Hijacker shot, passengers safe

RIO DE JANEIRO — Passengers held captive for eight hours on a Brazilian jetliner said the suspected "psychopath" who hijacked the plane wanted to "get even" with the government and settle a score with President Jose Sarney.

The hijacker, identified as Raimundo Alves da Silva, was shot dead by a U.S. aircraft and killed its co-pilot Thursday before he was seriously wounded in a shootout with police.

The pilot and two crew members were wounded during the eight-hour standoff, and the hijacker also suffered serious bullet wounds, but all 98 passengers emerged unharmed from the plane after da Conceicao left the aircraft in a bid to change planes and became caught in a firefight with security personnel.

Rowan case ends in mistrial

WASHINGTON — Syndicated columnist Carl Rowan's trial on charges of illegally possessing a pistol ended in a mistrial, and prosecutors must decide whether to retry him for using the gun to shoot a teenage intruder.

District of Columbia Superior Court Judge Arthur Burnett declared the mistrial Thursday in the second day of jury deliberations after the panel of five women and seven men said they were hopelessly deadlocked.

All okay with shuttle

Satellite launched, crew begins lab experiments

CAPE CANAVERAL — Following up a successful satellite launch, the crew of the first post-Challenger mission turned the shuttle Discovery into an orbital laboratory today for experiments ranging from material science to biology.

Discovery's five-man crew launched the 4,900-pound Tracking and Data Relay Satellite, or TDRS, at 5:50 p.m. EDT Thursday, six hours and 13 minutes after their triumphant 11:37 a.m. blastoff on the first American manned space flight in more than 2 1/2 years.

Capping the successful shuttle launch, the satellite's second-stage booster successfully fired at 12:07 a.m. today to put the relay station into its proper orbit 22,300 miles over the equator.

After about 50 days of on-orbit testing, the satellite, identical to one destroyed in the Jan. 28, 1986, Challenger disaster, will work with another TDRS already in orbit to improve communications between shuttle crews, ground control and other spacecraft.

"The TDRS deploy could not have been better today," said a NASA spokeswoman.

Discovery's crew — commander Frederick Hauck, 47, co-pilot Richard Covey, 42, John "Mike" Lounge, 42, David Hilmers, 38, and George "Pinky" Nelson, 38 — was awakened today about 5:37 a.m. by a taped message from comedian Robin Williams provided by a Houston radio station, NASA said.

Hauck said, adapting a line from his movie "Good Morning, Vietnam." "Rise and shine, boys, time to start doing that shuttle shuffle. You know what I mean? Hey! Here's a little song coming from the billions of us to the five of you. Rick, start 'em off baby, the Hauckster, to you!"

The astronauts then were entertained by the theme song from the television series "Green Acres," with suitably modified lyrics. Hauck thanked mission control for the entertainment and the crew got down to work, facing a relatively light schedule for the remainder of their four-day flight.

Nelson activated two experiments early today — one to obtain ultra-pure protein samples in the weightlessness of space with a technique called "isoelectric focusing" and the other to find out if low gravity can help produce lighter, stronger metals.

Hauck the modest type

This is the fifth in a five-part series profiling the Discovery crew. Today, Frederick Hauck.

UPI Feature

Veteran shuttle skipper Frederick Hauck, known for his ability to "analyze coolly in a tight situation," does not see himself as a hero, despite the obvious risk of riding into orbit aboard a space shuttle.

He is simply doing his job, a job that has carried him into space twice before and one that has cast him in the role of commander of the shuttle Discovery for the first post-Challenger flight.

And if he is a hero for risking his life for the good of the society, then so are countless other Americans.

"You know, I've been thinking about that. People ask, what's a hero?" Hauck asked during an interview. "I think folks who are in this program are potentially heroes. I think the folks who serve in the military are heroes. I think people, policemen or women, firemen or women, people who are willing to risk security for the better good of society are heroes."

"Teachers, teachers who are not paid very well and who go into an arena of hostile youngsters who maybe haven't been given the proper guidance, they're heroes, because they are not satisfied to live off society. They are contributing to society."

Seminole will receive money from settlement

From staff, wire reports

SANFORD — Seminole County school officials said today they want to use their portion of the state's $32 million settlement from dairy companies to help defray future price increases for school lunches.

Eldon Chambers, director of food services, said that will be the recommendation to the school board.

"That would be the best way to get dollars back to the customer, which is where it should go," Chambers said.

The settlement, announced yesterday, is part of a 2 1/2-year investigation and lawsuit into the alleged fixing of milk prices by several companies selling to Florida school districts.

Neither Chambers nor representatives from the other 31 Florida school districts involved have any information on the amount or time frame for receiving funds. State Attorney General Bob Butterworth said it could take up to two years before a formula for distribution is made and the money returned to individual districts.

"Florida schools have just won the lottery," Butterworth said. According to the attorney general, the settlement is the largest ever reached by a state operating on its own. "We hope the size of these recoveries will cause future vendors to think twice before they sit in a room and conspire to impose inflated prices on Florida's taxpayers," he said.

On Wednesday, Borden Inc. of Columbus, Oh., became the last and hardest hit company to settle, when it agreed to pay $10.4 million. Also agreeing to settlements Wednesday were Flav-O-Rich of Louisville, Ky., at $1.6 million, and Kraft (Sealed) of Chicago at $1.8 million.

Several companies had already reached agreements including Pet Dantes Inc. of St. Louis at $1.7 million, and Southland Corp. of Dallas at $9.6 million. The suit had charged that companies artificially controlled prices for at least 10

SANFORD — Community leader Douglas Stenstrom, a former county court judge, state senator and descendant of pioneer settlers of the area, retires today from the Sanford law firm he founded 31 years ago.

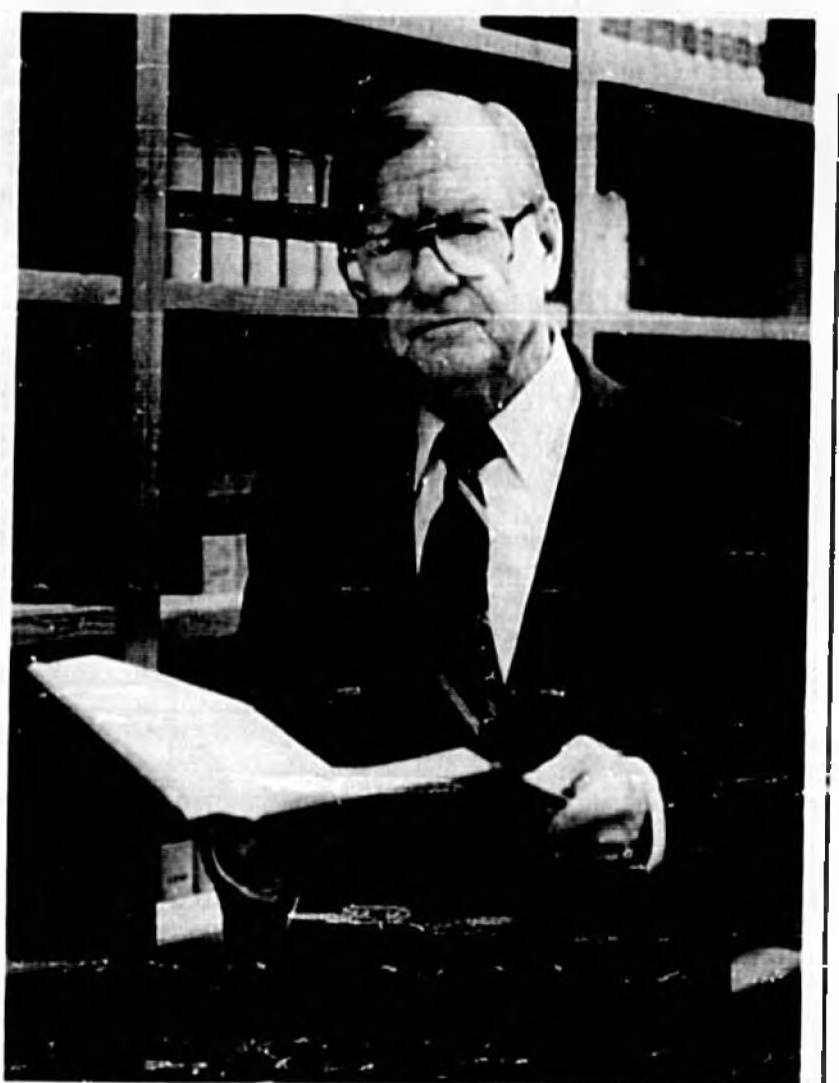

"I will no longer be practicing law, but I will be of counsel to the firm," he said yesterday. He is senior partner of Stenstrom, McIntosh, Julian, Colbert, Whigham and Simmons, located in the Sun Bank building downtown.

"I will be available to members of the firm and (taking care) of matters relating to the operation of our professional association," said Stenstrom. He has specialized in estate planning and probate law for 31 years.

A distinguished community figure, the wall in his office supports a host of awards and degrees.

Stenstrom, 67, is a descendant of Swedish pioneers who were some of the first settlers in this area. In an easy, steady tone, he tells the story of how his grandfather was one of the first Swedes to come over when General Henry Shelton Sanford commissioned workers to help out in his citrus groves in the later part of the 19th Century. His grandfather, he relates, married the Swedish schoolteacher that the general

Webster files suit opposing charter

By J. MARK BANFIELD

SANFORD — Bob Webster, who successfully challenged the validity of the Orange County Charter, filed a lawsuit Thursday to remove the proposed Seminole County charter referendum from the Nov. 8 ballot.

Webster, a member of the Seminole County Charter Advisory Committee, charges that Seminole County officials have disregarded technical requirements governing adoption of ordinances and charters. "It was a total, a flagrant disregard of state laws," said Webster, whose committee wrote the charter.

In his five-point suit filed in Seminole Circuit Court, Webster charged county files did not contain a complete copy of the charter adoption and referendum ordinance on file in compliance with state statutes. A copy of the advertisement announcing a public hearing to consider the ordinance must be kept in a special file in the county records office, according to law.

Webster said that means the full ordinance — including the attached charter — should be kept in the file so the public could learn the details of both.

The county had a copy of the hearing notice advertisement and a copy of the charter adoption ordinance in the file, but not the charter itself. The charter document itself was added to the file on Sept. 16, when assistant county attorney Bob McMillan said he agreed to a request to do so from county records

Police put explosive in couple's bag

MIAMI - Metro-Dade County police training German shepherds to sniff out explosives from suitcases accidentally left an explosive in an unclaimed bag that was then returned to its owners the next day, officers said Thursday.

No one was injured by the mistake, and officers said the device could not have exploded without a blasting cap.

The officers told a news conference they have been training the dogs by using unclaimed baggage at Miami International Airport without a hitch since 1975.

Tuesday night, officers put two cardboard cylinders of ammonium nitrate gel - 7 inches long and 4 inches in diameter - into unclaimed bags from Eastern Airlines at an airport facility.

After a training exercise involving four German shepherds, the officers forgot to remove the explosives from one of the bags. The bag was returned to the unclaimed baggage facility.

$1.1 million AIDS settlement for brothers

TAMPA - An out-of-court settlement giving $1.1 million to the family of three AIDS-exposed children barred from a public school should help deter other schools from acting on misinformation about the fatal disease, a lawyer for the family said.

Clifford and Louise Ray had charged their sons' civil rights were violated when DeSoto County school officials banned the boys from elementary school classrooms in 1986 and 1987.

The Ray brothers - Ricky, 11, Robert, 10, and Randy, 8, all hemophiliacs - and their parents also were burned out of their home in the DeSoto county town of Arcadia in an unsolved arson fire Aug. 28, 1987. Soon after the boys were barred from county schools.

Under the settlement with the school board, each of the three children will receive $98,332 over 10 years, Greenberg said. Parents Clifford and Louise Ray will each receive $170,546 over 30 years and $487,500 for court costs, lawyer fees and a lump sum for the family.

Death sentence upheld for killer

TALLAHASSEE - The Florida Supreme Court upheld the death sentence given Roy Clifford Swafford, a former Eagle Scout, for the Feb. 15, 1982, rape and murder of an Ormond Beach convenience store clerk.

In a 5-2 ruling, the high court rejected arguments that Swafford's first degree murder conviction was tainted when an acquaintance, Ernest Johnson, was allowed to testify Swafford tried to lead him into a similar crime two months later.

In a dissent joined by Chief Justice Raymond Ehrlich, Justice Rosemary Barkett said the statement "neither proved that Swafford had killed in the past nor was it relevant to any issue at trial, except to show criminal propensity and character," and was therefore inadmissible evidence.

But in an unsigned opinion, the court majority ruled the testimony was relevant because Swafford's statement "was in response to a serious question posed by Johnson following Swafford's concrete proposal of a serious criminal act."

