Regatta Rigging

Participants in the Fleury Foundation's all-class sailing regatta benefit ready their craft for the event held on Lake Monroe. Proceeds from the regatta, held March 16 and 17 and sponsored by about 45 Florida businesses, will total approximately $40,000, said foundation spokesman Margaret Dormady. The money will be used to further the organization's purpose: promoting independence for the disabled through awareness development and the breaking down of attitudinal barriers. The Fleury Foundation was founded seven years ago and is based at 35 W. Pine Street, Orlando.

Longwood Picks 'Dynamic' Manager

By Jane Casselberry Herald Staff Writer
A "dynamic" manager with computer knowledge is the unanimous choice of Longwood City Commissioners to become the city's administrator.
William Thomas Powers, 42, assistant city administrator and director of finance for the city of Perry, is expected to be named formally at Monday night's commission meeting.
The commissioners came to the consensus at a workshop Friday afternoon in city hall, following two days of Powers and Wallace A. Payne, 48, city manager of Crystal River.

Mayor Harvey Smerilson said he felt Powers would work well with the commission and he liked his knowledge of computers. Commissioner Larry Goldberg said he was impressed with both men, but feels Powers is a dynamic manager and likes his background in finance.
Commissioner Ed Myers said Powers made a good assessment of the needs in all of the city departments and added, "He was my man from the word go."

'Something Special'

Knowles Gets Topper

By Donna Estes Herald Staff Writer
Sanford City Manager Warren E. "Pete" Knowles was presented the most prestigious honor the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce bestows — the John S. Krider Memorial Topper Award — at the chamber's annual awards banquet Friday night. And former Mayor Lee P. Moore was presented with a plaque in recognition of "unselfish and exemplary service to the community."

ceremonies Mack N. Cleveland, in his introductory remarks, said the honoree had given 32 years to the city, did it down on Knowles that it was he.
Cleveland Jr., a past "Topper Award" winner, has emceed the Topper presentation for several years.
Past recipients of the award meet each year to select the next winner. Cleveland said this year's choice has left an indelible and everlasting mark on the community; he has served in civic, political and religious endeavors while he holding a full time job, working for the public and for a lot of different bosses.
"He's got to be something special," Cleveland said.
Knowles had a somber expression on his face as he listened, shook his head when the remark about the 32 years was made and flashed a broad smile as his name was announced. Knowles' wife, Ava, wiped tears away as she heard her husband being honored.

48 Attend Wine-Tasting, Auction

Pouilly Fuisse was there, along with pinot chardonnay and bordeaux blanc. There were also people who could pronounce the names of dozens of French wines along with a lot of people who only knew what they like when they tasted it.
The wine lovers, from the connoisseur to a person who thought attending a wine auction would be fun, were present when scores of cases were sold to bargain hunters at an auction Friday in a warehouse at the 1-4 Industrial Park, west of Sanford.
The sale was to continue Saturday, since only a small fraction of the 5,000 cases up for sale were gaveled off Friday starting at 7 p.m. Minimum sale

More To Teach Out-Of-Field

By Roger Blimmons Herald Staff Writer
Ninety-one of Seminole County's 2,469 public school instructors are teaching outside their fields of study and that number should rise slightly in the 1985-86 school year, according to a report prepared for the county school board.
Ann Neiswender, Seminole schools' personnel director, said there will be 101 out-of-field teachers who will make up 4.1 percent of the Seminole schools' work force in the coming academic year. Her projection is a one-tenth of one percent increase from last year's total of 4.0 percent.

Mrs. Neiswender said an educator might teach a class outside of the area for which they are certified by the state due to a shortage of qualified teachers in a particular field, such as exists here with exceptional education. Or there may be too many teachers in a field, such as in physical education.
Out-of-field teaching can sometimes be far removed from the teacher's area of specialization. At Lake Mary High School a teacher certified in physical education teaches mathematics and an instructor

Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. discusses the CHARLEE project with Guardian Ad Litem director Gretchen Gross.

Project Targets Agony Of Homeless Teens

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer
There's a glimmer of hope on the horizon for homeless youngsters in Seminole and Orange counties who don't fit into the environments of foster homes or the juvenile detention center or other institutions.
About one dozen of these hard-to-place teenagers will be the first residents of two new small-group homes, one in Seminole the other in Orange County, slated to open in July. And there are plans in the works a total of six such homes, three each for the two counties.
Seminole County Circuit

Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr., said the hope is those homes will fill the bill for some of the 30 or so Seminole County boys and girls who turn up homeless each year who don't fit into the system.
The homes will establish a long-term, home environment for troubled teens who have no place to go and who for various reasons including abuse, neglect and abandonment, can't go home, Davis said.
In most cases these youngsters have not crossed the law. They are victims of circumstances. Some may be orphans. And some may have also been sent to juvenile detention, mixed with more serious juvenile offenders, after violating a court order by running away from a foster home or their own home, Davis said.

The planned homes are a project of The CHARLEE Program (Children Have All Rights: Legal, Educational, Emotional) of which Davis is a board member and which has had the housing projects in the works for a year. Gretchen Gross, another board member said.
The CHARLEE plan is a spinoff from a Minninger Foundation project with a 25-year history of success in providing long-term homes for youths who don't have a niche in society. The first Florida homes were established about four years ago in Miami. The local homes will be the second group in the state, Ms. Gross said.

Ms. Gross, 33, is also local director of the state's Guardian Ad Litem program, which provides representation to all children involved in abuse of neglect court proceedings and until they are adopted, returned to their parents, institutionalized or slip out of the system to try to go it alone on the streets.

Will County Get Out Of The Garbage Business?

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Commission is expected to decide Monday if it wants to sell or lease the county's solid waste disposal facilities or stay in the business itself.

The commission on Jan. 11 turned over to a committee for study and recommendation proposals from three firms interested in buying or leasing and operating the county's sanitary landfill at the old Osceola Airfield near Oviedo and the transfer stations at Sanlando and Upsala Road.

The Solid Waste Operations Committee has ranked the companies submitting proposals as follows: Western Waste Industries, which operates in Cocoa, Cocoa Beach, Cape Canaveral and Lake Helen as well as in other states; Industrial Waste Services, which operates in 13 Florida counties; and Browning-Ferris Industries, which owns or operates 77 sanitary landfills, many of them under contract with cities and counties.

Western Waste Industries is offering to buy all the county's rolling stock used in the refuse disposal operation for $1 million. In addition, the firm proposes to lease the county's two transfer stations and landfill from the county for a monthly payment of 5 percent of the gate revenues.

Industrial Waste Services proposes to pay Seminole County $2.1 million at the rate of $35,000 per month to buy all equipment, supplies, rolling stock and stationary equipment at the transfer stations and landfill. In addition, the firm is offering to lease the transfer stations and the landfill for 5 percent of all gross collected revenues.

Browning-Ferris Industries proposes to aid the county in selling all its equipment for $1.25 million. The firm proposes that the counties transfer station sites be closed and the land either sold or used for "convenience" stations.

The committee headed by Public Works Director Larry Sellers is scheduled to report its findings to the board at the 2:30 p.m. meeting.

Sellers said the committee considered all three proposals and found all three firms to be "professional with substantial experience in Florida and in other parts of the country." In addition one of the companies was in the garbage and trash disposal business in Europe.

"Our charge was to rank the three proposals so the county commissioners could choose to negotiate with one or more of the companies. Or, the board may determine there is no merit to sale or lease of the operation," Sellers said. "The commissioners will have to make that decision."

The bad news about the proposals is that all three firms bid for the county business based on the proposition that the county would clean up its landfill operation at Osceola.

The county has been told that it could cost as much as $500,000 to clean up the landfill to the state Department of Environmental Regulation's satisfaction.

The DER has told the county that garbage and trash at the former airstrip property must be enclosed in a "giant baggie," as County Commissioner Sandra Glenn describes it. The order was to "cap and cover" the refuse so that water can neither get in nor out.

DER officials said the landfill was polluting ground water on adjacent property.

The commission was also told it would have to siphon off methane gas from the garbage and drill wells to monitor the quality of the drainage water from the tract to be sure the pollution had stopped.

For a time last October the commission considered taking a California firm up on its proposal to mine methane gas, a by-product of rotting garbage. In exchange for royalties ranging from $50,000 to $150,000 per year. The idea was to convert the methane gas to electrical power.

Sellers said, however, the proposal was put on a back burner while the possibilities of leasing or selling the operation to private enterprise is considered.

In December county staff also considered the possibility of building a giant incinerator in cooperation with the county's cities.

County Administrator Ken Hooper estimated at the time that it would cost $37.2 million to build an incinerator capable of burning the 700 tons of garbage and trash generated each day in Seminole. Hooper said the cost of an incinerator would require a 30-year bond issue with annual payments of $4.5 million.

Members of the special committee which studied the lease-sale proposal, in addition to Sellers, are: Craig Batterson of Professional Engineering, consultants; Deputy County Attorney Bob McMillan, Tim Clabaugh of the county's environmental services department, Tony VanDerworp of the county planning department, Fred Blakeley of the county's refuse and disposal department, and Penny Flemming of the office of budget and management.

'Money Should Be Spent To Aid Pregnant Teens, Not Discourage Sexuality'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government should set aside funds to help teenagers with unwanted pregnancies, not advise them on how to avoid sex, a congressman says.

Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, urged a House health subcommittee Thursday to support his bill to provide money where it is "desperately needed" — for services to pregnant teens.

Leland and other liberal members of Congress are opposing reauthorization of the Adolescent Family Life Act of 1981, which expires this year. The controversial program, supported by the administration, prohibited federal funds for abortion services and provided money for pilot projects to discourage teenage sex.

But Leland said the adolescent pregnancy problem in the United States has reached critical proportions and is not going to go away with administration efforts to promote family life and discourage teenage sexuality.

"The United States leads industrialized nations in teenage births," Leland said.

In 1983, 514,000 babies were born to teenagers between the ages of 15 and 19. Nearly 10,000 babies had mothers under the age of 15.

Leland said his legislation "eliminates the current program's goal of deterring adolescent sexual relations, a goal which it is extremely doubtful the administration can achieve or even should be in the business of achieving."

A companion bill, sponsored by Rep. Robert Garcia, D-N.Y., would provide family planning services to teenagers and restore Medicaid funding for abortion.

The 1981 program, a demonstration project, was consid-

Should teenagers have access to birth-control information and devices? Yes, said most of the 1,200 adults taking part in a recent poll. However, there was a lack of agreement over whether parents ought to be told if a child has contraceptives.

But Dr. James Mason, an official with the Public Health Service said the program is important in combatting the epidemic rate of teenage pregnancies.

Created beneficial for its emphasis on family and adoption and was part of an unsuccessful proposal by the administration to notify parents of minors receiving birth control.

Vaccination Can Protect Newborns From Hepatitis

NEW YORK (UPI) — Babies of mothers with hepatitis B infections may become lifetime carriers of the virus if not vaccinated shortly after birth, researchers say.

Infants born to mothers with hepatitis B have a 85 percent to 90 percent chance of being infected themselves, many without ever developing symptoms of the disease, said Dr. Cladd Stevens of the New York Blood Center.

In adults, hepatitis B is a liver disease that can last from a few weeks to a lifetime and range in severity from mild to fatal. Even in asymptomatic infections, such as in young children, it is associated with cirrhosis and liver cancer.

An estimated 200,000 new cases of hepatitis B occur each year and about 800,000 Americans are carriers of the virus.

In the past, newborns of mothers with hepatitis B have been given hepatitis B immune globulin, an antibody serum that protects the baby from the disease but does not stimulate a protective response from the infant's immune system.

Vaccination augments protection provided by antibody injections, reducing the risk of infection to 14 percent from 25 percent, Stevens said.

