

Soviets Emphasize Science, Education

Thirty million children are going to school in Russia, where there were only 7,500,000 before the revolution. Illiteracy has been reduced from 87 percent to 10 percent. The young Russians have 92,000 playgrounds, where they had only 125 under the czar.

Until Soviet Russia's struggling industrial development catches up with the needs of the 170,000,000 inhabitants, there is unlikely to be any unemployment. New areas have been settled and are being developed, notably the great region above the Arctic circle.

A drive is noticeable to develop new political leaders in the younger generations. Managers of factories and other industrial leaders likewise are being recruited among the younger workers, who have shown outstanding ability.

One reason for the reliance on youth is its loyalty to the communist regime as headed by Joseph Stalin, since the new generation was born and educated to it. It is perhaps significant that fathers, mothers and grandfathers have been asked to tell their children about the terrorism of the past, the forced labor which bent backs in capitalist factories and fields for fat owners and landlords, the mockery of the people by the czar's dogs—the police.

Although the dread political police watches over the loyalty of the Soviet citizen, the purge appears to have affected the ordinary Russian little, except to make him shirk dangerous responsibility, keep his mouth shut tighter so far as politics is concerned and avoid contact with foreigners, lest he be suspected of treating with spies.

What the Russian talks about in the one room assigned his family in the overcrowded cities is thus denied foreign ears. In the streets, where the great majority of Russians seem to pass most of their leisure time, the talk on any political or international question adheres strictly to the formulas of the official press.

"Free love" in the Soviet Union ones was an object of criticism in the outside world.

Relations between the young of the sexes appear free and easy enough now. But family life has become more stabilized, vital statistics indicate, by the abolition of legal abortions, and encouragement of child-rearing and discouragement of divorce by making it more costly.

Soviet Russia, like other countries of Europe, is intent on rearing a lot of healthy young men for the next war. It is said that one out of every three women in Moscow is an expectant mother. That is an exaggeration; statistics indicate only one in seven.

The year-old constitution, with its provision for direct, secret elections, indicates the Soviet leaders consider the revolution over and the people ready for the ballot. Whether the current purge will end the state of civil war, through which, critics say, Russia is still passing, is one of the manifold mysteries of Russian life.

Over 200 Passengers Killed By Japanese

Both Tokyo and Nanking again denied reports from Berlin that Germany was attempting a truce in the general Chinese-Japanese war. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, supreme Chinese war dictator, asserted again that China will accept mediation from nobody but intends to fight to the bitter end.

More than 100 Japanese airplanes Sunday bombed a dozen cities in the Shanghai area killing hundreds of Chinese.

Fighting in the great killing which has raged around this international city since mid-August today was going on with tremendous ferocity along a broken line of about 50 miles.

The Japanese were attacking everywhere and foreign military attaches believed that the best of the Central Chinese government troops formerly engaged around the city had been withdrawn westward to the great "Hindenburg" line defense works in the Soo-how Lakes region between Shanghai and Nanking.

An area of more than 500 square miles in and around Shanghai was a shambles.

Rotary Hears Conservation Needs in U. S.

the antelope play," Dr. Hadley said that already there is practically no place in the country where the buffalo roams, or where the deer and antelope play, and that if conservation laws are not strengthened and better enforced, the advance of civilization will soon blot out all wildlife altogether.

Declaring that his chief interest lies in the preservation of birds and animals, Dr. Hadley declared that the waste of this country's natural resources is not alone confined to wild life but extends also to farmlands, forests, and to even the minerals and oils underground. He said that there is a veritable "made scramble" to get all the oil under the ground out of the earth and he insisted that this, as well as wild life, should be protected for the sake of future generations.

Attributing the indifference of the public to conservation, he said that apparently the trouble springs from an "illusion of infinity." In other words he declared people seem to think that the wealth of this country is literally inexhaustible. "When farmers wear out one farming section," he says, "they have simply moved on to another newer farming section, but the time is coming when there will be no new lands to move to."

Wild life, he continued, has four principal values in this country: (1) economic, (2) recreational, (3) scientific, and (4) sentimental or esthetic. The latter, he added, is as important as the others, for a country loses much of its population when its wild life has been destroyed, and its game, birds and fish are no more.

