Along the way with Eddie Kay

RUSS WHITE

Eddie Kay wanted to play softball a few seasons ago and went to a field in Orlando for a team tryout. He loved the sport but hadn't played it in years. Just to be back on a field excited him. "I believe I'm going to do well," he said. "Maybe I'll hit .250 or so."

After taking a few swings in the batting cage without making contact, he shrugged his shoulders. "Could be I need a lighter bat," he said.

Eddie Kay kept at it, managing to tag several pitches. He and the other players listened for the beep of a special softball designed for the blind. It was inspiring to watch these players both field and hit. The only sighted player was a pitcher.

Playing softball was one of the more pleasurable moments in Eddie Kay's life. He had lost his eye sight when he was 25. He had no choice but to adjust to a new environment. He did all he could without asking for pity.

The day after he played softball, Eddie Kay sat for nearly two hours on a curb waiting for the driver who brought him to the field to return and take him home. It was not the first time this service was so late. Nor the last.

Utterly frustrated at the lack of consideration rendered to those who were blind or disabled, Eddie Kay made a tough decision three years ago. He decided to sell or give away almost all his possessions, and he bought a one-way ticket to Portland, Ore.

The day he left he had very little reason to think he would ever come back to Central Florida. He said goodbye to the friend who had brought him to the airport, handed his bags to the skycap and adjusted his audio watch to Pacific Coast Time. He was on his way.

"Portland was very pedestrian oriented," Eddie Kay said. "You don't have to beg and plead for transportation. You can go almost anywhere. And there are sidewalks to get around."

Eddie Kay made friends quickly in Portland, and his days and nights were filled with wonder and joy. He had picked a very good place to make his home. He was pleased.

Then he received a call that his grandfather had died and his grandmother, whom he loved, was lonely. Eddie Kay packed his gear and came home to her this summer.

In grandma's book, Eddie Kay is hitting one thousand.

Teen suspect in grandmother's stabbing

By Bill Kerns
HERALD STAFF WRITER

LAKE MARY - Fourteen-year-old Mark Louis Dufault killed his grandmother with multiple stab wounds to the chest while his father slept in the same house Friday afternoon in Lake Mary, police said. Dufault made his first court appearance at 9:20 a.m. Saturday. He is being held without bond at the Seminole County Jail in Sanford. The jail's central booking office said he is charged with willful premeditated homicide.

"We have no idea why he did it," Lieutenant Dave Guildford of the Lake Mary Police Department said. "The boy was pretty lackadaisical when we arrested him. He didn't appear to be that distraught. He was just like, 'Oh, well.' But then, he didn't know yet that his grandmother is dead."

The teen's father, Mark Neil Dufault, called 911 at 2:45 p.m. Friday saying "my mother's bleeding," said Guildford. Lake Mary police, including Guildford, arrived at 229 Byron Avenue, just off First Street, to find 60-year old Joyce Marie Adams and her grandson.

"The place was in total disarray," Guildford said. "There was blood on the floor. The bed was unmade. It was hard to tell what part of the mess was from the fight, and how much of the mess was normal."

The Lake Mary Fire Department rushed Adams to Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford where she was pronounced dead on arrival, Guildford said.

The elder Dufault had fallen asleep before the murder occurred, with his teenage son listening to the radio in a bedroom, police said.

"The boy's father was staying home sick," Guildford said. "He fell asleep while his son listened to a stereo. He said he woke up to hear his mother screaming. He ran in to find his son standing over his mom."

Cowgirl dreams of rodeos

By Bill Kerns
HERALD STAFF WRITER

GENEVA - Whether roping a steer or studying for a test, rodeo champion and straight "A" student Heather Cave, a 15-year old freshman at Oviedo High School, is a winner.

"On weekends I do sometimes sleep in late," Heather said. "I'm always busy. I want to get a scholarship to college. I don't get to go to the mall every week, but I have my friends. I have different rodeo and school friends. I love my dog, he's an Austrian Shepherd, and my baby horse."

Heather finished first in barrel racing and pole bending, then third in goat tying, at the Oct. 10 State Benefit Rodeo for the Florida Cattleman's Museum, adding to three stands of medals, saddles and ribbons in her home. Heather is looking to finish in the top four in the Florida High School Rodeo Association, so she can advance to the Nationals, her mother Rhonda Cave said.

"Heather's been riding since she could walk," Rhonda Cave said. "We've been able to have a horse since she was born. Maybe she gets her love for rodeo from our trips out west. We go out west every year, and she loves it. Her dream is to win the National Rodeo Finals, and to get a college scholarship."

Winning is nothing new to Heather, who started finishing first in rodeo events when she was 7-years-old. Heather was the reserve all-around champion for the Florida Junior Rodeo Association last year, Rhonda Cave said. She reached the finals in seven different events.

The secret to Heather's rodeo skills can be found in her father Paul Cave, the principal at Rock Lake Middle School in Longwood. He team rides in rodeos, and is an experienced rodeo competitor. Heather said she also enjoys boogie boarding with her father at the beach.

It was at Rock Lake Middle School last year that Heather may have found a future career. Heather said that while broadcasting on closed circuit television in the school's Globe Program, she started thinking about a career in meteorology and broadcast journalism.

"I do well in math," Heather said. "I'm really good at geometry and algebra. I also enjoy science." Heather, who is in Oviedo High School's gifted program, also plays volleyball at the school.

OVIEDO - After a 13-year fight to stop development from encroaching on the Black Hammock, Jim Logue can see the end.

Logue said Friday he is satisfied with the efforts of all parties involved in ending the battle over a controversial housing development in rural Seminole County.

"If Winter Springs will do what they've agreed to do; if Oviedo will do what they've agreed to do," said Logue, "then we will have gotten what we set out to accomplish."

City gets direct line to airport

LAKE MARY - The city can now go directly to the airport director to voice concerns over airport growth.

A move made Thursday by Lake Mary City Commissioners, Sanford Mayor Larry Dale, and Victor White, executive director of the Orlando Sanford Airport, will allow the city a direct voice in further airport discussions.

"That is a step forward," said Commissioner Thom Greene.

Greene has represented the commission in discussions with the Sanford Airport Noise Abatement Committee.

Dale, White and Sanford City Manager Tony VanDerworp attended a work session, prior to the regular Lake Mary City Commission meeting, to discuss support of proposed domestic air service at the airport.

Lake Mary asked the Sanford and airport officials to provide more information because of concerns of increased noise.

Dale told the commission he has support for the project

POLICE LOG

The following reports were compiled from the Seminole County Sheriff's Office for incidents recorded Oct. 16:

Battery:
SANFORD, Orlando Drive, 2900 block, Oct. 16, 12:15 a.m. A 27-year-old woman was arrested for battery, resisting arrest without violence and disorderly conduct by Seminole County sheriff's deputies. According to deputies, the defendant accused another woman of "messing around with (her friend's) husband." During the ensuing argument, she hit the woman in the head with her flat and pulled her hair. As deputies tried to arrest her, she drew a crowd by shouting obscenities at the police.

Burglary:
ALTAMONTE SPRINGS, State Road 436, 1100 block, Oct. 15, 3:33 a.m. A 22-year-old man and a juvenile were arrested for unarmed burglary to a conveyance by Seminole County sheriff's deputies. Deputies said they found the two in a van smoking a cigarette. The van was parked behind an auto repair shop. They were asked if the van belonged to them and they replied that it did not.

WINTER SPRINGS, Warrington, Oct. 14, 10 p.m. An 18-year-old man was arrested for burglary of an occupied dwelling and grand theft by Winter Springs Police. Police said he broke into the garage of a home and took two sets of golf clubs and the bags. They said he tried to sell one of the sets and one of the bags at a used sporting goods store. He gave the store manager his photo identification and put his thumb print on the pawn slip, but the manager became suspicious when he tried to sell the items for $200. The manager said one club in the set was worth $500 so he would not accept the items. The young man was caught when he tried to pawn the clubs at another store for $250.

WINTER SPRINGS, David Street, 800 block, Oct. 14, 5:57 p.m. A 33-year-old man and a 31-year-old woman were arrested for burglary and theft by Winter Springs Police. Police said the pair broke into a van and stole approximately $1,520 worth of power tools and compact discs. The items were found in their vehicle after they were arrested last month for using a stolen credit card to try to purchase groceries and cigarettes at a Sanford grocery store. Winter Springs Police and Sanford Police coordinated their investigations and the arrests were made at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Disorderly Conduct:
SANFORD, 13th Street near Mangostine, Oct. 14, 11:11 p.m. A 23-year-old woman was arrested for disorderly conduct by Sanford Police when she began trying to interfere with QUAD squad drug arrests. She began shouting racial slurs and gathering a crowd around her as she yelled. She was arrested so officers could continue to do their work, police said.

Driving under the influence:
CASSELBERRY, State Road 436 at Howell Branch Road, Oct. 14, 1:20 a.m. A 22-year-old man was arrested for driving under the influence by Florida Highway Patrol.
LAKE MARY, Interstate 4, near Lake Mary exit, Oct. 14, 4 a.m. A 30-year-old woman was arrested for driving under the influence by Seminole County Sheriff's deputies.

Drugs:
SANFORD, 15th Street at Mangostine, Oct. 14, 10:36 p.m. A 30-year-old man was arrested for the sale and delivery of cocaine, the sale and delivery of marijuana, the possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana, the possession of cocaine, the possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver and the possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute. Members of the QUAD squad observed him making several drug sales before they moved in and arrested him. During the search done as part of the arrest, police found cocaine in a plastic pill bottle and several zip lock bags of marijuana along with $136 in cash in his pockets.

Grand theft:
CASSELBERRY, U.S. Highway 17-92, 8300 block, Oct. 15, 5:09 p.m. A 35-year-old man was arrested by Casselberry Police for grand theft. Police said she tried to deposit $9,000 into an account that had been "red flagged" by the bank because of irregularities. Police were called to the bank. When the woman saw the police officer she at first asked what was wrong and then volunteered that she had been trying to make deposits into the account with checks written on an account she and her husband had had in New Jersey, but which she knew to be closed. She told police that she was having severe financial problems and that she was trying to "buy time" by depositing the checks in the account. She said she was afraid to tell her husband about the financial problems and was trying to get money from her family to fix the mess she had made of the account.