"The combination gives immediate protection and it allows the babies time to develop their own responses to the vaccine," she said.

Stevens and colleagues in New York and California screened 18,842 pregnant Asian-Americans and identified those positive for the virus.

At the time of the report, published in the latest edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association, 113 babies had received the combination treatment at birth and 16 were carriers of the virus by 18 months of age.

To be protected, infants at risk must be identified before birth and vaccinated within a few days of being born.

One problem is that mothers may not know they carry the virus, Stevens said.

"The current recommendation is that women who fall into high-risk categories for hepatitis B should be tested," she said.

Wymore To Be Closed For 45 Days

Wymore Road will be closed to through traffic between Westmonte Drive and state Road 436 for approximately 45 days, according to C.A. Benedict, District Engineer for the Florida Department of Transportation.

The work is part of the six-laning of SR 436 and the closure of 2,000 feet of the road south of SR 436 is necessary to make intersection improvements and construct drainage facilities.

Benedict said local traffic will be permitted to use Wymore but through traffic will be diverted onto Westmonte around the construction. Police and emergency personnel are being notified of the closure and are being routed along alternate streets.

Wiley N. Jackson Inc., of Roanoke, Va., is the contractor on the six-laning project. The work, which extends from Boston Avenue to Westmonte Drive, is scheduled to be completed in July.

Feds Use Publicity In Drug Fight

If You're Caught Smuggling Drugs, Your Neighbor Will Know

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Customs Service has a new warning for people who smuggle small amounts of drugs into the United States for personal use: If you are caught, your name will be publicized.

Customs officials said the announcement Thursday was unrelated to an exhortation a day earlier by Attorney General Edwin Meese that occasional users of drugs "are supporting those who deal in terror, torture and death."

An official of the National Organization for Marijuana Laws said Thursday Meese's declaration and the new stance by the Customs Service are signs of desperation prompted by increasing drug importation.

Customs Commissioner William Von Raab said in a statement that those caught smuggling small amounts of illegal drugs have not always been arrested and prosecuted in the past.

"Some people who smuggle small amounts of drugs have been previously allowed to walk away with just a fine and no one would ever know about it," Von Raab said.

"Now these people will not only pay the fine but they will also have the word of their crime made available to the press."

Customs spokesman Dennis Murphy said personal-use amounts could range from 1 ounce to 6 ounces of marijuana and about a half gram of cocaine "depending on case loads" of courts in the areas where the drugs are discovered. He said the fine for smuggling an ounce of marijuana into the United States is about $75.

Beginning later this month, Customs will make available weekly each individual's name, address, occupation and the type and quantity of drugs being smuggled.

Murphy said newspapers were already requesting the information.

Kevin Zeese, national director of NORML, said the new policy is "one more piece of evidence that law enforcement is getting desperate."

"The biggest assistance to marijuana and cocaine smugglers is illegality," Zeese said. Prohibition caused the same kind of violent underworld crime that is now seen with drugs and the solution is to decriminalize marijuana, he said.

In a speech Wednesday to the Washington Press Club, the attorney general called drug use part of a "seamless cloth that covers the underworld."

"People have to learn there is no such thing as a harmless recreational drug, but it is a part of this greater evil we are fighting," he said.

The entire list of names will be made available each week by the Customs Service office in Washington, and a partial list by each Customs regional office in Los Angeles, Houston, New Orleans, Miami, New York, Boston and Chicago.

Fond Farewell

Sanford City Manager Warren "Pete" Knowles says goodbye to Doris Harrison after her last Planning and Zoning Commission meeting Thursday. Ms. Harrison has been clerk of the commission since June. Before that she worked in the city's building department for 11 years. She will be leaving Sanford to manage an apartment complex in Daytona Beach. Cliff Miller, acting chairman of the commission said Ms. Harrison will be "sorely missed."

Loaded In The Locomotive

Board Seeks To Throttle Drunken Engineers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top federal safety official says two freight train accidents that killed seven people last year might have been prevented if the government had rules banning alcohol and drug use by railroad crews.

Jim Burnett, National Transportation Safety Board chief, said it is "truly incredible" there is no federal regulation that prohibits a locomotive engineer from operating a passenger or freight train after using illegal drugs or alcohol to excess.

"In fact, as far as federal rules are concerned, that engineer can consume a bottle of whiskey while at the controls," Burnett said.

He said the safety panel, which has only an advisory and investigative role, recommended more than 10 years ago such regulations be adopted, similar to those required for airline pilots. But, he said, the Federal Railroad Administration has been stalling on the issue.

"And while we wait, the fact is that railroad accidents involving drugs or alcohol have continued," he said. Burnett said at a board hearing Thursday the railroad administration should hand down "immediately a specific regulation with appropriate penalties prohibiting the use of alcohol and drugs by employees for a specified period before reporting for duty and while on duty."

The hearing was called to investigate two separate accidents on the Burlington Northern Railroad in April 1984. The first, in Wiggins, Colo., killed five crew members and injured two others. The second, near Newcastle, Wyo., killed two crew members and in two others.

The board concluded Thursday the probable cause of the Wiggins accident was that the engineer and other locomotive crew members fell asleep and missed the signal lights. The board said the men had been drinking.

In the Newcastle accident, the board also found the crew was asleep or in the case of the engineer, impaired by the use of marijuana.

"Among the reasons that the two accidents are being considered at the same time is that the investigations found one of the common issues was the use of alcohol and illicit drugs by train crew members," Burnett said.

A spokeswoman for the railroad administration said the agency is working on final alcohol and drug rules that should be handed down in the near future.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Spring snow and cold rain dampened spirits from the northern Plains to the Missouri Valley, and blustery winds triggered avalanches in Colorado, hindering searches of a missing plane. Thunderstorms drenched southern Oklahoma and northern Texas early today, producing golfball-size hail along Oklahoma's southwestern border. A tornado touched down at Devol, Okla., overnight, but no damage was reported. Three small tornadoes were spotted Friday just south of Hollis, Okla. Rain showers, mixed with snow in northern areas, stretched from the Rocky mountains to the Atlantic coast. Sleet and freezing rain advisories were posted over the higher elevations of central and southern Pennsylvania. Heavy snow and gusty winds set off avalanches in the Loveland Pass area of Colorado and in the northeastern part of the state. Warnings also were issued to cattlemen in South Dakota for falling temperatures and rain changing to snow. Travelers' advisories for snow and blowing snow were issued for the Cascade and Olympic mountain ranges of Washington and gale force winds lashed the Washington coast. While temperatures were chilly across northern New England, with highs predicted in the 30s, moderate temperatures in the 60s and 70s were expected from the southern Atlantic coast across the lower Mississippi valley. Southern Florida continued to enjoy 80-degree weather.

AREA FORECAST: Saturday night fair with little temperature change. Lows mid to upper 50s. Light wind. Sunday partly cloudy with 20 percent chance of showers. High mid to upper 70s. Knowles is scheduled to retire on April 30 after working for the city for 32 years. 31 of those years as city manager. Cleveland said the award was in recognition of Knowles' outstanding leadership and distinguished service to the community.

When Knowles reached the podium, Cleveland told him, "You received this award the old-fashioned way. You earned it." Knowles said the award caught him by surprise and that he considered it an extreme honor. "I humbly appreciate it," he said. "Some of us just helped guide the ship." Howard Hodges, out-going chairman of the chamber's board of directors, addressed Moore: "You led the city with dignity. You represented us in a good way. You threw in a lot of good common sense in your decisions." Moore told the more than 350 persons at the annual banquet that it was a great honor being mayor of a small community and a humbling experience. "The most important thing was getting to know and having the privilege of serving with those people who make you look like a good or a bad mayor," he said. Hodges presented Knowles, Moore and their wives with year-long passes to EPCOT and Disney World. Prior to Cleveland's announcement of the '85 Topper winner, he invited to the front of the civic center others in the audience who had been similarly honored in years past. Persons who have won the award over the years in addition to Cleveland are: Moore, Walter Gielow, W. Garnett White, Robert Daehn, W. Scott Burns, John Y. Mercer, George Touhy, Thomas McDonald, Ned and Martha Yancey and Dr. Earl S. Weldon. Three others, now deceased, include Kridler, past chamber manager for whom the award is named, Harold H. Kastner and Dr. George Stark.

It's name is TLC Custom Body Shop and Garage and "TLC" is what owner Richard Hollands and his staff give to vehicles that come into the shop. Richard loves cars. He's worked for 19 years in painting, body work and mechanical repairs and he's not afraid to take on tough jobs. "We specialize in rust work and fabricating our own parts," he said. The shop, located at 3416 1/2 E. Orlando Ave., Sanford, is busy with work progressing on several cars at the same time. And what cars they are vintage Mustangs, GTOs, '68 Falcon convertibles and a 1978 Eldorado. Some of them have been towed in as empty hulks, but they will leave as beautifully restored cars. Richard also has a unique call back system. He wants customers to bring their vehicles in every six months for a check-up. If problems arise or materials don't hold up as they should, he'll make things right. That's all part of the high quality service Hollands delivers. "No job is to big or too small," he said. ## IN BRIEF

Bombing Suspects To Remain In Jail Until April Trial

PENSACOLA (UPI) — Two religious youths accused of last year's bombing of four abortion clinics were told by a federal judge that he was "not convinced" they had become less dangerous and must remain behind bars until their April 15 trial.

U.S. District Judge Roger Vinson, after hearing testimony from three witnesses at an hour-long hearing Friday, said he understood the "humanitarian" grounds for releasing Matthew Goldsby and James Simmons, but said the defense failed to show it would be safe to release them.

of business education is teaching social studies. At Ovideo High School, a teacher certified in music is instructing students in an agriculture class and an instructor who majored in English and specific learning disabilities is an art teacher.

Mrs. Neiswender said most of the out-of-field educators have minors in the areas they teach or are very close to getting certified in that subject matter.

Nevertheless, the state requires a report of teachers working outside of their area of certification, she said.

In the Orange County schools this year, a total of 121 of the district's 2,500 teachers, or 2.2 percent, are instructing out-of-field. In Volusia County, the number of teachers working outside their field of certification this year is 75, or 3.4 percent of the district's 2,400 teachers.

Even though Seminole County has a greater number of out-of-field teachers than either Volusia or Orange counties, Mrs. Neiswender said other county school districts in the state, such as Hillsborough and Duval, are having trouble just finding teachers.

The state and the Seminole County school board have adopted regulations that supervise the use of teachers working outside their field of expertise.

"Out-of-field teachers are required to take a minimum of six semester hours of courses" each year that will help them become certified in the area that they teach, Mrs. Neiswender said. The state requirements cover all out-of-field teachers, but she said the requirements are more rigidly enforced for vocational and exceptional education instructors.

Seminole, in July 1982, implemented a three-year rule, prohibiting the district's instructors from teaching out of field for more than three years without school board approval. Mrs. Neiswender said that reduces the number of out-of-field teachers.

But the numbers have still gone up. In the 1982-83 school year, 81 of the county's 2,268 teachers, or 3.6 percent, were out-of-field. In 1983-84, it was 4 percent. And, there is the .1 jump predicted for 1985-86.

The task of finding out whether a teacher will be classified as out-of-field is a job unto itself, Mrs. Neiswender said. Workers in the district's personnel department must go though files on all of Seminole County's 2,500 teachers by hand. They must then check what teachers are certified to teach and the classes they will be teaching in the coming year.

Finally, the district must check the Florida Course Codes Directory to find out what certifications are required by the state for a teacher in each class.

Once the teachers' personnel files are put in a computer, she said, it will save her department a great deal of work and the department should be able to make its out-of-field teacher report to the school board in the fall instead of the spring.

