Activists score with farm bill

WASHINGTON — The tip-off of the influential role environmental and consumer groups have played in writing the farm policy bill appeared, by some estimates, weeks before the bill was called for floor debate.

It was the overwhelming House vote June 14 for two amendments to cut back on water subsidies to Western farmers.

"The environmental community was able to demonstrate the ability to win," said Justin Ward of the Natural Resources Defense Council. "I think that was helpful to leverage some more environmental concerns (into the bill)."

The victory list for environmental and consumer groups includes language for the first-ever national standard for what can be called organic food, stronger protection of wetlands, a ban on export of pesticides barred from use by U.S. farmers, a requirement for farmers to keep records on use of pesticides, programs that would help defray the cost for farmers to switch to production methods that reduce the risk of water contamination, and to investigate what effect grading standards have on pesticide use.

DER issued warning to county

SANFORD — Seminole County officials received a warning from the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation this week for a gasoline leak at the county's refueling station at Five Points.

Although the notice directs the county to begin investigating the leak, county officials have been testing the fuel tanks at the site since the leak was discovered in April. Deborah Metrin, a DER tank specialist, said the notice is required regardless of whether investigation has begun.

The leak of an undetermined amount of gasoline was found on April 10 and since then, the county discovered five of the six fuel tanks at the station failed pressure tests.

County purchasing director David Galnor said the county hasn't determined how much gasoline has leaked into the soil since the tanks were first installed at the site in 1981.

Galnor said no home water supplies are threatened in the area since homes are on public water supplies near Five Points.

We're captives of unhealthy lifestyles

United Press International

JACKSONVILLE — Florida residents are not very healthy when compared to those in other states, according to a study by one of the nation's largest health insurance companies.

The study compiled by Northwestern National Life Insurance company has Florida ranked 44th out of the 50 states in terms of healthy residents. The state's major problems, according to the study, are the nation's highest violent-crime rate and the nation's highest cancer rate.

Company officials said there are some factors that skew Florida's standing. One of them is the high percentage of elderly residents, which makes the cancer rate higher than it would be otherwise; another is that the violent-crime figures are based on data that is three years old.

Other factors that affected Florida's overall rating are:

• A high traffic death rate (3.1 deaths per 100,000 miles);

• An above-average number of smokers (31.7 percent of the population);

• Poor pre-natal care among pregnant women (only 82.8 percent of pregnant women receive adequate prenatal care).

Overall, Minnesota and Utah have the nation's healthiest people, while Alaska was at the bottom of the list.

The Northwest National study ranked states according to 17 factors grouped into five broader categories: lifestyle, access to health care, disability, disease and mortality.

Fred Sattler, a vice president of Northwest National, said the $20,000 study was aimed at provoking state legislatures to consider the health of their citizens.

Iraq Crisis now a 'waiting game'

By THOMAS FERRARO
United Press International

WASHINGTON — As U.S. combat troops dug in today for a possible long haul in Saudi Arabia, President Bush monitored developments in the Persian Gulf and watched for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's next move.

"This is pretty much of a waiting game now," White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said. "A long one if necessary."

Bush planned to confer with top advisers for an update on the U.S. military operation in Saudi Arabia, now in its first full day, as well as the impact of U.N.-backed economic sanctions against cash-poor Iraq.

Bush reported strong international support for deploying U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, but he still awaited a possible "Arab solution" from Middle East leaders who were to hold an emergency meeting in Cairo Thursday.

"There are some indications (Saddam) is already beginning to feel the pinch," said Bush, who hopes the action brings Saddam to his knees. "Nobody can stand up forever." See Iraq, Page 5A

Artist asked to clean up mural

HOLLYWOOD - An artist who was ordered to clean up a Hollywood mural that had been called obscene has been asked to cover part of another mural that showed a woman's breast.

Artist Steve Kroeger said he returned to Little Bruno Pizzeria and Bubba near Pompano Beach Tuesday to cover the breast of a Picasso-like abstract that the building's landlord "considered objectionable."

"The painting is a girl. If you could call it a girl, sort of cubist," said Frank Brusco, owner of the pizza shop. "It's hard to tell what it is; it could be anything you want it to be. But my landlord said, 'We're Italians and that's nasty.' All I have had from my customers are compliments."

Landlord Maria Rizzutti said the mural upset her husband and that neighbors had complained.

Kroeger ran into trouble in July when he unveiled a mural on the wall of a Hollywood motel showing the backside of a couple seated on a beach.

Accident involving officer investigated

FORT LAUDERDALE - Oakland Park officials are investigating an accident involving an off-duty Fort Lauderdale police captain who had difficulty walking and smelled of alcohol but was not given a sobriety test.

Capt. Emmett Thomas had the one-car accident in his own car in Oakland Park at 4:30 a.m. on July 19, an accident report said. He is head of the Fort Lauderdale Police Department's Internal Affairs Department, which investigates allegations of abuses by officers.

The accident report said Thomas had difficulty walking and smelled of "a strong alcoholic beverage." Oakland Park police turned him over to another Fort Lauderdale officer without arresting him or administering a sobriety test. "I know people will say I cut him a break just because he's a cop. That's not true," said Oakland Park officer Jean Tedesco, who said she recognized Thomas' name immediately after seeing his license. "He wasn't belligerent or loud, and he didn't throw his rank in my face. And nobody was badly hurt."

Smoking in jail banned

FORT LAUDERDALE - Broward County will ban smoking at all three of its jails beginning Feb. 1, ending a time-honored tradition of bartering cigarettes for food, favors and phone time in cells.

The county sheriff's office has begun phasing in the ban and no longer provides free cigarettes to prisoners who are broke. Since June, inmates have been forbidden to smoke outside their cells - in classes, church or the recreation area.

Starting Nov. 15, those who can afford to buy any of the 15 packs permitted each week will be cut back to eight, then six and so on until the ban takes effect Feb. 1.

Inmates predict a rise in tension. Smoking is so extensive that jail officials now buy 4,920 packs a week to sell to the 3,200 inmates in the county system.

Maj. Gary Corbett said the ban was enacted out of concern for the health of the prisoners and employees. Prisoners will have to quit cold turkey, but a therapist was brought in to help employees kick the habit.

Paroled killer charged with murder

DEFUNIAK SPRINGS - A convicted killer paroled 13 months ago from an Alabama prison has been charged with the abduction and murder of a Walton County woman, authorities said Wednesday.

Authorities said the suspect, Ernest Donald Bugba, 35, of Anniston, Ala., was arrested Tuesday and charged with kidnapping and an open count of murder in the stabbing death of Pauline Pitta Casey.

Bugba, son of a former police commissioner in Anniston, is also being questioned about last month's stabbing death of a Fort Walton Beach woman and the August 1989 disappearance of a convenience store clerk in Santa Rosa County.

The body of 36-year-old Pauline Pitta Casey was found Tuesday morning in a wooded area of Santa Rosa Beach, in south Walton County. Casey, who had been stabbed and cut, is believed to have been abducted Monday night from a bar near Destin where she worked.

Florida pair nabbed in heist

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. - A Florida couple about to hop a sunrise flight to Miami were arrested Wednesday in Rhode Island.

At 1:45 a.m. Tuesday, the couple allegedly stole about $25,000 from the Shawmut Bank of Rhode Island while armed with pistols.

Birdsong and Cline then rented a limousine to take them to Newport, R.I., where they went on a spending spree with the stolen money, police spokesman Twardy said.

They took the limousine to the Sheraton Hotel at Bradley, where they arrived late Tuesday.

Documents filed by the government showed Birdsong had been in federal prison for committing several bank robberies and he was released in 1989, Twardy said.

delayed astronomy mission that was grounded May 30 by a hydrogen fuel leak.

CAPE CANAVERAL - The shuttle Columbia, inching past its grounded sistership Atlantis, was hauled to the launch pad Thursday for blastoff around Sept. 1 on an astronomy flight that NASA hopes will end a summer of frustrating launch delays.

Atlantis was rolled off launch pad 30A late Wednesday to make way for Columbia, which began its glacial, 3.5-mile trip to the ocean-side firing stand at 5:47 a.m. EDT, two hours behind schedule.

With Atlantis parked 80 feet from the cavernous assembly building, Columbia, mounted atop a giant crawler-transporter, was slowly hauled toward the pad in an unprecedented shuttle shuffle marking NASA's latest bid to get the nation's manned space program back on track after a four-month hiatus caused by frustrating hydrogen fuel leaks.

The move marked the first time in shuttle history that two of NASA's $2 billion orbiters have passed in the night, as it were, on the crawlerway to the launch pad.

Once on the pad, Columbia will be readied for blastoff early next month on a long-

Atlanta, meanwhile, will be removed from its external tank for repairs to fix a similar leak that grounded the ship's planned launch last month on a secret military flight.

Columbia now is equipped with a new 17-inch-wide "disconnect" fitting to replace the one that leaked in May and if all goes well, the ship's seven-member crew will blast off around Sept. 1 on a mission to explore high-energy ultraviolet emissions from deep space.

Launch is unofficially targeted for Sept. 1 at 1:17 a.m. EDT, although shuttle engineers typically lose a day of work per week at the launch pad because of minor problems, which would push the flight to around Sept. 4 or 5.

Assuming Columbia makes it into orbit on schedule, the shuttle Discovery will carry the European-built Ulysses solar probe into space Oct. 5 followed by launch of the presumably repaired Atlantis around Oct. 26 to kick off a secret military mission originally planned for last month.

Tentative launch plans show the next shuttle flight will not be attempted until around Jan. 9 followed by flights Jan. 31 and March 15.

Joe Rosler challenges Rep. Stone

By J. MARK HANFIELD Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY - "Mainstream" Democrat Joseph Rosler blasted state representative Frank Stone, a Republican, as "too liberal to be taken seriously."

Rosler, who is seeking the District 34 House of Representatives seat, said he would bring a more "mainstream" platform to Tallahassee.

"Stone has two problems: one, he is a Republican in a Democratic-controlled legislature; and two, he is simply too liberal to be taken seriously," Rosler said.

