

Evacuation Of Thousands Possible Nuclear Plant Emergency Declared

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Three Mile Island nuclear power station officials today declared an on-site emergency at a crippled island facility and Pennsylvania disaster officials put a civil defense team on immediate alert for a possible evacuation of residents in the surrounding area.

The office of Gov. Dick Thornburgh said the emergency was called after an uncontrolled release of radiation which initial readings showed to be as high as 1,200 millirems.

Thornburgh's office said the governor was considering ordering the evacuation of the plant.

About 13,000 people live within a five-mile radius of the plant, site of a nuclear accident Wednesday described by federal officials as one of the worst in U.S. history.

In Washington, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokesman Frank Ingram said the site of the new discharge of radioactive gas was not immediately established. Ingram said it occurred about 9 a.m. EST as plant workers were attempting to remove water from the reactor cooling system.

John Conroy, spokesman for the state Emergency Management Agency, said his office received a report from Three Mile Island "of an uncontrolled release at the facility."

"At this time we do not know the extent of that release nor do we know if it was transient or continuing," he said. "We have notified the four affected counties (Dauphin, Cumberland, Lancaster and York) informing them they should advance their state of readiness for a potential evacuation should the situation warrant."

Conroy said Thornburgh would have to make the decision to order an evacuation.

Ingram said in Washington that the radiation was discharged out a tall smokestack at the Three Mile Island plant.

He said peak radiation levels in the new discharge were measured at less than 30 millirems, according to preliminary figures. But he also said: "We have no confidence in that number. It may be lower or higher."

Radiation levels started decreasing almost immediately after the discharge, Ingram said, and within 45 minutes had dropped to "somewhere near what you would consider normal range." He could not provide figures immediately for what a normal reading would be.

Roland Page, deputy press secretary to Thornburgh, said the governor was attempting to resolve conflicting reports about

Graham Ruling On Energy Due

Gov. Bob Graham is expected soon, possibly today, to declare an energy emergency under state law and petition President Jimmy Carter to call for a regional emergency for a 90-day period, as recommended by state Department of Environmental Regulation (DER) Secretary Jake Varn.

"The action may be taken today, but all I can say is that it will be soon," said Graham's Deputy Press Secretary Jill Chamberlin by telephone from Tallahassee.

"It's important to understand if the governor decides to do it and if the president agrees, it does not automatically mean every utility plant in Florida will be permitted to use high sulfur fuel," Miss Chamberlin said.

"It will be done on a case-by-case review basis and carefully scrutinized."

Mearns, Scott Burns, district manager of the Florida Power and Light Co. with offices in Sanford, said if the governor acts quickly enough and the president approves before mid-April, no power shortages will be seen in the Sanford area.

If, however, the ban on the use of high sulfur oil is not lifted within two weeks, the Sanford area will suffer brownouts, blackouts — power shortages, Burns said.

Miss Chamberlin said even if the regulations on high sulfur oil use are relaxed, enable blanché authority will not be given. Each request will be considered on its own merits, she said. "The nature of the shortage is nothing to be alarmed about. The shortfall exists at this time only in the area of fuel oil of a low sulfur content nature which is required to minimize air pollution. The shortage does not apply to other fossil fuels in Florida."

Exxon, FPL's supplier, says there is an adequate supply of high sulfur fuel for Florida utilities. However, there is an indefinite shortage of low polluting fuel.

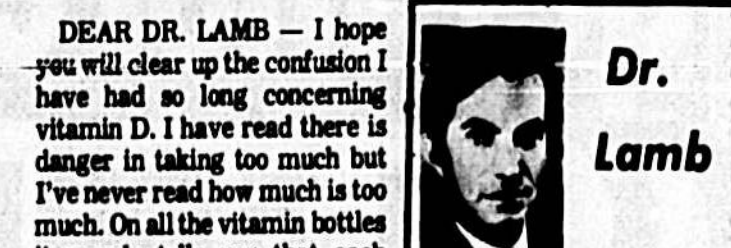

If Graham follows the DER recommendation, he will have to ask President Carter for a federal emergency declaration. The state and federal designers would enable utilities to burn dirtier oil for up to four months under the law.

The Iranian oil cutoff forced the restriction of low sulfur fuel production and increased high sulfur fuel output to get maximum fuel from available crude oil, R.P. Vignault, sales manager for Exxon said.

Excess Vitamins May Be Harmful

DEAR DR. LAMB — I hope you will clear up the confusion I have had so long concerning vitamin D. I have read there is danger in taking too much but I've never read how much is too much. On all the vitamin bottles it merely tells you that each tablet contains 400 units MDL.

If a person takes two tablets of a reliable supplement in order to get enough of the other vitamins while he is on a reducing diet, will the 800 units of vitamin D be dangerous?