Mrs. Neiswender said children are better off having an out-of-field teacher than no teacher at all. Seminole's out-of-field teachers "are the most qualified we can find," she added.

...Teens

care of all the problems. There are so many of them and the average person doesn't see it," Davis said. "It tears you apart to see some of these kids. They just don't have a chance in life, they really don't."

"This is something better than what we've got. It's not the total answer, but if we find a place for six children, it may work, it may not. But at least this is an opportunity to give one or two a chance," he said.

Ms. Gross said there are no local foster homes available for teenagers.

"We don't have appropriate places for them. We struggle just to find a bed. It's not that we have a choice of what would be appropriate for that child, but where do we have a bed where we can put that child. When it doesn't work, sometimes the children run away and can be found in contempt of court," she said.

A lot of teens don't want to be adopted. They just want a secure place to grow up.

"When kids get into the system we strip them of their identities. They have no possessions," Ms. Gross said. "They're removed from their family. We put them into someone else's home and that's not their home."

"Foster families are wonderful, but for teenagers it's more difficult for them to adapt to someone else's home and we just don't have foster parents who want that responsibility," she said.

The first two CHARLEE homes in the area, with a start up cost of $80,000 each, have strong backing from the Winter Park-based Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida. Individual builders have pledged $40,000 for the projects and will build the first two houses at cost, making each a weekend project, Ms. Gross said.

The home builders also have a fundraising golf tournament in the works for October at Heathrow in Lake Mary. The goal is to raise $100,000 from that event.

The money will go to cover construction cost, costs of furnishing the homes and to fund the first three months of operating the two homes. Sun Bank has also backed the project with a donation of $10,000 and a pledge of $15,000 more, she said.

But Davis said lots for the homes must be found and the group would welcome the donation of suitable residential sites for the large homes, which will have five or six bedrooms. The group has to meet a state timetable to complete the homes in order to qualify for state funds, he said.

Once the homes are established, Florida will pick up the approximate $50 per-day, per-child operating cost, Ms. Gross said.

"The concept is these are pretty normal kids from pretty abnormal environments, so if we can provide a relative normal environment for them we're going to reduce the number of school failures and we're going to reduce the further systemization of the children," she said.

The hope is they will "become regular kids in a regular neighborhood, maybe riding their bikes to school," Ms. Gross said.

The waters haven't been tested to determine if the group will be welcomed into any specific neighborhood. "That bridge hasn't been crossed yet," Davis said. "But they should be in residential setting."

"The most important thing is we want the kids to be wanted in the neighborhood," Ms. Gross said. "We don't want them to have to face resistance. These kids don't belong anywhere and it's real important that they belong in a neighborhood. I bet they're more supervised than the average kid." The youngsters, a mix of six boys and girls, ages 12 to 18, will live in each house with carefully selected and trained house parents, she added.

"The first year will be rough as they stabilize," she said, but the hope is that the youngsters will come to feel that the home is truly their home.

"This is so simple and it makes so much sense," she said.

The youngsters will also benefit from the services of a full-time education counselor who will oversee their school work and will act as a link between the teens and the school system to help insure they get the most out of their educational opportunities, she said.

The youngsters will be free to have a normal, supervised social life, Ms. Gross said. She doesn't envy the houseparents, especially with their duty of dealing with the sexuality of the teens, she said.

The goal is to create a loving-homey atmosphere, Ms. Gross said, but Davis said, "I'll tell you, some of these kids are hard to love. You see some of them, they're so obnoxious. But they need someone. Young people give up."

"Something has to be done by the community. The citizens can't close their eyes and ignore it. It's not fair to these children."

"We have an obligation to these children to save as many as we possibly can. This program appears to be a step in the right direction. This will give some the type of environment where they can hopefully grow into useful citizens."

"It's a small step and an expensive proposition, but you know it's expensive to put people in prison, too, and to keep them on welfare. This program is just going to touch a small number of people."

"We really aren't doing as much as we should," he added.

Lady Hawks' Tennis Success Is Family Affair

John Nelson
Herald Sports Writer

With less a week before the Five Star Conference Tennis Tournament, the Lake Howell girls' team has yet to lose its first contest.

This year's record is the girls' opportunity for a second consecutive undefeated season, but last year, the girls were upset by Lake Mary in the district tournament, denying them a spot in the state championship.

Nevertheless, they have rebounded back from their disappointment, and now look not only to repeat the perfect season, but go one step further. "I don't want to blow it," said coach Mike Hargis.

However, it's not the record that makes this team such an unusual combination. It is the relationships between them. It's more of a family than a team, with a set of twins on one side, sisters on the another, while the other two share the number five position.

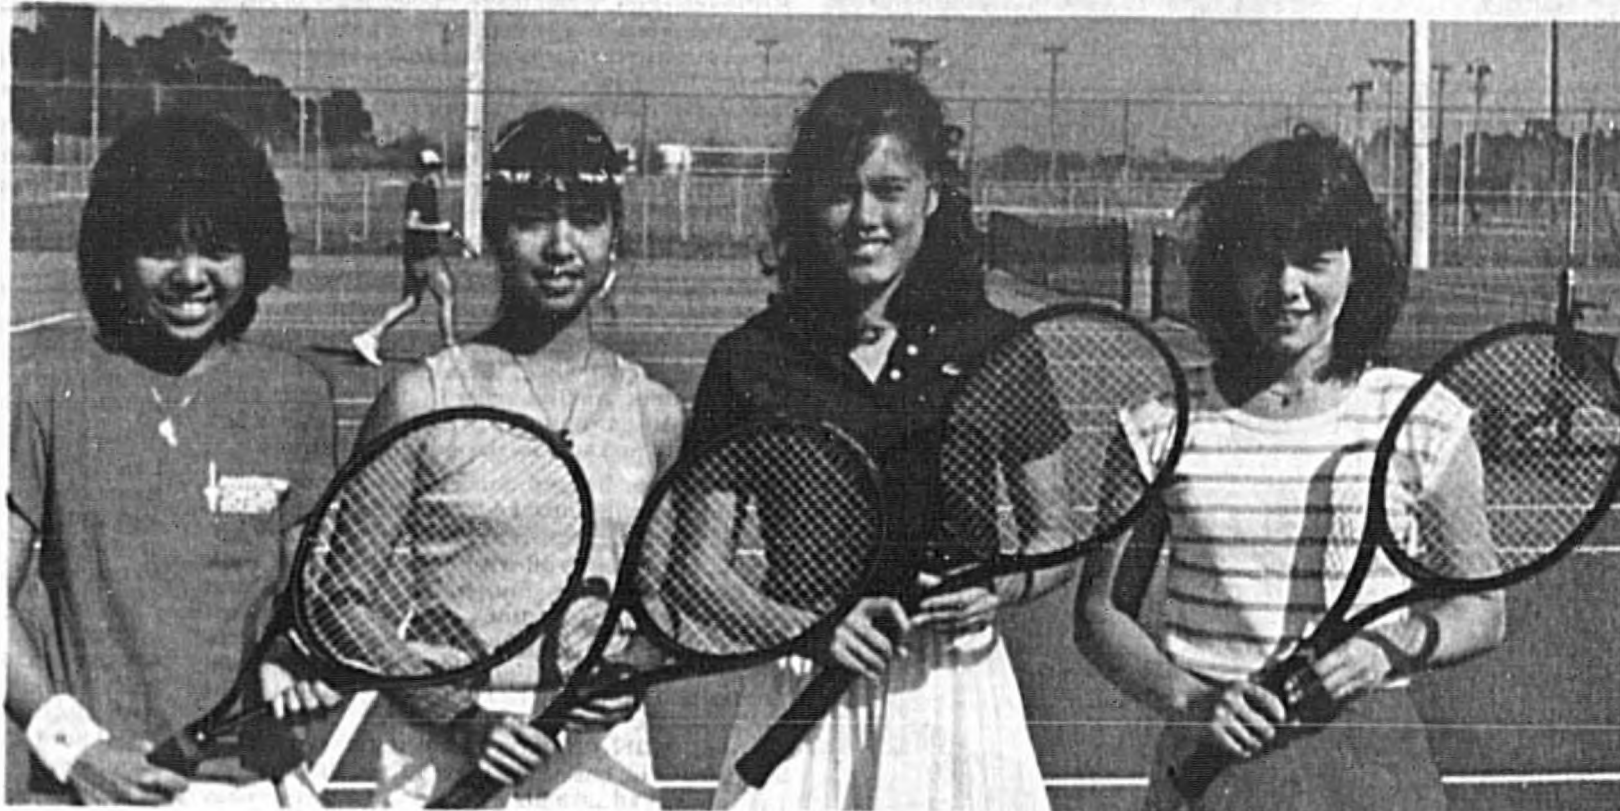

Of the six players on the team, four are unbeaten this season: seniors Catherine Enriquez, Patricia Enriquez, junior Ederlita Dulce and freshman Emmy-lou Dulce. The other two, sophomore Mindy Gardberg and freshman Bonnie Oliver, both have winning seasons.

Catherine started playing tennis along with her twin, Patricia, a year before she entered high school. Since her freshman year, when Catherine assumed the top position on the team. She has played there ever since.

It seems a girl of her build wouldn't hit a ball hard, but looks are deceiving. The slim and tall senior bangs away at her opponents with incredible accuracy and consistency to put one more notch on her racket handle.

"Basically it's a baseline game and I'm aggressive sometimes," said Catherine.

Most of Catherine's matches have been somewhat easy for her, but one match in particular early this season, gave her a scare. Her arch rival since her freshman year, Lyman's Kim Faulkner, went the limit but lost in the tie-breaker, 5-4.

Throughout the years, Faulkner has been the toughest competition for Catherine; they have split most of their matches. The last time Faulkner defeated Catherine was in the finals of the district tournament last year.

"My position is going to be hard this year," said Catherine. "Everybody is really psyched for conference. I try to be well prepared for it."

The contrast between Patricia and Catherine in build, Trish is shorter and more muscular, makes her seem to be the better of the two, but Catherine has held off her twin to hold her position.

Patricia has played second to her eight-minute older sister through high school, which bothered her "At first," said Trish, "But now I'm used to playing two, I guess." For Trish, her domination has lasted for two straight undefeated years, including the conference and district championships last year.

"People think I'm weird because I say I'm playing bad, but I win," said Trish. "When I play people that are really good, it really helps my game."

The two learned their baseline banging game from their father, and "Mom has been an inspiration," said Catherine, which is similar to the Dulce sisters who were also trained by their father.

There's no difference between the sisters in the styles and the backgrounds. The Dulces were taught at some of the top tennis academys in New York City. They also gained experience from the Dulce family who are all tournament players, which have resulted in a living room full of trophies.

The older of the two Dulces by one year is Ederlita who plays the third position for her second year. She, too, is undefeated for two years, winning both conference and district last year. Ederlita hasn't had too many challenges, as she has beaten all of her opposition easily throughout the high school.

For the first year team member, Emmy-lou, her winnings haven't been as complete as her sisters, but she has still come out with an undefeated record. Her closest match this season came from Bernadette Peters from Lake Mary (8-5).

Our dad is always the one who pushes us," said Ederlita. "We were taught to hit hard, and when we have a chance we try to make a winner."

The two play the same style with an unusual two-fisted forehand and backhand, which seems to add strength to their small frames. Combined with the accuracy and the experience from tournaments in their native New York City, they dominate this area.

"We thought 'Ohmigod, Florida,'" said Emmy-lou. "But it wasn't as tough as we thought it would be." Ederlita agreed with her sister. "If we were fresh from New York, we would have been tougher."

To complement the team, Gardberg and Oliver share the number five position. Gardberg was the conference winner last year at the same position, even though she had just picked up a racket five months before the tournament.

