LONG TO HOLD DIXIE COTTON PARLEY FRIDAY

Is Encouraged By Response To His Plan For Prohibiting Any Raising Next Season
NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 19. (A.P.)—Encouraged by the response to his proposal to prohibit the raising of any cotton next season as a "cotton measure," Governor Huey P. Long said yesterday he would hold a south-wide cotton conference at 10 A. M. Friday at the Roosevelt hotel.

He said he expected each of the 34 cotton states to send a representative, either the governor or some other official. Replies to his plan have been mixed, favorable, unfavorable and non-committal.

Ninety-five per cent of the farming and business interests and two-thirds of the public officials who have thus far expressed themselves, Governor Long said, "are inclined favorably to a plan to stop the raising of cotton altogether next year."

The editing newspapers in New Orleans, Shreveport and Monroe, which have been opposing Long and his issues, suggested in a front page editorial yesterday that the cotton states send representatives to seriously consider the plan or to devise some other plan. James M. Thomson, publisher of the New Orleans Item and Morning Tribune, endorsed the Long plan in a statement.

The official lineup on the Long plan follows: For: Governor Blackwood of South Carolina; Lieutenant-Governor Brand of Georgia; Senator Fletcher of Florida; Representative Remy of Mississippi; Governor Miller of Alabama; Governor Bilbo of Mississippi; Governor Horton of Tennessee; Senator Caraway of Arkansas; Director McGinnis of the Mississippi Department of Agriculture.

Non-committal: Governor Parrell of Arkansas; Governor Sterling of Texas; Governor Russell of Georgia; Governor Carlson of Florida; Governor Murray of Oklahoma suggested that only the best balls be played as a solution.

CHANGE OF VENUE ASKED IN CASE OF HARLAN MINERS

DEFENSE CONTENDS INFLAMED PUBLIC PRECLUDES FAIR TRIAL
HARLAN, Ky., Aug. 19. (A.P.)—The Harlan county coal fields yesterday were pictured by W. A. Brock, commonwealth's attorney, yesterday as too "inflamed" to permit the trials here of men facing death in the electric chair for slaying in the lung drawn out labor controversies.

In a motion seeking change of venue for 15 or 20 men indicted for murder as the result of a cash at Exits May 5, it was found, Brock said there is too much feeling here, and that the trials are held here, there is too much feeling, he said, for an impartial jury to be drawn.

The motions were set for hearing next Monday and M. F. Hall of defense counsel, said the defense would appeal transfer of the cases but would demand that Judge D. C. Jones disqualify himself on the ground that he is connected with coal operators. The state court of appeals upheld Judge Jones last spring when he declined to disqualify himself in the labor trial.

Officers testified they found several rifles and about 3000 rounds of ammunition at his place, and evidence that he was a member of the communist party and I. W. W.

Federal Judge Jones declared federal courts should investigate with a view to indictment for sedition.

STATE RESTS CASE AGAINST COLONEL LEA

Former Publisher And 3 Others Charged With Conspiring To Fleece Central Bank
ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 19. (A.P.)—The state rested the case of Col. Luke Lea and three others charged with conspiring to defraud the General Bank & Trust Company here $1,000,000.

Solicitor Zeb A. Newsome announced that all evidence was in that asked the court not to demand his trial in this until the morning, in order that a check might be made to insure no technicality of introduction had been overlooked regarding the great mass of documentary evidence on which the prosecution has based its case.

On trial with Lea are Wallace H. Davis, president of the now defunct bank, who already faces a five-year term for violation of the state banking laws, and who is scheduled to go to trial Aug. 31 on a charge of using the funds to defraud Luke Lea, Jr., and F. P. Charles, officers of the Tennessee Publishing Company, and business associates of the late Lea, newspaper publisher, financier and former United States senator.

W. S. County special investigator for the prosecution, who is qualified by Judge M. V. Harbin as an expert accountant, testified the witness stand virtually all of yesterday.

Roosevelt Discloses His Theories On Water Power In Letter To President

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. (A.P.)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, a possible Democratic presidential candidate, yesterday brought his water power theories into public view by making public his recent letter to President Hoover, considered by many as the president's "water power manifesto."

Simultaneously, the governor's advisors said he would turn thumbs down on Tammany Hall, which it said in Albany was being pulled by Mr. Roosevelt's party after the failure of the White House to reveal its intentions in public.

Without comment, the governor's advisors said the text of the letter he sent the president, which it said in Albany was being pulled by Mr. Roosevelt's party after the failure of the White House to reveal its intentions in public.

