Aid For Viet Vets Enters Unemployment Picture

President Nixon's announcement of expanded GI bill and job opportunities for veterans of the Indochina war is welcome in itself. And it does shine a spotlight on the veterans of this long, protracted, hideous fighting in the jungles, on the hills and along the rivers of this most unpopular of all U.S. overseas conflicts.

In the climate of today with Cambodia, Laos and the My Lai trials exerting their influence — recognition that these veterans deserve respect that all "Johnnies who come marching home" have received. While we are deeply convinced that the Indochina conflict is wrong now and should be stopped short of its insidious influence, however, we should not lose sight of the fact that the veterans who have been discharged papers from the armed forces. A very large percentage were drafted. Few volunteered. Thus whatever restoration to normal civilian occupations — even with greater federal aid — is just and wise.

There is a further debt that the Viet vet puts on the shoulders of those who never were shipped out. This is a conscious — and it must be conscious — that the very real damage done to all those who have lost jobs or businesses during the 1969-70 Nixon economic game plan. As presidential election year 1972 draws near and nearer, the political factor (always present but shouting out loud then) will also go to work. Whether by speed-up Vietnamization or the resolve of Congress, this nation faces a return of veterans which is sure to shake the employment unbalance even more severe.

It is not time that the national leadership stopped trying half-hearted measures and put in motion new programs which will create new jobs, either on private or federal payrolls? Should not channels be now prepared for the funds which can be safely diverted from the Pentagon's openhanded pursuit of new armaments and expansion of those already shown quite ineffective (air-power?) and sent coursing along positive, constructive and greatly needed non-military courses? After WW II the Committee For Economic Development, a mustering of the minds and muscle of private enterprise, helped meet that challenge. The Korean "Police Action" led so quickly into the Vietnam war that the nation was never put on a proper war basis.

Now the conversion from a mixed-up economy with "guns and butter" as its mark, to a peacetime economy which will do what needs to be done to perform that Herculean stable-cleaning is facing the Nixon administration. The new move to help the Viet vet is a small step. What is needed are long strides and purposeful action!

Billboard Alarm

Those stark, hideous billboard poles which have been put up along I-4 in our area may be gone and should go, but we doubt it. The marring of the beautiful roadside scenery of groves, woods and ponds by such monstrosities is something which other scenic areas have suffered and where some have been so irate that men swinging axes have chopped them down. Here in Florida, however, there is something the legislature can and should do to make use of a federal requirement that insists that state laws must be passed to conform with federal billboard standards.

Under the federal regulations billboards must be kept at least 600 feet away from interstate highways' rights-of-way. It is issue of billboards has already attracted the attention of the Seminole County Commission where these local officials are bent on seeing that current regulations be enforced and local interests be protected. Billboards need not be harmful to road beautification. Yet the examples already flaring their shaming messages along I-4 are no comfort. Billboards can be and should be helpful to the motorist who needs to know what overnight facilities await over the next rise or at the next intersection.

But a flagrant disregard for the amenities is harmful to the beholder and makes patronage of the advertiser more in doubt than in favor. Those poles, which we mentioned, should never have been erected until all regulations had been conformed to that are now in force. The regulatory task, however, is now up to the legislators. Speedy passage would not only protect those who are offended by the present state of affairs but would also release federal funds to pay those whose signs must be displaced.

The Lighter Side

My teenage daughter, who had received the other 26 calls, answered as always. "Hello, may I speak to your father?" "My what?" "Your father. Is your father at home?" "Do you mean you want to talk to my father on the telephone?" Spoken incredulously, with rising inflection. "That's right. (Puzzled tone) (Long pause) ... Hold the line a minute, please ..."

'New Page In Sino-American Relations'

Ping Pong Players Open Up China

By JOHN RODERICK, Associated Press Writer

PEKING (AP)—Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai told a U.S. table tennis delegation today their visit to mainland China had opened "a new page in relations" between the peoples of China and the United States.

Chou, 75, regarded as Red China's leading moderate, spoke at a two-hour reception for table tennis teams from the United States, Britain, Canada, Nigeria and Colombia. They were invited to visit Communist China when the world table tennis championships ended in Japan a week ago.