Engineer sues Saudi Arabia for torture

MIAMI - A south Florida electrical engineer who claims Saudi Arabian torturers broke his back and legs while he was working abroad in 1984 has filed a lawsuit in Miami against the Saudi government.

Scott Nelson, 34, formerly of Davie, is seeking more than $250,000 in compensation for his injuries, medical bills and legal expenses.

Nelson was an engineer for Hospital Corp. of America working at King Faisal Specialist Hospital in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, in 1984. He said he notified Saudi officials about grease leaks in hospital valves which were harmful to the patients.

"I started making noise about it and three days later I was arrested," Nelson said. "I was never charged with anything. I was never taken to court. I became a human football for five Saudis."

Nelson said he was sent to a Saudi jail in September 1984 and spent 30 days there, never knowing the charges.

Pizza chain sued in deliveryman's death

ORLANDO - The brother of a Moroccan college student murdered while working as a pizza deliveryman is suing the Domino's pizza chain for at least $6 million, claiming the company fails to protect employees.

Samir Lyoubi, 29, was shot to death in September 1987 during a delivery to a hotel room. He used money from the job to help support his family back in Morocco while he attended the University of Central Florida.

The Ann Arbor, Mich., pizza company could not comment because none of its officials have yet seen the suit, said spokesman Ron Hings. Lyoubi was one of seven Domino's deliverymen killed nationwide last year.

Spectators: 'Go! Go! Go!'

By ORVAL JACKSON United Press International

TITUSVILLE - Thousands of cheering spectators gazed skyward as the space shuttle Discovery took off Thursday on its four-day mission to put the United States back in the business of manned space flight.

Discovery, blasting off from the Kennedy Space Center at 11:37 a.m. EDT, rose on a billowing tower of exhaust with the screams of as many as 1 million spectators who lined the highways and riverbanks near the spaceport.

"Go! Go! Go!" people yelled as if their voices alone could push the shuttle into space.

"Back to flying!" Russell Martin shouted to no one in particular.

Martin and his wife, Dorothy, left their Titusville, Fla., home at 1:35 p.m. Thursday at 4 a.m. Thursday to watch the launch from a grassy spot on the western bank of the Indian River, 10 miles from Pad 39B.

"It was worth the trip," Dorothy Martin said. "It was an awesome sight. At first I felt fear. It was a warm feeling when you saw it was up and going well."

That fear was almost palpable in the crowd, 32 months and one day earlier, the space shuttle Challenger, launched from Pad 39B, exploded 73 seconds into its flight. A leak in Challenger's right solid rocket booster caused the explosion that killed the seven crew members.

Mindful of the boosters' role in Challenger's doom, Thursday's spectators withheld their loudest cheers through the two minutes between launch and the booster separation.

A little puff, and the sight of Discovery flying freely into the Florida sky, told the spectators the shuttle was clear of Challenger's danger. Shouts of joy filled the air as the crowd, noticeably relieved, stood and watched the shuttle for another two minutes until it vanished.

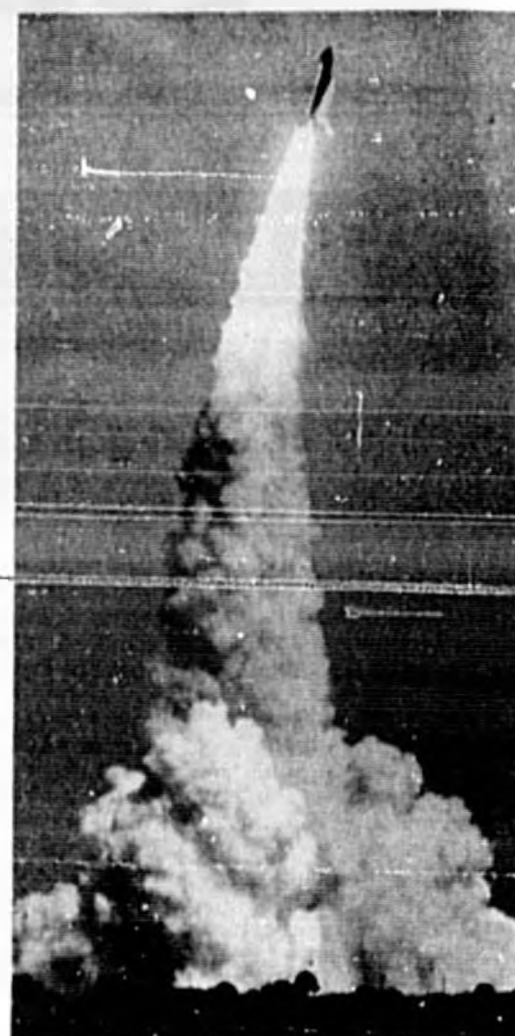

"I feel very proud," said Ronald Blue of Danville, Pa. "It was a great accomplishment. I hope it does that well all the way through."

The wait for launch began early Thursday: by 6 a.m., the NASA Causeway, leading into the space center, was choked with traffic. As the morning dragged on, spectators turned their vigil into a party. Some people cooked on small grills; many followed the countdown by radio. Children napped in car trunks.

Launch, which had been scheduled for 9:59 a.m. EDT, was delayed because of too-light winds in the upper atmosphere. Lillian Mahler of Ormond Beach, Fla., said she was concerned during the wait but said she felt proud as she watched the shuttle disappear.

"It appeared to be much smoother [than previous launches]," added her husband, James. "It seemed to be going strong and at 30 seconds, I felt confident they were on their way."

Moments after the spacecraft disappeared from view, highways became moving parking lots and most of the campers were gone within an hour. By then, heavy clouds, winds and rain - which would have prevented a launch - moved across the "space coast," kicking up whitecaps on the Indian River.

Discovery's cargo vital to future space missions

By WILLIAM HARWOOD United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL - The 2 1/2-ton satellite Discovery carried into space Thursday is a $100 million tracking and data relay satellite identical to one destroyed in the Challenger disaster Jan. 28, 1986.

Once in operation after two months of testing, the satellite known as TDRS will put mission control in near-continuous contact with shuttle crews and allow NASA to shut down ground stations in Australia, Chile, Hawaii, Guam, Africa and on Ascension Island in the Atlantic Ocean.

"Right now, with one TDRS in orbit, we can cover 50 percent of the orbit," said TDRS project manager Dale Harris. "With two, we'll be able to get 85 percent."

Another TDRS is scheduled for launch from Discovery in February to take over for TDRS-1, which will become an orbit spare stationed over 79 degrees west longitude. Ultimately, TDRS-1 will be replaced by a new spacecraft in the $3.5 billion program.

The TDRS satellites are owned by Comtel Federal Systems. They were built by TRW Inc., of Redondo Beach, Calif., and leased by NASA for $20 million a year.

The satellites, with solar panels spanning 57 feet from tip to tip when in operation, are the largest orbital communications stations ever built and by far the most sophisticated. They are designed to relay messages and commands between the shuttle, ground control and other satellites.

Equipped with classified encryption circuits, the TDRS satellites are crucial for Defense Department shuttle missions, as well as for command and control of new spy satellites.

They also are a critical element in NASA's space science program in that most modern science satellites, including the $1.4 billion Hubble Space Telescope, were built with TDRS communications and control in mind.

State to open centers for license renewal

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE - The Florida Division of Drivers License said Thursday it will open 16 express centers for license renewals next month in Eckerd Drug stores in an effort to trim delays experienced by applicants.

License renewals usually take five minutes, but drivers have reported waiting more than an hour at state drivers license offices, said Glenn Blocker, the division's assistant director.

Plans for the express centers came after the division began a pilot program at two Eckerd Drug stores in Pinellas County.

Blocker said.

"Eckerd offered us space in other stores throughout the state and we took them up on their offer," he said.

The division plans to open 16 express centers in Eckerd stores and one in the Dade County Courthouse by mid-October, said Jim Watkins, a specialist with the division's bureau of field operations.

The offices will be limited to renewals, and offer eye examinations, written tests and new licenses with color pictures, Blocker said.

"These stores will not conduct driving tests," he said.

Drivers applying for their first Florida license will be referred to the full-service licensing offices. Last year, the state issued more than three million licenses, of which 1,983,641 were renewals.

The division currently operates three express offices, including two in Pinellas and one in Broward County. Plans call for three other offices in Broward, two additional offices in Pinellas, four in Dade and two each in Duval, Hillsborough, Manatee and Sarasota counties.

Watkins said the state will hire 27 people to operate the centers

Under the program, the state provides personnel and Eckerd provides space for free.

Eckerd agreed to expand the program because customers responded favorably to the pilot centers, said Eckerd spokesman Michael Zagora.

"We might be able to provide a convenient site for our customers and for people who will be our customers," he said.

"If they are customers of ours, it's another service we can offer. If they're not customers of ours, it's an opportunity to give people a chance to come into our stores," Zagora said.

Deputies said they found the smoker and a club, a knife and a poker hidden in Feather's car, but in easy reach of occupants of the vehicle.

Utz is accused of stealing a $340 video recorder from a house at 129 Continental Blvd., at about 1:15 a.m. Thursday. Witnesses helped deputies locate the suspects.

Air conditioning bids by October

SANFORD — Linda Williams, interim Sanford Housing Authority executive director, said today that bids should be received in October on air conditioning for all 100 Redding Gardens Apartments next month.

Williams said she has received approval from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to extend the deadline for spending approximately $83,000 on Sept. 30 — today — until Oct. 19, the next opening for air conditioning bids is Oct. 18. The SHA was in danger of losing the money, left over from other projects, because it had received no bids for the air conditioning project.

Williams said if an acceptable bid is not received to air condition even a portion of the apartments, she will recommend Authority members seek approval from HUD to either use a portion of the SHA operating grant or to re-apply for another comprehensive emergency assistance program grant from HUD.

Radicals hurl firebombs at U.S. military compound, avoid Olympic athletes, village

United Press International

SEOUL, South Korea — Small groups of radicals, riding a wave of anti-American sentiment, hurled firebombs at an American military compound and protested at the U.S. Embassy today as Olympics officials assured athletes the men's information on the last day of the Games will be well guarded.

Five young radicals hurled 14 firebombs at the entrance of a U.S. military motor pool in Seoul, starting a minor fire that caused some damage but no injuries, a U.S. Army spokesman said. The perpetrators fled.

An hour later, five other students attempted to enter the U.S. Embassy compound to deliver a letter calling for the release of 700 political prisoners held by South Korean authorities. The embassy was surrounded by 100 officers and the students were dragged away.

Neither incident occurred near any Olympic facility.

The National Police moved a bomb disposal squad from the Olympic volleyball venue to the International Broadcast Center, where NBC television has 1,200 workers bearing the largest Olympics ever back to the United States.

The network has been part of an unusually strong public display of anti-American sentiment by Koreans. The two are close allies in strategically important North Asia.

A series of embarrassing gaffes by U.S. athletes and charges from Korean media and officials that NBC's coverage of the country is biased has caused Koreans at the Games to show hostility toward Americans.

Korean spectators booed American athletes and domestic newspapers issued criticisms of American manners and perceived condescending attitudes toward Koreans. No Americans have been directly threatened.

Prosecutors today dropped charges against U.S. swimming gold medalists Troy Dalbey and Doug Gjersten, arrested last week for taking a $900 decorative mask from a local bar. Charges were also dropped against runner Johnny Gray who kicked and damaged a taxi cab during a dispute.

Yoo Song-su, of the Seoul Prosecutor's Office, said the Dalbey-Gjersten case would be dropped "in the interest of U.S. Korea relations."

President Gromyko retires; 3 Politburo members removed MOSCOW — President Andrei Gromyko retired from the ruling Politburo today and three other members were removed from their posts in a major Kremlin shakeup of the Communist Party leadership.

Gromyko, 79, asked the Central Committee for permission to retire and his request was granted. Central Committee member Vadim Medvedev told reporters after a hastily called meeting convened in Moscow.

Mikhail Solomentsev, 70, a full member of the Politburo was relieved of his duties. Vladimir Dolgikh and Petr Demichev were removed from their positions as alternate, or non-voting members of the Politburo. Medvedev said.

Anatoly Dobrynin, 68, Soviet ambassador to the United States for 24 years, was retired at his request from his position as a secretary of the Central Committee. His request was also granted.

The Central Committee announced that party secretaries Alexandra Ilyukova and Anatoly Lukyanov were appointed alternate members of the Politburo and that Medvedev was made a full member of the ruling body.

The sweeping changes emerged from the session hastily called by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in an apparent bid to revive the momentum of his program of economic reform and to make deep cuts in the Communist Party bureaucracy.

The suddenness of the meeting and the conspicuous one-month public absence of Politburo member Yegor Ligachev, considered Gorbachev's main conservative opponent, had sparked expectation of Politburo changes.