One always hears that vitamin D is the sunshine vitamin. What does this mean? Does sunshine cause the body to utilize vitamin D taken, or does sunshine alone manufacture vitamin D?

DEAR READER — Let's start with your statement that 400 units is the MDR. That's out of date terminology and means Minimal Daily Requirement. Vitamin tablets today use the term RDA, which is recommended Daily Allowance. This is quite a bit more than the minimal daily requirements. The RDA literally means how much you should have for optimal health if you are a normal, healthy adult, not just the minimum amount that you need.

Ultraviolet light actually stimulates chemicals inside the skin to form vitamin D. A person who is outdoors quite a bit and exposed to a reasonable amount of sunshine will form enough vitamin D that he does not need an additional vitamin D in his food.

The exception would be a pregnant or lactating woman and infants, children or adolescents. All of these should receive 400 units of vitamin D a day. The probabilities are that if you eat a normal, balanced diet, you get a reasonable portion of the RDA for vitamin D anyway. Fortified milk had to decide whether to continue spades and force a ruff or switch to diamonds. He chose diamonds, and declarer had to ruff.

If declarer had not routinely drawn trump, an accurate defense would defeat the contract. Declarer would have to lead to the high trump suit and try to run the club suit. If East ruffed the fourth round of clubs and played a spade, South would have to ruff with his last trump. East would then get on play with the ace of diamonds and cash two more tricks.

Declarer could see this trap. The key play was made at trick three when declarer led the king of diamonds from his hand, and from there on there was no defense.

Whenever East chose to lead the ace of diamonds, South is in complete control. If East leads a third round of spades, it can be ruffed in trumps. The defense will get only their two aces and a second club. Chances are, the way you're going about things is all wrong.

When We Look The Other Way

As things now stand, black and white Rhodesians will go to the polls April 20 to elect a majority-rule government. In an effort to demonstrate that these elections will be both fair and free, the bi-racial executive council now running Rhodesia has invited official observers from the United States and Britain.

Inasmuch as Anglo-American policy toward Rhodesia is intended, so we are told, to promote majority rule via the democratic process, one might expect London and Washington to welcome the opportunity to observe these elections at first hand.

If the elections are a sham, they could be effectively denounced as such by the returning observers. If, conversely, the electoral process is a honest one and if it produces a government reflecting the will of a majority of Rhodesians, would not Washington and London welcome this and publicly acknowledge it as well?

The tragic truth is Washington and London earnestly want to avoid acknowledging any such thing. And because there is every reason to believe that the April 20 balloting will be as fair as any conducted in the United States or Britain, the Carter administration and Britain's Labor party government plan to keep their observers at home. ... British and American policymakers reject the legitimacy of the April 20 election, not because the voting won't be fair, but because it will produce a government opposed by the Marxist forces of exiled guerrilla leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo. Thus the war will continue. And for those who hadn't noticed, ending the war long ago depended on the dream of majority rule as the overriding objective of Anglo-American policy.

Thus do the United States and Britain maintain economic and political sanctions against Rhodesia despite the fact that white minority rule — the original justification for sanctions — is rapidly coming to an end. Moreover, the public statements of Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Britain's Foreign Secretary, David Owen, already suggest that sanctions will be maintained until the war ends in a negotiated settlement acceptable to Mugabe and Nkomo.

There might be some justification for this policy if there were real hope that Mugabe and Nkomo would agree to join with other Rhodesian leaders in submitting their political ambitions to the electoral will of the people. Unfortunately, and notwithstanding the State Department's coy evasions on the subject, there isn't any discernible evidence that Nkomo and Mugabe are anything other than would-be despots determined to seize power through the barrel of a gun. Washington and London can hope, or pretend, otherwise, but it won't change the facts.

In truth, the Rhodesians have no choice but to proceed with an orderly transition to majority rule within a parliamentary framework that will guarantee basic civil and political rights for blacks as well as whites. With or without official American and British observers, the April 20 elections will be a milestone on the road to that worthy objective.

How long the new government can resist pressure from the guerrillas and their Soviet and Cuban allies will depend in large part on whether American and British policy can be returned to its original goal of promoting majority rule.

The deplorable Anglo-American refusal to send observers to monitor the April 20 voting is encouraging evidence that no such change is even under consideration.

Treaty Allows Tax Haven

WILLEMSTAD, Netherlands Antilles (NEA) — The "strictly confidential memorandum" prepared by this city's largest bank candidly reflects that "foreigners can avail themselves of a sunny investment climate" here while buying real estate in the United States.

Another bank's literature touts the "special tax provisions and the various tax treaties" that have led to the establishment of "quite a large number of offshore investment, holding, financial, royalty and real estate corporations."

Despite growing concern in the United States about the impact of foreign investment in its agricultural land, the Netherlands Antilles has established a booming tax haven that enables purchasers of American farmland to evade virtually all taxes on their six- and seven-figure transactions.