Grand theft auto:
CASSELBERRY, Seminola Boulevard, 3000 block, Oct. 15, 9:43 p.m. An 18-year-old man was arrested by Casselberry Police for grand theft auto. Police said an investigation of a car theft last month led them to the man who admitted he had taken the keys to a car from the valet parking rack at the dog track "when no one was looking" and took the vehicle. He later abandoned the car.

Battle

Groot told the Board of County Commissioners a settlement may soon be reached between the county, the two cities and the Battle Ridge Company. Logue, and members of the Black Hammock Association, have fought the annexation and development of land owned by the company.

The agreement would limit further annexation by either Winter Springs or Oviedo, and Winter Springs would recognize the rural boundary set by the county in 1994.

"I think we've won a tremendous victory and everyone should be happy," said Logue.

The talk of settlement does not entirely please the homeowners in the MacKinley's Mill subdivision, directly south of the proposed development.

Regina Bereswill, president of the homeowner's association and two homeowners, Valerie El-Jamil and Grey Wilson, filed a petition against Winter Springs and the Florida Department of Community Affairs, when DCA found the land use change amendment and annexation in compliance with the city's comprehensive plan.

The homeowners' petition was consolidated with the one filed by Seminole County and Oviedo, but, Bereswill said in a letter to Chairman Randy Morris, "Mr. Cloud (the attorney for the Battle Ridge Company) has failed to include our group of petitioners in discussions and negotiations."

Airport

from the Oviedo, Sanford and Greater Seminole County chambers of commerce, the Seminole County Convention and Visitors Bureau, and the Private Business Association, as well as residents and businesses of Lake Mary.

"As close as I am to some of your constituents," said Dale, a former Lake Mary resident and developer, to Mayor David Meador, "I get calls and hear from them everywhere I go."

Meador said he had also heard from residents that the noise levels are not a problem. "I think what they're saying is 'at this time,'" he said.

Commissioner Gary Brender had raised the issue of the older airplanes used by domestic services. Brender said the older planes are generally noisier. White said that problem should be solved by 2000, when federal regulations mandate the installation of "hush kits" on 727, 737 and DC 9s.

"That's a good sign," said White.

"When you expand, there are people who are going to scream and holler," said Dale of the Lake Mary residents who have continually complained about international flights that approach from the west, over Timacuan. "We are going to continue to grow the airport. It's our obligation."

Brender said he would like to see the good and the bad affects of the expansion shared equally throughout the county.

"In our view, the city of Sanford, and more specifically, the airport authority, has been callous toward the city of Lake Mary," he said.

Greene had requested a Lake Mary resident be appointed to El-Jamil was at the BCC meeting Tuesday and said, "They're settling our issues without our participation. Let us come to the table with a few things."

The homeowners' group is concerned that the eastern annexation boundary is not enough to stop Winter Springs from annexing north and south of the Battle Ridge property. The group would like assurances that proposed densities will remain after the current developer's agreement expires and that enclaves created by the annexation will not be developed at higher commercial densities. They would also like to see the proposed 10-foot buffers be increased to 25 feet.

Morris said Friday that the other petitioners and the county have the same concerns and there would be additional discussions with the MacKinley's Mill homeowners.

"Their time will come in the public hearing," said Morris. Groot said the settlement could be ready for a commission vote on Oct. 27. Oviedo will discuss the settlement at its Monday council meeting.

For the Black Hammock Association, the fight to protect the rural character of the area began in 1985, with speculation on the alignment of the expressway. The Battle Ridge Company first purchased the land to use as a borrow pit for the new road.

"After all the borrow pit, retention pond, environmentally-sensitive mitigation lands ideas failed," said Robert King, another member of the association, "they were advised to try to change the land use and zoning to an urban density and try to get someone to allow them to build houses, apartments and commercial buildings on the parcel of land."

The county gave tentative approval and then backed out, in 1994. Oviedo considered annexation of the property, said, Logue, but could not provide the services to the area at that time.

Logue said he would have preferred that Oviedo annex the property, and that Winter Springs keep its boundaries west of the GreeneWay, but he can live with the terms of the settlement being discussed. "I'm trying to ride the horse in the direction its going."

Domestic service can only help airport

The Orlando Sanford Airport has grown to more than one million passengers a year, primarily carried on charter flights from Great Britain. The city can only benefit from that growth and the economic perks that come along with it. The airport is now primed to bring in some major domestic service. Go for it, we say.

There are, however, concerns being voiced regarding noise levels associated with the increased flights that will come with the projected airport growth. The Lake Mary City Commission, representing residents primarily from the Timacuan and Heathrow areas, want more controls put in place to alleviate that noise.

Sanford Mayor Larry Dale, a pilot for more than 30 years, said he does not understand the big fuss about the noise. Airports all over the country have noise concerns, he said.

The Sanford Airport Authority has commissioned a consultant to conduct a 12-month noise study, which got underway last month. Flight paths have been moved and there are plans to direct more airport traffic to the north/south runway to alleviate some of the noise. An Instrument Landing System will also help, Dale said. A noise abatement committee addresses the issue and keeps track of complaints monthly, the majority of which are generated from the same residents.

Dale has letters of support for domestic service from the Greater Seminole, Sanford and Oviedo chambers and the Seminole County Convention Bureau.

When Dale asked Lake Mary for its support, the noise issue resurfaced and commissioners did not commit their support. Instead, they asked for a stronger voice in airport issues. Commissioner Gary Brender, also a pilot, said domestic carriers use older, noisier airplanes. Airport executive director Victor White said by 2000 many of those older planes will be equipped with hush kits to alleviate the noise.

Dale said he does not need Lake Mary's blessing to proceed with Sanford's plans.

We believe with close attention to flight paths, tight controls, and continued communication with neighboring cities and agencies, the airport can launch a successful domestic air service from Sanford.

Casselberry under attack

It's disheartening this day and age to see what has happened in Seminole County and Casselberry. It is now under attack by the Religious Coalition and the Self-proclaimed Citizen for Decency leader Mark George, he's running for City Commissioner. One cannot help but wonder if his barrage of Religious conservatism against adult entertainment is anything more than a springboard for his political ambitions. The Coalition saying (The End Justify The Means) do anything you have to win, mislead, stretch the truth. Example: Nudity Ballot-fraudulent signatures people signing 8-10 times. Mark George lives in a house owned by the church. He does not pay taxes; he is a one-issue candidate with nothing to lose. We need a city leader who will really make Casselberry their home-not a morality fanatic looking for a throne. I'm Methodist and believe in God and attend church.

I believe we should keep church and state separate. Please think before you vote and keep him in church.

Mark George Seat 3

Although I do not live in the City of Casselberry, but do live adjacent to the city limits, I feel I would be amiss if I did not express my view that MARK GEORGE has exemplary qualifications to become a Casselberry City Commissioner (Seat 3).

I became acquainted with Mark George when he became a driving force working to maintain Seminole County as a safe, proper, and decent place in which family oriented folks can reside and raise up their children. I have observed him to be a wise, honorable, well educated, extremely capable gentleman who is dedicated to insuring the propriety of this area and the well being of the residents who live here. Faced with the adverse consequences of rapid growth, sometimes the past result of too little code enforcement, and the effects of very heavy traffic to and through the area, Mark George is indeed the needed "Man of the Hour" I do believe he will always "Stand Up For What's Right!"

I urge the people of Casselberry to go to the poles on November 3rd and vote for Mark George to fill Seat 3 on the Casselberry City Commission.

Park cannot be sold

Fort Mellon Park cannot be sold or used for other than recreation because he put the park in a trust fund. He died in 1936 or early 1937. The trust was not to be opened until 2004. The City does not own Fort Mellon Park. You cannot build on Fort Mellon Park against the trust fund.

Sign ordinances

Seems like our city has many faces enacting moments of either irrationality or ignorance when it comes to the enforcement and interpretation of the city's sign ordinance. How little the commission forgets that for over three years the ex-city attorney has been asked to re-arrange or address this highly controversial ordinance and issue. This city management and commission still has its head in the sand regarding the issue. Neither has yet to question the stonewalling by Kruppenbacher & Associates.

Still, you threw out a fifty year or better public project sponsored by the Jaycees to provide benches in public right-of-ways for the public's convenience! But yet you support paying city employees membership dues and expenses in a for-profit organization--the Rotary Club. This portrayal by the City alone supports total arrogance. Even the IRS has concerns about this usage of public funds (tax dollars).

Now we have a non-political-taxing-referendum to be voted on by the residents of the Tuscaulilla PUD. The City allows the use of taxpayer dollars to align its position in favor of the Tuscaulilla Homeowners Association, to convince and proceed with the City to collect additional tax dollars from PUD residents. It's known as "double-taxation"!

The City obviously needs these extra tax dollars and is willing to be two-faced about the sign issue so do I file a complaint against the City and THOA for proliferation of the THOA signs (without permits) within the PUD, city, and county? The city requires permits for garage sale signs and as far as the taxing referendum that's nothing more than a shoddy garage sale. The THOA needs money to mow their money losing holdings.

I shall file a complaint against both entities. Have law enforcement officer Don LeBlanc available with the proper forms so he may enact his authority.

Sierra Club on Astor Farms

The Central Florida Sierra Club has been monitoring the proposed amendments to the Seminole County Comprehensive Land Use Plan. The particular issues we are monitoring are Chuluota Bypass/Commercial Reality land use and Astor Farms land use.

Current Seminole County Comprehensive Land Use Plan requires that development occur in a pattern of outward growth from existing urban centers. This type of planning protects the character of rural areas and is also important to the preservation of untouched "green" zones. Astor Farms represents "leap-frog" development which leads to environmental fragmentation and urban sprawl. Additionally, Astor Farms and its surroundings are known to contain black bear, sandhill cranes and American kestrels, all of which are threatened species. This proposed development also borders land designated as part of the Wekiva River Protection Zone and lands previously purchased by the county specifically for conservation. The County Commission's report for this development is in direct conflict with the recommendations of its staff researchers as well as the county Planning and Zoning Board.

The Chuluota Bypass amendment also violates the concepts of sound growth management and prevention of urban sprawl. It would destroy the rural integrity of the area as well as impact environmentally sensitive lands and biodiversity in the Econ River Watershed. It would also jeopardize protection of the Econ River Watershed since this land is mapped by St. Johns Water Management District as high recharge for the Floridian Aquifer.