Diplomats had said Gorbachev was eager to rid the Politburo of aging veterans such as Solomentsev and Gromyko, leftovers from the conservative and non-reformed era of the late leader Leonid Brezhnev.

The actions taken by the Central Committee were expected to be rubber stamped by the Supreme Soviet, or Parliament, at its plenary meeting Saturday morning.

Georgi Kryuchkov, a member of the Central Committee, said the one-day meeting was called to investigate a 50 percent reduction in the number of organizations now operated by the Communist Party.

The official Tass news agency said the plenary session of the 300-member Central Committee was opened by Gorbachev, who delivered a report on the progress of reorganizing party work. No further details were given.

Kryuchkov said the aim of Gorbachev's reforms was to cut back on the power of non-elected party bureaucrats, who have taken control of elected government bodies and are interfering with the economic management of industry.

"The idea of the structural change is to abandon parts of the party apparatus that parallel appropriate government and managerial bodies. We must rule out situations where the party apparatus assumes the functions of an elected body," he told Radio Moscow. He said the party "must be subordinate" to elected bodies.

"We shall be closing down departments paralleled within the state structure. I believe that the number of structures in the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, the Central Committees of the Communist Party of Soviet republics and territorial party committees will be halved," he said.

Although the exact number of people employed by the party is not known, it is responsible for 402,000 primary organizations throughout the country.

Police search for suspect in similar crimes

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Police are searching today for a man believed to be involved in overnight attacks on a 75-year-old woman and a 7-year-old girl.

Altamonte Springs police said the elderly woman was awakened about 10:15 p.m. Thursday by a man who was in her bed choking her. The attacker fled, taking money from the woman's house.

By midnight, police believe the same suspect entered a house in the Spring Oaks subdivision and attempted to abduct a 7-year-old girl. The kidnapper was startled, dropped the child and fled, police said.

A short time later, an Altamonte Springs man chased an intruder from his house. Police believe that burglar may be the same man who attacked the woman and child.

Expressway undergoing fine-tuning

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Seminole County Expressway Authority members approved several interchange modifications Wednesday, including an additional access for Jetta Way in Oviedo that may affect a proposed commercial development.

Expressway authority members unanimously approved a right of way reservation for the additional access ramp, which would extend from the proposed expressway to a point along Jetta Way, near the approved site of the State Road 434 interchange.

That access route will be reconsidered next month if the property owners affected provide an alternate route, the authority said.

Tom Deppen, attorney for the property owners, said many of the 26 owners live out of state or were out of the country when the authority mailed notices to them of the proposed change. He said those owners were not aware of the changes and would want to review them.

Oviedo plans to change 52 acres from agricultural to commercial uses at the interchange through which the new Jetta Way access ramp would pass. City councilmen delayed rezoning on the land Monday night for up to 60 days to allow the Seminole County Expressway Authority (SCEA) to refine its plans, said Gerald Britton, SCEA executive director.

In other changes, SCEA members approved a shorter ramp to enter southbound lanes of the proposed expressway from Airport Boulevard in Sanford. The purpose is to allow access to the expressway from the proposed Americana Boulevard for residents living south of Airport Boulevard.

An earlier design cut through the Americana Boulevard right of way, which would have prevented access to those residents, said Britton.

The change is a fine-tuning of a plan approved last month which saved Sanford Plaza and other commercial properties at the expressway-U.S. Highway 17-92 interchange.

Earlier interchange plans called for demolition of several structures, but a redesign suggested by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce saved some of them by re-routing the expressway entrance and exit ramps behind them or to Airport Boulevard.

The authority also approved a new interchange design at the Lake Mary Boulevard extension and County Road 427. That would allow easier expressway and Interstate 4 access to the Sanford Airport, according to the authority.

By allowing limited access roads, both north and south bound, from the expressway and crossing both CR 427 and the Lake Mary Boulevard extension under construction, traffic easily can access the airport by Silver Lake Drive. Airport officials envision Silver Lake as the future main entrance, Britton said.

Britton said north and south access ramps to CR 427 which will complete the interchange redesign, might be built after the interchange is completed and if they are needed by the airport.

Discovery's crew restores morale

Amid the pride and exhilaration felt by all with the successful launch of the shuttle Discovery, Americans are also exhaling a collective sigh of relief. After 32 months of recuperation, NASA is back on track, and the green light for the blizzard was also a "go" for further space greatness.

The space program is a personal matter with Central Floridians that dates back to the late 1950s with the buildup of the space center in neighboring Brevard County. Seminole County residents are accustomed to watching launches by looking south. Many remember the efforts of the charter members of the astronaut corps — including the sub-orbital launch, May 5, 1961, of Alan B. Shepard, Jr., the nation's first man in space.

The memory of the seven martyred Challenger astronauts will never be forgotten, but the names of Frederick Hauck, George Nelson, Richard Covey, Mike Lounge and David Himers are also etched now on the roll of heroes.

As the words "Go with throttle up," resounded yesterday, the phrase was a chilly reminder to the hearers of the last words to Challenger. The confident reply of flight commander Frederick Hauck: "Roger, go," restored America's confidence in the space program, and in itself.

The flightways to outer space are strewn with the souls of men and women who have sacrificed their lives that an American dream might live. The test pilots of the 1940s and 1950s "stretched the envelope" continually for greater heights and speed. The astronauts, beginning with the trio burned in the capsule in 1967 and continuing to the crew of the Challenger, gave their lives with the conviction that what they were doing was important. All these heroes should serve as constant reminders that the path to outer space is a dangerous trail and all who venture forth risk all every time.

If the current Discovery mission follows the script of the first 24 shuttle orbits, landing on Monday will be on schedule and all crewmen will be safe. This should not introduce a new era of complacency, of assuming that all will always be safe. The threat of death will continue to exist.

The success of Discovery should be the occasion for a revitalized commitment by America to both manned and unmanned space exploration, including a commitment to the orbiting space station. Though much still remains to be discovered on Mother Earth, outer space is the last frontier.

School teacher Christa McAuliffe gave her life even as she administered her countrymen to "Reach for the stars." This must become the guidewords of the nation's space program.

The legacy of Reagan's foreign policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ronald Reagan is winding up his presidency less hawkish than when he began. Peace is wonderful. His policies, he has decided, work.

Reagan came into office believing that a little nuclear war in Europe, using tactical weapons in the field, would not wipe out the world. The uproar over those remarks caused him to change his tune.

His nemesis from the beginning was the Soviet Union or the "evil empire" that he denounced in 1983. But as time went on, Reagan began to change his tune. He decided that a nuclear war should not be fought and could not be won.

With the deaths of the old line leaders in the Soviet Union, change was apparent as a new face, Mikhail Gorbachev, appeared. Gorbachev, a pragmatist, also decided that a nuclear collision was out of the question.

By late 1985, a new era of superpower summitry had begun. Reagan started a policy that his predecessors might have initiated a lot sooner, and he found the world receptive to moves to reduce nuclear arsenals.

The achievement of a new arms agreement with Moscow is the jewel in Reagan's foreign policy crown. In retrospect, he has had some victories and some defeats.

In supporting the Afghan rebels, a policy initiated by President Jimmy Carter, Reagan kept the pressure on the Soviets, who threw in the towel and are now withdrawing their forces in Afghanistan.

He also counts a strong NATO, the invasion of Grenada and the bombing of Libya as his foreign policy pluses. In using force, he believes that he established U.S. determination to act in its interests.

His decision to build up naval forces in the Persian Gulf to assist the oil rich emirates, who were threatened by the Iran-Iraq war, also contributed to the cease fire there.

The president also has been an ardent abhorrence of economic freedom and refers to China as an emerging capitalist nation. The new U.S.-Canada free trade accord, if the Canadian Parliament concurs, also is a test-ment to Reagan's philosophy.

The no-win situations in Africa, where both superpowers have aided opposing sides, may also be resolved soon to end the bloodshed.

Some of Reagan's policies have failed. For the past eight years, he has sought to dethrone the Marxist-led Sandinista government in Nicaragua. In his valedictory speech to the United Nations General Assembly, Reagan said he wanted to take note "of the one exception to progress in regional conflicts."

After sending a peacekeeping force to Lebanon following the Israeli invasion, Reagan decided the price was too high. The bombing of the American Embassy and the Marine barracks there signaled a time for retreat.

The better part of value was in order, and he pulled out. So much in the Middle East turmoil on the back burner that Reagan devoted only one sentence to the Arab-Israeli conflict in his U.N. address. And in listing human rights violations in various parts of the world, he did not mention the Palestinians.

As for the American hostages in Lebanon, the president said he has "high hopes" and is keeping his fingers crossed. But despite his optimism, aides rushed around to caution White House reporters against taking Reagan literally.

The better part of value was in order, and he pulled out.

U.S. sanctions worries Mobil

WASHINGTON — Mobil Oil Corp., the largest American company remaining in South Africa, claims it will stay there as a positive force against apartheid. But one year ago, the company began weighing plans for a possible pull out.

"Mobil will not divest from South Africa, because it is obvious that this will not benefit South Africa, any of its people, Mobil's employees or its shareholders," says the company's literature.

But an internal Mobil document, which we have seen, proposed some immediate tactical moves that would allow the company eventually to sell its South African affiliates without incurring U.S. tax on the profits. The memo also described three contingency plans Mobil has for withdrawing from the country.

U.S. companies have been under pressure for years to withdraw their interests in South Africa as a way of forcing the country to end its policy of racial separation. Mobil's internal plans are noteworthy because of the public role the company has played in the debate over U.S. sanctions.

Mobil is among the most active lobbyists against strict sanctions pending in Congress. The giant oil company claims to be a force for change in South Africa and has maintained that its withdrawal would be counterproductive.

Members of a Mobil pullout panel circulated in January shortly after Congress repealed U.S. tax credits for American companies with subsidiaries paying taxes in South Africa.

An internal memo dated Dec. 18, from Mobil President Richard F. Tucker to Chief Executive Officer Allen E. Murray, suggested that the company could transfer its South African subsidiaries to the Island of Jersey in the English Channel. The memo also noted that a transfer would allow the company to avoid a capital gains tax on the proceeds from a future sale of the South African companies. It also discussed contingency plans for withdrawal.

That memo may sound like a wise hedge against inevitable sanctions, but it could come back to haunt Mobil. The Interfaith Center on Corporate Responsibility, a New York-based activist group and a leading proponent of divestment, plans to use the memo in its ongoing campaign to pressure Mobil to leave South Africa. The ICCR shared the memo with our associate, Scott Sleek. The group says it obtained the memo from a source inside the company.

"On the one hand, they (Mobil) argue that they must stay in South Africa to be a force for constructive change and that sanctions are irresponsible," said Tim Smith, ICCR executive director. "While, on the other hand, they are preparing options and contingency plans for pulling out of South Africa."

The ICCR campaign includes a call for a boycott of Mobil products.

The group contends that Mobil employees have not been consulted about the withdrawal plans. Union workers in South Africa have publicly supported U.S. divestment, but have demanded that the companies negotiate with them on the terms of withdrawal.

Peter A. Spina, Mobil's general manager for corporate, public and government relations, said that the company has to make contingency plans. "If Congress approves divestment, those plans include sale to a third party or distribution to the South African employees." "All of the things talked about in that memo are things that we have to talk about," he said.

Nelson said both devices appeared to be working properly, along with a 3M materials science machine and another experiment to study the behavior of red blood cells had completed its initial runs.

"We could hear it whirring and taking pictures all night long," Nelson told Houston.

One minor problem that developed today aboard the shuttle was a frozen cooling system. To thaw it out, the ship's big radiator panels in the cargo bay were allowed to run warmer than normal and cabin temperature soared to 88 degrees at one point.

The astronauts were told to drink more water to avoid becoming dehydrated, but they said they were comfortable.

"The cabin's a little warm," said flight director Charles Shaw. "These guys all live in Houston so they're used to that temperature. That's kind of a cool day here in Houston."

Hauck

Hauck, 47, speaks softly, with quiet assurance, and the listener has no doubt that this is a man who not only is "willing to risk security," but one who believes in the necessity of doing so.

But as might be expected, Hauck downplays the risk involved with taking off aboard Discovery, a shuttle that has been virtually rebuilt since the Challenger disaster. Even so, he admits the risk is real.

"We shouldn't have [many] surprises," he says, "but we'll have some mechanical failures, anything made by human beings will have some failures, particularly in the dynamic environment we fly this thing in."

As commander of such a high-visibility mission, Hauck clearly feels a responsibility to use the unavoidable publicity to vice the concerns of NASA and his crew over the deeper issues behind the space program.

He is especially concerned about risk and the ability of the nation to accept loss, a concern

ELLEN GOODMAN

Everyone's an expert now

BOSTON — For days we have heard about the handlers and strategists, the managers and debate coaches. We have heard about the height of the letters, the lighting and distance between the candidates.

