteer Fire Department. President is John Lambertson; vice-president, William A. Herschel; secretary, Harry Seller; and treasurer, G. E. Crosby.

Charles Snyder, who was president for two years, is now serving as a trustee, with Ed Jackson. Herschel has also been a trustee for two years.

The Fire Department will hold its sixth annual dance at the DelRay Armory, Thursday, Feb. 6 at 8 p. m.

Thirteen calls were answered by the DelRay Volunteer Fire Department during 1952. Two of them were attic fires, one a fire caused by lightning and the others brush and grass fires. Eight calls were answered with the inhalator during the year.

Courtesy Week Ends Tomorrow

Sanford's "Florida Courtesy Week" comes to a climax tomorrow with secret committees slated to complete their selection of winners by early next week.

"We have had very good response from the merchants of Sanford," Howard McNulty, Jaycee Courtesy Week chairman said yesterday. "The whole city is enthusiastic of Courtesy Week," he said as he reported results of the city-wide event to the Jaycees yesterday.

Streamers blaring "Courtesy Week" are being displayed in every store and shop window in Sanford and even today, bumper strips are being attached to local cars to bring Courtesy Week to a big climax.

Courtesy Week badges are being displayed prominently by sales people and people who meet the public and hundreds are vying for the $25 U. S. Saving Bond and the title of Most Courteous Waitress, Salesman, Saleslady, Policeman, and most courteous act.

John Krider, manager of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce said yesterday "I am delighted with the results so far of Courtesy Week."

Yesterday, Howard McNulty told the Jaycees that "from all points this has been a very successful week up to this time."

The Seminole County Chamber of Commerce and the Sanford-Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce are co-sponsoring the statewide "Florida Courtesy Week."

R. J. Bauman, president of the Sanford Atlantic National Bank yesterday distributed "Courtesy Week" badges to employees.

Symphonic Holds 1st National Sales, Distributor Convention

Ray Clemons, General Sales manager of Symphonic Radio and Electronic Corp., announced today the completion Sunday of his company's first national sales and distributor convention.

At a series of meetings for his company's sales force and national network of distributors, held in the grand ballroom of the popular Mayfair Inn in Sanford, several additions to the company's High Fidelity line, along with the balance of the phonograph and tape recorder models, were shown.

"The result of these meetings, in regard to both the establishment of additional distributor good will and in terms of its general sales success, far outran our wildest expectations. I can say that at this meeting, the reception given to our several new models, as well as to the display of our entire product line, firmly established Symphonic's position as a major producer of phonographs, high fidelity instruments, and tape recorders," Clemons said.

At the meetings, Clemons not only unveiled Symphonic's new High Fidelity models but also announced to his distributors the company's sales achievements of 1952 and its plans and expectations for 1953. Being a major producer in a growth industry, Clemons looks for a continued increase in his symphonic's and its distributors sales.

Albert Leon Symphonic's Advertising and Sales Promotion Manager, also addressed the salesmen and distributors. He presented his company's advertising and promotion program for the first six months of 1953.

Also in attendance at the meeting were other Symphonic officials among whom were Max J. Zimmerman, president; Bernard M. Lipkin, chairman; Bill Saltz, plant superintendent; and Joel J. Zimmerman, assistant sales manager.

DANGER AHEAD!

Beautiful, yes. Beautiful as only Nature in all her purity can be. But dangerous too; dangerous to the ships at sea and the men they carry. For an iceberg's greatest bulk lies unseen beneath the surface... and against it, the unwary cannot survive.

Many of the things which, on the surface, appear the most tempting and beautiful contain hidden dangers and unsuspected pitfalls.

Men, like ships, need warning and guidance—and nowhere can they find greater help, greater love and protection than in their Church.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

WAYNE D. OVERHOLSER'S new Western thriller

DESPERATE MAN

© 1957, 1958, Wayne D. Overholser. From the novel published by The Macmillan Co. Distributed by Dell, Putnam & Doubleday.

BY THE WAY, I finished the chores, it was completely dark. I stood on the back porch and smoked a cigarette. My mother came out of the kitchen and sat down on the porch.

Ma was worried about Gil. I pondered that for a time, thinking how she wanted him to have everything he wanted, even to marrying Bea.

Gil proposed to Bea whenever he had a chance, but she kept putting him off, so Ma went over to see her.

Bea didn't pussyfoot around any. She said her husband would be a better man than she was. And Gil hadn't proved he was. Then she came right out and said she wouldn't have her mother-in-law telling her how to treat her husband. Ma got up and walked out. She hadn't liked Bea since then.

When I finished my cigarette I walked across the yard to the barn, thinking how Gil had ridden up to the corral and called me "kid" and said I could finish the gate. All of a sudden I decided I'd had enough. I was going to pull out.

A few minutes later I heard them coming. I stayed in the shadows until they took care of their horses. When they started toward the house, I called, "Ma."

"What's on your mind, Dave?"

"I'm leaving," I said. "I want to tell you good-bye."

"Tell me about it," he said quietly.

There wasn't much to tell, less than I thought when I tried to put it into words. I was just sick and tired of getting the skim milk and Gil taking the cream. "I won't beg you to stay, if this is what you've got to do," I said slowly. "But I think I've got a right to ask you to put off leaving until tomorrow night. I'm going to Duhl in the morning to talk to Cameron Runyan. I hear he's in town."

"You don't need me to talk to Runyan."

"There'll be a fight," he said. "Maybe not tomorrow, but sometime. What I've got to find out is whether Runyan backs Tool all the way. We chased the Rafter 3 cows across Buck Creek; then we ran into a couple of Toll's men, and Bea shot one of 'em. That means we'll be seeing Vic Toll. Runyan's the only man who can head off the trouble."

"All right, I'll go with you," I said.

"That's better. Now let's go get our supper."

After we finished eating, Pa said, "Dave's going to town with me in the morning. Gil, you fix the corral gate while we're gone." He nodded to me. "Better roll in, Dave."

It was still dark when he called me in the morning. After breakfast we went out into the cold, still air. We rode down the line to the county road, then swung east. We crossed Buck Creek, made the long climb to the plateau above the park, and struck off across it toward Duhl. The sun was up now.

That was Rafter 3 range, a rolling sagebrush plain with patches of greasewood here and there, and an occasional cedar. Vic Toll had reason enough to want Duhl's Park for winter range. The grass was better in the park than here on the plateau.

We were the first to see that the sheriff, Ed Veach, waited a lightrope trying to satisfy the townsmen in Duhl, the small ranchers scattered all over the county, and Cameron Runyan. Actually, he satisfied no one, unless it was Runyan.

I felt the heavy weight of the gun against my side. My father had told me to wear it. It was a Remington, a .45 with a three-inch barrel.

"Pa had made Gil and me put in hours of practice, particularly after we came to the park. 'You never know what you're going to do until you're up against it,' he'd said several times. 'Facing a man with a gun in his hand isn't like shooting at a tin can. Some men have a quality that makes 'em stand and fight; others cave.'

I glanced at him. He had a strong, high-boned face, with a sharp nose and wide chin and heavy lips. I wondered why he had been a doctor instead of making a career out of being a law man. I asked, "Why didn't you become a U. S. Marshal or something like that?"

He gave me a sharp glance and then stared straight ahead. "Your mother always nagged me when I took a job of that kind. I quit. He checked on his lower lip a moment, and then added, "I guess I didn't want that kind of life enough to fight her. I just wasn't desperate enough." We rode in silence again until, in early afternoon, we saw the buildings of Duhl ahead of us. I finally asked the question that had been bothering me from the time we'd left home. "Why do you figure we'll have trouble this winter with Rafter 3?"

"Several reasons," he threw out at a hand on a wide pasture. "We had a dry year last summer. This is the poorest graze I ever saw for a big outfit, so they need the park worse than they ever have before. Another thing is what we done yesterday."

"On Saturdays Duhl was a bustling town unless the weather was bad, but this was the middle of the week. No one was in sight. My father asked me as we swung down, 'Cameron Runyan in town?'"

"Still here." The hostler nodded at a pair of mottled bays in neighboring stalls. "That's no team. Never know him to ride a saddle horse."

My father started toward the street, but stopped when he saw the hostler. "Something you ought to know, Joe."

"Toll in town?" my father asked.

"No, but Runyan's got a couple of gun hands with him."

"A little guy named Sammy Blue. Duhl'd catch the other one sooner."