Oliver, started tennis a few months ago but still challenges Gardberg for the position. According to Hargis, both players have great potential and are improving tremendously.

Strangely, the doubles teams aren't made up of the Enriquezes and the Dulces, but a mix of the sisters. The split was decided by Hargis to create a stronger duo, and to stop the sibling on-court arguments.

"It's not so much they were fighting," said Hargis. "They weren't supporting each other as much as they should."

The sisters, however, had a different version. "The reason we fight is because we're sisters," said Catherine. "That's what sisters are supposed to do. We get mad at each other when we make stupid mistakes."

Nevertheless, the result was Catherine and Emmy-lou combination at the number one position, and Trish and Ederlita in the number two spot. Both teams are enjoying a successful season going into the tourney.

"If our number one doubles is working as well as our singles," said Catherine. "We should do well."

All the girls and Hargis are optimistic about the tournaments, but they were in the same situation last year. "We're going to have to play excellent games and not get sloppy," said Hargis. "I feel the two favorite teams are Seabreeze and Lake Howell, with Lake Mary ready to take any upset possibilities. Where they are placed in the draw is a big factor."

The Five Star Conference seeding meeting will take place in DeLand on Monday. The conference tournament is scheduled for next Friday and Saturday at Red Bug Lake Park in Casselberry.

Mona Makes It 2 Out Of 3 For MVP

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

When talking about girls basketball in Seminole County the past three years, more often than not the first name to come to mind was Mona Benton. The 1984-85 season marked the third consecutive year the standout guard for Sanford's Lady Seminoles has made the Evening Herald's All-County First Team and, for the second time in three years, she was named the county's Player of the Year.

Benton received 120 of a possible 120 votes in the balloting for the All-County team which was chosen by the six county coaches, Herald Sports Writer Chris Fister and Sports Editor Sam Cook.

As a sophomore, Benton led the county in scoring and was the player of the year. As a junior, her scoring average dropped while her assists average went up with the emergence of Deidre Hillery as the team's leading scorer. This season, the crafty senior led the county in scoring and steals and ranked high in assists and rebounds as Seminole won its third Five Star Conference title in four years.

Her unanimous selection confirmed her stellar all-around year. Benton, who hasn't made a decision on where she will play college ball, was selected as the Burger King Player of the Year Wednesday. Benton said she will decide on a school by April 1.

Joining Benton on the All-County First Team are Lake Mary guard Kim Averill, Lake Mary forward Aileen Patterson, Lake Brantley forward Michelle Brown and Lake Mary center Courtney Hall. All five of the First Team selections are seniors.

Averill, a four-year starter for the Lady Rams, led the county in assists and was one of the best outside shooters in the area. Averill was also the top free throw shooter in the county and she sealed many a win for the Lady Rams with her cool shooting from the line. The senior point guard helped Lake Mary upset Seminole for the 4A-9 District Championship. In her four years at Lake Mary, the Lady Rams won three district titles and were runnerup once. She has started every game in the school's history.

Patterson, an underrated player by many, proved herself as one of the top forwards in the county time and time again this past season. Her strong play inside was vital to Lake Mary's quest for the district title as was her hard work on defense.

Brown was not the quickest or biggest forward around, but she outshined many of her faster, taller opponents with her never-ending desire and hustle. If there was a loose ball, you could be sure Brown would be in the area. For the second year in a row, Brown was among the county leaders in scoring, rebounding, assists and steals.

For three years at Lake Mary High, Hall played in the shadows of the Glass Towers, 6-2 twins Laura and Peggy. Hall took over the center spot for the Rams in 1984-85 and was one of the most consistent performers in the county. Hall usually saved her best efforts for the big games, including the district tournament and the regional game, where Lake Mary lost a heartbreaker to Orlando Evans. Hall edged out Lake Brantley's Kirsten Dellinger by one vote (42-41) for first team center.

The All-County Second Team consisted of Lake Brantley's Sherry "Ice" Asplen and Seminole's Andell "Soul" Smith at the guards, Seminole's Catherine "Kitty" Alexander and Lyman's Kim Forsyth at the forwards and Brantley's Dellinger at center.

Asplen, a junior point guard, was at her best in the pressure situations. She made the shot at the buzzer that beat then top-ranked DeLand and made the key free throws down the stretch in an upset of Seminole.

Joe B. ...Gone

DENVER (UPI) — Saying he wanted to see how "other people live without the pressure," Kentucky coach Joe B. Hall resigned Friday after the Wildcats season-ending loss to St. John's in an NCAA Tournament West Regional semifinal.

Hall served 13 years at the Kentucky helm, compiling a 297-100 record. He succeeded the legendary Adolph Rupp following the 1971-72 season.

The Cynthia, Ky. native read a brief statement on his post-game show from Denver, right after his Wildcats were eliminated by St. John's 80-70.

"This season has been a very rewarding one in that the players exceeded what had been expected of them. It's been exciting to watch this team develop," Hall said.

Kentucky lost four starters, including NBA first-round draft choices Melvin Turpin and Sam Bowie, from last year's team, but managed to compile an 18-13 record. There was criticism over the Wildcats making the NCAA Tournament field with a 16-12 record, but they quickly silenced it with two victories.

"It's a little bit ironic that (my retirement) happened here in Denver where I began coaching at Regis College," Hall said.

Hall played under Rupp at Kentucky for two years before transferring to the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. He started his coaching career at Shepherdsville High School, then moved on to Regis for five years and Central Missouri for a season.

Hawks' 10-Run 1st Submerges 'Noles

By Rob Laria Special to the Herald

It was simply one of those innings for youthful Seminole High, when inexperience leads to costly mistakes, resulting in defeats. For Lake Howell, it was an upturn in a season-long roller coaster ride.

The Silverhawks used five first-inning hits, plus four walks and an error to score 10 runs en route to a 17-5 thrashing of Seminole Friday afternoon at Lake Howell in Five Star Conference baseball.

Lake Howell's Kevin Lienard was the beneficiary of the outburst, going all the way. Seminole's talented James Hersey suffered through a horrible outing, recording just one out before leaving to take the loss.

The Silver Hawks, now 9-10, host Mainland Monday afternoon. Ace Jorge DelMonte will get the start. Meanwhile, Seminole will hope to improve upon its 6-11 record when it visits Lake Brantley Monday night.

Both teams banged out 11 hits Friday, but it was the opening mistake-filled frame that spelled the difference. Lake Howell catalyst John Canfield started things off with an infield hit.

Seminole Coach Mike Ferrell replaced Hersey with Tom Wilks, who walked Bobby Miller and yielded a hit to Jimmy Daniel, scoring Roberts. Miller scored when the relay was misplayed.

Lake Howell added a run in the third on more Seminole mistakes, making it 11-2. In the next inning, Seminole came back with two of its own, utilizing two hits and two errors to cut the margin.

Baseball

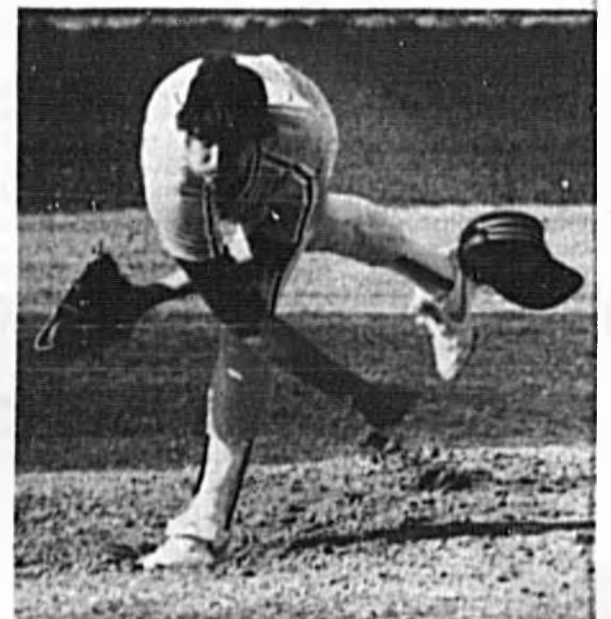

'They have a good hitting team and when we made a few mistakes, they relaxed. Before I knew it, I looked up and it was 10-0. It was a nightmare.'

say it was a good ballgame for us," he stated. "They helped us. Their pitcher (Hersey) was kind of off, and we got some breaks. That was the difference."

Seminole plated another in the sixth before Lake Howell added insult to injury by scoring four more on two long home runs by Taubensee and Miller. For Taubensee it was the culmination of a four-hit game and the continuation of a streak in which he's gotten a hit in 12 of his last 15 at-bats.

"I've been hitting the ball good," said the soft-spoken junior, who also handled Lienard well from behind the plate. "The coaches helped me with my stance earlier this year, opening it up a little more, and it's helped. I'm on a streak right now, and I felt good today. So did the team. We got our acts together today."

Kevin Lienard may be losing his hat but he didn't lose anything else Friday. The 6-5 right-hander had an easy time with a 17-5 victory over Seminole.

Umps Pull Shades On Oviedo's Rally

By Chris Flister Herald Sports Writer

OVIEDO — Here's a new way to kill a rally — call the game.

Just when Oviedo's Lions had worked their way back within one run of Bishop Moore's Hornets Friday, the umpires decided there wasn't enough daylight left for one more inning of play.

The Lions were deprived of their final at bat and another shot at already shaken Bishop Moore pitcher Jeff Rinaldi as the Hornets, an honorable mention choice in the most recent state (3A) poll, came away with a 7-6, six-inning victory in Orange Belt Conference action at Oviedo High.

"That really smells," an irate Oviedo coach Howard Mable said of the umpires' decision. "The kids worked hard to get back in the game only to have it taken out of their hands."

The Lions fell to 4-13 overall and 1-5 in the OBC with the loss while Bishop Moore improved to 10-3 and 4-1.

According to Mable, the umpires' reasoning for calling the game was that there was not enough daylight left to record six more outs. Actually, the time it took the umpires to explain it to Mable would have been good enough for two outs while the time it took the umpires to walk back to their cars was good enough for at least four more.

For Oviedo, it was a tough loss to absorb. The Lions had come back from a 7-3 deficit with three runs in the bottom of the sixth. Craig Duncan had come on in relief for Oviedo and had a lot left in him while Rinaldi was no doubt tiring.

The decision to stop the game was even harder for Mable and his team to swallow considering the game was started late due to Bishop Moore's tardiness.

"Bishop Moore showed up late but the umpires still allowed them to warm up," Mable said. "We were supposed to start at 4 but didn't get going until 4:30."

by Oviedo southpaw starter Kevin Kewley. Louis Tomeo then drew a walk but he was cut down stealing by catcher Mark Hofmann.

Bishop Moore ran their way out of a threat again in the second frame. Rinaldi walked to leadoff but he strayed too far off first and was picked off by Hofmann. Brian Penrose followed with a walk but he was picked off first by Kewley.

The Hornets took advantage of a pair of Oviedo errors to take a 3-0 lead in the third. With one out, Steve Miceli drew a walk and Ray Montero followed with a bunt single. Poindexter then lined a single to left and both Miceli and Montero scored when the ball scooped underneath Lester Cabrera's glove in right field. Poindexter, who took third in the play, scored when Mike Passaglia reached on an error by third baseman Tim Watson.

Oviedo came back with a run in the bottom of the third to make it 3-1. With one out, Eric Shogren singled up the middle. Rinaldi then had Shogren picked off, but was called for a balk sending Shogren to second.

The Lions bounced back with a pair of runs in the bottom of the fourth. With one out, Tony Bellflower smacked a line shot right at the center fielder, who misjudged it and it rolled to the fence for a triple. Bellflower scored on Jim Barrett's infield single. Watson bloomed a single to right to put runners on first and second and Barrett scored when the center fielder misjudged Hofmann's line drive.