There were profiles in the speechwriters who specialize in one-liners that would be delivered and polsters who tell them how to pitch to the undecideds. We even heard about the rehearsals when Dukakis and Bush were very well rehearsed. Who were they targeting? And in the Miami Herald, ordinary viewers said things like, "He had good one-liners." He seems to have a problem emulating. "He made himself more of a human being."

It reminded me of what a seasoned political reporter said to me just days ago. She went out into the heartland to find out what people were talking about this election year. She found out that they were talking about campaign strategy.

Maybe it's a sign of American content. No issue presses into our consciousness so strongly that it over shadows our view of politics this year as mere theater.

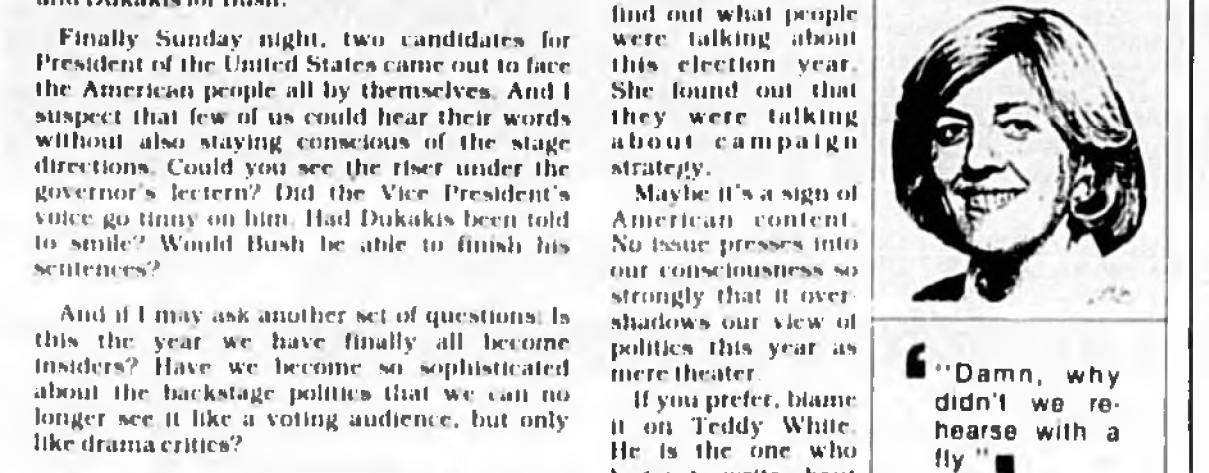

If you prefer, blame it on Teddy White. He is the one who began to write about the inner workings of presidential campaigns in 1960. Or blame it on the egos of those managers and strategists, coaches and handlers, speechwriters and campaign poll takers who are only too eager to let us all know how important their roles are.

But once, only the political junkies knew the language and the details of the "operatives." Now that inner circle has widened to include the great mass of voters. And as it widens, so inevitably does our cynicism about politics.

The more we hear about campaign strategies, the less we accept a candidate's leadership.

We think that the presidential candidates today are small, maybe it is not just because we see them up close and personal on a 19-inch screen. It may also be because every day we observe the directors and producers, and hear what they are trying to accomplish with this scene and that line.

Even this live debate carried the subtext of the whole 1988 campaign: Pay no attention to the man in front of the curtain.

He learns none. Streetman declares the vote unanimous. If he hears a vote against the measure, he states the name of the commissioner voting against the measure.

On Sept. 20, Streetman asked if there was any opposition to the charter adoption ordinance and no commissioners raised their voice in dissent. Streetman then declared the vote unanimous for the four commissioners present at the meeting.

Webster said because there was no affirmative vote taken — no commissioners specifically voted in favor of the ordinance — no vote actually occurred.

Market active, prices up

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which jumped 33.78 Thursday, was up 2.67 to 2131.98 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 539:293 among the 1,339 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 18,200,000 shares.

Stock prices surged Thursday as the market broke a string of lifeless sessions and pushed the Dow well beyond the recently formidable 2100 barrier.

"While this move was a surprise, it had been building for a while," said Ralph Johnson, director of technical research at Kidder, Peabody & Co.

"The leadership was in place when you look at the consumer, food, beverage and even financial stocks," Acampora said. "In addition, there appeared to be a realization that things aren't so bad" vis-a-vis the economy.

"There was no direct cause for the move with the exception of a stronger bond market," Acampora said. "But when you try to take a market down, as you've seen in recent days, and you can't, it says that things are apparently a lot stronger than previously thought. The advanced led on itself."

Dollar mostly lower; gold, silver open off

The dollar was mostly lower today against key foreign currencies in early trading on overseas and domestic currency markets. Gold also dipped.

In early trading in the Far East, the dollar slipped fractionally against the yen in light trading in Tokyo, closing at 134.30 yen, down 0.05 yen from Thursday's finish.

A dealer at a commercial bank said most dealers retreated to the sidelines ahead of the weekend. Another observer said trading was calm throughout the day except for some sell orders for the dollar placed by overseas participants near the close.

In Europe, the dollar started trading lower against the major European currencies.

The dollar started the day in Frankfurt at 1.8780 West German marks, down from Thursday's close of 1.8825.

The U.S. currency began the day in Zurich at 1.5905 Swiss francs, off from 1.5925; in Paris at 6.3920 French francs, down from 6.4045; in Brussels at 39.85 Belgian francs, off from 39.90; and in Milan at 1,400.25 Italian lire, down from 1,402.60.

In London the pound opened at $1.9870 up from $1.9825 on Thursday.

In early New York trading, the dollar was mixed against key foreign currencies. Most traders were interested in the pound, which is meeting strong resistance as it edges up toward the $1.7000 level.

choice and he's going over very well out there around the country. He'll do just fine in his presidential campaign."

Dukakis is campaigning in New Jersey Thursday, picked up by a successful libel but still traded barbs over Dukakis's plan to use more agents to collect delinquent taxes.

Bush, traveling in Michigan Thursday before heading to Connecticut and New Jersey today, also accused his Democratic opponent of "demeaning" attacks on GOP vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle, who next week debates Democratic vice presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen in Omaha, Neb.

The vice president said Dukakis's repeated claims that Quayle is unqualified to step into the Oval Office "is something I'm disappointed to see" shared by a majority of the public, according to the polls — "showed" "insecurity, a certain 'weakness' on Dukakis's part."

In Mount Clemens, Mich., Bush said Quayle "has my full confidence, and I made a good government has a hand in every pocket and a tax agent in every home."

"Too often the IRS treats American taxpayers as if they were guilty until proven innocent. And in a Bush administration, injustice in the tax office will not be tolerated by the president in the Oval Office."

Bush's comments drew the wrath of the IRS agents' union and a sharp rebuff from the Dukakis campaign.

In Washington, the head of the union that represents IRS workers called Bush's attack "bodyman politics that could lead to the furloughing of the nation's delinquent taxpayers at the expense of the honest 90 percent who pay voluntarily."

Robert Tobias, president of the National Treasury Employees Union, said Bush's remarks set the stage for "wholesale acceptance of the notion that it's OK to cheat on your taxes."

"Perhaps Bush's attack is based on the fact that he was forced to pay $106,000 in delinquent taxes," Tobias said.

Rozanski said copies of ordinances routinely are kept in the notice file as a courtesy to the public, except when the documents are bulky.

Webster also charged that county officials failed to properly advertise the charter referendum at least 45 days before the Nov. 4, 1986.

Webster caused the Orange County Charter to be voided last year, after the county officials advertised their referendum 43 days before the election.

At the request of Orange County officials, the state legislature this year passed an amendment that allows counties to advertise charter referendums the fifth week before the election. In the case of the upcoming Nov. 8 election, five weeks before would be the week of Oct. 2. Seminole County officials are using the five-week, not the 45-day, limitation which passed on Sept. 20.

But Webster contends the amendment was a special law, applicable only to Orange County.

He also charges that the county's adoption ordinance was illegal because it contained the charter adoption and referendum in the same ordinance. State law requires ordinances to

U.N. officials credit volunteers for Prize

U.N. officials said the 1988 Nobel Peace Prize awarded to U.N. peacekeeping forces is a tribute to the half-million volunteers who have served since 1948.

They greeted the announcement Thursday in Oslo, Norway, with dignified delight amid calls for financial support and pleas for the release of the kidnapped American chief of an observer force in Lebanon.

And members of the U.N. force in Lebanon drank champagne toasts when they learned the news.

Envoys fear renewed war in gulf

MANAMA, Bahrain — Western diplomats based in the Persian Gulf region are fearful that another round of fighting could erupt before permanent peace is achieved in the 8-year-old war between Iran and Iraq.

The failure of Iran and Iraq to make any progress in U.N.-sponsored peace talks, their current rearming fever and the remaining of troops on the 500-mile border have not reassured envoys to predict a renewal of hostilities in the bloody conflict between the two gulf adversaries.

In developments widely viewed as increasing the likelihood of renewed battle, Iran has moved three warships into the northern gulf and Iraq announced that it is developing a new weapon, shipping sources said.

Chile prohibits entry of Spanish singer

SANTIAGO, Chile — The military government has stopped a Spanish singer who acted "contrary" to national interest from entering Chile as an observer to next week's plebiscite on the continued rule of Gen. Augusto Pinochet.

The government denied singer Joan Manuel Serrat permission Thursday to enter the country. Serrat had recently made a videotape appearance on the opposition's nightly 15-minute television program a platform for urging a vote against Pinochet in the Oct. 5 plebiscite.

Col. Alfonso Rivas, secretary of government in Pinochet's military regime, said Serrat was prohibited from entering "for taking part in acts contrary to the interests of Chile."

Gorbachev calls surprise meeting

MOSCOW — Diplomats said Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev unexpectedly called a Communist Party Central Committee meeting today to jolt bureaucrats into action after he was bombarded on a weeklong trip to Siberia by complaints from irate common folk.

Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze rushed home Thursday from New York, and other Soviet officials cut short their travels, to attend a Central Committee plenum — called four weeks earlier than scheduled — to focus on political reforms approved in June at a special party conference.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Vadim Perfilov said the policy-making body's 300 members also were likely to enact deep cuts in the party's bloated bureaucracy.

Lack of repairs leads to inmate rebellion

United Press International

RICHMOND, Va. — The reluctance of state officials to spend $500,000 on a new lock system for the 19th-century State Penitentiary scheduled to close led to a tense 7 1/2-hour standoff between rebellious inmates and guards.

The estimated 65 inmates, who had their cells padlocked individually over the summer as the master locking system broke down, "were concerned about the locking system and our efforts to repair it," penitentiary operations manager Dwight Perry said after Thursday's incident.

When inmates refused an 8:10 p.m. order to return to their cells, guards armed with semiautomatic weapons ringed the catwalks, the troopers in riot gear moved in with billy clubs and police dogs.

Violence was averted, Perry said, because a show of force is often as effective as the use of force. "Good corrections management," he called it. No injuries or damage to the prison was reported.

There was no word on any concessions to inmates — the old padlocks were put back on the cells at the end of the incident — or any word on possible disciplinary action.

Inmates feared the antiquated system might leave some inmates trapped in their cells if a fire ever broke out.

The standoff began at 3 p.m. when the inmates refused to return to their cells for a routine head count. Yelling from behind razor wire at reporters gathered outside, they made pleas for the dinner that officials never served.

Panamanian officer charges U.S. smuggled weapons into country

United Press International

COLON, Panama — A senior Panamanian military officer has charged U.S. military weapons have been smuggled to Panama in violation of the 1977 Canal Treaty signed with the United States.

Lieutenant Col. Aquilino Siero, Panama's chief delegate to the combined Canal Defense Board, blasted the United States Thursday for what he called its "arrogant attitude" toward the treaty and said he would seek an explanation from his U.S. counterpart.

"For some time now, we have been concerned about U.S. unilateral action and their lack of recognition of the canal treaties," Siero said at a news conference in Colon, some 50 miles west of Panama City.

Siero said that during a routine customs inspection of a U.S.-flagged cargo ship, agents found a 105mm howitzer with a firing range of up to 38 miles and uncovered other combat materials in 50 containers. The ship was seized by customs officials when it stopped at Puerto Balboa La Mina, he said.

Siero said that two five-ton army combat trucks with mobile kitchen units and an unspecified number of jeeps and trailer units were among the weapons.

The exact destination of the combat materials was not immediately known, Siero said.

He said according to treaties regarding the Panama Canal, combat material can only be received at two ports in Panama — Puerto Balboa on the Pacific coast and Puerto Cristobal.

Unrest surrounds Arab funeral

UPI report

GAZA CITY, Israel-occupied Gaza Strip — Israeli troops firing rubber bullets wounded a Palestinian after angry youths taunted Israeli soldiers from rooftops as mourners prayed at a funeral for a respected Arab politician.