"In the past," he said, "exchanges between the peoples of China and the United States have been very numerous. They have been cut off for a long time. Now, with your acceptance of our invitation, you have opened a new page in the relations of the Chinese and American people. I am confident that this beginning again of our friendship will certainly meet with the majority support of our two peoples."

Jack Howard of Seattle, Wash., the captain of the American team, told Chou he hoped a Chinese team would come to the United States.

South Vietnamese have been holding the base, but their exact number is not known. Four South Vietnamese were killed in the fighting today, six were missing and 37 were wounded, the Saigon headquarters said.

Consumer Advisor Is Suspicious

By G. DAVID WALLACE, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon's consumer advisor, who is preparing to measure the effectiveness of government consumer programs, says she's already suspicious of any program run by more than one agency.

DETROIT (UPI)—Miles A. Hurwitz wasn't getting any action on his claim with Michigan Blue Shield despite letter after letter.

Finally, when Blue Shield's form letters contradicted themselves for the second time, he threw courtesy to the wind and wrote another letter beginning: "Look, stupid..."

Hurwitz's troubles began in October when his doctor submitted a bill for his daughter, Samantha Lynn. Blue Shield replied with a form letter that Samantha Lynn was not listed in its records and the bill would not be honored.

Hurwitz, pointing out that Blue Shield paid the bill for her birth on Nov. 29, 1969.

Nixon: Yes Or No?

Editors Divided...

By CARL C. CRAFT, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—"Well, 1972 is too far away to feel safe in any prediction now," says an editor assessing Republican chances of keeping the White House.

The economic issue might well be the most powerful factor in 1972 unless he can pass a good deal of the buck to Congress—where it should be passed," adds Talbot Patrick, board chairman and publisher of the Rock Hill (S.C.) Evening Herald.

Patrick was among 49 members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, questioned at random Tuesday as they signed in for the organization's three-day convention.

"The weapon most used against press freedom this year was the subpoena," the committee said. "Its use reached epidemic proportions."

The committee criticized Defense Department secrecy on the unsuccessful Son Tay raid to free American prisoners in North Vietnam and what it called "raw censorship" on some recent military operations in Laos.

Charles L. Bennett, managing editor of the Oklahoma City Oklahoman and Times, said Nixon will win next year unless there is "some major disruption of withdrawal from Vietnam or a serious economic crisis."

Wallace Carroll, editor and publisher of the Winston-Salem (N.C.) Journal and Twin City Sentinel, said Nixon could be beaten "by any good Democrat, provided they don't spill too much blood on each other."

Artichokes Always Star In A First Course

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Health-conscious diners are reviving a vegetable that flourished a dozen years ago. They are again using artichokes as a first course, but they've made a change. Once the vegetables used to be served raw, now they are combining cooked artichokes with tomatoes, radishes, celery, carrot and cucumber in their natural state.

Artichokes are trying with one another to produce interesting dips to accompany such vegetable platters. Of these creations we give the prize to one a friend of ours recently concocted. Here it is:

ARTICHOKE PLATTER WITH FOUR-INGREDIENT DIP
1 container (8 ounces) cream cheese
1/2 cup grated (medium-fine) cheddar cheese
Seasoning salt, to taste
3 whole, cooked artichokes
Cherry tomatoes, radishes, celery, carrot and cucumber sticks.

New Seasoning
Imitation butter flavored popcorn salt, a new one-step seasoning is a boon to calorie counters. It contains 10 calories per teaspoon compared with 33 calories per teaspoon of butter. Available in 2 1/2 ounce glass jars.

1 roasted and peeled green chili, minced (from a 4-ounce can)

Tender Dough
To keep cookie dough tender, roll out on a light dusting of powdered sugar instead of flour and scraps. One way is to cut the rolled dough into strips of desired width, then into diamonds.

scissors clip off end of each; Boil, covered, until base is tender. Half-cover with boiling water—35 to 45 minutes; drain and add 1/2 teaspoon salt. Chill.

Men Go For Chocolate Pie

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A food editor friend of mine once asked dozens and dozens of husbands to name their favorite kind of pie. When she told me the result we were both surprised. We thought the vote would go to apple pie, but the husbands gave their blessing to chocolate pie.

So here's to husbands, the following recipe for a rich Fudge Pie is one of the best of chocolate pies. And it's different. We have two dozen recipes in our chocolate pie file but not another one is just like this. It's rich in flavor, has brownie-like texture, looks pretty and is easy to make. You can serve it plain, but at my house it was enjoyed with a topping of vanilla ice cream.