A recent visit with 1000 Friends of Florida and the attorney for the Department of Community Affairs has revealed 9 out of 13 primary factors to urban sprawl in these proposed amendments. It appears that rather than the Seminole County Land Use controlling growth, growth is controlling the Land Use Plan.

The entire Florida Chapter of the Sierra Club along with the homeowners in the affected areas, opposes the proposed amendments to the Seminole County and East Rural Land Use Plans.

Remembering Gene

We all knew him as Gene. Tall, and handsome inside and out. The first time we met him 8 years ago. Myself and a friend were attempting to encourage a young horse through a tricky ditch. Gene stopped his patrol car and came up to us with his "cowboy" rope.

Confidently he looped the rope around the horse's neck and managed to convince the young one to leap across. My friend and I were very thankful for our new "cowboy" gentlemen, patrol officer.

Ever since, when Gene came around, he always had his straight penetrating eyes looking directly through you, when he gave his "almost" smile.

During the "fires of Geneva" Gene stopped his car and gave the people who were "trapped" down the end of Osceola road updates and encouragement. When the roads were still not clear, Gene lead most of the people who wished to leave, through the back roads, and out to safety. Through the night he would stop back by and see that we who stayed were all okay.

We knew Gene as very quiet and reserved, always the "silent hero". We still miss his cowboy hat and shades outlined through the tinted windows of his cruiser. Many memories of Gene escape us. As time goes by there will be small things that will bring up his memory in many small ways.

All who knew him will miss him, and we grieve for his wife and family.

This is a strange feeling of sadness for someone we knew only slightly.

We trusted him fully with our lives, and we thank his loved ones for allowing him to be here for us.

Last harvest

On behalf of the Crealde' Board of Directors and staff, I want to express my most sincere appreciation for your in-depth coverage of the Last Harvest exhibition, currently on display at the fine arts gallery of Seminole Community College in Sanford. As you probably know, this award-winning project has received considerable coverage by local press. Your story by far gives the most complete account, not only of the actual photographs and text on display, but of the political and social background of the subject matter covered in the exhibition as well. The fact that our of your busy schedule you made an effort to attend both the opening reception and the brown bag lunch/panel discussion is extremely commendable. Rarely do journalists take such time and effort to research a community project such as ours. We also appreciate your care to credit the various organizations that were involved with making this project possible and the mention of the Florida Humanities Council who funded the travel exhibition.

Once again we thank you for your excellent coverage and your efforts to educate the general public about a little known aspect of our community.

Fast food restaurant

I write this letter with great reluctance, however, after seeing the headline in the paper, "Do we really need a fast food restaurant in the historic district?" I felt it as a duty to myself to let a few of my thoughts be known.

In reading the letter relating to a Burger King in the Historic District chiding the HPB, my immediate thought was where was the HPB when the matter of the Convention Center came up? Isn't Ft. Mellon Park historic?

My reluctance in writing is due to the fact that a large number of those who are enthusiastically promoting the center are friends who I respect, admire and like very much. I do not doubt their sincerity and respect their right to feel as they do.

I moved to Sanford in January of 1947. Having family who came here in the early 20's my parents brought me here first in 1927 and from time to time thereafter. One of my earliest memories of Sanford was of Ft. Mellon Park. It seemed to be an integral part of Sanford itself.

My two sons were involved in Little League and Jr. League as long as they were eligible. My wife and I spent many a hot afternoon watching not only their teams as well as their competitors. The 4th of July was and still is a very memorable experience. I will remember Roy Holler, for whom the field is named, and how he spent countless hours promoting and attending games as long as he lived. I wonder how Roy would vote.

Just as we were told that there are other areas that recreation activities can be held. I find it difficult to believe that another acceptable site can be found for the Convention Center. My contention is that Ft. Mellon Park is a historical site and an integral part of Sanford. It is an identifiable characteristic of the City. I have no problem with progress and desire such as much as any other citizen. But I find the sacrifice of this beautiful site in order to bring it about unacceptable.

I wish it would be possible to separate the votes in November into two classifications. One group consisting of those adults who have spent the major portion of their lives in Sanford and the other who have not. The vast majority of those in the former group with whom I am acquainted are most definitely opposed. Likewise, it should be added that this group is not opposed to efforts to make Sanford prosper. There just has to be a more viable way to accomplish this end.

Mayor Dale's tome

I have just read in the Seminole Herald, Mayor Larry Dale's tome on the proposed Convention Center in Fort Mellon Park. This article was an act of a desperate man whose convoluted interpretation of the facts is amazing. Larry Dale has been called many things but I have never heard anyone call him stupid. He knows his political power and influence are at stake in this head-to-head confrontation between the political-developer-business conglomerate and most of the rest of Sanford's citizens.

As the presumed architect and prime mover of this divisive project, Mr. Dale has placed himself in a vulnerable position. The defeat of the referendum will notify everyone that this developer-cum-mayor has overstepped the bounds of his fiscal and administrative authority and no longer warrants the respect due his office.

The Convention Center is not so much the issue as its placement on utilized, dedicated public land and the subsidies offered by the City. The Fort Mellon Park Convention Center is WRONG. As a citizen of Sanford, I appeal to every concerned voter to vote "NO" in the Nov. 3 referendum.

Parent speaks out

As the parent of two, I'm excited about the proposed conference center/hotel on Lake Monroe for the meeting space it will provide.

There is currently no facility in Seminole County large enough to accommodate high school graduations or proms. We go to UCF or the Orlando Arena for formal graduation ceremonies and Orange County hotels for proms.

To have a place in our own backyard, in a beautiful location is wonderful. I applaud the county and the city for coming up with a great plan for Sanford!

Baking bread right is no small feat

By Bill Kerns
HERALD STAFF WRITER

CASSELBERRY - When Shannon Tally came to Seminole County, he noticed a lack of fine bread. He knew how to change that.

But change takes time, say about 36-48 hours. That's how long it takes to prepare a loaf of bread at the Olde Hearth Bread Company, at 1056 State Road 436 in Casselberry, where co-owner and chef Tally prepares croissants, pastries, and sandwiches using special ovens from Spain and France along with a climate controlled baking facility.

"I came to Florida after marrying my wife," Tally said. "I wanted to run a family restaurant featuring the finest possible bread."

Tally, a graduate of the Culinary Institute of America and a veteran of such restaurants as San Francisco's Acme Bread Company, co-owns the restaurant along with his wife Tanja and his father David.

The restaurant features Central Florida's first Llopis bread oven, open to customers' view through a wide glass window.

The round, 17-foot fire-brick and stone deck oven was imported from Barcelona, Spain and hand built on sight. Tally said the gas-powered oven uses indirect heat while rotating on a wheel, and cooks 125 loaves each hour.

"I was the laborer," Tally said about building the oven. "The first four feet are all fire brick. Manuel del la Rosa came from Barcelona to position the oven. It was amazing how simplistic he made it

Shannon Tally, owner and master baker, assists Manuel del la Rosa with the installation of the Llopis oven. The oven was built in Spain at a cost of $50,000. Installation at the bakery was over seven days.

The other oven used at the Olde Hearth is a Paviller, imported from France. It is a deck style brick oven, with four different levels.

"The advantage to this oven is we can bake different types of breads at different temperatures," Tally said. "We can bake croissants on one level, cookies on another, all at the right temperature."

It all starts with flour and wheat. Tally uses cutting edge strands of low protein flour and "winter wheat" in his breads.

"There was a myth that higher protein flours are better," Tally said. "The French weaken the protein, and it gives the bread better taste. The wheat I use takes a great deal of skill on the baker's part to prepare, but it has a better taste."

Tally said he uses an organic rye flour "starter," with a "pancake batter consistency" that takes at least 24 hours to "capture the ambient yeast enzymes in the air" that will improve the bread's flavor.

After that, Tally gives the bread dough an additional 12-24 hours to add volume and flavor.

"Have you ever marinated meat overnight?" Tally said. "Giving the meat more time adds flavor. That's the best analogy I can make. Plus, I control the temperature."

Tally said he and his wife enjoy giving tours to any one who asks.

The Olde Hearth Bread Company is open Monday through Saturday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., and is in the Gooding's Plaza on the corner of Red Bug Lake Road and 436.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield sign with subsidiary

FROM WIRE REPORTS

TALLAHASSEE - Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Florida (BCBSF) announced this week that its wholly-owned subsidiary, Health Options Inc., has signed a definitive agreement with Coventry Health Care Inc. to acquire Coventry's subsidiary, Principal Health Care of Florida, for $95 million in cash. Subject to obtaining final regulatory approvals, BCBSF's Health Options will begin managing the business by the end of the year.

The acquisition will expand BCBSF's customer base by approximately 138,000 commercial members.

"We are excited about the opportunity to offer quality service, value and stability to Principal Health Care of Florida's customers," said Robert J. Lufrano, M.D., BCBSF executive vice president. "For more than 50 years, we have delivered on our promise to help customers meet their health care needs through our financial strength, commitment to Florida and quality, affordable health care plans. We will provide the same quality, service and value to our new PIC of Florida members." Health Options did not acquire Principal Health Care of Florida's Medicare risk business in north Florida as part of this transaction.

Until regulatory approvals are received, Principal Health Care of Florida will continue to operate and members will receive the same benefits and services. BCBSF expects to begin transferring members as contracts renew in March 1999. "Members can be assured that as we move through the transition process, we will keep all parties informed to ensure a smooth transition with no interruption in service, care or coverage," Lufrano said. BCBSF has a successful history of managing customer transitions from other plans -- including more than 200,000 state employees, dependents and retirees earlier this year.

"BCBSF continues to strengthen its leadership position in Florida in a rapidly changing environment," Lufrano said. "This significantly increases our presence in Florida so that we can continue to add value for our customers."

BCBSF and Health Options Inc. are independent licensees of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association, an association of independent Blue Cross and Blue Shield companies. A financially strong, tax-paying mutual company, BCBSF is subject to the same regulation by the Department of Insurance as other health care organizations operating in Florida. Standard and Poor's affirmed its "A+" claims-paying ability and credit ratings of BCBSF and A.M. Best Company affirmed its "A" rating. The ratings are based on BCBSF's strong market position, good earnings profile and excellent capitalization. More information on BCBSF can be found on its web site at www.bcbsfl.com.

