Lake Monroe Man Reveals Candidacy For Commissioner

Gus Schmah, Lake Monroe, has qualified and announced candidacy for Board of Seminole County Commissioners in District Three, subject to the Democratic Primary May 8.

Schmah has lived in Seminole County since 1914 and has made his home on the West Side since that time.

He has been a farmer and taxiderman since 1930 and until recently was connected with the various agricultural projects of the county for many years.

Schmah took an important part in obtaining the present Sanford State Farmers Market for the community. He is also a Director in the Federal Land Bank.

He has also been a director in the past in other financial institutions.

In announcing his candidacy Schmah says, "I have developed land of my own and I am certainly interested in the overall development of Seminole County. I am in a position to give most of my time to the duties of Seminole County Commissioner."

The Sanford baseball season will officially get underway next Sunday afternoon with a gigantic parade which will leave the Mayfair Inn at 1:15 p. m.

The Seminole High School band will lead the parade from the Mayfair Inn to the Sanford Memorial Baseball Stadium where the first practice and exhibition game of the season to be played by the New York Giants' Minneapolis Millers will get underway at 1:30.

City Commissioner John Krider is slated to pitch the first ball to get the game underway.

Many baseball enthusiasts and city civic leaders will take part in the parade and see the game that will be played between the Minneapolis Millers and Rochester.

Local fans will have an opportunity to see top bracket baseball talent in action on the mound, the bases and on the field as well as at the plate.

Officials of the Minneapolis Millers are expecting a maximum crowd to see the first game played in Sanford, in the 18-game schedule, ten of which will be home games and played at Memorial Stadium.

E, H Savings Bonds February Purchase Figures Revealed

W. A. Patrick chairman of the Seminole County Savings Bond Committee today announced purchase figures for February and the totals for the first two months of 1956.

"Purchases of E and H Savings Bonds in Florida in February were $9,080,802," Patrick reported "which amount fell short by less than one percent of the record sales in February 1955, the highest single one month's volume since the close of the Victory Loan Drive in 1945 and brings the amount for the year-to-date to $13,322,892, or 99.7 percent of the state's quota for 1956."

"Seminole County purchases for February were $2,818 and for both months $6,618 which is 20.5 percent of the Treasury assigned county quota.

"With the volume of purchases running almost even with the record amounts reported last year," Patrick stated, "people of Florida are rapidly piling up liquid reserves in Savings Bonds already estimated at well in excess of a half billion dollars. Such holdings not only are a stabilizing influence in the national economy but are a boon as well as the people who own them and to the communities in which they live."

Carrier Service To Start In New Areas March 24

Rural carrier service, says postmaster, Joel Field, will be started in the Little Venice and Loch Arbor areas March 24 and will be continued once daily except Sundays and holidays thereafter.

Patrons who place their rural type boxes at the curb should make them 40 inches above the ground, he cautioned. All residents of the areas are requested to place the boxes up as soon as possible so that the Post Office can number the boxes. All boxes in this area will be in the 400 series.

E. A. Covington, veteran carrier will start his route at the extension on the country club road at the corner of Paola Road. He will travel south to Sunset Drive then west to Ridge Drive. His route will then take him south to West Lake Boulevard and west to the Country Club Road then south to West Crystal Drive. From there he will travel east and northeast to Vinewood Drive and north to Orange Drive then east to Lake Boulevard. He will then go west to Vinewood Drive and north to Paola Road then west to Sweden Church.

Much credit should be given AOC E. H. Leming of the SNAAS for obtaining the petitions and assisting the local Post Office, Field stated.

City Now Quiet As Carrier Landings End

Weeks of endless day-night Field Carrier Landing Practice sessions which have meant loss of sleep to many Sanford residents have ended at the Naval Auxiliary Air Station with successful results.

Every pilot attached to Heavy Attack Squadron Five is now either fully qualified or requalified to land his AJ-3 Savage aboard naval carriers both night and day. This means that when the squadron deploys to the Mediterranean in May it will have reached a state of combat readiness in event of war hitherto unattained by a heavy attack unit.