The funeral was held Thursday as an international arbitration panel in Geneva awarded most of a remote, Israeli-held slice of the Sinai Peninsula to Egypt but directed the two Middle East neighbors to negotiate an end to their 6-year-old border dispute.

The funeral of former Gaza Mayor Rashad Shawah was a test of strength among Israeli soldiers, older and more moderate Palestinian leaders symbolized by Shawah, and "shebab" — the angry young men who have fanned the flames of the nearly 9 1/2-month-old Palestinian uprising.

IN BRIEF

FOOTBALL

UCLA hopes to tame Huskies

Terry Donahue's Pacific-10 Conference accolades are well documented — four league titles, six straight bowl appearances, a perfect 3-0 record in the Rose Bowl.

But there is one major achievement Donahue has yet to accomplish — beating a Don James-coached Washington team in Seattle.

On Saturday, Donahue will get his chance as his second-ranked UCLA Bruins travel north to take on the 17th-ranked Washington Huskies.

A Bruin victory will put pressure on top-ranked Miami to roll in an impressive victory over lightly-regarded Missouri, 1-1-1. Missouri coach Woody Widenhofer knows the Hurricanes have the kind of defense that takes teams out of their game plans and forces them to gamble.

Southern California coach Larry Smith hopes the Arizona Wildcats won't give him a rude homecoming Saturday when the third-ranked Trojans travel to Tucson. Smith coached Arizona from 1980-1986 before coming to USC.

Elsewhere in the Top 10: fourth-ranked Auburn faces an easy task against winless North Carolina; Stanford's wide-open offense will challenge fifth-ranked Notre Dame; sixth-ranked West Virginia travels to Virginia Tech; seventh-ranked South Carolina takes on Appalachian State; Florida State, ranked eighth, visits Tulane; ninth-ranked Nebraska is at home against UNLV and 10th-ranked Oklahoma opens defense of its Big Eight title against Iowa State.

TENNIS

McEnroe outlasts Pugh

SAN FRANCISCO — Third-seed John McEnroe defeated last-year's runner-up Jim Pugh 7-5, 6-4 Thursday night to advance to the quarterfinals of the $425,000 TransAmerica Tennis Championships.

In a late match, Mikael Pernfors of Sweden defeated Jeff Tarango of Manhattan Beach, Calif., 1-6, 7-5, 6-1 and will meet 16-year-old Michael Chang of Placentia, Calif., in the quarterfinals.

McEnroe, 29, who has won the tournament five times, most recently in 1986, will meet Tim Wilkison, who defeated fifth-seeded David Pate 2-6, 7-6 (7-2), 6-3 in a first round match earlier in the day.

In the first set McEnroe, serving the 11th game, served three aces and hit a stretching four hand volley winner to lead 6-5, then broke Pugh's serve at love on two consecutive winners for the set win.

GOLF

Morning good to Sluman, Koch

COLUMBUS, Ga. — PGA champion Jeff Sluman and Gary Koch had early tee times in the opening round of the $400,000 Southern Open golf tournament — and the morning rounds proved an advantage.

Sluman and Koch, playing in his first event in three weeks, got their rounds in Thursday before afternoon winds picked up at the par-70, 6,792 yard Green Island Country Club course.

Sluman fired a 7-under-par 63, tying the tournament's opening — and record score, to take a three-shot lead over runner-up Koch.

He had six birdies in his first nine holes, carding a 6-under-par 30, and three on the back nine. He had two bogeys and three putted just once.

CROSS COUNTRY

County teams go separate ways

Seminole County cross country teams will go their separate ways in search of competition this Saturday.

Ritter jumps to gold medal

Bad baton pass disqualifies U.S. relay team

United Press International

SEOUL, South Korea — The most pleasant surprise of the Olympics for the U.S. track and field team was followed a couple of hours later by the biggest disappointment.

Louise Ritter gave the United States a gold medal it didn't expect today, winning her first international competition in nine years in the high jump. However, the team mood darkened considerably shortly after when the men's 4 x 100-meter relay team was disqualified in the preliminaries for a faulty baton pass.

The disqualification cost Carl Lewis a shot at his third gold medal of the Games. Although he didn't run in the preliminaries, Lewis would have been inserted for the final, with the United States favored. There was no disputing the decision by the U.S. team, which admitted its guilt.

"My hands started shaking and it was a bad handoff," said Lee McNeill, the team anchor who took the final handoff from Calvin Smith. "I was still thinking about it as I was running. Then I felt them (the rest of the field) coming and I took off. We were out of the box."

Since the 4 x 100 was introduced to the Olympics in 1912, the United States has won it 13 times, the only defeats coming in 1912, 1960 and 1988, all on disqualifications.

A jury of appeals rejected initial protests by Nigeria, the Soviet Union and France, but a further review of the appeal led officials to disqualify the Americans.

Kenneth Monday of Tulsa, Okla., and Bill Scherr of Mohridge, S.D., gave the United States two more medals in freestyle wrestling tonight. Montlay won the second gold medal of the competition for the U.S. team on a 3-point body lock takedown in overtime over Soviet world champion Allan Varayev in the 102 1/2-pound class. Scherr earned a bronze at 220 pounds by pinning East German Uwe Neupert at 3:31.

The United States also gained two medals in tennis, including a gold for Pam Shriver and Zina Garrison, and Jay Kiser won the gold medal in individual archery.

What was expected to be another gold medal for the United States, in men's basketball, passed instead to the Soviet Union today as it avenged a preliminary round loss by beating Yugoslavia, 76-63.

As an interesting sidelight to this game, there were encouraging reports that Sharunas Marchulionis, who led the winners with 21 points, could be playing in the NBA this season with the Atlanta Hawks.

Marchulionis said if he isn't allowed to play for the Hawks, "I would not play anywhere."

Ritter, carrying a reputation to Seoul that she was unable to win against world class competition, earned vindication by winning the high jump with an Olympic record 6 feet, 8 inches, equalling her American record. The 30-year-old Texan, winning her first international event since the 1979 Pan American Games, upset world record-holder Stelka Kostadinova of Bulgaria in a jumpoff. Tamara Bykova of the Soviet Union won the bronze.

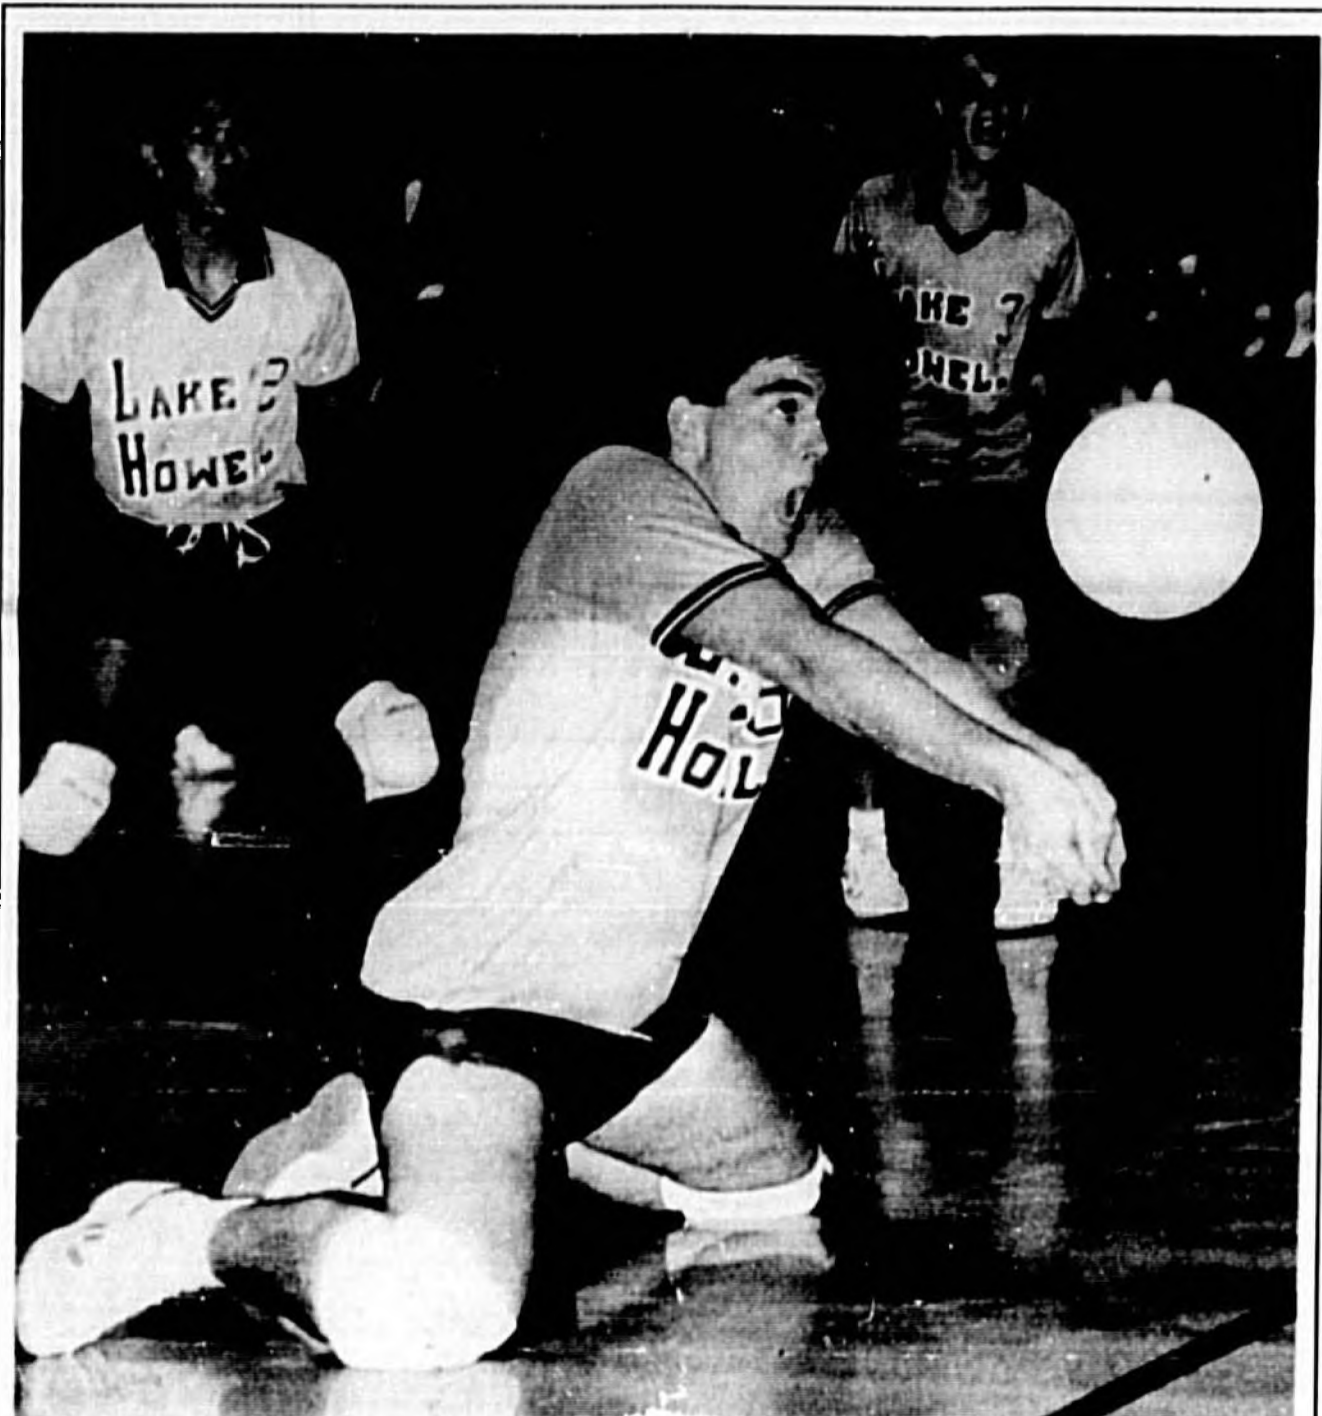

"I don't really feel I'm a big meet bad jumper but other people say I

Down for the dig

Lake Howell's Tom Martinez goes to his knees to dig out a Lake Mary spike Thursday night during boys volleyball action at Lake Howell. It was the most exciting boys match of the year as Lake Mary came away with a 15-13, 13-15, 16-14 victory. For details, see Page 2B.

Red Sox clinch tie in east

United Press International

CLEVELAND — The Boston Red Sox secured at least a tie for the American League East championship and moved within one victory of clinching their second division title in three seasons Thursday night with a 12-0 rout of the Cleveland Indians.

Mike Boddicker pitched 5 1/3 hitless innings before finishing with a three-hit shutout, allowing only four baserunners. Ellis Burks drove in four runs, three on a bases-loaded double that capped the Red Sox five-run second inning.