Bishop Moore made it 7-3 with two runs in the top of the fifth. Poindexter led off with a single but was caught stealing by Hofmann for the first out. Tomeo followed with a walk and Pasasilla singled. An error on the play sent Tomeo to third and he scored on another Oviedo error. Pasasilla later scored on Penrose's single to left.

Duncan pitched out of a jam in the top of the sixth and Oviedo came back fighting in the bottom of the inning.

With one out, Barrett singled to left. Watson drew a walk and Hofmann singled to right to score Barrett and cut the Hornets' lead to 7-4. Shogren followed with a single to left center to drive in Watson, making it 7-5.

Bradley's sacrifice bunt moved the runners to second and third and Hofmann scored on Mark Merchant's check swing infield single as Oviedo cut the lead to 7-6. John Lowrie then grounded out to short for the third out.

The sixth-inning rally fired up the Lions and they were ready to do the same in the bottom of the seventh, but they never got the chance.

"We made some early errors and got behind but the kids worked hard to get back in the game," Mable said. "We've got some gutsy kids. It just shouldn't have ended this way. I've never been screwed like that before."

Due to a "gag rule" of the association, the umpires and officials are not allowed to comment on their decisions.

The Lions return to action Saturday afternoon at 1 when they host Father Lopez.

Reagan Recalls Kampelman To Lobby For MX Missiles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, pressing Congress hard to vote for the MX missile, has summoned Max Kampelman, chief U.S. arms negotiator, away from talks with the Soviets to personally lobby wavering House members.

In a brief announcement, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Kampelman, head of the three-member U.S. delegation to the arms talks with the Soviet Union in Geneva, Switzerland, will meet with Reagan Monday morning "to give him a private assessment of the progress of the talks."

Later in the day, "The president and the ambassador will talk to members of the House of Representatives and the Senate on the relationship of the MX program to progress in arms control," the announcement late Friday said.

A spokesman later said Kampelman would also visit Capitol Hill during the day to meet individually or in small groups with House members the administration considers uncommitted on the issue.

Speakes said Kampelman probably would not return to Geneva in time for the regularly scheduled Tuesday sessions of the talks.

Reagan has argued that failure to approve the construction of a second batch of 21 multiple-warhead missiles will undercut the U.S. negotiators at a time when the United States must display "resolve" to the Soviets.

After Senate clearance of the missile program this week, the House takes two votes next week, either of which could kill the missiles, although passage is expected.

At his news conference Thursday night, Reagan said, "Now is the testing time for the House of Representatives. The votes there will answer the question of whether we stand united at Geneva or whether America will face the Soviet Union as a nation divided over the most fundamental questions of national security."

"No request by an American president for a major strategic system deemed vital to national security has ever been denied by an American Congress. It is that tradition of bipartisan unity on national defense that brought the Soviets back to Geneva.

"Unless that tradition is maintained next week in the House, there's little prospect of success at Geneva."

Congress has already approved an initial batch of 21 MX missiles, and the current votes are on a second batch of 21 in fiscal 1985 priced at $1.5 billion. Reagan also is looking for $4 billion for 48 more missiles in fiscal 1986.

A congressional source said it is not unusual for arms negotiators to meet with members of Congress before such a key vote, in some cases telephoning from the site of the talks. He said the plan to bring Kampelman back is not surprising and had been rumored for weeks.

Booster To Dump Communications Satellite

Atlas Rocket Launch 'Flawless'

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The world's most sophisticated commercial communications satellite will be nudged into its final orbit Sunday following a successful launch atop an Atlas Centaur rocket, officials say.

The flawless blastoff at 6:55 p.m. Friday demonstrated the space agency had overcome the trouble that led to the loss of a similar satellite during the last flight of an unmanned Atlas Centaur in June.

The $41 million Intelsat 5A relay station carried into orbit Friday is capable of handling 15,000 telephone calls along with three color television channels and is the most advanced commercial communication station ever built.

"It was just gorgeous," said space agency spokesman George Diller. "The health of the satellite looks good."

The spacecraft was placed in an egg-shaped "transfer orbit" by the two-stage Atlas Centaur. About 7 a.m. Sunday, engineers plan to fire an on-board solid rocket booster to circularize the orbit at an altitude of 22,300 miles.

Objects take 24 hours to circle the globe once in such orbits and thus appear stationary in the sky to allow continuous service.

The satellite is owned by the 109-nation International Telecommunications Satellite Organization, or Intelsat, which paid NASA $61 million for the launch. The satellite and rocket were insured for $102 million.

The new relay station will join 15 other Intelsat satellites currently in orbit carrying two thirds of the world's intercontinental telephone traffic and most of the television programming that is beamed around the globe.

The last Intelsat launched by NASA in June was lost after its Centaur second stage rocket suffered a rupture in its liquid oxygen tank, sending the booster and satellite tumbling out of control in a useless orbit.

That loss coupled with the loss of two shuttle-launched satellites four months earlier jolted aerospace insurance underwriters, who quickly raised their rates to up to three times their original value.

Diamond In The Rough

Newly Licensed Pilot, 75, Puts Sparkle Into Daily Living

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

C.B. "Pete" Schirard, manager of a Geneva hunt club, has been a hunter for most of his life, but he isn't a killer.

A hunting accident a decade ago, when he was mistaken for a turkey and had both of his legs blasted with buckshot and broken, turned him away from killing wild game, but 75-year-old Schirard, who moved to Sanford in 1917, still enjoys the pursuit.

In fact, since recovering from his wounds Schirard, who was a Seminole County school teacher of most every subject but math, including coaching, for 21 years, has made a point of enjoying and living life to the fullest.

"My hobbies," he said, "are music, ceramics, painting china and chasing women. I said chasing, not catching. Catching them is too much work."

In March at age 75 Schirard earned his private pilot's license after about a year of lessons. He now uses his airborne skills to spot game for the 15 members of his hunting club, but they, like he, for the most part shoot game only with a camera, he said.

"It's in my nature to hunt. My father taught me to hunt back in the '20s and I just love it. I love calling the turkey or the deer, seeing it, hiding, slipping around in mask and camouflage. It's an art. But to pick up a gun and shoot, nah. There's a difference between hunting and killing. A big difference.

"Our pleasure, the modern day hunter, is in hunting, not killing. Anytime I put my gun up I put it back down. I don't want to kill that beautiful thing with beautiful feathers or that deer. I get goose bumps talking about it," Schirard said. "I don't like to kill, but I like to hunt."

"Once you lay on the ground at the point of death, I could have died right there (when he was shot by a trespassing hunter), it makes you appreciate life. I can't kill anything. That beautiful deer standing out there, I can't bring it pain, I can't do it," Schirard said with his voice choked with tears.

"It makes you appreciate life. That's why I'm flying. That's why I do my ceramics and china painting. My feeling goes into it," he said.

Although he describes himself as the black sheep of his family, the one willing to do the daring, the unexpected, Schirard shows a sensitive, sentimental side.

C.B. "Pete" Schirard, 75, examines a piece of delicately painted China he created, as well as the ceramics magnolia blossom and colorful Christmas tree featuring a music box in the base, lighted with 385 lamps and trimmed in 14K gold. Schirard also painted the wall pictures and China in the cabinet.

An antique bone and silver mirror, a wedding gift to his mother, lies on a bedroom dresser and nearby is a pencil sketch of the Victorian Palatka home where he was born. And several decades have passed since his only son Bruce skulled around in the tiny brown cowboy boots that have a place of honor on the hearth of Schirard's home, but they're there along with other memories. Schirard's home is filled with ceramic objects and delicately painted china — his creations. And he has more in the works in his home studio.

Having attended the University of Florida on a music scholarship, his love of music is reflected in his collection of antique, European jewelry boxes he has fitted with the mechanics needed to transform them into music boxes.

As a musician of note he favored the sax and clarinet and at one time headed a dance band that played in Seminole County, but now, as a student of the piano Schirard's more likely to sit down and caress a tune out of the ivories or he might pick up his autoharp.

Schirard also finds time to teach Sunday school and to be active in the Upsala Presbyterian Church.

"Once you lay on that ground near death you find time to do what you want to do," he said. "You don't use any excuses. You find time if you want it."

Schirard's brush with death came when he was on his way to his hunting blind and stopped behind a tree to make a quick turkey call to see if he could scare up a bird, he said.

"I was calling. I leaned my gun against the tree. I took two steps and down I went," Schirard said. "The guy heard me calling and came on the posted property. He was hunting deer. He saw my legs moving and he fired. The first thing that moved he fired."

"Down I went. I thought I had shot myself. I thought my gun had fallen and I had shot myself. I said, 'Oh my lord, what am I going to do now? I didn't holler out. I knew I couldn't get back to the car. Both my legs were broken. Buckshot went through both legs. Fourteen buckshot. The ones that hit the bone didn't go through. They mangled the bone. No pain, just burning."

"I was wondering what I was going to do, crawl back? I just waited a minute and the old man came up. He said, 'Where's my turkey?' I said, 'In your turkey."

"I didn't pass out. I was so damned mad to think a grown man would shoot at a motion. I laid him out and said, 'Damn your soul. You go get help. You're too old to carry me out of the woods,'" Schirard said.

The man got help and Schirard made it to the hospital. It took him 2 1/2 years to recover from his wounds and it was a year before he dared to go into the woods again.

"The doctor said either go back or you never will. I made myself go. I sat out in an open field where I could see. I got behind a little bush and called. I had goose bumps. I was sweating. It

What's With The Lump Animal Owner Finds?

"Well, Mr. Smith, has Corky had any problems since your last visit?"

"Not really doctor, except that we noticed this lump on her left side a few weeks ago."

The owner pointed out a small mass about 1 inch in diameter in the area of the dog's chest. The veterinarian palpated (examined) the lump at this point and found that it was soft, pliable and appeared to be located between the skin and muscle layers of the chest.

Now that the veterinarian has learned of the lump's existence the owner could easily get a variety of opinions on what to do next. These opinions on how to handle this growth will differ based on the educational background of the vet, the vet's interest and the familiarity with certain diagnostic techniques.

The general approach to an unknown growth has changed over the years. Many of these lumps and bumps were simply dismissed with the rationalization that it's not worth worrying about until it gets bigger. In certain cases this may not be the best approach especially if the growth turns out to be a malignant tumor.

What follows is a discussion of what causes these lumps and how medically they can be approached, especially for those owners who like to keep informed.

A growth can be caused by many things. When a diagnosis is being sought, before any tests are done, the possible causes are assembled as a list, the differential diagnosis. Then using various tests this list is shortened by eliminating those possibilities which do not fit the test results. This same approach should be taken when dealing with an unknown growth.

The differential diagnosis for a growth includes an abscess (an infection), a granuloma (a granular growth which may be viewed as a solid abscess), a seroma (an area containing serum, the fluid portion of blood), a cyst, a hematoma (an area containing blood) and a tumor (cancer).

The animal's species and age are important considerations especially when considering the possibility of a tumor. In general animals less than a third of the way through their lifespan are less likely to have tumors. To every generality there are individual and breed exceptions.

For dogs the boxer breed comes to mind as a species which has a higher incidence of tumors even when fairly young. In birds the budgerigar (Australian grass parakeet) also gets tumors at a young age, even less than 2 years.

Now that you know that a lump may have many faces and that other variables are involved let's go back to that vet after the lump has been examined. One question that may be asked of the owner is whether the animal has received any injections in the last few months. Some injectable drugs can cause the development of a lump that may persist for 3-10 weeks. If there is no history of injections then the number of possibilities increases.