Rosler, a Lake Mary lawyer, will face either Stone or Republican Arthur Ally in November. District 34 includes Casselberry and Geneva.

The immediate past president of the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce, Rosler recently served as chairman of the county Commission on Children and currently serves as vice chairman.

A past Mattland municipal judge, Rosler has also served on the Lake Mary Code Enforcement Board. Rosler gained local notoriety last year when he sued the Seminole County Code Enforcement Board for a client, saying code boards were unconstitutional.

Rosler said as a Democrat in a Democratic-controlled House, he would be more effective in bringing Seminole revenues back to the county.

Flaws found in new satellites

By WILLIAM HANFORD United Press International

away from an inability to instantly track developing storms and hurricanes.

CAPE CANAVERAL - Launch of new weather satellites will be delayed because of flawed mirrors, but officials said Wednesday older satellites already in space should be able to provide crucial coverage of storms and hurricanes.

Forecasters currently rely on a single "GOES" satellite to provide the hemispheric television views of Earth familiar from nightly newscasts, a satellite that was due to be replaced in February 1992 by the first in a series of advanced "GOES-NEXT" spacecraft.

But trouble with critical relay mirrors in the new satellites likely will delay their launch beyond early 1992, forcing the nation to continue relying on the GOES currently in orbit and putting forecasters a single failure

"We're concerned, of course, about any delays in launching a new satellite because we always want two of them up there," said Bud Litten of the National Atmospheric and Oceanic Administration. "We've had this single satellite since early '89. It was launched in '88 so it's into its third year."

But he said the satellite is in excellent condition and it likely will continue to operate beyond its planned five-year lifetime.

"This is in very good health. We see no flaws in it," he said. "It has fuel enough aboard ... to go a couple or three more years, anyway. It also has some built-in longevity features ... that the earlier satellites didn't have."

The mirror problem with the GOES-NEXT satellites is unrelated to the flaws crippling the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope.

Police search for suspect in four execution style killings

United Press International

INVERNESS - A Putnam County man is the target of a statewide manhunt in the execution-style slayings of four men near Floral City last week, authorities said Wednesday.

Arrest warrants were issued Tuesday for John C. Barrett, 25, of Melrose, on four counts of first-degree murder, Citrus County Sheriff Charles S. Dean said.

Barrett was last seen Sunday at a Wal-Mart and Food Lion shopping center in Starke with a 25-year-old woman authorities believe is either his girlfriend or wife. She goes by the names of Paula S. Barrett, Paula Yates and Paula Pickett.

The couple was accompanied by five children ranging in age from 8 months to 10 years, Dean said.

Authorities started their search in Bradford, Clay and Putnam counties, and Citrus County sheriff's spokesperson Mary Kay Lucas said the search would continue Wednesday in north Florida because Barrett lives in the area.

The suspect is armed and dangerous, Dean said. Barrett has firearms training and investigators found his Melrose home filled with martial arts material.

Barrett visited the site of the killings - a home south of Floral City - at least three times before the slayings, Dean said.

Barrett's relationship with the four victims and his reason for being in Floral City remains unclear, Dean said, adding that investigators are certain Barrett acted alone.

The four men killed sometime Friday were Jerry Lee Clark, 53, a former Weeekly Wachee business owner; Roger Wilson, 36, a Weeekly Wachee carpenter; Lawrence Johnson, 45, a Floral City shop owner; and Robert Hemmingway, 47, an employee of Johnson's in Floral City.

Dean said the men were beaten and shot, and called the killings "execution style."

Clark's fiancée, Jo Ann Williamson Sanders, found the bodies about 10:55 p.m. Friday.

Back-to-school questions answered

BACK TO SCHOOL

The first day of school in Seminole County is Aug. 22. Parents and students with questions about the school district may obtain information by Saturday at Longwood Village Shopping Center, or contact the school counselors through a "hotline" sponsored by Channel 9.

SANFORD — Over the next week there will be plenty of opportunity to find the answers to everything you ever wanted to know about the Seminole County school district, but didn't know who to ask.

On Saturday, there will be an information fair where district representatives will be on hand to answer questions and provide direction for parents and students who need information about the schools, at Longwood Village Shopping Center, on State Road 434 just east of Interstate-4.

All next week there will be a back to school "hotline" sponsored by the school district and WFTV-Channel 9.

Each day, Monday through Friday, from 5 to 7 p.m., guidance counselors from schools in seven Central Florida districts, including Seminole, will be on hand to answer the phones and respond to any questions that are called in.

"And there are plenty of calls," said Lauren Watkins, a newsroom producer at Channel 9 who is in charge of the project. "Last year, we served four counties and had about 4,000 calls over the five-day period." Seminole County has participated in the program since its inception four years ago.

"Seminole has been very good," Watkins said. "We've always gotten strong participation from their counselors and a lot of calls from the public."

Brent Ougle, development coordinator for the Seminole County Counselors Association, said the counselors volunteer for duty without pressure and there has been a consistently high turnout in Seminole County.

"This is a good way to get the word out to everyone about how things are done and for the counselors to learn about the concerns of youngsters and their parents," he said.

Ougle said there will be at least one counselor from each grade level (elementary, middle and high school) on duty at all times during the program.

He added that the counselors will all be veterans of the school system who are familiar with district policies on most subjects.

"If they don't have the answer, they know where to get it," Ougle said.

In addition to information about enrollment, procedures, lunch prices and test scores, the counselors will have on hand information regarding attendance zones and bus schedules.

"The school districts are really helpful in providing so much information," Watkins said.

She said the television audience will be able to see the studio where the counselors will be answering calls from time to time during the evening news programming. She added that Channel 9 reporter Marsha Reese will be doing short reports throughout the week which focus on some of the more popular questions asked by the public.

Vocational director Hogle turns attention to applied academics

By VICKI DeGONNAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Betty Hogle, Seminole County director of vocational and technical education, believes the vocational students of the district have to be prepared for the work force both academically as well as technically.

The district is participating in a program of upgrading the curriculum of the vocational programs to incorporate the two fields of study.

"We need to teach our vocational students to read and write if they are going to be successful in the workplace," Hogle said.

While the vocational programs will not stress college preparatory classes, Hogle said students will be encouraged to take classes such as applied communications, applied principles of science and applied math.

The communications class teaches students to write business letters and reports and to read technical materials; in the science math class, they learn to do rudimentary calculations and deal with computer calculations. The science classes teach basic scientific methods and theories of biology, physics and chemistry.

"It gives them the basic academics that they need, but puts them in a practical framework," Hogle said.

She explained that the English class in the vocational program will not concentrate on Shakespeare or Dickens.

"That doesn't help them in the business world nearly as much as knowing how to write a clear, concise business letter or being able to write technical instructions or a report," she said.

"That's what they need."

Seminole County prides itself, Hogle said, on producing vocational students who are ready to enter the business field immediately or go on to higher education with no trouble.

"We think that the applied academics are needed in the vocational fields today," she said.

As vocational trades become increasingly technical, the ability to communicate, operate computers and deal with scientific functions will become more and more important.

Seminole County remains at the leading edge of technology, they feel the academics are the key to continued success.

In the automotive technology department, for example, students spend several months learning about computers which are used in the diagnosis of engine problems before they ever pick up a wrench.

"Just a few years ago, students in a vocational class would never have seen a computer," said Sylvester Chang, owner of Sanford Mobil Service on French Avenue, who is a consultant to the school district's automotive programs. "Now, computers are essential to automotive repair."

Hogle said vocational training is started in elementary school where children are assessed as to their abilities and likes and dislikes. Students are given the same academic background in elementary and middle schools regardless of whether they choose a college preparatory or a vocational path in high school.

"It used to be that a certain stigma was attached to taking vocational classes that got youngsters routed out of certain classes," she said. "But that's not the case any more."

Seminole man counterfeits Polish money

United Press International

ORLANDO — A Florida man has apparently become the first American convicted of counterfeiting Polish currency and faces 20 years in prison and a fine of $500,000.

Longwood resident Joseph Hill, 61, was convicted Tuesday of charges he manufactured 3 million zlotys, an amount worth about $316, said Rick Johnson, head of the Secret Service office in Orlando.

"The guy could have printed a boxcar full of them and not have enough to buy an expensive suit," Johnson said. "We can only speculate that he was going to return to Poland and live like a king."

According to Secret Service records, no other American has been convicted of counterfeiting Polish currency, Johnson said. A spokeswoman for the Polish Embassy in Washington said that it takes 9,500 zlotys to equal $1.

Rest stop death determined a suicide

SANFORD — Seminole County Sheriff's Sgt. Billy Lee said today a 60-year-old Altamonte Springs man found dead with a gunshot wound to the head committed suicide.

The man's body was found at about 9 a.m. Wednesday in woods at the eastbound rest area of Interstate 4, Longwood. He was lying on top of a handgun. Lee said the man was apparently despondent over work-related problems, and had written a letter to that effect.

Seven arrested at search site

LONGWOOD — City County Investigative Bureau agents with a warrant who searched a house at 326 Feather Place, Longwood, Wednesday night, report arresting seven suspects on narcotics charges.

Residents at that address charged were Luanandra Lynn Wambold, 25, charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, and Tabatha Ann Goodwin, 23, charged with possession of more than 20 grams of marijuana and cocaine. Arrested on those same charges was Charles Wyatt Knutson, 33.

Robert Ford Hicks Jr., 61, was charged with possession of methadone and trafficking in cocaine after 42 grams of cocaine were reportedly found in his room. Franklin James Wambold, 26, was charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. William Eugene Smith, 32, of 111 Pine St., Altamonte Springs, was charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and Christopher Stanley Knutson, 20, was charged with possession of marijuana.

Man arrested after hose incident

CASSELBERRY — A man who allegedly fought a woman who lived with him and then awakened her 2-year-old daughter with the spray from a water hose at about 2:30 a.m. today has been charged with battery and child abuse.

