Hurricane season 'wimpy'

MIAMI — The 1990 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season was active with eight storms recorded, but deemed "wimpy" in terms of strength since only Gustav reached Category 3 strength on the Saffir-Simpson Intensity scale, with maximum sustained winds of 120 mph, but it never came close to land. Midway shooting investigated

MIDWAY — Anthony Jermon Miller, 31, of 3010 E. State Road 46, Midway, was in stable condition when airlifted to an Orlando hospital with a gunshot wound to his stomach last night. Seminole County sheriff's deputies report.

A resident on Water Street, Midway, called deputies to the area after hearing a gunshot and cries for help at about 8:10 p.m. Thursday, the report said. Miller was lying wounded and said he had been shot by an unidentified man in the area.

A deputy on King Street near Water Street reported finding the site of a struggle and a bullet casing. Rescue workers treated Miller at the scene and he was transported to Orlando Regional Medical Center. A sheriff's investigator was called in to probe the incident.

Library impact fee studied

SANFORD — Seminole County planners will study whether the county will need a library impact fee so new residents will have plenty of books available. The county commission refused to pursue a $54 per home fee in 1987 that would have assured that on average, each resident would have 1 1/2 library books available. Commissioners at the time decided the fee wasn't needed and that the 1 1/2-book goal was too costly to achieve immediately.

County planners said recently $600,000 will be needed for the next five years to maintain a one book per person ratio, the county's current standard.

Commissioner Larry Furlong, who said he would seek the fee during his campaign this year, proposed this week that county staff update the 1987 study and prepare an ordinance so commissioners can adopt the fee. The proposal filed 3-2, with only commissioner Bob Sturm who made similar campaign pledges supporting Sturm.

Drug, black awareness taught

SANFORD — The West Sanford Boys and Girls Club, 919 S. Persimmon Avenue, is helping local teens face the drug problem, and while they're at it, teaching them about their heritage as well.

For one hour each Wednesday, beginning at 7:30 p.m., the club is hosting a drug awareness and prevention group for teenagers, combined with a study on black awareness and culture.

Lewis Parker and William Lewis of "The Bridge" rehabilitation center are leading the groups.

"People tend to think of sports when they hear about Boys and Girls Clubs," said Lillian Morris, the branch's program director, "but we're a lot more than that." She said, "This program helps them deal with their own personal adjustment as young adults."

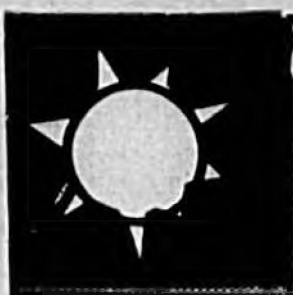

The program is open to all teens, ages 13 to 18, with sessions held each Wednesday evening at the clubhouse, 919 S. Persimmon Ave.

For further information, contact the West Sanford Boys and Girls Club, 330-2456.

Weekend of festivals

Miss St. Lucia to be crowned during festival

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The naming and crowning of the 1990 Miss St. Lucia during the second annual "Light Up Sanford" observance will highlight activities in downtown Sanford tomorrow.

At the beginning of festivities scheduled for 6 p.m., at the intersection of First Street and Park Avenue, Mayor Bettye Smith will light the city's official tree.

Pageant Director Gail Stewart will then introduce the Miss St. Lucia candidates and announce the winner. The actual crowning will be done by Mr. and Mrs. Kai Ringenon from Stockholm, who represent Park Suite Hotels, a Swedish Company and major sponsor of the festival.

The young lady chosen as Miss St. Lucia will be crowned during the festival. See Crowning, Page 5A

Red Lobster Regatta on Lake Monroe

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — A big weekend on the waters of Lake Monroe could prove to be a multi-faceted boon to the city of Sanford through tourism and national if not worldwide publicity.

Several thousand people are expected to turn out this weekend for the Red Lobster Cup sailing regatta. The three-day event begins this Friday at noon, and continues until somewhere around sundown Sunday.

Some of the nation's top sailing and boating magazine writers will be covering the event in Sanford. Sailing World has already written, "with 516 boats competing in 43 classes on six separate courses, the Red Lobster Cup seems in little danger of losing its title as the See Regatta, Page 5A

Stroll through history in the Tour of Homes

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A civic building and seven private homes will be open for tours this weekend during the Sanford Historic Trust 1990 Tour of Homes.

The buildings, most of which have been completely restored, range in age from 84 to 103 years in age, and stand as excellent examples of the lifestyle in the early homes of Sanford.

The headquarters for this year's event, and the first stopping place on the tour is the Sanford Cultural Arts Building, 5th Street at Oak Avenue, built in 1923 to serve as the Sanford Public Library. It is one of many structures in the city designed by Elton J. Moughton, Sr.

Other points on the tour were all built as private residences.

The present home of Walt Padgett, 420 S. Oak Avenue was constructed in 1894 by James Cochran Higgins, an engineer/supervisor with the Atlantic Coastline Railroad. Some of the renovation is still to be done but visitors will be able to see most of the house.

The oldest home on the tour is at 714 Oak Ave., having been built by the Florida Land and Colonization Co., Ltd., of London, England, who purchased the property from Henry Sanford. The present owner, Helen Hickey said she has been unable to establish the year in which the house was constructed, but has determined it was at one time sold to Thomas and Annie Tutwiler in April, 1887.

The home of Julia and Michael Goeb was built in 1914 for Mrs. H.H. Peabody, although because of a long-time residence by the Ed Higgins family, it has become known as the "Higgins House." Specific details on what the house may have looked like when first built are lacking, so the Goebes are restoring it in keeping with the decor of that era rather than trying to copy the original home.

Although a historical survey identifies the house at 910 Elm Ave. as the Tom Geizen house, the present owners, Monte and Sue Oringer, have been unable to learn what role Geizen had in the history of the structure. The home was completed in 1927 at a cost of $1,100 with the first owner identified as L.B. McCullum. The old style wall mounted push-button light switches are still operative.

One of the smaller homes on the tour is the home of Jerry and Eline Ransom, 118 W. 19th Street, built in 1928. While the 1,200 square foot home contains only two bedrooms and one bath, it was at one time used as a duplex. According to what Ransom, "All the houses on this block were apparently built during the same year. They were even See Homes, Page 5A

Legal tangle still haunts benefit ball

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Despite a legal tangle that could take more than six months to resolve, a ball to benefit children and seniors will be held this Sunday by a group calling itself the Seminole Ornament Society.

Another group calling themselves the Seminole Ornament Society sought to dissolve the two-year-old corporation in Seminole County circuit court in July and to donate the bulk of its assets to the Seminole Children's Village.

The people sponsoring the ball Sunday at the Altamonte Springs Hilton rebuked the action, calling it illegal and filing a suit against the first group. No hearings are expected for at least six months.

I think this woman is attempting to become the Leona Helmsley of Heathrow. —Randy Morris

Despite the often bitter accusations that continue between the two factions, a ball organizer said the public response has been good.

"People have been so generous," said Bonnie Manjura, president of the ball's board of directors. "I don't want to think the negative publicity has helped, but maybe it made more people aware we were here."

Manjura said about 350 people have accepted free tickets to the event. Under the organization's rules, the ball is sponsored by individual and corporate "hosts" who each contribute $500 towards ball expenses and receive 20 tickets in return. Each couple receiving a ticket is admitted free but must bring two gifts for a child or senior.

Toys collected from the event will be donated to several local organizations for distribution including the Foster Care Unit, the school migrant program and social service division and the Children's Home Society.

Manjura said. Gifts for seniors will be donated to the Good Samaritan Home for distribution, she said.

Both SOS factions have accused the other of using SOS for political ends. Last year's host list included some of the stalwarts of the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee, including county commissioner Fred Streetman, Dick VanDer Weide, Ed DePuy and Mike Saporito. The honorary chairman of the ball were Congressman Bill McCollum and his wife Ingrid McCollum, both active party members.

This year, none of those hosts are participating and the 16 hosts now include party critics Eoghan Kelley and Gerri and Grant McEwan and See SOS, Page 5A

Seminole High committee honors first student for her volunteerism

SANFORD — The Seminole High School Community and Student Action Committee (COMSAC) yesterday presented their first community service award to Shannon Latimer, a senior.

Mayor Bettye Smith, who is a member of the COMSAC was on hand to present Latimer with a special plaque, a letter of commendation from the group and $50 in cash.

"Shannon is a fine student and we are proud of her," Smith said.

Assistant principal Carma Norman, who was on hand for the presentation, said that Latimer was a "good example" to all the other students at the school.

"Shannon is the most responsible and trustworthy student you could hope for," Norman said.

Smith made the presentation to Latimer unannounced during classes yesterday morning.

Latimer had been going from class to class with assistant principal Bobby Lundquist trying to sign up potential blood donors for a senior class blood drive.

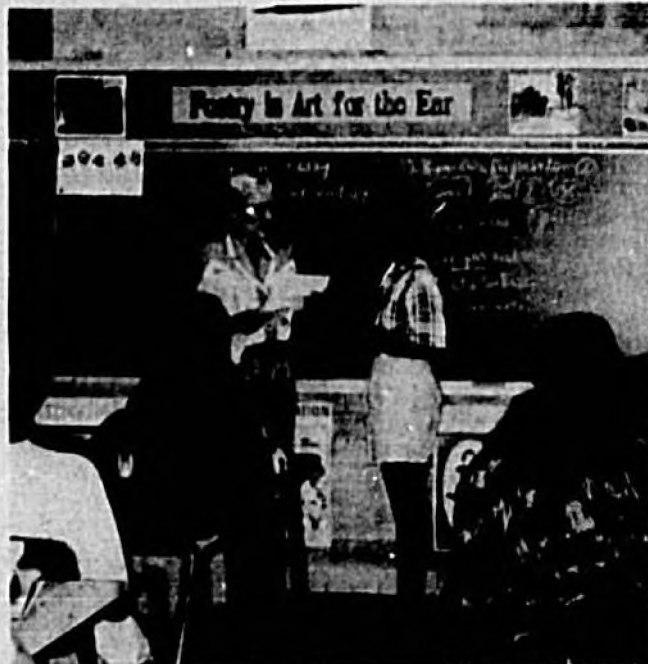

Though she has won many awards, especially during the last month, the senior was surprised by the visit.

"This is wonderful," she said. "Thank you."

After the presentation, Latimer returned to the task at hand, amid praise from teachers, students and administrators.

Latimer, who has been president of her class all four years in high school, has consistently been named to the honor roll, has served as editor of the year book for two years, and was named homecoming queen two weeks ago.

She was recently named student of the year by the LAKE MARY — The City of Lake Mary is combining Monday evening's swearing-in ceremony for newly elected mayor Randy Morris, with a yuletide holiday event and the official lighting of city hall.

Festivities are scheduled to begin at 7:30 Monday evening, with the city welcoming its new Mayor Randy Morris who will be sworn into office.

Morris' first act on behalf of the city will be to throw the switch lighting up the holiday decorations in, on and around city hall.

John Holland, the city's Director of Parks and Recreation said, "We have a holiday barbershop quartette coming in to serenade us, and there will be refreshments as well."

Holland said the city hall will also be hosting a winter visitor Monday evening, Mr. S. Claus who resides at the North Pole but has been known to make annual visits to the residents of Lake Mary.

Toll collectors accused of stealing

ORLANDO — Three toll-collectors at the Florida Turnpike's Wildwood plaza are charged with stealing thousands of dollars in toll money.

The Florida Highway Patrol said the collectors are accused of pocketing some motorists' money and flushing the computer-card receipts down the toilet.

Authorities became suspicious when the tolls at the Wildwood Toll Plaza backed up a couple of months ago.

The Department of Transportation called a sewer company. When a sewer repairman pulled the lid off a septic tank, there was a sea of toll tickets.

Highway Patrol Lt. Chuck Williams said investigators believe thousands of dollars a week had been taken for at least four months.

Charged with petty theft and official misconduct are Valeria T. Edward, 28; Lillie M. Parker, 27, and Rose M. Storks, 38. They are all from Wildwood.

Seatbelts may have saved passengers

ORLANDO — A Florida Highway Patrol investigator said four farmworkers might have survived an accident in east Lake County if the van they were in had seats and seatbelts.

FHP investigator Jim Briggs said of the 11 passengers, up to four people were thrown from the van when it collided with a truck last week. The four were killed. The others were treated at a Eustis hospital.