On this island of Curacao, the financial and political capital of the Netherlands Antilles, one bank even publishes a newsletter, called the "Tax Haven Review," that analyzes Internal Revenue Service rulings affecting "offshore corporations" involved in large real estate transactions.

Because of an obscure 1855 tax treaty between the United States and the Netherlands Antilles, these islands at the southern edge of the Caribbean now rival such traditional tax havens as the Bahamas, Cayman Islands and Panama.

Under terms of the tax treaty and the Netherlands Antilles' exceptionally generous tax laws, here are some of the financial advantages enjoyed by a Curacao-based investor in the United States, cropland but denied to an American farmer:

New Concept For Area
Satellite Church To Open

Rev. Pat Caverly in new satellite church

By JOAN MADISON
Herald Correspondent
The first Mass at the Church of the Annunciation, located on five acres on Montgomery Road in Altamonte Springs, will be celebrated at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Although the satellite concept is new to this area, it is being used in many parts of the world and the United States. A shortage of priests and a desire to cut administrative costs are cited as factors for using this concept.

Pair Wed 24 Years First Time Parents

DEAR ABBY: When my parents were first married, they tried for years to have a child, but could not. They finally gave up hope and adopted me. Two years later they adopted my brother. I am now 19.

DEAR ABBY: I went to a doctor who examined me and said I needed some medicine. He didn't write a prescription. Instead, he called his brother's doctor and told him to have the medicine ready for me, that I'd be over to get it in a few minutes.

After 24 years of marriage, my mother became pregnant. My mother became pregnant. My mother became pregnant. My mother became pregnant. My mother became pregnant.

DEAR MRS. O.J.: Yes, the doctor is clearly operating outside the bounds of ethical medicine. Change doctors. And be sure to tell him why you're leaving.

DEAR ABBY: I am 10 years old and am ashamed of my mother. She tells the biggest lies, and she gossips a lot on the telephone. She will talk to one lady and pretend to be her best friend, when she is really her worst enemy.

DEAR MARCIA: Your parents are luckier than some who become parents in their later years. My medical expert, Dr. John A. Haugen, a fine obstetrician and gynecologist for over 40 years, says, "A child born of a woman in her 40's runs a much greater risk of being defective."

DEAR ABBY: I was quite surprised that I wasn't given a written prescription and allowed to have it filled at my own pharmacy. I also was angry because this doctor's brother charges much higher prices than the pharmacist I usually trade with.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know my brother, Bob? He is a doctor. Perhaps your mother will read this and realize that although "example" is not the best parent, it is the only teacher, it is one of the most powerful.

DEAR ABBY: I was quite surprised that I wasn't given a written prescription and allowed to have it filled at my own pharmacy. I also was angry because this doctor's brother charges much higher prices than the pharmacist I usually trade with.

Scouts Challenged At Camp-O-Ree

"There has been no rain for three months, resulting in a scarcity of water. Your water bags are empty and the only water available is from a stagnant, muddy pool and it is probably contaminated. You have with you an ore pan and two matches — render one quart of water safe to drink."

This was problem number one for a group of 170 Boy Scouts who recently attended the St. John's District weekend Camp-O-Ree held in a wooded section of the DeLand Duvall Children's Home property near DeLand. The theme was the Northern California 1849 Gold Rush.

Another problem the scouts faced read: "Following a day's prospecting, your party gets lost in returning to camp and darkness overtakes you. Foolishly you attempt to continue after dark when suddenly one of your number falls over a vertical embankment. The fallen prospector is conscious. Rescue him by tying ropes together while blindfolded (to simulate darkness.)"

Troops from Seminole and Volusia counties competed in solving these and other problems that might have faced the gold hunting '49ers. They had to set up a base camp, follow a marked trail, treat snake bites, find edible food, stake out a claim and draw a map showing its location.

About 30 adults went along to act as judges and help officiate but the activities and problem-solving were left strictly up to the boys. The troops were judged on how well and how quickly they solved the problems. Three gold nuggets for excellent, 2 for good, 1 for passing, and 0 for failure. were earned for each problem. Troop 529 from Paola collected the most and was the overall winner. Bob Brown is their troop leader. Skits and games, canoeing and horse shoes were some of the other activities enjoyed by the scouts. Ben Hendricks from Troop 506 in Sanford was probably the man most appreciated — he handled all the cooking chores for the adults.

Is Coleman A Midget?

DEAR DICK: About the show, "Diff'rent Strokes," I would like to know if Arnold (Gary Coleman) is a midget or a little kid? I think he's a little kid but a lot of my relatives think he's a midget. How old is he? SECRET, Abbeville, S.C., Can.

