

Here's A Simple Test To Check Side Vision

By DR. HAN N. BUNDISON, M.D.
Can you dimly see objects far to the left and right when you look straight ahead?

Tunnel Vision
Unless you have "tunnel vision," your eyes should give you nearly a 180 degree sweep (half a circle) of what is in front of you and off to the sides.

This side vision is especially important for drivers. In fact, a recent New York survey disclosed that 58 per cent of a group of Highway accident repeaters had poor side vision. Only eight per cent of the accident-free drivers had it.

Permanent Handicap
For some persons, "tunnel vision"—the inability to see beyond a narrow, tunnel-like area directly ahead—is a permanent handicap. For others, it is a temporary condition provoked by such things as a headache, a toothache, inflamed sinuses—or a cocktail.

If you have poor side vision, you should be aware of your handicap.

Here's a simple test suggested by the Better Vision Institute which will tell you approximately how wide your field of vision is:

How To Do It
Hold your left hand, palm up, at arm's length. Fixate your gaze upon it. Then, take a piece of paper in your right hand, stretch your right arm out to the side, and slowly bring it around toward your left hand.

Notice when you first sight the piece of paper. This should be when your arms form an angle of almost 90 degrees, or almost a right angle.

Switch hands and you can tell how good is the side vision of your left eye.

Marginal Vision
By lowering the piece of paper from above and by raising it from below you will see that your marginal vision up and down is much more restricted than is your side vision.

The entire visual field of each of your eyes, if they are normal, resembles the shape of an egg. When your eyes operate in unison, the visual fields of each, of course, overlap.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
B. L.: My husband, who is 78 years old, sleeps most of the day. What can be the cause of this?

Answer: There are many causes for excessive sleepiness. It may be due to constitutional, but this is not a very common cause. Lack of outdoor exercise or eating the wrong diet may cause it. A circulatory disturbance and thyroid deficiency are other causes.

Your husband is in need of a thorough physical examination to determine the cause of his drowsiness.

Too Late To Classify

By Russell Kay
There's one thing I can say for conventions, if you attend many of them you sure get around. Last week I managed to get in two of them one in Jacksonville where I attended a meeting of Motion Picture Exhibitors and hobnobbed with Joan Crawford and the other was the annual convention of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce at Pensacola.

The theatre folks were all excited about their audience participation poll to select the best pictures and actors, and from all reports it is going over in a big way with most theatres cooperating in the effort. This is the first time that movie fans have had an opportunity to express themselves and it will be interesting to see how their choice compares with critics and the industry itself.

When Harold Cole of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce invited me to Pensacola I accepted with gusto for I had not been to West Florida for several years and wanted to see, "first hand," what was going on out in that area.

To say I was amazed is putting it mildly. We folks who live in South Florida may think that our section is the only part of the state that has the bit in its teeth and is going places, but I'm telling you this West Florida area is something to write home about. Driving up State Road 19, I found growth and development all along the route. New industries, new homes, new business block and new subdivisions were everywhere in evidence. Homosassa Springs, Crystal River, Chiefland, Cross City and Perry all show evidence of substantial growth.

Travel south on Road 19 was heavy; between Tampa and Tallahassee I passed no less than 100 trailers from out of state and countless foreign cars bringing homeseekers, sunhunters and visitors to Florida. Every indication points to the biggest season yet.

My eyes bugged out when I saw what was happening in such communities as Fort St. Joe, Apalachicola, Panama City, Ft. Walton and Pensacola. They are all growing with Panama City, Ft. Walton and Pensacola taking the lead with new industries, home building and general improvement that is almost unbelievable.

The meeting of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce was one of the best attended in years with business and industrial leaders all over the state in attendance. Their reports were most encouraging and I was particularly interested in a talk by J. Saxton Lloyd of the Florida Development Commission; W. J. Clapp, president of the Florida Power Corporation; Dr. Roy W. Sapp, of Washington, D. C. who discussed atomic energy and its relation to Florida and the South, as well as remarks by other business and industrial leaders who vision tremendous growth and progress for the whole state.

While time did not permit a visit to all of the big industrial plants in the area, I can tell you they are tremendous and represent millions of investment dollars — enterprises like the St. Joe Paper Company at Panama City, the Chemstrand Corporation and St. Regis Paper Company at Panama City, the Armstrong Cork Co., International Paper Co., Weid Fricker, Greenwood Products Co., and many others. While the convention was in session news broke of a proposed multi-million dollar plant to be constructed at Fort St. Joe by the Glidden Company.

All of this great industrial investment means huge payrolls, more housing and continued expansion. Every community finds itself hard pressed to keep up with such growth. Water, sewage, school, police and fire facilities are inadequate and City Fathers are tearing their hair in an effort to solve the problem.

Big Trophy Presented To Seniors

A huge trophy was presented to the president of the Senior Class at Seminole High School yesterday for the part the school played in the annual Christmas Parade last Wednesday.

Christmas Parade Chairman Ed Hunt presented the trophy to Senior Class President Jim Hawkins and expressed his appreciation for the excellent cooperation from the local school in making the parade a success.

"This trophy," Hunt told Hawkins and the Seminole High School assembly audience, "is in recognition for the fact which won first place in the Senior Division among the schools."

Christmas Parade Chairman M. L. Raborn Jr. also appealed to the Seminole High School assembly for entries in the annual event that will soon take place.

"Hundreds of people will be in Sanford for the event and the fairways will be crowded with spectators who will follow certain players or who will be watching the trend of events."

Spectators can well be guided by the instructions which are outlined here since the directions issued to the Marshals are relevant to the actions on the part of the spectators.

The "Marshal's Information Sheet" is as follows: Marshals will be called the day before to be reminded of the time volunteered.

Arm bands, tickets, charge and instructions will be issued at the table between the club house and the Pro shop.

One free ticket will be given each marshal for each period in service.

It is important to be on time to relieve other marshals.

Marshals should be careful to control photographers and to make certain that they do not disturb play. Press photography is prohibited until after a player completely finishes a stroke.

Public photography is prohibited on the course. It is permissible only during the golf clinic and in practice areas.

Appeal to the sportsmanship of the spectators, set a good example at all times. All instructions and suggestions must be given pleasantly and politely. Be reasonable and fair in your judgment. Remember that the physical safety of spectators and the insurance of fair play to the players are in your hands. Never let a player make a stroke until everybody is positively out of range and well back at the edge of the holes. Never call out orders unless you are sure that a player is not making or about to make a shot.

Lasting Impression Made By Randolph

Sanford Lions Told Of 31 Years Active Service By Speaker

Jennings Randolph, assistant to the President of Capital Airlines, in Sanford as the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, told the Sanford Lions Club yesterday of his 31 years and 8 months active service in Lions International.

While in Congress in 1924, Randolph told the Lions Club at their noon luncheon meeting, that he co-sponsored the bill authorizing the concessions in Federal Buildings and Post Offices operated by blind persons.

"The blind persons operating these concessions," he said, "drew approximately 4 1/2 million dollars in wages."

Concluding his informal talk to the local Lions club, he said, "Have faith in your work as civic men and keep faith in a great country."

Jennings Randolph was introduced by Chamber of Commerce Manager Forrest Brockenkridge.

Psychologist Gets $64,000 Question

NEW YORK (AP)—A pretty young psychologist who beams interest in boxing through her hands answered a knotty question on the sport last night in pocket $64,000 in television winnings.

The contestant, Dr. Joyce Brothers, 26, of New York City, became the second person to win the top prize on the CBS show The $64,000 Question. The first was Marine Capt. Richard S. McClutchen, whose category was cooking.

Dr. Brothers, wife of a hospital intern, had as an assistant last night Eddie Egan, ex-Olympic boxing champion and former New York State Housing Commission chairman. The show allows an expert to help the $64,000 level.

Dr. Brothers told reporters she plans to use part of the money to outfit her husband's office when he begins practice. It also will finance a vacation for the two, and a new dress for herself.

Civil Service Unit Meets Tomorrow

The Civil Service Board of the City of Sanford will meet tomorrow night for a regular monthly session in the City Hall.