Congress passes veterans' bill

FROM WIRE REPORTS

Rep. John L. Mica (R-FL), chairman of the House Subcommittee on Civil Service, announced that Congress passed the Veterans Employment Opportunities Act of 1998.

"Veterans," Mica said, "for too long have been the last hired and first fired in our federal workforce. After a decade of effort, Mica said, to fully recognize veterans' service as federal employment. This legislation is a significant step forward for America's veterans. It has been called the most significant improvement in veterans' preference in 50 years. That is why all of the major veterans' service organizations supported this bill."

Mica said the bill contains several very important protections for veterans in this bill. Creating an effective, user-friendly redress system for veterans' rights has been an objective of veterans for many years. To make sure that veterans rights are respected, Congress has made violations of veterans' preference laws a prohibited personnel practice, he said.

Mica added, "The bill also opens many jobs to veterans that were previously closed to them. Agencies frequently allow only current civilian employees to apply for vacant positions. Veterans who are not currently federal employees are frozen out. But under this bill, whenever an agency considers applicants from outside its own workforce, it must also allow most veterans to compete."

Provisions added in the Senate expand veterans' employment opportunities with federal contractors. Contractors will be required to include Persian Gulf War veterans in their veterans' recruiting programs. The legislation also prohibits federal agencies from contracting with companies that have not complied with Department of Labor reporting requirements with respect to hiring Vietnam-era, Persian Gulf, and disabled veterans.

Heather has four horses. "She needs different horses for different events," said her

An only child, Heather said her dog Willie is "like a little brother to me. He sleeps in my bed and rides horses with me. His name is Wilsaw, after the town in Montana where we got him. I call him Willie. He threw up all over the car the first day we had him."

Finance seminars available

FROM WIRE REPORTS

TALLAHASSEE - Florida Agriculture and Consumer Services Commissioner Bob Crawford is urging consumers to check out seminars that promise financial gain before they spend any money. The Department does not regulate financial seminars but does act as a clearinghouse for consumer complaints against these types of entities.

The Division of Consumer Services has received complaints from consumers against a Seattle, Wash., business that has begun offering financial seminars throughout Florida. The complaints are over refund disputes for Wade Cook's Wall Street Workshops, one type of seminar offered. The seminars advertise that they provide money-making stock market strategies and other means to accumulate wealth.

Wade Cook Seminars Inc., and its owner, Wade B. Cook, have been the target of legal action in several states. In May of this year, the Texas Attorney General and State Securities Board filed a lawsuit against Wade B. Cook and Wade Cook Seminars alleging violations of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Act. The lawsuit also alleges that Wade Cook failed to tell consumers about the high risk of financial loss entailed by the financial strategies taught at the seminars and about the losses he has incurred.

In 1989, Arizona officials also took action against Cook for selling unregistered securities and for misappropriating thousands of dollars of investors' funds for personal use. Charges were dismissed in exchange for Cook's agreement to pay $70,500 in restitution to victims.

Consumers should be aware that Florida law does not require a three-day cancellation period in contracts for seminars. Once a contract is signed, it is legally enforceable.

Quitters never win, winners never quit

SANFORD — We're leaving Seminole County, but only for a moment. Don't worry, this will all make sense in a minute.

Did you follow the Kerry Collins debacle in Charlotte that unfolded over the last week?

Basically, if you're cable-impaired and don't have ESPN, the Carolina Panther quarterback, AKA "The Franchise" asked his coach Dom Capers to remove him from the starting lineup. He said he had lost confidence in himself.

In the NFL, that's tantamount to quitting.

Capers released the gory details to the press who had a field day going from locker to locker and hearing the words "quitter," "gutless" and several other unprintables.

Collins said he was misunderstood, but several teammates, including his two closest friends on the team, both said Collins quit and the information was accurate.

Despite an offer on the table of $25 million over five years, the Panthers, knowing Collins could never be respected again, waived Collins Tuesday.

Of course, as with any 25-year-old quarterback with a rifle arm and scads of talent, Collins was picked up by New Orleans Wednesday.

The outcry throughout the league has been predictable. Despite the rivalries throughout the NFL, the players still represent a fraternity and rule one is, you don't quit.

Tampa Bay Bucs' lineman Warren Sapp went on a vicious verbal attack Wednesday and even his new Saints' teammates are wary of Collins.

After all, he may replace former Florida Gator Danny Wuerffel who would never, ever quit and took his lumps down 31 points last week to San Francisco.

Collins asked to be removed from the lineup, but never asked for his release, basically ensuring him over $100,000 each week to remain inactive.

Back to Seminole County.

We see and write about a lot of winning teams in the county, but we also see squads that have little chance of winning more than once or twice a season, but in three years at the Herald, I don't think I've seen a player quit in the middle of the season.

Here are a few examples, all of high schoolers in the area who never quit despite losing for fun and not collecting a paycheck.

There was the Seminole girls' lacrosse team last year that got destroyed every night but still had a great time.

The Lake Howell girls' volleyball team certainly hasn't given up.

Lyman's softball team barely made it to seven innings last year, often failing to pitch the ball near home plate, but they were a joy to watch, having more fun than the winning team.

How about last year's Lake Mary football team that put up the fight of its life in a season-ending loss to Seminole, trying to put off a no-win season.

The Lyman football team hasn't had a winning season since 1991. Down 28-7 at Apopka, the Greyhounds, one of the most dedicated teams in the county, almost pulled out the win, falling just short at the end.

Winter Springs' girls and boys basketball teams got crushed often last year. No one quit, and the Bears were remarkably improved by the end of the season. In fact, the girls loom as the biggest challenger to Lake Mary this season and the guys will be a large threat for the next two seasons.

They are just a few of the examples of not quitting. With the Lake Mary football team last year, it would have been easy to ask to be benched after the losing streak continued. Instead, the team stayed together. Nobody asked out.

And they weren't making money for it.

Kerry Collins could take some nice examples from Seminole County.

Last Second Shot: Hey hackers, get out on the golf course while you can. Most Seminole County golf courses are still offering summer rates, but they'll be going up again real soon.

Gifts come Rams' way

Turnovers help Lake Mary win

By Jeff Berlinicke
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

CASSELBERRY — Christmas came early to the Lake Mary Rams last night.

So did birthdays and just about any other gift-giving occasion you can think of.

The Rams capitalized on 10 turnovers, including seven fumbles, six recovered by the Rams, and four interceptions to pull out a 38-9 road victory that put them right back into the district playoff hunt and ended Lake Howell's hopes.

Four of Lake Howell's turnovers came inside the Lake Mary 21-yard line.

The Hawks came into the game at a severe disadvantage, missing seven starters. The game was originally scheduled last month but was postponed until fall break week due to Hurricane Georges. Many of the Hawks had originally scheduled vacations and Lake Mary was without only one player.

Still, the game was surprisingly even except for the turnovers and Lake Mary's ability to capitalize.

The Hawks turned the ball over six times in a 51-0 loss to Deland last week.

Lake Howell coach Mike Blacaglia, the winningest coach in Seminole County, walked off the field stunned.

"I've never lost three games in a row like this in my career," Blacaglia said. "Six fumbles last week, 10 turnovers this week."

The Hawks, a pre-season favorite in the conference, fell to 1-6 on the season and have only one remaining home game.

Lake Mary, a team that finished 0-9 last year, improved to 4-2 on the season and 1-2 in the district, keeping hopes alive. They are in a tie for third in districts and undefeated Lake Brantley appears uncatchable, but the Rams still get a chance to visit second-place Deland in three weeks.

"We're 4-2 and this was a must-

Lake Mary players celebrate after beating Lake Howell 38-9 in a crucial Class 5A District 3 and Seminole Athletic Conference football game at Richard Evans Field Friday night that kept the Rams' hopes of making the state playoffs alive.

win game for us," Lake Mary coach Greg Stanton said. "We still need to win the next four, but I think all of our kids feel like winners. They're not at the same point where they were last year, but they still need to know they have to get up for every game. Most teams can pick five games they have to get up for, but we need to go at it in all 10."

The Rams didn't come out smoking Friday night. Both teams had a hard time playing after a lazy week off at school, and Stanton knew his team would be affected.

"I knew we weren't ready to play," Stanton said. "I didn't want to play tonight. It was hard for us to get up for it after being out of school all week and we came out as flat as I've ever seen."

Lake Howell took advantage after the opening whistle. The Hawks pinned Lake Mary deep and, after a short Rams' punt, the Hawks started their opening drive on the 23. Quarterback Jesse Hannon sneaked it in from the one-yard line, and the Hawks led, 7-0.

The Rams responded with two Russ Abrams field goals of 40- and 30-yards to cut the lead to 7-6, setting up the second field goal when the Hawks fumbled on their own 11.

Lake Mary took its first lead when Hannon was picked off by Joey Licata at the Lake Howell 23. Lawrence Rudolph scored on a five-yard run three plays later and, after Justin Wright carried in the two-point conversion, Lake Mary had the lead, 14-7, where it stood at the half.

Both teams combined to break it open for the Rams in the third quarter. Lake Howell continued to turn the ball over and the Rams' swarming defense, led by Wright and Ryan DiChiara, stuffed the Hawks repeatedly.

After a 37-yard field goal from Abrams, Lake Mary held the Hawks on a three-and-out and, following a punt, Wright took the first play 26 yards up the middle to make it 24-7 and the rout was on.

The Hawks drove to the Lake Mary 35 on the next possession before turning it over, and the Rams again scored in one play when Corey Cooper found Andy Sojka on a 65-yard fly pattern for another score.

After Lake Howell sacked Cooper in the end zone on the Rams' next possession to make it 31-9, Lake Mary capitalized one final time when Wright went 42 yards down the sideline for the back breaker.

Naturally, the score came after a turnover.

The Rams have easily beaten last year's mark and think they can do even better.

Pardus to make first Winston Cup start

Special to the Herald

DAYTONA BEACH — During Friday's Bud Beer Second-Round Qualifying, Daytona Beach native Dan Pardus was the fastest of seven cars to attempt to better the time they set during first-round qualifying on Thursday.

Pardus, who will make his first career NASCAR Winston Cup Series start in tomorrow night's Pepsi 400, drove his No. 07 Midwest Transit Chevrolet to a time of 47.362 seconds, for an average speed of 189.946 mph.