Northrop conspiracy

Following the latest disclosure of deficiencies in the cruise missile program, the U.S. Justice Department is recommending that the Northrop Corp. should be permanently barred from ever receiving another contract from the Pentagon. The punishment may be deserved. But if the government really wants to crack down on these abuses, some heads in brass hats need to roll, too.

The demand for Northrop's debarment is unprecedented. But even among the dubious morals of defense contractors generally, Northrop has always been something special. Its chairman is a convicted felon, having admitted to falsifying documents in connection with the Watergate scandal.

After Northrop was linked to paying more than $30 million in bribes to foreign officials as an international arms merchant, the company signed a consent decree with the Securities and Exchange Commission promising not to do it any more. And it recently paid $17 million in penalties after pleading guilty to 34 felony counts involving false test reports on both the cruise missile project for the Air Force and the Navy's Harrier jet.

Northrop still faces so many other ongoing investigations of alleged bribery and fraud that the Justice Department testified recently that it can't identify a single major Northrop program that has not been tainted by wrongdoing. And Rep. John Dingell, chairman of the congressional subcommittee that is reviewing the Justice Department's recommendation, describes Northrop simply as "a continuing criminal enterprise."

The latest furor was prompted by the disclosure that the guidance systems Northrop has been manufacturing for the cruise missile may freeze, causing the weapon to "misfire or perhaps to send its nuclear warhead careening off in the wrong direction. The standard for subzero missile operations that the system had to meet has been in effect for three decades in all branches of the military. But, according to internal company documents, Northrop officials knew in 1983 and perhaps as early as 1978 that what they were building wouldn't comply.

Unfortunately, the Air Force apparently knew all about those defects as well and chose to ignore them. Despite repeated warnings from the Justice Department that they were undermining a criminal investigation, top Air Force officials consistently covered up for Northrop, excused its failings and waived some of the requirements that the company could not meet. Even now, John Bettl, the chief of Pentagon acquisitions, tells Dingell's committee that he's completely unaware of the evidence against Northrop or the extraordinary efforts by his own department on the company's behalf.

Bettl's persistent ignorance and the Air Force's complicity hardly excuses Northrop's behavior. But they may get the company off this particular hook. Certainly Northrop can argue in its own defense that no matter what went wrong, it was only doing what its masters in the Pentagon wanted and allowed.

Abortion battle is 'now-win' war

It never fails to amaze me how the abortion issue sizzles into every political debate from city office to Supreme Justice nominee.

We have become a society that puts our right to immediate gratification of our pleasure senses far and beyond the most simple and rational law of consequence for our action.

A small child learns that "hot" is a reality when their little hand touches the outside of an oven door when it is turned on. The parent can repeat "hot" a thousand times, but until little "Johnnie" or "Jane" feels the heat ... "hot" don't mean a lot. It is something they have to do! Should we conclude that there are a lot of grown children in today's world who have to experience the heat before they learn also?

We applaud a jury decision that a pregnant mother is guilty of child abuse because she took drugs during pregnancy. We hail the judge that sentences her to prison for the harm she has caused her unborn child. I wonder, what trimester did she do the most harm?

When I see diagrams of the developed first trimester baby, and realize how easily it is trashed, I lose faith in the moral fiber of our society.

On the other hand, when I have seen friends whose lives would be so complicated by even acknowledging a pregnancy, I have felt their dilemma.

Is there any solution to this "no win" war. That is, other than using self-control?

Regardless of which side you are on, pro-choice or pro-life, if abortion does not bother you, may I suggest you find out what made that hole in your heart.

Iraqi leader is ruthless autocrat

WASHINGTON — Many foreign dispatches seem to portray Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein at-Takriti as a sort of madman. But the CIA, which has long maintained a close watch on him, believes he is actually a vicious visionary with a lust for power.

According to their analysts, Hussein, who has been president of Iraq since 1979, is smart, calculating, autocratic and ruthless — he will stop at nothing to insure his success.

The CIA believes that while Hussein, 53, pays lip-service to pan-Arabism, it is actually a distant second to his deep Iraqi nationalism — and to his own vision of himself as a leader of destiny who will turn the Arab bloc into a dominant world power.

CIA analysts say that four events had been pivotal in the life of the man known throughout the Middle East simply as "Saddam." Now the invasion of Kuwait has become a fifth turning point.

Orphaned at an early age, Saddam grew up on his uncle's melon farm near the small village of Tikrit, about a hundred miles from Baghdad. Reportedly, he was the brightest student in the local high school, where he became attracted to the cause of militant Arab nationalism. He joined the youth league of the radical international Baath Arab Socialist Party.

Hussein was too poor in the 1950s to go to a university, so he gravitated to Baghdad. There he worked as a Baath enforcer — he and nine other youths were trained in assassination techniques.

The first turning point in Saddam's life came on a quiet morning in 1959, just after his 22nd birthday. He and two other Baath youths sprayed the limousine of Iraqi military strongman Abdel Karim Kasim with bullets. In the failed assassination attempt, Hussein was wounded and briefly captured. But he escaped. Rather than seek medical attention and risk recapture, he dug the bullet out with a pocket knife as he made his way more than 300 miles to Syria by donkey. His exploits were widely circulated, and he came to the attention of Egypt's president, Gamal Abdel Nasser, who invited the young revolutionary to Cairo to study law.

In 1963, Saddam returned to Baghdad after military officers loyal to the Baath Party, killed President Kasim and establish a Baathist military government. But Saddam's timing was poor — a counter-coup dethroned the Baath less than a year later. He tried to flee to Egypt, but was captured after a long, bloody shootout.

Now came the second turning point in his life: He convinced authorities that he was simply misguided. Rather than being executed, he was released, after a year in jail, as rehabilitated.

He returned to the Baath Party, whose political power was growing. He also married his cousin Sagda Talfah, a teacher, with whom he now has five children.

Around this time, he caught the eye of Ahmed Hassan al-Bakr, a powerful army general who became the new revolutionary president of Iraq following a bloodless coup in 1968. Hassan made Saddam, then 31, his secretary.

Hussein rose quickly in importance. Within four years, he was the clear No. 2 power within the Baath Party and the government.

Volunteers spread democracy

MOBILE, Ala. — It began with a chance meeting at a medical convention. Nurtured by love and incredible dedication, it now has turned this Gulf Coast city into the greatest single source of volunteer English teachers for the people of liberated Czechoslovakia. The tale I learned while covering the National Governors' Assn. convention here is an outstanding example of what Americans can do to assist the democratic revolution in Eastern Europe.

The story has an unlikely setting. I found Ann Gardner, the slim, soft-spoken president of Education for Democracy/U.S.A., Inc., in a cramped, two-room office, behind what was once the altar screen in the converted chapel of a former Catholic hospital, now part of the University of South Alabama medical school, where her husband, William, heads the pathology department.

In the mid-80s, Dr. Gardner met a young scientist from Bratislava, the capital of Slovakia, at a medical convention. In 1987, he arranged for Pavel Demes to work for a year at the Mobile medical center while living in the Gardners' home.

After Czechoslovakia's "velvet revolution" ousted the communists last autumn, Demes found himself a high official of Slovakia's Department of Education. In January of this year, he called the Gardners. Could they suggest any volunteers for a program that the expatriate Czechoslovak community in Toronto had launched to provide English teachers to a nation whose communist masters had discouraged study of our language for 40 years?

That was all the impetus Ann Gardner needed. She contacted the head of the Toronto program, invited him to Mobile and decided it was feasible to set up a parallel project here. Coverage in the local media produced calls from 90 people. The first two volunteers — a woman paralegal and a grandmother of Slovak ancestry — left for their assignments on March 1.

In the five months since, 158 more have followed and the pace is increasing steadily. As word spread, the two phone lines in the makeshift office have been overwhelmed, and calls come every night to the Gardner home. "People are determined to help," she said. "One night I heard my husband saying, 'Your son is in Spain and he got my wife's phone number and he wants to know if he can go straight to Czechoslovakia?' I began to feel as if my name were on bathroom walls. For a good time, call Ann Gardner."

The remarkable thing is that all this is being done with volunteered funds and energy. Each teacher pays his or her own travel expenses (at discounted rates, negotiated by a Mobile travel agency) and carries his own instructional materials. Volunteers receive housing (in dorms or private homes) and meals from their host institutions and $30 a month for incidentals. The Gardners have financed the overhead costs of the operation, and the offices in Prague, Bratislava and here are staffed entirely by volunteers.

Already Gardner has sent people from 33 states to join more than 40 Mobilians in Czechoslovak schools. Initially, Gardner accepted volunteers for as short as two months and required only that they be in good health and have a good command of English. Now the applications are so plentiful that she is setting a four-month minimum for service and giving priority to those with teaching experience, to university graduates and upperclassmen and to people with business or computer skills, which are greatly in demand. At least 160 will be in place for the fall semester.

The Mobile volunteers have ranged in age from 19 to 72 — among them three members of a Channel 10 television crew who did an early story on the project. They are assigned by Demes' agency in Bratislava and a parallel office in Prague; most are in universities. They teach about 20 hours a week, mainly imparting conversational English skills to those with at least a rudimentary ability to read the language. Tutoring arrangements are frequent; one volunteer is helping an architect who is also an influential member of parliament. Others spend their free time assisting younger students and fledgling local businesses.

Letters from the Mobilians speak of the "life-changing experience" the volunteer effort has been for them, of being "showered with flowers, cakes, cookies...invitations to dinner every night of the week."

The host institutions are equally enthusiastic, rating the teachers highly on dedication and effectiveness. Only four of the volunteers have left early or been called home without fulfilling their commitments, and many have extended their tours.

Gardner requests that volunteers or those interested in establishing similar programs write her at P.O. Box 40514, Mobile, Ala. 36640-0514, rather than phone.

The remarkable thing is that all this is being done with volunteered funds and energy.

British journalist's death not suicide

WASHINGTON — Last March, a British journalist was found hanged in his hotel room in the Chilean capital of Santiago. Initially, his death was labeled a suicide, but today there is talk in Santiago that Jonathan Moyle uncovered something so sensitive that someone killed him.