The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock in the Civil Service Commission office.

Suggestions Offered To Make This City Bigger, Better Place

Through rounds of applause and peals of hearty laughter, Jennings Randolph left in Sanford a lasting impression on the three points in his address on "The Challenge of Community Leadership."

Thought after thought was driven home by a humorous experience, the like of which his Sanford audience had never heard.

At the outset of his address Randolph assured the chamber of Commerce members and their ladies, "I felt the warmth of your greeting here. I want you to know that if you come to Washington, it belongs to you. Senator Smith, Holland and Congressman Herling and others are your servants. But, in Washington, D. C. there are not only those who hold public offices, there are those in business just as you here in Sanford."

Speaking of his own company, Capital Airlines, Randolph said, "We have long had a desire to fly into Florida, and in time I hope that we shall be selected as the third airline to fly into your State."

Pointing to the story of a little boy "going on 12" who was traveling by bus from Milton, Fla., to California, Randolph said he became acquainted with three towns.

"Through the eyes of a little boy," he said, "I've seen that you live in a fine Sanford."

It is the contact with the little boy, another person, that you learn the story of a fine community. Perhaps it is axiomatic, but I believe that those who identify themselves with Sanford, those who undertake the problems of Sanford, and those who have a civic pride in Sanford, are the ones who will reap the rewards that come to Sanford.

"You come here tonight, because you are interested in a community of which you can be proud."

"I do not preach or teach," Randolph told his audience, "but if you understand people and respect people, even though things dwindle small, things seem to be better than otherwise they would be. There's no reason why every person here cannot learn in appropriate people, competitor or customer, he said.

On his subject of being resourceful and creative, Randolph said, "We are people who find new answers to old questions, and you have to find them when the going is toughest."

"You have something here that others don't have," he emphasized. "You've got to package properly what you have in Seminole County or what you have in Sanford, he said. "I can't tell you what it is, but you have a package in you to learn to have faith in the future greater than we ever have before," he concluded.

Notices are being mailed to all known interested persons with the full particulars regarding the 1956 Agricultural Conservation program. Those not receiving the information by mail can receive particulars from the committee office in the County Courthouse.

Important Feature Related By Touhy; Prize Winners Told

Commenting on the splendid program at the Chamber of Commerce annual meeting and banquet last night, President George Touhy said he omitted an important feature and was quite apologetic for it.

Vice President Clifford McKibbin did such an outstanding job as chairman of the membership campaign that he wanted to commend him and congratulate the winners of the prizes awarded.

"The work of everyone who was in the campaign is a big job that these fellows won prizes in for," he said, "but the fact that these fellows won prizes indicates they put forth that extra effort that means so much."

McKibbin also wanted to add publicly his thanks to his co-workers. The winners and the prizes were John Fitzpatrick and Jim Grant, the winning team, with four tickets and $25 for expenses to the Orange Bowl Game; John Williams and Al Wallace, second place team, with four tickets and $15 for expenses to the Tangerine Bowl Game; and the winning team Captain was Don Hale who received two tickets to the Tangerine Bowl Game and two dinners at Freddie's Beach House.

Reminder Cards Are Being Mailed By County TB Assn.

Reminder cards are being mailed today by the Seminole County Tuberculosis and Health Association, said Bob Nantz, Seal Sea Chairman.

"At least 6,000 cards are being sent to those who have not yet purchased the important seals that are annually sold to help combat TB," said Nantz.

The Seal Sea Chairman reported that 1,100 replies have been received with receipts totaling $2,500. "The returns look optimistic," Nantz reported, "and it is believed that with the cooperation of Seminole County citizens interested in the health and welfare of the community, a forward looking program can be carried on next year."

It was also announced that the Bangle Sale will be conducted Saturday at Sanford Streets under the auspices of the Future Nurses Club of Seminole High School.

Labor Party Leader Clement Atlee Resigns From Post

LONDON (AP)—Pioneering Socialist and first Premier of Britain's welfare state resigned today as leader of the Labor party.

A three-cornered fight for the top post in the British opposition party appeared shaping up among the deputy leader, Herbert Morrison, 67, 19-year-old Hugh Gaitskell and Aneurin Bevan, 54, fiery Welsh leader of the party's left wing.

Bevan was given almost no chance, however, against Morrison or Gaitskell, both followers of Atlee's moderate policies. Morrison's age could count against him. Characteristically, the 72-year-old Atlee almost tipped out of the party leadership he had held for 26 years — a record in modern British politics.

He handed in his resignation in a closed meeting of Laborers of Parliament which lasted less than half an hour. His colleagues saluted him with "For he's a jolly good fellow." Atlee was visibly moved. His lips quivered.

Audience Captured At CofC Banquet

Members and friends attending the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce Annual Meeting and Banquet last night were entertained superbly by Bob Wens, nationally known pianist, and the Orlandoans, a quartet that struck at the heart of people with their old melodies and close harmony.

Bob Wens entranced his audience as he played inimitable fashion such melodies as "Dark Eyes," "Tea for Two" and others. His variations, different and entertaining, brought a rousing ovation at the end of each selection.

Wens, who owns and operates Fountain Lodge on 17-92 just south of Sanford also has a music school in Deland. He originally began his musical career with serious music and then, with original style and unusual versatility, became much in demand in the popular music field. He, at one time, played for Paul Whiteman.

The Orlandoans, with their close harmony and excellent choice of program material, brought down the house with such melodies as "Way Down Home," "Kentucky Babe," Eddy Arnold's "How Many Arms," the "Whispering Song" and "Just in Case You Change Your Mind."

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

LOIS saw a light moving along the ground and was waiting at the door when Shandy came up, a big lantern in his hand.

"Heaven, what a beacon!" she exclaimed. "You must have robbed a lighthouse."

"Never send a boy to do a man's work. What happened, do you know?"

"Only what I told you over the phone."

"Something must have set her off."

Lois thought of Joe striking through his swollen face, while he told her of the quarrel he had overheard between Paula and Carol.

"Which way are you going?" she asked.

"Clyde will take the roads and go so much in love with her that he won't miss a trick there. How long has she been gone?"

"Apparently no one has seen her since she went up to her room about nine-thirty."

"Two hours," Shandy stood with his head a little on one side while he considered. For the first time he resembled the Shandy of seven years before.

"We'll take the path back of your cottage," he said.

"He walked ahead and Lois followed, her eyes on the broad path which his lantern made almost as bright as day. There were lights in the Hattery cottage and she knocked on the door.

"Joe, in flamboyant pajamas, opened the door. "You looking for her?" both Clyde and Mrs. Brindle called but we haven't seen her."

"Nor heard her since she had that flaming row with Mrs. Brindle earlier today." He stole a look at Shandy to see how he took it.

"Better get some clothes on," Shandy said shortly, "and search the woods to the left. Mrs. Fleming and I will keep right on combing the roads."

"I wonder why Mrs. Brindle doesn't want to call the state police?"

"We'll call the police if we don't find her in the next hour," Shandy said.

"What's Joe's excuse?"

"It didn't seem possible that a man of his caliber could be packed with so much innuendo."

Proving, Lois' foot caught on a vine and she stumbled. Ahead of her Shandy stopped. As he turned, the light fell on her face.

"You look like the wraith of God," he told her bluntly. "I must have been crazy to let you come. I'm going to take you back to the cottage and go on alone."

"Nonsense, I'm perfectly all right," she retorted, ashamed.

"Anyway, we mustn't waste time. That child is out in the dark somewhere and she's afraid of it."

Shandy was cautious to Paula's horror. "She brought it on herself. Tearing off into the night like the heroine of a Gothic novel and expecting us all to go hunting for her. Do her good to get a first-rate scare."

"She's only seventeen," Lois pointed out.

"I don't know whether it's ever occurred to you that neurotic teenagers provide the bulk of our young criminals." He added thoughtfully. "A girl like Paula has a lot of sentimentality fermenting in her but she is practically without moral scruples."

"Don't let Clyde hear you say that. He's infatuated with her."