Bobby Labonte captured the pole for Saturday's 400 mile event during Thursday's Pepsi 400 Pole Night. Labonte grabbed the top spot in his No. 18 Interstate Batteries Pontiac with a lap of 193.611 mph. Jeff Burton will line up second, while two-time Daytona 500 champion Dale Jarrett will start third. NASCAR Winston Cup champions Terry Labonte and Dale Earnhardt will round out the top five.

Mark Martin, second in Winston Cup points, Rusty Wallace, Winston Cup points leader Jeff Gordon, Mike Skinner and Hut Stricklin will start sixth-through-tenth.

"We really gambled by going back out," said Pardus. "I didn't want to really go back out, but the owner said he didn't want the same thing to happen to us this week that happened last week (Pardus missed the field at Talladega last week after he stood on his first-round qualifying speed)."

"I think I got mad. I went out there and gave it the hardest two laps that we could do. It really paid off. We

What's Up In The NFL..... Week No. 7

SANFORD Welcome to Week Seven fans, we have a lot to talk about.

Last Sunday produced a number of great games along with a bunch of duds. New England, San Francisco, St. Louis, and Atlanta cruised to victory and set the tone for their games this week.

Washington, Chicago, and San Diego reinforced the fact that they are the League's worst squads as they lost again in very ugly contests.

The League's Bad Boys, the Oakland Raiders, continue to set the standard in the N.F.L. for getting into trouble.

It seems Cheater coach Jon Gruden has gotten into the act after being arrested shortly after the Raider victory over San Diego last week. The California Highway Patrol made the arrest after witnessing Gruden, "speeding and driving erratically."

You have to love a coach that gets so excited about beating the Chargers 7-6 that he flips out and plays NASCAR on the California freeway system.

Prior to this incident I thought the organization's troubles were limited to a wacky owner and a bunch of spoiled athletes, now I understand the whole picture. The Oakland Raiders have finally found themselves. This team is comprised of athletic revolutionaries from top to bottom, including their fans.

Remember, this is the only stadium in the country that surrendering a handgun or assault rifle at the gate gains you free admission to Raiders' home games!

The Jaguars looked pretty good in their victory over the Dolphins last week, but without some fluke plays, Miami could have easily won. It was the first time this season that Marino's receivers caught the ball regularly and I look for Jimmy Johnson to go back to the pass as a result.

Before we get to the schedule I think it's important to update readers on the performance of my patented LOCK OF THE WEEK selections. The ATLANTA FALCONS (+3) crushed the NEW YORK GIANTS last week bringing my record to an amazing 7-0.

Dollar value of my deadly accuracy? Your $100 investment in Week One would now be worth a staggering $12,800!

Let's take a look into the CRYSTAL BALL OF FOOTBALL and find some more winners.

TAMPA BAY (-7) VS. CAROLINA

The Bucs are in desperate need of this win as the Vikings continue to pull away in the Division. The Panthers are much more competitive since Collins' departure, and may have some tricks up their sleeves. I hope the Bucs used the bye week to find some offense. Bucs 23, Panthers 6.

JACKSONVILLE (-4) AT BUFFALO

The Bills are earning respect around the League and are still tied with the Raiders as my favorite team in the N.F.L. I like them to play this game close, and maybe even pull it off. Yeah, I think so. Bills 24, Jaguars 21.

MIAMI (-7) VS. ST. LOUIS

The Rams are very excited right now. Banks is maturing at quarterback, and their running game is coming together. The only problem they have is the fact that they are going against Marino, at home, coming off a heartbreaking loss. Bombs away for both teams! Dolphins 38, Rams 35.

PITTSBURGH (-5) VS. BALTIMORE

The Steelers are in big trouble, finished if they lose this one. Stewart is failing at quarterback and the defense has been unable to win games.

The Ravens are coming off a near scoreless loss to the Oilers and probably won't improve this week. Look for an all out effort by Pittsburgh AND their fans in this one. Steelers 23, Ravens 10.

NEW YORK GIANTS (-3) VS. ARIZONA

The Cardinals are going to the playoffs! The Giants don't have a chance at the playoffs! This Divisional matchup pits a rapidly improving team against a team that is watching the wheels fall off. Cardinals 17, Giants 13.

MINNESOTA (-13) VS. WASHINGTON

The Vikings continue to terrorize opponents and for the first time in years I think they may be for real. They have looked this good and folded before, but I'm not sure they will this season. The Redskins are an absolute disgrace, just like certain men living in the same city. Vikings 118, Redskins 1.

What's Up In The NFL

TENNESSEE (-4) VS. CINCINNATI

Best game of the week from a spectators point of view. Two young scrappy teams will battle it out in mutual dislike for each other. These teams hate each other. I remember a Sunday Night game years ago that the cops had to break up a fight on the last play of the game. Bengals 23, Oilers 20, Ambulances 4.

ATLANTA (-6) VS. NEW ORLEANS

Going to college in New Orleans taught me one thing, no matter how bad or good these teams are, this is a huge rivalry. I really love the Saints, but the Falcons offense will have the same type of success that the Niners had last week. Chris Chandler cannot be stopped. Falcons 31, Saints 13.

DALLAS (-4) AT CHICAGO

The Bears try very hard and have only one win to show for it. The Cowgirls don't try and have four wins as a result. Remember hearing as a child, "Try your best and things will work out?" This game will reinforce that lesson for millions of children around the country. Bears win! Bears 27, Cowgirls 13.

SAN DIEGO (-3) VS. PHILADELPHIA

The Chargers fans will stay home to watch the World Series as the Eagles come to town for this matchup. As long as Ryan "Cry-baby" Leaf doesn't start, San Diego will win. Junior Seau will play like he hasn't played since their Super Bowl season a few years back. Chargers 20, Eagles 13.

NEW ENGLAND (-6) VS. NEW YORK JETS

The Jets come to Foxboro looking to turn things around after being humiliated by the Rams last week. The Patriots take the field looking to keep the status quo after getting off to a great start. Parcels would love to shove this game down Drew Bledsoe's throat, he just doesn't have the talent to do it. Patriots 28, Jets 14.

After going through this schedule I have come to a frightening realization, this is ANOTHER tough week. Games that should be easy winners have some very difficult lines to overcome.

Sitting at a perfect 7-0, with an original $100 investment now worth $12,800, it is time for me to ~~be like a stockbroker for a moment~~. When the market is up you use a clever investor will "take profits."

That my loyal readers is what I am suggesting as we approach the midpoint of the season. Take $12,700 of your winnings and sock them away for a rainy day.

Has he lost his confidence? Is he panicking? Is he out of winners? The answer to all three questions is NO!

It's time to rebuild our empires from the ground up, while protecting our amazing accomplishments of the first six weeks of the season.

Let's get off to a fast start today by going with

Stretch of upcoming home games should help Bucs rebound

TAMPA - Sunday should start a whole new season for the Buccaneers.

With four of the next five games at home, and the first two in Raymond James Stadium already down as wins, many are speculating that instead of being a latent team, Tampa Bay is really a late bloomer.

With a defense that is ranked No. 1 in the NFC and No. 2 in the NFL for the first time in franchise history, the main problem for the Bucs is offense.

Several key injuries have plagued the offense and allowed a struggling offensive line to put quarterback Trent Dilfer under a tremendous amount of pressure.

Offensive coordinator Mike Shula has been under the microscope lately as through five games the offense has done little.

Don't look for any big changes, however, as both Shula and Dungy are set in their ways and stand behind their players.

Two things that should help the offense a great deal are the return of receiver Bert Emanuel, who has missed four games due to an ankle injury and a much needed rest for Dilfer.

Dilfer will return to the line up completely healthy for the first time this season when the Bucs take on Carolina this weekend.

There is no doubt that Dilfer needs to step up and Carolina, with a struggling secondary, should provide him with the perfect opportunity to do just that.

Jacquez Green was expected to return this week, but his shoulder isn't where it needs to be and it is probable that he will have to sit this one out. His absence leaves a gap in both the offense and special teams.

Since Warrick Dunn and Mike Alstott are not nearly as potent as they were last season, an offense that is built around the running game should have a chance to get up and running against Carolina this weekend.

As far as the defense goes, the loss of Chidi Ahanotu for the season (shoulder surgery) will hurt, but is far from devastating. Tyoka Jackson will take over the starting job and Steve White will get a lot of playing time.

Warren Sapp, who has been rather quiet throughout the first five games, will be expected to help the backups on the line and outside linebacker Derrick Brooks, who is the heart and soul of the defense,

BUCS' BITS

By Kellie Werner

will also be expected to take a leadership role.

Things could really turn around with a win this week.

The confidence boost might be just what the doctor ordered and should serve to carry the team through the coming weeks at home.

NOTES:

Don't expect to see third-string quarterback Scott Milanovich moved up in front of Steve Walsh.

Shula was somehow impressed with Walsh's preseason play and isn't even considering a switch at this time....

Since Green will be unable to play this week, Tampa Bay plans to keep six receivers on the roster.

With Ahanotu out for the rest of the season, it's now or never for former first-round pick Marcus Jones. He has been a bust for three years, and this will be his last chance.

Jones is behind Jackson and White on the depth chart but will be given a chance to raise his status.

But if Jones can't take some playing time away from Jackson and White, the team will be ready to finally admit Jones was a mistake and turn him loose after the season.

Despite appearances, Sunday's Bills game is critical for Jaguars

JACKSONVILLE - A trip to Buffalo for this Sunday's 1 p.m. matchup with the Bills doesn't look like much of a problem on paper.

In reality, this could be the most important game of the first half of the season.

A few reasons: first, with the Jaguars now at 5-0, a win this weekend will tie them with the idle Broncos for the best record in the AFC with a game at Denver looming Oct. 25. The Jaguars are good enough to be looking at more than just their first AFC Central title. Home field advantage for the playoffs has become an issue, so even the light touches such as Buffalo and Baltimore (Nov. 1) can't be ignored.

Also, the Jags have a way of playing to their opponents potential. Look for a sloppy performance against Buffalo this week. With the Jaguars, that's just how they operate.

The problem is, a trip to Buffalo and a loss could be devastating, especially since the Jags will head to Denver as heavy underdogs. They can't afford to fall two games behind Denver in a battle for home field.