"I'd never heard of Sammy Blue and I asked my father about him. He shrugged. 'He's a gunhandler. I met with him in Durango, nine, ten years ago.'

Before he went into the hotel, my father said in a low voice: "Watch it, Dave. This may be a light."

We crossed the lobby to the desk. My father asked, "Cameron Runyan staying here?"

"He's registered here," the clerk answered. "I believe he's in the dining room."

A man who had been sitting in a rawhide-bottom chair in the far corner of the lobby got up and started toward us. As my father turned toward the dining room door, the man said, "Who wants to see Mr. Runyan?"

"I do," my father said.

The stranger came on across the lobby. He was a little man, not more than five feet three, maybe four, inches tall. The gun on his right hip looked too big for him to handle, but I had a hunch he could handle it fast and well. He had a short, wide face with a high forehead. This, I thought, must be Sammy Blue.

ROUGH GOING
NEW BRITAIN, Conn.—(UP)—Leonard V. Bisaccia, drove north on Stanley Street, turned right into South Street, ten became confused and turned left. When halted by the police he complained of the "very bumpy road." Bisaccia was driving along the railroad tracks.

Early Christians buried their dead and worshipped in the catacombs of Rome.

BOWS AT NEW YORK PHILHARMONIC—Conductor Leonard Bernstein receives a double-barreled kiss of congratulatory parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Bernstein, in New York. Bernstein is slated to assume full musical control of the orchestra in the fall.

No Basic Research

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—If you have any question about the value of what scientists call "basic research," consider broken bones. People have been breaking their bones ever since there were people, yet there is no known way of knitting broken bones together faster than nature knits them.

The reason? No basic research. The reason why there hasn't been any was the lack of a way of studying nature's knitting techniques in the living body, with the idea of finding out how to hurry them along. But now the way has been found—and the basic research is about to begin.

This way couples rats with radioactive strontium which is the element most to be feared in the "fall out" after a hydrogen bomb explosion. Strontium likes bone. When it gets into the body, it gets into the bones with amazing rapidity.

Strontium Extremely Dangerous
But the hydrogen bomb—made from strontium—has an atomic weight of 90 and a half-life of 28 years that makes it extremely dangerous. For the purpose of studying bone knittings, strontium-85 was especially constructed by atomic bombardment in a cyclotron. SR-85 has a great safety advantage over SR-90. Its half-life is only 65 days.

So you inject SR85 into a rat. A very tiny amount will do. This rat has a newly broken bone. You have a gamma ray spectrometer set up over the precise site of the fracture, so it will measure the gamma rays originating from the break out from no where else.

SR-85 gives off gamma rays. They have incredible energy and pass through the soft tissues around bones without being diverted or changed or having the soft tissue. When the spectrometer picks up the first gamma rays coming from the break, you know the knitting process has started. You can then follow it minute by minute as it continues.

Developed By New Englanders
This clever tool for basic research was devised by Drs. J. H. Heller, H. König, and L. Fox of the New England Institute for Medical Research, Ridgefield, Conn.

SR-85 is unusual among the isotopes of the bone-seeking elements, strontium and calcium, in that it gives off with gamma rays. The others emit electrons or beta rays, and those are not much good for this work. Electron emissions are shortened in range by soft tissue. Some would escape measurement and that would mess up the results. Beta emissions travel very short distances and thus damage the soft tissues.

It is routine in science now, but the layman has to be impressed that scientists can go to cyclotron and get a radioactive isotope precisely tailored to his experimental needs.

New Treatment For Heart Cases

CHICAGO—A crude extract made from brain tissue and taken by mouth has normalized the blood cholesterol level of some heart patients, a University of Chicago medical scientist reports.

Cholesterol is a fatty substance in meats and milk, and in small amounts—in most parts of the human body. High concentration of cholesterol is related to arteriosclerosis (artery "hardening") and heart attacks.

Dr. Richard J. Jones, assistant professor of medicine, said the brain extract was administered to 59 patients, 42 of whom had had heart attacks. Their blood cholesterol levels ranged from normal to quite high, he said.

Dr. Jones said that in 99 per cent of the cases the extract brought the level down toward normal. The average drop was 15 per cent, he said.

The extract's main action was to speed up the elimination of cholesterol from the body through the intestines, he said in a report to the American Society for the Study of Arteriosclerosis.

Dr. Jones said no attempt was made in the six-month study to determine whether the lowered cholesterol levels, in fact, reduced the occurrence of later heart disease.

Any effect on heart disease, he said, would require a long-range study lasting several years.

Chicago Transit Is Run By Radio

CHICAGO (UP)—A radio station which no average Chicagoan ever hears is operated around the clock for his convenience.

It's station KSA 977, the call letters of the Chicago Transportation Authority.

From its transmitter, located on the west side of the city's main tentacled network of buses, streetcars and elevated and subway trains, go almost six thousand daily transmissions.

The 220-foot sending tower has been in round-the-clock operation for more than 13 years and has been off the air only once in its life. That was at the height of a crippling sleet storm on New Year's Day in 1948 when the tip of the transmitter buckled and "programs" were interrupted for 10 minutes.

The station is busy all day long sending information to 85 mobile units scattered around its 134 miles of routes.

It's a two-way set up, and reports of disaster or late-running buses flow into its central control room.

Orders to emergency crews go out and service is rapidly put back into "on time" operation.

In addition, some 28 stations are connected to it by means of loud speaker public address systems.

Up-to-the-minute train arrivals are beamed to waiting passengers on these platforms and if delays should result they are kept informed of measures being taken to speed them to the job or home.

Some 300 emergency calls are given top priority throughout an average working day.

Indications Point To Statewide Protests Of Engineer's Report

All indications point to the fact that political, industrial and civic leaders from every section of the state will protest the Army Corps of Engineers flimsy report that the Sanford-Titusville Canal is a project of unworthy proportions for tackling.

Yesterday, the deluge of protests began to descend, and words are fast and furious from every source against an "unfavorable" report on the Sanford-Titusville Canal.

As a matter of fact, as we look at the project from here, the U. S. government has spent millions of dollars digging a channel through the St. Johns River from Jacksonville to Sanford, only to deadend here.

If a project is deemed to be unfavorable, then the deadening of the channel here certainly would have been in that category for only by continuing that channel on to Titusville and Cape Canaveral would the water resources of the state, hemmed between the banks of the St. Johns River, be completely useful and favorable.

Civic leaders in various sections of the state will be studying the "unfavorable" report today with copies from the District Engineers' office in their hands. And from this point these men, all interested in the future growth of Sanford and in the economic future of the state as a whole, will determine which steps will be taken to counteract the unprecedented report.

We are certain that protests will begin to barrel-roll and gain momentum as news of the report circulates.

Sanford and Central Florida—as a matter of fact, the whole state, will feel the impact

Reactions Are In The Making

No policy can be based on the hope or wish that the Soviet regime will crumble from the weight of its internal contradictions. To hope for the fall of Khrushchev and to do nothing which would contribute to the realization of that hope is empty piousness. However, we should recognize that internal problems in the Soviet Union and the Russian empire have not been solved. The Soviet regime has been a regime of crisis since its establishment. It must continue to impose sacrifices upon its own people and to rule by terror or the threat of terror. Discontent, even though it be repressed, is normal and constant for a regime such as Khrushchev's.

The small measure of liberalization granted after Stalin's death brought discontent to the surface, and Khrushchev has been required to reprove the students and the intellectuals who express this discontent.

Forty years of error and sacrifice only means more sacrifice and, probably, more terror. Dictatorships are always powerful until the last minute. The Soviet regime may be far from that minute, but it does not rule over an empire of happy people, nor is it free from crisis and pressure. It is one thing to recognize Soviet strength; it is something else—and not befitting a free people—to fall overboard in awe of that strength and of the men who control it because they have blood on their hands and consciences.

The craven reactions of some Americans and West Europeans to Khrushchev have been unbecomingly. We expect free men to act differently toward tyrants.

More To Confuse Taxpayers

United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—The tax-paying citizen is invited now to confuse himself further by attempting to reconcile the basic available information on national defense with the simple principle that two-and-two make four.

Such basic available information for example, as:

—The judgment of some leading military men that the national defense department is a hodge-podge of defense nonsense.

—The top-secret Galther Report which apparently pictures the United States as heading to the status of a second class power and in its historical moment of greatest danger.