"He could be infatuated with her and still know what she's like," Shandy commented. He laughed shortly. "You can admire a woman's virtues but you don't lose your head over them. At least," he added, "it isn't usual."

They had gone on some distance before he said, "At least, one gets over it. That's the saving grace. You recuperate from a fever."

He reached for her hand and his own was warm and reassuring. He noticed her labored breathing. "I'm an inconsiderate brute, dragging you along at top speed. Why didn't you tell me?" He walked more slowly now, sweeping the light from side to side, his hand holding hers, guiding her over the rough path.

"I agree with Clyde," Lois said suddenly. "Paula would never, never have come through these woods recuperating from a fever."

JOSEPH R. TALLARICO, 33, a Navy diver, is finally brought up (top) from the icy depths of Chesapeake Bay off Solomons, Md., after being trapped at 125 feet for more than six hours. The dive, scheduled for only 18 minutes because of the intense cold at that depth, became an ordeal when Tallarico's air line was fouled by a dummy mine. In center, he is removed from the boat to be taken to a decompression chamber. Reunited with his wife (bottom, left), Mildred, the chief boatsmith says he feels "okay." The diver who finally freed him was Hoalwain's Mate Gray Henegar (right), Yachdville, N. C.

Police, Merchants Unleash Weapons Against Shoplifters

Police and merchants in 11 Florida cities today unleashed a new weapon aimed at the heart of the shoplifting racket. Rubber check artists are second in line for all-out attack, sponsors declare.

The new device is a card index on persons convicted of shoplifting anywhere in the state. A file card on each shoplifter provides name, address, aliases, place of birth, age, height, weight, color, nationality and fingerprint classification.

From the master file maintained by the Florida State Retailers Association, sets of duplicate cards are prepared and relayed to all participating cities. Each local police department and each local retail organization receive the information on all convictions.

Cities in the network when the program was launched are Jacksonville, Orlando, Miami, Miami Beach, Coral Gables, Fort Lauderdale, Tampa, St. Petersburg, Sarasota, West Palm Beach and Daytona Beach.

Spokesmen for the Florida State Retailers Association pointed out that the project already is producing three-fold results. It has reduced the incident of shoplifting by increasing the elements of risk and fear. It has helped police and merchants in apprehending shoplifters. It has resulted in stiffer sentences upon conviction, where the thief's record produced evidence of previous offenses.

The information exchange between cities has proven a major road block to previously successful forays by professional and migratory shoplifters operating throughout Florida, retailers declare. For the first time, local merchants now have advance information and full descriptions of entire gangs of highly skilled thieves.

Things That Will Help To Prevent Those Colds

By HERMAN N. DUNDELER, M.D.

IT is time to start thinking about colds again.

While you might have had a cold this summer, your chances of getting a bad cold begin to increase again about Thanksgiving time.

During early winter, about 19 per cent of the nation's population, or some 12,000,000 persons, will come down with colds.

Highest Rate

You're more likely to catch a cold and have more of them if you're a resident of the North Central States. And if you live in Chicago, your chances of contracting a cold are really high. Chicago has the highest rate of colds in the nation.

How can you avoid a cold?

That's a pretty difficult question, especially since we actually know so little about the common cold.

Generally, cold viruses don't spread by direct contact with the person who has the cold. They are spread by droplets that may be in the air.

Keep out of drafts. Dress according to the weather. Make sure that your diet is well-balanced.

Get plenty of rest, at least eight hours sleep every night.

Keep clean. Wash your hands frequently and keep them away from your nose and mouth as much as possible.

The minute you notice symptoms of weakness, general aching, or a burning or itching in nose or throat, see your doctor.

Other early indications of a cold are a chilly feeling and a rise in temperature. You may have gas pains or stomach cramps, become nauseated or be constipated or have loose bowels.

Remember, you'll lose your appetite, too.

Try not to get into a habit of sneezing or blowing your nose. Avoidance of cold may be of some help. As a rule, colds come on winter.

ACLU Deen Praised Many Times

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Not long ago a woman was held in contempt of court for picketing a New York courthouse with a sign demanding religious quotas in the selection of judges.

While it has no stomach for religious quotas of any kind, the American Civil Liberties Union did feel her right to free speech had been violated. Staff counsel Herbert Monte Levy told her the ACLU would take her case as soon as it found time.

The woman grew impatient. One day she stormed up to Levy's office and threatened to start picketing him unless her case were expedited. "You have every right to picket as if you want," Levy said. "And if the police interfere, we will defend in court your right to picket us."

The union ultimately won her case. Indifference to the righteous or villainous intent of its clients has typified the ACLU for 33 years—from the "monkey trial" in Dayton, Tenn., the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti, Mooney and Billings, its fight against labor injunctions and its fight for employers' rights of free speech in union relations, all the way up to its present-day fight for the rights of "Fifth Amendment" witnesses. The ACLU clings to the notion that the Bill of Rights was written into the Constitution for everyone.

Among many other things it has frequently been accused of Communist or, at the least, left-wing sympathy. This partly results from the assumption made by some people that the ACLU agrees with the viewpoint of its clients. It doesn't necessarily. Also there has been some confusion over names. The Civil Rights Congress, which is something else, is on the attorney general's subversive list. The ACLU isn't.

On various occasions, the union and its leaders have been praised by Dwight D. Eisenhower, Harry S. Truman, Thomas E. Dewey, Douglas MacArthur and by the Chicago Tribune as well as the New York Times.

"We have moved from a position of suspected subversion to one of unexpected respectability," noted Roger Baldwin, ACLU founder, before he retired as director in 1950. Before his death this year General Counsel Arthur Garfield Hays also remarked on changing trends.

"In the old days, we used to go into the coal fields or over to New Jersey and hold test meetings and get ourselves locked up. We were right in the front lines then. Now we file a brief. Governors speak at our dinners. I think we were a more effective organization before we became respectable."

In those days the ACLU went looking for trouble and had no difficulty finding it. It found it in Tennessee in 1925 when Hays, Clarence Darrow and Dudley Field Malone were sent by the ACLU to test a state law forbidding the teaching of evolution. On other fronts, during the '20s and '30s, its leaders and attorneys were threatened, jailed, booted out of town or thrown into the clink testing and defending a Negro's right to justice in the South, the miners' right to organize in Pennsylvania or Socialist Norman Thomas' right to speak in Frank Hague's Jersey City.

DAUGHTER IS BORN:

BUT LIME GOES ON

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 7 — Golden Shultz of Oklahoma City asked Common Pleas Judge Carl Traub last week if his sentence for liquor possession could be deferred a week. "I'm about to become a father," he told the judge. Oklahoma is constitutionally dry. Judge Traub agreed a man should stick close to home during a blessed event. Shultz reported to the court yesterday with cigars for all. "Everything's fine," he told the judge. "It's a girl." "Congratulations," said the judge. "Thirty days and $200."

CINDY HMAN, 2, born without arms or legs, arrives in New York from Sherman, Tex., on her way to the Kessler Institute in West Orange, N. J., to be fitted for artificial limbs. When she is three, Cindy will get new arms. Shown with the child is her mother, Mrs. Lloyd Hman, who said funny for the child were raised in a "Sea Cindy" drive by the Sherman Baptist Church. Radio-TV Highlights

NEW YORK — In the arts it's always pleasant to find a genuine long-hair with a naturally crew-cut personality. Such a man is Leonard Bernstein — conductor, composer, pianist — who at the age of 31 has three lifetimes of musical achievement behind him and is now tired of being referred to as a "young genius."

Bernstein has taught me almost all I know about music. He's done this on Omnibus (CBS-TV) by interpreting Beethoven last season and jazz this season in two exciting programs. Now he's returning to Omnibus next Sunday with a symphonic orchestra to discuss the art of conducting — or is a conductor I'm sure I'll know something about conducting.

Not enough to conduct the New York Philharmonic Symphony, as Bernstein did at the age of 28. But enough.