Jacksonville may be 5-0 but hasn't looked impressive all year. Dan Marino could have thrown for 400 yards if he hadn't been restricted by Jimmy Johnson's game play Monday night. Starting tailback Fred Taylor is questionable with a separated shoulder, leaving only Tavian Banks and two untested rookie to carry the mail if Taylor can't make the bell.

A team cannot continue to win the kinds of game the Jaguars are winning, not if it doesn't plan on a major slip-up. A two-game losing streak would put the Jags right into a tie with Pittsburgh for the Central Division race.

The Jags are 5-point favorites Sunday, but Doug Flutie is starting at quarterback and, stats or no stats, Flutie finds ways to win.

This game is much bigger than anyone thinks.

JAGUAR NOTES:

Look for Rich Tylski to start at right guard over Brian DeMarco this weekend. DeMarco has started each game this season, but Tylski has filled in during the recent injury crisis and was effective...The win over Miami evened the team's records since the Jaguars inception in 1995. Also, the Jaguars win pushed them past the Carolina Panthers for best record of the two expansion teams...Safety Mike Logan admitted to a flagrant head-to-head hit on Marino Monday, but plans to appeal the surprising $20,000 fine levied by the NFL. It was his first offense...

WIN AT BRIDGE

An immediate jump from one to three

By Phillip Alder

PHILLIP ALDER

Let's cover one more cue-bid — a rather advanced and unlikely one. What does it mean if, after your right-hand opponent opens one of a suit, you jump straight to three of that suit?

There are various interpretations, but most experts play that over a minor-suit opening, it is a natural weak jump overall, showing a good six-card suit with some 6-10 points. But if the opening bid is in a five-card major, the jump asks partner to bid three no-trump with a stopper in the suit. The overcaller has a solid minor and eight or nine guaranteed tricks, but is lacking a stopper in the opener's suit. (Some permit a solid major, but I suggest you ignore that possibility, at least for the moment.)

What would you do with the North hand over West's one heart? No number of diamonds appeals; and if you make a takeout double, partner might never stop bidding spades. Only the jump cue is an accurate description. With a heart stopper, South bid three no-trump as asked. Yet if he hadn't held the heart king, he would have bid four clubs (just in case partner had only ace-king-queen-seventh or -eighth of clubs).

West guessed well, leading the club four. (He knew who had the heart king.) The normal play for declarer is low from the dummy to guarantee a stopper in the suit. Here, though, it is wrong. If East wins the first trick, what will he do? Right — he'll switch to a high heart, and West is known to have the ace. So, South must maximize his chances of keeping East off

Kathy Corso's lump developed during a two-year lapse in her regular mammogram schedule

By Jeana Hughes
HERALD STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - Caught up in the hectic life of a working wife and mother, Kathy Corso realized she had neglected to get her yearly mammogram in 1996.

"With kids, school activities, my job, it's easy to put things off," said Corso. Corso is a legal assistant for attorney Tim Askew at the Hutchison, Mamele and Coover law firm in Sanford. She and her husband, Bill, have four children.

She was determined not to put it off longer. After a lapse in the faithful routine she had started in 1994, she resumed her yearly mammograms in October of 1997.

Corso may owe her life to that routine mammogram and to her determination to take better care of herself. With a family history of breast cancer, Corso knew her odds of getting the disease were good and early detection was her best defense. The fast-moving cancer found in Corso's breast could not be felt manually and without a mammogram might have gone undetected for some time.

Corso remembers being impatient as the technician stopped to meticulously adjust and readjust during the test. She was meeting a friend for lunch and this mammogram was taking longer than it had in the past. Today, Corso thanks God for the careful attention of that technician.

A needle biopsy was performed on a Wednesday in December. It was not until the following Monday at her surgeon's office that she heard the words, "It is a carcinoma."

Corso, 42 at the time, remembers the look of concern on the nurse's face. After leaving the doctor's office, she went for a ride and had a good cry. "I just felt like if it was my time," said Corso. "I have a faith in life itself."

"I knew I had to get myself together," said Corso. But, there was one question Corso needed to ask, so she called Dr. John Robertson back. "I need to know how long I have," Corso remembers asking. For what, the surgery, the doctor asked. To live, was Corso's question. The doctor immediately assured her that this was not a diagnosis of death.

"When you have it in the family," said her husband, "you put it in the back of your mind, but you know it can happen. I want to do whatever we can to get her better."

With that, Corso got on with the job at hand. She decided to have a lumpectomy, which was performed the day after Christmas 1997, but the cancer was more extensive than originally thought and a mastectomy was performed in early January of this year. The surgery was followed by approximately five months of chemotherapy and six weeks of radiation.

Telling her children, Kim, 15, Billy, 13, Paige, 9, and Mike, 7, was not easy, Corso explained to the children on their level. "I told them sometimes people do die from cancer, but the doctor's said mommy's going to be fine."

Corso tolerated the treatments well. "I think I have a high tolerance for pain," said Corso. "I just wanted to know what they were going to be doing."

So when the doctor said her hair would fall out, she cut it short and added hats to her wardrobe. She continued to work and insisted on keeping things at home as normal as possible for her children. Her sister, Sue Richards, stepped in and helped.

There have been emotional ups and downs. "No one can really prepare you," said Corso. "You do feel self-conscious."

During the time when she was having the surgeries and treatments Corso felt she had to be strong for her kids and family. "I kept going because I had to get it done," said Corso. "Now I'm letting down my defenses. I'm still dealing with the emotional part."

Encouragement came from family and friends. People would call constantly. Corso, who is Catholic, received a special blessing. Expressions of love and support came in many ways.

"Bill was strong through the crisis. He's been there for me," said Corso. "And I've always been close to my sister, Sue."

"I felt sorry for a lot of people around me who didn't know what to do," said Corso. Words are not always easy to find at times like this.

Her husband bought her a book, A Cancer Battle Plan, by Arne E. Frahm with David J. Frahm. Corso found it encouraging to read the moving personal stories of others dealing with cancer.

"It seems like the worst is over," said Bill. "It seems like things are going to get back to normal."

"People would forget except for my short hair," remarks Corso. Corso's bone, liver and kidney scans and continued blood work have been normal. She is due to go back for a regular mammogram and is a little nervous about that.

"It does make you appreciate life," said Corso. "I never took things for granted, but it makes you appreciate it more."

"You just go on," said Corso. "Nobody can predict the future."

Survivors owe their lives to early detection

Too young to have cancer, too young to die, Debbie Whitehead found lump through self-exam

By Jeana Hughes
HERALD STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - "I'm sorry. It's malignant."

The words were like a blow taking Debbie Whitehead to her knees. She sat on the kitchen floor crying as her husband, Nicky, fired off questions into the phone he had taken from her hand. The answers to his questions would have to wait.

The first days were the hardest, recalls Whitehead. She remembers a mixture of disbelief and fear interspersed with reassurance from her family. After all, she was only 30 years old, too young to have cancer, too young to die.

It had begun when Whitehead had discovered a small lump about the size of a pea in her left breast. It was a little worrisome, but she was sure it was probably nothing. Whitehead wasted no time having the lump examined by her doctor.

After examining Whitehead, her physician, Clyde Climer, MD, sent her for her first mammogram. The mammogram showed nothing suspicious. The lump could not even be seen.

"You go to the doctor, get a mammogram," said Whitehead. "It's fine, so you think great. OK."

But Climer did not like the feel of the lump and knowing that Whitehead had a family history of breast cancer he wanted to have the lump aspirated. Aspiration is a procedure where a needle is used to remove fluid. A fluid filled lump is a cyst and not cancerous.

When the lump could not be aspirated Climer wanted a biopsy done. Because Whitehead was so young, the biopsy was sent for a second opinion to confirm the diagnosis. "I attribute Climer with saving my life," said Whitehead. She knows how easy it could have been for him to take a "wait and see" approach.

Everything moved along very rapidly, Whitehead remembers. She recalls nervously waiting with her husband for the call, in 1991, that would change the course of their lives.

Debbie and Nicky Whitehead with their son, Aaron.

"It brought tears to my eyes when we got the phone call," said Nicky. "But someone had to be strong." The reality of the diagnosis did not catch up with Nicky until a few days later. "I was scared," he remembers. "You marry somebody and expect to be with them the rest of your life, and then this happens."

"I felt I don't care what it takes, let's get it done," remembers Nicky. "I told Debbie 'I love you for who you are, not for your body.'"

After weighing all the information Whitehead had a lumpectomy, followed by six weeks of radiation and six months of chemotherapy. Whitehead, a judicial assistant for 13 years for Seminole County Judge Alan Dickey, missed very little work. Dickey, her boss and her friend, was very supportive through her illness, she said.

Her mother, Dottie Ramsey, also vividly recalls the first weeks after the lump was discovered. "Radiation and chemotherapy days were not good days. As a mother you hurt for your children," said Ramsey. "It's still hard to believe something like this could happen in your family."

"We are a close family," said Ramsey. "I thought this should be me." Having lost her mother-in-law just three years before breast cancer, Ramsey's first thought was, "I can not lose my daughter and I will not."

"I thought, enough of this. You can not live everyday in fear and I devoted myself to getting through this, being strong and being supportive of Debbie."

With prayers and loving family, Ramsey kept the faith and remained strong for her daughter. "It was hard for me, her dad and her brother," said Ramsey. "We had periods of sadness, but Debbie had the strength of elephants."

"Debbie and I talked and cried a lot," Ramsey remembers. "You take what comes along and you do the best you can."

"I appreciate my children more realizing they could be taken away at anytime," said Ramsey. "It reminds me that you should try to live every day as if it was your best day."

The Whitehead's son, Aaron, was a little over a year old when Whitehead found the lump. Nicky, working full time, assumed most of the responsibility for Aaron's care to allow his wife to concentrate on the things that needed to be done so that she would be well.

Since Whitehead's battle with cancer she has talked to other women facing the same fight. She stresses self-checks and warns women not to let fear delay action. "I tell people, don't wait. I can't speak highly enough of all my doctors." If the doctors had not moved so rapidly, Whitehead believes her outcome would not have been so good.

Yearly checkups for Whitehead now include a bone scan and blood test just in case. Ramsey anxiously awaits the call from her daughter delivering the good news of continued negative results.