—The new Rockefeller Report on national defense which changed the alarm bell along similar lines.

—President Eisenhower's decision to hike defense spending by around 3 billion dollars in the next 18 months.

—The official White House party line that the United States is not "at this time" militarily weak compared to the Soviet Union.

The White House party line was stated on Dec. 28 by Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, as follows:

"Stories that have been printed which indicate that the United States is in a position of weakness at this time are not true. The supporting facts are not in the Galther report and are completely contrary to the report. The report says just the opposite."

Brings Alarming Discussion This statement was in response to questions asked after the Washington Post and Times Herald had published columns of alarming discussion of national defense attributed to the Galther Report which had been submitted to the White House by a fact-finding official committee.

The President has law and precedent on his side in refusing to make public or to reveal to congressional committees the con-

"And he did that which was evil in the eyes of the Lord."

POST-HOLIDAY PUNCH

My New York

By Mel Helmer

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.—Things one New Yorker thinks about—in darkest Florida.

The issue must be faced; I'm a social outcast in Miami Beach.

Nobody talks to me. I wander along Lincoln road looking forlornly for a friendly face, but there is no one. Even when I bump a match from a passerby, he averts his face as he passes it along. I know why, of course. I'm not in this year's hotel.

I am in what is other, brighter times might have been considered a luxury inn. It has 350 rooms, 400 feet of beach, all kinds of restaurants and plush saloons, card rooms, a dance studio, not one but TWO swimming pools and even a golf practice range. The rooms are air-conditioned, you can set up light housekeeping in the closets and all in all, everything's on hand except, in the classic phrase, hot and cold running blenders.

But it's last year's hotel. Matter of fact, it's the year before that's I tried. Lord knows I tried. Only, you see, this year's hotel, isn't open yet. I realize a few avant-garde souls have moved into it already and are sleeping the sleep of the just, although the cement still slides willy down the walls in the night. But they wouldn't take me and there you have it.

—here I am, I'm holed up in the Di Lido, cheek by jowl with the urbane Jack Blatt, president of the Bachelors' Society of America, and I was politely at night to Bea Kalms, who conducts a night-owl radio broadcast from the cocktail lounge—but all of us here are just keeping stiff upper lips. Oh... we're comfortable enough and the carpeting's wall to wall—but man cannot live by bread alone. I'm in last year's hotel, and taking my medicine like a little man.

SUPERFICIALLY, Miami's greatest progress seems to have been registered by the newspaper. They no longer spread 72-point banners across Page One proclaiming FREEZING WAVE HITS NORTH. This may be, of course, because there's been a freezing wave here... Actually, the town really is coming of age. A local bank, the Mercantile National, is putting together an exhibit of 25 years' progress in Miami Beach and it makes one nostalgic to consider its items: Steve Hannagan's typewriter, the M. B. phone book with 150 names in it, J. Whitcomb Kelly's poem about the banyan tree that stood in Lincoln road until blown down by a hurricane, etc. They may even dig up the ring Joey Maxim trained in before Archie Moore belted his teeth out.

All the night club stars who aren't in Las Vegas are, of course, here—Louis Prima and the beautiful Keely Smith at the Eden Roc, Jose Greco and Jack Carter at the Americana, Cab Calloway at the Cotton club, Eartha Kitt and so on. I dropped by the Pompeii Room to hear Eddie Gorme, the lovely fugitive from Steve Allen show, and was impressed by her Manx-type ability to belt out a song. However, little Eddie needs a change of pace in her songs and someone like Kay Thompson to cut out a bit of the archness and over-theatrical staginess of her act. Sometimes I'm tempted to lobby for a federal law forcing all night club singers to watch Miss Celente Holm in action for at least a week.

TROPICAL PARK, the poor man's Hialeah, remains the handicappers' bete noir—the most formless racetrack in America; odds-on choices seldom get the smell of the money.

I don't mean to harp on the cold weather here, but it is true that the Deauville (one of the two new hotels this season) is serving hot buttered rum from nearby Puerto Rico at its opening. Has an indoor skating rink, too... Went to half of the bargain, lately.

Veterans Corner

Here are authoritative answers from the Veterans Administration to questions of interest from servicemen and their families:

Q. I want to ask VA to deduct my GI insurance premiums from my disability compensation payments. Where do I send my request—to the VA regional office that handles my compensation or the VA district office that handles my insurance?

A. Send your request to the VA regional office handling your compensation.

Q. I understand that in order to change my course under the Keenan GI Bill, my school must certify that my conduct and progress have been satisfactory. I was absent from class much more often than I should have been. Would that stand in the way of my school certifying satisfactory conduct and progress?

A. An unsatisfactory attendance record could result in a denial of further GI training benefits, unless you can show that your record was due to reasons beyond your control.

Q. If I can get a release from liability, I plan to let the buyer of my house take over my GI loan. Is there any cost involved in getting this release?

A. Either you or the prospective buyer must pay the cost of a credit paper on the buyer. Also, either of you must pay the cost of recording the Assumption Agreement and Release. If recording is necessary.

Q. I was discharged from the Armed Forces with a 30 percent disability, and received a lump-sum disability severance payment. Will that payment have any effect on VA disability compensation, if VA approves my claim?

A. Yes. If VA grants you compensation, it will withhold your payments until the amount received equals the amount of severance pay you received. After that, VA will send you your regular compensation checks each month.

AFTER the NATO conference President Eisenhower said "the chances of war are a little more remote." And a little more by remote control.

West Germany's Adenauer declared the NATO conference "a complete success for NATO and they figure on making the world safe."

The State department accuses the Russians of rewriting history to suit their own purposes of world conquest. The trouble is, they figure on making the world safe.

There are 30 times as many women in the U.S. as there were in the 1940's. They're the delegate out.

It was ruled in Detroit that a basement bar under a funeral parlor would have to be closed. Probably too much crying in the Mr.

British Libertines got wrought.

Conning The News

By VIRGINIA CORNW, Society Editor

Have we got Navy news tonight? That seems to be all we have and much of that. So here goes—it's luncheon time again.

The Station and Fasron wives held theirs at the Lake Monroe Inn. Cute idea in decorating tables—artificial spring flowers with gumstern (fresh)—which is just about the only thing that won't freeze—am not too sure it will take much more of this cold weather, though.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Margo Baccash and Bru Northridge. Several Hollywood stars dropped in and urged the girls to turn out for the High Fever Follies. The attendance prize was won by Mary McGuire. Ann May was introduced—they just blew in from Argentina, and have bought a home in Loch Arbor.

Others attending were Riddle Arthur, Mary McGuire, Bea Hamrick, Beal, Violet Brewster, her daughter, (last name Hanson), Bru Northridge, Leo Canning, and her guest, Inez Blair, Joy Webber, Margo Baccash, Dorothy Dohne, Mary Muntz, Peggy Tugwell, and her guest, Barbara Borton, (who used to be stationed here with husband John), Esther Riney, June Perry, Phyllis Graham, Bonnie Pahl, Juanita Ramey, Carlie Strubling, Arlene Backer, and her mother, Mrs. Irene Isaacson from Littlefield, Minnesota. Mrs. Isaacson will be here for sometime to help Arlene with the launching of another little Backer, which may be the high light of the High Fever Follies, since Arlene is so determined to see it.

Hostesses for the VAH-11 luncheon were Dottie Maliewzowski, Vickey Wilder and Edie Colburn. This one was held in the Afterburner of the B. O. Q. Wednesday.

A large bouquet of red and white carnations centered the table. The ladies enjoyed a delicious dinner of roast beef. Winning prizes during the luncheon were Lucille Harris and Jeanne Foulk.

The Hollywood actress was there doing her bit for the High Fever Follies. She plans to take her troop to every luncheon, club meeting and sewing circle, it seems.

Others attending were Hobbie Fernandez, Pat Hansen, Helen Cobb, Margaret Hendrick, Peg Butts, Jean Rossi, Dottie Nelson, Alice Mills, Anne Oliver, Emily Carlin LaVerne Hamilton, Polly Hatch, Bertie Lou Weber, Ann Purdy, Virginia Allen, Sadie Nolde and Audrey Brownlee.