VAII-5 completed all pilot qualification exercises required of the squadron during a highly successful operating period aboard the USS Randolph while that aircraft carrier was operating in the Mayport area last week.

Various Reports Given

Various reports highlighted the monthly meeting of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors held last night at the Educational Building on Commercial Ave.

Don Fletcher reported on the "Central Florida Fair Exhibit" and James A. Wright on the French Ave. Dedication. Wright said, "I want to thank the Board of County Commissioners for the fine cooperation received from them for the dedication."

In other reports, B. B. Crumley and Frank Evans told of the attendance at the Leaders Work Conference in Jacksonville, mentioning in detail the classes and discussions in which they participated.

President George Touhy gave a brief report on the Herlong questionnaire and the tallying of the reports for local information.

Chamber Manager Forrest Breckenridge reported on the status of the Waterways and Water Control Committee projects and said "The St. Johns-Indian River Improvement Association is getting ready to hold a meeting in the near future to set up a plan of action following a release of the information obtained as a result of the geological survey made by the corps of engineers." The survey was completed several months ago, Breckenridge said, "and is being studied at the present time to determine the best way to handle the water control situation in the Upper St. Johns River basin."

Breckenridge told the Chamber of Commerce Directors that he has been requested to appear in Fort Lauderdale Friday and Saturday under a Congressional Public Works subcommittee to represent the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce and the St. Johns-Indian River Improvement Association and to present both oral and written arguments relative to the Seminole County Board of Commissioners request that Seminole County as a whole be included in the Central and South Florida Flood Control District.

President George Touhy stated that "plans are being made by the Armed Forces Committee to stage an Armed Forces Day Celebration in cooperation with the local Navy Base and other local military units."

He also reported on the opening of the baseball training season for the Minneapolis Millers.

Touhy stated that the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce is in contact with the Atlantic Coast Line officials relative to the establishment of a Railroad Museum in the Sanford area. Volie A. Williams Sr. is present chairman of this activity, said Touhy, and received encouragement from a director of the ACL with the assurance that it will be presented to the Board of Directors for consideration.

Rayburn T. Milwee, Seminole County Superintendent of Public Instruction, discussed, for the Chamber of Commerce directors, the federal aid to education question. He advised that the education committee of the Chamber is preparing and planning a Business Education Day the early part of the next school year and has invited the cooperation of the local business people.

Milwee said "various Federal Aid to education bills had been considered by Congress in the past and that those which had been put into effect such as the veterans schooling bill, had been quite successful." He said, "upon the introduction last year of the Kelly Bill and the Administrative Bill for Federal Aid to Education, Representative Powell had included that an amendment be included with these bills to require all schools participating to be non-segregated."

Milwee said, "Of course, this was something that the schools in the South would definitely be against and such a bill would be damaging to our particular type of operation."

He said that "public law 874 and 875 had meant considerable to the local school system since these made additional funds for construction of new school facilities because of the SNAAS." He said "our congressional delegation had been very cooperative in helping to remove the objectionable portions of this law which enabled them to operate to greater advantage for the Seminole County School system." Milwee said "There are approximately 6,613 children in school now in Seminole County" and "More than 7,000 are expected for the beginning of next year's term." This, he reminded them was considerably more than the prediction that had been made to obtain by January 1956." He said that "federal control and interference has been practically negligible in previous and present federal aid bills such as the Smith-Hughes act, etc."

He seemed to think that if a bill could be put through without the segregation clause it might be of considerable help in making additional facilities available.

He also brought out that it cost approximately $106 per year per child to operate the schools and next year it is expected to cost a little more than $200.

During World War II he commanded Co. C, Fourth Battalion, 22nd Florida State Guard until the unit was disbanded in 1949, at which time he received the rank of major in recognition of his services.

He lives at 1718 Magnolia Ave. with his family.

