Garden Circle Hears History Of Club

By Shirley Wentworth The history of the Orlando Garden Club, dating back to the early 1900's, was presented last Wednesday night for members of the Bear Lake Garden Circle by Mrs. John Grathwol, president of the Orlando Club.

Mrs. Grathwol included in her resume the club's many moves up to its present loca-

The business meeting, with Mrs. C. L. Brunk, president, in charge, was held preceding the program. Discussed were this year's Christmas Tree Lane project for which the Bear Lake Circle will make eandles and plans to attend the Fashion Show to be sponsored by the Orlando Club on Nov. 1 at the Cherry Plaza Hotel.

Mrs. Brunk will serve as one of the models for the show.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. William Massey, hostess. The November meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Richard Ostrander, 3413 Jamison Drive, Bear Lake, WASHINGTON (UPI) Sen. Norris Cotton, (R-N. H.) charged today that the Kennedy administration inserted the controversial public accommodations section in its civil rights package merely to pressure southern legislators into accepting other sections of the bill.

Cotton said the administration does not really expect Congress to pass the measure, which would outlaw discrimination in restaurants. hotels, lunch counters, motels and other public facilities. He said the law "would be a monstrosity and impossible to Air Station, Hawaii, to enforce."

The House Judiciary Committee returned to voting on sections of its civil rights voting rights. Chairman Emanuel Celler, (D-N. Y.), has agreed with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy that the bill will have to be toned down to win more bipartisan

Nearer.

Argument rages in many quarters these days about whether or not Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona is "modifying" his atrongly conservative views as he speaks around the nation in the traditional posture of an active but undeclared candidate for the presidency.

Goldwater has just said "no" to the question of altering his opinions. is a fact, however, that he has said some widely varying things about certain major subjects.

Just as one example, he is accustomed to telling audiences that though he personally believes racial segregation is morally wrong, education as such is a matter which should be left to the states.

The statement has been interpreted by most of his staunch southern supporters as meaning that, despite his personal beliefs, he would leave the states alone to practice whatever segregation in the schools that they could maintain.

Recently, however, Goldwater told the Washington publication, Congressional Quarterly, that under some conditions he would approve the use of federal troops to enforce federal court orders in school desegregation matters. This expression received slight national attention. It was, in fact, buried in a small news item deep inside the pages of one of the country's leading national newspapers. But it seems to have been an accurate report.

not entrust his military jets to anyone but real pros — pilots who are thoroughly trained, temperamentally suited for their exacting duties, and in top-top shape to fly.

It's interesting to speculate on how much our traffic toll would come down if every driver were required to meet the standards imposed on the jet pilots.

Clearer

He begins by saying he would oppose use of troops but then adds quickly that he would endorse such action where the president's authority in this field is clearly outlined. He says this means the president can dispatch troops when a governor or state legislature asks for them, when it is necessary to put down rebellion or insurrection, and when it is necessary to enforce a federal court edict. Since that definition of presidential authority covers the use of troops by both President Eisenhower and President Kennedy in the various segregation crises, it is hard to see wherein Goldwater differs. It is being said, of course, that Goldwater has changed stance in such other fields as social security, the federal income tax, and the role of the far right wing in American

Yet most of those who believe these changes are clearly observable are not making harsh critical comment. They are simply noting what to them is a normal phenomenon of American politics:

As a man moves up the scale toward serious consideration for the highest office in this country, he tends to see more and more the maddening complexity of our affairs, the grays instead of the blacks and whites, And he usually is moved in consequence to take a more central position on major matters which seemed so simple and sharp-cut when viewed at a greater distance.

DEAR ABBY: A relative called me and asked if she should send us a wedding invitation. She said if we didn't intend to use it, she wouldn't send one because they are very expensive and they are running short of them. When I complained to my husband about it (they are HIS side of the family, wouldn't you know?) he said. "Oh, don't be so formall Ask her to READ the invitation over the telephone and tell her yes or

DEAR ABBY: Our family is small, and we have many "single" friends (bachelors. divorcees and widows) whom we frequently invite to share a meal or an outing. Our children have often asked why the single men and women we invite so often never invite us for anything. At first we told them it was neither necessary nor expected. But the more we thought about it, the more we began to wonder-why don't they? They wouldn't have to include our children. I wonder why "singles" think nothing of repeatedly accepting invitations from their married friends, but rarely recipro-

JUST WONDERING DEAR JUST: Many do. Only those "singles" who feel they have been invited out of "charity" do not consider themselves obligated, and therefore make no effort to reciprocate.

DEAR ABBY: A very attractive and well-educated woman has recently moved to our community. Her husband, an executive with a large firm, has been transferred here. This woman was given a warm welcome by all of us old residents. It is natural for a newcomer to talk about her experiences and friendships "back home." but this woman has divulged the most intimate information about her friends in her former community - things which could only have been told to her in confidence. She has even used thelp names. Chances are we will never meet them. But we keep wondering what she will say about us if she leaves here. If you will print this, perhaps we won't have to figure out a way to tell her she would be better liked if she didn't talk so

School Custodian 'Loves' Job

By Mrs. H. L. Johnson "The only way I could go pack to school to be with the children I love was to be appointed custadian of the school."

Thes are the words of Miss Arle Mann of Lake Monroe who has been custodian of the Lake Monroe Elementary School since January, 1959.

Known affectionately to young and old alike as "Miss Arie," her daily motto is "Help Somebody Today," and according to School Secretary Mrs. Helen Stapler, sha does just that!

If the children become ill at school, it is Miss Arie who helps them; if repair is needed in the school requiring a hammer, or any other tool for that matter, it's Miss Arie who "fixes it" and if the lawn needs mowing or the shrubbery need attention, it's Miss Arie who "does it."

In addition she sweeps and cleans the floors of every room every school day and also is responsible for raising and lowering the flag every

Flowers from the school grounds, planted and cultivated by Miss Arie, are placed daily on the secretary's desk in the office. One specimen seen recently on display here was a rare lavendar rose which has been a special pet and is shown with much pride. A native of Cochran, Ga., Miss Arie came to Lake Mon-