Boston's victory eliminated Detroit from the race and assured the Red Sox of at least tying New York, which defeated Baltimore, 5-1, and Milwaukee, which was idle. The Red Sox lead the Brewers by three games and the Yankees by 3 1/2.

Boston can clinch the division Friday night if it defeats Cleveland or if Oakland, the A.L. West fifth, beats Milwaukee and New York loses to Detroit. Friday night, the Red Sox will start Roger Clemens, 9-0 lifetime against the Indians.

Boddicker, 33 1/2, struck out three and walked one as the Red Sox ended their losing streak at three games, a sweep by Toronto at Fenway Park. The right-hander retired the first 16 batters before Brook Jacoby's one-out line single to center in the sixth. Terry Francona's leadoff single in the seventh was the other Cleveland hit, and he was the lone Indian to reach second. Ron Washington was out trying to stretch a single in the ninth.

Boddicker notched his first shut-out and fifth complete game. Red Sox pitchers have retired at least the first 14 batters in their last three games against the Indians. Mike Nichols, 1-7, absorbed the loss.

Hobbled SHS hosts Phillips

By MARK BLYTHE

SANFORD — Seminole High School's football team will attempt to patch together an inexperienced team that has been damaged by injuries to key players on both the offense and defense.

The Seminoles host a powerful Dr. Phillips team tonight in a prep gridiron match-up (7:30 p.m. kickoff). Seminole, 2-1, is coming off a 35-6 loss to Lake Mary and is looking to get back on the winning track. Dr. Phillips, 2-1, brings in a large team that has a powerful running attack. The Panthers can also pass the ball and have a pair of talented receivers.

Seminole is without its top running back Jerod Jones, who is out with a serious knee injury. Jones is not expected to return for four weeks as he underwent arthroscopic surgery this week.

"We're without Jerod and we've had to make a lot of adjustments," Seminole's Kevin Richardson will take on the offensive leadership role this week with Jerod Jones out with a knee injury.

Seminole coach Emory Blake said, "I'll just have to reach out and find some people to step up and fill his position, right now no one has firmly stepped into the slot but we're working with a few people."

Creek upends Lake Mary

DAYTONA BEACH — Port Orange Spruce, behind the passing of Paul Tomazin and the running of Chris Wilson, moved to 2-0 in District 5A-4, and 3-1 overall with a 20-13 victory over Lake Mary Thursday night before 1,001 fans at the new Daytona Beach Municipal Stadium.

Lake Mary dropped to 0-2 in the District and 1-3 overall. The next action for Spruce Creek will be next Friday at New Smyrna Beach, while Lake Mary is at home to take on Seminole Athletic Conference and District 5A-4 foe Longwood Lyman.

Spruce Creek, which is known for its strong running attack, unveiled a surprise passing attack featuring senior quarterback Tomazin who completed 8 of 10 passes for 132 yards and one touchdown. At one time he completed seven straight passes. His main targets were junior wide receiver Jimmy Morecraft and huge (6-5, 240-pound) tight end Hugo Ieremia who, between them, caught seven passes for 130 yards.

That's not to say that the Hawks' running game was not there as senior tail back Chris Wilson rushed 19 times for 128 yards and two touchdowns.

The Hawk defense was also strong as they held the leading rusher in Seminole County, Ray Williams, to 43 yards on 12 carries. The leading receiver in the county, Calvin Davis, was held to three catches for 12 yards, and the leading passer, Carlos Hartshel, completed only 8 of 19 passes for 68 yards and was also intercepted twice as Spruce Creek kept pressure on him all night.

The Rams had the first scoring drive of the game when, early in the second quarter, they took over on their own six and drove down to the Spruce Creek 37. But there the drive stalled and Dan Sacco lined up to punt. But Coach Harry Nelson called a fake punt and Sacco broke three tackles on his way to a 37 yard touchdown run. Alex Bird's extra point was good.

Lake Howell takes Rams to the limit

CASSELBERRY — If Thursday night's match is a glimpse of things to come, boys volleyball definitely has a place in Florida high school athletics.

Lake Howell's Silver Hawks and Lake Mary's Rams locked up in a thrilling back-and-forth battle Thursday and it was the Rams who came out on top of a 13-15, 15-13, 16-14 decision at Lake Howell High.

"I think this is the best thing that could have happened to us," Lake Mary coach Bill Whalen said. "We were winning our matches pretty easily until tonight. Now the kids know they have competition."

Lake Mary ran its record to 6-0 overall and 5-0 in the SAC. Lake Howell now stands at 3-2.

"Our guys were really fired up and I don't think Lake Mary expected that kind of a match," Lake Howell coach Christy Scott said. "The main thing was the guys played under control. It was a real good team effort."

Lake Howell was led by the hitting of Pat Regan and the setting of Greg Davis in the opening game win while Todd Carlson, Scott Pasual and Tom Martinez did an excellent job on the back row digging up Lake Mary's spikes.

The Rams changed their lineup around a bit in game two and it worked to their advantage as Steve Kostowicz came in and put down some good hits and Lake Mary built up a 5-0 lead in game two but Lake Howell hung tough and later came back to tie it at 12-12. The Hawks then had a 14-12 lead and were serving for the match when Lake Mary got a sideout and tied it. The Rams then got another sideout and closed out the match.

Duce Vines, Jason Sewell, Matt Sloan and Matt Rapp were the leading Rams in game three.

"I really have to give a lot of credit to Lake Howell's coach," Whalen said of Scott. "She did an excellent job preparing them for the match."

In one other boys game on Thursday, Oviedo's Lions roared to a 15-3, 15-3 victory over DeLand. It was the first SAC victory for the Lions while DeLand remained winless.

Lake Howell coach Christy Scott has a word with her team during a timeout. Scott's troops took powerful Lake Mary to the limit Thursday night before bowing out in three games.

Lake Brantley looks to remain unbeaten in 5A-4 play as it hosts the winless Mainland Buccaneers (8 p.m.).

Apopka's Blue Darters hope to avoid the upset bug as they go to Orlando to play Boone's Braves (8 p.m.).

LAKE HOWELL AT LYMAN

This is a matchup featuring the county's top defensive team, Lake Howell's Silver Hawks, with the most productive offensive squad, Lyman's Greyhounds.

The Hawks, 2-0 overall and 1-0 in the district, have allowed just 10 points in two games, a 10-3 victory over Apopka and 14-7 over DeLand. The defense has some of the top talent in the area anchored by linebacker Greg Astle and defensive backs Ken Lindsay, George Wisneski and Robert Barnes.

The Greyhounds, 2-0 overall and 0-0 in the district, have racked up 67 points in two games, victories over Boone (21-7) and Edgewater (46-6). Cedric Bouey has emerged as one of the top running backs in the county while Steve Jerry is one of the most versatile performers in the area.

OVIDEO AT LEESBURG

Leesburg is a school that has suffered through very hard times in recent years as they have had only one winning season in the last 12 years. But they have renewed team confidence with the hiring of new coach Richard Kennedy, who took a struggling Dunnellon program and built it into a two-time state champion.

The Yellow Jackets are 1-1 on the season with a 23-6 win against Lake Weir before suffering a 7-0 loss to Inverness Citrus last week.

Coach Jack Blanton says of Leesburg, "They are big, they have about five guys over 240 and have good, big running backs. The team seems ready to go with coach Kennedy there. They have a good sound offense, and offensively try to control the ball and not do anything fancy."

MAINLAND AT BRANTLEY

After getting upset by Orlando Boone last week in a 47-43 scoring slugfest, Almon's main concern is showing the rest of the world that his team is better than last week and by getting his Fighting Patriots in the right frame of mind. Almon hopes that his proud Patriots can rise to the occasion and redeem themselves when they take on the Buccaneers.

"We've been preparing mentally more than anything this week," Almon said. "We had a big letdown last week and lost to a football team that's not too good. We can't afford the same thing this week."

Almon, who is not a man of many words when predicting outcomes of football games, summed up the attitude of the Patriots and the importance of a victory when they take to the field tonight. "This is a must win football game, we need this one under our belts."

New Smyrna plans big night of racing

A 100-lap Enduro for street legal automobiles and a Powder Puff derby for the lady drivers will be the extra added attractions for this coming Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway. Recently, much larger fields of Enduro cars have been seen in action. The big, high-powered, full size American cars, fly low around the turns, three abreast. The lead often changes for several times in a single lap, as they rub fenders while dicing for positions around the high banked half mile oval.

This type of auto racing brings the fans back to the roots of the sport, when the race cars were showroom stock and were often driven to and from the race tracks. With the end of the season-long point chase for all divisions coming up on the last Saturday of October, the competition is heating up. Several new teams of Late Models are showing up each week as they are getting ready for the exciting Florida Late Model Triple Crown, scheduled for October 14, 15 and 16 at Orlando Speedworld and NSS.

Jet car pioneer Roger Gustin was recently involved in a wild top-end crash in New Jersey with his famous "Lava Machine" jet Funny Car. Gustin had just completed a run of 288 miles-per-hour when a panel ripped out of his braking parachute. The jet car got sideways and air got under the chassis and the car flew through the air some 300 feet over 10 feet off the ground. The car rolled in mid-air, landed on its front tire, rolled again in mid-air for another 100 feet and then landed on all four tires. Gustin braked the car to a halt and walked away with a broken sternum and cracked ribs. Incredibly the car suffered only a cracked body and a broken ball joint. Gustin said he hopes to be making more Lava Soap commercials and runs down the nation's dragstrips before the year is out.

The NASCAR drivers move to North Wilkesboro, N.C. for a 400-lap event on the super far five-eighths mile oval. Sundays, Holly Farms 400 will take the green flag at 1 p.m. and be televised live on ESPN.

Olympics

"It's been a history of mine whenever I jump had in qualifying I do well in the finals. I felt if I could just jump as good as I ever jumped, I'd be OK. I knew it would take my best jump ever." "Every time I cleared a bar I became more competitive. I said there was no reason to be satisfied with just being a medalist. I wanted to win it all." Ritter's unexpected gold gave the United States 11 golds and 23 overall in track and field, the most for any country.

World record-holder Yordanka Donkova of Bulgaria won the gold medal in the women's 100-meter hurdles in an Olympic record 12.38 seconds; Julius Kariuki of Kenya won the men's 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:05.51, history's second-fastest time; Olga Bondarenko of the Soviet Union captured the inaugural gold in the women's 10,000 meters in 31:05.21 and Viacheslav Ivanenko of the Soviet Union won the men's 50-kilometer walk.

World record-holder Ingrid Kristiansen of Norway dropped from the 10,000 with 18 laps remaining because of an injury to her right foot. She was in apparent pain as she was carried from the track on a stretcher.

Both Said Aouita of Morocco and Joaquim Cruz of Brazil withdrew from today's semifinals of the 1,500 meters, removing some of the luster from one of track's glamour events and leaving Britain's Steve Cram as the favorite.

Seminole

Senior running back Kevin Richardson will take on the leadership role for the 'Noles in Jones' absence. Meanwhile, Blake has been working with Henry Williams and Julius Bennett in the running back position. Leslie Thomas and Larry Nathan have both been practicing at the position and may get the call tonight.

"We've had to do quite a bit of patch work the past few weeks," Blake said. "It started with (linebacker) Ralph Hardy and every week it's been someone else being injured or missing. We're still young and have quite a bit of growing up to do. And we have to do it in a hurry."

Seminole will use the game to fill in the holes and prepare for the upcoming district contests against Leesburg and Oviedo.

Tonight, Seminole will have to play mistake-free ball and take advantage of Dr. Phillips' mistakes and put the ball in the endzone when they get the chance.

"We've had to bring Brandon Cash up from the junior varsity to play tight end for us," Blake said. "Hopefully the kids will be up and come ready to play. If we come ready to play we should do fine."

Blake knows all about the Panthers attack and has been able to prepare for it all week. Dr. Phillips' only loss this season came to Oviedo. In fact, Dr. Phillips has lost only three games in its two-year history — two of them to Oviedo.

"I know Dr. Phillips is a real strong team and they played both Oviedo and Oak Ridge real tough," Blake said. "They look real good on film, their noseguard and quarterback look like their keys and we've been concentrating on stopping them from dominating the game."

Oviedo impounds Lady Bulldogs

By CHRIS PISTER
Herald sports editor

OVIDEO — After powering a spike for a sideout, Oviedo's Michelle Wynn came back with one of the wimpiest serves of the year, barely getting it to the net. Relax, though, because it wasn't a vital time of the match against a weak DeLand team. Actually, it was fun time.

Oviedo's Lady Lions were able to let everyone play and have some fun Thursday night in a 15-2, 15-12 Seminole Athletic Conference victory over the Lady Bulldogs. Oviedo closed the first half with a 9-1 overall record and 5-1 in the SAC. Now the Lady Lions will get serious and spend the second half building toward the postseason and trying to win a third SAC title.