"You always have a little bit of fear," said Ramsey. "I count my blessings everyday."

Whitehead and her husband have recovered from the blow dealt to them. Aaron is a happy, growing, active little boy who provides the best distraction from the memories of the difficult road they have traveled. Nicky wants to put it behind them and move on.

Married only two years when the cancer was discovered, The Whiteheads had to postpone their plans for another child.

"I am grateful to be alive. And I am thankful for Aaron. Aaron is my life," emphasizes Whitehead, "but I wanted another baby. All my life I dreamed of having a boy and a girl."

Eradicating the cancer may have destroyed the Whitehead's hopes of having another child. Doctors advised Whitehead to wait at least five years before trying for another baby. The ongoing affects of radiation and chemotherapy on a woman's body are still not known. Whitehead has suffered three miscarriages since her cancer treatments.

"I feel I was really cheated," said Whitehead. "I did everything the doctors told me to do."

Whitehead was so traumatized by the miscarriages that her family became concerned for her well being. It has taken about a year and a half, but Whitehead has come to accept that she may never have another child. Age has also become a question. Whitehead and her husband, both in their late thirties question whether they want to start again now.

When Aaron asks, as children are prone to do, for a little brother or sister, Whitehead answers, "Honey, if God thinks it's time for mommy to have a baby it will happen."

Food is the biggest enemy for adult diabetics

By Desiree Fields
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

LAKE MARY - Diabetes is a lifelong disease that is very complicated, said Dr. Maha Ansara, an endocrinologist and internist.

Some people's cells don't respond to their natural insulin very well, so they have to take large amounts of insulin or diabetes medicine to make the insulin/glucose balance work in their system, said Ansara. Others do respond to insulin, and to food, so their blood glucose levels go way up and way down quite rapidly. This is also dangerous to the organs. If left untreated, diabetes can cause heart and kidney disease, blindness, neuropathic and circulation problems, and a list of other associated illnesses.

Ansara treats adults with Type II diabetes - a chronic metabolic disorder that adversely affects the body's ability to manufacture or use insulin. She is an internal medicine physician and senior author of several publications in the area of internal medicine, cell transplant and diabetes.

On staff of three local hospitals, Ansara encounters patients with the genes that make it possible to get diabetes under certain conditions. A bad virus, too much stress, excessive weight gain, becoming pregnant - all seem to lead to diabetes in people who have the genes that make it possible.

In her practice, Ansara has seen numerous patients. Very seldom would her assessment be the same for two patients who have the same predispositions and symptoms of diabetes. It is uniquely characteristic to the individual and requires careful assessment and treatment. She educates her patients to manage their care by instituting the right diet, exercise, and appropriate dosage of medicine - insulin or oral. Insulin injections must be balanced with diet and meal times, exercise, and daily testing of blood glucose levels with insulin dosage levels adjusted as needed. Diet, exercise, and blood or urine testing for glucose form the basis for management of those who do not take insulin.

Life-threatening complications

The complications of diabetes are so life threatening that patients have to be monitored on a timely basis to prevent adverse reactions. It is associated with long-term complications that affect almost every major part of the body. It can cause hypertension (high blood pressure), hyperlipidemia (high blood fats), and hyperglycemia (high blood glucose), kidney damage, stroke, blindness, heart disease, amputations, nerve damage, and birth defects in babies born to women with diabetes.

People with diabetes, Ansara said, need to know that they can live a healthy and productive life. They have to be more careful than the average person. Food is their biggest enemy. The wrong diet will drastically curtail their lifestyle. A regular meal for the average healthy person would equate to progressive damage to the organs of someone with diabetes.

Another factor that plagues the life of a diabetic is stress. It affects people in a negative way. However, someone with diabetes must always be aware of when to "turn off" the stress blinkers. Undermining stress is almost as equivalent to not taking medicine. Therefore other coping mechanisms have to be developed in someone having diabetes. On-going education, support, and motivation to stay in good control are vital to maintaining health.

Although diabetes occurs most often in older adults, it is one of the most common chronic disorders in U.S. children. According to the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases, each year 11,000 to 12,000 children and teenagers are diagnosed with diabetes. These children usually have Type I diabetes where the body begins to destroy the cells in the pancreas that make insulin.

Insulin is a hormone produced by the pancreas. When people eat, the pancreas automatically produces the right amount of insulin to take care of the glucose. In people with diabetes, however, the pancreas either produces little or no insulin, or the body's cells do not respond to the insulin that is produced. As a result, glucose builds up in the blood, overflows into the urine, and passes out of the body. Thus, the body loses its main source of fuel even though the blood contains large amounts.

Diabetes can develop in people of any age or ethnic background, although some groups appear to be at higher risk for certain types of diabetes.

Vegetables (3-5 servings)

A serving can be:
1 cup raw vegetables
1/2 cup cooked vegetables
1/2 cup tomato or vegetable juice

- Choose fresh or frozen vegetables without added salt, fat, or salt.
- Choose more dark green and deep yellow vegetables, such as spinach, broccoli, romaine, carrots, chiles, and peppers.

TOPS: Getting older, getting better

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD
Years ago, commercials for a hair-coloring product proclaimed "You're not getting older, you're getting better."

While this may be taken as compliment, with a grain of salt (of course we're getting older), one would like to think they are improving.

So what's the simplest way to keep getting better? "In terms of health, three main components make all the difference," said Ann Polich, a representative TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly). "We could call them the 'golden three' of senior fitness." These are:

1) Aerobic exercise, which increases cardiovascular fitness, warding off heart attacks and strokes. It also helps us maintain endurance and energy for all the activities of a busy, productive life.

2) Strength training (also called weight lifting or resistance training), which increases muscle mass. This trims the figure and helps the body burn calories. It is a vital tool in any senior's fitness arsenal, because only strength training can stop or reverse age-related losses of muscle mass.

3) Stretching, which helps the body stay limber. Limited range of motion is not inevitable as we age. Simply moving the body more often can maintain or increase flexibility. Also, many easy-to-perform stretches enhance flexibility even more; check your library, health club, or physician's office for information.

You have probably noticed that these 'golden three' for seniors are the same three components recommended for fitness at any age. And, in fact, exercise physiologists point out that a 60-year-old who exercises may be more fit than a 20-year-old who doesn't. So "you're getting better" isn't just an empty promise--it's an attainable goal.

TOPS members of all ages, from preteens to seniors, encourage each other to follow their own individual fitness programs. To learn more about TOPS, visit our website at <http://www.tops.org/>. To locate a chapter in your area, call Ann Polich at (407) 293-3697 or toll-free at (800) 932-8677.

Seminole Reads Woman's club volunteers tutor elementary students

When the club year for the Sanford Woman's Club officially opened Oct. 7, Jane Morgan, chairman of the education department, explained the function of the "Seminole Reads" program to the members during the monthly luncheon meeting.

This program is part of the "America Reads" program which began in the Sanford area in 1997. Sponsored by the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program of Seminole County, the program is a 5-county initiative with Seminole County as the lead county. The Promise to America is that every student will read at grade level by the conclusion of the third grade.

Woman's club members have gone into the classroom as tutors and others have also volunteered in the reading program. Statistics show that students who read below grade level cause more discipline problems, are more likely to drop out of school and have more trouble getting and holding jobs, according to Jane, a VISTA volunteer in the reading program. Anyone who would like to volunteer 30 minutes or more weekly, please call Jane at 323-4440.

Woman's club members who have helped with the program are: Dorothy Anthony, Ruth Gaines, Betty Colbert, Carrie Greene, Peg Jones, Emy Sokol, Selma Newman, Bettye Smith, Jeana Hughes Carter, Doris Dietrich, Faye Siler, the late Mary Lou McDonadd and the Rev. Beth Fogle-Miller.

President Bettye Smith conducted the business program and heard routine reports.

Several club members were volunteers at the recent Lake Mary Heathrow Festival of the Arts. For their efforts, these members earned for the club a $1,000.00 scholarship to be given to a Seminole County graduating senior.

cies created on the board are: Viola Frank, second vice president; and Rose Jacobson, chairman of the home life department.

It was announced that the club received a $500.00 donation from the Sunniland Corp. to be used for landscaping and maintaining the clubhouse grounds.

Vivian Buck announced that Oktoberfest will be held at the clubhouse, from 5 to 8 p.m., on Oct. 23. An authentic German dinner will be served in an authentic Bavarian setting for $10.00, adults, and $6.00, children, under 9. Tickets are available at the door or any club member.

The president and Donna Smith will be featured in a piano-organ duet at 7 p.m. on Nov. 7, at the First Baptist Church. Sponsored by the Glowing Embers, the free event is open to all interested in good music.

Among the members having recent birthdays are: Rose Jacobson, 85; and Stella Oritt, 90.

Jeri Kirk, longtime member of the club, was among the guests attending the luncheon meeting. Jeri now makes her home in Matland.

The hostess committee decorated the clubhouse in a spooky Halloween motif. Each place setting was identified by a rock memento, hand-painted by Faye Siler, as a funny face. Hostesses Viola Frank and Faye held drawings for ceramic Halloween figurines.

Others on the hostess committee were: Ann Brisson, Betty Colbert, Fran Webster, Shirley Mills, Dib McElrath and Jeanette Padgett.

Seniors gear up for community Halloween celebration

The Lake Mary Seniors are getting in on the spirit of things for Halloween. The seniors recently bagged 200 bags of candy for the Community Improvement Association's third annual Halloween party. The seniors also made candy-filled pumpkins for the Sheriff's Office. The seniors are volunteers for the Retired Senior Volunteer Program. Every year, RSVP volunteers make little Halloween treats for the Sheriff's department to hand out.

LAKE MARY
MARY ROWELL

This is the first year the seniors have joined forces with the Community Improvement Association to help out with their Halloween party. They'll also be helping decorate the Community Building for the event. This year, the party will be held Friday, Oct. 30 from 7-9 p.m. There will be food, fun and a costume contest.

It may not be Christmas yet, but that hasn't stopped the seniors from getting ready for it. Every year, RSVP hosts a Christmas Store for underprivileged children. Children come to the store to shop, not for themselves, but for their families. The Lake Mary Seniors have been making many items for the store including teddy bears and small stuffed cats. During the week the Christmas Store is held, the seniors will also be volunteering their time to help children shop and to wrap presents for them.