Whenever a child star comes along who talks in a mature way, the rumor starts flitting around that he's a midget. Or she. It happened with Jackie Coogan, Jackie Cooper, Shirley Temple, Margaret O'Brien, etc. And now it's happening with Gary Coleman. He is 11 years old. He is, however, small for his age and has a kidney condition which, his doctors say, will prevent him from growing to be taller than about five feet.

DEAR DICK: We have been hearing rumors that Pat Boone and his family might have a weekly show starting next fall. We certainly hope so and are very anxious to hear: Is it true? M.G. AND D.G., Council Bluffs, Iowa.

It's a remote possibility. The situation is this: Pat and his family are taping an Easter special for ABC, which will air on April 7. Jack Spina, the Boones' manager for many years, says that the deal includes an option for a weekly series. ABC has until the end of May to exercise that option. So, theoretically, if that Easter special is a smash, that might lead to go ahead with a series. If they don't, Spina says, the next Boone TV appearance will be a Christmas special with ABC, that's the only chance.

DEAR DICK: I watched the old movie, "The Blue Bird," with Shirley Temple, which was made in 1938. In it was a character called Light. I was wondering if the lady who played Light was the same as the actress who was the Good Witch in "The Wizard of Oz." S.C. BARRETT, Rock Hill, S.C.

No, two different witches. Helen Ericson played Light in

Ask Dick Kleiner

"The Blue Bird," and Billie Burke was the Good Witch in "The Wizard of Oz."

DEAR DICK: Thanks for your great column. In a recent "All in the Family," the butcher friend of Edith brought his fiancée to visit the Bunkers. Her name was Judith and the cast said she was played by Jean Punct. But wasn't this really Jean Stapleton, playing two parts? LUELLA LOHMEYER, Pueblo, Colo.

Thanks for your great letter. Yes, you guessed right. Jean Stapleton did play both roles on that show.

DEAR DICK: Can you tell us why Lawrence Welk was so successful? It would be nice to know what he was doing at the time. MRS. R.J. WALSTRAND, Springfield, Mo.

The Welk people say that Welk has never done that, and they say he probably never will. Even when Alice Lon—his old Champagne Lady—left and told the world she was fired because Welk thought her skirts were too short, he kept silent. He believes he's there to entertain, and not to gossip about the people on (or off) the show.

DEAR DICK: What happened to the series, "Voyage To The Bottom of the Sea"? It was one of my favorite shows. MIKE QUINN, Owensboro, Ky.

DEAR DICK: I used to see "Bonanza" and "Hillman" and "Daniel Boone" and I liked them and was wondering what happened to the stars. TIM MARTIN, Springfield, Mo.

DEAR DICK: What happened to the TV series, "SWAT," "The Rockford," "McCloud" and "Rhoads"? D. SULLIVAN, Surrey, B.C., Can.

All those shows ran their courses, had their hours in the sun of the ratings, and then began to sag and so were cancelled. Shows have a very brief existence—five years is superior. The stars move on to other things. Actors are laborers, like anybody else, and when one job folds up, they look for another.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me the name of the song that was played each time that Elvis made his entrance on stage to do a live performance? Is it obtainable as a record? J.R., Urbana, Mo.

I presume you mean Elvis Presley, not Elvis Costello. Anyway, Presley's entrance music was Richard Strauss' "Also Sprach Zarathustra," recently known as the theme "001: A Space Odyssey." The original music has been recorded dozens of times, but you can hear it, as the Presley people used it, on at least three of Elvis' albums— "Madison Square Gardens," "Aloha From Hawaii" and "In Concert."

DEAR DICK: Can you tell me who does the voice belong to on the computer on the original "Star Trek" television series. G.A.C., Lufkin, Tex.

That's the voice of the beautiful Majel Barrett, who also played an occasional role on the series.

DEAR DICK: A friend and I were watching "Lucy Comes To Nashville" and Mel Tillis was on the show. I said that Mel really stutters in real life. My friend says that he doesn't. Can you tell me if he does or doesn't? TERESA HAGEMAN, Fortney, Mich.

In a way, you're both right and both wrong. The truth is that Mel really stutters, when he talks, but never stutters when he sings.

Ted Cassidy: A Big Man Remembered

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — The death of actor Ted Cassidy was not particularly well covered in the press. In the first place, the very large actor (remembered most vividly, to his regret, as Lurch on "The Addams Family") was not a major star. And, secondly, his family and friends tried to keep it quiet, feeling that's what he would have wanted.

In fact, says Sandra Griego, he was even registered in the hospital where he died under an assumed name (Theodore Case). She says that was done "to protect his humanity from the Lurch image."

While Cassidy's death was not big news to the public, it was to Miss Griego, the actor's fiancée. The American Indian actress, whose life has been dogged by tragedy, now has yet another one to live through. It won't be easy.