BROWNIE FUDGE PIE
Unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
2 squares (2 ounces) unsweetened chocolate
1/4 cup butter

1/4 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1/4 cup granulated sugar
3 large eggs
1/4 cup milk
1/4 cup dark corn syrup
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup pecan halves

Bake pastry shell in a preheated 350-degree oven on a shelf below the center of the oven for 5 minutes. Remove from oven and cool 10 minutes. Put down gently. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees. In a 2 quart saucepan over low heat melt chocolate and butter. Leaving the saucepan over low heat, gradually add brown sugar, beating at low speed of electric beater until smooth. Remove from heat. Beat in granulated sugar. Add eggs, 1 at a time, beating after each addition. Beat in milk, corn syrup and salt. Pour into pie shell. Bake in the 350-degree oven for 15 minutes. Remove from oven. Arrange pecans in a circle 1 inch from edge of pie. Return to 350-degree oven and bake 20 minutes, cool completely. Filling will be pulled when removed from oven and edges slightly cracked; filling will set as pie cools.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Peanut Butter
Peanut butter, an excellent source of food energy, protein, and B vitamins, blends smoothly into cooked dishes while adding tasty variety in common foods, such as potatoes. Either use or meet with...
When crunchy peanut butter is mashed with them, Meatloaf takes on unusual nutty goodness with peanut butter as an ingredient.

Meanwhile, Back On The Police Firing Range

Reporter Learns How Easy It Is To Miss Entire Target

SIMULATING firing around the corner of a building. Patrolman John Mero had to fire five shots with each hand from distances of 25 and 50 yards.

DOUBLE-ACTION . . . BARRICADE POSITION

ROOKIE PATROLMAN JOHN MERO

Saluting One Of The State's Finest . . . Our Sanford Police

'In The Tradition . . .'

By CARL WALTER
 Dave Collins, 30, was the last to move into police work, when he signed up here two years ago after a job as a salesman. Charles, 26, is the newest addition to the Larimer County sheriff's office, although he was a patrolman in Montrose, in southwest Colorado, for three years.
 John, the youngest brother, has been a member of the nearby Weld County Sheriff's Department for the past 12 months, after a six-month stint as a policeman in Golden, Neb.
 Now all but Leroy, 28, live here, with their families. And Leroy, now in the Navy at San Diego, Calif., has indicated to his brothers he's considering leaving the Navy to join them in police work.
 "Our father was a well-respected man," says Charles. "You would never hear people yelling out 'pig' or 'rotten cop' to him."
 "I don't know why," says Charles. "It certainly isn't because of the pay . . . or the hours . . . or the working conditions, and it sure isn't for the glory."
 The lawmen's father died in July 1968, at the age of 81, nine years after he retired. The brothers know their line of work is dangerous, and Dave, the elder son, is custodian of three grim reminders.
 They're 38 caliber bullets, removed from his father's chest in 1945 after he was wounded by a gunman during a burglary in San Luis.
 "Whatever the terms of this generation are, when he was on the street, people were always friendly."
 Like their father, who played a part in the establishment of the Colorado State Patrol in 1932, the sons take pride in their work and enjoy it.
 "I don't know why," says Charles. "It certainly isn't because of the pay . . . or the hours . . . or the working conditions, and it sure isn't for the glory."

CHIEF BEN BUTLER ADVISES

. . . TARGETS GET SMALL!