VAH-9 wives met to decide what to do to keep themselves busy while their husbands are gone. No comment. Think they will find it very easy to do. Anyway, they did several new innovations. Betty Hazlett and Skip Horrell are honorary chairman and vice-chairman, respectively. Treasurer is Sally McInnis, O. W. C. representative, Caroline Legare. High Fever Contestant, Shirley Ross, Bridge Chairman, Jo Anne Shower, publicity, Betty Bliesener. Telephone watch, Shirley Ross. Baby presents were given to Jean Fowler and Shirley Stevens (who wasn't there).

Latest scoop on the O. W. C. luncheon next Thursday. There will be a choice of menu—one may have chicken salad instead of roast beef at a lower (repeat) lower, fee. The luncheon will be held at the Mayfair Inn. Reservations must be in by next Tuesday. The new president will be elected. Nominations may be made now with unit representatives if you care to railroad someone.

Should be very nice—and is an important meeting. Try and come, if possible.

Wednesday Election Day For Navy High Fever Queen

The selection of a Navy Queen for the High Fever Follies will be climaxed January 27, when the name of the girl chosen by the entire Naval Air Station will be revealed.

The Navy winner will then join those contestants chosen from men's elvish clubs and organizations throughout Seminole County. Entries for the contest must be married, and the wife of a Navy man or member of a civic organization. She cannot be the chairman of a committee of the High Fever Follies.

January 27 is Talent Night. At this time the names of all contestants will be announced and the ladies themselves introduced. Their studio photographs and names will then be placed on jars, which will be prominently displayed on the corner of First and Park in front of Roulmillat and Anderson's drug store.

To vote for the queen, one must drop pennies in the jars—every penny means one vote for the girl of your choice. Voting will continue until the final night of the Follies, February 15, when the pennies will be tallied for the last time, and the queen crowned.

Pictures of the two leading contestants for that week will be placed in the lobby of the High School during the three nights of the Follies performances.

The High Fever Follies Queen will win a trip to Holiday Hotel and Villas in Fort Lauderdale for 5 to 7 days if she goes with her husband, or 10 to 14 days if she goes alone. The trip may be taken at any time. The Holiday Hotel is directly on the beach, and features a private swimming pool and every luxury offered by the fabulous Gold Coast establishments.

Voting for the Navy queen will take place Wednesday, January 15 at the Navy exchange, from 9:00 A. M. until 4:30 P. M. Two wives have been chosen from each unit, and the queen will be selected from these sixteen women.

Voters must register before casting their ballots, which will, of course, be unsigned. Wives may vote for husbands who are gone. By the same token, if a Navy wife cannot go to the Navy exchange Wednesday, her husband may vote for her.

Candidates from VAH 5 are Doris Sauter and Virginia Pope; VAH-7, Fran Powell and Joyce Sanderfer; VAH-9, Shirley Ross and Laura Freitas; VAH-11, Polly Hatch and Ruby Jordan; Fasron, Jane Petre and Alice Drake; HATU, Millie Loper and Colia Carey; Staff, Jean Patton and Mrs. Eugene Grant; Station, Dorothy Dohne and Cathy Horn.

Assisting Mrs. Ray Fernandez in the Navy Queen contest are Mrs. Norman McInnis, Mrs. Glenn Hatch, Mrs. Jack Langford, Mrs. James Stowell and Cdr. Tom Deans.

Wesleyan Service Guild Meets With Miss Chapman

Miss Mabel Chapman and Mrs. Hazel Flynt were hostesses to the Wesleyan Service Guild on Monday evening at the home of Miss Chapman on West First Street.

The meeting was opened with the devotional given by Mrs. Robert Billhimer, who used as her topic the Book of Ruth.

Reports of the standing committees were heard in the business session which followed. Plans for observing Guild Month were also discussed.

Mrs. Fred Smith then presented the Mission Study program, "Japan as a Nation," giving the latest information on Japan and on the work of the church in this country. Members of the group participated in the program.

A social hour followed at which time the hostesses served refreshments to the following: Miss Cleo Cash, Mrs. Porter Lansing, Mrs. Nancy Brock, Miss Ethel Riser, Mrs. J. F. Riser, Mrs. Robert Billhimer, Mrs. C. L. Wynn, Mrs. Grady Duncan, Mrs. W. L. Carter, Mrs. O. K. Guff, Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. J. P. Hall, Mrs. W. P. Chapman, Mrs. L. M. Swain, Mrs. Elmo Faris, Mrs. Wilson Carver.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Griene announce the birth of a daughter born January 6 at the Florida Sanitarium and Hospital in Orlando. The baby weighed 7 lbs., 8 oz., and has been named Anne Kathleen. Mrs. Griene is the former Shirley Middleton.

A unit of electromotive force is known as a volt, a shortened name for the Italian inventor, Alessandro Volta.

The most troublesome of all pests to Australian farmers is the rabbit.

PERSONALS

Miss Colleen Engstrom has returned to the University of Florida, Gainesville, after spending several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Engstrom.

Peter J. Bukur left Sanford Thursday for Tampa, where he will attend the Music Clinic. Mr. Bukur was accompanied by "Gob" Swenden, band director of the New Smyrna High School.

Geneva Club Will Have Arbor Day Program

The Geneva Garden Club monthly meeting will be held on Wednesday, January 15th at the Community Day program under the dimity Hall. The Geneva School will present an Arbor Day program under the direction of Mrs. Nichols, Principal, following which the regular Garden Club meeting will take place. Hostesses will be Mrs. F. E. Guyett, Mrs. John Hinchey, Mrs. C. C. LeFils and Mrs. John Williams.

By studying the scales of a rainbow trout, scientists can tell how old the fish is; whether it lived in a stream or a lake, and how long; and, if the trout is a female, how often it has spawned. Growth rings resembling those of a tree provide the information.

Westside School Has Interesting Discussion

The Westside P-TA met Tuesday night in the school auditorium. Carl Prescott, director, conducted the meeting. Mrs. Prescott read the "Parents Prayer". Mrs. Ruth Clifton won the room count.

James Buckler reported that he had investigated the necessity of a traffic light at Third and French, and had found that not enough children crowded there to make the light necessary.

Mrs. Stafford announced that a water cooler and library books would be purchased with the money made from the carnival.

It was also announced that thirty more members are needed for P-TA membership to reach the desired quota.

Mrs. Jessie Carter, program chairman introduced the speakers, and moderated a discussion which ensued. Mrs. James Buckler spoke on "What I expect of a teacher," and Mrs. Irene Watt returned with "What I expect of a parent."

Those attending agreed that they had benefited greatly from the proposals.

Mrs. Watt's room served refreshments.

St. Johns Shad Survey Underway

Since the day that Norton Webster, "the daddy of Florida shad fishing," landed his first shad with rod and reel out of the St. Johns River near DeLand in 1942, many amateurs each season are invading the river after this silver demon. Last week 925 shad fishermen braved the cold winds and were rewarded a catch of four thousand prize fish, some reaching the four and one-quarter pound mark. The shad is the largest member of the herring family inhabiting our coast. This species is commonly called American or white shad and spends most of its life in the ocean. It is anadromous, ascending fresh water rivers along the Atlantic coast to spawn and it is during this spawning migration that the fish are available to the sport and commercial fishermen.

Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK—Golf's realistic attitude toward amateurism compared with the hypocrisy of some other sports, today permitted former Augusta titleholder Pat O'Sullivan to regain her amateur standing just as did such stars as Babe Didrikson Zaharias.

Joe Dey, executive secretary of the U. S. Golf Association, "They would never lose the advantage the years had given them." He points out, also, that golf doesn't brand a man an all-around professional because he takes money in one sport. As a case in point, Babe Ruth was registered as an amateur golfer. Mrs. Zaharias was an amateur and a pro twice. The Babe turned pro after making a reputation as an amateur, track and swimming star. Eventually she served her penance and returned to golf as an amateur, winning the British and American crowns. Then to capitalize on her golfing ability she turned pro again before her untimely death.

WON IN 1931
It is doubtful whether Miss O'Sullivan will turn pro again. Before deciding to play for cash, she won the "Titleholders in 1931 by outscoring Mrs. Zaharias, Patty Berg and Louise Suggs. She took the Eastern Amateur twice, the North-south Amateur three times and six times as Connecticut amateur champion.

But two years on the pro circuit cured her. Competing in 20 tournaments, her best finish was a third in the White Mountain Open. "Expenses on the pro circuit are terrific," she explained. "And its quite different looking at the game from the inside. For men it's more difficult for a woman to maintain that fierce competitive urge you need to be a winner."