Orlando's Troubles

During the past few months the city of Orlando has been torn to pieces by a political campaign, strangely reminiscent of a similar campaign in this city several years ago, which culminated yesterday in a severe defeat for the administration and a loud popular out-cry against any plan to mortgage, sell, or lease the municipal utilities.

The city, defaulting on its bonds and facing further defaults, had hit upon the scheme of raising sufficient revenue to see it through this trying period by obligating their various utility plants to outside interests. In this way, it was held, the bonds could be paid, the credit of the city preserved, taxes held at a minimum, and, in the event the mortgage or lease plan was accepted, the utilities themselves could be retained.

Another faction, however, has been of the opinion that to mortgage or lease the utilities would see the end of municipal ownership, and to sell would result in the dissipation of the money paid, without value received. Throughout, they have argued that if the city properly reduced expenses, cut high salaries paid to commissioners and other city officials, and otherwise inaugurated a retrenchment program after the manner of Sanford, West Palm Beach, and other cities which for some time have realized that the boom is over, no further steps would be necessary to avoid bond defaults.

The campaign became bitter and heated. As is often the case in such campaigns, charges were hurled back and forth with reckless abandon, and more than once the word "crook" was heard. The administration was charged with not taking the people into their confidence, being secretive and underhanded, and with other things perhaps even more reprehensible. And naturally retortation was not lacking.

Now that all of the administration plans have been voted down, it will be interesting to see what happens next. Fortunately, or unfortunately, Orlando is not situated exactly as Sanford has been. Orlando's bonded debt is not of such excessive size that it cannot be paid in full. Orlando assets, furthermore, are such that judgments against the city are good and can be collected. It will be interesting to see now whether the administration adopts a program of sufficient economy to take care of bond maturities or if it awaits a mandamus from the Supreme Court.

In any event, Sanford smiles. Our political problems have long been a source of much amusement to our neighbor on the south. It now appears that Sanford is merely three or four years ahead.

What Industry Can Do

The possibilities of industrial development are pointed out in a recent article in the North American Review in which a city of eighty thousand inhabitants boasting one hundred millionaires is described. Every resident of the city is employed, well paid, and contented, and many are rich who are not quite millionaires. The same thing could happen to Sanford if the right industry, or industries, were brought in.

Commenting on the Review article, the St. Petersburg Independent says: "The 100 millionaires are all home-town boys, all of them comparatively young men under 50, all of them brought up in the same business, a business which didn't exist 30 years ago, which they have grown up with, and which has made them modern Croesuses."

"They are all modest men, these hundred, they seldom travel abroad, they get up every morning at 7 o'clock and with expensive cars in their garages, prefer to walk to work. They have simple tastes and common interests. "The town they live in, and where they have abolished poverty, was a somnolent country village of a thousand souls when they were boys. The town is Winston-Salem, N. C., the cigarette capital of the world, and the hundred millionaires are products of the tobacco industry that "Old Man Dick" Reynolds founded there just three decades ago when he drove into the village with $10,000 of borrowed capital in a suit case, looking for a site for a small chewing tobacco factory."

"It is interesting to note that this immense business did not grow up overnight nor was it moved to Winston-Salem from some other city. It was developed from a small beginning, just as other great industrial businesses have grown."

SUCCESS OF THE MINNESOTA PLAN

FLORIDA TIMES-UNION

"Facing a problem, somewhat akin to that now confronting the business and professional leaders of Georgia," says Daniel Hochford, writing for the Augusta Chronicle, the Northwest in 1921 was suffering from the terrible fall in the price of wheat. Thousands of its farmers did not raise their own garden stuff, kept no cows or chickens, and were confronted with ruin when the world market for their cash crops slumped. It was then that Frederick E. Murphy, publisher and owner of a big flour wheat valley of Minnesota, launched the plan that has come to a big success. He had tried it out with his own thousands of acres in 1918 to 1920, and was confident that it would work elsewhere.

According to Mr. Hochford, Frederick Murphy's Minnesota plan was to first secure the cooperation of Federal, State, county and local officials and leaders, and then the methods used on many farms were studied. Widespread publicity was given the project, with town meetings and much pointed matter, and farmers were shown how one cow, properly cared for, a good cow to begin with, was worth more than ten ordinary cows, practically left to take care of themselves. But the big idea was to get away from the one-crop habit. The farmers of Minnesota and of the Dakotas and Montana were urged—and persuaded—to try poultry raising and dairying and making of gardens; raising all sorts of things and "living at home."

"Farm income increased $95,000,000 a year in the Northwest from the start of the Minnesota plan to 1930," says Mr. Hochford. "Fifty-seven per cent of the increase came from the spread of dairying and livestock. But poultry-raising increased 115 per cent, poultry and egg income increased 164 per cent. All this time the wheat crop was reduced 50 per cent."