There are three basic ways to diagnose a growth. The quickest method without sedation or surgery is by aspiration cytology. A small gauge needle on a syringe is inserted into the mass. Suction is applied. If fluid is retrieved its appearance may indicate the presence of an abscess. Small amounts of tissue or fluid can be placed on a slide and smeared into a thin layer. This is stained and examined for the presence of cells which are characteristic of different tissues. While this technique is not 100% diagnostic, it is quick, inexpensive, and can be done in the office. It is an option for those owners who would like an idea now whether they have a serious problem. This technique is only as good as the person who uses it so if someone is not used to interpreting the results it may not be helpful. However slides taken can be sent to a veterinary cytologist (individuals trained in interpreting the cells on the slide) at universities which have veterinary colleges.

A second technique which is more accurate for diagnosis is a tissue biopsy if the mass is solid. This is done with a local anesthetic in some cases. This tissue is sent to a pathologist for evaluation. A third related method involves the removal of a suspected tumor with submission of a portion to a pathologist. The cost of a biopsy may range from $25 to $40 but it is highly recommended when a malignant tumor (a type which tends to get worse or spread) is suspected.

So the ideal approach to the lump on this dog would be to first perform the fine needle aspirate and see what is present. This will, in many cases, help to direct you to the next appropriate step. It may also increase the chance that therapy will be directed at the right cause. If the lump is a result of an injection such as hookworm medication then you can request an oral treatment next time which is just as effective in an animal which is not vomiting. It is also less painful.

The duty of a veterinarian is to give the pet owner the available options for diagnosis as well as treatment and to discuss the pros and cons of each choice. The best way to approach a lump on your pet is to find out what it is, not to put it off till later.

We will discuss tumors at length in a later column.

Concert Association Presents Duo-Pianists

Hodgens and Howard, duo-pianists who recently celebrated the tenth anniversary of their New York recital debut with their first appearance at Carnegie Hall, will appear at Lake Mary High School, at 8 p.m., Wednesday, March 27 under the auspices of Seminole Mutual Concert Association. Dolores Hodgens and Samuel Howard, who are husband and wife, were each born in Alabama and began piano studies at an early age. Upon graduation from college, they went to New York for advanced studies at the Juilliard School. As the recipients of many honors, Howard and Hodgens are included in The International Who's Who in Music and Musicians' Directory. They are currently Artists in Residence at the University of Alabama in Birmingham. Admission to the concert is through membership in SCMA only.

...Schirard

took me a couple of years to get over it. Now I'm back in the woods calling again." Schirard said, but he's not killing.

In the years following the shooting Schirard has pursued a settlement through the civil courts from the man who shot him and although he has won judgments he hasn't collected any cash. The man, he said, either gave away or sold all or his property after suit was filed, but before Schirard got the court order to collect.

That hasn't stopped him from getting on with his life. "I know being at the point of death changed my outlook. I appreciate beauty more. I know beauty when I see it. Proportion, color and beautiful women. It's a beautiful thing and I appreciate it," Schirard said.

He's enjoying his new freedom of flight and said "I was amazed. I can't believe it yet how easy it is to control that plane — with your fingers."

Flying isn't a long held dream. He became interested a few years ago when he thought an ultra-light craft would be ideal to sweep him over fields so he could check pastures and search for game.

After his first crash landing in an ultra-light, on his first flight, when the nose gear crumpled, he decided "To hell with this. If it can't take more licking than that I don't want it." From there he went on to lessons in a Cessna.

Schirard's pastimes, which also have included two trips to Europe, have been varied, but so has his career. In addition to his teaching and coaching duties, he served in the U.S. Army for five years. Schirard has worked as a makeup artist and lecturer on beauty and is a licensed cosmetologist. For seven years he managed a drive-in theater.

New Over 50 Club Forms

Break dancing is "in" and over 40 members of the First Presbyterian church of Sanford witnessed a breathtaking example of this dance craze at an organizational meeting in Fellowship Hall. Performing the dance were Seminole Community College students Antonio Redden and Steven Grey. Steven is representing this area in a state wide break dancing competition.

The highlight of the afternoon was a musical program presented by "Destiny," a Seminole High School choir group. These outstanding students under the direction of Laurel Elmore, choral director at SHS, entertained with varied repertoire including a rock type number, a Barry Manilow song and a medley of George M. Cohen's works. Soft aloe and choreography accompanying the numbers were designed by the students.

The purpose of the meeting was to form an "Over 50" group to meet on a regular basis. Welcoming the group was the Rev. Richard Danielak, who defined the role of the church in providing for the social, emotional and recreational needs of its members. He expressed the hope that that role would be fulfilled by this group.

The format of the meeting remains to be determined. It is projected to include arts and crafts, games of various kinds, possible travel to near by places, entertainment of various kinds and other interests.

It was unanimously agreed to continue the meetings, the next of which will be at 2 p.m. April 11. After this meeting, the first Thursday in the month will be the scheduled date. Members are encouraged to attend these meetings and bring another member with them.

A social hour and refreshments followed the program. Members of the planning committee were Ollie Hunter, chairman, Muriel Stevens, Ruth Warner, Mildred Lind, Kathleen Parnel, Betty Snyder, Peggy Fox, Mabel Pietry, Genevieve Brumley, Elizabeth Wilke and Belle Rumbley. — Kate Nash.

SHS Class of 1948 Honors Mona Walker

The Seminole High School class of 1948 has met frequently since graduation to socialize at festive gatherings.

The social director, public relations expert and "Jacque" of all class trades through the years has been Mona Ruth Mills Walker who is among the 104 class graduates.

According to Betty Tollefsrud, during the past 37 years since graduation, Mona, now Mrs. Richard T. E. Walker, "has maintained extensive records, scrapbooks, correspondence and 'in-touch' communication with every 1948 class member except three whose whereabouts have somehow eluded her tracking abilities."

On March 16, on Mona's birthday, classmates honored her with a birthday party in the cafeteria of the Sanford Middle School, formerly Seminole High School. During the week, Mona received congratulatory birthday messages from classmates throughout the U.S. who could not join the 50 who attended the festivities.

On behalf of the class, John B. Root Jr. of Altamonte Springs presented Mona with an engraved appreciation plaque from the class and Dan Pelham, school principal, was presented a check from the class to purchase an overhead projector for the school library.

The projector will bear the inscription: "Presented by Seminole High School Class 1948 in honor of Classmate Mona Ruth Walker - March 16, 1985."

Following the presentation, Principal Pelham led the honoree, hosts and guests on a tour of their Alma Mater.

The Garden Club of Sanford Inc. ushered in spring with the annual card party, luncheon and fashion show.

According to Mary Elmore, those attended played cards and other games and "also a delicious luncheon was served."

Emy Sokol has a delightful friend, Montique Richard, visiting her from Paris, France. More about the two friends later.

This week Mrs. Charles W. (Tom) Hobson was hostess at her Lake Mary home at a luncheon honoring the French visitor.

A guest commented it was "very elegant" while the guest of honor said the lemon pie for dessert "is the best I ever ate in my whole life."

Mary Anne Roberts returned to Sanford during the spring break from Emerson College, Boston, where she is a sophomore and musical theatre/public relations major.

Mary Anne, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. Vincent (Sheila) Roberts, is a graduate of Mount Dora Christian Home & Bible School, Mount Dora, and is a former company dancer with Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole and the Seminole Community College Dance Company.

Mary Anne has been cast in Emerson's 32nd Annual Spring Musical, "Little Mary Sunshine," a musical comedy reminiscent of operettas like "Rose Marte," and "The Naughty Marietta."

Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole is performing this weekend in the annual spring concert, "The Time of Your Life," at Lake Mary High School, Saturday, March 23 at 8 p.m., and Sunday, March 24, at 3 p.m. Open to the public, tickets are available at the door.

An Easter Fashion Show featuring infants through teenagers will be held in the Children's Department of J.C. Penney's, Sanford Plaza, on Saturday, March 30 at 11:30 a.m. Local children will serve as models.

Favors will be presented to children attending the event which is free and open to the public.

The Sanford Kiwanis Club will honor the women who have received the Roberta Gatchel Woman of the Year award at the annual luncheon Wednesday, during that time, the club will announce the 1985 winner.

Pastels by Sanford Artist Betty Reagan will be exhibited at the G. Sander Fine Art Gallery, 310 Seabreeze Blvd., Daytona Beach, from March 25 to April 20. Also, Betty, a multi-award winning Floridian artist, will be honored at a cocktail reception and private preview of pastels Monday evening.

According to the gallery owner, G. Baker, Betty is very able to capture the joy and sadness in the people she paints. Her colors are very sensitive and well chosen.

The gallery owner, who says she is "very proud of having discovered such a fine Floridian artist," predicts a "great future for Betty Reagan."

Abused Woman Needs More Than Prayer

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 22 years. I've been pregnant 14 times and have nine living children.

I weighed 98 pounds when we were married. My husband likes little women. He often told me that if I ever got as fat as his sister-in-law, he'd divorce me. (she weighs about 300 pounds.)

My first complaint is that this man likes sex. I like it too, but once a night is enough for me. (Not for him.) He does not allow me to use any kind of birth control - says he never has and never will.

I'm a God-fearing woman. I go to church and pray and pray at home, too, but the Lord doesn't hear my prayers. I got so fed up with my man's demands and abusive ways I started to gain weight on purpose so he would divorce me. I'm up to 207 pounds, and I still can't get rid of him.

Now what do I do? He makes good money, but he's as tight as a size 9 shoe on a size 12 foot. Help me.

SICK OF HIM IN MISSOURI

DEAR SICK: You're right, you do not have to put up with this kind of treatment. (No woman does.) You need more than prayer to solve your problem. If your minister can't do something about it, see a lawyer.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My sons, 7 and 5 years old, are asked occasionally to a movie by our next-door neighbor - who has a 6-year-old boy.

I just learned that on one occasion the neighbor took her son to the bathroom, leaving my sons alone in the theater. And another time, she sent my two boys to the bathroom alone while she sat with her son watching the movie.

Our boys are aware that children their age have been molested and some have been kidnapped, so naturally they were frightened, but didn't want to complain.

Abby, please urge parents to question how situations will be handled before sending their children with others.

LEARNING

DEAR LEARNING: You make a very good point - one that many parents would not think of questioning, and they should.

I hope you mentioned this to your neighbor. She needs to be reminded that children should never be left alone in a public place - even for a few minutes.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column was a letter from a hurt grandmother whose grandchildren never acknowledged her gifts. Advice was offered from another reader to "gift" those grandchildren with an unsigned check the next time.

Abby, several years ago you ran a letter from a mother who offered wiser advice regarding the same problem. She said that when her children received a gift, she would not allow them to play with it, eat it, read it, wear it, spend it or bank it until they had written a thank-you letter. She said they would guide the hands of the little ones who were too small to write themselves.

And this is how her children formed a valuable lifelong habit. I am another grandmother who has been hurt many times when gifts I have sent with love were never acknowledged. Sign me

AN ILL WIND...

The Proverbs of John Heywood printed in 1546, is the earliest collection of English colloquial sayings. Here in addition to "an ill wind" we find such bits of wisdom as "I know on which side my bread is buttered" and "this hitteth the nail on the head."

Briefly

Jews For Jesus Presentation On Passover And Last Supper

Steve Silverstein, staff evangelist for Jews for Jesus will explain what the Jewish Passover and Jesus' Last Supper have in common as he presents Christ in Passover at First Assembly of God, 304 W. 27th St., Sanford, at the 8:30 and 10 a.m. services this Sunday.

Ancient and modern customs will be discussed with an emphasis on the aspect of redemption. A table will be set with the traditional Jewish Passover items, including representative foods that are explained, but not eaten.