Latin America's biggest air show brought Moyle to Chile. He was the editor of the international specialty magazine "Defense Helicopter World," and an expert on helicopters. The Chilean Air Force hosted his visit.

Moyle's father, Anthony Moyle, told us that before Moyle left his home in London, he was anxious to investigate rumors in the helicopter industry that Cardoen Industries, a Chilean arms supplier, was building a fleet of advanced attack helicopters to sell to Iraq for $500 million. Carlos Cardoen is the biggest private arms maker in Latin America. His business is based in Santiago with explosives factories all over the world. Cardoen is indeed retrofitting an old Bell 208 helicopter (called a LongRanger) originally built in the United States. As we reported earlier, Cardoen is billing the redesigned LongRanger as a civilian helicopter. But we have obtained Cardoen documents that describe its capabilities as an attack helicopter.

Iraq is a regular customer for Cardoen. But Jorge Ochoa, vice president of Cardoen Industries, denied reports that Iraq has placed an order for 50 of the helicopters, and he said, "It's a civilian multipurpose helicopter that could possibly be adapted to other uses."

The Chilean press is full of speculation about Moyle's death, including the possibility that Iraqi agents murdered him rather than let him make an issue out of the helicopters and endanger their chances of buying them from Cardoen. If Iraqi agents killed Moyle, they didn't do Cardoen any favors. The last thing the company needed was a dead journalist to complicate the already controversial helicopter project, especially at a time when Cardoen is seeking certification for the helicopter from the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration. The United States has an arms embargo against Iraq.

Cardoen Industries appears to have been congenial with Moyle in Santiago. Ochoa told us that he never met Moyle, although Cardoen Industries had invited Moyle to a cocktail party. Ochoa said Moyle did not show up.

A week after Moyle's arrival in Santiago, a hotel maid found him dead in a closet — hanging by his shirt from a clothes rack with a pillow case over his head. There were tranquilizers found in his blood. He left no note.

With no sign of a struggle, British and Chilean authorities wrote Moyle off as a suicide. But his family and friends are not convinced. He was engaged to be married. He had been talking eagerly about getting a house. He was excited about his work.

"Suicide was not part of his character," said his father, who spoke to Moyle half an hour before his death. "He was an outgoing, gregarious chap, financially secure, held a job that was taking him places, and was due to go to La Paz to cover a Bolivian air force anti-drug expedition. He also talked about taking his future father-in-law flying. ... Moyle's father told our associate Melinda Maa that when the family started asking questions, they bumped up against a conspiracy of silence. The British Embassy in Santiago said the death was a police problem."

The last thing the company needed was a dead journalist.

Lake Mary cop suspended

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary City Manager John Litton said today police Lt. Thomas Taggart has been suspended with pay pending the outcome of an internal probe into a traffic accident Taggart was involved in while driving a police car while off duty.
Litton said he ordered the internal probe and asked that it be done by Seminole County sheriff's investigators. The results aren't in yet on the July 26, single-car accident near Deltona. Litton said he will review the case and will ultimately decide what if any discipline Taggart will receive, if he is found to have violated city policies.
The sheriff's probe is confidential until complete. The Florida Highway Patrol reported Taggart's engine stopped and when he applied the breaks on his car it skidded through an intersection and crossed State Road 415, to roll over on its left side. He was examined at a Sanford hospital. The accident occurred at 2 a.m.

Commission nixes car lot plans

LONGWOOD — The city commission decided Monday night that it would not set a precedent of allowing city code variance, denying the request from Classy Chances Rent-a-Car, 780 W. State Road 434, to move from its present site to 551 E. SR 434. The requested location was within 300 feet of residential property, and did not meet the two-acre minimum car lot size as stipulated in city codes.
Despite appeals from owner Edward J. Cohen that the move would allow for safer traffic flow to and from SR 434, the commission voted 4-0 against the variance.

Commission reduces fees

LONGWOOD — The city commission passed an ordinance Monday night to quicken city approval of proposed exterior renovations and new construction in the historic district.
The ordinance, which also clarifies terms of reconstruction, reduces the application fee from $75 to $10 for sites under 10,000 square feet, and $15 for larger sites.

City to collect impact fees

LONGWOOD — To help speed development, the city will now be collecting all county impact fees imposed on new builders, city commissioners decided Monday last night.
Through an interlocal agreement, the city will turn over to the county all funds collected each month, but will keep three percent of each fee as reimbursement for costs of collection.

Candidates file finance reports late

SANFORD — Seminole County commission candidates Robert "Bud" Feather and Larry Furlong filed their July campaign finance reports a day late this week, incurring $50 fines from the county elections office. It was the second late report in a row Feather has filed.
Feather, a Republican primary candidate for the District 4 seat, reported collecting $977 during the first 27 days of July, plus a $800 personal loan. He also received a $2,200 loan from T.D. Chanly. His contributions, which he limits to less than $100, include eight $99 contributions.
Furlong, a Democrat who will challenge either Feather or incumbent Sandra Glenn in November, reported receiving $790, including $400 in "magnetic specialty items" from himself, Furlong's business, Magnetcards, produces magnetic promotional items.

Florida man gives millions to school

United Press International

NEW BRUNSWICK — A Florida philanthropist who suffers from an uncommon hereditary disease of the nervous system has given the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey $3.5 million for research, the largest individual gift in the school's history.

William Dow Lovett's gift will also be used to endow a chair in neurology at Robert Wood Johnson Medical School in New Brunswick.

Dr. Roger C. Duvoisin, chairman of the Robert Wood Johnson neurology department, will become the William Dow Lovett professor of neurology and will head the research effort into olivopontocerebellar atrophy, or OPCA, a degenerative disease that causes symptoms similar to Parkinson's disease. Duvoisin plans to concentrate on finding the gene that causes OPCA.

"The major hope of finding a cause and cure lies in molecular genetics," Duvoisin said. "Genetics is going to revolutionize medicine in much the same way that discovering bacteria did 100 years ago."

Like Parkinson's disease,

OPCA usually first shows itself in the middle-aged and causes tremors and lack of coordination. But OPCA is one-tenth as common, affecting an estimated 50,000 people in the United States.

Lovett, a resident of Jacksonville, comes from a family that once owned the Winn-Dixie retail chain, Duvoisin said. As a victim of OPCA, he has a personal reason for funding research into it.

Duvoisin said the first step, finding a genetic marker for OPCA, is likely to take two to four years. He said the marker, a segment of DNA close to the affected gene, will be traced by studies of the families of OPCA patients.

While OPCA does not kill, the disease is progressive and can leave its victims unable to function physically, although mentally they remain sound. Some of the symptoms respond to drug treatment but most do not.

The research effort will also help in the study of similar diseases that cause "parkinsonism," tremors of the limbs, muscular stiffness and slowness of movement, Duvoisin said.

Iraq

er to total economic deprivation.

Bush is in a high-stakes showdown with the unpredictable Iraqi leader, who seems bent on being able to manipulate world energy prices from the oil-rich Persian Gulf.

There is already mounting concern that the crisis will significantly increase oil prices and shove the sluggish U.S. economy closer toward a recession.

Surveys show that U.S. gasoline prices have jumped by an average of more than 12 cents per gallon since Iraq seized Kuwait in a pre-dawn attack just one week ago.

Bush met with budget advisers late Wednesday to examine the situation after he urged U.S. oil companies not to gouge the public and after he urged citizens to conserve. "Americans everywhere must do their share," the president said.

In formally announcing the deployment of U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, Bush said, "A line has been drawn in the sand" to halt Iraqi aggression and to pressure Saddam to withdraw from conquered Kuwait.

"We want to put Saddam on notice" that he will face U.S. military might — as part of a multinational force — if he invades Saudi Arabia, Fitzwater said.

With several thousand American troops, scores of land- and sea-based warplanes and a formidable naval flotilla in place or en route, the president said the U.S. role in the Persian Gulf would be "wholly defensive."

"We're not in a war," he said. "We have sent forces to defend Saudi Arabia."

Fitzwater said, "The United States is giving Saddam time to reconsider and retreat."

Saddam seemed to be standing firm, though.

On Wednesday, he announced the annexation of oil-rich Kuwait.

At about the same time, diplomatic sources reported that 120 Iraqi officers who had expressed opposition to the invasion of Kuwait had been executed shortly before the Aug. 2 pre-dawn assault.

Although Bush administration officials refuse to disclose how many American troops were being sent to Saudi Arabia, this may become the biggest U.S. military operation since the Vietnam War.

Defense officials who asked not to be identified said about 2,300 paratroopers from Fort Bragg, N.C., and 48 F-15 jet fighters from Langley, Va., were in the first wave of the "ongoing" U.S. operation.

A total of about 34 U.S. warships, including the aircraft carrier USS Independence, were in the region. The Independence was stationed in the northern Arabian Sea, at the mouth of the Persian Gulf.

"It obviously is a major commitment of U.S. forces," said Defense Secretary Dick Cheney. "We don't know how long it will last. We don't know when it will end. We don't know exactly how events will unfold."

A CBS-New York Times poll showed that by a better than two-to-one ratio, 61 percent to 28 percent, Americans approved Bush's decision to send in troops.

Congress praised Bush for cracking down on Iraq, but some Democrats said he was too lenient with U.S. oil companies. And Senate Republican leader Robert Dole warned of a windfall profits tax unless gas prices come down.

Bush said he was cautiously optimistic about Iraqi reports of possible freedom soon for 36 Americans still being held at a Baghdad hotel. "I want to see them out of there," he said. "But what he (Saddam) does, that's a big unpredictable."

The president said he did not want to "heighten tensions," and made no mention of U.S. efforts to free the Americans. But he said, "I consider the protection of American life fundamental to my job."

In a development late Wednesday, a State Department official said one of the Americans, Penelope Nabolov, 10, of Albany, Calif., was released to the custody of U.S. Embassy officials, who were allowed to visit with the others.

The president appeared somewhat weary at a White House news conference Wednesday, but he also sounded resolute.