COMEBACK TRIUMPH
CHICAGO AP—San Francisco Giants outfielder Hank Sauer, who smacked 26 home runs last season, will be awarded a trophy by the Chicago Baseball Writers Assn. at the organization's annual dinner, Jan. 19 for the "comeback of the Year." Sauer, who will be 39 in May, signed with the Giants as a free agent last year after being released by the St. Louis Cardinals. He also played for the Chicago Cubs and was named the National League's most valuable player in 1935.

As part of the St. Johns shad survey, 1,000 shad are being tagged from commercial nets at Palatka. The shad are tagged with two red plastic disks under the dorsal fin. A reward of 50 cents will be paid for each tag returned.

Evansville Has Top Small College Basketball Team

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK AP—The Midwest, with the Evansville, Ind. Purple Aces leading the way, dominated the first United Press small college basketball ratings today by supplying the first four of the top 10 teams.

Evansville, coached for the 12th straight season by Arad McCutchen, was rated the nation's No. 1 small college team in hallooting by 40 coaches from as many states. They gave the Purple Aces nine first-place votes and a total of 193 points.

The JV contest proved to be the most thrilling contest of the evening with the baby Darters scrapping by in three overtimes. The final score read 48-47. The Baby Seminoles did a fine job and worked hard until the last whistle Terry Christenson led the attack with 17 tallies and Mike Davis followed with 13. Earl Summerall and Johnny Alred were, again, the big guns in the rebounding department. Alex McKittrick showed a lot of hustle and was outstanding especially in the defensive department. This is the first defeat coach Dick Silvers' lads have suffered and it is a hunch that they won't experience many more this season.

Wheaton, Ill. College won the No. 2 ranking with six first-place votes and 154 points. Steubenville Ohio was third with three first-place votes and 145 points. Western Illinois University rounded out the Midwestern grip on the top rankings by placing fourth with three first-place votes and 135 points.

The South placed two teams in the top 10, while the Midlands, East, Southwest and Far West each landed one in the select group.

Southwest Missouri State, which swept its first 10 starts, placed fifth with five first-place votes and 149 points. Tennessee A&I was next with one first-place vote and 106 points. West Virginia Tech, with three first-place votes, was seventh with 102 points.

Louisiana Tech was eighth with 98, Texas Southern was ninth with 97 and Pacific, Wash. Lutheran was 10th with three first-place votes and 64 points.

The Midwest also led off the second 10 group with Youngstown Ohio placing 11th with 52 points, Mississippi Southern, McNeese, La. State, Boston University, Brandeis Mass., St. Peter's N. J., Mount St. Mary's Md., Arkansas State and St. Michael's Vt. trailed Youngstown in that order. South Dakota and Creighton Neb. tied for 20th.

Money To Receive In PGA Tourneys

DUNEDIN (UP)—Golf Pro Doug Ford of Mahopac, N. Y., will receive $10,000 for competing in some 25 PGA-sponsored 1938 tournaments regardless of where he finishes, it was announced today.

PGA headquarters here said Ford, a pace-setter in the new PGA TTT Top Ten Tournament players will collect $400 in each tournament participating in the plan.

Purpose of the plan, the PGA said, is to provide the top 10 tournament players of the previous year an added inducement to compete in tournaments in the form of legitimate "appearance money."

Nine other touring pros will also benefit substantially in 1938 from the new plan.

Second place Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., will get $210 in each participating event. Others and their per tournament payments:

Ar. Wall Jr., Peacon Manor, Pa. $220; Arnold Palmer, Latrobe, Pa., $200; Bill Casper Jr., Bonita, Calif., $180; Marty Furgol, Leonon, Ill., $160; Paul Harvey, Worcester, Mass., and Jay Herbert, Sanford, $120 each; and Mike Souchak, Grossinger, N. Y., and Al Balding, Miami Beach, $90 each.

The 1937 players, however, were established by performance in all PGA-sponsored events and in some approved tournaments, whether or not they plan to participate in the plan this year.

SHS Loses Doubleheader To Apopka

By Jerry Covington
The lightning fast Apopka Blue Darters jumped off to a fast lead here Tuesday night and reeked the Sanford Seminoles by a score of 61-39 in an Orange Belt Conference tilt. The Darters showed tremendous hustle and deadly shots throughout the contest and were so dominant that the Seminoles never threatened.

In the varsity contest, the Darters poured in shots from every spot on the floor and took a commanding 36-14 halftime lead. They hustled the Seminoles and completely ran them ragged.

The JV contest proved to be the most thrilling contest of the evening with the baby Darters scrapping by in three overtimes. The final score read 48-47. Tonight the Seminoles travel to the Murrey shoot where they will ace another tough OBC Joe in Mighty Melbourne. Coach Bob Kootis' boys are reported to be good shots and tough on the boards so the Seminoles should find their hands full for the second time in a week.

PIEDRAS NEGRAS, Mexico—Piedras Negras, Mexican marksmen from Daniel Boone to Sgt. Alvin York of World War I fame—would be amazed at the Mexican version that has evolved from the American "turkey shoot."

No telescopic sights are allowed. Slings and supports are barred also.

In the case of turkeys, the bird's feet are stuck into a pipe and secured with rocks. The contestants stand 400 yards away, and with no sling or support, only the steadiest draw blood. At this distance, the target appears as a speck half the size of the front gun sight.

In the lamb shoot the animal is staked 500 meters away. The same rules apply—no sling or supports, no optical sights, and drawing blood wins the target.

The rules vary in other parts of Mexico. The lamb is put on a leash, and the leash is tied to a wire between two posts, so that the animal is free to move back and forth between the posts. The animal must be moving for the shot to be legal.

Shooters such as young Alejandro are accustomed to these targets, but they don't hit every time. Even so, the members of the club are proud that their children are stiff competition for them.

Mississippi State Cagers 1st Place In Basketball Race

By RUSSELL HOLMAN
United Press Sports Writer
ATLANTA—Mississippi State's 11th ranked maroons are firmly seated in first place in the Southeastern Conference basketball race.

Although Kentucky and Tulane are tied with State in conference play with 20 records, neither can match the unblemished 11-0 record of Bailey Howell and company.

The Maroons' 6-7 center is making a personal issue of the conference race. Howell is leading league scoring with a very respectable 20.6 average per game. He is also the team's leading rebounder and defensive specialist.

State has proven that it can do anything on the basketball court that is necessary to win. The Maroons held Alabama to only eight points in the first half on Monday night and on the previous Saturday stopped Auburn with only 10 markers in the initial period.

The Maroons venture into Atlanta Saturday night to tackle Georgia Tech. The Tech squad has won six and lost five this season and dropped its only conference game to Kentucky. The Tech guard combination of Terry Randall and Buddy Blemer could give the visitors some trouble, but Howell and company will be out to overcome it.

Kentucky's Wildcats—winners of their last five in a row—will host the conference doormat Louisiana State. LSU has managed only four victories so far this season and their chances of improving on

Players Ready For Senior Bowl Game Tomorrow

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—The all-America backs were delegated to second string by south Coach Paul Brown as players batted freezing temperatures during preparations for Saturday's ninth Senior Bowl game.

Brown, head coach of the Cleveland Browns, named his tentative starting offensive lineups Wednesday and passed up all American halfback Clenton Thomas of Oklahoma and quarterback Ray Brown of Mississippi, star of the Sugar Bowl New Year's Day.

The South coach explained he has not "had much of a chance to look at Brown, who arrived here late from the Huso Bowl in Hawaii about a week ago."

North Coach Joe Kuharich of the Washington Redskins named his tentative offensive team but added he probably would alternate a second unit and admitted, "I'm certain about my front."

The game will be played under professional rules which allow use

Signs Of New TV Cycle Seen Studio One

By WILLIAM EWALD
NEW YORK (AP)—It was back on Nov. 7, 1948, that "Studio One," a CBS-TV drama beamed out of Manhattan, made its debut on a network of eight stations. From those small beginnings, grew a TV giant. In the ensuing years, it was "Studio One" that helped nurture such acting talent as Charlton Heston, James Dean, Grace Kelly and Eva Marie Saint, such directing talent as Franklin Schaffner, Yul Brynner and Sidney Lumet, such writers as Reginald Rose, Tad Mosel and David Shaw.