Members of Jews for Jesus have given this demonstration in more than a thousand churches. It was originally written in 1956 by Moishe Rosen, founder and leader of the group based on writings of former rabbi Leopold Cohn, who came to Christ in 1894.

Easter Drama Scheduled

The Music Ministry of Central Baptist Church, 1311 Oak Ave., Sanford, will present an Easter drama on March 31 and April 1 at 7 p.m. The presentation will feature eight scenes of events during the last week of Christ.

It will include 70 singers and actors and 35 in the behind the scenes crew.

The services are open to the public.

'B.J.' Presents Mini-Concert

Barbara "B.J." Johnson Jenkins will present a mini-concert of Christian music during the evening worship service at First Baptist Church of Oviedo this Sunday at 7 p.m. It is open to the public.

She has appeared as special guest on the Blackwood Brothers television programs, with evangelist E.J. Daniels Christ for the World, and on Christian TV telethons and radio stations.

Joyful Voices Sing 'Hosanna'

Joyful Voices ensemble, under the direction of Helen Meinecke, will present an Easter musical Hosanna on Sunday, March 31 at 8 p.m. at Church of the Annunciation, 1020 Montgomery Road, Altamonte Springs. It will also be presented April 1 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Mary Magdalen, 861 Maitland Ave.

Palm Sunday Celebration

Messiah Lutheran Church, 510 N. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, will celebrate Palm Sunday at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services on March 31. There will be special music by the Senior Choir and Distribution of Palms at both services.

On April 4, a Maundy Thursday service with Holy Communion will be celebrated. On Good Friday, April 5, there will be a Tenebrae service. Both will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Retreat On Sex And Dating

Pinecrest Baptist Church has a joint youth retreat on God's View of Sex and Dating planned for April 1-3 at Deerhaven Campgrounds, DeLand. The cost is $17.

Prospect To Preach

Pinecrest Baptist Church will hear a prospective pastor, Dr. Tommy Jacobs of Haines City, preach at the 11 a.m. service this Sunday. He has his master's degree from Southwestern and a doctorate from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. He is married and the father of three children.

Sing-a-long 'Messiah'

The public is invited to take part in a "Sing-a-long Messiah," which will be held Sunday, March 31, from 8 p.m. until 9:30 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church, 108 E. Church St., Downtown Orlando. Minister of Music Jack Wilson will direct the massed choir accompanied by a symphony orchestra, made up mainly of Florida Symphony musicians.

There is no charge. Scores are available for participants to buy or borrow if they do not have their own. There will also be space for listeners.

Peace Vigil Planned

In observance of Central America Week, the Council of Community Based Organizations of Central Florida will sponsor a candlelight vigil this Sunday from 6-9 p.m. at the Bennett Road Gate of the Orlando Naval Training Center in support of peace and justice in Central America. For more information call 422-3479.

Lichfield Choir To Sing

The Lichfield Cathedral Choir from England will perform April 12 at 8 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church, 142 E. Jackson St., Orlando. The concert is co-sponsored by Cathedral Series and the Central Florida Chapter of the American Guild of Organists and is supported by the Special Projects Pool of the Aris United Fund. The performance is free to the public.

Methodist Men Meet

Charles Brant, the church's music director, will be speaker at the United Methodist Men's breakfast meeting this Sunday at 7:15 a.m. in the fellowship hall of Community United Methodist Church, Casselberry.

Sunset Service

Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith, on right in photo left, and husband, Dr. Robert Smith, lend group a hand to erect cross in Veterans Memorial Park during recent sunset service conducted by Sanford youths. The cross will stay up until after the Easter sunrise service to be held in the park April 7. The mayor is scheduled to play the piano at the service. Seminole Community College student Jerry Walsh, photo on right, emphasizes a point while speaking to the youth. Seminole High School chorus sang for the event.

A 'Kid's World'

New full-time minister of music at First Baptist Church, Sanford, rehearses children, grades 1-5, for the musical, Kid's World. Rehearsals are held Sundays at 5:30 p.m. and on Tuesdays at 3:30 p.m. Children are transported from area elementary schools in the church bus on Tuesday and enjoy an "ice cream bash" afterwards. The musical will be presented at the end of the school year and participation is open to all children in the community.

Sanford's Central Baptist Church Has A Vision

Central Baptist Church, 1311 Oak Ave., Sanford, has a vision of being "the Church in the 20th Century" and part of its five-year plan launched in January includes raising funds for construction of new church facilities on a 17½-acre site on West First Street between the overpass and Interstate-4.

The 1500-plus-member congregation is ahead of schedule in paying off the $220,000 debt for the property purchased two years ago and the pastor, Dr. Freddie Smith hopes to finish paying it off this year.

Morris Jones, vice president of United Telephone Co., is chairman of the master site plan committee which is working with the architect Ed Thomas of Orlando. The first phase of the building plan will include a worship center, family activities building, educational space, offices and nursery.

The church plans for the future on the site a senior citizen retirement complex and an outdoor amphitheater.

The 46-year-old church, which has been worshipping at the Oak Avenue location since 1953, has since acquired adjacent houses and parking lot across the street to allow for Sunday School growth.

"The seven-man Vision committee made recommendations for all phases of the ministry," said Smith. "There is not adequate room to expand in our present location. We want to have an influence and impact on the area for Christ."

Among the other five-year goals are a Sunday School enrollment of 3,000, expanding the four-member staff, training 100 to witness for Christ, involving 200 members in specific mission projects, and mission giving in excess of $250,000.

Music Series

Recital Features James A. Thomas

The fifth program in the music series of the First United Methodist Church, 419 Park Ave., Sanford, will feature organist James A. Thomas in a recital of works by Bach, Handel and other early composers. The program will be presented at 4 p.m., Sunday, March 31 in the church sanctuary.

It is open to the public free of charge and a nursery will be provided.

Director of music and organist at First United Methodist since 1980, he has been organist-choirmaster at the Episcopal Church of St. Elisabeth, Princess of Hungary since 1986.

While in high school, Thomas was awarded an organ scholarship to attend Trinity-Pawling School, Pawling, N.Y. He was organist and assistant glee club director and chapel choir director while there.

He received his bachelor of music degree from Columbia University in New York, a masters degree in music from the American Conservatory in Chicago and a master in education from Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

He has held church positions in Connecticut and Illinois and at the post chapel at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point.

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY MARCH 24, 1985

In the year ahead you may become involved in a promising enterprise. However, take pains to be sure the contacts and legal agreements are tied down properly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today if someone wants to borrow a possession that you prize, have a clear-cut understanding that you expect to get it back in the same condition.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you find yourself in the company of influential people today, it's important that you make a good impression. Don't boast or be pretentious.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be of assistance to others today where and when your help is needed. However, don't let your generosity be taken advantage of by the greedy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You won't be tagged stingy, you'll just be using your common sense if you refuse to make a loan to a pal that you really can't afford.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If a present objective doesn't have values in accord with your highest standards, drop it and concentrate on goals that do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be sure your skills are commensurate to the types of tasks you intend to tackle today. If not, you may start things you'll be unable to complete.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be extremely careful if you are managing a complex situation for another today. Don't take risks or gambles you wouldn't take if it were your own.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may find yourself caught in the middle today when trying to appease two dissident factions. Don't step over the line on either

YOUR BIRTHDAY MARCH 25, 1985

There will be greater stability in your material affairs in the year ahead. Your returns won't flow in at an overwhelming rate but your growth pattern will be consistent.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Measures can be taken today to build your material security. Focus your energies and thoughts on ways to strengthen your present position. Major changes are in store for Aries in the coming year.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Devote as much time as possible today to projects that are important to you personally. Much can be accomplished now in advancing your self-interests.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can be more productive today by working in an atmosphere where you have solitude and others can't break in on your concentration.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You need to be around friends today who share interests similar to yours. Each will inspire the other to have a more positive outlook.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be both patient and persistent today and take things a step at a time. If you don't rush forward blindly,

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Because bridge players have freedom of speech, no one can put a gun to South's head to prevent him from making an opening bid of three spades with only a six-card suit. It may not be good bridge, but stranger things have happened.

North felt that there would be a good play for grand slam if South held the K-Q of spades. (He assumed a seven-card suit.) The leap to five no-trump was the grand slam force, asking South to bid seven with two of the top three honors in spades.

South may not have followed the dictates of good sense with his opening bid, but he did obey his partner's request now. He bid the grand slam.

As usual, the worst bidders make the best declarers, combining skill with a healthy dose of luck. Declarer could see only 11 tricks on top. If clubs divide 4-3, he could establish a fourth club by ruffing one round, but that still comes to only 12 tricks.

South decided to take a very thin chance. He won the ace of spades in dummy and immediately cashed both red aces. Now he ran all his trumps, leaving all the clubs in dummy. On the last trump, poor East had to come down to five cards.

If he throws a club, dummy will be good. What if he throws a red king?

Declarer can now cash the queen of that suit, and East will be squeezed again. For this progressive squeeze to work, one defender had to have the clubs guarded, as well as both red kings. Skill and luck brought home the slam.

'Mask' Is Out, But Bogdanovich Promises To Take Issue To Trial

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Director Peter Bogdanovich, angry over Universal Studios' removal of scenes and music from his movie "Mask," has failed to convince a judge to block release of the film.

Bogdanovich asked Superior Court Judge John Cole to issue a preliminary injunction preventing release of the critically acclaimed film so the filmmaker could reinstate scenes and music removed by the studio.

Cole denied the request Wednesday, ruling that Bogdanovich's contract with Universal was ambiguous and did not specify an absolute right to final musical and theatrical cut of the movie.

Bogdanovich reacted angrily to the decision and said he would take the case to trial.

"I don't believe the judge understood the case at all," he said outside court. "As he correctly said, he is not a movie critic. We will pursue any means to put the correct version of this film before the public."

Bogdanovich filed a multimillion-dollar suit against Universal and producer Martin Starger last month, claiming 10 minutes of Bruce Springsteen music was replaced with songs by Bob Seger, and that several scenes were removed without his permission.

The Seger music was substituted for Springsteen's when Universal and CBS Records could not agree on a percentage of the record company's profits from the videocassette that might be made from "Mask."

Universal lawyers said Bogdanovich's contract gives him certain editing rights, but specifies that in the event of a dispute Universal Pictures President Frank Price would make decisions on what should be cut.

The movie, based on a true story, stars Cher as a biker-mother and Eric Stoltz as her deformed teenage son and his battle to accepted as a normal human being. It was released last week in key cities to high critical praise and was released nationwide Friday in about 800 theaters.

'We Are The World' A Record Record

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "We Are The World," the anthem recorded by 45 of America's leading singers and songwriters to benefit famine-stricken Ethiopia, has become the year's highest debuting single and shows signs of breaking other music industry records, say Billboard Magazine officials.

The song zoomed to No. 21 on Billboard's Hot 100 list after its first week of release March 7 and vaulted to the No. 5 spot in this week's list. It is now second on Billboard's all-time list for debuting singles, behind Michael Jackson's "Thriller."

Tom Noonan, head of charters for Billboard, said more than 3 million copies of "We Are The World" have been shipped to record outlets worldwide.

If the hit reaches the No. 1 spot next week, it will become the first single to conquer No. 1 in just three weeks since The Beatles' "Get Back" in May 1969.

Private Handling Of Government Tasks Saves

Freedoms Foundation Features
 When the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) was planning in 1981 for the next four years of operations, it was recognized that costs might be reduced by having some long-time NOAA activities performed by private firms operating under the watchful eye of NOAA managers.

The decision to try the process called privatization has culminated in savings of $7 million since 1980. One action produced multi-million dollar savings, reducing NOAA's costs by almost one-third the previous expenditure.