Bernstein lives and composes in a vast high-ceilinged apartment in an old rooco apartment house on one of the noised corners in New York. It has the sole geographical advantage of being just across the street from Carnegie Hall. He has a beautiful blonde wife, a beautiful

4-year-old daughter and a plump baby son. A candid, friendly man whose hair is not literally cut to crew length, Bernstein said:

"I don't keep any regular schedule. I get up any time from 9 to 12 in the morning. I work at what wants to or at what's most pressing. Maybe I won't work at all in the evening or maybe till midnight and sometimes I get to bed at 5 a.m."

Bernstein's accomplishments since he graduated from Harvard and became the protégé of conductor Serge Koussevitzky fill 12 pages of unaltered facts. He's composer of the symphonies "Jenuish" and "The Age of Anxiety." Item: composer of the music for that popular hit "On the Town."

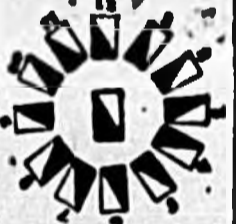

It's difficult for any artist to explain the why and wherefore of his work. When asked his theory on how he moves with such facility between jazz and classical music, he says:

"I was born and grew up in America where I heard both classical and jazz. It's just as natural to me to be close to jazz as anything else. If it's music it excites me."

Speaking Games

A TIME-HONORED GAME

Most of us regard Solitaire as a game for grown-ups — particularly those elderly folk, conventionalists, and shut-ins who have ample leisure time. It may seem as a surprise, therefore, to learn that Solitaire games are also favorites with children. Several are especially recommended for keeping restless youngsters occupied on rainy days or when illness keeps them home from school.

One such Solitaire variation, which in addition to its therapeutic value teaches youngsters how to tell time, is called, appropriately, "Round the Clock." To play this game, deal in a circle twelve stacks of four cards each, face down, and another stack of four cards face down in the center of the circle.

The twelve stacks represent the figures on a clockface (I, II, III, and so on around) and they also represent the numbers on the cards (Ace, 2, 3, Jack, XI, and Queen, XII). The four cards in the center are the King pile. Object of the game is to have all the cards of the clock in their correct places, face-up, before the King pile is completed. That is, the four ace face up in the I pile, the four deuce face up in the II pile, the three in the III pile, and so on.

Starting with the Ace pile (I) on the clock face, turn over the top card and place it, face-up, at the bottom of its correct pile. If it is a 6, put it face-up under the VI pile. Then take the top card of the VI pile and put it where it belongs. If it should be a Queen put it face up beneath the XII pile, and take the top card of the XII (Queen's) pile and put it in its right place. Any King goes face up beneath the pile in the center of the clock.

If the game works out, you will have at the end all the cards in their correct positions, from the four Aces on the one o'clock pile to the four Queens of high noon.

If, before the other piles are completed, four Kings should be turned up, the game ends and you lose.

Other juvenile Solitaires similar to Round the Clock, along with scores of other variations for grown-ups to be played with one, two or even four packs of cards, can be found in the book, "100 Ways to Play Solitaire." Recently presented to President Eisenhower as a birthday gift by his granddaughter, the book has pointed up the increased interest in Solitaire. In response to demand, manufacturers have just brought on the market a novel gift package containing this 128-page illustrated book plus two packs of playing cards.

Make It 'Bought In Sanford' Christmas This Year, Always

The exciting spirit of Christmas has finally arrived. Children look starry-eyed at toy displays and parents cautiously look around the homes to see what sort of practical gift they can buy this year.

On the other hand, this is the time of year your Sanford merchant, and every merchant in the country, greets each day with bated breath. He is just as wary of the weather as a farmer who is harvesting his crops. He is just as sensitive to the demands of his customers as a seismograph which registers earth tremors. And well he might be, because he has 'gone the limit' on huge purchases for his trade.

Your Sanford merchant pays heavy taxes all year long. He pays a goodly portion of his income for salaries to hundreds and hundreds of Sanford people. He must earmark thousands of dollars for maintenance of his store, and spend additional money for services to accommodate customers. He seldom, if ever, turns a deaf ear on a solicitation for some worthy cause, and in some few cases is the victim of some polite hi-jacking.

Your Sanford merchant is your friend and neighbor. He's the man who will guarantee you the satisfaction and service you so rightly deserve and expect from your purchase. He and his organization take personal pride in having you as a customer, and will go to extreme lengths to hold your business.

The economy and prosperity of Sanford depends on you. Your patronage of Sanford stores is a guarantee of your 'money's worth'.

Remember, our stores are here because you wanted them. The least folks can do is patronize them to the exclusion of all others. This year, make it a 'bought in Sanford Christmas.'

TB Funds Needed

A service of one of our local organizations was brought to our attention very vividly yesterday.

At the regular meeting of the Seminole County Board of County Commissioners, two people who had contracted a disease many fear, were approved for entry in the Florida Tuberculosis Hospital.

No matter how hard we try, tuberculosis is still with us, and will be with us for years on end unless the relentless search is continued to find a way to combat it in other ways.

Until that time, funds must be provided for the research, and funds must be provided for the continued education of people in the why and wherefore of TB.

The Seminole County Tuberculosis and Health Association appeals to you, again this year, to purchase and use the Christmas Seals you have received in the mail. It's such a small matter to insert the dollar, two dollars, or three dollars in the return envelope provided, so that TB can be further fought right here in your community.

No, there aren't many cases of tuberculosis found at one time. They're infrequent, but yet at too frequent intervals. Two admitted to the hospitals where the disease can be overcome.

The amount you're asked to send to your local TB and Health Association is small in comparison to the suffering the disease can cause.

Grab Green Earth For Safety First

NEW YORK (U. S. Curbsome comments of a pavement flatter:

Can you recall, as a child, how you liked to stretch out on a small grassy hill, and then roll down it? Can you remember how, when you reached the bottom, mind reeling, you had a strange feeling of terror that you were about to fly off into space—and how you dug small hands into the sweet-smelling earth and hugged it hard to keep this from happening?

I have this same feeling on reading that the U. S. government is sponsoring research to find a way to counteract gravity.

In this battle of science versus gravity I am pretty much on the side of gravity.

Gravity is one of man's oldest and best friends. It may get him down hard occasionally, but at least he knows where it will get him down. But science? I don't know. If science takes over gravity, it is hard to figure where we'll all be set down eventually.

Over the centuries gravity has shown a steady and dependable sense of responsibility. You know what it will do. But who can tell what science will do next? It is as unpredictable as a flea at a dog show.

Gravity was a fact of life long before, as legend has it, an apple dropped on Sir Isaac Newton's nose. All Newton did was to get up and single-handedly pass the law of gravity.

This law has been more influ-

Business Moves Into Final Month

NEW YORK (U. S. — Santa Claus chief problem now is material shortages or delays in deliveries from metal producers. There is wide belief that December will see many companies still striving, with only moderate success, to build up inventories.

Some are betting that the Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production, which hit a record 142 in September and October, will push to 144 this month, helped in part by this urge to build inventories. The index uses the 1947-48 output average as its base of 100.

Retail trade starts the month off with a bang. Sales volume is already at least 7 per cent higher than this year's Christmas trade. Think this year's Christmas trade will top last year's by 10 per cent.

So he's sports-minded is he? WESTERN AUTO STORE has solved your problems. Fishing tackle, rods, reels, line, tackle boxes and a complete stock on guns and shells along with kickers are just a few things they have for the sportsman. "Wizard" products are their specialty, of course, and a good buy we think. I noticed a surf rod and reel down there the other day that would make any man proud. Their Shakespeare reels are the finest too.

A good dad is one who worries about his family's safety. You can stop his worrying about putting new tires on the car by dropping in FIRESTONE STORE. Not only Dad but the whole family will be pleased to have a new set put on by the capable FIRESTONE workmen. They'll work out terms to your convenience and give you a guarantee. Oh, and Mom, while in why don't you look at some of their gifts for men? Small and large. They have some wonderful things!

HOLIDAY HILARITIES: Customer: "Hey chef. Why don't you show the flies back there in the kitchen?" Chef: "Cause they're happier barefoot."