Lettuce Is Red, Girls Beautiful In Treviso, Italy

By H. V. MACLENNON
United Press Staff Correspondent
TREVISO, Italy.—There is a saying in this northern Italian town that its beautiful girls and its red lettuce go together. It is to lettuce-eating, they say, that the girls owe their fair complexions.

Treviso is famous for its lettuce in Italy, and late each year there is an exhibition show for the prize plants. It is called the "Flowers You Can Eat Show," and it lasts only two hours.

The exhibits of this strange agricultural show are lettuce of a special kind. They are mainly greens and reds in color of various shades and there is a variety called Castelfranco Veneto, which is vari-colored.

Though there is a secret in obtaining the peculiar colors, the principal method appears to be in limiting the sun, shade and moisture. Some plants are grown in special underground shelters and brought out in the open for their measure of sunshine.

British, American Scientists Are Making Progress

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission said today that "considerable progress" has been made by both British and American scientists toward harnessing H-bomb reactions for peaceful power.

Strauss said at a news conference, however, that development of a practical hydrogen power plant is "years and years and years" away.

He said the papers on British and American hydrogen fusion power research will be published on both sides of the Atlantic in a few weeks.

He again denied recent British press charges that he has prevented the British from taking credit for an alleged hydrogen power, "break through."

Another commissioner, Harold S. Vance, said the United States leads the world in fusion power developments. He said the commission is working on "new features" of its program aimed at helping the NATO countries of western Europe to "satisfy their urgent needs for nuclear power."

Airman Volunteers To Stay One Week In Space Chamber

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A young airman from New York will enter a three-by-five foot space chamber next month in an attempt to live a week under the same conditions that will face man on his first voyage to the moon.

Airman Lt. Donald Farrell, 23, has volunteered to enter the tiny cubicle at the School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Air Force Base.

Attached to the chamber will be a second small rectangular cubicle which will contain radar radio and other instruments needed for a voyage into space.

The only clothing Farrell will wear during his week-long "trip to the moon" will be regulation trousers and T-shirt. No other clothing will be required because temperatures will be regulated.

Weather Bureaus Try Percentages

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Two California weather bureaus are using a "percentage" system of forecasting rain hats winter.

"It seems to be a little easier for the public to understand a prediction such as '70 per cent chance of rain,'" chief forecaster Jean Brown explained.

"Most people think it's easier to understand, while some think it makes it easy for the weather bureau to hedge," he explained. "Actually, it's the opposite of hedging because it pins us down more than ever."

Brown said the bureau studies weather maps of rainy days of past years and then draws up its percentages.

"We still express in words the general forecast, such as 'chance of a storm front bringing rain,'" he said. "But then we add just what kind of a chance of rain it is.

Income Tax Fax

You can claim the dependency exemption for someone where you have contributed as little as 10% of the cost of support, if you can qualify as follows: Over half the support of an individual for a calendar year shall be treated as received from the taxpayer if: (1) no one person contributed over half of such support; (2) over half of such support was received from persons each of whom, but for the fact that he did not contribute over half of such support, would have been entitled to claim such individual as a dependent for a taxable year beginning in such calendar year; (3) the taxpayer contributed over 10 percent of such support; and (4) each person besides the taxpayer who contributed over 10 percent of such support files a written declaration that he will not claim such individual as a dependent in such taxable year. In other words, suppose that you and your three brothers each contributed 25% of the cost of supporting your mother. By agreeing among yourselves, any one of you can claim the dependency credit for any year that the others are willing to file a declaration that they will not claim it. You file such declarations by having each party who contributed to the support, except the one who is going to claim the credit, sign form 2120, Multiple Support Agreement, and the one who is claiming the exemption then attaches these forms 2120 to his tax return when he files it. Form 2120 is available at the nearest Internal Revenue Office. Prior to 1954 the dependency credit could not be claimed by anyone. Now you can take turns, or one claim it every year. You still cannot pro-rate the credit between years. One must claim the full credit. The passenger pigeon once darkened the U. S. skies in flocks of more than a billion.

Recent Studies Narrow Field Of Common Cold

By MERRIAM N. GUNDEL, M.D. THAT age-old bugaboo, the common cold, might be well on its way to extinction. I don't mean that you won't be sneezing and coughing any more. We aren't going to be that lucky. The illnesses will still be a threat, at least to some degree, but you won't be able to blame them on that all-inclusive phrase, the common cold. One Out of Four One out of every four working adults in the United States will suffer from what we now call "cold" during January and February. But this probably won't be the case in the days of our great-grandchildren. Scientists, you see, are now hard at work, probing the mysteries of various types of respiratory diseases. All of you, I'm sure, know the symptoms of a cold—irritative cough, watery eyes, swollen and congested mucous membranes and a dry and scratchy throat. Other Agents However, these symptoms are not necessarily caused by the same agents. Such things as irritating gases, pollen and dust-laden air and even sudden temperature changes might bring on one or all of the symptoms of a cold. On the other hand, biological agents—virus and bacteria—also cause acute respiratory infection. These are infectious diseases and they can be passed from one person to another. Simply for the lack of some more specific designation, we have been lumping all these illnesses with similar symptoms into a single classification—the common cold—although their reactions upon the human body vary greatly. But, one by one, our scientific experts are discovering the causes of these various types of illnesses. As each one is given a more scientific designation, the field of the common cold is narrowed. The influenza virus is a prime example. While the symptoms may be similar to those of an ordinary cold, the illness itself is not classified as a common cold by the doctor. Immunizing Agents Not only does this continuous investigation come up with specific causes and names for cold-type diseases, it might also provide immunizing agents for them. At any rate, while each year may bring about the same amount of sneezes and wheezes, fewer of them can be blamed upon the common cold. COMMON AND ANSWER D. P. My womb is in the wrong position and is pushed against my back. Will it require surgery to correct this? Answer: Most cases require surgery, particularly if back-ache, stomach pains, painful menstruation and severe discharge are present.

Feast Of Lights Observed Sunday By Episcopalians

The Feast of Lights at Holy Cross Episcopal Church last Sunday was climaxed at the social hour which followed by the cutting of the Epiphany Cake. A ring is hidden in the cake and the finder and his spouse become traditionally the official host and hostess for the church for the coming year. The Epiphany ring was found last Sunday night by a Navy man, Kenneth Torbett. He and his wife Jan, and two boys, Randy and Kenneth, live at 2405 Willow Ave. The Torbetts will appear at all social functions of the Episcopal Church during the coming year to welcome members of the parish and their friends. The cutting of the cake followed a beautiful pageant by the Young Peoples Service League in the church. As the congregation left the church each member carried a candle and after receiving a flame from one held at the door, proceeded single file to the parish house, singing. The service is one of the loveliest of the church year in the Episcopal Church.

Ensign Author Of Book Written On Democracy

Ensign Anthony Downs, Air Intelligence Officer of Heavy Attack Squadron Eleven, based at Sanford Naval Air Station, is the author of a book recently published by Harper and Brothers entitled "An Economic Theory of Democracy". A native of Park Ridge, Illinois, Ensign Downs graduated from Carlton College, Northfield, Minn. in 1953, where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree in political theory. At Stanford University he received his Masters degree and his Doctorate in Economics. Ensign Anthony Downs, whose book, "An Economic Theory of Democracy" will be available this fall, states that his book proposes: 1. To advance a decision-making rule which explains government behavior in the economy but does not rely on assumptions inconsistent with theories of private economic action; 2. To show that political behavior often considered irrational is in fact an intelligent response to the economic conditions; and 3. To show that economic theory and political theory are dependent upon each other insofar as they deal with government behavior, and that attempts to treat them separately are bound to fail. Described by advance readers as a "piledriver of a book in political science" and as a "very rare trail-blazing work that should make a deep impact for years to come", this new Harper volume has been cited as "the first attempt to meet with substantial success in organizing much of political science into one formal theoretical system."

Pinecrest Revival Attracting Crowds

The revival at the Pinecrest Baptist Church is attracting great crowds, despite the weather, according to Rev. Joe Courson, the pastor. Overflow crowds are expected for the closing services tonight, tomorrow night and Sunday. Tonight's service will feature a big "Youth Rally" with the teenagers of this area as special honor guests. A free party will be given at the close of the service for all young people. Dr. E. J. Daniels, who has been conducting the revival this week, will dramatize the story of Samson and Delilah, his subject will be "In Love With and Married to the Wrong Woman." In announcing the special sermon, Rev. Lowell Leistner, the revival song leader, said last night: "Parents and young people alike have thanked Dr. Daniels for the plain things he says in this message. He deals with the moral, social and sex problems facing the youth of our day. Literally thousands of young people have been saved from ruined lives as a result of this message. All ages should hear it tonight."