She was only three days old when her parents were killed in an automobile accident. She survived. Back in the hospital — in Bernadette N.M. — where she had been born, she was fortunate in finding the Griego family.

They were a large, happy clan, and they had just lost their newborn daughter. So hospital authorities put the grieving couple together with the just-orphaned infant, and the Griegos took the tiny girl home.

She was brought up to believe she was their natural child — and they were Spanish-French-Creek, not Indian. She never knew that she was, in fact, a full-blooded Mascaero Apache until she was a teen-ager. Then she went out with a cousin (she thought), the son of U.S. Sen. Joseph Montoya.

"I told him we couldn't get serious," she says, "because he was my cousin, and he told me he wasn't, that I was adopted and we weren't related at all."

"When I confronted my parents with that knowledge, they turned away from me. And so I knew that it was true."

She says that, until then, she had not liked Indians very much, from what she had seen of them on the Rosharon Reservation near her home. So it was very traumatic to learn she was one of them.

She talks, these days, almost continually about "Teddy." He was, she says, a genius, a man of great compassion and talent and maturity.

And, she says, he had a premonition about dying. He had asked her to arrange for an Irish wake, if he died, and she did that.

"It was wonderful," she says. "Because of the wake, I was so preoccupied with the people there that I had no time for sorrow. There is method in that Irish madness."

He also often talked to her about what he wanted her to do in the event of his death. He had taught her a great deal about her craft, acting, and he wanted her to continue. For awhile after Ted Cassidy — she calls him "Teddy" — died, she couldn't even think about acting. Now she can.

Now she's appearing in a new CBS mini-series, "The Chisholms," with Robert Preston and Rosemary Harris. It will be on the network for four consecutive Thursdays, beginning March 29. She plays an Indian girl, of course.

She says that since she began acting, she has almost always played Indian girls — "just look at this face and you understand" — with a few Chicano parts.

For a while she used the name Sandra Ego. That was the idea of an ex-manager, who thought it would be cute. The Ego was pronounced "eggo," and so she could be referred to as Sandy Ego, which came out San Diego, which came out San Diego.

She almost gets sick thinking of that now.

Loretta Lynn Casts Movie Of Her Life

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Loretta Lynn, the petite country singing star, was handed 25 8-by-10 glossy portraits of film actresses two years ago and asked to find a prospect to portray herself in a movie biography. Loretta set aside the photograph of Sissy Spacek, saying, "That's the coal miner's daughter right there." Sissy is red-haired, freckled and round-faced. Loretta is a thin-faced brunette with high cheekbones. But Loretta was right on target. Four years ago her autobiography, "Coal Miner's Daughter," detailed the crushing poverty of her childhood in Butcher Hollow, Ky., and her struggle to succeed as a country singer. The book became a best-seller with sales of more than 1.5 million. The paperback sold more than a million copies in its year.

the movie rights and began a search for an actress to play Loretta from age 13, when she was married, until the present. Loretta, a spunky, down-home mountain woman who speaks her mind, said, "I told them from the start Sissy was the only one, even though I never saw her in a show. I don't go to picture shows so I never saw the others either. "But they said Sissy didn't look like me. They tested a bunch of others. And I told them they were wasting thousands of dollars. And they was. "In some ways Sissy looks like me. We both have blue eyes. And she LOOKS country like I do. Turned out she ACTS country, too." Last year Loretta was surprised to find Sissy waiting for her in the wings when she came off stage at a Louisiana concert. "The minute I laid eyes on her I knew 'You're Sissy,' Loretta said. "She was along like old friends. We talked to a psychic woman in Ohio who told us we'd been together in past lives four different times. And I believe her." Universal screened "Carters," for which Sissy won an Oscar nomination in 1976, and Loretta insisted no one else would be right for the part. Sissy could easily be made to look 13 and was willing to do all the singing. Earlier this year Sissy and Loretta spent a week together in Nashville, Tenn., near Loretta's home. Sissy learned bits and pieces of 18 of Loretta's best known songs for the role. At the end of the week, Loretta made an appearance on Grand Ole Opry. Sissy watched from the wings. Then, unexpectedly, Loretta announced Sissy would portray her in "Coal Miner's Daughter," and called her "my daughter." In a tribute to the artist in London; she catches the eye of Leopold, King of the Belgians. (R)

Warner Strives For Public Notice

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Whenever actors get together, they usually talk about how bad their agent is and how good David Warner is.

Among actors, he is generally ranked up there with Paul Scofield, Sir Lawrence Olivier, George C. Scott and Jason Robards as the best there is at the moment. The public knows all the others a lot better than they know Warner. Maybe that's because he's the tall, shy, quiet type. He would as soon blow his own horn as he would give a hot-foot to a gortilla with bunions. You probably remember David Warner best from "The Omen," in which he played the inquisitive reporter who loses his head for his pains. But in England he will probably always be the young man who dared to play Hamlet for the Royal Shakespeare Theater when he was only 14 — and he was a sensation.