The privatization experience at NOAA is now being viewed by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) of the federal government as an excellent example of the dramatic reductions that can be made in government spending through privatization.

The concept is simple: where the government is performing activities that are also provided by firms operating in private business, a study should be conducted to determine if a private company could provide the product or service at less cost. OMB has now directed all government agencies to start capitalizing on this opportunity to cut costs without reducing programs.

This approach works for big as well as small agencies. The Department of Defense (DOD) for many years has successfully contracted activities on a small scale to private enterprise. It is now putting the method into even wider usage.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger has strongly endorsed the program in letters to Congress. In a letter of late 1983, Weinberger said: "Under these procedures, commercial activities that are not needed to be performed in-house are studied to find the most cost-effective method of performance.

"This involves a thorough review of job requirements and the development of a new streamlined in-house organization that then competes with private contractors for the work. In the past four years, these streamlined in-house organizations have been successful in winning about half of the 700 competitions that were conducted. The average savings of in-house and contract winners was about 27 percent of the original cost. Our most recent estimate places these savings at over $300 million annually."

Other civilian agencies have made the competition process pay also. In addition to the recent example of NOAA, which reduced the cost of warehousing and mailing out nautical and aeronautical charts from $2.8

million to $1 million through six studies, the Department of Commerce has saved over $7 million through 13 studies done from 1981 through March 1984, and the Department of the Treasury has reduced costs by over $4.5 million after 32 cost comparison studies.

The President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control, quoting from a General Accounting Office report of several years ago, said in its final recommendations that there are about 11,000 commercial and industrial-type activities now being performed in the government at a cost of about $20 billion per year. The report went on:

"In 1983, OMB estimated that adhering to the policies set forth in Circular A-76 (the OMB document setting rules for making cost comparisons) could save $5 billion annually five years after implementation."

Nursing Home Involvement Improves Care

Q. I am a 65-year-old woman who has just retired after 40 years of government service. My mother, 90, recently had to move into a nursing home and I want to become more involved in assuring that she and others in nursing home are getting proper care and attention. Where do I start?

A. You pose a very important, but too infrequently asked question. Many people in nursing homes never receive visitors. Over half have no living relatives, and friends either live far away or just don't visit.

This is truly a shame. For people forced to live in a nursing home, contact from outside, especially from loved ones, is very important. Visitors with smiling faces can add so much to a nursing home resident's day.

There are many ways you can become more involved in your mother's nursing home and other homes in your community.

Many nursing homes have community councils. These groups, made up of relatives and friends of individuals living in the nursing home and concerned others, work with the facility administration, resident council and other groups from the community to enhance the quality of care and life for the nursing-home resident.

Community councils have arranged regular visits to nursing homes by area school children, provided transportation to and from community activities and religious services, and coordinated activities of local civic and religious groups assisting nursing-home residents.

You may also increase your involvement with area nursing homes through your state's long-term-care ombudsman program. Every state is now required to have such a program, which is primarily responsible for resolving consumer complaints relating to nursing homes and board-and-care facilities.

In addition, many ombudsman programs work to increase community involvement in area nursing homes and often work with community councils and even help such groups get established.

In most states the heart of the long-term ombudsman program is the citizen volunteer. These volunteers regularly visit area nursing homes to monitor the quality of care provided and to investigate and work to resolve complaints. Most of these volunteers receive initial and ongoing training by the state ombudsman.

In most states, the long-term-care ombudsman program is operated under the auspices of the state department on aging. Or your local agency on aging should be able to put you in contact with your state ombudsman.

Another excellent way to become more active is to join an area group concerned with the well-being of nursing-home residents. In many areas there are fine organizations whose purpose is to improve the quality of care and life of nursing-home residents. These groups have activities ranging from organizing visits from area groups to advocating regulatory reform in the state legislature.

Students Suffer

Each quarter a student is enrolled in college, he must register for classes needed toward his degree. While this sounds relatively easy, students soon experience problems with classes scheduled at conflicting times, or offered with only a small number of sections. Schools differ in the registration process, and most students find it extremely difficult to obtain the perfect schedule. Registration at most colleges today has been computerized, but even with this technological advancement students run into major problems over which they have no control.

During registration for the spring semester at Florida State University in 1984, a friend of mine signed up for a finance class at night. This class was cancelled by the school due to lack of students in the class. Students in this class were unaware that the class was cancelled until they arrived at the room and found a notice on the door stating, "This class has been cancelled due to the lack of students." While cancelling the class may have been advantageous for the school, it left the students in the unfair position of scrambling for the limited number of vacancies in the remaining classes.

These students lost large amounts of time in drop/add lines rather than being in class or studying. Yet even worse, problems such as this may cause students a delay in graduating or a loss of financial aid due to a lack of hours.

Clearly the University should take a more responsible stance to registration. Because the universities exist to serve the students and the students are paying for this service, the student should not be the party made to suffer. One solution to the problem of cancelled classes would be for the school to guarantee the students an opening in another section. This solution would eliminate the problems for the students and correct the mistakes made by the school.

Reunion Word Out

Thank you so much for the help you have given our committee in getting the word out about Winter Park High School's 10-year class reunion. We have been able to contact twice the number of classmates with your help.

Recently we were forced to change the date of the reunion due to hotel accommodations. It would be a great help if you could once again assist us.

Our 10-year reunion will now be held July 5-6, 1985 at the Wyndham hotel. For further information graduates should write to '75 Class Reunion, P.O. Box 2326, Winter Park, FL 32790.

Thank you for your continuing support. If I can supply any further information, please do not hesitate to call me at 629-5017. Should anyone contact you in search of a committee contact they can call 423-1117.

Kiss No Cause For School's Tough Action

WELL! Since when, has a goodnight kiss become an immoral act? ("School Expels Boy, 16, Over Goodnight Kiss," Evening Herald, March 17, page 2A) A kiss that says, "Thank you for a lovely evening" or perhaps a kiss of romance. And what is romance?

FUNK & WAGNALLS DICTIONARY defines it: A kind of love between the sexes, youthful, non marital, characterized by high ideals of purity and devotion, strong ardor.

Evidently this young couple live in Christian homes, or they would not have been enrolled in a Christian school. With this background it isn't likely that the young man would have asked the young lady for a date if she had a bad reputation.

A wholesome kiss usually leads to the altar. The kind of kiss the school officials had in mind must have been the kind that gets the face slapped, or leads to the abortion clinic. Do they consider themselves holier than Jesus? In first Corinthians 16:20 I quote, "All the brethren greet you.

Greet ye one another with an holy kiss" and in Titan 1:15, you will find, "Unto the pure, all things are pure." Another quotation is, "Nothing is good or bad but thinking makes it so."

Was it a jealous boy, or envious girl that spied and reported it after giving it a good coat of dirt? Has this school no counselor to get the families and their children together, listen to what they have to say and determine whether disciplinary action should be taken?

The damage done to the reputations of this couple is inexcusable and irreparable. The humiliation, the taunts and sneers, the snubs, will never be forgotten. Even a person suspected of committing a crime is dealt with more fairly. They will be tried to determine their innocence or guilt, before being sent to prison.

I would not want a child of mine to go to that school again, but I would want my tuition fee refunded, and the malicious charges retracted.

What Newspapers Across The Nation Are Saying

Teens Need Sex Education, Get Hypocrisy

By United Press International
The Boston Globe

American teenagers get mixed messages about sex. Television, movies and magazines portray it as a titillating or romantic exercise, but the traumatic consequences are ignored. Although some parents, educators, and policy makers mistakenly contend that teenage sexual activity can be controlled by punitive measures and extolling the virtues of abstinence, the United States is the only developed country where teenage pregnancy has increased in recent years.

In the United States ... ambivalent, if not puritanical, attitudes about sex education and contraception prevent teenagers from preventing pregnancy. ... Countries with the most effective sex education programs have the lowest rates of teenage pregnancy, abortion and childbearing.

In this country, teenagers need help, but too often get hypocrisy. Unless mistaken assumptions are challenged and policies revised, unless parents, educators and policy makers emphasize the importance of avoiding pregnancy and make contraceptive information more widely available, America's children will keep bearing children.

The New York Times

No modern war has been more lawless than the savage conflict between Iran and Iraq. One side or the other has slaughtered civilians, spewed poison gas, sent children into battle, bombarded neutral shipping, abused prisoners. And now, they have spread the war to the cities.

Alas, there is no sheriff available to end this 4½-year shootout. ... Saddam Hussein, the president of better-armed and less populous Iraq, has widened the war in the hope of forcing a settlement. But Iran shows no sign of settling for anything less than his "punishment" for igniting the conflict.

The only promising gleam is that neither side wants to appear wholly barbarian. This gives international agencies a modicum of leverage, and it's high time to make better use of it. ...

Yet as the war grinds on, the Security Council still cannot bring itself to pass real judgement. ... The savagery can be blamed on Baghdad and Tehran, but not this moral collapse.

The Commercial Appeal, Memphis

It has become increasingly evident that banks and other financial houses often are unwitting, and sometimes witting, handmaidens of drug smugglers.

They "launder" huge amounts of dirty money by passing it through clean hands, thus making illicit drug-trade profits look legitimate.

Law enforcement officials recently said they believe that $1.2 billion transferred through the Bank of Boston was tied to drug trafficking. The bank was fined $500,000 for failing to report the transactions. ...

Claiming that bank officials and employees are often lax or uncooperative, prosecutors want tougher laws to help them crack down on money laundering. One piece of legislation, for example, would ... impose criminal penalties on bankers who deliberately ignore evidence of money laundering. ...

Illegal U.S. drug trafficking is estimated to generate as much as $80 billion in cash a year. ... If bankers don't cooperate better with law enforcement in following the Mafia's money flow, they may fall under some tough new laws, which they will entirely deserve.

The Detroit News

If the Republican leadership of the U.S. Senate wants to reduce the federal deficit, it's going to have to try something other than budget cuts and tax increases. The budget committee last week proved itself incapable of the former, and the president has rightly ruled out the latter. If those seized with panic at the sight of deficits insist on trying to wipe out red ink, they have one other option: tax reform. As individual Americans struggle toward April 15 and the deadline for filing their tax returns, it's obvious that this is an idea worth trying.

Recently released Internal Revenue Service statistics suggest how tax reform can help. They show that federal government can trim the deficits simply by reducing tax rates. A flat rate at lower levels would be best at all — or at least a system with less "progressivity." Several such plans have been introduced in Congress by Democrats and Republicans.

... The final tax cut in 1983, like the first two cuts, not only generated more tax revenue than previous years — 11 percent more last year, in fact — but redistributed the burden of payment dramatically.

Dallas Times Herald
As strange as it may seem, Richard Nixon has done something that deserves emulating. The former president has decided to give up his Secret Service protection in order to save U.S. taxpayers an estimated $3 million a year. ... Obviously the safety of former chief executives and their families is a matter of public concern. But one has to question how much protection is ... designed to preserve an image after a president has left the White House. One worthwhile proposal that has been offered by Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., would limit Secret Service coverage for former presidents to five years, unless the government believed that a threat existed.

... we hope it prompts the nation's two other ex-chief executives to reassess their own Secret Service protection.

The (Burlington, Iowa) Hawk Eye

Abortion is a national controversy, but it's a much hotter argument in some cities than in others. Dubuque, Iowa, is one where it's hot.

... In other states, bombings have followed threats. ... A non-violent but equally offensive antic has found its way to Dubuque, however.

That's the public display of photos of aborted fetuses. In Dubuque, huge pictures are plastered on billboards, showing fetuses with legs twisted off.

Call it what you will. Sickening, ill-advised. Grottesque. Uncalled for. Gruesome. Simply, it's too much. The hope is that this latest assault on the public's sensibilities will remain uncommon because it is unnecessary.