"My military objective is to see Saudi Arabia defended," Bush said. "Our overall objective is to see Saddam Hussein get out and go back and have the right regime of Kuwait back in place."

Fitzwater said, "I think the president feels confident that he has done the right thing for the right reason. He has his forces in place. He feels very good about it."

Gas Prices

knowing how long the high prices would continue.

Rose Eapinosa, a secretary, said she expects prices will go even higher. "It'll get worse," she said, "if the oil companies don't stop price gouging." She said she had heard Governor Martinez is going to investigate the pricing but added, "I'll just wait and see on that."

Rick Holloway said, "It's unfair to society. The oil businesses are just taking advantage of people by selling at inflated prices."

Diane Oatman, community relations coordinator at South Seminole Community Hospital in Longwood said, "It's just a ripoff, a way to raise the price." She added, "As soon as the problems overseas were reported, the prices went up immediately as if we believed that gasoline comes to us directly from Kuwait."

Lee A. Wheeler, owner of AA Bail Bonds, Sanford, said, "I think there's a little price gouging going on. We have a three month's supply backed up and I think the oil companies are just counting on Iraq being shut down."

Vivian Buck, at Buck's Catering Service, Sanford, said, "It's ridiculous. They're raising prices on gas that we still have stockpiled. Why don't they wait until the wholesalers get their overseas price increases before they raise our prices?"

Salesman Jerry Scherr, who works for Seminoe Office Products in Longwood, said, "I don't think anybody likes the way the prices are going up. I think it's a phony increase."

Linda Tucker, a Sanford city employee, said, "I think it's terrible. They are charging these high prices for the same gas that was in their storage tanks a week ago. It really strikes me as being wrong."

Sanford dentist C.R. Edwards Jr., said, "I'm not real happy with it. They're raising prices before the gas becomes scarce. I think that's a pretty lame excuse."

Tim Donahoe, manager of the Sanford Flower Shop, expressed concern about the prices going up. "They might stay that way for quite awhile," he said. "It's happened before when the oil companies in the U.S. kept prices higher for much longer than was necessary," Donahoe said if the cost of gasoline stays up for too many months, there may have to be an increase in delivery charges to compensate for the added cost.

Michele Ranall, commuter assistance coordinator with Tri County Transit, said, "I went to fill up my tank yesterday and would have paid $1.29 a gallon. It hurt. So I filled it up with low grade regular at $1.09, now my car's engine isn't running as smoothly. I hope the prices don't go up too much higher." In her position with Tri County Transit, Ranall deals with the ride share program and she reported phone calls from commuters needing information about car pools and van pools have increased noticeably since the prices started climbing.

1-4—State Road 46 interchange. Sanford city commissioners approved Seminole Mall in April after annexing the 214-acre site, but progress has been stalled by mail road problems and a state challenge over the need for affordable housing for mall store employees.

Although Seminole Mall developers Melvin Simon and Associates have a 90-day head start on their Heathrow neighbor, a Simon spokesman said that's no guarantee in mind of itself that Seminole Mall will be built.

"It's not 'first come, first serve,'" said Mike Murphy, Simon spokesman. "It's 'whoever gets the anchors, gets the mall.'"

Anchors, large department stores, will determine which mall will be built, Murphy said. He said store officials will review each project and decide which suits their market needs.

Heathrow Town Center officials could not be reached.

Greg Golgowski, projects review director for the planning council, said both mall proposals were reviewed separately and as though the other mall will never be built.

"We're pretty sure only one mall will be built," Golgowski said.

Regional planners recommended Seminole County not permit the Heathrow Town Center to be completed until several roads are widened to handle the estimated 48,000 cars that will travel to mall each day. Among the recommendations was that Rinehart Road be widened from two lanes to four between Lake Mary Boulevard and State Road 46.

Lake Mary commissioners appealed the Seminole Mall proposal on the condition Rinehart Road was not recommended for widening between Lake Mary Boulevard and County Road 46-A.

Regional planners also recommended the Heathrow mall not be completed until Lake Mary Boulevard is widened to four lanes to U.S. Highway 17-92 from Country Club Road. The county doesn't plan to begin that project for another four years.

health care," said Sattler. "By pointing out where states are doing better or worse than other states, we can be helpful in helping states to take

Sattler said the overall ranking "is not as important as how you rank on factors that you can control."

Troops confront Mohawks

By LAURIE WATSON
United Press International

OTTAWA — Canada's armed forces will intervene in the mounting land dispute between Quebec police and Mohawk Indians, but will stop short of a confrontation that would risk lives. Prime Minister Brian Mulroney announced.

"The troops" would be going in there with a view to stabilizing the situation and ensuring a peaceful resolution of the matter," Mulroney said Wednesday.

Mulroney said Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa requested the national troops to replace the provincial police force stationed near the Kanata Indian Reserve outside Montreal.

He said the military would respond "in such a manner as to avoid confrontation. The first priority will be to not let human life be put in danger."

The exact role of the military, however, was not immediately clear.

Also, Mulroney announced the appointment of Quebec Chief Justice Alan Gold to negotiate with the Mohawks. Gold has agreed to identify all parties with a valid interest in the land dispute and to clarify any conditions that need to be satisfied before negotiations can begin.

In Quebec City, Bourassa said he already has met with the chief of the armed forces and it would take "a number of hours" to prepare troops.

Bourassa said the first priority of his government was "to ensure the role of the army is a peaceful one." He refused to elaborate.

Mulroney said he was confident negotiations would succeed and that barricades established by the Mohawks would soon be removed.

"You can have it one of two ways," Mulroney said. "You can negotiate a solution to this, or you can have a non-negotiated solution. We are seeking to avoid the latter."

National Defence officials were not immediately available for comment. Nearly a third of the residents of Oka fled their besieged community, fearing such a military assault.

The evacuation, and Mulroney's statement, his first since the stalemate began a month ago, follows the expiration of a Quebec government deadline aimed at forcing the Mohawks to resume negotiations and resolve the dispute over a golf course expansion near the Kanata Indian Reserve.

The L'Annapolis expansion would intrude on their ancestral land.

IRAQ: 'A waiting game'

Bush bashes 'Baghdad Butcher,' wins support

By LEON DANIEL
UPI Chief Correspondent

WASHINGTON — President Bush wisely won multinational support before committing America's blood and treasure to a massive military mission to reverse the success of Iraqi aggression.

Iraq, after all, is no Panama. And Saddam Hussein is no Manuel Noriega.

In confronting the "Butcher of Baghdad" on Arab turf, Bush knew he risked full-scale war in which there could be no cheap victory.

The cost in American casualties of protecting Saudi Arabia from Iraqi troops could be enormous. So could expelling the Iraqi invasion force from Kuwait, if it comes to that.

But Bush's strategy so far has won widespread support at home and abroad.

A global embargo quarterbacked by the president — backed up by the threat of a naval blockade — has virtually halted Iraqi oil exports.

Saudi Arabia, in a significant policy turnabout, permitted U.S. forces into the kingdom to defend it.

Risking the wrath of Iraq and possibly other fellow-Arab nations, the Saudis also agreed to increase oil production to make up for supplies lost because of the embargo.

Those actions by Saudi Arabia amounted to an admission that its interests lie with the West and signaled realignment in the Arab world.

Fearful of Iraqi aggression, the Arab nations on the Persian Gulf are looking to the United States for protection.

As for Bush, once branded a wimp by his political foes, he is talking tough and brandishing a big stick at Saddam, the Baghdad bully widely feared as the world's most dangerous man.

In deploying U.S. forces in an action aimed at securing the unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait, Bush acknowledged "the stakes are high."

Commentary

It is the most dangerous time in his presidency.

For his part, Saddam again rebuffed escalating international economic and military pressure to remove his invasion force from Kuwait.

Baghdad continued to appeal with decidedly limited success for support of Saddam as the leader of the Arab world.

The rape of Kuwait exposed the self-styled "Sword of the Arabs" as a megalomaniacal despot driven by greed and a lust for power.

This is the ingrate who ordered the brutal invasion of the tiny, oil-rich neighboring nation that helped bankroll Iraq's war with Iran.

Saddam, with a million troops under arms, is the mass murderer who employed nerve gas on his own people, killing several hundred Kurdish tribesmen. In recent days, he has been compared to Adolf Hitler.

Some intelligence experts believe Iraq could acquire nuclear capability in as few as two years.

So, declaring that Iraqi aggressors threatened Saudi Arabia, Bush responded militarily.

American and world interests also are at stake because the kingdom sits atop the world's largest oil reserves, which Saddam covets.

Clearly, the time had come for the United States to confront Iraq with military force. That is why Bush drew a line in the sand and dared Saddam to cross it.

U.S. motives: oil, money and lives

By JIM ANDERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush, looking and sounding as if he had spent some sleepless nights over his decision to send troops to Saudi Arabia, explained to White House reporters Wednesday his reasons for sending U.S. military forces to the Middle East.

The strategic decision, as he described it, grew from these considerations:

- Protecting an ally, Saudi Arabia, which also happens to be sitting on top of reserves of 255 billion barrels of oil.
- Deterring a Middle East megalomaniac, Saddam Hussein, who has shown himself to be deceitful and obsessed with placing himself atop the fragmented Arab world, and who has the well-equipped, large army to do it.
- Preserving U.S. credibility by standing up to an aggressor.

Linked to these were some other unstated reasons that Bush did not mention, but which were just as compelling.

Analysis

One obvious consequence of a world oil shortage would be brutal price increases, with some industry analysts think could reach $35 barrel, compared to the present $27.

That kind of price increase and fuel shortage — as President Carter found out in 1978 — creates the basis for an economist's and politician's worst nightmare, a double whammy of inflation and unemployment, adding up to a recession.

If the effect in the United States would be unfortunate, the impact would be disastrous in the Third World.

As the Council on Hemispheric Affairs, a left-leaning Washington "think tank," said in a recent analysis:

"What could be a recession in the United States and the other industrialized nations would reflect itself in Latin America as a full-scale depression, which would threaten not only to undo the positive accomplishments of a wide array of past international debt relief measures, but dash any hopes of positive results from President Bush's recently announced 'Enterprise for the Americas' initiative."