Nixon Gets N. H. Write-In Votes; Name Not On Ballot

MANCHESTER, N. H. (AP)—Sen. Felix Kefauver's clear-cut victory in the New Hampshire primary put new punch and power today into his drive for the Democratic presidential nomination — but the election's real surprise was Vice President Nixon.

The vice president received a towering write-in vote of 18,367 from 260 of the state's 297 precincts in the vice presidential preference poll.

The figure is all the more astonishing in light of the fact that Nixon's name was not on the ballot, he did not campaign in New Hampshire, and no organized effort was made on his behalf.

It appeared to be the result of a spontaneous burst of public sentiment for the much-discussed vice president.

In the presidential balloting, New Hampshire did this:

1. It gave Kefauver all 12 Democratic delegates, and their eight delegate votes. He crushed a slate favoring Adlai E. Stevenson, who did not personally campaign in this primary, and was not even on the ballot.
2. Kefauver's preferential vote was 18,404 in 260 of 297 precincts. Stevenson had a total write-in of 2,419.
3. As expected, it elected 14 Republican delegates who are backers of President Eisenhower. In addition, the state gave the President a vote of 16,467 in 260 of 297 precincts in the preferential section of the ballot. He was unopposed there.
4. This was the opening round between Kefauver and Stevenson.

Hypnosis Cases Drawing Interest

NEW YORK (AP)—The woman had an emotional problem she could not explain. In the course of treatment, she was placed under hypnosis and told to go back in memory to some significant phase of her life.

"Suddenly," said Dr. Louis R. Wolberg, author, noted psychiatrist and authority on hypnosis, "she burst into what appeared to be pure gibberish."

Puzzled, Wolberg recorded the outburst and brought the patient out of her trance. He was surprised to learn that she was mystified by the recording as he investigated further, Wolberg learned that while under hypnosis the woman had spoken Greek. Not only that, it was poetic Greek. But instead of shedding light, this information only increased the mystery.

"The subject was not of Greek descent," says Wolberg. "She had never lived in Greek surroundings, never studied the language, or, to the best of her knowledge, never heard it spoken."

Interest in such cases started gathering momentum last month with the publication of a book entitled "The Search for Bridget Murphy."

The author, Morey Bernstein, is an amateur hypnotist. From an experience similar to that of Wolberg, Bernstein suggests the answer to the mystery is reincarnation.

Unexplained statements made by a Colorado housewife under hypnosis, says Bernstein, point to the conclusion that she lived in Ireland during the 19th Century as Bridget or Bridget-Murphy.

Wolberg and other noted authorities appear unanimous in rejecting suggestions that reincarnation might be proved through age regression. But Bernstein's book has become a sensation on the nation's bookstands. It is in its eighth printing (145,000 copies), and demand is far outstripping supply. It is at or near the top of best seller lists.

What dangers—or benefits—does hypnosis involve? How genuine is the age regression phenomenon and what does it prove?

To obtain answers to such questions, the Associated Press consulted several authorities in this field.

Perhaps the closest approach to a definition was that hypnosis is a trance like state, the depth of which may vary widely, in which the subject voluntarily surrenders some of his faculties to the hypnotist. It is important to note that the subject himself retains control of some of his faculties.

When is the term "stage" hypnosis used? The subject accepts the hypnotist's suggestion as an absolute command.

within limits normally bounded by the subject's own morals and principles.

No complete answer as to why this partial surrender of faculties takes place was found. But its manifestations may often be startling.

All or parts of the body may be anesthetized to the point of permitting minor, or in some cases, major surgery. The subject may perform feats of physical endurance normally considered beyond his ability.

Or he may recall events which he would not be able to remember under normal circumstances. This particular attribute has led to the wide use of hypnosis in psychiatry, just as the subject's ability to withstand pain has led to its use in physical medicine.

On one aspect of age regression all the authorities agreed: When directed to relive his past, the subject will do so to the best of his ability, drawing both on memory and fabrication to please the hypnotist.

Wolberg, who believes that some persons may genuinely be regressed to early infancy, didn't stop investigating the case of the woman who burst into Greek when he discovered no immediate reason for her use of the language.