David Warner came to southern California last April for the first time. He came over to do a leading role in a movie. One thing has led to another, however, and he's still here, and he's about to go into the third straight leading role in a film since he arrived.

Chances are very good that when those three films come out, David Warner will be as well known to the American movie audience as he already is to the London theatergoer. But it will take a lot to change his own mind about himself. "I have no illusions about myself," he says. "I know I'm not a star, not a big drawing card."

As he talked, in a modest restaurant along the Sunset Strip, a man came over and said how wonderful he thought Warner was. The actor almost blushed, sprang awkwardly to his feet and shook the man's hand. That sort of thing doesn't happen too often to him.

But that could all change. Warner stars, first, in Arthur Hiller's big movie, "Nightwing," which is about baseball but has a deeper significance. As soon as he finished that, he went immediately into "Time After Time," with Malcolm McDowell, another film which is supposed to be something special.

And now he is going into "Airport '79" — "Concorde," the next in the series of "Airport" movies, and one which, according to advance information, is a good one and very topical, since it involves the super-sonic Concorde plane.

"So I'm still here," Warner says. He has been here so long, in fact, that he has become a big baseball and football fan. He lives in a hotel where many visiting actors stay when they come to Los Angeles, and he really has little to do, so he's watched TV and learned our sports.

"I have come to the conclusion," he says, "that your football is much more interesting and exciting than European football, which you call soccer."

That's almost funny, but there it is.

TV TANGLE

UNTANGLE THE LETTERS AND USE THE CLUE SHOW TO SPELL THE NAME OF A TV SHOW HOST.

A Capsule Look At Cinema

'Boulevard' Uneven

BOULEVARD NIGHTS (R) — Richard Yungles, Maria D'Almeida, Danny DeLaPaz (Drama) Interesting but uneven character study of Chicano youths in East Los Angeles. Classic strong brother-weak brother story wrapped around gang warfare. Standout performance by newcomer DeLa Paz. Caution: some strong language, violence. GRADE: B- minus (Handy)

CHINA SYNDROME, THE (PG) — Jane Fonda, Jack Lemmon, Michael Douglas. Thriller. This is a "what if" story — what if there was a malfunction in a nuclear power plant, and what if the gal TV news reporter sniffed it out, and what if the nuclear scientist didn't find it, and what if the power company brass tried to cover it up? It leaves you wondering — what if a real one had a flaw and blew up and left a hole in the sand clear down to China? GRADE: B- plus (Booth)

DEER HUNTER (R) — Robert DeNiro, John Cazale, John Savage, Meryl Streep, Christopher Walken. Drama. This is a powerful memorable look at three Pennsylvania steel workers who go off to fight Vietnam. Director Michael Cimino has created images you may never forget. It is too long and some of it is forced, but it remains a classic film. GRADE: A

GREAT BANK HEIST, THE (PG) — Richard Basehart, Ned Beatty, Charlene Dallas, Burgess Meredith, Michael Murphy and Paul Sand. Drama? Small-town bank officials discover they've been embezzled and stage a robbery to cover it up. It isn't a comedy, nor is it a heist film. It's just flat and obvious, and a waste of good acting talent. GRADE: C- minus (Handy)

LAST WAVE, THE — Richard Chamberlain, Gajillion Susse. Drama. This compelling, well-paced thriller is an Australian product directed by Peter Weir. Chamberlain, as a Sydney tax lawyer, is mysteriously drawn into a criminal case involving a gang of aborigines. What follows is a fascinating study of tribal culture — and an entertaining movie that mixes a few payoffs but ultimately satisfies. GRADE: B- plus (Booth)

MURDER BY DECREE (PG) — Christopher Plummer, James Mason, David Hemmings, Susan Clark. Mystery. Sherlock Holmes vs. Jack the Ripper, but the issue is clouded with red herrings (radicals and psychics, etc.) Director Bob Clark tries hard to create a mood, but the mood is misty and the total effect is a film that is tedious. GRADE: C-plus.

WARRIORS, THE (R) Michael Beck, James Remar, Thomas Walters. Drama. Street gang action — It's "West Side Story" without soul and "A Clockwork Orange" without brains. But...the actors' bluster, the violence choreographed more for bravura than blood, and the New York subway settings combine for one great visually arresting spectacle. Fervently fascinating. Caution: May be hazardous to your health, since film is rumored to have incited several attacks by inspired viewers. (Film grading: A — superb; B — good; C — average; D — poor; F — awful)

Baseball, Radio, Sausage

Singers Invest Windfalls

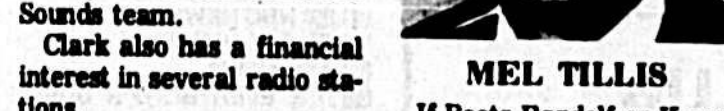

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — If stuttering Mel Tillis suddenly stopped churning out country hits, he could always sell T-shirts. And if Roy Clark put aside his overworked banjo, he could easily find work on his minor league baseball team. Jerry Reed and Ed Conroy also have more than a casual interest in baseball. They own part of the Nashville Sounds team.