What happens in Latin America would be duplicated around the world, including eastern Europe, with unforeseeable political effects but which might bring an avalanche of political changes, reversing the trend toward democratic reforms.

The Middle East has been in a state of low-level tension, punctuated by brutal but generally contained skirmishes and wars, for the past 10 years.

The prospect of a triumphant, strengthened Iraqi government directing its aggression toward Israel gives rise to the ultimate nightmare: a war fought between two Third World powers, possibly with chemical weapons, as Saddam Hussein has threatened, and conceivably with nuclear weapons.

Ex-U.S. military officer describes Saudi capital

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A retired U.S. military officer working closely with the Saudi government in Riyadh said it was "business as usual" Thursday in the capital city despite the massing of Iraqi troops on the Saudi border, and Americans there were relieved U.S. forces had intervened.

"A few people were concerned at the time of the Kuwait invasion that if (Iraqi President Saddam) Hussein had pushed on, he would have had the element of surprise and initiative," the American said in a telephone interview with United Press International. "But now he has given the whole world time to respond."

"Things are completely stable here," said the American, speaking on the condition of anonymity. "There is no cause for concern. It's basically business as usual here."

"The only thing that concerns me is the fact that he has chemical weapons, and he has the means to deliver these," said the retired officer. "To the extent that he could scatter a few chemical weapons around, he could on a very temporary basis cause problems."

"I think militarily, he has very few military options left," said the retired officer. "I think he would be a complete fool to push it at this time. If he even sneezes, he's going to bring down the wrath of the entire world."

Regarding President Bush's efforts to marshal military assistance for Saudi Arabia from other nations including Arab states, the American said, "I don't see any evidence of this."

"It's a very sensitive issue in the Arab world about Arabs fighting Arabs. All of the support is going to be very low-key. I don't think you will see any manpower."

IRAQ: 'A waiting game'

Powell calling Iraq chemicals a real threat

By ELIOT BRENNER
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Gen. Colin Powell said reports Iraq has distributed chemical weapons to its forces are "ambiguous" but the threat is being taken seriously and U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia are prepared for gas attacks.

Analysts said Wednesday Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein, who has used chemical weapons on Iran as well as upon his own people, may think twice about using them against Saudi Arabia or U.S. forces because of the massive retaliation that it could provoke.

Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, would not say if the U.S. air, sea and land forces going to the region are equipped to retaliate with chemical weapons to an Iraqi attack.

Published reports Wednesday

said Iraqi military forces appeared to have been loading gas weapons on aircraft.

"The Iraqi armed forces do have chemical weapons, artillery delivered as well as other means (missiles and bombs)," Powell told reporters at the Pentagon. "It's a threat we're concerned with."

U.S. troops land in Saudi Arabia

By United Press International

Egypt pleaded with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to attend an emergency Arab summit Thursday called in the hope of defusing upheaval in the region that erupted with Iraq's seizure of Kuwait and has drawn in thousands of U.S. forces to defend oil-rich Saudi Arabia. The first wave of U.S. and British forces landed Wednesday in Saudi Arabia to defend against a possible attack by Iraq, and Baghdad announced the annexation of Kuwait, which it invaded Aug. 2 with little resistance.

WASHINGTON — Vowing that "America will stand by her friends," President Bush announced an unprecedented buildup of U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia to deter aggression by Iraq and pressure its withdrawal from Kuwait. In what may prove to be a risky escalation of tensions, Bush said U.S. troops, combat aircraft and warships will remain committed to Saudi Arabia as long and at whatever cost required to see Iraq end its occupation of Kuwait.

WASHINGTON — Iraq released a 10-year-old girl who was among 39 Americans being held against their will in Baghdad, but there was no word on whether the others would be allowed to leave, the State Department said. A State Department official said that Penelope Nabokov, of Albany, Calif., was released Wednesday to the custody of U.S. Embassy officials, who planned to "expedite" her return to the United States. The remaining Americans remained confined to a Baghdad hotel, permitted to use the swimming pool, but prevented by armed guards from leaving, U.S. officials said.

LONDON — British naval and air forces will join the multinational effort confronting Iraq, Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said. He said the government will contribute to the collective defense of Saudi Arabia and other threatened states and in support of the United Nations embargo.

TOKYO — Tokyo's blue-chip stock indicator tumbled to its lowest close in more than nine months Thursday as investors grew increasingly concerned about the tense situation in the Middle East. The key Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which rebounded 858.07 yen Wednesday, tumbled 893.41 yen, or 3.1 percent, to close at 27,815.73 yen.

WASHINGTON — Congress applauded President Bush for being tough on Iraq, but some Democrats said he was too lenient with U.S. oil companies and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole warned of a windfall profits tax unless gas prices come down.

Crude oil prices tumbled nearly $4 a barrel on world markets after reports that Saudi Arabia would pump an extra 2 million barrels a day to help make up for oil output lost in the embargo of Iraq and Kuwait.

WASHINGTON — President Bush, responding to public outrage over soaring gasoline prices, urged oil companies to "show restraint" and not exploit uncertainties over Mideast oil supplies by profiteering at the pump. At the same time, Bush called for greater conservation efforts on the part of American consumers.

Chronology

Middle East: A chronology of conflict

United Press International

The following is a chronology of recent conflicts in the Middle East:

1948: The United Nations voted to partition Palestine to create a Jewish homeland and Israel became an independent nation.

1956: Israel invaded Egypt after President Gamel Nasser closed the Suez Canal to Israeli ships.

1967: Egypt closed the Gulf of Aqaba to Israeli ships, sparking the Six-day War that pitted Israel against a united Egypt, Jordan and Syria.

1970: Jordanian troops defeated Palestinian guerrillas in the short Black September civil war.

1973: The Yom Kippur War began on that Jewish holy day Oct. 6.

1975: Civil war broke out in Lebanon between Christian Phalangists and leftist Moslems.

1978: Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt signed the Camp David peace accord.

1979: Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi was overthrown in Iran and replaced by the Islamic fundamentalist Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

1980: Iraq invaded Iran after months of border clashes, starting a deadly war that raged off and on for eight years and killed hundreds of thousands on both sides.

1981: Sadat was assassinated Oct. 6. On Dec. 14, Israel annexed Syria's Golan Heights.

1982: Israel invaded Lebanon and occupied Beirut, forcing out the P.L.O.

1983: Terrorists blew up the U.S. Marine barracks in Beirut, killing 241 Americans in a protest against U.S. presence in Lebanon. The United States withdrew its peace-keeping forces from the country the following year.

1985: Jordan and the P.L.O. announced a Middle East peace plan that called for the return of occupied Arab land in exchange for Arab recognition of Israel, but Israel rejected the offer and refused to negotiate.

The year was unmatched in terrorism in the Middle East, including the seizure of the luxury liner Achille Lauro in the Mediterranean, five hijackings, car bombs, kidnappings and air strikes between Lebanon and Israel.

1986: The United States staged an air attack on Libya in retaliation for alleged terrorist acts, bombing leader Moammar Gadhafi's headquarters in Tripoli.

1988: Iraq and Iran agreed to an uneasy cease-fire negotiated by the United Nations, ending the eight-year Persian Gulf War.

1990: Iraq invaded the tiny oil-rich emirate of Kuwait in a dispute over oil production quotas and borders. The United States led the world in an economic boycott of Iraq and sent troops to Saudi Arabia to guard against an invasion of the kingdom.

PREP FOOTBALL

Physicals, meetings scheduled

With the start of the high school football season nine days away (first authorized day for practice is Aug. 15), local schools have scheduled times for prospective players to get their mandatory physicals.

No athlete may participate in high school athletics without first having a physical.

Seminole: Coach Emory Blake said that free physicals will be available for all prospective football players at 6 p.m. next Tuesday, Aug. 14, in the school training room. A parents' meeting is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 1.

Lake Mary: Coach Doug Peters announced that physicals for all fall athletes will be available next Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 13 and 14, between 6 and 8 p.m. at the school's training room. There will be a $5 fee. The parents' meeting has tentatively been set for Aug. 24.

Lyman: According to Coach Bill Scott, physicals will be given on Wednesday, Aug. 15, between 4 and 6 p.m. at the school. The physicals, which will cost $5, are available to all prospective fall athletes.

Lake Brantley: Coach Fred Almon said that physicals for junior varsity football players will be given on Monday, Aug. 13, at 4 p.m. Varsity players will get their physicals on Tuesday, Aug. 14, starting at 4 p.m.

SOFTBALL

Fall leagues forming

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department is looking for men's softball teams to compete in the Fall Leagues starting the week of Sept. 10.

An organizational meeting will be held on Aug. 28 at 7 p.m. at the Downtown Youth Center, located on the first floor of Sanford City Hall.

The cost for the league will be $240 per team (non-city residents will have to pay the $10 fee before playing).

Games will be played at Pinehurst and Chase Parks. The deadline for entry is Aug. 31 for returning teams and Sept. 7 for new teams.

Returning teams that wish to play in Sanford but do not meet the Aug. 31 deadline will be considered a new team.

The Recreation Department currently runs four leagues, but no league will start if it does not have six entries.

For more information, contact Rocky Ellingsworth, Recreation Supervisor, at 330-5897 during normal working hours.

Women's teams being sought

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department is currently looking for teams to play in its Fall Tuesday Night Women's Softball League, scheduled to begin play on Sept. 25.

An organizational meeting has been scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on Sept. 11 in the Youth Center on the first floor of Sanford City Hall.

The team registration fee is $240. The entry deadline for returning teams is Sept. 15 and Sept. 18 for new teams. Returning teams not meeting the Sept. 15 deadline will be considered a new team with no priority and with entry on a first-come basis.

For more information, contact Jim Adams of the Sanford Recreation Department at 330-5897 during the day.

YOUTH BASEBALL

Fall baseball class offered

SANFORD — Wea Rinker's Florida Baseball Schools will offer a Fall Baseball Class beginning Saturday, September 15 at Sanford Memorial Stadium and running for the next 10 Saturday's.