Declaring that he first came to Florida some 40 years ago, Dr. Hadley said that he took a trip through the Everglades when most of that country was under water, and constituted excellent homes for ducks, and wildlife of every description, and in those days he said the lakes and streams were literally black with ducks. Today he said they are all gone.

The two principal causes for the disappearance of wildlife, Dr. Hadley said, are (1) overhunting, or the ruthless killing of birds, regardless of laws, and (2) the destruction of breeding grounds, and the natural environment for wildlife, due largely to drainage of marsh lands.

The correction of this situation is dependent, he said, upon the enactment of the proper game protection laws, the enforcement of such laws, the divorce of both game laws and enforcement from the realm of politics, and the requisition by the government of bird sanctuaries, game preserves, and fish hatcheries.

In Florida, he said, the problem of conservation rests itself into (1) the conservation of wildlife, (2) the conservation of forests, and (3) the conservation of water resources. In this connection, he said, such a project as the cross state canal should be approached with the greatest caution.

Others present at today's luncheon were H. E. Clond, a former president of the Orlando Rotary Club, S. O. Chase, who has recently returned from Asheville where he spent the summer, and Donald Lamson, junior Rotarian for the month.

"Big City" Features Tracy, Miss Rainer

"Big City," an original story written and produced by Norman Kraus, brilliant young New York playwright now devoting his talents to the screen, opens Wednesday at the Ritz Theater, with Luise Rainer and Spencer Tracy, co-starred.

Here is no crude attempt to reveal the machinery of a metropolis as a whole. On the contrary, it is a cunning unique story of a single slice of life in a great city and the adventures of a taxi driver in a struggle to survive.

Tracy, the good priest in "San Francisco," and later the Portuguese fisherman in "Captains Courageous," becomes the husky-voiced, cynical hickman, hold to the point of dare-deviltry, fair and square and a hard man in a battle. Miss Rainer, Academy Award winner as Anna Held in "The Great Ziegfeld," later as Lan, the Chinese farm wife in "The Good Earth," is an immigrant girl who is his wife and soon to be the mother of his child.

The story is powerful and the acting is equal to it. An excellent supporting cast includes Charley Grapewin, Janet Beecher, Eddie Quillan, Victor Varconi, Oscar O'Shea, Helen Troy, William Demarest, John Arledge, Irving Bacon, Guinn Williams and Regis Toomey.

Some of the scenes were filmed in Jack Dempsey's famous restaurant opposite Madison Square Garden in New York, with many notables of the sporting fraternity facing the camera. You will recognize most of them.

We will fight with the same vigor and determination in the future as we did at Shanghai," the Generalissimo said confidently.

During the day about 50,000 Chinese refugees entered the French concession and the International Settlement. Approximately 5,000 Chinese soldiers cut off on all sides by the advancing Japanese took up positions in the Nanteo area adjoining the French concession.

Harricading themselves 600 of the isolated troops declared they would hold out to the death against the invading Japanese.

Before noon Japanese legions captured Hunjiao Airdrome—China's Satalers where the week fall which started the Chinese-Japanese conflict.

Retreating Chinese troops, who left China's great commercial city within the Japanese battle lines, fired numerous bulleting throughout the Hunjiao area as they fell back toward Winter defense lines farther to the west.

Japanese forces started crossing Soochow Creek west of Shanghai at 8:30 A. M. (7:30 P. M. E. S. T.) meeting with only rearguard action from the Chinese.

The foreign observers said Chinese forces were falling back in the face of an intense Japanese artillery and aerial bombardment, with the retreat beginning first from the area nearest the International Settlement which was said to be almost cleared already.

was also voted to hold the next meeting in Winter Park on Dec. 10, at the invitation of Carter.

Mr. Gerner was introduced by Mr. Holland Dean who told of his latest success story, a story of a former Tennessee lady who for years had told stories of a darky family to her young son. Mrs. Gerner came to Savannah to a young girl and later to Rollins College, Mrs. Dean said, adding that it was at the instance of Mrs. E. D. Brownlee and Mrs. Henry Wight, who first introduced the stories Mrs. Gerner was writing for her son, that they were published by Henry W. Dean & Co.