AARP SETS PICNIC

The October meeting of the Lake Mary Chapter of the AARP will be a little different from the average meeting. The AARP is planning a picnic for Tuesday, Oct. 20 at 1 p.m. AARP will provide the meat and the paper products, but they are asking members to bring covered dishes for the picnic. It will be a great time to share food and friendship.

The AARP meets the third Tuesday of every month at 1 p.m. at the community building on Country Club in Lake Mary. If you're a senior who hasn't joined, just stop by. They'd love to have picnic guests.

many homes, the Mennonite Disaster Services came into the area and began rebuilding. In late August, a dedication ceremony was held for two of the homes in Sanford. The Retired Senior Volunteer Program wants to put the finishing touches on those two houses.

On Saturday, Oct. 24, RSVP will be landscaping at the two homes. All RSVP volunteers are asked to come out for the day and make a difference by helping with the RSVP "From Rubble to Roses" landscaping project.

The event will last from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and lunch will be provided. RSVP will try to provide as many gloves as possible, but if you have gardening tools and gloves you are willing to bring, please do. To sign up, just call the Seminole Volunteer Center at 323-4440.

THEY'RE IN LOVE THEY'RE ENGAGED

How many times have we heard that shopping at Publix is a pleasure?

At the Sanford Publix, Ollie Hunter does more than her share to ensure a pleasurable experience for shoppers there. She's the friendly and personable lady who dishes up tantalizing morsels of the specialty of the house that day while customers stand around drooling.

Last week, while waiting for her Italian sausage to cook a little longer, Ollie slowly took off a plastic glove to reveal a gorgeous sparkler on her third finger, left hand. Matching the glow of the dazzling diamond were Ollie's dancing eyes while her face turned a deep pink when she told me about her forthcoming marriage with the naive of a blushing school girl.

The bridegroom-to-be is Dr. Richard "Dick" Forbes who has known Ollie since he moved to Sanford more than 40 years ago. Incidentally, Ollie is a native daughter who lives right around the corner from her birth place. Ollie has been a widow for nearly 15 years and Dick has been a widower for about 12 years.

The couple attend the First Presbyterian Church in Sanford where Ollie sings in the choir and Dick has served on the Session several terms off and on.

Ollie has been a food demonstrator at Publix for a number of years and customers will be filled with pleasure that she plans to hang on to this 3-day a week post after she and Dick exchange their "I do's. In late November.

Dick served in the Army Air Corps during World War II, earned a bachelor's degree in chemistry from Rollins College, received a master's degree in soil sciences from the University of Florida and received his doctorate in agronomy from Penn State. Now retired from the University of Florida Agricultural Experiment Station, Dick formerly worked there and taught at the College of agriculture at the university. His agricultural prowess today is centered around growing and tending his magnificent rose garden.

Ain't love grand? She's 70 and he's 77.

PAINTING CLASS FUN

Members of Alpha Alpha Theta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, Sanford, recently participated in a 1-day painting class for their monthly social. "The members had a fun time," said Faye Siler, class instructor and the chapter service chairman.

She also said members will continue along the theme of "Arts" by purchasing Christmas cards from M.D. Anderson Cancer Center's, "The Children's Art Project." The profits from this project are directed toward summer camps, classroom activities, creative writing, music therapy, college scholarships, child life specialties and more. This entire project stays within the state of Florida.

There's nothing to be afraid of

By Molly Butler
SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

Kids' greatest fears are usually from what they see or what they watch, like if they watch an R-rated movie that they are not used to seeing, and their imagination takes over their minds and they think everything is real and someone's going to hurt them or something.

I was scared for the longest time because I would always watch horror movies and my mom would always want to turn them off (because she knew I would have nightmares and I would always be scared to go into a room by myself because I thought someone would be under the bed or behind any corner just waiting to hurt me) but I still wouldn't let her turn off the movie.

I knew I was terrified but I just had to see what happened at the end if the killer was dead or not, but usually when I watched the movie, the killer was still alive, so I was scared he would try to hurt me. I've been like that for almost three years now, but now I'm not scared because I had a talk with my dad and, we talked and finally, I had to tell that I was scared of someone trying to kill me and stuff, so he told me that it was just my imagination so I tried to believe it for as long as I could, but one night, I was lying in my bed and could have sworn I heard heavy breathing and the door creak shut.

My dad and his friend were watching television in the family room, my brother was sleeping in his room and my teasing sister was at her friends' house so it couldn't have been any of them behind the door or making that breathing sound, so I ran out of the bedroom into the family room and told my dad there was someone in my room.

But you know how dads are; they just don't believe you because they know it's just your imagination, so he walked me back into my room and covered me up with the covers, then tells me once more that it's just my imagination.

I said that I was trying to believe that before but it just got me more scared so he told me how your imagination works.

"Your imagination is the thing that tricks you probably more than anything else that you'll have to deal with in the world," my dad said. "Usually smart people have a stronger imagination rather than not-so-smart people, so the smarter people get more scared sometimes and I know you are a pretty smart girl compared to other kids your own age and you have a very strong imagination. So, whenever you get scared, just remember that's just your imagination and nothing real."

Since that talk I had with my dad that night, I haven't been scared of people jumping in my window and hurting me or threatening to kill me or anything similar.

So every kid should be afraid of nothing because, as you heard, your parents will be there in a heartbeat if you scream and they'll be there if something happens to you. Also remember, that it just your imagination and nothing can happen to you.

Molly Butler is a 11th-grader at Lake Mary Elementary School.

Is chivalry dead?

Amanda Coho
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

"And they say chivalry is dead."

Quite a common comment, one usually spoken in surprise. Why should a strangers opening a door or a restaurant manager picking up the tab on a late dinner be considered an unusual thing in this modern era? Have we, in all of our technological glory, forgotten our manners?

Among all of the darkness of the dark era, a light emerged - a code of chivalry. As history tells it, the code developed around the Middle Ages and was adopted by knights who believed that fighting should be for good. King Arthur was the first one to put it into words when he proclaimed that "Might is for right." Hence, a new attitude was born, one of politeness and honor and truthfulness and integrity.

It is obvious that chivalry was alive years ago, but what about today, in the 21st century? Where there are many acts of bravery, courage, fellowship, brotherhood and faith in this world, there is a great lacking of those main principals of chivalry: truth, honor, keeping promises.

In the recent events surrounding the questionable morality of our President, Bill Clinton, it seems as though everyone had forgotten the most important detail: he lied to his country. He did not lie to just one person, or two, but to millions that trusted him. If the president, who is the greatest representative of this country, cannot commit to the truth, what is that saying about the general populace?

In the litigious society that has become the 21st Century, most people are willing to sell out their own mothers for a chance at money, fame or power. Every day, a witness lies on the stand. Every day, a child lies to his father. Every day, a best friend is betrayed by one of his own. This "technologically advanced" world has regressed into the brutality of the ancient times. There is hardly a soul who knows the true meaning of the word "truth."

Just by observing the everyday, ordinary people of the street, it is easy to see how honor exists today. It lies in gangs who fight to the death for the honor of their "brothers" or "sisters." Members of the street who kill, rob, rape in the name of honor and respect. Even the term "honor thy mother and father" had been disgustingly manipulated. Now, honoring mom and dad has reverted to domestic violence and "tough love." Honor is still present in the modern world, but people are going about the wrong way of defending it. No longer is "might for right" but it is "might for those who dare to cross our lines and 'disrespect' our name, color or religion."

Promises, however, seem to keep thriving in today's society. Despite all of our horror and the evil that invests our world, promises are still kept. The military promises to keep us safe; it has delivered. The teachers promise us an education; they have delivered. The government had promised us freedom from oppression; it has delivered. A friend promises loyalty; she delivers. For the majority, promises are kept and faith in others is sustained.

Is chivalry dead?

No, it is not dead, but it is in serious condition. Unless the people of today do something to help bring it back to life, the children of future generations will only know the code of chivalry through fairy tales and myths. Chivalry is not dead, but it is dying quickly.

Pre I-B is challenging

By Kristin Mallin
SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

I am in the seventh-grade and I attend Sanford Middle School. This is my first year and I am in the Pre-International Baccalaureate Program.

To be in this program, you must maintain an A or a B grade-point average.

It takes a lot of hard work and studying. If you don't have an A or a B average, teachers will watch you closely for the next nine weeks. If you don't get an A or a B average in those nine weeks, you will be removed from the program and your classes will be re-scheduled.

As you can see, it is a challenge to be in this program and it is also very rewarding. I have cool teachers and they make school fun.

Kristin Mallin is a seventh-grader at Sanford Middle School.

Furman University, Greenville, S.C., welcomed over 750 freshmen for the beginning of the school year, including several Seminole County graduates. Students include: Lisa Smith (Altamonte Springs), Rebecca Ann Simmons (Casselberry), Natalie Anne Benson, Sarah Marie Certo, Thomas R. Chilton, Jennifer L. Flecher and Jennifer Scocesanek (Longwood), Kristin M. Lawton and Thomas E. Mann (Oviedo).

Elizabeth A. Gilliard, daughter of Dr. Lawrence and Rhonda Gilliard of Winter Springs, earned Dean's List honors at Furman University. She has been a freshman advisor in campus housing and a member of Alpha Epsilon Delta premedical honor society.

Jeffrey Wilcooky, of Oviedo, earned Dean's List honors at Columbia College.

Craig Lament Merckerson, Sanford, and Robert Lee Case, of Lake Mary, have been selected for inclusion in the 1998 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America (OYMA). The program honors men and women who have distinguished themselves in service to their communities, professional leadership, business advancement, cultural accomplishments and civic and political participation.

Cadet Emig Maurice Cation was named basic drill team commander for the Oviedo High NJROTC program.

Trent Daniel, of Winter Springs High School, was named to the Top 10 of the "Top Program Awards." She was honored with a citation for her Chemistry III project, "Chemistry Connection with Children." She received a $1,000 prize for herself and a $250 award for the school.

Joshua David Johnson, son of Raymond and Holly Johnson, of Altamonte Springs, was named to the Who's Who Among American High School Students. He is also a National Merit Scholar semi-finalist.

Veronica A. O'Donnell, of Winter Springs, was recently named to Who's Who Among American High School Students.