Cost of the class will be $150 and registration is limited.

The class will start at 9 a.m. each Saturday and will last from 3-4 hours. Each session will include classroom and field practice on all fundamentals of baseball.

The class will also include some participation in the 20-game Zinn Beck Fall League against high school and college competition.

For more information or to register call Florida Baseball Schools at 323-1046.

Richie DiTore continued his excellent pitching as he scattered five hits to help lead the Oviedo All-Stars to a 5-2 victory over Jeffersonton, Ky. in opening round action of the Junior Little League Southern Regional Tournament at the Dr. Phillips/Windermere L.L. Complex in Orlando.

DiTore, Moss pace Oviedo All-Stars win

By DEAN SMITH
Herald sports writer

ORLANDO — Coach Rich DiTore of the Oviedo Junior Little League All-Stars has said time and again that on any given night any one of his players had the potential to be his team's best player. Add Phillip Moss' name to that list after his performance Wednesday evening.

In Oviedo's opening game in the Southern Regional Tournament at the Dr. Phillips/Windermere Little League Complex, the diminutive left fielder got his team's first hit to set up the first run, scored the second run, drove in another run with a sacrifice fly and made a beautiful running catch of a potential double to help his team to a 5-2 victory over Jeffersonton, Ky.

"He surprises a lot of people," said DiTore of Moss. "He's a little guy and presents that small strike zone. A lot of people laugh when they see him come up, but we get the last laugh because he's always on base. His on base percentage in All-Stars is over .800."

"We have him in there basically for his defense," added DiTore. "He doesn't have the great wheels, but he gets a good jump on the ball and has a great sense for where the ball is going to be hit."

Moss was not the only star in this game by a long shot. DiTore's son, Richie, pitched another beautiful game, scattering five hits while striking out six and walking only five. Also having a big game was Brian McMahon who was on base three times and had an outstanding game at shortstop.

The win was Oviedo's 13th in 14 starts and puts them into a winners bracket game with the McAllister Park All-Stars from San Antonio, Texas. Byron Coffe is DiTore's choice as the starting pitcher for today's 5 p.m. contest.

Because of Tuesday's rain, the game will have to turn right around and play Jeffersonton at 7:30 p.m. The Kentuckians rebounded from its loss to Oviedo to defeat Dumfries, Va. 7-3 Wednesday night to eliminate the team from Virginia.

The big difference in the game was in the error department where Jeffersonton committed five miscues to Oviedo's zero. The five errors led to four unearned runs for the Oviedo team.

"Defense is the big key on this level," said DiTore. "If you keep the ball in order and make the plays you've got a good chance to be successful."

Oviedo finally got to Kentucky's Todd Oberhausen in the third inning after the left-hander had kept the Oviedo squad off balance with a

Killer Bees, Crazy Wings pull upsets at Chase

From staff reports

SANFORD — The Killer Bees continued their climb toward the top of the standings and Crazy Wings knocked off the other co-leader in Sanford Recreation Department Wednesday Night "D" Slowpitch Softball action at Chase Park.

Crazy Wings stopped RMC 5-4, Harcar Aluminum Products came back to beat Waddles B/W Market 6-5 and the Killer Bees handled the Sanford Police Benevolent Association 10-5.

With two weeks left in the regular season Crazy Wings, SPBA and RMC are all tied for the top spot at 6-2, followed by the Killer Bees (4-4), Harcar (2-6) and Waddles (0-8).

Next week the Killer Bees play Harcar at 6:30 p.m., RMC faces Waddles at 7:30 p.m. and Crazy Wings and SPBA square off at 8:30 p.m.

Crazy Wings scored three runs in the bottom of the second inning to go up 3-0 but RMC countered with one run in the third, two runs in the fourth and a run in the sixth inning to take a 5-4 lead.

Crazy Wings scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to claim the victory. Greg Hensley and Jerry Herman singled, but Hensley was retired at third base on Dwayne Smith's grounder. Jim Smith followed with a single to score Herman with the tying run before Mark Sneider's fly ball was dropped for an error which allowed Dwayne Smith to score the game winner.

Providing the offense for Crazy Wings were Jim Smith (two singles, run scored), Russell Holloman (double, run scored), Herman and Mic West (one single and one run scored each), Hensley, Sneider, Greg Appel, Eric Etcher and Scott Kern (one single each) and Dwayne Smith (run scored).

Pacing the RMC attack were Rich Covell (triple, single, run scored), James Ledford (triple, single), Dan Gill (double, single, run scored), Mike Damico (two singles), David Sauls and Danny Gracey (one single and one run scored each) and Tom Tews, Brian Burgess, Danny Casey and Randy Covell (one single each).

The game between Waddles and Harcar was just like the opener with Waddles taking an early lead only to have Harcar come fighting back.

Waddles scored three runs in the third inning and one run in each of the fourth and fifth innings to take a 5-0 lead.

Harcar finally put a pair of runs on the board in the sixth, then won the game with a four-run rally in the bottom of the seventh inning.

With one out, Allen DeHaal, Dave Foy, Leonard Burley and Denzel Burke hit consecutive singles to score two runs. Brian Burke then followed with a triple to score Burley with tying run and Denzel Burke with the game winning run.

Doing the damage for Harcar were Brian Burke

Spencer Baggett of Hall's Stucco slides safely into third base ahead of the tag of HD Realty's Mark Volchko in softball action at Pinehurst Park Wednesday night.

Baggett had three hits and scored three runs as Hall's Stucco stopped HD Realty 10-2 to win its first game of the season.

Wildcats whitewash Buschwackers

From staff reports

SANFORD — K. Brown ripped a pair of home runs and to a 21-hit attack as the Wildcats whitewashed the Buschwackers 17-0 and took a full three-game lead in the Sanford Recreation Department Wednesday Night "C" Slowpitch Softball League at Pinehurst Park.

In the other game, Hall's Stucco won its first game of the season with a 10-2 shellacking of HD Realty.

With three weeks left in the season the Wildcats are 6-0 followed by the Buschwackers (3-3), HD Realty (2-4) and Hall's Stucco (1-5).

Next week Hall's Stucco plays the Buschwackers at 6:30 p.m. and the Wildcats face HD Realty at 7:30 p.m. The Wildcats got off to a slow start scoring single runs in the first two innings to take a 2-0 lead. But in the third inning the Wildcats sent 16 men to the plate and collected 12-hits and two walks en rout to a 12-run inning.

Three more runs in the fourth inning caused the game to be called by the mercy rule.

Contributing to the 21-hit onslaught were K. Welch (double, two singles, two runs scored), Mike McArdle and Tom Gibbons (three singles and two runs scored each), Brown (two home runs, three runs scored) and T. Voeks (triple, double, run scored).

Baseball World wins pool

From staff reports

DES MOINES, Iowa — On to the championships.

The Baseball World All-Stars won both of its games Wednesday to finish undefeated in pool play and advanced along with eight other teams to the championship round of the 1990 Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) 12-and-Under National World Series at Des Moines.

Baseball World (representing Baseball World of Matland) defeated the Wisconsin Pirates 7-4 and the Minnesota All-Stars (from Bloomington) 7-0 to finish pool play 4-0.

But there is no rest for the weary as Baseball World will play another doubleheader today. At 2 p.m. the team will take on Arkansas with coach Tom Emanaki expected to call on Bradley Ramirez to pitch. The team will then play at 6 p.m. whether they win or lose. A pair of wins today would put the team into the winners bracket finals Friday.

 variety of off-speed pitches to retire the first six batters he had faced.
 McMahon led off for Oviedo and hit a roller that the Kentucky second baseman bobbled for an error. Mike Bergman laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt to move McMahon to second and Moss singled to left to advance McMahon to third. Brian King ripped a single to left-center field to score McMahon with the first run of the game.
 Mike Duncan then launched a long fly to center that glanced off the center fielder's glove for a hit at the fence loading the bases. Mark Metcalfe followed with another long fly that the center fielder hauled in against the fence and Moss tagged and scored the second run for Oviedo. Kentucky avoided further damage when Shawn Oakins threw out King at the plate to end the inning after DiTore had singled to right.
 "Our timing was a little off,"

DiTore scored his teams final run in the fifth when he singled, stole second and scored all the way from second when Fore's grounder to short was thrown away at first base.
 Kentucky's final run scored in the sixth inning when Oakins doubled and scored on Schaffer's single.
 McMahon and DiTore had two hits each to pace the Oviedo attack while King, Duncan, Church and Moss had one hit each.

 Also in the championship round are West Des Moines, Norman (Ok.) Giants and the Oklahoma Vipers. The other three teams were to be determined in games played later Wednesday night.
 In the game with Waconsin, Ramirez and Jason Gronert combined on a six-hitter for Baseball World. Ramirez (from Union Park Little League) had a shutout going into the bottom of the third but tired and gave up four runs (three on a home run) before Gronert came in to put out the fire. Gronert (Altamonte Springs) struck out six over the final 3 and 1/3 innings to preserve the victory.

 Providing the offense for Baseball World were Peter Gill (Goldenrod) who was 3 for 4 with a double. Ramirez, 2 for 4, Nick Thomas (Goldenrod) 1 for 2, Gronert, 1 for 3, Danny Bogeja (Altamonte Springs), 1 for 4 and Dwayne Sanford (Goldenrod) and Kevin Naas (Altamonte Springs), one run scored each.
 Bogeja improved his personal record in the tournament to 2-0 when he tossed a three-hitter in the victory over Minnesota. He struck out eight and did not walk a batter until the sixth inning.

 Ricky Engleberg (Altamonte Springs) broke out of a slump with a two-run double in the big five run second for Baseball World. Also contributing were Matt Huston (Goldenrod), 2 for 3 with a double, Sanford, 1 for 2 and Bogeja and Gronert, both 1 for 3.
 One of the most exciting moments in the game came when 10-year-old Naas, who normally is taken out when he bats, ripped a shot to the fence in right just missing a home run.