In the story the Chronicle prints it is told that Mr. Murphy's work not only included teaching the farmers diversification and livestock farming, but worked out the financial problems involved in thus changing over from their former exclusive growing of wheat. That seventy thousand farmers were actually won over to the new idea and assisted in making the change is remarkable—and it is declared that few indeed, if any of them, would care to go back.

"Whereas, raw crops vary greatly in price, finished farm products, such as butter and eggs dressed meats do not show such changes," says Mr. Hochford. "The buying power of garden stuff, fruits, milk, eggs, butter, and meats stays relatively high all the time. The farmer who raises these things is able to maintain a comfortable standard of living. It is remarkable that the automobile rate has grown 300 per cent within in seven years in Minnesota county seats there is a motor car for every two people. Even in 1930 farm income in the Northwest was 34 per cent ahead of 1921. The writer would declare that even with the growers and the price of wheat so far down as to be almost unbelievable it is not making any great fuss about hard times."

The Chronicle believes that Georgia farmers should take heed of the Minnesota plan, and anything almost that is good for Georgia would be beneficial to Florida. There is, of course, great diversification in farming in Florida than Georgia now, but there is ample room for greater attention to the livestock, poultry and dairying. Development of these things will greatly add to the prosperity of the South.

3 Expeditions From Foreign Countries Landed In Cuba

tion was mentioned. Letters were opened. All radio stations have been suspended. No news unfavorable to the government is permitted.

The censorship came as a distinct surprise to foreign correspondents here, who had believed the revolution was near an end with the capture of former President Mario G. Menocal and Col. Carlos Mendota, its two most important leaders, and their confinement in Cabanas fortress.

In Santa Clara, the president remained busy with his work of pacification, and government sources said many rebels had surrendered, among them William L. cher, American naturalized citizen of Cuba, who led insurgent forces that destroyed property in Santa Clara worth $15,000. The property was owned by Senator Carlos Machado, brother of the president. Fischer was presented at the provincial capital, Santa Clara, and sent on to Havana for confinement in Cabanas, reports received here said.

When the president would return from Santa Clara was unknown, although his train remained with steam up.

Santa Clara dispatches continued to report scattering skirmishes with rebels, and continued concentration of their forces about the south coast town of Trinidad. Troops have been sent into that region in numbers.

There have been no definite reports as to the whereabouts of Col. Roberto Mendez Penate and Col. Aurelio Hevia, reported operating in that region, but Col. Gabo Vales, another war of independence veteran is said to have some forces in the vicinity of Sierra Ullano.

Unconfirmed reports from Holguin, in northwest Oriente, said the detachment of soldiers there had revolted. In Havana, army headquarters issued a statement claiming no single soldier had gone over.

Hospital authorities in Santa Clara refused to confirm reports no civilian cases were being accepted.

Indications pointed to a government uprising in Havana city soon. Ten armored trucks are kept in front of police headquarters at all hours ready for emergency. House to house search for arms has been stopped. It was learned on good authority, because of authentic reports that oppositionists have weapons and ammunition stored in many well barricaded houses.

Miguel Mariano Gomez, said to be concealed in the Vedado residential section, remains the unknown factor in the Havana situation. The son of former President Jose Miguel Gomez lived in Havana (talk to him closely while he was mayor and is idolized by the fiery young student revolutionists.

A report from Camp Columbia, Government camp on the outskirts of Havana, said 190 bodies of soldiers are stored there in pine boxes although only six deaths have been announced by headquarters in contrast to 67 revolutionists reported dead. Newspapers are not permitted access to the camp, from which many soldiers move out into the island.

Army headquarters announced yesterday afternoon that Col. Aurelio Hevia, one of the leaders in the present uprising, his son and two other men had been arrested at Matanzas.

They will be confined in Cabanas fortress, it was said.

Maj. Celestino Hevia, who had been reported killed while leading rebel forces in Pinar del Rio province, came to the palace yesterday noon and gave himself up. He was held at Cabanas fortress.

General Herrera, army chief of staff, yesterday denied the rumor he said had been circulating the last two days that the government intended to use private funds deposited in banks for prosecution of the campaign against the rebels.

Dispatches to Herald de Cuba from Santa Clara yesterday said Gov. Jose E. Barrios of Oriente province and Congressman Valls, representative from Manzanillo, arrived there yesterday morning to confer with President Machado. Senator Viriato Gutierrez, recently returned from Europe and the United States, left by airplane for Santa Clara yesterday.