Instead of assuming a previous life in the days of Homer, the psychiatrist found, through persistent investigation:

"When the girl was about two years old her mother was a housekeeper for a Greek professor. The mother would place the child on a rug in the middle of the floor and then go about her housecleaning."

"While the mother worked and the child played, the professor would often pace about the room, sometimes reciting poetry or practicing his lectures."

"In the course of her prattling, the child imitated the professor."

Wolberg concluded that this experience was lost to the woman's conscious memory but left its mark on her subconscious—and through the disassociation which hypnosis makes possible in some subjects, she was able to recover the long forgotten phrases.

"There are many things in our makeup of which we are not consciously aware," says Wolberg. "Some are the memories left by forgotten experiences. Some are things the conscious mind would like to ignore, such as conflicts, repressed urges and unhappy experiences."

"The mind builds something of a smoke screen between itself and things it does not wish to acknowledge. But they're still there. They form the roots of motivations which are more apparent and help to explain why some persons are nervous for no obvious reason; why some men are driven by ambition while others cover from decision."

MAJOR JACK A. FISHER of Arlington, Va., thinks over a question in Washington as he appears before the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee hearing on trade between East and West. The former technical advisor to the Defense Department recommended no downgrading of any machine tools for shipment to the Communists. He said a similar move in 1952 enabled our allies to ship goods to the Russians without fear of losing any American financial aid.

Rumors Of Opening Demijohn Cause Flurry

FREDERICK, Md. (AP)—There's a mite of mouth-waterin' among drinking folk hereabout. It stems from all their talk about opening the demijohn.

The demijohn (Webster "A large small-necked bottle...") is a 10-ton monstrosity of stone put together with loving care in 1809 by Leo Harbaugh, mason and bridge-builder.

For more than a century the rumor has passed from Frederick father to Frederick son that Harbaugh left a keg of whisky—undoubtedly home-distilled Maryland rye—inside.

And what connoisseur of spirits wouldn't give his silver-plated corkscrew for a sip of 145-year-old whisky?

If, indeed, there is a keg... and if it is tapped, the ladies of the Frederick chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution may take full credit. Not that they want the whisky, mind you. They just want to preserve that historical old demijohn where folks can best appreciate it.

Beginning at the beginning, here is the tale:

The White House was occupied by Thomas Jefferson in the infant years of the 19th Century and he was catching thunder for spending 35 million dollars for 828,000 wild acres called Louisiana. Whether to get back in the good graces of frugal Maryland folk, or just out of the goodness of his heart, Jefferson decided to build a road linking the Washington area and Western Maryland. (It's U.S. 240 now.)

Harbaugh, who had done some masonry work around the White House, was given the job of bridging the Monocacy River, just southeast of Frederick.

He began the job in 1808 and finished it a year later—a bridge of four stone arches, 65-feet long. Proud of his accomplishment, he built a huge masonry demijohn, better than 10 feet tall, at the eastern end. And inside, rumor has it, he sealed the keg.

On the outside, Harbaugh cut his name and the names of others who helped build the bridge.

Inappropriate as it might seem, a whisky-filled monument to his work wasn't all out of keeping in those lusty days. The "History of Frederick County" records the 1800-1810 population of Frederick as 1,234 males, 1,244 females and 140 distilleries. They produced 145,000 gallons of whisky a year.

Harbaugh stayed around Frederick for exactly three days after the job was done. Then one of the bridge arches began to sag a bit and Harbaugh—as legend goes—left town quietly and in considerable hurry.

But the bridge stood Lafayette made a speech at the bridge—by then known as "Jug bridge"—in 1824 and Union and Rebel cavalry pounded back and forth across it in the 1860's.

It wasn't until March 3, 1942, that the Jug bridge ended all argument over whether it was safe. It fell, with a considerable splash, into the Monocacy.

Two years later, a new bridge was completed several hundred yards away. The demijohn was left to the ravages of weeds, small boys armed with rocks, and the periodic but unsuccessful assaults of foxes and skunks.