 The final game of the night saw the Killer Bees score a run in the top of the first inning, but SPBA countered with five runs in the bottom of the first inning.
 The Killer Bees fought back with three runs in the third inning and two runs in the fourth inning to take a 6-5 advantage, then wrapped up the victory by adding four insurance runs in the sixth inning.
 Contributing to the 18-hit Killer Bees attack were Neal Miller (double, two singles, two runs scored), Scot Williams (double, single), Paul Pratt and Ric Holt (two singles and two runs scored each), Tim Wilks (two singles), Dave Andrews (triple, two runs scored), Frank Turner and Frank Van Pelt (one single and one run scored each) and Sonny Eubanks and Mike Abels (one single each).

 Leading the SPBA attack were Bob Fisher (double, single, run scored), David DeRouso (two singles, run scored), Kevin Reyer (home run, run scored), Aaron Jones (triple, run scored), Matt Stewart (triple), Art Barnes (single) and Mitch Tindel (run scored).

Talk to the world

Members of the Lake Monroe Amateur Radio Society gathered recently on the sports field at Lyman High School in Longwood in an attempt to contact as many of the 400,000 radio frequencies in the U.S. as possible. The group used no commercial power, only generators and batteries. The event was part of a national contest among amateur radio clubs to determine which group could log the most contacts. The Lake Monroe society provides communications for large area events, such as the Senior Olympics, held yearly in Sanford.

Keeping secret perpetuates abuse

DEAR ABBY: "Bitter Memories" felt that her deceased grandfather didn't deserve to be well thought of after having sexually molested her repeatedly as a small child. You counseled that no good purpose would be served in telling her mother what her deceased grandfather (her mother's father) had done.

That advice will certainly protect her mother, but it will devastate "Bitter Memories." You've convinced her that her emotional needs must take a backseat to her mother's comfort — her feelings simply don't count. Her grandfather taught her the same thing by denying her the right to privacy of her body.

"Bitter Memories" will have no trouble finding a husband who agrees that her function in life is to be used and abused. And that's the message they will probably pass on to their children.

Abby, our society can't afford to continue to protect the tender sensibilities of family members at the expense of abused children who become mixed-up adults. Such secrecy simply protects abusers from discovery. The fact that an abuser was abused as a child might explain the behavior, but it does not excuse abusive behavior.

ADVICE

It's always hard for families to deal with conflicting loyalties, but incest survivors of any age desperately need validation from their families.

As you advised, "Bitter Memories" needs professional counseling to prepare her for the hostility and rejection she will face from most of her family.

I'd like to tell "Bitter Memories": "You didn't deserve to be sexually abused, and it certainly wasn't your fault that you were. It was the ultimate betrayal, and you have every right to be angry. And should others try to blame you for their discomfort when you tell them what happened, recognize that such illogical responses came from their pain. It's sad, but it's not your responsibility to protect the world, or your family, from unpleasant truths.

"You will find people who will wholeheartedly support you. Sorting it all out is not a do-it-yourself project. Get help, and learn how to deal with the consequences of your abuse now. It's never too late."

BEEN THERE IN THE '30s.

DEAR BEEN THERE: Thank you for an enlightening response that came out of your own painful experience. It was far better than mine.

DEAR ABBY: Last week at a fast-food restaurant, I was seated near a plump woman who had ordered a regular (not diet) cola. After the woman left, the young girl who had served her pledged as she told another server that she had given the woman a diet cola, "because she was too fat and would never know the difference, anyway." I told the young girl that I thought her action was reprehensible, and why.

Since then, I have worried that substitutions may occur frequently. Abby, people need to know that some people have a metabolic abnormality called phenylketonuria (PKU), which makes it dangerous for them to consume aspartame, the artificial sweetener found in many diet drinks. Some people (and I am one of them) develop severe headaches after drinking diet drinks for this reason. Please tell your readers who are food servers never to make substitutions without first checking with the customer.

DELAWARE READER

DEAR READER: Thanks for the enlightening tip. I'm sure that many servers underestimate the importance of making no substitutions without notifying the customer. Should an unsuspecting diner have a seriously bad reaction to an unannounced substitution, the restaurant owner could find him/herself facing a costly lawsuit.

DEAR ABBY: What advice can you give us to stop a motor-mouth? This lady never stops talking. She takes over the conversation, and nobody else can get a word in edgewise. When she meets someone new at a party, she will never once ask them a question about their family, job, children, etc.

She talks non-stop about herself, her family, her extended family and her travels. She is well-traveled, intelligent and articulate, and could be delightful company, but she turns everyone off by her intractability.

Please rush some advice in your column, as some of us see this woman often and need help.

OKLAHOMA ABBY FAN

DEAR FAN: You have just done this woman an enormous favor: Someone is sure to clip this and send it to her.

Enter our writing contest

The Sanford Herald is searching for two Seminole County high school students who are prospective journalists.

Write us a letter about a person in Seminole County whom you would like to interview. The person need not be famous. He or she could be an unsung hero who volunteers time to those less fortunate. You may choose to interview a politician, community leader, or even someone notorious. Tell us why you wish to write a story about this person.

Your letter will be reviewed by our panel of judges based on originality, clarity of thought and our accessibility to the person to be interviewed. (Remember, the person must be available for an interview.)

Two winners will be selected. Each will write a feature story, assisted by one of our editors, to appear in a future edition of the Herald.

Letters should be typed or printed legibly. Include your name, street address, city and daytime phone number.

Deliver or mail to "Feature Story Contest," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, 32771.

There is no maximum length limit on letters.

Entries are due at the Herald office by 1 p.m., Friday August 10.

One-upmanship in the medical world

Dr. Ethan Mergatroyd's patient lent him the book because it was meant to be amusing. True, it was a pearl: "One-upmanship" by Stephen Potter, published by Holt in 1955. But to Mergatroyd, the new breed of doctor, the slim, outdated British volume was not satire: it explained the mysteries of medicine, gave him a framework upon which to hang his sagging practice and provided the trulians he needed to hear.

He intuitively realized that the medical profession divided itself into two fundamental groups: damn good doctors and damn good scientists. Mergatroyd didn't personally know any of the former; of the latter, he believed the scientists published erudite papers and were employed, at enormous salaries, by far-off university centers. Therefore, Mergatroyd viewed himself as merely a cog in the wheel of mediocrity; that is, just another faceless practitioner who attempted, by any means at hand, to eke out a living in the uniquely American system called private practice, where people are penalized, by being required to pay a fee, for getting sick.

Since there was no shortage of illness, Mergatroyd had been at a loss to identify the cause of his empty appointment schedule. However, after reading "One-upmanship," he saw the error of his ways. Doctorship, the author stated, is the art of getting one up on the patient without actually killing him. The means of enhancing this relation, which puts the doctor in the enviable position of power and authority, was the purpose of the odd little book. As Mergatroyd dutifully listed the ploys of doctorship — on a sheet of lined paper in his loose-leaf notebook — he committed each one to memory.

Once in the office, the patient is at a distinct disadvantage. To emphasize the inequality of roles, the physician must make light of the patients' complaints but frighten them at the same time: for instance, "Everybody's got a cough this time of year.

You're probably wasting my time. On the other hand, serious lung conditions could ..." The statement is left hanging, an ominous reminder that paves the way to more painful and expensive testing, at the same time ensuring that the patient feels awkward at having sought attention for such a plebeian symptom.

Patients worry too little or, more generally, too much. The practitioner should never define which is which. By leaving the anxiety unresolved, the healer is free to commit the patient to frequent follow-up visits, marked by substantial guilt and a compulsion to adhere to the doctor's payment schedule.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Israeli player Shaya Levit played as though he were looking through the backs of the cards in a team competition last year. After North had opened one heart and supported clubs, Levit bid three hearts as a temporizing bid. He did not want to cue-bid spades, since that might discourage West from a spade lead against slam. The bidding proceeded as in the diagram. South eventually bidding six clubs. A diamond opening would have left declarer with little choice but to try the heart finesse, but West led the spade five, a middle lead from three small cards. Declarer

South now went to work. He played low from dummy and won the queen of spades as East played the 10. He drew three rounds of trumps and then played A-K and ruffed a heart (perhaps the queen would fall). He then played out his two last trumps, discarding a diamond from dummy. East of course had to keep the king of spades guarded and hold the queen of hearts, so he was forced to come down to a singleton diamond. Declarer now played a diamond to dummy's ace and led the jack of hearts from dummy, throwing away his other small diamond. East won the heart queen but had to lead away from the king of spades to give South his slam.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Ouel
YOUR BIRTHDAY
August 10, 1990

In the year ahead you could be lucky in rather unusual ways. This is likely to be especially true in matters that pertain to the fulfillment of your ambitions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you fall to move while the industrious mood is upon you today, you might put off doing certain essential tasks. Your indifference grows in proportion to your procrastination. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be very careful today you are not overly possessive with people with whom you have strong emotional bonds. They'll resent restrictions even if you feel it's for their own good.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's best not to seek too many opinions today regarding an important matter upon which you must decide. Superfluous input generates confusion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conflicts with co-workers are likely today if you are too insistent everything must be done your way and within the time increments you establish.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Subdue inclinations to take speculative risks today, even though they might look like sure things on the surface. Gambles should be analyzed from every angle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Assignments you can do quickly today are likely to be done rather well. However, the quality of your performance may wane considerably when patience is required.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to keep involvements with friends on a purely fun, social level today. It's best they're not drawn into your serious confidential affairs, nor you into theirs.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't use up your credit with friends today by requesting inconsequential favors. If you do, there's a chance they might not be responsive when you need them for something significant.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you get involved in a serious discussion with a friend today, be as open and frank as possible. Don't give your friend any reason to think you're hiding something.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In a joint venture today don't allow someone who isn't directly involved become part of the enterprise. This person's only contribution might be complications.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a possibility you might try to alter or change something today which is beyond your scope. The results of your efforts could frustrate you, as well as others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your judgment is reasonably good today, but there is a possibility you may harbor unnecessary doubts regarding your decisions. Try not to overanalyze.