Colonel Hevia, his son and Dr. Santiago Durralde were captured yesterday in a driveway in Coloma, Matanzas province.

Still at large, are the five principal rebel leaders, are Col. Roberto Mendez Penate and Miguel Mariano Gomez, former Havana mayor.

The capture of Hevia lacked the drama that characterized the capture of Penate and Gomez.

Geneva Center Of Co-Operative Citrus Industry

server; the indication that it will soon become not only the only real growers' association in this county, but also the largest.

Last year the association handled about 29,000 boxes of fruit for its members, employing all local and expert help in sorting, grading, packing and labeling its favorite brands, Lake Harvey, Sealaweeet, and Mer Jules. During the busy season, its large and well equipped plant, located in the heart of Geneva, was a beehive of activity from morning into the night, and its directors expressed themselves as well pleased with the year's progress.

However, believing that they could be of considerable aid to many other growers who had not become connected with their organization, the directors decided to make an intensive campaign for new members early this Spring. To this end, they have assigned the difficult task of recruiting the products of other groves nearby, they chose Mr. H. H. Sley, an citrus man whose years of experience as a citrus expert and resident of that community, led them to believe that more than ordinary success would attend their efforts.

As a result of their appointment, the directors recently announced that they will almost treble their output during the coming season, according to contracts already signed with leading growers who have for years been connected with other shipping agencies. Approximately 60,000 boxes of fruit will pass through the plant under present contracts, 20,000 of which will come from the Ojeda district. The directors have set their goal, a tonnage of 100,000 boxes, which they hope to realize before the late spring of 1932.

To handle this remarkable increase in tonnage admittedly due to the consistent efforts of Mr. Sley, the plant is today being remodeled and an addition nearly 25 per cent of the original size, being constructed. An expenditure of approximately $5000 will bring

Governor Long Of Louisiana Offers Solution Of Hunger

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 19. (A.P.)—Under the caption "what have you to eat?"... Let's see," Huey P. Long, governor and United States senator-elect said the people of America could save themselves from hunger and poverty this winter if they would adopt the old-time swapping custom.

"Do you remember when your father or mother swapped a cup of beans for a cup of sugar or your father traded a sack of potatoes for a sack of oats?" asked the governor in his weekly newspaper.

"Well, now, we've got to get right back to that to keep from starving to death in this country this fall and winter. Don't be ashamed to admit you are broke. Don't try to put on any airs about it."

"We've got everything on earth in this country that ought to make people happy, but with all that, we are flat broke. Why? Because the wealth of the land has fallen into a few men's hands."

Plan Offered For Disposal Of Large Surplus Of Wheat

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 19. (A.P.)—The huge surplus of government owned wheat would be made available for food relief under a plan suggested yesterday by Samuel R. McKelvie, former wheat representative on the federal farm board.

The plan, McKelvie said, would effect economy in relief expenditures and at the same time help dispose of the 200,000,000-bushel surplus.

Congress must authorize disposal of the wheat in this manner and McKelvie said he believed the farm board should be reimbursed for the amount involved.

This, he said, can be done after Congress convenes in December, as the corporation can deliver wheat on short notice to any community in the country.

McKelvie today awaited the country's reaction to his suggestion and said if it is favorable he will immediately present his plan to President Hoover.

Political Charge Is Branded By Jurist As After-Thought

CHICAGO, Aug. 19. — (A.P.)—Julius Rosenwald's attorney yesterday characterized as "a stale after-thought" Frank L. Smith's charges in an open letter that Rosenwald had offered him 10,000 shares of Sears-Roebuck stock as an inducement to abandon his campaign for United States Senate in 1926.

"The community knows Mr. Rosenwald; it also knows Frank Smith," the attorney, Leo F. Wagoner, said.

The attorney said the letter, addressed to Prof. Carroll F. Woody, of the University of Chicago, as a suggested additional chapter to a book written by Professor Woody about the 1926 senatorial campaign, was "retrospectively inconsequential" and, containing five years after the alleged incident took place, "a stale after-thought."

From Rosenwald himself no statement was forthcoming because his family, fearful the controversy might adversely affect his health, kept him ignorant of Smith's charges.

HOLLYWOOD—Street improvements planned.

Roosevelt Letter Reveals Theories Upon Water Power

"This letter we understand was acknowledged by the secretary to the President under date of June 20, 1931.

"Since that date members of the power authority have held informal conversations in Canada looking to the furthering of plans for a dam in the international section of the St. Lawrence River.

"In these conversations, it has been made apparent that the governments of the United States and the Dominion of Canada are considering the abandonment of the appointment of treaty commissioners and the substitution thereof of direct negotiations through diplomatic channels alone between the federal governments of the two countries looking to the drafting of a treaty.