The van was carrying migrant farmworkers from the Simmons Labor Camp in Ponce de Leon Park to a nursery in Palatka near the accident site.

The Highway Patrol investigation shows that only the driver and front passenger had seats. Most of the workers sat in the back on benches made of planks and concrete blocks.

State and federal laws require vehicles that transport farm workers to have seats and seatbelts. The state and federal labor departments have begun investigating the accident.

Residents say worshippers too noisy

CLARCONA — Residents say worshippers at a Wat Navaram Buddhist Temple are too noisy.

Scores of cars park in front of the converted house on weekends and the monks use loudspeakers to lead the worshippers in chants, resident said. The temple opened six months ago.

Residents said they've got nothing against Buddhism, but they want the monks and their temple out of the neighborhood. Ossié Martinez, who lives across the street from the temple, said he's got 25 names on a petition this week demanding that the temple be moved.

The monks expressed surprise upon hearing about the complaints and said they will try to keep the noise down.

Orange County Commissioner Tom Staley said his office received a complaint this week and is looking into whether the temple violates any county codes.

NOW Chapter joins boycott

MIAMI — The Dade County Chapter of the National Organization for Woman is joining the 4-month-old boycott of Miami convention sites started by black leaders.

The boycott was triggered by the snubbing of Nelson Mandela by local elected officials this summer.

Local NOW officials said they will not conduct any meetings, banquets or other functions at Miami-area hotels.

The Dade NOW Chapter's announcement follows the decision by the national organization to join the economic protest against the Miami tourist and convention industry.

Miami Mayor Xavier Suarez and Miami Beach Mayor Alex Daoud recently signed a letter that admitted Mandela's visit was handled improperly.

Metro Mayor Stephen Clark apologized Thursday for snubbing the anti-apartheid leader. City leaders are hoping to bring the Miami black convention boycott to an end.

Study finds bias in city contracts

JACKSONVILLE — A report released Thursday concludes there has been a pattern of discrimination against businesses headed by women and minorities in the awarding of government contracts in Jacksonville.

City officials said the report substantiates their arguments that local government agencies need special set-aside programs to channel a fair share of government contracts to minorities and women.

The report on contracting procedures from a number of local agencies found a pattern of failure to reach out to minority- and women-owned firms or to consistently apply contracting procedures.

Those firms also ran into trouble getting the necessary licenses, certification as minority enterprises and performance bonds, the report said.

"Procurement laws and procedures appear to be free of blatantly restrictive language," it said.

Martinez drug czar

By THOMAS FERRARO
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush has selected outgoing Florida Gov. Bob Martinez as the nation's new anti-drug director, and is expected to announce his nomination Friday, sources said Thursday.

The sources said Martinez, who quietly left Tallahassee, Fla., for Washington Thursday, was expected to join the president at the White House for a mid-afternoon announcement.

Martinez, a Republican, was defeated in his bid for reelection on Nov. 6 by Democrat Lawton Chiles. He would replace William Bennett as director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy.

The position is subject to Senate confirmation, and he has already lined up the backing of Florida's two senators, Democrat Bob Graham and Republican Connie Mack. Chiles has also expressed support for him.

Bennett announced his resignation as anti-drug director on Nov. 8. His final day on the job is Friday. With the backing of Bush, he is expected to become governor ends Jan. 8, has experience in fighting drugs.

He served as the point man for the National Governors' Association on drug policy, spearheaded drives for workplace drug testing and got the state legislature to expand the death sentence to cover drug kingpins.

Although the White House appears impressed with his credentials, Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control, said he would prefer someone with more experience and not "someone who has lost an election and needs a job."

Martinez' office announced his departure from Tallahassee Thursday about three hours after he left the state capital, but did not give a reason.

"The governor will overnight in Washington. Information about his Friday schedule will be released later," Martinez' office said in a terse statement.

Asked what Martinez would do in Washington, press secretary Jon Peck said, "I dunno. It's a nice city, lots of places to play tourist in."

Expert says impact fees cannot meet cost of growth in Florida

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — Impact fees alone cannot meet the cost of growth and local governments must seek other sources of revenue, such as higher property taxes, a university study released Thursday shows.

While impact fees may not be the economic burden developers claim, they are also not a panacea to pay for all new growth-related government services, said study author Peter Waldman, a researcher at the University of Florida.

Florida lags 20 years behind in meeting the needs of its residents and therefore must seek sources of revenue besides impact fees, such as higher property taxes, to pay for new development, Waldman said.

"Impact fees can be a supplemental form of revenue, but they can't pay for everything," Waldman said. So, in the battle over who will pay for

Florida's growth," statesmanship must prevail over politics."

Developers pay impact fees to help offset the costs of putting in water and sewer systems, roads, schools and other government services necessitated by new residential areas, shopping centers and malls.

About half of Florida's 67 counties have adopted impact fees of varying amounts as a way to make growth pay for itself. Developers claim impact fees hurt the construction industry because the charges increase building costs.

But after studying the effects of impact fees on construction in Escambia, Martin, St. Johns, Sarasota and Volusia counties, Waldman found little evidence to support that claim.

"In his study, Waldman measured the effect of impact fees on gross sales in construction, gross sales in construction materials, single-family housing starts and multi-family housing starts. Waldman found no changes in construction sales due to impact fees.

However, multi-family housing starts decreased in all five counties after impact fees were implemented. Escambia, St. Johns and Sarasota counties also experienced downturns in single-family starts, according to the study.

Waldman attributed the swings in the housing market more to factors such as population shifts or temporary housing glut than to impact fees.

As part of the 1985 Florida Growth Management Act, all new development has to be accompanied by the necessary roads, water and sewer systems, schools and other services normally provided by local government to support the development. Each local government is required to submit a comprehensive plan to the state for its approval.

Tropical season active but 'wimpy'

United Press International

MIAMI — The 1990 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season was active in the number of storms but "wimpy" in terms of strength, said an analysis released Thursday by one of the nation's leading hurricane experts.

Colorado State University hurricane specialist William Gray had predicted there would be six hurricanes — two major ones — during the season. There were eight and only Gustav reached Category 3 strength on the Saffir-Simpson intensity scale, with maximum sustained winds of 120 mph, but it never came close to land.

"It was an active season by number of named storms, but not a very active season by intensity of the storms," Gray said in a telephone conversation from his office at the university. "It was a year of many wimpy storms."

There were 14 named storms during the season which caused at least 118 deaths, mainly due to flash flooding, and untold amounts of damage.

Gray, who has been making annual hurricane predictions since 1984, has said that his data indicates the '90s will bring devastating hurricanes to the eastern U.S. coast. He stood by that projection despite the relatively weak 1990 season.

"When I made that prediction I didn't necessarily mean we would get the intense storms this year. I was talking about this decade," he said. "I still think we are in for a series of major hurricanes."

The hurricane season runs from June 1 to Nov. 30.

In June, Gray predicted there would be three major hurricanes this year, but he revised that to two in August.

He initially predicted 30 hurricane days and revised that to 25 in August. There turned out to be 28.

Diana was the only hurricane that made it out of the open Atlantic. Its 100-mph winds caused at least 98 deaths from flash flooding and as yet undetermined amounts of damage in Mexico. Hurricane Bertha was responsible for nine deaths including seven on ships in the Atlantic.

Above-average rainfall in 1988 and 1989 led him to believe the 20-year drought was ending, therefore he predicted higher hurricane intensity in 1990.

It was an active season by number of named storms, but not a very active season by intensity of the storms. —Expert William Gray

Arrest in burglary

SANFORD - A man who alleged accompanied his brother to force entry to a woman's home at 1810 Peach Ave., Sanford, Tuesday night, has been arrested by Sanford police.

Timothy Eugene Lawrence, 25, of 1811 W. 16th St., Sanford, was charged with burglary at 9:21 p.m. Thursday at the police station. His brother Reginald Lawrence, 21, who is accused of beating the woman, was arrested Wednesday on charges of armed burglary, aggravated battery, aggravated assault and use of a firearm in a felony.

Couple arrested after search

LONGWOOD - City County Investigative Bureau agents with a warrant searched a house at 557 Pasadena Ave., Longwood at about 10 p.m. Thursday.

Two residents there were arrested after cocaine, marijuana and drug paraphernalia were reportedly found.

Both Cynthia Ann Weaver, 34, and Michael Dennis Weaver, 37, were charged with possession of more than 20 grams of marijuana and possession to distribute marijuana, and possession of cocaine, a short barrel shotgun and drug paraphernalia.

Auto theft charged

SANFORD - City police who spotted and stopped a stolen car on Southwest Road at about 9:45 p.m. Thursday arrested the driver.

Willie Jerome Montgomery, 21, of 101 Geneva Gardens, Sanford, is charged with grand theft auto.

Yankee Lake system construction set

SANFORD - Construction could begin in January on the wetlands disposal system for the county's Yankee Lake wastewater treatment plant between Interstate 4 and the Wekiva River.

Seminole County commissioners Tuesday awarded a $3.2 million bid to Conduit & Foundation Corp. to construct the system. County environmental services director Gary Cinder said construction will begin in early January and take 12 months to complete. When complete, highly treated wastewater from the plant will be sprayed into the southern end of the system and flow overground to a ditch draining into the St. Johns River.

The system can treat up to 2.5 million gallons of sewage daily. Cinder said he expects about 250,000 gpd will be available by Dec. 1991. The treatment plant has been operational since April but only wellwater has been circulated because the disposal system was not complete and adequate sewage flow was not available.

Cinder said he expects the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to issue a drainage permit for the system in January. He said he has received a draft permit from EPA, indicating their intent to issue the needed permit to dump the treated wastewater into the St. Johns River.

Sanford officials defend Lake Mary deal

By NICK PFEIFFER

SANFORD - During the political campaigning for the job of District 3 city commissioner, much has been said regarding the pros and cons of a plan where Sanford will pay Lake Mary $2.2 million to take reclaimed water off its hands.

Incumbent City Commission A.A. McClanahan says he is proud that he proposed the idea because it has been beneficial to Sanford.

But, challenger Martha Yancey has blasted him for his part in the 1988 commission decision to pay Lake Mary to take the treated wastewater, saying, "Charity begins at home."

City officials, in interviews this week, defended the move as a necessary economic move rather than a waste of taxpayers money.

"Actually, it was one of the least expensive methods for a long-term period that we found," said Bill Simmons, city director of engineering and planning.

Several years ago, the state Department of Environmental Regulation ordered Sanford to stop dumping the treated wastewater into Lake Monroe, and the city began work on a project that would have the water piped to the airport property where it would be disposed of through use as irrigation waters.

The city is required to file what is called a "201 plan" with DER explaining how the wastewater is to be disposed of. DER, however, requires the city to have a guaranteed commitment for the wastewater disposal that would cover a period of many years. Because of Federal Aviation Administration rules that govern airport operation, a long-term commitment was not possible.

Faced with DER threatening to withhold $8.3 million in various wastewater treatment grants, Sanford undertook an agreement with the City of Lake Mary in June 1988, where Sanford would pay a total of $2.2 million to Lake Mary for disposal of the wastewater.

Sanford installed a reclaimed water distribution system, with a branch going to the second largest piece of property owned by the city, the Mayfair golf course. That was already under construction at the time the agreement was made with Lake Mary.

Sanford was then required to construct a system from Mayfair to the edge of the Timucuan property at the Sanford/Lake Mary city limits, and paid $1.11 million of the total to Lake Mary. Simmons said the money came from utility rate money, available through $20 million in bonds.

Lake Mary, in turn, used the money for a watering system easement at Timucuan and a further distribution system.

Simmons gave examples of costs to Sanford for the Lake Mary sale versus other distributions of the wastewater.

"It cost Sanford $151,800 to build a booster station and handle all of the lines required to go to the Rantoul Lane area for distribution into Lake Mary," he said. "Lake Mary has guaranteed disposal of 750,000 gallons per day, for a 25-year period, the kind of long-term hard capacity the DER was looking for from Sanford."

Simmons said this costs Sanford 77 cents per daily gallon. "At the Mayfair," he said, "the cost was $1.31 per gallon, although it may end up to be slightly lower."

He also discussed distribution to neighborhoods. "We took a survey of various neighborhoods to determine where disposal of reclaimed water would be most cost effective, and figured the cost to the city for the various areas."

Simmons said the costs ranged from $1.50 per gallon up. "We stopped figuring when we got to $4.80 per gallon because those figures were getting too high," he said.