Lutherans Will Install Officers For '58 Sunday

Officers for 1968 will be installed at the morning service Sunday at the Lutheran Church of The Redeemer. Elected at the church's annual meeting last night were: J. Marion Harman Sr., president; Jerry Senkarik, vice president; Joe Senkarik, secretary; Marvin Page, treasurer; John Senkarik (financial secretary); and James Ekern, building fund treasurer. Annual reports from all committees of the church were heard last night pointing out the continuing "growth of the church" in this area. Committee Chairmen, the president announced, would be appointed prior to the next meeting of the church officers and voters assembly of the congregation.

FP&L Seeks Permit To Build Line Across St. Johns

An application has been made to the Department of the Army by Florida Power and Light Company for a permit to construct an aerial electric transmission line across the St. Johns River near the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad bridge just west of Lake Monroe in Seminole and Volusia Counties. The top of the highest pole, according to the application, would be about 80 feet above mean high water and minimum verticle clearance at the channel under the lowest wire would be 49 feet above the high water level. Plans for this work, according to the public announcement, may be seen at the office of the District Engineer, Corps of Engineers, 5775 Riverside Ave. in Jacksonville. There will be no public hearing on the application. However, protests based on effects on public navigation should be addressed to the District Engineer, Corps of Engineers, Jacksonville in time to be received on or before Jan. 29.

SOKC Ninth Race To Be Feature

A pair of Circus City Ranch professionals who specialize in finishing second are among the standouts ready to go in the featured ninth race tonight at the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club. Pat's Shadow and Bowtie Circus have only one win between them, but they have been close to the top in practically every start against fast opposition. In seven tries, Pat's Shadow has collected one win and four seconds. Bowtie Circus hasn't scored a victory, but has bagged three seconds in six tries. Other stars in the main event tonight include Ed's Deacon Jones track champ, last year, and Bono. A racing "doubleheader" is on tap tomorrow with a matinee set for 2 p. m. and a night card scheduled for 8.10 p. m.

VAH-11 Crew Hears Lecture Yesterday On Auto-Pilot

Crew members of Heavy Attack Squadron Eleven (VAH-11) yesterday listened to a lecture by Mayo J. Bloomfield, a field engineer for Sperry Gyroscope Company (Division of Sperry Rand Corporation). Bloomfield explained the operation of the auto-pilot in the Douglas A4D "Sky Warrior". This lecture was part of a continuous cycle of training that a Heavy Attack Squadron undergoes in order to stay at peak proficiency in combat readiness. In VAH-11 this training is coordinated by Lcdr. Crumpton Farrell, USN. He directs the manifold training program that encompasses the many items a modern jet bomber crew is required to know: navigation, weapons, aircraft systems, target study, weather, engineering, mathematics, geography and a multitude of associated subjects. Bloomfield spoke on one part of the many complex systems in an A4D aircraft. In describing to the crew members the operation of the Sperry auto-pilot, Bloomfield pointed out possible malfunctions and how they may be corrected. He further described how to maintain the intricate components of the automatic pilot. The Sperry gyro-pilot controls the aircraft in automatic flight by furnishing simultaneous signals to the auto-pilot and a gyro compass repeater. It can accomplish coordinated turns, climbs, dives, climbing turns and diving turns. Once airborne, the pilot has only to initiate a signal to the gyro-pilot, and it will maintain without change the altitude and heading of the aircraft that the pilot desires. In long range missions this affords the pilot with a few moments of relaxation.

Voters Need Not Re-Register At C. Of Commerce

Double postcards have been mailed to every registered voter whose name is on the books in Seminole County. It is not necessary to come to the Chamber of Commerce to re-register unless the card is not returned before January 31, announced Mrs. Camilla Bruce, Supervisor of Registration. According to Mrs. Bruce, a number of Seminole County residents think it necessary to register in person now. If the card is not received within ten days, the registration officers should be notified. The final service Sunday night will feature a movie on the "Resurrection of Christ and a message on "Gambling With Destiny". This message was awarded the first prize in a world-wide sermon contest in which 247 ministers from 11 nations submitted sermons. The evangelist has promised to discuss Satan's loaded dice and to name the biggest gambler in Seminole County. Appearing on the program with Field will be the Asst. Postmaster, Harold Appleby, the Supt. of Mails, L. V. (Dick) McLaughlin and Clyde Percy, of whom it is said "he knows practically everybody who gets mail at a postoffice box and the number of that box."

Rotarians To See Film Next Monday

Rotarians, at their regular weekly meeting Monday noon, at the Yacht Club, will view a short film, "Operations 3 Ms. Men, Mail and Machines" which should bring them up to date on some of the problems confronting the U. S. Post Office Dept. and its local branch, according to Postmaster Joel Field. According to Charlie Morrison, program chairman for the day, there will be an open forum discussion with a question and answer period that should give the club members a close view of the growth of the post office department which, for many years, has been handicapped by a shortage of men, materials and finances.

Johnson Deplores 'Half-Measures' In Nation's Missile Programs

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson today deplored "half-measures" employed in the nation's missile programs and said those responsible must explain.

Johnson, chairman of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, said: "According to the sworn testimony of the men responsible for producing missiles, we are neither doing nor planning to do everything that can and should be done."

"This will require considerable explanation," House Speaker Sam Rayburn said the Democratic-controlled Congress will offer its own program for meeting Russia's space threat if President Eisenhower or falls to come up with a "bold, workable program."

The preparedness subcommittee made public testimony in which Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, who is quiting as head of Army research, said the President's new budget would carry "no significant" increase in funds for Army research on missiles.

The subcommittee resumed its hearings today and called Brig. Gen. David Barnoff to testify in an open session. Barnoff, board chairman of the Radio Corp. of America, was a member of a Defense Department reorganization board in 1958. He is currently a member of the panel financed by the Rockefeller brothers fund.

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was scheduled to testify at a closed door session later today.

Meanwhile the House Armed Services Committee called on Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy to testify behind closed doors in launching its own "complete review" of missiles and U. S. defenses. Besides McElroy the House group planned to hear today from Deputy Defense Secretary Donald A. Quarles; William M. Holaday, Defense Department director of guided missiles; and Twining.

Johnson, chairman of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, said: "According to the sworn testimony of the men responsible for producing missiles, we are neither doing nor planning to do everything that can and should be done."

"This will require considerable explanation," House Speaker Sam Rayburn said the Democratic-controlled Congress will offer its own program for meeting Russia's space threat if President Eisenhower or falls to come up with a "bold, workable program."

1959 Space Age Budget Calls For $73.9 Billion

WASHINGTON (UP) President Eisenhower sent to Congress today a space age budget calling for record peacetime spending of 73.9 billion dollars. Much of it is to meet Russia's challenge.

The President said the "growing danger" of Russian progress in missiles, coupled with Soviet rejection of workable disarmament, demanded the big spending. The United States must show determination to remain "sturdy" in the many strengths that keep the peace," he said.

He put "priority of national security over lesser needs" in both civilian and military programs. He proposed sharply stepped up spending for longer-range missiles, nuclear armed or powered ships, science and education.

He advocated curtailment, revision or elimination of civilian programs, such as flood control, farm aid, housing and financial aid to states. But he conceded such savings would amount to only 600 million dollars in fiscal 1959 even if Congress went along.

He refused to put any money in the budget for starting any new reclamation, flood control or navigation projects.

Small Surplus Seen

Counting on early reversal of the downward economic trend, the President estimated Federal budget receipts in fiscal 1959 at 74.4 billion dollars. This would give a precarious surplus of 500 million dollars.

An originally estimated surplus of 1.9 billion dollars for this fiscal year was revised to a 400 million dollar deficit because of increased defense spending and because the recent slowdown in business reduces tax revenues.

He said he will ask Congress for another temporary increase in the debt ceiling of 275 billion dollars. In some recent years, Congress has granted a temporary increase of as much as six billion dollars. The debt now exceeds 275 billion dollars.

A total of 47.1 billion dollars, 61 per cent of the budget, was allotted for "protection"—national security and foreign aid. This was an increase of 800 million dollars over 1958.