Clark also has a financial interest in several radio stations. In fact, most successful country stars look for ways to invest windfall profits from hot selling singles or albums. They know that unless the money is invested wisely and quickly, the tax man will take a big bite.

Besides owning a country music store in downtown Nashville complete with "stuttering Mel" T-shirts, Tillis does dog food commercials with country comedian Jerry Clower.

Some people say Johnny Cash has sold more STP through his commercials than the service stations that offer the product on racks next to the gasoline pumps. He owns the House of Cash, an umbrella company for all of Cash's business enterprises.

If Jimmy Dean was prevented from earning his livelihood by singing, he wouldn't starve. The singer owns the Jimmy Dean sausage company.

MEL TILLIS

If Boots Randolph or Kenny Rogers can't get any gigs, they can turn to the agent who handles bookings for the Nashville night clubs they own.

Porter Wagoner, Ray Stevens and the Oak Ridge Boys could get by if their record companies suddenly dropped them from the label. They each own their own recording studios.

It seems that one of the status symbols of making it in country music is owning a farm. Eddie Arnold, Tom T. Hall, Clark Gable, Carl Smith, Dolly Parton and Ernest Tubbs all own farms in Tennessee.

Arnold could always turn to his real estate career. He owns thousands of acres of land and is regarded as a shrewd businessman.

It wouldn't hurt legendary Loretta Lynn if she lost her musical appeal. Her thriving clothing store business would put enough bread on the table.

The well endowed Miss Parton has her own publishing firm to fall back on in the event her musical because she is its official spokeswoman this year.

Minnie Pearl almost lost her grinder switch hat when she went into the fried amusement park Opryland introducing new talent and mingling with the tourists. The Roy Acuff Museum is located at the park. Sexy Barbara Mandrell could also find work at Opryland because she is its official spokeswoman this year.

They're Lovers; An Acting Team

Reynolds Key To Sally Field's Career

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sally Field, asked about her relationship with Burt Reynolds the other night by Johnny Carson, candidly announced she and the No. 1 box-office star are lovers.

They also are something of an acting team.

Reynolds has played a key role in establishing Sally as a bonafide movie star, one of the few actresses to rise from the miasma of television sitcoms to first-rate screen roles.

Half of Sally's six movies were made with Burt, one of which was "Smoky and the Bandit," second in all-time boxoffice receipts only to "Star Wars." The others, "Hooper" and "The End," were winners, too.

However, Reynolds clearly is no Pygmalion, nor Sally a Galatea. If anything, Sally perhaps is more plausible a performer than Burt. But he is almost solely responsible for Sally's new screen career.

"Burt and I had never met when he called to ask if I'd play the girl in 'Smoky,'" Sally said. "He remembered my three television series and liked my comedy sense. He needed quick comedy scenes like I did in TV."

"I was really surprised to hear from him because at that time I'd just done one movie, 'Stay Hungry' which was seen by about four people."

"When we finished 'Smoky,' Burt told me, 'You're going to be up at the top.' And I said, 'I'll believe that when I see it.'"

BURT REYNOLDS

Sally is becoming a woman with a steady reputation trying to raise a couple of kids.

Sally is divorced and lives in the San Fernando Valley with her own two sons, Peter and Eli. Burt lives in a Hollywood Hills mansion some 10 miles away.

Now she has critics raving about her best performance to date in "Norma Rae," in which she plays a down-trodden working class built to his own specifications, not far from West Palm Beach, Fla.

"I played in 'Vanities' there in January," Sally said. "And we'll be working together in 'The Rainmaker' in March. Burt is going to star and direct. He's a fabulous director, and proved it when he directed 'The End.'"

"I'd rather work for Burt than anyone else. He's the ultimate. People in this business are just beginning to discover how enormously talented he is as a filmmaker. All of his pictures do well financially."

Four or five years ago Sally's career was almost stalled. She'd made a trio of banal TV sitcoms and couldn't get arrested in movies.

She was only 17 when she starred in the "Gidget" series and barely 20 as a dimpled and darling novice in "The Flying Nun." Lastly, she had supernatural powers in "The Girl With Something Extra."

Horrible as they were, Sally says, "I thank God for all three. They gave me an acting education I couldn't have begged, borrowed or stolen anywhere else. The shows were an assault on the senses but I learned how to work with a camera."