The cost per gallon paid to Sanford by the homeowners in whatever subdivisions are selected for this wastewater irrigation system would be much lower. According to Simmons, "The property owner would pay only 5 cents per thousand gallons plus a regular fee of $3.25 per month.

Simmons compared the 5 cent per gallon charge for reclaimed water to the city's present charge of $1.17 per thousand for potable water.

By submitting a revised 201 plan to the DER, Sanford managed to avoid losing the $8.3 million state and federal grant.

"So far," said Simmons, "we have received $6.3 million of it, to refurbish our treatment and distribution system. The remaining $3 million is tied to a site development and we'll get that after it's finished."

Meanwhile, Sanford's officials are moving ahead with plans to supply reclaimed water for residential irrigation in a number of sections and subdivisions of the city.

City commission candidates running close in fundraising

By NICK PFEIFFER

SANFORD - With only a few more days left before District 3 voters go to the polls Dec. 4 to elect a city commissioner, campaign contributions reported by the two candidates are quite close.

Incumbent A.A. "Mac" McClanahan has reported a total of $4,170 in contributions while challenger Martha Yancey has reported $3,254. The amounts include in-kind contributions.

During the reporting periods of April 7 through Nov. 9, McClanahan reported expenses of $1,349 while Yancey reported $649.

In contributions, $200 each were given to McClanahan from Shirley Schilke, of Harcar Aluminum, and Attorney J. Scott Kirk. He received $250 contributions from Grand Romance Inc., W. L. Kirk; William F. Hicks Auto Sales; Contractor W. Wendell Agee; real estate broker Helen L. Stairs; general contractor Robert McKee; A-OK Tire Mart; Joseph Gazil; and building contractor William Miller. McClanahan's contributors also included Sanford Mayor Bettey Smith and her husband with a combined total of $110.

Yancey's contributions included $250 from Kathryn Williamson, of Apopka, and $200 from Central Produce and Equipment, of Heathrow. She had also invested $200 of her own money.

Yancey received $100 contributions from Tim Stevens, of Lake Mary; Faye Kelly; Shirley Schilke; Delbert Abney; Therm-O-Gas; J.P. and Mildred Stevens; Sanford Ace Hardware; Don and Barbara Moore; Peggy Teten; Ray Sage; Dorothy McReynolds; and Ned Yancey, the candidate's husband.

Smaller contributions were also received with Yancey reporting 35 separate $1.00 amounts.

The final reporting period for the two candidates is Friday.

DEAR SANFORD VOTERS:

In 1987 the Sanford City Commission approved a budget of $18,058,108 - this year (1990-1991) the City Commission approved a budget of $21,745,411 - an increase of $3,686,302.00 in four years. IS YOUR SERVICE THAT MUCH BETTER - you pay a high price for garbage pickup, water and sewage. HAVE YOU HAD AN INCREASE IN YOUR YEARLY INCOME? The taxpayers keep paying out more each year for city services. DONT YOU THINK IT IS TIME FOR A CHANGE?

AS A STRONG LEADER, I WILL WORK FOR THE FOLLOWING:

1. Slim the budget - take out all the fat
2. Hold the line on City taxes - Sanford's tax rate is the highest in the county
3. Stop wasteful spending of taxpayers money (my opponent voted to pay Lake Mary 2.2 million dollars to take Sanford's reclaimed water, 750,000 gallons per day for 25 years) if Sanford residents get the water they will pay for it - I was taught to love thy neighbor but charity begins at home.
4. Control quality growth - encourage light industry - more jobs
5. City-wide beautification through the Civic Clubs
6. When less expensive, use private sector for services
7. Better City Management - stability in City Government
8. Improve communications between City Government and city employees
9. Update and delete city codes and ordinances where needed
10. Support our most precious resources - our children who will be our leaders of tomorrow.

AS A LEADER I KNOW THAT THE CITY HAS TO FIRST REGAIN AND MAINTAIN FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY AND ACCOUNTABILITY.

AS YOUR CITY COMMISSIONER MY GOALS WILL BE TO APPROVE SENSIBLE BUDGETS, MEET THE NEEDS OF THE CITY FOR THE PRESENT, AND THE FUTURE. TO BE ABLE TO ACCOMPLISH MY GOALS, I NEED YOUR VOTE ON DECEMBER 4. TOGETHER WE CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE!!

MORE WASTEFUL SPENDING OF TAXPAYERS MONEY!

Commissioners dine while mosquitos swarm (when have the mosquitos been sprayed in your area). Workshop meeting of the City Commission on Monday November 26 - a buffet of beautiful sandwiches, salad, fruit, dessert and drinks was their enjoyment after the meeting -

PAID BY TAXPAYERS!

(Public record at City Hall) This isn't the first time they have eaten their meals on the taxpayers - It has been going on approximately a year - (Public record at City Hall)

McClanahan for Sanford Commission

When Sanford was threatened by the state Department of environmental Regulation with the loss of more than $8 million in grants because the city was dumping treated waste from its sewer plant into Lake Monroe, Commissioner A.A. McClanahan proposed an arrangement whereby the so-called grey water could be piped to Lake Mary.

The deal eventually will cost Sanford $2.2 million — much of it paid by state and federal grants — and it was the least expensive of the alternatives identified. The city commission voted to approve the arrangement in 1988.

Equally important, the deal resulted in preserving millions of dollars in financial grants to the city for wastewater treatment projects.

Just this week, Mr. McClanahan pushed for and got from the developers of the proposed mall on the western edge of Sanford, an oral promise that the city would receive 50 percent of the revenue from the special tax increment financing, all of which originally had been designated for the developers to cover road construction costs.

In the interim, Mr. McClanahan — after proposing cuts in the city budget as a way of holding the line on expenses and keeping a lid on the tax rate — was the only commissioner for the past two years to vote against the budget as not adequately frugal.

These are but a few examples of the fiscal responsibility that is one of Mr. McClanahan's hallmarks. It, coupled with the knowledge of the city and the attendant expertise he has accumulated during 11 years of service, commend Mr. McClanahan for re-election.

Favoring Mr. McClanahan is no slight to Mrs. Yancey. Though she has no experience as an elected representative, she does have an impressive resume of community service.

For the past 15 years, she vigorously has been Sanford's unofficial ambassador, working sometimes tirelessly on behalf of one civic project or another. The city is fortunate to have someone with such spirit and dedication.

But when the voters of District 3, which includes the east-central portions of the city outside of the downtown and historic areas, go to the polls next Tuesday, they should remember that Mr. McClanahan, though we have not always agreed with him, nevertheless has acquitted himself well as a commissioner and does not deserve to be retired.

Sun sets on movies

A lot of us have probably had more or less the same thought that got Steve Sun arrested the other night. Sun, a tax attorney on his way home on a United Airlines flight to Los Angeles, used his own earphone to listen to the sound of the in-flight movie, "Presumed Innocent," a film that happens to be about lawyers.

Members of the cabin crew warned him that he had to pay the $4 fee for rental of a headset. If he continued to use his own without paying, the pilot would have to notify security and, when he left the friendly skies and landed, he would be subject to arrest. Sun replied that he was a lawyer, "and that if anything happened on the ground, I would file a suit."

Sun continued to watch the movie, and, as the cabin attendants had warned him, he was arrested when the flight landed, handcuffed and held for three hours before being released. The charge was theft of the sound of the movie.

Sun was not booked. Instead, the matter was referred to the Los Angeles city attorney's office where, if wisdom prevails, the matter will get lost. Sun, who says he found his headset years ago in an airport trash can, still believes that the movie comes with the flight. "This is the first I've heard that you have to pay even if you use your own headset...I thought they literally charged for the use of the headset."

Literally, in fact, that's what most airline crews say they do. But as a United spokesman pointed out, "the charge is for the audio track of the movie...not for the physical headset." If Sun sues, perhaps hereafter the airlines will announce that the $4 is for rental of the sound, not the earmuffs. In any case, you can watch the movie for free, sound or no sound. Most of the movies they show nowadays are just as comprehensible without it.

Thatcher stood for freedom for all

One of the most remarkable of the many remarkable things about Margaret Thatcher was how little her career owed to the noisy feminists who presume to speak for today's women.

I cannot recall ever having heard Mrs. Thatcher complain about the discrimination she undoubtedly experienced in the "man's world" of Britain's Tory politics. On the contrary, she rose firmly up the ladder with the rest of her generation of aspiring politicians, ousted and replaced the dithering Ted Heath as leader of the Conservative Party, won the prime ministership in her own right, broke the power of Britain's arrogant labor unions, reversed the slide of the British economy toward socialism, installed the principles of free enterprise in its place, restored her country's pride by retaking the Falklands from Argentina, became the only British Prime Minister in this century to win three general elections in a row, and stepped down acknowledged, even by her enemies, as the most impressive holder of that office since Winston Churchill.

And all the while the Betty Friedans and Gloria Steinems on both sides of the Atlantic were yakking (quite profitably, of course) about how a woman couldn't get an even break.

Let us do Margaret Thatcher the courtesy of ignoring her gender as serenely as she did, and look at her two most important achievements.

She came to power in Britain for the same reason that Ronald Reagan, just one year later, came to power in the United States: She stood foursquare for the proposition that free men and women, making their own economic choices with their own money, could do far better for themselves, and in the process benefit society far more, than a Nanny State that wanted to tax their resources away and spend them on what it considered the public weal.

Like all who labor in the vineyards of politics, she had to make compromises. But there is no doubt at all that she left Britain far freer and stronger than she found it, and she may well have made the difference between its total collapse and its survival as a viable nation.

In the field of international affairs her performance was almost equally spectacular and probably even more important. Throughout almost the whole decade of the 1980s she was one of four Western leaders who formed an absolutely implacable front against the advance of world communism. The others were Ronald Reagan, West Germany's Helmut Kohl, and Yasuhiro Nakasone, the longest-lasting of a steady succession of conservative Japanese premiers. These were the four leaders who together formed the stone wall into which communism helplessly drove Soviet society, smashing it to smithereens.

It is idle but amusing, in the safety of retrospect, to speculate on what might have happened during the critical decade of the 1980s if the four nations in question had been led by (say) Michael Dukakis, the British Labor Party's Neil Kinnock, West Germany's Social Democrat standard-bearer Oskar Lafontaine, and Japanese socialism's Mitsu Dot.

Time running out for Saddam

WASHINGTON — Globe trotting President Bush returned home from his travels apparently convinced that the time has come to deliver a U.N. ultimatum to Iraq's Saddam Hussein.

Bush, who made his case against Iraqi aggression, was successful in diplomatic arm twisting during his European-Mideast journey and convinced major world leaders that it was time to act. He even convinced a reluctant Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to come on board.

So his diplomatic coup has been masterly. But voting for the use of military force and going to war are two different things.

Those voting for the U.N. resolution on the use of all necessary means to enforce compliance with world demands that Iraq withdraw from Kuwait must realize that it cannot be an idle threat. It is the green light.

"I'm tired of the status quo and so is the rest of the world," Bush told reporters at a news conference in Cairo.

The president obviously feels that time is not on his side in holding together for long the 26-nation coalition in terms of troop and other commitments in the Persian Gulf crisis.

He may be right. The erosion on the hope front is already beginning in show.

The support Bush had when he initiated a defensive strategy to protect Saudi Arabia after Iraq invaded and annexed Kuwait last Aug. 2 is waning as the prospect of a major war with untold suffering unfolds.

There is no question that Bush was inspired by the high morale of the American troops he visited on the front lines in Operation Desert Shield and found the GIs ready to jump in the fray.

But the other side of coin is that he has said little about the sacrifices or the cost of a shooting war.

And surely he has some intelligence estimates on Iraq's ability to hold out or to deliver even greater vengeance on the region.

Both the president and Secretary of State James Baker have been highly visible in promoting their cause. But they have not been too forthcoming in permitting the people to be in on the dialogue or the debate on whether the United States should go to war and what is expected of the American people.

The lessons of Vietnam have made Americans wary of foreign ventures where they have a hard time identifying their interests with price they will be called on to pay.

Baker, in particular, has a small cozy clique he established at the start of the Reagan administration, who moved with him from the White House where he headed the Treasury Department and now the State Department.

That does not necessarily make his coterie experts on foreign policy. In fact, his tendency to ignore the experts in the department is notorious, reminding one of the days of Henry Kissinger, who ran foreign policy under his hat and was contemptuous of the bureaucrats.