Don't know what to get him for Christmas? ... JIM ROBSON showed me just the thing the other day when I was in for a visit. Airman heat mirror jackets to keep him comfortable in any climate. Priced at $13.95 the magic millium lining captures the body heat and keeps him warm. Favorite colors are catered to also. Water repellent... Of course. Remember that, JIM ROBSON MEN'S WEAR.

THEIR OWN CHRISTMAS PARTY MORE FUN FOR THE CHILDREN

The Christmas season is such an important time for children! An idea which will keep the little folks happily occupied and help busy mothers, too, is to let them have part in preparing a party of their very own. Plan simple refreshments that they can help make. The little ones can cut sandwiches into stars and Christmas trees with cookie cutters and they can decorate cookies by sprinkling on colored sugar after Mother has spread them with icing. For a beverage, since chocolate is a favorite flavor, they will love Caravan Instant Chocolate Flavored Drink. It's so easy even small children can make it all by themselves. Mothers like it because it provides whole-milk amounts of protein, calcium and B-vitamins even when mixed with water. If the small "small fry" are giving the party, it can be served warm with a marshmallow. The "magic crystals" dissolve instantly in hot or cold water and the handy package pouring spout makes it easy for the children to mix without spilling... there's no mess for Mother to clean up. All they have to do is add the "magic crystals" to warm water, stir and it's ready to drink. A quart of Instant Chocolate will serve 7 or 8 children. To make a quart of this nourishing beverage, just add 2 1/3 cups of "magic crystals" to 3 1/2 cups of water and stir lightly. If you want to really dress up the occasion serve the hot chocolate drink in Santa Claus mugs and decorate the table with paper Santas or a tree with a little gift for each child.

Today's Dental Scientists Reveal Sugar As No. One Villain Of Teeth

(Following is the third in a series of articles published as a public service by The Sanford Herald in cooperation with the Seminole Dental Society.)
The No. 1 villain in dental health is sugar. In fact, some dental scientists have declared that America's sweet tooth grows much larger, we may become a nation without teeth.
Sugar is the most important factor in tooth decay. The relation of sugar to tooth decay has been well established by years of scientific research.

Dental scientists have shown that bacteria which lead to tooth decay require food that can be broken down quickly to form acids. Sugar supplies the answer. Sugars on the tooth surface are turned into acids producing acids swiftly by these bacteria. There is no proof of any way to stop the formation of these acids.

Each time a child eats a sweet, the teeth are attacked by acids produced from the sugar. Sweets eaten between meals are particularly dangerous because each time the sweet is eaten, the decay process starts again.
The child who nibbles on candies, cookies and other sweets five or six times a day invites badly diseased teeth. If a mother gives her youngster a sweet treat between meals occasionally, she is urged to see that he brushes his teeth immediately. Better still, she might substitute fresh fruit or popcorn or nuts instead of sweets for between-meal snacks.
The dental and medical professions have gone on record urging that the sale of confections and carbonated beverages on school premises be halted.

This point out that too much indulgence in sweets not only is harmful to dental health but is bad for general health. When sweets take the place of more necessary and nutritious foods, the child's health suffers.
There is one mistaken idea about diet and tooth decay. For many years, it was believed that if the body were supplied with large amounts of calcium and vitamin D, dental decay would be prevented, especially in the teeth of children. Because milk is high in calcium and cod liver oil high in vitamin D, both milk and cod liver oil were considered anti-decay foods.
That is not true. Once the child's teeth have appeared, milk and other nutritious foods have little effect on tooth enamel. However, such foods are invaluable as far as general health is concerned.

However, during the period when the teeth are developing within a child's jaw, they do require calcium in order to be properly formed and calcified. Proper diet also has a beneficial effect on the gum tissues and bone structures around the teeth.
Dental decay is chiefly a disease of childhood and adolescence. If the devastating effects of too much sweet food can be avoided during this period, these young people will have far less dental ills than their elders.

Spotlight On Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Are the Academy Awards unfair to some actors?
Ronald Reagan thinks so, and today he proposed two changes in Oscar voting rules to insure fairness. His complaint:
1. A star might lose a nomination because he is named for two different roles.
2. Supporting acting awards too often go to those who are really stars.

On matter No. 1, he observed that a player like James Cagney might get votes for both "Mister Roberts" and "Love Me or Leave Me." Likewise Jennifer Jones could be selected for "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing" and "Good Morning, Miss Dove" for late James Dean for "East of Eden" and "Rebel Without a Cause."

"This matter probably hasn't arisen before," Reagan said. "In the past, most actors were under contract to the studios, which would get behind one performance and give it a push."
"But today actors are in a free lance market. They might do great pictures at two or more studios. The campaign might split the vote for the players, thus depriving them of a nomination."

This might have happened in last year's voting. William Holden failed to be nominated, despite his brilliant performances in "Executive Suite" and "Country Girl." It's possible that he got more votes than the five nominees, but missed out because his tally was split.
Reagan's solution: "The total number of votes for any actor should be counted. If he gets votes for more than one film, he should run for the final Oscar on the basis of the picture which attracted the most votes. This would prevent unfair competition with actors who were up for only one picture."

Reagan added that the awards for supporting players have been abused by studios that reduced the billing of stars to support status in order to snag an Oscar.
He observed that Eva Marie Saint was actually Marlon Brando's leading lady in "On the Waterfront," not the supporting actress. Walter Huston starred in "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre" though he won the Oscar for top part.

Rivals Angry Over Trade

'Better Safe Than Sorry' Is Belief Of Football Players

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"It's better to be safe than sorry"—especially where your teeth are concerned—seems to be the belief of 1933 football players.

More and more they are taking to wearing protective devices, ranging from simple curved bars in big transparent plastic affairs that almost cover the face, attached to their helmets. They may look like grotesque gargoyles instead of humans in photographs, but at least they can wear their own teeth when they go calling on the girl friend Saturday night.

A marked increase in the use of such devices was observed this year by 133 of 140 sports writers and broadcasters replying to the Associated Press post-season questionnaire. Only seven said there was no increase.

The face guards were the subject of considerable controversy among coaches, rules-makers and sports goods manufacturers a few years ago. Apparently they are now being improved, along with other protective equipment, so they don't interfere with vision of breathing and aren't likely to break and cause injuries.

But some observers still class them as dangerous weapons. "The players must wear them in self-defense, since everybody else does, but they're wicked weapons," said one. Several others subscribed to the self-defense theory and some maintain they have become necessary because of an increase in rough play.

From various sections came such comments as these:

"I've seen more rough stuff by linemen this year than any time in history."

"Football is getting out of hand again and officials are not cracking down on roughness as they could."

"They discourage slugging."

"Use of elbows has become legalized to the extent you might almost as well let a player slug."

Whether they're protectors or weapons, these devices obviously can keep an errant elbow, fist or foot out of a player's mouth and most of the experts think wearing them is a good idea.

"It seems football players object to injuries as much as the National Safety Council," said one. "Coaches realize the price of a death is small compared to a death bill," another added.

"A great advancement that most teams will accept in another year" said a third.

CHICAGO (AP)—Rival National League managers were charged and embittered over the trade between Chicago and Brooklyn that sent hard hitting third baseman Ransom Jackson to the world champion Dodgers for reserve third sacker Don Hoak and spare outfielder Walter Moryn.

The transaction, announced last night, caused eyebrows-raising among baseball people who were almost unanimous in the belief that the Dodgers got much the better of the deal. One NL manager, expressing surprise that the Cubs would consent to such a deal, growled:

"Those Dodgers were going to be tough enough to beat as it was. But who's going to stop them now? Last year they had seven men in the lineup who could hit the ball out of the park at any given time. Now they've got eight. And with Don Newcombe on the mound, they have nine."

Cub personnel manager Wild Matthews, who made the swap with Brooklyn's vice president E. J. (Ruzzie) Bava, announced there will be a "tail" to this transaction sometime next week. The "tail" reportedly is Russ Meyer, the veteran right hander, who will report when the Cubs have gotten down below the 40-player limit to make room for him. The Cubs released Walker Cooper and the 42-year-old catcher was expected to sign with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The two-for-one deal put the Cubs one over the player limit. It was the only major swap completed at the big league meetings which ended yesterday but several others are hanging fire and may be consummated before long.