Commissioners Will Discuss Six Items At Tonight's Meet

City Commissioners will get down to business of the city at their first regular session after reorganization last Tuesday when Merle Warner was elected Mayor.

A 6-item agenda faces the Board of Sanford City Commissioners tonight with the possibility that other items will be thrown open for discussion when presented from the floor or from individual commissioners.

A public hearing will be conducted on the request to close and vacate Water St. west of Myrtle Ave. for a distance of approximately two-thirds of a block. Immediately following the hearing an ordinance closing the street will be presented for its first reading.

Harry Lee Jr. is slated to discuss with the city the possibility of purchasing city-owned property for the expansion of Leo Plumbing and Heating Co.

Possibilities that a new bus franchise will be granted came into the news when it was announced that the commission will discuss the bus problem in Sanford.

The second reading of an ordinance to prohibit the sale of gasoline in glass containers will be heard tonight.

Proposed plans to connect the city's sewer facilities to the sewer system planned for Sunland Estates, south of Sanford, will be discussed by commissioners tonight.

Meeting Set To Protest 'Engineers Canal Report'

A meeting is planned for the immediate future to study next steps to be taken in the protest against the "unfavorable" engineers report on the Sanford-Titusville Canal released last week in Atlanta, Ga.

John Krider, chairman of the Florida Waterways Committee and manager of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce said today that the meeting will be held in Sanford.

"Hundreds of phone calls are pouring into my office," said Krider, "and everybody is mad." Krider revealed that the calls are from every section of the state and from many points outside the state. "They're from Miami to Tampa and Jacksonville," he said.

The Mississippi Valley Association is amazed at the report and is willing to help in the battle in Washington," Krider revealed this morning.

He also said that the Atlantic Gulf Intraoceanic Waterways Association, headed by Adm. H. S. Duckworth, has already agreed to meet with us to discuss immediate steps necessary to combat the unfavorable report.

"Everyone is rallying around the efforts to reverse the decision made by the Army Corps of Engineers," Krider said.

Right now, explained Krider, we need some time to study the full text of the report in Jacksonville to see what was left out of the report which might make it unfavorable.

"If we don't have time to complete our reports and gather the information necessary to reverse the present report, then we will have to ask for extended time," Krider said.

"Right now we need professional help to study this thing and, of course, we're going to depend largely on Col. Herbert Florida of West Palm Beach," the Florida Waterways Committee chairman said.

"A meeting will be called here to which all of the interested people will be invited in order that we might discuss fully the problems that we have before us," Krider commented, and he added, "the date of the meeting will determine largely on what we get through our study of the complete text of the report."

Big Crowd Expected To See Outboard Regatta Sunday

With only six days before the Sanford Boat and Ski Club sponsors a six-class hydroplane and runabout regatta which will feature the nation's top speedboat drivers and many world record-holders, the local club has moved into high gear with final preparations that will bring Sanford national publicity that could not be bought with money.

Last year the local club had an estimated crowd of 10,000 spectators lining the shores of Lake Monroe as the event got underway.

"We had a whale of a crowd," Ski Club Commodore Dr. A. W. Woodall said, and he added "We will be prepared for such a crowd this year."

Woodall pointed out that the Sanford site has been a favorite of the drivers that raced the waters last year in the face of high winds and rough waves that cost one racing hydroplane. The American Power Boat Association, the club that sanctions the Granefruit Circuit races, approached the local club about staging a second race last year.

"We felt we couldn't hold another race last year," Woodall declared, "but the confidence in us gave us the opportunity of making our race this year in the middle of the tourist season."

The array of names to come to Sanford next Sunday for the regatta is almost staggering. From all over the nation Sanford will be drawing the tops in the hydroplane-outboard racing world.

"We are very proud to sponsor the races," Woodall said.

Warm-ups for the races begin at 11:30, with the first heat scheduled for 1 p. m.

2 Navy Men Injured In Auto Accident Saturday Afternoon

Two Navy men were injured Saturday afternoon on the Old Orlando Highway when an automobile went out of control throwing one man out and rolling over him.

Melvin Lyle Welter, 20, attached to VAH-11 at Sanford NAS, apparently lost control of his car when he rounded a curve at Elder Springs, turned over twice and came to a stop on its wheels at the base of a power pole.

Mrs. Russell Stewart, driving toward the berserk car, was forced to leave the highway to keep from being hit.

The two navy men hurt, also attached to VAH-11, were: Paul J. Milam who was thrown out of the car. The automobile rolled over him. It was reported that he suffered from lacerations of the head and internal injuries; and Frank Balut who received lacerations of the head and possible internal injuries. The driver was uninjured.

Constable Galloway said that the car would be declared a total loss. Welter was charged with reckless driving.

The accident occurred at about 3:30 p. m.

Group Of State Investors Form Utility Corporation

William S. Gregory, Jacksonville construction and financial consultant, today was named head of a group of South Florida investors who have formed a multi-million dollar utility corporation. It was announced by Robert Clay Kline, Palm Beach attorney for the group.

Aim of the new company, according to Gregory, is to locate and aid private utilities in Florida that need financial assistance, and to construct and manage water, sewage and gas utilities in newly developed areas through out the state.

Construction of the company's first utility is in the Sanford area, where a million dollar water, sewage and gas plant starts in sixty days on property acquired in Seminole County.

"There is a need for private utility companies in many areas of the state so that undeveloped communities may be helped to grow," Gregory said.

"The investment of millions of dollars by inland stockholders in such utility companies will make it possible for undeveloped sections to attract builders, home owners and industries."

Jaycees Seeking Rental Listings For Info Booth

The Sanford Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce, which maintains a rental list at the Tourist Information Booth, Park Ave. and Seminole Blvd., is appealing to those who have rooms or homes for rent to list them immediately.

M. L. Baborn Jr., president of the Jaycees, said this morning that there is a terrific demand for rentals at the present time because of the new squadron moving in at the Sanford Naval Air Station.

"We need listing on every type of rental rooms and homes," said Baborn, "and we would appreciate it if those who have these facilities available would call us at FA 2381 or come by in person."

Sleeping rooms, unfurnished houses, furnished homes, rental homes in need of repair, as a matter of fact, any type of rental property to house Navy people who are looking for places to stay, Baborn said.

When facilities are rented, however, Baborn commented, "we would appreciate a call telling us that the room or home has been rented."

Speed-O-Light Cooking To Be Demonstrated

Hot dogs cooked in 30 seconds! And that's in a bun, with mustard and wrapped in waxed paper.

Apples that are not discolored, not shriveled, and with their fresh flavor, baked in 90 seconds!

Breakfast bacon, crisp and tasty, cooked between paper towels flavor, baked in 90 seconds!

Those are just a few of the cooking revelations that Miss Polly Murray of Miami, Florida, Home Economist for Westinghouse at Baggerly Appliance Center during open house this week.

Miss Murray is demonstrating the famous speed-o-light cooking in a Westinghouse electronic range, a range that uses radio microwaves to cook without heat and without mess and bother.

The attractive home economist, arriving in Sanford last night, said that the new electronic cooking appeals to women two ways.

"Speed," she says is one of the appealing factors "and the other is cleanliness."

"Cooking in paper, for instance," Miss Murray said, "is most appealing because it cuts down on dishwashing."

You see, she explained, we do not use metal utensils in the Westinghouse electronic range because metals reflect heat. "So we use paper, glass, and china," and added smilingly, "we cook in the dishes in which the food will be served."

One of the most amazing revelations made by Miss Murray as she explained the use of the electronic range was the fact that the frequency used in cooking is assigned by the Federal Communications Commission and is of 2450 megacycles. "Surprised?" she asked.

"I certainly am," the reporter replied, "for now I know that when I turn on these terribly high frequencies and get a sizzling sound it's bacon frying or a roast cooking—the only thing that would be an improvement would be the addition of odor."

The oven which Miss Murray will demonstrate will be on display from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. at Baggerly Appliance Center all this week.

Questions On Film Will Be Answered At Kiwanis Meet

Members of the Sanford Kiwanis Club will learn more about the Post Office Department and the story of "The Three Ms" when they see a film under that title at their noon luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Yacht Club.

Joel Field, Sanford Postmaster, said that "the film is timely because of the efforts of the Post Office Department to mechanize its operations in places like Sanford where a 40-year-old building is being used."

Several members of the Post Office staff will accompany Field to the Wednesday luncheon meeting to answer questions following the film.