Beyond that there is no evidence that outside authorities on the Middle East, or on war and peace, or on the consequences of a conflict in the Persian Gulf, have been consulted.

Bush may be feeling that he can pull another Panama knockout punch in a couple of days as he did during the yuletide season in 1989 when he went after dictator Manuel Noriega.

He did not need much of an excuse to launch an invasion of Panama, and he did have the basic support of Panamanians. But an attack on Iraq might rally the Arabs at home and in nearby countries to Saddam's side.

When all is said and done, the new world order that Bush speaks of so often may also establish where the authority lies in the U.S. government to wage war.

The Constitution says Congress shall declare war. But that last occurred in World War II. Since then, the United States has been involved in two big wars, Korea in the early '50s and Vietnam in the '60s.

Grenada and Panama were side shows in terms of the magnitude of U.S. involvement. Nevertheless there is a restiveness and a growing demand on the part of the people to be in on the takeoffs and the landings when the lives of their loved ones are involved.

He even convinced a reluctant Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to come on board.

Turmoil in House GOP's leadership

WASHINGTON — The leadership of the House Democrats and Republicans is becoming a study in contrasts as the GOP thrashes about looking for the right combination and the Democrats enjoy a period of calm and stability.

It was just last year when the ranks of the Democratic leadership were decimated by the scandal-driven resignations of the House Speaker Jim Wright, of Texas, and Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., the No. 3 Democratic leader. Now, Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., and his leadership team, appear settled in for a long run.

On the GOP side, however, changes are in the works, and even if they do not materialize, the party will suffer through a period of intense self-scrutiny and reevaluation.

The GOP will suffer through a period of intense self-scrutiny and reevaluation.

Part of the turmoil involves the House Republicans' campaign committee and its co-chairmen, Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich., and Ed Rollins. Vander Jagt has been the unchallenged leader of the committee for 15 years and it came as a bitter surprise to him last week when Rep. Don Sundquist, R-Tenn., stood up to challenge him for the post.

Vander Jagt, in meetings with reporters, angrily assailed Sundquist for having the nerve to run against him, even going so far as to compare the move to Iraq leader Saddam Hussein's betrayal.

Co-chair Rollins was already in hot water because of his suggestion that GOP congressional candidates seek safety by running against President Bush and his endorsement of a budget package that included higher taxes. Bush was not pleased by that idea and appeared to want Rollins fired.

Neither Vander Jagt nor Rollins have a lot to brag about as a result of the election, in which the GOP lost ground to the Democrats and will be even a smaller minority in the new Congress.

By contrast, the chairmanship of the Democrats' campaign committee, is going to Rep. Vic Fazio, D-Calif., who had to be persuaded by other leaders to take over the post from Rep. Beryl Anthony, D-Ark., who wants to step down.

The campaign posts will be particularly important to both parties because the next election in 1992 will involve new congressional districts that will be redrawn based on the new census figures. Opportunities for big gains or big losses confront both parties in that situation.

Elsewhere in the leadership, the future of Rep. Newt Gingrich, of Georgia, the conservative No. 2 leader, was cast into doubt because of his surprise near-defeat in the election. His colleagues are sure to ask if Gingrich should stand as a party leader when the voters back in his home district are so split on whether he should even remain in Congress.

It is widely believed that House Republican leader Bob Michel, of Illinois, plans to retire after 1992, and Gingrich has his eyes on the top post. But so do others, including moderate Rep. Jerry Lewis, R-Calif., currently chairman of the Republican Conference.

Gingrich, in an apparent move to undermine Lewis, has reportedly been urging another colleague to run against Lewis for the conference post. So far, no one has announced plans to challenge Gingrich for his job.

Whatever happens in those and other leadership races will undoubtedly affect the decisions that are made in two years from now, when Michel's replacement is chosen.

Members of both parties will gather at the Capitol in early December to organize for the 102nd Congress that convenes in January and hold their leadership elections. The Democrats' meeting likely will be uneventful, but the Republicans promise theater.

Include party critics Eoghan Kelly and Gerri and Grant McKwan and includes former county commissioner Sid Vihlen. The honorary chairman will be Orlando Magic president and general manager Pat Williams and his wife Jill Williams.

The group that sought to dissolve SOS in July still wishes success for the ball.
"We wish the event all best success but we don't understand what all the hub-bub is about over the name," said Randy Morris. "The three of us have tried repeatedly to settle this so the ball can continue under another name with us out of it but Miss Manjura has chosen to publicize this, and not only to publicize this but to litigate."

The group that filed to dissolve SOS in July were Morris, Jim Stelling and Harry Hagle. All three were supporters of Bob Sturm's county commission reelection bid against Dick Fess, supported by Manjura.

Morris, Stelling and Hagle have said any actions to remove them from the SOS board were illegal because they were made by people who were not properly elected board members.

The rift first surfaced publically when anonymous copies of a letter from Manjura to Morris was sent to local media last May. Manjura wrote that Morris had failed to pay his $500 host fee and had been voted off the board of directors.

Manjura referred to the incident Thursday, saying "We don't like it when people stiff us for our commitments. It bothered me the way Randy Morris tried to grandstand with this."

Morris: "It's amazing to me Miss Manjura, while hiding behind a charitable organization, continues to slander people's good name. She knows that the commitment I made to the organization is held in a trust account with our attorney. It's Miss Manjura who is trying to use this as a P.R. ploy. It is she who called the new media. It is she who pursued litigation."

Manjura was recently involved in another public Lake Mary organization squabble when she resigned from the board of the Lake Mary-Heathrow Festival of the Arts, saying another group backed by Heathrow owner Arvida Corp. was staging a takeover.

"She did the same thing when she resigned from the Lake Mary-Heathrow arts festival," Morris said. "I think this woman is attempting to become the Leona Helmsley of Heathrow."

Swedish gathering set today

By BOB PFEBAUF
Herald staff writer

SANFORD - The second annual Swedish Gathering for descendants of Swedish immigrants brought to this country by Gen. Sanford in the 1870's, has been scheduled for this afternoon between 3 and 6 p.m. at the Sanford Cultural Arts Center, 5th Street at Oak Avenue.

This is the second such annual gathering, hosted by the St. Lucia Festival and the Sanford Historical Society. Activities will include story telling, exchanges of family histories, and the sharing of old photographs and memorabilia.

While the main guests will be the actual descendants of the early Sanford settlers, Lib Gallant, chairman of the gathering said, "We would be delighted to welcome anyone who can shed light on families and their history, as it relates to the Swedes here in Central Florida."

Gallant, who serves as chairman of the festival's Docent Program, hopes to make arrangements for face-to-face interviews with the people who will be attending, in order to document a history of the immigrants into this area. Regu-

Celebrities join Bush in urging service

By JANEY BASS
United Press International

WASHINGTON - The Beach Boys symbolize the carefree life of youth, but now the pop musicians think young people ought to do more with their lives than just have fun, fun, fun.

The Beach Boys, who rocketed to musical fame with such hits as "Fun, Fun, Fun" and "Surferin' USA," joined President and Mrs. Bush, singer Tiffany, Baltimore Oriole Cal Ripkin Jr. and other celebrities at the White House Thursday to recognize a group called StarServe, organized to encourage young people to get involved in community service.

StarServe is a partnership between the Kraft-General Foods Foundation, The (Mike) Love Foundation and the United Way of America. StarServe is sending 94,000 elementary schools materials to help teachers of grades 4-12 integrate community service into lesson plans.

"The idea is real simple. People ought to look at what they can do in their school, in their community, to get involved," Beach Boy Mike Love said in an interview before the event. "It could be as simple as calling the elderly, helping shut-ins or serving lunch at the local homeless center or cleaning up a beach."

Bush challenged every young person in America to serve their community.

"Barbara and I believe that if, at an early age, you learn to serve those in need, it will become the way you live your whole life, bringing a sense of meaning and adventure that simply can't be met," Bush said.

Love, who quipped he is "49 chronologically but because I'm into health and meditation I have the body of a 19-year-old Adonis," said the Beach Boys first met Bush 12 years ago and took an immediate liking to him.

"In fact, he's the only candidate we've ever done a fundraiser for," Love said. "He's a good guy, down to earth, a straight-shooting guy."

And when Love and his fellow musicians first heard Bush discuss his "Points of Light" initiative - intended to spur the public into volunteerism, "We came away very inspired to do something with our never-ending vibrations," Love said.

Regatta

country's largest inland regatta."

Lee Parks, inshore director of the U.S. Yacht Racing Union, called this weekend's event in Sanford "one of the all-time great regattas in the recorded history of the western civilization."

John H. Gardner Jr., executive director of the event, said he expects a large turnout. "We'll have an estimated 1,500 sailors alone," he said, "and they'll be bringing their families and friends. We also know there will be a lot of people watching our boats from the shores of Lake Monroe."

The regatta started in 1980 with a total of 183 boats entered in what was then called the Tangerine Bowl Regatta. In 1983, because of the dredging going on in Lake Monroe, the event was moved to Mt. Dora with only 135 boats entered but the following year when the regatta returned to Sanford, over 200 boats were in the water.

As was the case when the recent Golden Age Games participants were recognized by the T-shirts they wore, there will be Regatta shirts supplied to the participants this weekend, as well as "I Gotta Regatta" sweatshirts available for purchase.

Last year's regatta featured many sail boats on the lake.

Most of the Friday afternoon and Saturday morning activities, most of which will be held in the Sanford Civic Center, will be seminars, meetings and lectures.

Even though sailing enthusiasts will be coming from all over the nation for the event,

Seminole County has experts of its own. One of the seminars on boardsailing, scheduled for Saturday morning, is to be led by Andy Brandt of Caseberry, along with Kurt Schumacher of Sanford. Schumacher has won the U.S. Open Slalom Championships and placed third in the U.S. National Course Racing competition.

The first races are scheduled to begin at noon on Saturday. More races will begin at 9:30 Sunday morning.

The 1990 Red Lobster Cup is an official Florida Citrus Sports event, and is hosted by the Orlando Yacht Club. Local headquarters for the weekend's event is the Holiday Inn at the Sanford Marina.

Homes

Painted the same color."

Just up the street, at 110 W. 19th, the home of Rob and Beverly Elliot, also built in 1926 is also part of the tour. The house was originally built for attorney G.W. Spencer, and was completely renovated just five years ago. The house boasts a most unusual front portico with pillars. A point of pride to the Elliot's is the oak tree in the front yard, estimated at 400 years of age.

The home of Paul and Jane Porter, 2118 S. Park, took three years to build, being finished in 1926. The home was commissioned by John Metah, Sr., from Luxembourg, who was a prominent business, cultural and governmental leader in Sanford for many years. One of the few homes in Sanford with a basement, the house originally had underground utility lines as well and was one of the first homes to have a telephone.

All eight of these buildings will be open for tours both Saturday and Sunday, from 1 until 6 p.m. The present owners of the homes or their representatives will be on hand to conduct tours and answer questions.

Box lunches will be available from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. each day, at the Cultural Arts building for $6 each, with picnic tables set up in the park across the street.

Advance tickets are $2 for $15, available at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, but only through 5 p.m. today. Regular tickets, at $10 per person, will be available both tomorrow and Sunday beginning at 11 a.m., at the Sanford Cultural Arts Building, 6th at Oak, which is the starting point on the tour. Information booklets with addresses and information on all the locations will be given out at the Cultural Arts building.

Lake Mary

The event is open to the public, and Holland said he hopes as many Lake Mary residents as possible will be at City Hall to join in the festivities and help welcome the city's new mayor.

New Kids sued over alleged fan beating

United Press International

ATLANTA — An Atlanta nightclub patron has filed a lawsuit against members of the pop group, New Kids on the Block, contending their bodyguard beat him.

Filed Thursday in Fulton County Superior Court by Douglas Winston of Yonkers, N.Y., the complaint names singer Jordan Knight and bodyguard Steven Chandler.

The group performed at The Omni Thursday night.

Winston alleges that Chandler assaulted him Aug. 8 at Rupert's, a nightclub in Atlanta's Buckhead district where the group had gone after a performance.

Jeff Kaufman, Winston's attorney, said Chandler slugged his client as the bodyguard was being led out of the nightclub for an altercation with another patron.

Publishers hit by higher newsprint

By TERENCE FINAN
United Press International

The newspaper industry, already pinched as retailers and other businesses reduce their advertising budgets, is being financially squeezed from another side by increasing prices for newsprint.