Recently, the State Roads Commission announced that another bridge would be built across the Monocacy—close the demijohn—as part of the project to make U.S. 210 a dual-lane highway.

That's when the DAR took action.

Mrs. Paul B. Rhoads, the chapter's regent, proposed that the commission move the historic demijohn to a suitable point between the new bridge and the 1944 bridge where tourists could see it and marvel at the artistry of Leo Harbaugh, mason and bridge builder.

Roads commission officials said the idea had merit, but that some one else—possibly the DAR—would have to pay for moving the 10-ton demijohn.

And there the matter rests, except for the comment of Joseph W. Ueber, president of the Historical Society of Frederick County.

"The best thing to do," said Ueber, "might be to dismantle the demijohn and rebuild it again... 115 years old... that keg would have real authority by now."

FOURTEEN REMINDER

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—Mrs. J. Q. Kendrick became cold while sitting in the family car waiting for her husband. She decided to start the car and turn on the heater.

The auto jumped the curb, bowled over a parking meter, crashed through a plate glass window and sent furniture spinning as it rolled across a showroom. Her husband was knocked down by a flying chair.

LOST HAIR

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Officers began to speculate—but not very seriously—that the Indians were back on the warpath when what appeared to be a scalp was found on the desert. It turned out to be a toupee.

Undersheriff Waldon Burr said, yes, the hair was human—but the glue holding it on wasn't.

HIS CAR SUBMERGED in the raging flood waters of Conococheague Creek at Gowanda, N. Y., Charles Kranke holds his pet dog after they were brought to safety. He is thanking one of the rescuers. At top, a boat is shown reaching the marooned auto (arrow) while firemen hold the rescue craft with a rope which has been swept down stream by the force of the current. Torrential rains have caused serious flood conditions in this area and northwest Pennsylvania. (International)

Amis. Watch this column for reviews when they arrive

Our readers' choice of current books for March has just come. "Marjorie Morningstar" and "Andersonville" are still top two with "Man in the Gray Flannel Suit" close behind. The top two, I still say are not for the faint in heart type readers. Definitely for the hardy ones.

On the nonfiction list; "Inside Africa" and "A Night To Remember" are the top two and "Gift From The Sea" along with "How To Live 365 Days A Year" following. "Auntie Stame" is still on the list of favorites, and it has no reserves on it at present.

You'll be sorry when you finish reading it that you can't start all over.

Election Acquires Nature Of 3-Man Race

WASHINGTON (AP)—When President Eisenhower said "yes," the coming presidential election immediately took on the character of a three-man race.

His running mate will be that third man, a major figure this time.

Never before has the choice of a vice presidential candidate been more important to a party than it is now to the Republicans. The calculated risk factor inherent in the President's condition underlines it as never before. Who was who said "Only a heart beat stands between the vice president and the White House?"

GOP leaders know that many a voter, with this in mind, will take an unusually long, hard look at the party's choice this year and ask himself "Do I want him as president, just in case?"

In short, this time, there will be people—and nobody can say how many—who will conscientiously vote for or against a vice president.

So wherever you go, you hear hot discussion of the Republican problem. Some are for the incumbent, Richard M. Nixon. National Chairman Leonard Hall said recently he expected Nixon would be the party's choice.

Other Republicans, however, mention such names as Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey (who says he isn't a candidate), Thomas E. Dewey, and so on. They feel Nixon has become too controversial.

When political parties developed, however, political considerations began dictating the choice of the vice presidential nominee. But once the election was over, the vice president became a kind of forgotten man.

In this century, however, the position began to change.

Three vice presidents—Theodore Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge, and Harry S. Truman—who took over from presidents who had died in office later went on to win the presidency for themselves.

More important, there has been a steady trend toward delegating more duties and responsibilities to the vice president. It began with Herbert Hoover.

Franklin D. Roosevelt delegated important administrative duties to Henry Wallace during World War II. Roosevelt frequently invited his vice president's field in two directions. Harry S. Truman took a long step, then, when he made Alben Barkley a member of the National Security Council where he participated in policy making.