"I was happy we got everybody in the match tonight," Oviedo coach Anita Carlson said. "We had some good serving in the first game and DeLand wasn't returning serve very well."

Oviedo goes into the second half of the year trailing Lake Brantley by one game in the SAC. The Lady Lions return to action Tuesday at Lyman.

In game one on Thursday, Oviedo jumped out to a 3-0 lead on the serve of Shannon Wilcoxson but Renee Bellamy came up with some good play at the net to bring DeLand back within 3-2. Suzanne Hughes then put down a kill to give Oviedo a sideout and the Lady Lions then scored the next 12 points.

Hughes served four points with Anna Hollis coming up with a kill and Kerstin Colon later served five points to make it 12-2. Hollis had another kill for a sideout and Hollis then served the last three points. A nice dink by Betsy Hughes accounted for the 15th point.

Game two saw Oviedo build up a 10-3 lead behind the serving of Serena Caldeyro (two aces), Suzanne Hughes and Colon. Carlson then emptied the bench as every player got into the action.

The Oviedo junior varsity ran its record to 10-0 for the year with a 15-6, 15-10 victory over the DeLand JV.

LYMAN TOPS DELTONA

Lyman rallied from a one-game deficit to claim a 9-15, 15-10, 15-8 victory over Deltona's Lady Wolves Thursday at Deltona High.

It was the third consecutive victory for the Lady Greyhounds who now stand at 3-6 while Deltona dropped to 1-5. Julie Chapman, Shawna Streetman and Jennifer Dakoski led Deltona to the first-game victory but Julia Callarman provided the power for Lyman as it came back to win the next two.

Deltona's junior varsity improved its record to 5-1 with a 15-9, 15-10 victory over Lyman's JV. Patty Kleps, Jennifer Schommer and Kerry Blauvelt paved the way.

Oviedo's Suzanne Hughes leaves the floor to get a bump up to the setter while Kerstin Colon backs up the play. The Lady Lions cruised past DeLand, 15-2, 15-12, Thursday night.

Lady Patriots outgun Seminole

By CHUCK BURGESS

ALTAMONTE — Marianne Rodriguez set the tempo and Dawn Gebhart got hot when it counted as the Lake Brantley Lady Patriots squeaked by a scrappy Seminole High squad 15-11, 15-12 in girls prep volleyball action Thursday night at Lake Brantley.

"Marianne did a good job setting tonight," first year Brantley coach Wolfgang Halbig said of his ace setter. "Dawn has had a couple of great matches in a row and just her presence on the court makes things happen. Even if she's not hitting the ball well, she plays good defense and makes the plays when it counts."

The win improved the Lady Pats' record to 13-2 overall and 6-0 in the Seminole Athletic Conference. The Lady Seminoles dropped to 8-2 overall and 4-2 in the SAC. Seminole resumes action Tuesday night as they host the Lady Silver Hawks of Lake Howell.

As the match got under way, the Lady Seminoles looked as if they had the Patriot netters' number as Bobbie Osborne's serving and Adrian Hillsman's spiking helped the Lady Tribe build a comfortable 9-3 advantage.

"Seminole has a great team this year and coach Corso does a heck of a job with those girls," Halbig said of the 'Noles. "They've got a lot of height, they play great defense, they hustle, and Liz Long and Adrian Hillsman are two great county players. When I saw Adrian approach the ball off of the set, all I could say was look out."

After a short regrouping session, the Lady Pats put Jeanne Seidel on the service line to take control. Seidel strung six Seminole took a 10-9 lead off of the longest rally of the match as Long ended it for the Lady 'Noles with a patented dink, however it would be the Lady Patriots and Rodriguez who would take control of the game as she served the game to 14-10.

"The only thing that happened to us in the first game was that we lost control of the momentum," Seminole head coach Beth Corso said. "We were attacking on offense which was good, but our coverage was off and they came back and beat us."

The second game was a masterpiece in role reversal as the Lady Patriots stormed out to a quick 13-4 start off of the spiking of Gebhart and the play of Dana Bush.

"Dana was really on tonight," Halbig said. "She kept us in the game all night with crucial hits. We didn't play as crisp as we would have liked, but she did a good job. She's one of our most consistent players."

Knights look to grab No. 1 ranking

By DAVID CORCORAN
Herald correspondent

ORLANDO — The University of Central Florida Knights, who proved they can win the big game on the road last week, host the North Alabama Lions Saturday night at the Florida Citrus Bowl.

UCF, 4-0 for the season, and ranked second in the NCAA Division II poll behind North Dakota State, is looking for a victory over the Lions (1-2) which would give the Knights their best start ever and hopefully propel them to the No. 1 ranking in the nation.

Knights coach Gene McDowell said his squad came out of the East Tennessee State game "with only 4 injuries, a lot less than we thought considering we played on astro turf."

McDowell also believes that the Lions, a Division II team from the Gulf South Conference "will give our team a tough test, because they do an excellent job of blitzing on defense, and their quarterback Tommy Compton is probably the best quarterback we face since Tracy Ham of Georgia Southern in 1986."

Compton (5-11, 175), who transferred from Southern Mississippi last year is the key to the Lions' attack as he has accounted for 90 percent of their offense by rushing for 329 yards on 60 carries, and completing 33 of 71 passes for 579 yards. The defense will be led by sophomore James Davis (6-2, 190) who leads the team with 60 tackles including 24 in the Lions' 17-16 loss against Alabama A&M.

North Alabama has one of the most successful Division II programs in the country. The Lions have the best record in the Gulf South Conference in the 80s (64-23-5, 72.3%), even better than fellow member Troy State, the defending Division II champions, and the highest winning percentage of any college team in the state (Auburn 70.5 and Alabama 69.8).

On top of that, the Lions in 1980 and 1983 reached the semifinals of the Division II playoffs, and lost in the finals in 1985 to North Dakota State.

Last year the Lions came out strong, winning their first 6 games. But they had to forfeit victories over Miles College and Virginia State and ended up 5-5-1 which cost head coach Wayne Grubb his job after 11 years.

Grubb was replaced by Bobby Wallace 33, who coached under Auburn coach Pat Dye for eight years (77-85), and was defensive coordinator last year at Illinois.

"We are extremely young and getting better each week," said Wallace who has just nine seniors on his squad, including 51 freshmen.

Also the teams young nucleus may be affected by UCF's hostile crowd, which was 31,000 strong against Troy State and stopped play seven times.

Wallace said, "I don't know how the team will react but I hope it motivates us."

Gators take on Tigers

By MIKE DAME
Herald correspondent

GAINESVILLE — The Louisiana State football team is 4-0 in the last five times it has faced its Gator counterparts at Florida Field.

The home team has a 2-7-1 mark in the last 10 meetings and is 15-16-1 in the entire series.

The Gators have won just three of the last 11 meetings between the two schools. Yet, when the 15th-ranked Gators, 4-0, hosts 13th-ranked LSU (2-1) Saturday, they will be one-point favorites in the nationally televised contest (CBS, kickoff 2:40 p.m.).

How can it be explained? Yes, LSU did blow a 33-20 fourth-quarter lead at Ohio State to lose 36-33, but LSU is still a more experienced and talented team all around.

Consider the facts:

• LSU boasts one of the nation's premier quarterbacks in senior Heisman Trophy candidate Tom Hodson. The game will be Hodson's 27th collegiate contest, compared to UF freshman quarterback Kyle Morris' fifth game.

• LSU returns six starters on offense and defense from last season's 10-1-1 squad including eight postseason honors candidates. UF returns six starters on offense and five on defense, but it lost key personnel in quarterback Keywan Bell and defensive back Clifford Charlton and Jarvis Williams.

• After playing three name opponents (Texas A&M, Tennessee and Ohio State), LSU is averaging 31 points per game. The virtually untested Gators have averaged 42.8 points per game against two Division I-AA opponents and two Southeastern Conference cellar dwellers.

Still, the Las Vegas bookies have made UF a one-point favorite. Even UF head coach Galen Hall must be a little surprised.

Medicines don't transmit AIDS

DEAR DR. GOTT: Since I am supposed to be taking human progesterone in the form of suppositories, how likely is it that the AIDS virus could be transmitted this way?

DEAR READER: The Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV), the cause of AIDS, is spread by intimate sexual contact and by blood, such as transfusions and contaminated needles in drug abusers. HIV is not spread by medicines, no matter how they are introduced into the body. You are completely safe using the hormone as prescribed.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My brother's teacher is narrow-minded, overly strict, self-righteous, negative and a "health nut" to boot. For snack time, these fifth graders are only allowed orange juice and fruits and vegetables. I agree they shouldn't eat candy, but I think all this acid in the morning would do more harm than good, especially for those kids who ate no breakfast.

DEAR READER: Your characterization of your brother's teacher is, I hope, based on schoolroom facts, not on dietary preferences. Juice, fruits and vegetables seem to be to be appropriate snack-food for fifth graders, especially if they skipped breakfast. Forget the acid business; it's a non-issue.

Most fifth graders are quite adept at getting all the carbohydrates they need at home; carbs are the preferred fodder for this age group. Therefore, I wouldn't object to the teacher insisting on a little nutritional variety. Because the teacher's snacks are clearly more healthful than traditional junk food, I'd support his or her efforts to legislate in-school snacks that would add fiber, vitamins, minerals and sucrose to youngsters' diets. Give the teacher a break. Try not to judge him or her too harshly; at least wait until your brother has been out of school a few years and can view his educational experience with more perspective. I've come to realize that the teachers I disliked the most in school were really the best after all. What's more, you can actually get to like juice, fruits and vegetables.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
"Cover an honor with an honor." Many times a defense has floundered because that adage was misapplied. Quite a few declarers have failed for exactly the same reason.

South opened one no-trump and North correctly bid two clubs, asking for a major. East's double didn't stop South from bidding two hearts, but it did leave South wondering what to do when North bid three no-trump. South chose to pass, but it was a concerned pass indeed. Declarer was relieved to see some club honors in dummy. In fact he was so happy that he wasn't going down immediately that he covered West's jack with dummy's queen. East won the king, cashed the ace of clubs and continued with the nine, which pinned South's eight. South counted his tricks and saw that even if the spade finesse worked, he would need a heart trick. Therefore at trick four declarer led a heart. East wasted no time taking it, plus two more club tricks for down one.

The contract was fine, but it went down because declarer followed the old rule about covering an honor. Even though it might have gone against his instincts, South should have ducked in dummy at trick one, allowing the club jack to win. The contract would then have been safe. East couldn't afford to overtake, and when the jack held, East did not have enough entries to set up and then use the club suit. It's usually right to follow your instincts at bridge, but even so, there are enough exceptions that you should always give a second thought.

day that you might find disappointing at first. After you study it more thoroughly you'll see it has a bright side as well.

Chemicals may put an end to flea season

'Tis the season for fleas, but two new insect growth regulators developed by researchers at the University of Florida make future springs and summers look almost

GARDENING
CELESTE WHITE

Adult fleas on dogs, cats and owners.

Soon to be released commercially, a dose of either product controls fleas up to six months, is 90 percent effective and is safer than most pesticides currently available, says entomologist Phil Kochler with the Institute of Food and Agriculture Sciences (IFAS).

A result of a joint effort between IFAS and Richard Patterson of the USDA-Agricultural Research Service, the innovative products contain fenoxycarb and diltubenzurub, Kochler said. They will be initially marketed to the pest control industry under the trade names Torus and Dimlin.

"These chemicals have the potential to revolutionize the pest control industry. Studies show they are a thousand times more effective than any flea pesticide used now, and they are the first to give long-lasting control," the IFAS entomologist said.

While most flea products require monthly applications and break down quickly in the sun, those containing these new chemicals last up to four months indoors and up to five months outside, Kochler said. This long-term residual effect can help pest control companies provide an effective service and can save consumers money.

"And because they affect the insect's hormonal balance, they are potentially safer to humans and animals than many pesticides currently used," Kochler said.

Most flea controls work by affecting the insect's central nervous system. Insect growth regulators, however, influence the hormone production system of the biting pest, which differs from the systems of all warm-blooded animals. The one chemical attacks insects in their juvenile stage of development and the other prevents the formation of an outer skeleton, Kochler said.

Over-the-counter foggers, hand-held sprays and yard products containing the growth regulators will be available in time for next spring's flea season, Kochler predicts. Incorporating the new products into pet shampoos and daily pills further the possibility of a virtually flealess future.

"These two products are going to completely change flea control, but they're just the tip of the iceberg. Five years from now growth regulators are going to be the primary means of staying one step ahead of most household insects," Kochler said.

No home for pets bad as wrong home

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who has three children. The youngest is a 3-year-old. Their dog had to be put away due to cancer, so my friend went to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in Oakland (Calif.) to get a puppy to adopt.