Sam Sneed To Try For Another Victory

MIAMI (AP)—Sam Sneed, the old slammer who was forced out of the running last year, will try for another Miami Open golf tournament victory beginning in tomorrow's opening round.

Sneed's recurrent back ailment began bothering him after one round in 1934 and young Bob Roseburg of San Francisco went on to win the 73-hole tournament with 285.

This year Sneed, seeking his sixth Miami Open title, will be a sentimental favorite in a strong field of contenders.

Putting well and obviously feeling good, Sneed fired a six-under-par 68 yesterday to win top money in the one-day pro-member tournament at Legores Country Club in Miami Beach. He had a 31-34 round for a prize of $500.

Ed Furgal of Crave Corur, Me., and Walker Inness Jr. of Augusta, Ga., tied for second place with 84.

Seventy-six top pros were exempt from qualifying grounds that lesser golfing lights shot Monday and Tuesday to get into the $12,500 Miami Open tournament.

A field of 100 players, including 50 amateurs, will compete in the tournament.

Olson Says Robinson is Coming To Me

By JOE MOORHEAD

CHICAGO (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson doesn't believe there'll be any psychological factors involved in his bid to regain the middleweight championship against Rob Olson Friday night, but the champion thinks otherwise.

"I wouldn't say there are any psychological advantages or disadvantages," Robinson said, "but I guess it's better to have won two over the man than to have lost two."

He was referring to his two victories over Olson in 1930 and 1932.

"Sure he beat me twice," retorted Olson, "but things have changed. I'm the champ now."

"The first time I went against him, I was scared. I was just a green kid and while working out for the fight, fans would crowd around and watch me. Then I'd hear them say, 'Man, what Sugar Ray's going to do to this guy.' Don't think those remarks didn't make a difference to a newcomer."

That was when Robinson knocked Olson out in 12 rounds but he didn't have an easy time of it.

"No one ever has an easy fight against Olson," said Robinson before going through a couple of fast windup rounds yesterday. "I'm not trying to build him up but he's out there giving you a battle three minutes of every round."

And Olson doesn't figure to change any.

"I'm going to fight the same way," he said. "I nearly beat him the second time and that was three years ago. I know he's not as fast now as he was then and he had to rely on speed."

"Psychology? Sure there's psychology in every fight and I know he beat me twice," continued Olson. "But look at it this way. I'm the champ this time and there's a lot of confidence that goes with that title. This time he's coming to me."

Ben Hogan Asks $400,000 Damages From Publishing Co.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Golfier Ben Hogan has asked for $400,000 damages from a New York publishing company for allegedly using pictures of him in a book on golfing without his permission.

Atty. Francis W. Sullivan filed the suit here yesterday on behalf of the Fort Worth, Tex., golfing great, A. S. Barnes and Co., Inc., of New York was named as the defendant.

Hogan contended the pictures were taken without his knowledge while he was practicing for a tournament at the Baltusrol Golf Club, Springfield, N.J. He also alleged that the advertising and the book jacket are "designed to deceive the public into believing that the book was written and approved by the persons in whom it refers, including Hogan."

The book was written by Dave Cameron and published by Barnes last June. Barnes previously published Hogan's book "Power Golf."

Hectic Basketball Season Ahead For Illinois Coach

National League Holds Out Glimmer Of Hope To Minors

By JACK HAND

CHICAGO (AP)—The National League held out a glimmer of hope to the minors in the form of revenue from a proposed television "Game of the Week" broadcast today but the majors turned thumbs down on such player requests as a $7,200 minimum pay, unlimited winter ball and an inside role in negotiating a new World Series TV contract.

The National went out of its way to label as "very important" its decision to ask Walter O'Malley, Brooklyn president, to continue his efforts to work out plans to use income from a proposed "Game of the Week" TV broadcast of major league games on Saturday afternoons to aid the minors.

The minors, through the presidents of their Class B, C and D leagues, have asked the majors to help work out a plan for immediate relief of the damaging effects of TV broadcasts into minor league territory. Although this request was not acted upon by the American League and was rejected by the National because of its "intemperate" language, the National voted to lend a hand.

Commissioner Ford Frick revealed Monday that he had been rebuffed by the Justice Department in Washington in an attempt to set up a test case on the right of baseball to regulate radio and TV broadcasts of its games. The minors blame radio and TV for a large share of their attendance decline in recent years.

A "Game of the Week" TV show has been in operation in recent years. Only three clubs participated in the original plan but many others joined last season. It was learned that the entire 16 major league clubs were considering participation in 1934.

The majors also turned down the minors' proposal to change the law on returning servicemen, making their count on the player limit after 30 days instead of one year. On the player demands, the majors refused to go along with the increase from $4,000 to $7,200 in minimum pay. They also rejected a proposal to let the players negotiate on their own with winter league teams and refused to let

George Welsh Is Champ By Yards

NEW YORK (AP)—George Welsh, who served as Navy's air-arm, is the individual total offense champion of major college football, but only by a scant 35 yards over Arizona's Art Luppino, who made all his gains by running and romped off with his second straight rushing title.

Welsh, the individual passing king as well, topped the Arizona junior in the final game of the season by picking up 183 yards against Army. Luppino, meanwhile, was checked at 68 yards by Arizona State for his lowest one-game output of the season.

That gave Welsh a season total of 1,348 yards in nine games, according to final NCAA Service Bureau figures released today, while Luppino collared 1,313 in 10 games.

Luppino, first over to win the rushing crown in two consecutive seasons, also is the first to finish as high as second in the total offense race on rushing alone. With one season remaining, he's just 168 yards short of the all-time college career record of 3,212 yards set by Wisconsin's Alan Ameche.

All-America Earl Morrall of Michigan State had the top average gain for rushing-passing plays with 9.1 yards, third best in history for a minimum total gain of 1,000 yards. Notre Dame's Paul Hrunz had the single-game running-passing high, gaining 334 yards against Southern California in the finale. All-America Howard (Hopalong) Cassidy of Ohio State was the workhorse, figuring in more rushing-passing plays than anyone else with a total of 248—one more than John Majors of Tennessee.

The players informed on the new World Series TV contract. The old series pact expires after the 1934 games.

Nashua, 61 Other Thoroughbreds Are Up For Public Sale

NEW YORK (AP)—Nashua, 3-year-old champion and leading money winner of 1933 whose earning power still is estimated at more than $200,000, no longer will run under the familiar white-and-red dotted colors of the Belair Stud.

The first step in the dissolution of the famous stable, rumored since the death of William Woodward Jr. Oct. 30, was taken yesterday when executors of Woodward's estate placed Nashua and 61 other thoroughbreds up for public sale.

The executors called for sealed bids by Dec. 15.

Second on the list of world moneywinners, Nashua is topped only by Citation, who won $1,083,700. Nashua has earned a total of $643,615 as a 3-year-old and 2-year-old. He won $732,350 this year.

The champion colt has been turned out in a paddock at the Clairborne Farms in Paris, Ky. and is booked for a number of winter races in Miami and Santa Anita.

Going into his 4-year-old season, Nashua faces the higher weight of handicap racing and a probable drop in earning power. For that reason his chief value now is considered as that of a sire.

The nine other Belair race horses up for sale are Ambledancer, Ambler, Black Emperor, Citation, Cote D'Or, First Flower, Game Chance Thorough and Yab Goo.

Women Alcoholics In Florida Have Almost Quadrupled

GAINESVILLE, Dec. 7 (AP)—Women alcoholics in Florida have almost quadrupled in 15 years, a University of Florida sociologist says.

He says the male rate has doubled; that unskilled workers had three times their proportionate share of alcohol; business and managerial workers take their share; professional men only half.

Dr. John M. MacLachlan head of the department of sociology and anthropology, said the information was gained from a field survey in seven Florida counties in 1933 and balanced against reports of deaths due to cirrhosis of the liver and deaths due to alcohol in 1940.

He would not say which counties were surveyed but said they were of the state, rural-urban, education and income levels and when the information was put together it was found that "by chance an almost perfect sample" had been obtained.