President Eisenhower added still more prestige and importance to the office. As Hoover put it:

"He has greatly enlarged the vice president's field in two directions. He represents the President in public occasions both at home and abroad. He has been brought into the Cabinet, the National Security Council, and some other policy making agencies of government. So today he takes part very extensively in policy making, but of course not in international negotiations."

Paralleling these developments, Congress recently began a study that deeply concerns the vice president. The Judiciary Committee is examining them out vital, intricate—and obscure—of all the problems in the American system of government, the question of presidential disability.

Article Two of the Constitution says in part:

"In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of said office, the same shall devolve on the vice president."

But what constitutes "inability"? The Constitution doesn't define it. Eisenhower was in the hospital in Denver for four weeks. As soon as possible, he signed a paper and he saw members of his Cabinet. But he wasn't working full time. Was he in a state of "inability"? Should the vice president have taken over?

Who initiated the question of whether a stricken president is disabled? Again, the Constitution doesn't say.

Who shall participate in the inquiry? Who is qualified to determine whether and when a President has become incapable of administering his office?

The Judiciary Committee addressed 11 questions, including these, to authorities on constitutional law all over the nation.

One answer said "It is undoubtedly within the power of the vice president to do this" (initiate the question of inability). But another wrote "I think it highly improper to entrust the vice president with the initiative since his personal stake in the decision precludes general confidence in the objectivity, etc." Others said the vice president, along with the Congress or the Cabinet, might make the determination.

Whatever comes out of the current congressional inquiry and all the other developments affecting the vice presidency, one thing is certain: the office has ceased to be "most insignificant."

BAR OF JUSTICE

LOVING, N. M. (AP)—Just about every peace officer in the county was on hand for a hearing on a drunk driving case. An intruder, obviously a bit shaky from drinking, staggered into the court room, headed straight for the table where the state's evidence—a case of beer—was sitting.

The beer cans toppled off the table when the stranger grabbed for them. The assistant district attorney cried "arrest that man." Someone did—and he was booked for drunkenness in court.

This port mise in her Easter finery makes it clear that she's prepared for the special day, come rain or shine.

Snap a Picture Story of Your Family's Easter

Easter is a happy holiday, heralding a new season of fresh beginnings, bright hopes and brand-new spring finery—and it's a time for pictures, too. Notice we said a "time" not a "day" because your picture-taking can well include the week's preliminary preparations as well as the final events of Easter Sunday itself. It wouldn't be Easter without shopping, clothes-fitting sessions, basket-filling, arranging flowers and decorations, batches of cookies, and the magic of multi-colored eggs. And we think all these activities deserve the eye of your camera just as much as the traditional egg-hunt and the Easter parade.

There are so many wonderful picture-taking opportunities attendant upon Easter that it's difficult to tell you just where to begin—except at the beginning! Be sure to catch the children as they color eggs and make little baskets for their friends. Don't miss recording the youngsters' excitement when they see the cake baked in the shape of an Easter bunny or lamb take its honored place in the center of the table. And by all means snap a preview of the family in their Easter outfits, too.

By the time the "great day" dawns, you'll have made a good start on your picture record of how your family ushered in Easter, 1956. Naturally, you will want to highlight Sunday's "special features"—the morning Easter-egg hunt, the after-church parade of all the new spring bonnets and suits, and the whole family around the festive dinner table.

A simple flash attachment will make all your indoor shooting as dependable as your outdoor snapshots. And don't forget Easter is a colorful season that just begs for color-film in your camera to do it full justice.

Army experts have written New Book On Guided Missiles

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—The problem of creating "One World" now is hurling toward humanity on the wings of the approaching intercontinental guided missile.

That's the conclusion a reader draws from views of Army experts in a new, and as yet unpublished book—the first of its kind, entitled "Guided Missiles in War and Peace."