A volunteer took a 7-week-old puppy out of its cage for my friend to play with, and it was love at first sight! She filled out a long form, then came the oral interview. At the end of the interview, she was told she couldn't have the puppy because it was their policy not to place a dog under 6 months in a home where there is a 3-year-old child! Have you ever heard of anything so ridiculous? With the thousands of animals tossed out of cars, neglected and killed because nobody wants them, wouldn't you think the SPCA would be delighted to give a puppy to anyone who was willing to take it?

How dare they judge the suitability of a family based on the age of one of its members! I wonder how many excellent homes have been denied a pet because of this stupid policy.

BURNED BETTY IN EL SOBRANTE
DEAR BURNED: I called the Oakland SPCA and spoke with the director, Gary Templin, a kind and gentle man. He said, "Yes, that is our policy. Let me explain: Most 3-year-olds regard a small puppy as a 'toy'—they pick it up by its tail, pull its ears and handle it as though it were a stuffed animal. Children that age are not necessarily 'mean'; they simply don't know any better. A 6-month-old puppy can usually lend for itself and poses few problems with a 3-year-old.

ADVICE

"But there's another issue," Templin said. "Because these dogs are unwanted to begin with, the SPCA makes every effort to place them in homes where they will not be a problem, because if a dog is returned to us as a 'problem dog,' we cannot place it in another home—we have to kill it."

So, Burned Betty, I hope you now understand why your friend wasn't given that 7-week-old puppy. The policy makes sense to me, and I enthusiastically applaud Oakland's SPCA for carefully inquiring about the home environment before sending a pet to live there—instead of giving an animal to anyone who walks in and asks for one.

The Church... IN GOD WE TRUST

In God we trust—this motto inscribed on all our coins and currency is familiar to us all. Yet, how often do we pause to consider its meaning. Our forefathers saw the dangers that would threaten their nation. They knew that we would constantly need to turn to God for strength and guidance.

Suit to stop game prayers to be heard in February

United Press International

PENSACOLA — A suit to prevent public prayers before high school football games in a northwest Florida county will be heard in federal court in late February, more than a year after the suit was filed.

About 20 people with picket signs showed up outside the federal courthouse Thursday during a pre-trial hearing. They showed support for prayer with signs saying "God and school go together" and "Jesus for Jesus."

Inside the courtroom U.S. District Judge Roger Vinson met with attorneys for the Okaloosa School Board and plaintiffs and scheduled the trial for Feb. 27. Lawyers said the trial will probably last two or three days.

Mark and Jan Berlin of Crestview filed suit in November challenging the long-standing Okaloosa practice of having ministers lead spectators in prayers before football games.

The Jewish couple claimed the school district violated the rights of their two children by allowing prayers before games and other events. The suit said it was tantamount to the state establishing a religion.

Okaloosa school officials denied they were promoting religion, but said prayer has long been included in extracurricular events such as football games and academic banquets.

In addition to the suit, the Berlins filed an injunction to stop the prayer before the last game of the season, but Vinson denied relief after an 11th-hour hearing on grounds the injunctions had been going on for years.

Hours later the Berlin family attended the last game of the season in Crestview. Their son, a senior at the time, kicked the winning field goal.

When the family returned to their car they found "Hail Hitler" and "Leave Us Alone" scrawled with lipstick on their car windows.

At least two petitions supporting the school district's policy were circulated in Okaloosa after the suit was filed.

Southern Baptist moderates grouping for long struggle

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

Moderates in the Southern Baptist Convention have finally come to terms with the fact that fundamentalists have won the decade-long campaign to control the 14.4 million-member church and are putting in place their own alternative body.

And they promise to open up a new, and perhaps critical, front in the denomination that has given the nation's largest Protestant church body and put it on the edge of schism.

While there has always been theological tension in the convention, whose history and tradition places paramount importance on the individual believer's conscience in forming belief, 10 years ago fundamentalists began a well-orchestrated and relentless political campaign to win control of the church's boards and agencies.

For the fundamentalists, who believe the Bible is without error in all matters, including science and history, the church — and especially the committees controlled by moderates, was drifting toward theological liberalism.

Many of those same fundamentalists also had strong ties with the emerging political religious right and, in defiance with historic Baptist church-state beliefs, saw an opportunity to link the resources of the large denomination with the "social issues agenda" of what has been called the Reagan Revolution.

In June, with the election of fundamentalist leader Jerry Falwell to the office of national president, at least for the time being, the moderates had lost the political struggle within the denomination.

In response, the moderate have organized what they call the Southern Baptist Alliance and, meeting in September, have declared they intend to put their money where their mouths have been — an effort which, if successful, could divert millions of dollars from the national convention's coffers.

Among the causes that have already been promised money by the fledgling organization are the Baptist League for Constitutional Public Affairs, Southern Baptist Women in Ministry, the Baptist Peace Fellowship of North America and Habitat for Humanity.

Buddism finds home in America

By AURILIO ROJAS
United Press International

For nearly four years, crews in Hacienda Heights, Calif., have been painstakingly constructing the largest Buddhist temple in the Western Hemisphere on a hill bounded by a freeway and shopping malls.

The location might seem incongruous for a religion with roots in the Himalayas, but, as officials note, the sanctuary sits conveniently between the San Gabriel Valley and Orange County, home to more than 70,000 Chinese Buddhists.

Constructed by the Fo Kuang Shan Buddhist Society, the centerpiece of the 10-building 14-acre complex is an 80-foot-high ceramic-roofed temple that will seat about 800 people when it is dedicated in November.

Ten thousand statues of Buddha have been fitted onto the four walls of the main shrine. From the ceiling hangs a 2-ton gold-plated chandelier imported from Japan.

The complex also includes a conference center, library, museum, vegetarian cafeteria and living quarters for 30 monks and 40 nuns.

The Rev. Shih Yung Ku said two buildings — the Buddhist Scripture Library and Meditation Hall and the Memorial Pagoda, "used for the remembrance of past relatives" — remain unfinished.

Ku serves as chief interpreter for "our spiritual teacher, the venerable Hsing Yun," a Chinese-born Buddhist leader who conceived the idea for a Buddhist Center a decade ago to accommodate the burgeoning Chinese population in Southern California.

The complex, which Frank said will cost more than $15 million when all the bills are totaled, has been dubbed Hsi Lai (pronounced chee-lai) or "from East to West" in Mandarin.

Frank said financing for the temple, which will replace a converted Christian church in Maywood where most of the congregation has been worshipping, was derived from local and international contributions.

In addition to serving as a place of worship, he said, the temple will "open its doors to provide community services, help feed people, find jobs, and provide cultural and theological education."

Although its official public dedication is not scheduled until Nov. 26, the conference center will be the site of the 16th General Conference of the World Fellowship of Buddhists Nov. 19-26, the first such international gathering to be outside Asia, Frank said.

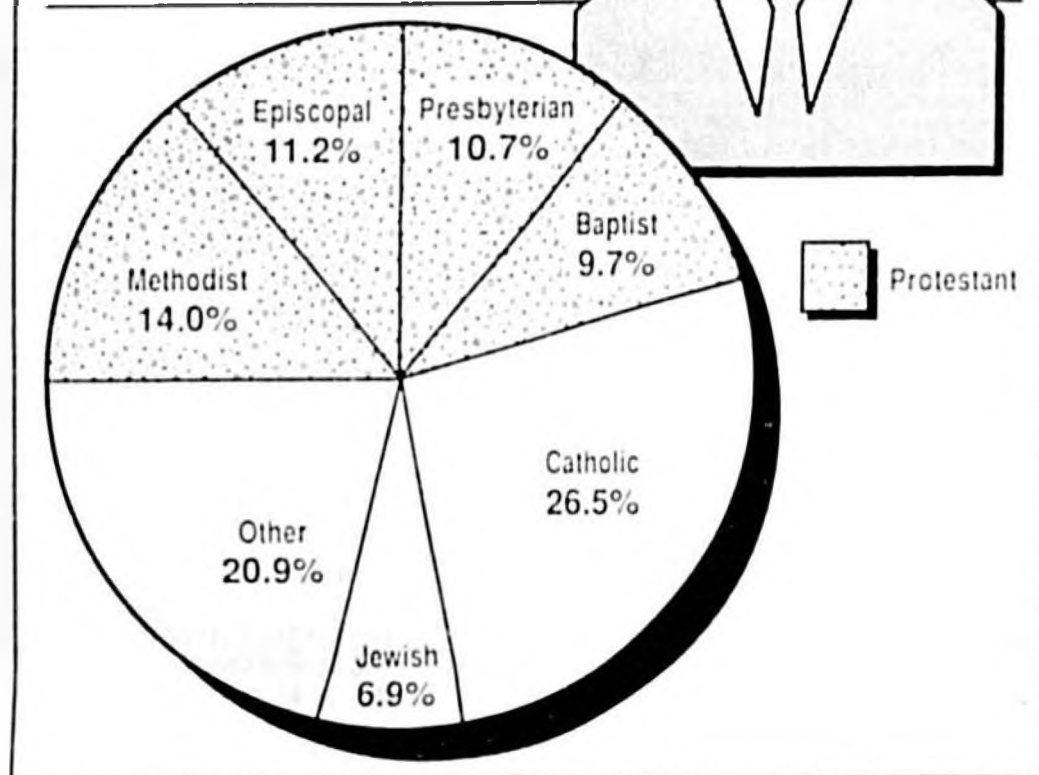

Buddhism was founded in the 6th century B.C. by Gautama Buddha. Its basic tenets are the Four Noble Truths of suffering, which disciples must endure before they can achieve nirvana, the state of complete redemption.

Through the centuries, Buddhism has branched out into eight different sects with an estimated worldwide membership of more than 250 million, including 350,000 in North America.

Frank said the Hsi Lai temple "will welcome all Buddhists, but the main thrust will be the Chinese tradition of Buddhism."

First female episcopal bishop claims election is historical

United Press International

BOSTON — The first woman elected as a suffragan bishop of Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts says the significance of the choice "is far broader than any attention that might be focused on me as an individual."

The Rev. Barbara Harris, 58, an associate pastor of the Church of the Advocate in North Philadelphia, was elected Saturday at a special church convention of the 96,000-member diocese, narrowly defeating a male priest from Lowell, Mass., on the eighth ballot.

Archbishop Edmond Browning of New York, the leader of the Episcopal Church in the United States, conceded that Harris' election marks "a troubling time" for many church members that "will test commitment to the unity of the church."

Massachusetts also made history in 1962 when the Rev. John Burgess became the first black to become suffragan bishop. Harris also is black.

Harris, who was ordained as an Episcopal priest only eight years ago, must still have her election confirmed by a majority of the church's diocesan bishops across the nation and by the standing committees of its 120 dioceses.

But speaking to her congregation in Philadelphia Sunday, Harris sounded optimistic that her election would be upheld, calling it part of the "fresh winds blowing across the church."

"The significance of this election must be seen in its proper context, which is far broader than any attention that might be focused on me as an individual," said Harris, who is also executive director of the Episcopal Church Publishing Co.

It marks an historic moment for the Diocese of Massachusetts, the Episcopal Church in the United States and the worldwide Anglican Communion as it speaks to inclusiveness in all orders of the church's ordained ministry," she said.

A suffragan bishop is an assisting bishop who may serve in that post for a lifetime, or could be elected to head a diocese, church officials said.

After a career in public relations for Sun Co., Harris was ordained a deacon in 1979 and became a priest in 1980.

"There seems to be a fresh wind blowing across the church. Things thought to be impossible just a short time ago are coming to be."

-Rev. Barbara Harris

The Rev. Paul Washington, retired pastor of the Church of the Advocate, said she was deeply interested in the church since before the first women were ordained at the church 14 years ago.

She was on a business trip to California and returned to Philadelphia for the ordination, which was illegal at that time, he said.

Harris took her Sunday sermon from Isaiah 43:19, which says, "Behold, I am doing a new thing now it springs forth, do you not perceive it? I will make a way in the wilderness and rivers in the desert."

"Recent events make this passage come alive in meaningful ways," she said. "There seems to be fresh winds blowing across the church. Things thought to be impossible just a short time ago are coming to be."

Pierce said Harris planned no special events until she meets the news media in Boston on Tuesday.

The election was conducted by two houses of delegates to the diocesan convention in Boston, one of clergy and one of lay members. A diocesan spokesman said Harris finally received a majority of both houses on the eighth ballot, defeating the Rev. Marshall Hunt, rector of St. Anne's Parish in Lowell, Mass.

Leaders of the Anglican Church at the Lambeth Conference in Canterbury, England, voted overwhelmingly in August to approve the "possibility of nominating women as bishops after it was obvious that very soon a woman's name would be nominated," diocesan spokesman Jim Solheim said.

Browning, the New York archbishop, issued a statement after the election appealing for Episcopalians to support the choice.