By JOHN A. SPOLSKI
 Associate Editor

The gauntlet was there in the form of an invitation which started, "Understand that you're pretty good with a shotgun. How'dya like to go out on the Sanford police firing range?"
 "Great," was my immediate reply, thinking that here again I'd have a chance to shine.
 How could I have possibly miss an outline of a man from only seven yards? I asked myself.
 Take it from this "expert," it's easy. Especially if you have to do it the same way a rookie patrolman must first qualify on sidearms . . . based on an FBI training program.
 Don't aim, just point at the target . . . firing from the hip, you must get off five shots, reload and fire five more within a period of 25 seconds. (Only then do you realize you don't really have a thumb and four fingers, but rather . . . you're all thumbs trying to beat the clock, and hopefully hit the target, too.)
 The Sanford Police Department's Firearms Instructor Vern Brewster, a former national skeet champion and highly proficient in the use of all firearms, explained the balance of the qualifying program.
 In addition to the 10 shots from the seven yards range, the remainder of 40 shots must be fired in specific stances and/or positions from varying yards on the range.
 At 25 yards, the student must fire five shots (free arm with no support), within 10 seconds.
 And then the target (which you remember as the size of a man) is reduced to a little dot, cause you're moved back to the 50 yard-marker. From there you fire a total of 30 shots, all within a period of two minutes and 45 seconds from a sitting, prone, weak-hand, strong-hand barricade stance.
 Back up to the 25 yards marker again, this time from a kneeling position, weak hand, strong hand . . . all double action, and all within 90 seconds a total of 15 shots.
 "Hold it, your time is up," comes the voice of Police Chief Ben Butler, who has been watching your efforts.
 Your feet turn to lead, cause you'd rather be headed in any other direction instead of going up to the target to see your results.
 Only then do you realize what a small part of the job and the life of a policeman really is.
 Thankfully in this case, their investigative talents weren't "pushy" . . . they forget to gather the evidence.
 The target was destroyed; from here on out, let's talk about girl-watching or something, O.K.? Now there, I'm really an expert!

AROUND THE CLOCK

By JOHN A. SPOLSKI

Just happened to get thru reading what I consider an outstanding speech. Probably because I agree with most of the statements. Funny, I find myself doing it the same as you all do in reading The Clock.
 "It's great . . . if it happens to be on the subject with which you heartily agree; but, I'm a bum if I happen to take a stand contrary to yours."
 Getting back to this "great" speech — just wish I could lay claim to the thoughts as being mine . . . .
 It deals with you and me, and industry. And the inherent responsibilities that each of us has. Has to do with so many things, that I can't do them all. . . . choosing to take a "free ride," like this speaker says: "Actually, a person today can survive . . . can enjoy life . . . can raise a family to do the same . . . without working one damn day . . . under built-in government doles protecting him from cradle to the grave. All he needs is a convincing mind . . . a lazy disposition . . . one belly full of guts, and absolutely no pride!" . . . .
 That's the kind of straight talk that most of us can easily understand. Maybe that's another reason why I so enjoyed reading this talk.
 Another part which strikes home: "Since the Great Depression, we have seen the Federal Government add on . . . heap on . . . and indulge itself fat . . . through every conceivable form of social and economic legislation . . . adding millions upon millions of federal employees to the point that federal government today is far too paternalistic . . . far too powerful . . . far too costly . . . and far too similar to socialism."
 And how do you or I change it, neighbors? By voting at the next election and getting in a new slate, right?
 WRONG!
 According to our Clock-Talker, today, he says, "Changing the politics of federal government . . . from Democrats to Republicans and Republicans to Democrats . . . is not the solution, for it merely perpetuates the problem by again ignoring positive action."
 Where does the answer to these problems lie? Our speaker would have you believe that industry can and must provide the leadership, and unless it begins to recognize its responsibilities and begins to work in partnership with labor . . . with government . . . with the communities it occupies . . . to combat our social problems, America will drift closer to a stronger central government, toward a socialist state none of us want.
 After reading this talk and digesting the thoughts and theory which were offered, only then was I able to understand the man more fully; and perhaps for the first time, appreciate what he was trying to do when he was living here in Sanford.
 This talk was delivered by one of this country's leading industrial giants, Jeno F. Paulucci, this past week at the 47th Annual Duluth Hall of Fame Banquet in Duluth, Minnesota.

Mall Creates Flood Of Queries

Will Cost More Than $4 Million

By BILL SCOTT

Julian Stenstrom, associate realtor with Stenstrom Realty Company of Sanford, said today he has already received numerous inquiries from persons representing firms interested in leasing space in the proposed new Kon Tiki Mall to be located along U. S. 17-92 between the present Pinecrest Shopping Center and Sanford Plaza.

The Herald, in an exclusive Wednesday story, disclosed that negotiations were underway between a Sanford-based group and Dr. Henry Adams of Daytona Beach, owner of the 34 1/2 acre site, to purchase the property.

Expected cost of the property is reportedly in the $475,000 to $500,000 range, according to informed sources.