The book, with a foreword by Commanding Gen. John E. Dahlquist of the Continental Army Command, is authored by Maj. Neils A. Parson, USA. Parson is a writer on guided missiles in military journals, former instructor in guided missile tactics, and now is chief of Review and Analysis Branch, Combat Developments, Headquarters, Continental Army Command. The book will be published in mid-March by The Harvard University Press.

In his foreword, Gen. Dahlquist says: "This nation lives under a real threat of devastating aggression. The tempo of warfare has vastly increased and our statesmen are filled with a sense of urgency to find a pattern of lasting peace. . . . Guided missiles, especially when atomic armed, represent the most radical changes in weapon systems since the invention of gunpowder. . . ."

Maj. Parson tells you: "The most powerful destructive force in military operations is the nuclear warhead and . . . the most potent carrier is the guided missile. The atomic guided missile is a most deadly weapon, and all military operations will be radically influenced by it. . . ."

attacking a nation's heart land. . . ."

In the meantime, Maj. Parson indicates, "By using airborne launchers, the Navy will ultimately be able to reach any target area on the surface of the earth. "Air Force surface-to-surface missiles will eventually have intercontinental range."

"Successful surface to air and air-to-air missile development has also been announced. Army surface-to-air missiles have proved their ability to knock down targets and are ready for combat use. Human ingenuity in the United States, in the Soviet Union and in other nations, now has been focused for years upon still-unsolved problems of "flying the robot weapon thousands of miles accurately to the target."

rifle temperature ranges at varying altitudes, the effects of ultraviolet radiation; the penetration of cosmic rays; meteors whizzing into our atmosphere like ultra high-speed bullets; unexpected speeding up or slowing down of the missile or drift, caused by atmospheric forces; up and down vertical winds of perhaps 350 miles an hour; plus creation of extremely sensitive mechanisms to control the missile under possible violent vibration.

Major Parsons outlines defense measures and says, "The situation is not utterly hopeless. Naval launchers and their supply lines can be attacked. Many of the same passive defenses used against bombers can be employed. Homing type missiles can be 'confused.' Methods can be employed for destroying launching sites and destroying launching sites and de-

The Snapshot Guild

It's more than just a snapshot. It's a story that has come a long way since Victorian days.

Stereo Pictures—Easy to Take, Exciting to View

What's new about stereo?—nothing if you are talking about the original. It's as old as the hills—and the viewing of stereo slides was a favorite indoor sport of the Victorian era. But a lot has happened to stereo since then—and we thought you should be brought up to date on it.

You take your own full-color stereo pictures with an easy-to-use camera—a privilege our grandmothers never had in their day of dependence on stock views of Niagara Falls and the Great Smokies. Today's stereo enables you to catch the pictures that are important to you personally—big ones that represent large and small milestones in your own individual family history.

What then, you may ask, makes stereo pictures different from those snapped with ordinary cameras? And the answer is—the way the stereo camera sees. Because it sees just as our eyes do—with two lenses—it sees the shapes and contours of objects

New All-Weather Interceptor Shown By Air Force Today

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—The Air Force today took the wraps off a new version of the Northrop Scorpion known as the F-105. It is the first operational plane to be equipped with the new Falcon air-to-air missile.

The new all-weather interceptor, which will be assigned to continental Air Defense Command bases, also is equipped with air-to-air folding fin rockets. Missiles and rockets are carried and fired from the wing tip pods.

Effective range for the missile is greater than that of rockets or air-borne cannon. The missiles need not be aimed precisely at the target, since they are capable of sensing the presence of a selected target and seeking it out, once released.

3 GOP Campaign Committees Pile Up $1 Million Surplus

WASHINGTON (AP)—The three major Republican campaign committees piled up a surplus of about one million dollars in the first two months of the election year. Their Democratic counterparts ran in the red.

This was disclosed Monday in reports filed with the clerk of the House by the national, senatorial and congressional committees of both parties.

During the two-month period, the GOP groups collected $1,830,373 and spent $772,181, leaving a balance of just over one million dollars. The Democratic committees collected $141,598 and spent $263,350 to put their operations $121,752 in the red for the period.