Mrs. Dean also quoted from an article in the New York Times and the New York Herald-Tribune commending the work of Mrs. Gerner and giving "Exekiel" a high place among the leading authors of the year. That "Exekiel" is indeed bringing home the reason for Sanford, Mrs. Dean shared with a letter from a publisher, N. Y. woman, who heard of Sanford for the first time in the story of "Exekiel" and promptly wrote Mrs. Gerner to assist in finding accommodations here for the winter for herself and family. To the "Exekiel" "The City Substantial" and the "Port of Central Florida," the Chamber of Commerce has added, Mrs. Dean said, "The Home of Exekiel."

In explaining why she happened to write Exekiel in the first place, Mrs. Gerner said that she was an old-fashioned mother who liked to read her little boy to sleep in spite of shelves of books which said she shouldn't, adding that she wouldn't take $5 a night for the fun she had doing it. And while she teased her boy to sleep, she said, she used to tell him of stories about things which happened to her when she was a little girl, but on her father's farm in Tennessee.

There, she said, was a little darkey boy named "Bud" who used to come over to her house to play. He was the one who would think up most of the things to do, and usually took the blame when things went wrong. He waited on their table and did things to help around the kitchen. After she came to Sanford, she said, she found Bud's re-incarnation in another darkey Exekiel whom she found fishing in the St. Johns River and who used to come to her back door to eat vegetables.

Encouraged by Mrs. Brownlee and Mrs. Wight to send her stories off for publication, Mrs. Gerner said she put them "in a nice round box so they could make the round trip," and she said she was surprised when they failed to come back, but instead were accepted for publication. Declaring that she appreciated the many things which had been said about her little story, and expressing the hope that "Exekiel" lives up to his reputation, Mrs. Gerner concluded by saying she would like to dedicate her book "To Bud, very dark to have left such a bright spot in my life."

Discussing the Florida exhibit which closed its doors in Cleveland in September, Mr. Brown said that more than 25,000,000 persons had seen the exhibit during the four years it has been shown in Chicago, New York and Cleveland, establishing a new world's record. The results of that showing, he said, are well attested by numerous records indicating that visitors to Florida from the places of exhibition have increased following the showing. Last year more than 2,000,000 persons came to Florida than ever before in the history of the state.

Wallace Calls For Ever-Normal Grain Supply For Nation

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 2.—Establishment of an ever-normal granary—an adequate reserve of grain to be drawn on in periods of scarcity—was advocated yesterday by Bruce A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, in the course of a speech before the Senate.

Wallace outlined his own proposals for an ever-normal granary, and mentioned proposals to farmers and their representatives from Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin, Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota and Indiana.

The Secretary of Agriculture emphasized that the problem of ever-normal granary is not a matter of simply buying and selling grain, but a matter of producing and marketing grain to meet the needs of the nation.

Wallace said that the granary should be a government-owned institution, and that it should be financed by a tax on grain.

"First, that, that as things are today, it is not possible to subject farmers alone to unlimited competition," he said, "and that there is no other way of protecting them from the fluctuations of the market than to have a granary which can be drawn on in times of scarcity."

"All of which," he said, "leads to this fourth conclusion. The best way now open to deal with the grain problem is through co-operation of farmers in a program that will lead to the creation of a granary which will protect them against the fluctuations of the market and will also help to stabilize the price of grain."

Wallace asserted present falling prices have hurt farmers "because they are not being paid for their grain."

"The extremely high level of the last few months was due mostly to the great drought of 1934 coming on the heels of the '24 drought," Wallace said.

"This level could not be maintained consistently with business and common sense being power weakening from within the good crop of this year has had an opportunity to affect the market, the price has gone down materially and is below parity."

"If this year's good crop should be followed by one as large or larger than this one, and if there should be a further decline of consumer purchasing power, farmers easily could be faced again with the calamity of '34 again."

"The only way to guard against the danger of drought years," Wallace said, "is to provide an ever-normal granary, one that will carry over grain from the good years to the bad. The fact that we usually have had only 170 million bushels of grain in a nation's granary is a reflection on the economic policy in the grain belt and the Nation."

more effective communication with an office on the entire coast.

The R.C.A. Company offered a bid of nearly $1500 dollars for a 10 watt ultra-high frequency transmitter and two car receivers with the City furnishing the antenna, ground, for the car, and the necessary receiver which will be a special type for the high frequency set.