"When 'The Girl With Something Extra' went off the air, I decided to leave television and concentrate on movies. Everyone, including my business manager, told me it couldn't be done."

"Friends and advisers said no TV actress could drop out and then get into movies. They said there were no film parts for women, that I couldn't earn enough money to live on. They said the day of women stars was over."

"Well, times have changed in the past three or four years. There are plenty of wonderful parts for actresses. We're no longer accorded to men."

"But for three years I had no work at all, from about 1973 to 1976. I studied at the Actors Studio and took voice and dance lessons. And I thought seriously of becoming a high school drama teacher."

"When 'Stay Hungry' was being cast, I was confident all I had to do was get in for a reading to get the part. I haven't had any doubts about my ability as an actress since I was a tiny little person six years old. I knew it was there."

"In my mind it was simply a matter of time before things began happening for me. I thought I might not make it until I was 60 or 70, but I was determined to hang in there."

Then, presto, enter Burt Reynolds. Sally's struggling days were over. Sally's role in Burt's films weren't exactly demanding, but she played them superbly, making important contributions to their successes.

Howard must be credited with much of what "The White Shadow" represents. The series was his idea to begin with.

"Bruce picked up on the format right away and built it into its present form. He understood the racial aspects of the show immediately. If the series was going to work the coach had to be a tough, rocky, impatient guy."

Howard said black viewers approve of the series and the role he plays.

"Almost without exception black people tell me they like the show," he said. "They even stop my car to say, 'Right on! A few have called me 'blood' and 'brother.'"

"The spirit of what they're saying is, 'You're okay for a white dude.' And that's fine with me."

Free From Violence, Cliches

Howard Stars In 'The White Shadow'

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ken Howard, a king sized blond Caucasian, is the star of "The White Shadow," the only dramatic television series on the air dealing seriously with the black experience in urban America.

Howard, 6-foot-4 and 200 pounds, plays a basketball coach in a ghetto school with a predominantly black enrollment. Most of the faculty, including the principal, are black.

Miraculously, the series avoids black-white cliches and liberal polemics in getting its message across. It is also free of violence and hyped dramatics.

Howard must be credited with much of what "The White Shadow" represents. The series was his idea to begin with.

show is colorful, full of action but nonviolent. There are no shoot-outs or car chases.

"The important thing is the basketball court, which isolates the characters from other elements. It's easy for us to get into human values without leaning on heavy sociological implications."

"The coach isn't a great white liberal knight. But our stories manage to bring more weight to bear on racial problems than any other TV show has ever done. We go as far as network restrictions allow us."

Howard played basketball with blacks, learning the game as a kid on playgrounds. His Amherst team was lily white. He can identify with the problems of the black population and with the young black actors on the show.

"The White Shadow" was getting its share of the ratings — as high as 17th — until CBS moved it from Monday to Saturday nights a month ago. The Nielsen dropped drastically. Now the network has shifted it back to Mondays.

Howard said black viewers approve of the series and the role he plays.

"Almost without exception black people tell me they like the show," he said. "They even stop my car to say, 'Right on! A few have called me 'blood' and 'brother.'"

"The spirit of what they're saying is, 'You're okay for a white dude.' And that's fine with me."

Ken Howard in scene from 'The White Shadow'

"Until now, shows based on sports have never done well on television. They usually put too much emphasis on the sport itself. Also, the sports action was ludicrous and unbelievable. The actors just didn't perform like athletes."

"The first thing we do after an actor reads for a role is to put a basketball in his hands. Some of them are basketball players and all of them are good athletes. If an actor isn't believable on the court, he doesn't get the job. So the basketball in our show is great."

"We play various Police Athletic League teams around the Los Angeles area for the basketball action shots in the series. The sports scenes add a very important dimension to the series."

"I believe 'The White Shadow' does a lot for basketball and represents blacks more honestly than any other series on the air. But less obviously, it does a lot for the direction of deals realistically with teenagers who will become adults in three or four years. It treats them as something other than stereotypes.

"We have a tremendously large audience among young people who see their contemporaries being treated as individuals with specific problems where color is not the all-important issue.

"Kids and their parents can and do relate to that. We have a lot to say on our show and manage to do it entertainingly."

Asimov Completes His 200th Book

At the rate he writes, science fiction author Isaac Asimov could put out his own book of the month club. Asimov just completed his 200th book, making him one of literature's most prolific authors.

But a friend, Ben Bova, says in Omni Magazine that literary critics who sniff haughtily at the idea of producing books in such quantity should cast their thoughts in the direction of Shakespeare. At his peak, the Bard of Avon was knocking out masterpieces at a rate of at least two a year.

"Asimov has many talents as a writer," says Bova, "but his special genius — when it comes to non-fiction — is his ability to approach the most complex subjects, dissect them neatly, and present them to his readers in terms of such precise clarity that anyone can understand them."