Actress Hayworth Faces Countersuit

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Rita Hayworth has lost her $75,000 breach of contract suit against Columbia Pictures Corp. and now faces the studio's countersuit for $150,000.

U. S. Judge Ben Harrison ruled yesterday that Miss Hayworth was entitled to nothing because she had waived her rights, if any, by her own actions. She claimed Columbia failed to start principal photography on the movie "Joseph and His Brothers" in time for her to take her daughter Yvonne to see Aly Khan in Europe July 1, 1958.

When the shooting did not start April 8, Miss Hayworth walked out of rehearsal and refused to return, wiring the studio it had breached its contract. Her suit then was instituted.

STOLEN RELIGION
KILGORE, Tex. (AP)—Mrs. Margaret J. Hoyal, librarian, says among the books most often stolen from the public library are those on religion.

The state capital of Texas has more than 4000 rooms and 18 acres of space.

Unique Experiment In Education Is Launched At Jail

LOUISVILLE (AP)—A unique experiment in education was launched Monday when 19 men, aged 19 to 40, went to classroom behind bars.

Sheriff Bruce Heblitzell believes his school in the Jefferson County jail is the first of its kind.

The students—prisoners serving 30 days to a year—were chosen for their ability and divided into classes. The classes will meet each day.

John A. Wilson, a husky former football player, sports official and part-time teacher, was chosen by Heblitzell to head the program.

The sheriff said an inmate's remark recently to practice typing in the jail office gave him the idea for the school.

He said he decided that even limited schooling among prisoners would be worthwhile in "planting the seed of desire for betterment."

The prisoners gave him encouragement. Said one: "I never had time to go to school. Now time is one thing I've got plenty of."

ELECTION RETURNS TOLD

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Election returns today showed men who favor closer ties between the United States and Ryugyu Islands will dominate Okinawa's new Legislature.

Candidates of the pro-American Democratic party won 18 of the Legislature's 29 seats in voting Sunday.

Will Investigating Group Do Work?

WASHINGTON (AP)—The special eight-man committee picked by the Senate to investigate lobbying has its work cut out for it. The big question is: Will it do its work?

There are four Democrats and four Republicans on the committee. If they play politics on the direction the investigation takes, splitting along party lines, there won't be much investigation.

Dulles Says South Viet-Nam Making Striking Progress

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles declared today that South Viet Nam has made "striking progress toward consolidation of a strong and free country" in the past year.

Dulles flew in from Thailand for a 22-hour official visit with President Ngo Dinh Diem and Foreign Secretary Vu Van Mau. He is touring the Far East after attending a conference of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in Pakistan.

Speaking to a large crowd at Saigon's airport, he said the recent election of a constituent assembly in South Viet Nam "is a significant step toward development of a constitutional representative government."

"These achievements," he said, "justify the Vietnamese people in facing with resolute confidence the great tasks which lie ahead." Dulles goes from here to Manila.

They've already shown signs of party splitting. From the time they were appointed Feb. 23 until Saturday they were so badly divided they couldn't agree on rules for doing business.

Now they have agreed with Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) as chairman and Sen. Bridges (R-NH) as vice chairman. But the kind of agreement they made leaves the door open for party splits and paralysis.

McClellan as chairman may issue subpoenas for witnesses, document and record but only after telling Bridges what he intends to do.

If Bridges objects, then the problems must be submitted to the full committee for solution. Any time they split on party lines, there probably will be no solution and no action.

The chief counsel and other staff employees of the committee will be hired only after majority approval. Once again a 4-4 party split could wreck even this elementary effort to get started.

This is going to be an interesting committee to watch, whether it does a real job, shadow boxes or blows up in confusion. This is an election year and a real investigation might cause political explosions.

This committee will not have time for a thorough study of the whole field of lobbying in the time given it. The Senate instructed the committee to finish its job by next Jan. 31.

Just getting a staff together, and then letting the staff dig into the field and prepare the groundwork for public hearings, will take a lot of time. McClellan says now he can't tell when the inquiry will begin.