There have been some outward signs recently of the industry's financial woes as publishers increase prices for single newsstand copies, subscriptions, advertising lineage, or a combination of all three.

Times-Dispatch and Richmond News Leader, morning and evening papers operated jointly by the Media General group, recently increased their daily single-copy price by 10 cents to 35 cents, the first price hike on single issues in 11 years.

The price on the combined papers' Sunday edition increased to $1.25 from $1 for the first rise in almost four years.

"It was a combination of factors. Certainly higher newsprint prices contributed to it," said Alf Goodykooz, executive editor of both papers.

labor and other things."

In New York, the New York Times recently announced increased newsstand prices and Dow Jones & Co. Inc. said it would boost prices for newsstand, subscription and ad prices for both The Wall Street Journal and Barron's, the financial weekly.

"There were a variety of reasons for it, including increased transportation costs and anticipated postage rate increases. And newsprint prices played into it," said Roger May, a spokesman for Dow Jones.

announced in June by newsprint manufacturers, as well as another increase scheduled to go into effect in January, could not have come at a worse time for publications as the effects of a nationwide recession ripple into newsrooms.

According to the Newspaper Advertising Bureau, total advertising expenditures at 1,824 daily newspapers across the United States for the first six months of this year were $15.60 billion. The total included classified, retail and national advertising.

'The world is deadly serious'

By THOMAS FERRARO
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush says he believes the U.N. Security Council resolution authorizing military force in the Persian Gulf crisis "will drive home the point" that Iraq must withdraw its troops from Kuwait. "I think this will drive home the point to him (Iraqi President Saddam Hussein) that he's got to get out of Kuwait," Bush said Thursday after the 15-member council voted 12-2 with one abstention to authorize force.

The president waited anxiously at the White House as the council debated and then approved the resolution, which permits military action if Saddam refuses to order his troops out of Kuwait by Jan. 15.

Speaking with reporters outside the office of White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater, Bush called the measure "a very powerful statement" and said: "Everybody ought to understand how strong it is."

Asked if the world was closer to war, Bush said, "Everybody wants a peaceful resolution. ... I hope we're closer to peace."

Then, ignoring a question on whether he would order a special session of Congress to debate the Persian Gulf crisis, Bush walked away, calling the resolution, "Very good news. Very good news."

Bush, who plans to meet with congressional leaders at the White House on Friday to discuss the issue, said earlier Thursday that he had "no plans" to summon lawmakers for a special session.

In an interview with the Spanish-language television network Univision, however, Bush promised he would continue to consult extensively with congressmen concerning the 4-month-old standoff "because it is important that we send a solid signal" to Iraq's Saddam Hussein.

"The main thing is to keep Congress fully informed. ... I think most will agree they've never had as much consultation on a subject as they have had on this one."

The administration has related the idea of a special session to discuss or act on U.S. policy in the Gulf but the question gained prominence as the council resolution neared passage.

Absent some great crisis, House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said the issue should be left to the 102nd Congress that comes into office in January.

On another issue, Fitzwater lashed out at testimony on Capitol Hill urging Bush to allow more time for economic sanctions

Argentina denies rumors of plot

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Argentine Interior Minister Mera Figueroa said rumors of a plot to kill President George Bush during his visit to Argentina next week are not true.

Figueroa told reporters Thursday evening the rumors were leaked by "some state organism" that he declined to identify and he said President Carlos Menem "has decided to investigate the origin of the information."

He said the information was published as a result of "inexact information that has some grains of truth, that came from a state organization and this is extremely serious."

The truthful parts of the plot, according to the minister, was that police arrested a Bolivian man, Carlos Monzon, on Nov. 22 for holding "false documentation."

Figueroa said Monzon "is accused of being a member of a terrorist organization" in Bolivia but that the accusation has not been proven.

Tutu convenes summit of black leaders

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu hosted a summit of black leaders that brought together many ideological foes but failed to lure Zulu leader Mangosuthu Buthelezia, a key figure in recent faction violence.

"We were amazed at the spirit that prevailed," a clearly pleased Tutu told reporters after six hours of talks Thursday. "They didn't scratch each other's eyes out and they were sitting within striking distance of one another."

Tutu called the conference to try to unite black political leaders before power-sharing negotiations with the government and to settle an unprecedented wave of black violence.

Although Buthelezia rejected Tutu's invitation, the Nobel Peace Prize laureate brought together delegates from 10 black homelands or political movements, including Nelson Mandela of the African National Congress and the ANC's smaller hard-line ideological rivals.

Tomorrow marks 5-cent increase in gasoline tax

By STEVEN NEUBROWNER
United Press International

WASHINGTON — American motorists, already suffering from higher prices at the gas pump, are about to get another jolt beginning Saturday when the federal tax on gas increases an additional 5 cents a gallon.

The increased tax, from 9 cents to 14 cents a gallon on unleaded fuel and 15 cents to 20 cents on diesel, was engineered by the Bush administration and Congress in the waning days of October as part of the 1991 budget deal.

It will affect virtually every segment of the nation's air, rail and ground transportation system.

The gas tax is expected to bring in revenues of $45 billion over five years, while a separate airline user tax will generate $11.8 billion during the same period, according to federal estimates.

Transportation tax increases, among the first to go into effect following the budget agreement, come at a time when fuel prices have soared to record levels

NBC wins close November sweeps race

By JOAN HANAUER
UPI Feature Writer

NEW YORK — NBC won the November sweeps, the first sweeps count of the 1990-91 television season, but this year it was a horrace instead of a runaway win, it was reported Thursday.

The NBC victory was no surprise — it was the network's sixth consecutive November sweeps win and the 11th consecutive sweeps win for the network that has taken 22 out of the last 23 sweeps, dating back to May 1985. The one sweeps they missed was in February 1988 when ABC's Olympic coverage won.

The big difference this year is the closeness of the race in the four-week period when the Nielsen and Arbitron ratings companies go into some 200 local markets to see who's watching what. The results are the primary basis for local advertising rates.

NBC won this year with a 13.1 rating and a 22 share. ABC was second with a 12.8 rating and a 21 share and CBS with third with a 12.1 rating and a 20 share. These are the Nielsen ratings for Nov. 1 through Nov. 27 and no change is expected when the final Nielsen day, Nov. 28, is counted in.

That's a 13 percent drop for NBC, which in the 1989 sweeps had a 15.1 rating, with ABC trailing with a 13.0 and CBS last with a 12.0.

The most popular prime time series this November was NBC's "Cheers," followed by "60 Minutes" and "Murder, She Wrote," both CBS.

This year NBC had only three programs in the top 10 — "Cheers," "Empty Nest" in ninth and "The Cosby Show" 10th, down 25 percent from last year because of "The Simpsons" on Fox. CBS had four of the top 10 and ABC took three.

Bob Niles, vice president, NBC research, pointed out that the NBC decline was in part due to the network's overhaul of its schedule, in which it introduced nine new programs in six hours of programming, with four returning shows shifted to other nights.

The only new-this-season series in the top 10 was "America's Funniest People," a clone of ABC's "America's Funniest Home Videos."

Top-rated specials honors went to Barbara Walters, the top-rated movie was part 2 of "Stephen King's It" (ABC) and the top-rated theatrical movie was "Three Men And A Cradle" (NBC).

The three-network HUT levels

(homes using television) continued their decline, dropping from 61.0 last November sweeps to 60.2 this year. The three-network ratings dropped from 40.2 to 37.9, with their share going down from 68 to 63.

David Poltrack, senior vice president, planning and research, CBS/Broadcast Group, said the decline in viewing levels were in line with the trend of the last few years, but he added that "the network decline this season tends to be concentrated in the top programs" as opposed to previous years, when the loss was at the bottom of the Nielsen list.

He said the top 10 shows this year had an 18.9 rating, compared to 21.3 last year, a decline of 11 percent.

The Fox network, which went from three nights to five this season, had a 6.7 rating using Nielsen dates or 6.6 using Arbitron dates, compared to last year's 6.6. Both Niles and Poltrack pointed out that the 1989 Fox figures were before "The Simpsons." That means Fox has stayed about the same, despite the introduction of its most popular show.

Among basic cable networks, the only real gainers were The Discovery Channel, Lifetime, The Nashville Network and TNT. HBO also increased its audience.

In other than prime time dayparts, ABC's "World News Tonight" with Peter Jennings won with an 11.1 rating, followed by "CBS Evening News with Dan Rather" with a 9.9 rating and "NBC Nightly News" with Tom Brokaw, with a 9.4 rating.

In Morning News, ABC's "Good Morning America" had a 4.9 rating, with NBC's "Today" earning a 3.4 and "CBS This Morning" a 2.5. Late night ratings went to NBC's "Tonight" show with Johnny Carson and the David Letterman show, with the ABC slate coming in second and CBS trailing.

CBS was the daytime leader with a 5.8 rating, followed by ABC with a 4.6 and NBC with 3.2. CBS went from third place last year to first place this year on Saturday morning.

Shuttle crew arrives at Cape for scheduled Sunday launch

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — The shuttle Columbia's seven-man crew flew to Florida late Thursday for a fifth attempt Sunday to blast off on an astronomy mission delayed six months by crippling fuel leaks.

"Well, we're back. We're ready and we're wanting to get on with it, we're really ready to fly," said commander Vance Brand. "I really appreciate everybody's hanging in with us and all the hard work people have gone to in getting Columbia ready to fly. It's been a long, tough fall for a lot of people."

Said crewmate Samuel Durrance, a civilian astronomer: "We're sure looking forward to flying this time. The vehicle as far as we know is in really good shape and I know we're all ready to go. We're going to go do it this time."

Columbia's countdown began on time at 1 a.m. EST Thursday and the shuttle's seven-man crew flew in from Houston shortly after 11 p.m. EST to make final preparations for blastoff.

Carrying a $150 million four-telescope observatory, Columbia is set to take off from launch pad 39B at the Kennedy Space Center at 1:28 a.m. Sunday to kick off a 10-day mission to study X-rays and ultraviolet light from the most violent stars and galaxies in the universe.

On board will be Brand, 59, co-pilot Guy Gardner, 42, John "Mike" Lounge, 44, Robert Parker, 53, Jeffrey Hoffman, 48, and civilian astronomers Ronald Parise, 39, and Durrance, 47.

Well, we're back. We're ready and we're wanting to get on with it, we're really ready to fly

—Commander Vance Brand

"It's been a long, hot summer for us filled with a couple of major disappointments," said NASA test director Michael Leinbach. "But the team is really upbeat now. Everyone is feeling good and looking forward to a nice Christmas present, which will be getting that thing off the ground Sunday morning."

Leinbach said NASA would only have two chances to get Columbia off the ground before Tuesday, when the launch team would have to stand down for at least two days and possibly as long as one week to replenish fuel for the shuttle's electrical generators and to service one of Columbia's on-board telescopes.

NASA normally does not face such tight constraints for shuttle launches, but because of the electrical demands of Columbia's telescope payload over a planned 10-day mission, the fuel supply for the ship's generators is more critical than usual.

But Leinbach said NASA managers were optimistic about getting Columbia into orbit on time Sunday.

"The countdown is going real smooth, we're right on the timeline, we're not tracking any problems at all," he said.

Liftoff will mark the third shuttle flight in 57 days, the second in just 17 days, a record-tying launch rate that indicates NASA's long summer of setbacks and delays is finally over.

Launch of the 38th shuttle mission, the sixth this year, originally was scheduled for May 30. But Columbia was grounded the night before the planned liftoff after sensors detected explosive hydrogen gas leaking into the ship's engine room.

The veteran shuttle missed a Sept. 1 launch date because of problems with one of the ship's on-board telescopes and two subsequent launch tries, on Sept. 6 and Sept. 18, were called off because of persistent hydrogen fuel leaks.

After a major repair effort, Columbia finally passed a fueling test last month, setting the stage for launch Sunday.

Air Force meteorologists predicted a 70 percent chance of acceptable weather and with no technical problems under discussion, NASA engineers were optimistic about finally getting Columbia into space.

The goal of the flight is to study X-rays and ultraviolet light from stars and galaxies that cannot penetrate Earth's atmosphere, high-energy radiation that provides priceless clues about the chemical and physical processes that govern the structure and evolution of the universe.

The Astro observatory will be operated by astronauts Parker and Hoffman, along with their civilian colleagues, Parise and Durrance. All four hold doctorates in astronomy.