State Alcoholic Rehabilitation Department at Avon Park make the survey.

He said that in 1940 there were 4,183 minimum women's cases against 15,504 in 1933.

No attempt was made to determine the reason for the increase.

Dr. MacLachlan said professional people such as judges, social workers and ministers provided data on past and present alcoholic cases in categories of sex, race, occupation and age to help obtain a better picture.

Altogether, he said there were some 81,000 alcoholics in the state and that 300,000 are affected either directly or indirectly by the problem.

The study showed the following categories with the first figure representing the percentage of employees in the state in that category and the second figure the per cent of excessive drinkers in that category:

Professionals 8 and 4 (that is, of the total employe population in Florida, 8 per cent are in the professions and of the 8 per cent, 4 per cent are excessive drinkers.)

Business and managerial operators 11 and 19; clerical 18 and 4; skilled 26 and 22; unskilled (not including farm workers) 8 and 18; unemployed and retired 8 and 11; housewives, figure not included in census of employe population, and 8; domestic servants 18 and 8; agricultural workers 11 and 8.

Dope Is Costing People Millions Of Dollars Yearly

Editor's Note — By the most conservative estimate, dope is costing Americans something like 350 million dollars a year. But that doesn't include the deadly tally in shattered, twisted lives, in crime associated with the craving for drugs. Here's the story behind plans for a congressional probe of the whole problem, first in a series of three stories.

By ROGER D. GREENE

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Federal agents were puzzled. They had reason to suspect that Pon Wai, smiling, 64-year-old operator of the Fragrant Flower Garden Shop in San Francisco's Chinatown, was peddling the white death called heroin.

But how?

Day after day, U. S. Treasury agents watched Pon Wai delicately moving among his flowers. Customers were few. None were known addicts. None was of a type to arouse suspicion.

Pon Wai knew he was being watched. He nodded and smiled blandly at the agents as they passed his shop. Occasionally, in plain view of the Times, he wrapped an expensive orchid corsage or a dozen roses and summoned a commercial messenger boy to deliver the package.

Agents stopped the messengers and searched the packages. Nothing. They examined the packages. Nothing.

One morning, as fog swirled through Chinatown, the agent again went through the routine of intercepting a messenger and examining the box of flowers.

"Roses, nothing but roses," one of the federal men growled. Then he gave a low whistle.

Tiny flecks of white powder had spilled down the stem of one of the roses. Cautiously attached to the stem was a thin green capsule. The T-man wet his finger, touched it to the powder, tasted it and grimaced.

"Heroin—pure heroin. Let's go!"

Thus, through long surveillance, federal operatives found the evidence needed to arrest Pon Wai and eight confederates in a multi-million-dollar narcotics ring that had been smuggling heroin into the United States from Red China.

Locked in a constant battle of wits with international dope smugglers, agents of the Federal Narcotics Bureau and the U. S. Customs Service share the almost impossible task of trying to keep illicit drugs—opium, heroin, cocaine, morphine and marijuana—out of this country.

Drug addiction is a blight that the government estimates costs 350 million dollars a year, while poisoning and wrecking the lives of thousands of the victims it has "hooked."

Harry J. Anslinger, chief of the Federal Narcotics Bureau, calls the habit "murder on the installment plan." It ravages body and soul, reducing its victims to a zombie-like existence of living death. That's the human side.

Financially, it is a devastating drain on the nation's economy. Here's why: The narcotics bureau estimates that the country has 40,000 addicts—a figure that other sources say is far too low. Even using the government's figure, this still adds up to a whopping 330 million dollars a year just to buy drugs.

That's because federal authorities say it costs an addict $15 to $50 a day to satisfy his craving, or a minimum of around $3,500 a year. But this isn't the whole story.

The average addict can't hold a job, particularly one that pays that kind of money. So he steals. And since a thief seldom gets more than a quarter of the value of stolen goods when he sells it, it means that the theft bill tops 1 1/2 billion dollars every year.

Fire Liner Finds New Use For Hat

DALLAS — Battalion Fire Chief A. D. Marable found a new use for his fire helmet when he helped evacuate 23 residents from a burning rooming house.

When shouts failed to rouse a 43-year-old deaf mute woman, he awakened her by shaking her. Unable to make the terrified woman understand, Marable finally took off his fire helmet and flashed his light on the lettering.

"She got the idea fast," Marable said. "She grabbed a robe and ran out then."

Make Reservations Right From Auto

LOS ANGELES — A hotel executive says sidewalk television receivers and transmitters will allow tired, dusty travelers of the future to register at a hotel without getting out of their cars.

"It will no longer be necessary for prospective patrons to look for a parking space before going in a hotel to make inquiries," Tom L. Powell, president of the American Hotel Assn., said recently.

Sidewalk TV will be installed by hotels throughout the nation, said Powell, owner of the Plaza, San Antonio, Tex.

Gore Says Unsuccessful Visit To Russia Frustrating, But Fun

MILWAUKEE — Leroy Gore, former weekly newspaper publisher and long-time foe of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) says his unsuccessful attempts to visit Russia during a European trip were frustrating—but they had their lighter moments.

"Many of the Russians I met felt sorry for me," he said in a telephone interview yesterday from his home in Sauk City, Wis.

"They thought that Joe McCarthy had me exiled from the United States, and I couldn't go back."

Gore founded the "Joy Must Go Club" in Wisconsin which in 1954 campaigned to force a recall election of Wisconsin's junior Republican senator. The recall campaign failed to gain the required number of signatures on petitions.

Gore said he decided on trying to visit Russia while touring the Midwest with the Soviet farm delegation this summer. He applied for a visa July 28.

"I had a little passport trouble," he said. "The State Department didn't want to give me one until I had my visa. But Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.) straightened that out."

Gore, a Republican who says he's now thinking about running for Congress himself but won't decide for a month or so, said officials at the Soviet Embassy in Washington suggested he pick up his visa in Europe to save time.

"It wasn't at Amsterdam," he said, "so I went on to Copenhagen. I waited there a month and American consular officials broke some sort of precedent by sending a bluntly worded query to Moscow asking for information on my visa. The Russians didn't give me any reasons. They just didn't say anything."

"All the Russians I met, 50 or so, seemed very disappointed that I couldn't get to visit their country. But apparently it was one of those cases where I learned more about the country from not being able to visit it than I would have on a tour."

Gore said he gained the impression that the Soviet hierarchy is made up of "queer, very frightened people."

"It seems to me obvious that they are afraid of getting too many Americans in their country, talking to their people."

What about the Soviet opinion of Sen. McCarthy, as told to a widely known anti-McCarthy newspaper?

"They looked at me and smiled kind of shyly," Gore said, "and told me that they couldn't really hate a man who's spent so much time telling the world how big and strong and smart they are."

FOUND BY ROYENBER in the South Pacific, the half-submerged mystery ship Jagan is manned by naval officers and natives as it is towed into the Malau lagoon off Vanua Levu in the Fiji Islands. It was from this 70-ton ship that 23 passengers and crew members mysteriously vanished after it sailed from Asomoa on Oct. 3 on a two-day voyage to the Tokelau Islands. It never arrived, nor has the disappearance of the people aboard been explained. The vessel, while listing badly, was intact. (International Radiophoto)

Be Sure Reducing Diet Includes Enough Vitamins

By HENRY S. HUNTER, M.D.

A WELL-BALANCED diet is essential for your good health. This is especially important while you're reducing.

Your body is so complicated that it needs a wide variety of raw materials to work efficiently. The only way you can get this variety is by eating different foods.

Vegetables and Fruits

You'll find vegetables and fruits covered in any reducing diet because they give you many of the essential elements you need.

For one thing, they give you bulk. Even more important, they give you vitamin.

Some Essential Vitamins

Vitamin B is found in vegetables such as spinach, peas and fish.

Vitamin E is contained chiefly in green leafy vegetables such as spinach. It is also found in wheat germ and soybeans.

Source of Vitamin C, as are oranges, tangerines, lemons, grapefruit and strawberries.