Stenstrom Realty is handling the real estate leasing for the Polynesian type mall, expected to contain space for 30 stores in five main buildings, which will be air-conditioned and contain parking space for 1,737 cars.

Virgil Smith, operator of White Auto Store franchise in the Pinecrest Shopping Center, said he will be heading up a corporation now in a formula stage, to purchase the property within the next five or six days. "Everything is pretty well set and we don't anticipate any problems," Smith advised in a conversation today.

Smith said further that "several people are ready and willing to locate in the mall," but he did not reveal any names of potential lessees, explaining that Julian Stenstrom was handling that part of the negotiations and he would prefer first to talk with him before disclosing any firms.

In a statement to The Herald, Stenstrom advised that a large department store was being sought along with a grocery store chain for inclusion in the complex.

The property will be landscaped and construction is tentatively scheduled to start by June 1 with completion expected by Oct. 15 for a scheduled Nov. 1 opening.

Estimated costs is expected to range somewhere around $4 million, not including land.

Local Narcotics Offenders Are Getting Speedy Trials

In another case, the jury found Danny Ziss guilty of two counts of sale and possession of narcotics, and this trial has been continued until May 3.

The case of David Murray, charged with possession of narcotics was also pressed. Also pressed was the case of Eric Westbrook, charged with buying and concealing stolen property.

Remaining on the docket for trial this week is the case of Joseph Dean, charged with rape. Dean was accused in both Orange and Seminole counties of the rape of an 18 year old girl, a 19 year old housewife and a 12 year old Longwood school girl. Following his trial in Orange County, Dean was adjudged insane and sentenced to Chattahoochee.

Also facing trial this week are Willie Mae, non-sensory and Gary Adair, Larry DeMorse and Ronald Reuels, charged on three counts of B&E with felony, grand larceny and conspiracy.

Kelley Announces Construction Date

Sanford architect Eoghan Kelley said Wednesday that construction on the 14-story high rise apartment project for the elderly to be located along the lake front on First Street would begin in mid-May.

Kelley, architect for Bram Towers, said the construction would be done by Wagener Construction Company of Orlando.

Expected to cost over $2 million, the project is sponsored by Cooperating Parishes, Inc., a non-profit corporation made up of Episcopal communities of South Volusia and North Seminole Counties.

Funds for the project were authorized by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and will be composed of efficiencies and one-bedroom apartments to be rented to single persons age 62 or over and married couples with at least one over age 62.

Minimum income limitations have been placed on the apartments occupants with $4,200 a year for one person and $4,800 for couples. Rental rates for the units are expected to be $75 monthly for a single person and $100 per month for couples.

All utilities, including water, sewage, electricity and air-conditioning is to be included in the monthly rental fees.

A barber shop, beauty salon, laundry, reading room, recreation room and common room will be included in the facility. Parking space for a number of tenants cars will also be available, Kelley said.

State Drops Charges Against Ed Kirkland

Charges of lead and lascivious acts upon a minor female and crime against nature against Orlando attorney Edward Kirkland were dropped yesterday by the state. Following this action, the prospective jurors, who were tentatively seated during the three days of the trial, were dismissed by Circuit Judge Richard Muldrew.

The action by the state followed many legal hassles in chambers after Judge Muldrew, on Tuesday, ruled that the state's star witness, Lisa Stanley, the girl involved in the alleged incident, would not be allowed to testify. Judge Muldrew based his ruling upon reports by two court appointed psychiatrists upon their examination of the girl.

On Wednesday, Assistant State Attorney Fred Leone filed notice of appeal to the appellate court in Vero Beach of Judge Muldrew's ruling against the testimony.

Leone and State Attorney Abbott Herring contend that an amendment to Florida statutes, effective Jan. 1, gives the state appellate rights in such trial rulings and that this would postpone the trial until the court made a ruling.

Conversely, defense attorneys Edward Hanlon and William Barnett argued that since the prospective jury had been sworn this was not a pre-trial ruling.

Judge Muldrew yesterday refused to delay the trial until a ruling is made by the appellate court. However, the state attorney's office indicated that the charges against Kirkland would be refilled after a ruling is made upon the appeal.

Following the dismissal of the charges, Hanlon filed a motion for a speedy trial.

Kirkland was charged in an incident allegedly occurring on Jan. 12, 1970 at the Regency Apartments in South Seminole County. He is free on bond.