Galileo on Earth flyby course

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
UPI Science Writer

The nuclear-powered Galileo probe, fresh from an eye-opening encounter with Venus, is on course for a dramatic flyby of Earth Dec. 8, the second of three such astronomical bank shots required to boost the craft on to mighty Jupiter.

The $1.5 billion probe, launched Oct. 18, 1989, from the space shuttle Atlantis, is scheduled to flash past Earth a week from Saturday, sailing just 592 miles above the Atlantic Ocean east of Florida at 3:35 p.m. EST Dec. 8.

During the encounter, Earth's gravity will bend Galileo's path, putting the probe into a different orbit around the sun and setting up a second, low-altitude Earth flyby in early December 1992 that will finally boost the craft on toward a 1995 encounter with its target, the giant planet Jupiter.

"Galileo continues to perform beautifully," project manager William O'Neal said Thursday from the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif.

"The spacecraft health is excellent. At this point, we don't have to do anything on the ground, we don't have to do anything on the spacecraft to have a successful Earth gravity assist."

Throughout the flybys, Galileo's state-of-the-art instruments will record valuable data about the moon and the Earth, the planet's magnetic field and its interaction with the supersonic solar wind.

Scientists got a glimpse of what they can expect from the showcase probe when Galileo flew past Venus on Feb. 10, recording data about the electrically charged solar wind, its interaction with the cloud-shrouded planet and taking photos that show a swirling atmosphere and what may be giant storm systems.

'Mac' McClanahan for Sanford commission

When other city commissioners, the city staff and many people in the Sanford business community fawned over a planned regional shopping center to the point of offering taxpayer subsidies, A.A. "Mac" McClanahan stood alone.

The Interstate 4-State Road 46 intersection was an ideal location for such a center, he agreed. Sanford and north Seminole would benefit from it. He was all for it; indeed, he had long urged the area be annexed with the thought of commercial development. But if it was not feasible to build a center without tax subsidies, the center should not be built.

That's called common sense, business acumen. In the face of Sanford's conventional wisdom, it was also courageous. These are some of the reasons the Sentinel endorses Mr. McClanahan for re-election to the Sanford City Commission.

Since Commissioner Whitey Eckstein has been re-elected for lack of opposition, this is the only race in Sanford this year. And since Sanford elects from districts, only the 2,000-and-something registered voters in District 3 will be voting in the Dec. 4 election.

Martha Yancey, who has challenged Mr. McClanahan, is a highly energetic volunteer civic worker. As chairman of the Scenic Improvement Board, she took a lead in putting a prettier face on Sanford. She did an exceptional job in raising money and lining up donated labor for the playground in Park on Park.

Mrs. Yancey can do much more for her community in that capacity, especially in the tight-money era ahead when volunteerism will have to supplant much of what government has done.

While the candidates agree on many issues, Mr. McClanahan is far ahead on depth of knowledge.

While both believe the Central Florida Regional Airport will play an important role in Sanford's development, he understands better why, and how it can be made to happen. Both favor redevelopment along U.S. Highway 17-92, but he better realizes how that countywide project relates to Sanford.

The candidates do differ greatly on construction of the Beltway, which will slice into the city's south side. Mr. McClanahan sees the superhighway as a boon, a link between Sanford and the rest of the metro area and an important element in airport development. Mrs. Yancey reluctantly accepts it as being forced on the city and fears the worst.

And therein lies an important difference in these candidates: She's more parochial, tending to live in a time when Sanford stood alone. He sees the city as part of a larger community, one that contributes to the metropolitan area and, in return, earns a better life for its citizens.

One other point. Mr. McClanahan is perhaps best known in Central Florida for running the Self-Help Housing Program that has made it possible for so many low-income families to know the joys of home ownership. The relationships from that program give him a special insight into the needs of a growing segment of Sanford's population.

The next four years will be tough ones for Sanford as it copes with promises of growth that are dimmed by an economy threatening to sour. The Sentinel believes the city will need a seasoned A.A. "Mac" McClanahan.

Rotary Soccer Cup

The Rotary Club of Goldenrod will put on The Second Annual Goldenrod Rotary Soccer Cup hosted by Lyman and Winter Park high schools this Saturday and Monday.

The schedule for the first round, Saturday, Dec. 1 is, at Lyman, Oviedo playing Lake Brantley at 10 a.m. and Lyman taking on Bishop Moore at noon. At Ward Field in Winter Park, Lake Mary will face Boone at 10 a.m. and Winter Park will challenge Lake Howell at noon.

The second round is also set for Saturday with the finals scheduled for Monday, Dec. 3.

Top Gun wins touney

PLANTATION — Top Gun of the Seminole Soccer Club finished 3-1 and took home the 12-and-Under title of the Plantation Eagles Thanksgiving Classic at Plantation.

Top Gun, coached by Jack Seaver and Andy Schaefer, outlasted a field of 12 teams from around Florida to claim the championship.

They opened the touney with a 3-0 win over Coral Springs but dropped a 5-3 decision to Miami Kendall Boys Club in the second round.

But the Seminole team came back with a 4-0 win over West Palm Beach to earn the wild card spot in the semi-finals. Top Gun defeated the Seminole Magic (another SCC team) 3-2 on a penalty kick and claimed the title with a 3-2 win over the Fort Myers Panther Pack.

SANFORD — Scott Page bowled the first 300 game of his life Wednesday night for Page's One-Hour Photo in the Bob Dance Dodge Handicap League at Bowl America in Sanford.

Page also rolled games of 247 and 191 for a series total of 738. Jim Morace of the Rib Rance Barbecue team also had a big night with a 650 series (202, 233, 215).

COLLEGE HOOPS

SCC teams in action

SANFORD — The Seminole Community College men and women's basketball teams will both be in action this weekend.

The men, winners of two straight, will play a pair of games traveling to Melbourne to take on Patrick Air Force Base tonight before returning home to play Indian River on Saturday. Saturday's game will start at 7:30 p.m.

The women, also the winners of two straight, will continue their month long road trip when they travel to Fort Myers to face Edson Community College Saturday night.

UNLV will defend NCAA title

LAS VEGAS — Nevada-Las Vegas, seeking to become the first team to win back-to-back NCAA titles since the John Wooden-coached UCLA teams, agreed to still sanctions Thursday for the 1991-92 season in return for the opportunity to defend their national basketball crown in this year's tournament.

The Runnin' Rebels had their chance to defend their title denied in July when the NCAA's Committee On Infractions banned them from the 1991 tournament.

But university officials and coach Jerry Tarkanian made an emotional appeal of that suspension last month before an NCAA committee in Chicago and were given the opportunity Thursday to select between two other options.

"The second has no live television for the team in 1991-92 and the team also not playing in the post-season that year. The university has decided to accept the second alternative," said UNLV President Robert Maxson.

Missouri tops FAMU

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Jamal Coleman scored 18 points Thursday night to pace Missouri to an 81-52 victory over Florida A&M to extend the Tigers' homecourt winning streak to 33 games.

Missouri, 1-1, took control early, shooting 66 percent from the field in the first half to build a 46-30 lead at intermission.

Reginald Kennon led Florida A&M, 1-2, with 20 points.

DePaul crushes FIU

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Chuck Murphy scored 21 points and Stephen Howard added 16 to lead hot-shooting DePaul to a 117-65 victory Thursday night over Florida International.

Three other players scored in double figures to spark the Blue Demons, who hit 68 percent of their shots from the field for the game.

Cesar Bocachica scored 15 points to pace Florida International, which trailed 59-26 at halftime and shot 38 percent from the field.

Big first quarter sparks Tribe's rout of Leesburg

From staff reports

LEESBURG — Unlike Tuesday night's opening game, the Seminole High School girls basketball team got off to a fast start against Leesburg Thursday and cruised to a 70-34 shellacking of the Yellow Jackets.

The Fighting Seminoles, ranked sixth in the Class 3A state poll, raced to a 27-7 first quarter advantage in improving their record to 2-0. Leesburg fell to 0-1.

"We played a lot better tonight," said Seminole coach John McNamara. "And they played like we did in our first game. We really had a good team effort, we moved the ball well, we played tough defense and we did a heck of a job under the boards. I was very impressed with our rebounding."

One statistic supporting the claim that it was a good team effort was that 10 of the 12 Seminole players scored. Senior Koscia Kennon and sophomore Niki Washington again led the way with 19 and 14 points, respectively, despite playing only half the game. Washington also grabbed 18 rebounds, blocked seven shots and handed out four assists.

Kennon also did more than score as she came up with nine rebounds, five steals and six assists. Also having good nights were Kayla Mullins (four points, 12 rebounds) and Ruthann Williams (10 points, three assists).

Melinda Brown was the only Yellow Jacket in double figures with 14 points.

Seminole will play its first home game of the season today when they host the Daytona Beach-Seabreeze Sandcrabs at Bill Flemming Memorial Gymnasium with junior varsity action at 6 p.m. and the varsity at 7:30 p.m.

Patriots win opener

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Using a full-court press early and a stifling defense all game long, the Lake Brantley Patriots defeated Orlando-Luther 62-33 in the girls' basketball season-opener for both teams.

"Defense really was the key," said first-year Patriot Coach Karen Kroen. "We pressed them the first five minutes and got up by 15, 20 points. They really worked very hard on defense."

Hornets, weather stop Rams

From staff reports

LAKE MARY — After the Lake Mary Rams and Bishop Moore Hornets played to a scoreless tie in the opening game of the 1990-91 girls' soccer season, it was expected that the rematch scheduled for Thursday would be more of the same.

Well, it was and it wasn't. The two teams again engaged in a very close contest. But this time, there were plenty of goals scored, the visiting Hornets taking a 3-2 decision over the Rams in a game stopped two minutes into the second half by lightning and unplayable field conditions.

According to the rules of the Florida High School Activities Association, any soccer game that reaches halftime before being stopped by inclement weather shall be considered a completed game.

Dana Hoover and Cory Tanzer scored the goals for Lake Mary, which outshot Bishop Moore 15-5. The goals were the first the Hornets have allowed in regulation this season.

Stephanie Gringer had two goals and an assist while Stephanie Feulner added a goal and an assist for Bishop Moore, which improves to 6-0-1 going into Saturday's showdown with undefeated and defending Class 4A state champion Lake Brantley. The game will be played at 3:30 p.m. at Bishop Moore.

"Lake Mary looked real good," said Bishop Moore Coach Larry Betsinger, who filled in for Lake Mary Coach Bill Eissele for a season when Eissele was attempting to land a spot on the PGA Tour. "We finished real well."

For Lake Mary, the loss was a costly one. Joy Gorman and goalie Jen Preston both suffering injuries during the contest. Gorman was able to return to the match after receiving treatment.

On Bishop Moore's second goal, Preston suffered a slight case of whiplash that required a quick trip to the hospital. It wasn't apparent that Preston had been injured until she misplayed an easy ball into Bishop Moore's third goal. Seeing Preston shaking her head constantly following the goal, the Lake Mary trainer went out to check on her and discovered she had been hurt.

Eissele did not say how long Preston will be out. Megan Coduto, who normally splits time in goal with Preston, played the final 12

Nice weather . . . if you're a duck
 Lake Mary and Bishop Moore were locked up in another of their classic girls' soccer matches Thursday afternoon when the heavens opened with rain, lightning, thunder and heavy winds. Two minutes into the second half, with Bishop Moore leading 3-2, the game was stopped. Not only did the Rams suffer their first loss of the season, a pair of Lake Mary players were banged up during the match. Goalie Jen Preston (left) suffered a slight case of whiplash when Bishop Moore scored its second goal. Joy Gorman (below) took a nasty shot to the shins that sidelined her for several minutes.

DeVincenzo takes on Tribe wrestling restoration project

By TONY DESOMMIER
 Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — At 25 years old, Matt DeVincenzo has the enthusiasm and stamina of youth. As the new Seminole High School wrestling coach, he'll need plenty of both.

"This is one of the bigger challenges I've had to face in a long time," admitted DeVincenzo, who will be Seminole's third wrestling coach in as many years.

"We have a lot of athletes. We're getting there. I think we'll be all right down the road. It's going to mean a lot of work and dedication for me and the kids. But in time, I think we'll be a team to contend with."

DeVincenzo, who teaches physical education at Spring Lake Elementary School, was hired by Seminole in September. His last wrestling coaching job was at John Glenn High School on Long Island, N.Y.