The bid is tendered to the Commission by representatives of the Westinghouse Electric Company, located nearby, 2000 So. E. St. watt transmitter, on the conventional band that could be increased to 10 watt without installation of another transmitter. The bid also included the furnishing and installation of a 100 foot antenna and motor-cycle generator, and also horn-type generators. The equipment is also a construction so to affect one installation of transmitters along with the receiver.

Chief Williams indicated his preference for the latter model because of the fact that much additional savings could be had at no extra cost to insure proper coverage of the County in the event the County wished to purchase another from the City.

It was indicated at the meeting that night that acceptance or refusal of the bid would be made some time in the near future.

Plan Advanced By Roosevelt To Aid Housing

Private Investments In Construction Expected To Be Stimulated By New Acts

Plan Apart From Slum Clearance

President Reiterates Hope To Balance Budget Next Year

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. (AP) — Stimulation of heavy private investments in housing construction developed today as one means the Administration may seize upon to aid business and employment. President Roosevelt called in federal officials and private businessmen to discuss the possibilities with him this afternoon.

White House attaches, emphasizing any new undertaking would be apart from the government's slum clearance and low-cost home building program, said the conference would be concerned with methods of inducing private capital into the housing industry. The impression prevailed that suggestions for general increases in government spending as an aid to business would get nowhere. The President's reiterated at his press conference yesterday that he intended to balance next year's budget but informed observers to believe there was little prospect of more federal pump-priming.

Smith and General Chairman William E. Hays.

Utilities Go Up On News Of Policy Change

Wall Street Interprets Roosevelt Statement As Promise Of Hands Off

NEW YORK, Nov. 10. (AP) — Utility company shares led a vigorous upturn in the stock market today with many issues boosted $1 to $3 or more. Large blocks, many as high as 5,000 shares, changed hands as buying orders swept the trading floor of the Stock Exchange.

Brokers said President Roosevelt's statement yesterday was interpreted in Wall Street as a promise of "hands off" the utilities should they meet certain requirements and had inspired considerable purchasing in this group.

The utilities, the President said, must radically alter their methods of determining the value of their properties. Rates are based on these valuations, and they, in turn, have been based generally upon the original (Continued on Page Four)

Chamberlain, apparently encouraged by President Roosevelt's Oct. 5 Chicago peace address and by the United States' participation in the Brussels Conference called for a fuller British-American collaboration in a speech today at Guild Hall.

Pravda asserted the real purpose of the Italian-German-Japanese agreement against Communism was to obtain territory in a new world war and urged collective action by the United States (Continued on Page Four)

Old Age Insurance Claims Are Being Rapidly Certified

A steady flow of claims for lump-sum payments of Federal old-age insurance is being certified, including a total of 118 cases in Florida up to Oct. 1, 1937, it is announced by P. K. Weaver, manager of the Social Security Board's Orlando field office. Included in that total, Mr. Weaver said 21 have been certified by the following counties served by the Orlando office:

Citrus, Lake, Hernando, Orange, Ocala, Okechobee, Polk, Seminole and Sumter.

Mr. Weaver explained that there are two types of lump-sum benefits under the old-age insurance provisions of the act that can be made any time after Dec. 31, 1936. One is a benefit which an eligible worker may obtain on reaching age 65. The other is known as the death benefit payment.

"About 75 percent of male wage-earners who die leave a widow," Mr. Weaver pointed out, "in more than half the cases in which old-age insurance claims have been filed, the amount of the claims was all that the deceased had to leave for his family."

"More than 59 death benefit claims and 53 claims of eligible workers who have reached age 65 already have been certified in Florida. The claimants are men and women who have earned wages in a factory, shop, mill or store or some other line of business, included under the law, since December 31, 1934, and before age 65; and relatives or persons of those who have died this year."

Mr. Weaver declared that, in case of a death claim, the worker's relative or executor of his estate should obtain the proper application form, fill it out, furnish proof of the claim and send the information to the Social Security Board. Likewise, he said, eligible workers, upon reaching their 65th birthday should obtain application forms.

Residents of Sanford and nearby counties may obtain application blanks at the Board's Orlando field office, located at 311 South Orange Avenue. Mr. Weaver said, adding that claimants are assured free of charge in filing claims.