Vitamin A is found in vegetables such as spinach, peas, carrots, asparagus and sweet potatoes.

Well-Balanced Diet

While you may not find all of these vegetables and fruits in your reducing menus, you will find enough of them to give you a well-balanced diet.

You'll build up your health while cutting down your weight.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Q. M.: My husband and I have been told by doctors that we cannot have any children. It seems that it is not my fault; is there still a chance that my husband might become fertile again?

A.: Fertility in a male sometimes returns after treatment with male hormones and other drugs. This, of course, depends on the cause and severity of the hormonal case.

Few Know About Spencer

By ARTHUR HEDON

In this newspaper-industry age few know, or care, about Platt R. Spencer any more.

And yet only a little over a year ago a band of pilgrims reverently made its way to Geneva, Ohio, and the tomb on which is written in neat script, "P. R. Spencer."

At a time when many a person can't make out his own handwriting after it's done, the trip to the cemetery may have been symbolic.

For Spencer, dead these 30 years, once influenced the writing habits of this nation. "He wrote a fine Spencerian hand," an author would say, confident that any reader would realize from this one sentence that his hero was dependable, dignified and, probably, successful.

Now these remaining disciples, members of the International Association of Master Penmen and Teachers of Handwriting, had come to the place where Spencer first taught his famous system and later was buried.

Unfortunately, they did not record their thoughts on this solemn occasion. But it seems inevitable that a few disturbing questions would arise.

In the writing, Mr. Spencer, to die and be almost forgotten?

Are the nation's schools steadily forsaking the second of the three R's?

Will handwriting soon be all but a lost art?

Naturally the 30 or so remaining professional penmen are gloomy on all these questions. But other less prejudiced sources also believe we have become a nation of cursive writers.

Let's look at a few examples: The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. lost $20,000 a year because its operators wrote so poorly no one could figure out who should be charged with the calls. It began a program other businesses are copying: It hired an instructor to teach its employees how to write. Insurance executives complain they can't read policy forms handed in by their salesmen. Forty-seven per cent say wretched writing loses them money.

Physicians are notorious writers, and the magazine "Medical Economics" shows one tragic result: A Missouri medical man wrote a prescription calling for 10 grams of a certain drug. To the druggist it looked like 10 grains. The story is a separate British patient, big lawsuit... Jurors peer at prescription... verdict for the plaintiff. Doctor pays off.

A Dallas bank official says illegible handwriting, by customers and clerks, costs his firm $5,000 a year. No one can say for sure how much U. S. business loses each year due to shoddy handwriting, but one guess puts it as high as 70 million dollars a year.

A group of fountain pen manufacturers, apparently afraid their product might become a museum piece like the stylus or the goose quill, last year set up the non-profit Handwriting Foundation. It since has attracted many outside the pen industry who feel that handwriting needs every boost it can get.

Is the picture really this bleak? Should parents make a determined effort to get schools to concentrate on penmanship?

Most schoolmen say the answer to both questions is No. They agree that penmanship isn't given the attention it once was, but they say the hours saved are better spent on other subjects. And they insist that while the average student may not write a picture book head, he does have a simple style useful enough for most purposes.

To understand what the argument is about, let's go back a bit: In this country handwriting artistry probably never reached the peak it did in Europe, or, in another civilization, China. But great value was placed on the ability to write a neat hand.

"Good penmanship," John Quincy Adams once said, "requires application of personal discipline. Therefore it indicates strength of character."

For years penmanship flourished and prospered. Platt R. Spencer, who lived from 1800 to 1864, busily taught his system in a chain of business colleges, and thereby left his mark upon the American hand.

Yet the real reason for changing the methods of teaching penmanship probably wasn't Spencer. It was a conviction on the part of many educators that penmanship, as then taught, wasted time. Dr. Frank W. Hubbard, director of the research division of the National Education Assn., says: "There certainly is no harm in reconsidering our handwriting habits. Maybe we should spend more time on it. But I hope we can look at the problem calmly and soberly. Why is it that, on almost any problem in education, we have to work ourselves into an emotional lather?"

So, unemotionally and unaltered, let's face up to a curious aspect of handwriting. If some schools slight handwriting, it would be in line with what seems to be a national, and maybe an international attitude.

Many a business man, no matter how much he deplores poor handwriting in others, has a signature that is indecipherable. And many a dainty woman writes a most ladylike cursive.

Nor is this growing now. The handwriting problem has been with us always.

The ink-splashed desks for possibly the worst writing of all time probably should go to Horace Greaser, the editor of the New York Tribune who lived from 1811 to 1872 and therefore was a contemporary of Platt R. Spencer.

The Spencerian hand never touched the great Greaser. He wrote at top speed, leaving each page in the flow as he finished it, hurrying, carelessly, sloppily. The result was chaos.

One anonymous description of it has come down to us, possibly from the unscrupulous printer whose job it was to figure out what the master meant.

"His handwriting," the poor man said, "looks like the tracks of a drunken hen."

Atomic Energy Use Plants Discussed For Generating

The outlook for Atomic Energy as a fuel to power Florida's future generating plants came under close scrutiny at a series of conferences sponsored by Florida Power & Light Company which were concluded in Miami recently.

Following the conferences McGregor Smith, FPLS board chairman, left for Pittsburgh, at the invitation of the AEC to inspect the shipping port reactor plant being built jointly by the Commission and Duquesne Light Co.

"We are keeping closely in touch with the progress of reactor development," said Smith "in order to determine when it will become feasible and most practicable for us to order one."

Present for the briefing on latest developments were FPLS engineers and officials and also representatives of Tampa Electric Company and Florida Power Corporation, St. Petersburg.

Atomic Consultant Roy B. Snapp of Washington, D. C. former secretary of the AEC and John Landis, assistant head of the atomic energy division of Babcock & Wilcox Company New York, N. Y. described in detail the dozen or more different steam producing reactors that are presently under construction or in the design stage for the production of electric power.

Babcock & Wilcox which has the contract to build consolidated Edison's so-called "thorium converter" reactor plant in addition to participation in other private and government experimental projects is the world's largest manufacturer of industrial steam producing equipment.

Many Christians Are True Moslems Says Leader Faisel

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP)—Even if you call yourself a Christian, you also may qualify as a good Moslem.

"Millions of Christians in this country are true Moslems," said Sheikh Daoud Ahmed Faisel, spiritual leader of the Islamic Mission of America. "They just don't know it."

"That may sound incongruous to some people, steeped in grade-school notions of the bloody Middle Ages Crusades against so-called 'infidels' of Mohammed but it is the brotherly attitude of Mohammed's followers today."

Basically, it always has been. "The average American simply knows nothing about Islam," Sheikh Faisel said. "It is the religion of Christians and Jews and all who believe in one true God and who have surrendered to his will and guidance of his laws."

But in the United States, he said, there has been little recognition of the Jewish-Christian roots of Islam, or that Abraham, Jesus and Mohammed are all seen equally as prophets of the faith.

"Best car manufactured in America today"

That's what Floyd Clymer, famous automobile authority, said about Chrysler in Popular Mechanics (October)

"I have tested many fine automobiles over all kinds of terrain," writes Mr. Clymer, "and in my judgment Chrysler is the best automobile manufactured in America today."

When you compare this Chrysler with the other two major cars in its price class, you will be in for an electrifying awakening. Because this is power driving as it was never to be.

You push the "D" on the Pushbutton PowerFlite Drive and a mighty airplane-type engine whisks you away in an instant. There's a new, wonderfully easy foot-of-the-road with full-time PowerFlite Steering... a straight, sure, velvety sense of safety in the seats you get with PowerSmooth Brakes... a world of authority in the tremendous response of Chrysler's exclusive airplane-type FirePower V-8 engine.

Just one look at this car tells you the power's there. You see it in the "airline" PowerStyle lines... in the light-sweep look of its rear deck and fenders. Let us put you behind the wheel of this "PowerStyle" Chrysler for just 15 minutes this week. Compare its all-around performance with its two price competitors. Then you'll know why "the best car manufactured in America" is your best buy! Come in or call us today!