"It's an ideal situation," DeVincenzo said of teaching elementary school and coaching at the high school level. "This what I've said I'd want to do, teach in an elementary school and coach high school wrestling."

DeVincenzo takes over a program that was almost non-existent last year. With only a handful of wrestlers, Seminole was guaranteed a team loss in every dual meet. And what few wrestlers the Tribe had was depleted by academic ineligibility problems.

After being hired, DeVincenzo's first step was to hold a team meeting to try and recruit more bodies to fill out the roster. His success was a good beginning to Seminole's return to the forefront of Central Florida wrestling.

"I'm not going to say we're going to have a full team," he said. "But we'll definitely have more than half the lineup filled. One reason we won't have a full team is because of academic ineligibility. If some kids weren't ineligible, we'd be close to a full team now."

If that weren't enough, Seminole will also have some wrestlers competing at the junior varsity level this season with an eye toward contributing on the varsity at the end of the season.

"My goal is, at the end of the year, to have a full team or close to it," said DeVincenzo. "I want us to be competitive in dual meets and I want to take some individuals a long way."

 One Seminole DeVincenzo has high hopes for is junior Russell Huebner, who will compete at 125 pounds. Huebner is one of Seminole's few returners from last year. Sophomore Darrin Butler (220) has a little experience wrestling while junior 140-pounder Jerome Pendleton has never wrestled before.

Also, the Tribe wrestling team has received a transfusion of sorts from the football program. Among the football players expected to wrestle this year are defensive backs Rodney Hooks (senior, 145) and Cory Bennett (junior, 150), linebacker Tommie Mathis (senior, 130) and offensive lineman Keith Switzer (senior, Unlimited). Assisting DeVincenzo is defensive line coach Leonard Ophelm.

With most of the pieces in place, now it becomes a matter of work, discipline and patience to make the pieces fit. DeVincenzo recognizes it won't happen overnight.

"It's a slow process," he said. "I hope to have some good individuals go far this year. That will help sell the program. We'll get there."

IN BRIEF

Volunteer for tax season

American Association of Retired Persons Tax-Aide Program is seeking volunteer counselors, instructors and coordinators for the 1990-91 tax season. If you are skilled in filling out tax forms, enjoy training adults, or have excellent organizational skills, you are needed to assist low and moderate income taxpayers with their federal income tax returns. Full training will be provided in all areas of the state. Those who wish to volunteer may do so by sending name, address and telephone number to AARP, Tax-Aide Program, 1909 K Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20049.

More than 154,350 Floridians benefitted from the AARP Tax-Aide Program in 1990, and some 1,805,490 tax returns and assists were handled by Tax-Aide volunteers nationwide.

AARP is the nation's leading organization for people age 50 and over. It serves their needs and interests through legislative advocacy, research, informative programs and community services provided by a network of local chapters and experienced volunteers throughout the county. The organization also offers members a wide range of special membership benefits, including "Modern Maturity" magazine and the monthly "Bulletin". There are 2,336,000 AARP members and 234 chapters in Florida.

CALENDAR

Narcotics Anonymous to meet

Narcotics Anonymous meets Friday at 11 p.m. at the House of Goodwill, 317 Oak Ave., Sanford.

Retired transit workers to gather

The New York Retired Transit Workers meet at Casselberry Senior Center, 200 N. Triplet Lake Drive, the first Saturday of each month at 1:30 p.m.

Old cars put in limelight

The Celery City Cruisers, an antique and classic automobile club in Seminole County, sponsors a display of old cars each Saturday from 7-10 p.m. in the Wal-Mart parking lot behind Wendy's on U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford. Non-members are welcome to bring their old cars or browse. For more information, call Herbert Partridge at 322-3687.

'Candlelight Gala' lights up Sanford

SANFORD — "Circle of Light," an original festive dance of the life and times of Swedish immigrants brought to Seminole County in the 1870's, will be the highlight of the second annual "Candlelight Gala" to be held at 7 p.m. Friday, December 7, at the Sanford Civic Center.

Sponsored by Seminole Towne Center, the gala is a major event of the St. Lucia Festival to be staged Saturday, December 8, in historic downtown Sanford.

Guests will be greeted by hundreds of luminaries and will dine in a gold and white splashed interior where they will enjoy champagne and a Swedish buffet. Musical background will be provided by a harpist. Hostesses will be members of the Junior Woman's Club of Sanford.

The champagne hour will be held from 7 to 7:45 p.m. at which time the holiday balletic vignette will be performed with Megan Eugen again dancing St. Lucia.

Put on by the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole, the performance will feature a number of prominent citizens and actual historical figures in the founding of Sanford and Upsala. They include: Mayor Bettye Smith as Mrs. Linburg; David Farr, executive director of Sanford Chamber of Commerce, who will play Mr. Linburg; Don Sullivan as General Sanford and Sandra Orwig Murray as Mrs. Sanford. Eddie Morgan will depict Mr. DeForest while Miriam Rye Doktor will dance the role of Mrs. DeForest.

Following the Christmas ballet, guests will proceed to Centennial Park where the Caroling Company will present songs of the season in the gazebo. Pat Hlichemon, who was a featured soloist last year, will again sing Christmas carols. "The Grand Finale" will take place at the Cultural Arts Center adjacent to the park where Swedish delicacies and coffee will be served with music by Rosalind Beck, harpist and the Caroling Company.

A true community effort, "Circle of Light" is also supported by the Izora Garden Club, Pilot Club of Sanford, Rotaract Club and the Sanford Flower Shop.

Open to the public, the fee is $50 per person with reservations required by December 5.

IN THE SERVICE

Edmund Coppola, W.O.

Edmund J. Coppola has received the silver wings of an Army aviator and was appointed a warrant officer upon completion of the rotary wing aviator course at the U.S. Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Ala.

The course provided training in leadership and helicopter flying techniques as well as instrument flying.

The warrant officer is the son of John A. and Louise A. Coppolis of 1500 Robert St., Longwood.

His wife, Corinne, is the daughter of W.H. and Billie Sue Robertson of 1062 Raymond Ave., Altamonte Springs.

He is a 1984 graduate of Central Florida Adult High School, Sanford, and a 1989 graduate of Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University, Daytona Beach.

Project excels

The theme of "Project Excel," recently presented as Crooms School of Choice, was "Accept me as I am so that I may learn what I can become." Ira George presided. The procession was given in sign language by Tammy Glover.

Joe Williams, from left, gave the oath to the mentors and proteges. Sandra Petty gave the acknowledgments. Speaker Dr. W.B. Newman spoke to the mentors and proteges and Brenda Ford gave the occasion. Not pictured: Eugene Petty, principal of Milwee Middle School, recited the closing poem. Project Excel is a mentoring program sponsored by the Minority Affairs Committee of the Seminole Education Association.

Man's secretive past casts shadow on truth

DEAR ABBY: For several years, I worked for a man who had a lot of trouble with the truth. Apparently, he is still lying. Although I no longer work for him, the woman he has been dating called me recently for some information about him. I acknowledged that she had guessed the truth about one area of his past, but I immediately regretted I had said anything.

When she started quizzing me further, I suggested that she ask him directly — which she has never done. She seemed annoyed with my refusal to tell her more than I had. It seems that she plans to go to Houston (without telling him) to track down the whole story. I told her that the answers she wants are not so bad, but I felt that the telling of his story was up to him. She still insisted that she had no intention of asking him.

Although I am not in touch with this man, I've considered contacting him to tell him that he needs to be honest with this woman — especially since she has already guessed some of the truth. I've also thought of calling her back and suggesting that he may be annoyed when he finds out she made a trip to Houston — the people at that end will probably tell him. I also hesitate to do that. Shall I just keep out of it and not call anyone? Thanks for helping.

UNEASY IN NEW MEXICO

DEAR UNEASY: Your last idea was by far your best. Don't call anyone. And in the future, the less you say to anyone concerning a third party — especially to a stranger on the telephone — the better.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I've never seen in your column, and I'd appreciate a prompt reply because it's been preying on my mind.

I have gone to the same hairdresser for years — I'll call her Marietta. Anyway, while Marietta was on vacation, I went to another shop closer to my home and happened to get a hairdresser who does a better job and charges less.

I suppose most hairdressers are used to having customers switch to someone else, but Marietta was more like a friend. I don't want to lie, and I hate to hurt her feelings, but I feel guilty ducking her.

I'm turning to you because you seem to have all the answers.

SWITCHED IN VIRGINIA

DEAR SWITCHED: Don't lie, and stop ducking Marietta. Either call her or go to see her and tell her honestly that you have found a hairdresser closer to home who does an excellent job and charges less.

And don't feel guilty. You are entitled to patronize whomever you wish for your own reasons.

THE MISSING PIECE

Life may appear to be a jigsaw puzzle. Just when we think we have it all together, to our dismay we find that one piece is missing. We rush from place to place, many of us with anxiety, fear, and impatience as our companions. We worry and we wonder how we will fit all of our responsibilities into hectic schedules. Have you ever considered that God may be that missing piece in the puzzle that is your life? He is there, waiting to help you, always vigilant. We are told in the Bible that "not one of them (sparrows) will fall to the ground without your Father's will." (Matthew 10:29) We also read in Matthew 10:30, "But even the hairs of your head are numbered. . . You are of more value than many sparrows." Let God help keep your life peaceful and in an orderly fashion. Worship this week and give Him a chance. All you have to do is ask and believe.

Episcopalians announce annual meeting

LAKE MARY — St. Peter's Episcopal Church will hold their first annual parish meeting on Sunday, Dec. 9, immediately following the 10 a.m. Holy Eucharist service in the church located at 700 Rinehart Road, Lake Mary. Seven new members will be elected to fill the vacancies on the vestry. The carry-over vestrymen are Dean Byers, Ada O'Neil, Norma Ragdale, Harold Chapman and David Norman who will serve as Senior Warden for 1991.

Also included on the agenda is the approval of the 1991 Church Budget and other church matters.

Immediately following the meeting a church picnic will be held. Child care will be provided during the meeting. All members of St. Peter's are urged to attend this important meeting. For further information please call 444-LORD.

Grace United sets Advent activities

LAKE MARY — Grace United Methodist Church, 499 N. Country Club Road, Lake Mary, will begin its 1990 Advent events on Sunday. The series starts with the Hanging of the Greens and the first placement of symbols of the Jesse Tree. Scripture, songs and explanations of visual images will be presented starting at 7 p.m., immediately following the annual joint installation dinner for the United Methodist Men and United Methodist Women.

Evening "Advent Events" will continue Sundays at 7 p.m. on Dec. 9, 16 and 23.

Other special services during the season will be the Chancel Choir Musical, Dec. 15 at 7 p.m.; Children's Christmas Program, Dec. 16, during the 10:45 a.m. service; a special Children's Sharing Moment during the Dec. 23 10:45 a.m. service; a special Children's Sharing Moment during the Dec. 23 10:45 a.m. service; and two Communion services on Christmas Eve. The first Communion services will be geared toward the children, elementary age and younger, the second at 8 p.m. will include a candlelighting ceremony.

On behalf of the choir and congregation, Dr. Richard Albury extends an invitation to the events. "Come and share the old, and discover the new of this joyous season."

The Sanford Herald welcomes news about church activities and news for publication in the Religion page each Friday.

The following suggestions are recommended to expedite publication:

1. All items should be typed or written legibly and include the name of a person who can be contacted and a daytime phone number.
2. The deadline is 11 a.m. Wednesday before publication. There is no charge for publication.

Methodists commemorate 100 years

Special to the Herald

SANFORD — Christ United Methodist Church, on the corner of C.R. 427 and Tucker Drive, celebrated 100 years of service to the Sanford Community recently with praise and worship, led by a former minister, Rev. George Fisher.

The history of the church itself came to be shortly after the Civil War. The Methodists of the area began to worship in a building called Earnest Chapel. Rev. R.H. Barnett was ordained Elder at the Annual Conference held in Jacksonville in January of 1874 and was appointed to serve as pastor of the Melonville Circuit.

In approximately 1885, Sanford had grown in population so the present First Methodist Church, 419 Park Ave., was built and most of the members of Earnest Chapel united with First Church.