"These advances seem borne out by statements in the Canadian and American press.

"May we again call your attention to the vital importance that the State of New York be represented in the negotiations with Canada and that this right is recognized in the fourth conclusion of the report of the United States-St. Lawrence commission upon the development of shipway from the Great Lakes to the sea, submitted by President Hoover, at that time, secretary of commerce and chairman of the commission, of date the 27, 1926, which reads as follows:

"That negotiations should be entered into with Canada in an endeavor to arrive at agreements on all these subjects. In such negotiations the United States should recognize the proper relations of New York to the power development in the international section."

"This principle was reiterated on other occasions by Chairman Hoover.

"Therefore, may we request that as this whole question involves relationships between the State of New York and the United States Government, you obtain for us, if possible, direct and early information regarding the negotiations between Washington and Ottawa.

"We must deal with definite emphasis that we adhere to the belief that a representative of New York should take part in the negotiations in view of the fact that state ownership power development is equally involved with the navigation plans of the Federal Government.

"(Signed) Frank P. Walsh, chairman.

"In view of this whole matter in which I concur, I would greatly appreciate if you would be good enough to advise me of the status of the negotiations between the United States and Canada relating to drafting of a treaty covering the development of the St. Lawrence River in the international section for navigation and power purposes."

To that letter Acting Secretary of State Castle replied two days later.

"All that is possible to say now is that no negotiations of any kind are going on. It is obvious that when the time comes the interest of New York will not be neglected."

Friends of the governor represented him as feeling this was not an official and adequate reply.

Orlando Votes To Let Utilities Remain As Now

(Continued from Page One) position of the utilities as proposed in the three plans of issuing tax notes spread through the city, church bells were rung in one section and impromptu celebrations broke out here and there.

These three political camps, each having a large following were summed up in the administration faction, under the leadership of Mayor James I. Giles, espousing the mortgage plan for the utilities. They maintained this scheme would pull the city through its financial straits of despondency at the same time retain this municipal asset, which they claimed could be repossessed by the city after present bonds are paid.

Vigorously opposing the administrative ranks was the Taxpayers' League, headed together under definite leadership and calling for the defeat of all plans which would seek disposal of the power unit.

Under the leadership of Frank L. Ferguson, chairman, Dr. E. D. Christ and others, the league sponsored numerous mass meetings in which administrative officials were taken to task by various speakers, many of whom denounced plans for lease, mortgage or sale. The third group espousing the lease plan, was led by Charles H. Mayer, Orlando business man and large property owner, who maintained that the city would derive the greatest benefits in this course of action. He repeatedly cited other cities which had followed this course and said that such cities as Philadelphia had found it not only feasible but profitable.

Mayer carried the fight directly to the utilities commission, charging that discrepancies existed in figures published by the utilities and in audits of the business.

To that letter Acting Secretary of State Castle replied two days later.

"All that is possible to say now is that no negotiations of any kind are going on. It is obvious that when the time comes the interest of New York will not be neglected."

OFFER IS MADE FOR OPERATION OF U. S. LINES

(Continued from Page One) guarantee adequate operating capital to meet the board's requirements of continued operation of the President Harding and the President Hoover between New York and Hamburg on present schedules. The board's specifications would allow the retirement of the Republic, America and George Washington from the United States Lines service, but would require continuation of the American Merchant Lines with its five vessels.

Transfer of the Republic to the War Department by Army transport service between the mainland and the Philippine Islands already has been arranged. It is assumed that the American and George Washington under the proposed arrangement would be lost.

The I. M. M. Roosevelt Line previously offering to meet specifications and provide about $1,000,000 for mortgages on the Lehigh, President Harding, President Roosevelt and American Merchant Lines vessels.

Rate Hike Seen As Detriment To Railway Income

Other trucks are being traded in the present time and while trucking companies are eager for business and in many instances are willing to make an investment under which they charge, it is not the goods of distribution do not bring their cost price at the point of origin plus the trucking charge.

Any increase in freight rates above the present level will simply increase the rapidly growing movement by trucks," said Melvin "There can be no question about that. If there is an increase in freight rates, our company is prepared to purchase 25 to 30 additional truck units many of which are mounted by parts of the staff."

Local and general interests in that protest with the consent of the board's representatives.

Recent estimates of the National Retail and Merchants' association and the New England Coal Dealers' association, told the commission that a guarantee was proposed to any increase.

The Lehigh Portland Cement company made the same representation, while the Standard Oil company of Kentucky, opposed the percentage increase and suggested a surcharge of $5 a car.