That same year, 1885, the Bishop appointed a young preacher by the name of Rev. L.W. Brewer from Kentucky to the Melonville mission. He led in building the church in Sanford and also organized a class at Clyde Schoolhouse six miles southwest with part of the membership of Earnest Chapel. Those who joined were J.M. Lord, Jane W. Lord, J.B. Lord, J.L. Nolan and Hattie Nolan. These charter members were joined by R.G. Moyer, Sallie Moyer, J.B. Fortier, Elizabeth Fortier, Dr. R.H. Frie and wife. Later members were Fannie C. Lord, Minnie A. Lord, Charles Moyer, R.M. Mason, Henry Conner, Adella and Angie Fortier.

Ebenezer Methodist Church, built in 1880.

Charles Barroner and perhaps a few others whose names are known only to God.

A union Sunday School was organized with Methodist literature. Members were from several denominations so doctrinal differences caused disagreement. J.M. Lord suggested to the Methodists that they build their own building and agreed to give an acre of ground. Earnest Chapel was sold and the Methodists received part of the money.

About the 10th of May, 1890, J.M. Lord and J.M. Wynn laid the foundation of the building. Rev. Alexander was the pastor and Rev. W.F. Norton was the presiding elder. With J.M. Wynn as the contractor and J.M. Lord was chairman of the building committee, the building was finished the last week of August. Furnishings came from Earnest Chapel and J.M. Lord donated his home organ. Rev. W.F. Alexander preached the first sermon on Aug. 17, 1890. J.M. Lord suggested that the church be named Ebenezer Methodist Church, which was done.

After years of service as Ebenezer Church, members voted to change the name of the church to Christ United Methodist Church in 1980.

Plans were begun for new facilities and the ground was broken in May of 1981 with Rev. Pendergrass from First Church, Orlando, assisted by Rev. Smith and representatives from other churches.

The first service was held in the new building on Oct. 22, 1981 with the Rev. Dr. Joel A. Tolle as preacher.

A historical marker was erected on the site of the old Ebenezer Church as a memorial to the faithful members who made it possible for this 100th Anniversary celebration to take place.

Other activities of the celebration included Pastor James Uimer Sr. giving the invocation and former pastors and members were invited to participate in the service. Dr. Dan Sain, former minister from Daytona Beach gave the morning sermon.

The Centennial Choir, directed by Jan Korgan, presented a concert to the attendees and members of the church were dressed in old fashioned costumes of that period.

A covered dish dinner under the large oak trees was enjoyed by participants of the service. A large cake with "Happy 100th Anniversary" was cut and served.

FROM THE PULPIT

Advent brings hope for the holidays

By DR. TOM JACOBS

This Sunday is the second Sunday in Advent as we prepare for the Christmas season. Advent is that time of year that lights up our life with hope.

The spirit of expectancy fills our minds. We look forward to celebrating the birth of Christ with eager hearts. Something good is going to happen!

As hope begins to flood our minds, we lay aside our fears and revive our faith. The excitement and joy of the Christmas season possesses the power to dispel our fears.

Lowell Atkinson writes that the Christmas season is the time "we stop worrying about what the world is coming to, and rejoice in what has come to the world." "From fear to faith! This is the life-transforming therapy of Christmas."

In this year of 1990, there are more than enough reasons for our hearts to be filled with fear. Broken homes, broken hearts, broken promises, broken health, it seems that everything around us in some way needs to be mended and fixed. And then we consider the problems in the Persian Gulf and begin to wonder if there is indeed any reason for hope. We can understand why the first words to the frightened shepherds were, "Be not afraid..." (Luke 2:10). God's glory of the majestic angels surrounded them, yet they were filled with fear! God wanted His glory to encourage them and inspire them as His Son was being born into their world, a world with little hope.

God desires the same for us today. He wants to lead us out of the world of fear into the world of faith. The shepherds found this to be true as they made their way to the manger. They found the Babe "wrapped in swaddling clothes, and lying in a manger" just as the angels had promised.

But even then, as they knelt in the presence of the Holy Child, perhaps the question filled their minds, "Can this little child make a difference in such a complicated world?" The centuries of time since then have proclaimed an emphatic "Yes!" The poet has written this testimony for us all:

He was born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman.

He worked in a carpenter shop and was an itinerant preacher.

He never wrote a book.

He never held an office.

He did none of the things one usually associates with greatness.

Nineteen centuries have come and gone, and today He is the central figure of the human race.

All the armies that ever marched, all the navies that ever sailed,

All the kings that ever reigned, put together, have not affected the life of man on this earth.

As much as that ONE SOLITARY LIFE.

The shepherds found their Christmas when they trusted God's word and took the road to Bethlehem, and so will we! Let's travel that road together and let Christ fill our holidays with hope!

Dr. Tom Jacobs is pastor of the Pinecrest Baptist Church, Sanford.

Dr. Daniel J. Fischer

New ministry opens doors

SANFORD — The newest ministry to the area is Living Waters Cathedral, Home of Calvary Chapel, located at 100 Kennel Road and S.R. 48, a non-denominational church, proclaiming "the whole Bible is our foundation," according to Dr. Daniel J. Fischer, pastor.

All preaching, teaching, and music is focused on the Father, Son and Holy Spirit and finances are based on free will tithes and offerings.

The founding pastor, Dr. Daniel J. Fischer, comes to the Sanford area from California.

For more information, call the church at 322-2828.

Blood in the stool needs more testing

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have blood in my stool, yet I have had a colonoscopy and gastroduodenoscopy, both of which were normal. Should I be concerned with the positive results of the Hemocult test? Should another procedure be done?

already) for follow-up and further advice.

(C)1990 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

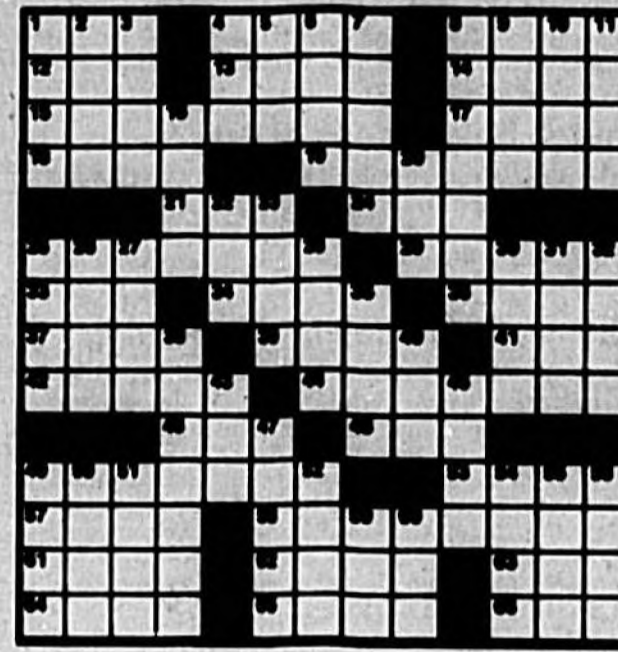

DEAR READER: Blood in the stool is always abnormal, may lead to severe anemia and can arise from any source in the intestinal tract, from the mouth to the anus. Therefore, you should be tested further because colonoscopy (examination of your colon) and gastroduodenoscopy (examination of your esophagus, stomach and part of the small intestine) are not sufficient. For instance, you may be bleeding from the lower small intestine; this should be evaluated by means of a small-bowel X-ray.

To complicate matters further, intestinal bleeding is often the result of fragile, malformed blood vessels that are not readily visible (once they have stopped bleeding) during the tests you have had. Called "dysplasia," this condition often requires special examinations (such as angiography, X-ray studies of blood circulation to the bowel) for diagnosis.

The answer to your question is "yes" — you should be tested further — if your bleeding is significant (frequent or severe enough to cause anemia). However, if you have an occasional trace of blood in your stools (by Hemocult testing), you can probably delay further testing unless and until the bleeding becomes more pronounced.

Because your problem is common and often difficult to diagnose, I suggest you see a gastroenterologist (if you haven't

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Here we see a normal high-level competitive situation. West was blessed with favorable vulnerability, so it was natural for him to jump right to four spades after his partner's overcall. He didn't expect his partner to make it, but he hoped that the opponents would make the wrong decision with their own cards. North passed over four spades, and then, when his partner doubled, bid five hearts. There was even an explanation at the table by South that North was showing a better hand for hearts by bidding in this fashion. This turned out to be a good-news/bad-news type of deal. The good news was that North-South had made a mistake in bidding five hearts, since if they were left to their own devices, the contract would very likely fail. But now the bad news — East, meagerized by his Q-10-2 of hearts, decided to double. West got off to the best defense by leading the king of spades. By holding the lead at trick one, he was able to switch to the jack of diamonds. But declarer went up with dummy's ace and played dummy's jack of hearts. East covered and declarer won the ace. He led to dummy's ace of clubs and played a low heart from dummy. East played the two and South put in the seven-spot. That was 11 tricks for plus 850. Without the double, declarer might still have made the winning play, but it would have been very much against percentages. My sympathy goes to hapless West, who received cruel and unusual punishment when East foolishly doubled.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Cool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Dec. 1, 1990

It is important for you in the year ahead to constantly improve upon your managerial and organizational skills. Something exciting could be brewing where these attributes can be profitably expressed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) One-to-one relationships might require all the diplomacy you have at your disposal today. Excuse and tolerate in others that which you want excused and tolerated in you. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail #2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Assignments that are difficult to begin with could be made even more intolerable to do them. On the other hand, a good attitude will lighten your load considerably.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Social games or sports that have elements of chance should prove to be rather enjoyable for you today, primarily because you might be a tad luckier than your competition.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's important you find constructive outlets for your nervous energies today. If you keep your restlessness bottled up, it could put you in an irritable mood.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your imagination is easily stimulated today, especially if you talk to people who ask you to improve upon their concepts or ideas. They'll marvel at the multiple suggestions you'll offer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your sales resistance is rather low today. It might prove unwise to wander through expensive shops that carry merchandise you neither need nor can afford.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your excellent leadership qualities might not be expressed today unless you're faced with challenging developments others can't resolve. When you do take charge, you'll do so effectively.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If there is something disturbing out there, it's best to bring it out into the open instead of keeping it pent up and brooding over it all day. Silence could be self-defeating.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There are indications that something beneficial might develop for you today that will give rise to your hopes and expectations. It could also involve a male friend of yours.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Ambition is an admirable virtue, provided you do not take advantage of others in order to achieve your purposes. Be careful today that your actions aren't inclined in this direction.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Even though your views contain elements of wisdom your contemporaries lack, proper presentation is essential. Express yourself logically, not emotionally.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Adjusting to developments is much better than letting your frustrations wipe out your momentum. Don't dwell on conditions over which you have no control.

the new TOYOTALAND

Where you buy your next new or used vehicle is actually more important than what you buy. When you start to look for that "Special Deal", check the whole story. Check Price, the people you're buying from and those who will service you for years to come. I'm confident that if you check the facts, you'll come to my All New Toyotaland! As the owner who will be at the dealership, I'll personally make sure You've Never Been Treated Better.

Bruce Rossmeyer
PRESIDENT

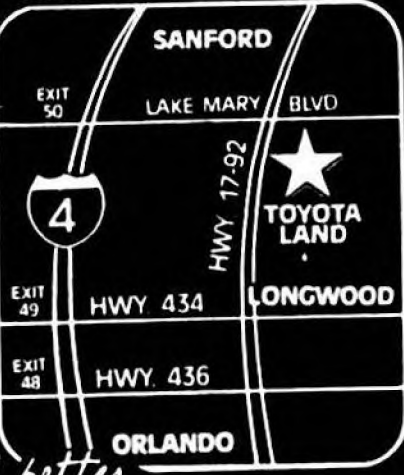

THE COMMITMENTS:

PRICE: The lowest prices and the biggest savings in Florida aren't goals at Toyotaland, they're the way we do business. Our NEW OWNERSHIP is committed to saving you more than any other dealer on every new Toyota car & truck, and we stand behind every price, everytime.	SERVICE: We are one of the HIGHEST RATED TOYOTA SERVICE GROUPS in the SOUTHEAST & we want to earn your trust for a lifetime. Our sales team will satisfy your every need WITH COURTESY & FRIENDLINESS. We're taking CUSTOMER SATISFACTION into the 90's with our new ownership.	SATISFACTION: The New Toyotaland is backed by a $500 MILLION DOLLAR DEALER GROUP. The other Toyota Dealers in our group have won PRESIDENT'S AWARDS FOR EXCELLENCE. We have the resources and the determination to be #1. And we guarantee YOU'VE NEVER BEEN TREATED BETTER OR FELT MORE SATISFIED.
