

AMERICAN LEGION BANQUET AT VALDEZ LAST NIGHT WAS GREATLY ENJOYED

Legion Members and Guests Had Most En- joyable Affair

PRIZES PRESENTED

AND MANY GOOD TALKS BY MEMBERS AND GUESTS— MUSIC AND DANCING

One of the most pleasant occasions of the social season was that of the dinner and dance given by the Campbell-Lossing Post, American Legion, at the Hotel Valdez last night.

It was staged as an after-piece of the big Armistice Day celebration that was such a great success, and the Legion boys wanted an occasion to tell all their friends just how they appreciated their efforts in behalf of the Legion, and also to present the silver cups to the winners of the various events.

A fine orchestra, arranged by Edgar Ball, discoursed sweet music all during the dinner and for the dance afterward and, like all the Ball productions, it was all right.

After the invocation by Chaplain George Hyman, Post Commander L. F. Roper addressed the assemblage and briefly outlined the work of the Legion under his year's leadership—a year that has been filled with many events, with many big things for the benefit of the Legion and for the up-building of the city—for the American Legion represents the best type of American citizenship.

Commander Roper then introduced Judge George Herring, the new post commander, who responded in a happy vein and promised all his "buddies" his unqualified support in all that the Legion meant and stood for.

The following gentlemen were called upon and responded in a few words about the Legion: Dr. Hyman, Geo. A. DeCottes, Forest Lake, George W. Knight, Charlie Britt, the "Carnival Man," R. J. Holly and several others.

The presentation of the silver cups was one of the most impressive and most delightful items on the program. Commander Roper had a difficult task in presenting each cup and he was equal to the occasion, and in a few words of graceful acknowledgment of the debt the Legion owed all those who had assisted in many ways in making the Armistice Day a success, he presented the silver cups to the following:

Mrs. Lossing, president of the Woman's Auxiliary, for the best decorated float.

Mrs. Henry Wight, for the Welfare Department of the Woman's Club, for the best decorated float, the car of Mrs. A. E. Hill.

S. H. Lloyd, of Lloyd's Shoe Store, for the best decorated commercial float.

R. P. Walters of DeLand for the first prize in motor boat races and Roy Cooke, DeLand, for the second prize for motor boats.

Rollins college for winning the canoe races, received a cup and two individual cups, and the college was represented by Jack Stevens and J. H. Halliday, who accepted the cups.

All of the recipients responded to the presentation of Commander Roper with words of thanks straight from their hearts and this occasion was made a most happy one by the Legion and all those who were present to receive the prizes. The silver cups were works of art and beauty and were donated by the First National Bank, the Seminole Bank and the Peoples Bank, of this city, and by F. F. Dutton, Wight Bros. Company, Harry Heeren and the American Legion.

The banquet was one of the Hotel Valdez' banquets and that puts the seal of approval upon it. There was delicious chicken, olives, celery, dressing, mashed potatoes, peas, dessert, coffee and cigars and it was cooked and served in the style that has made the Hotel Valdez famous.

After all the cups had been presented George A. DeCottes arose and stated that he had a cup that had been given him to present one of the members of the Legion for distinguished services and he presented a

Col. Whittlesey Commits Suicide Enroute to Cuba

Was Commander of Famous "Lost Battalion" in France

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Secret brooding over memories of his experience in the war from which he emerged one of America's greatest individual heroes was ascribed today by friends and relatives of Lieut. Colonel Charles W. Whittlesey as the cause of his taking his own life Sunday while enroute to Havana. He left several letters, presumably explaining his act. The commander of the "Lost Battalion" disappeared from the steamship Toloa twenty-four hours out of New York.

two-handed porcelain cup to Hodgson Ball, with the remark he would need it in the mornings for cold water. Hodgson accepted it and said that when he was using it filled with ice water he would be thinking of Mr. DeCottes.

The banquet was one of those many milestones in the good times that Sanford people seem to be having all the time and brought all the "Buddies" and their friends together in a social gathering that was strictly informal and filled with that great fraternal spirit that permeates all gatherings of Legion men.

After the banquet the tables were cleared away and dancing was indulged in until a late hour sent the youngsters and many of the older ones home with the feeling in their hearts and minds that Campbell-Lossing Post is the best ever and they know how to pull off a successful Armistice Day, a successful show or a banquet and dance at any old time and their affairs will always be the social events of the life of Sanford for many years to come.

THE PACKING HOUSE AND NEW HOME FOR THE MANUFACTURE OF THE WAKEFIELD PRODUCTS AT LAKE GEM, FLORIDA

LAKE GEM PRODUCTS COMPANY TAKES OVER THE WAKEFIELD PRESERVING COMPANY, OF GENEVA.

New Big Factory Building at Lake Gem Will Manufacture Well Known Product in Large Quantities.

It is with regret that the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wakefield, operating a marmalade business at Geneva, known as the Wakefield Preserving Co., learn of the sale of the Wakefield Preserving Co.'s plant and business to the Gem Nursery and Citrus Products Co., located at Lake Gem, about four miles from Mount Dora.

The Geneva factory will be used for the manufacture of a few carloads of marmalade until all of the machinery is installed in the big new steel structure costing $50,000 just completed by the Gem Nursery and Citrus Products Co. This company owns a sufficient acreage of bearing citrus fruits which will be used exclusively in the manufacture of marmalades, peels and citrus products to operate their big plant to capacity. This department will be in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Wakefield who have an interest in the business.

The output of the new factory is contracted for through the New York Globe and a chain of stores and it is the intention of the company to establish other plants in favorable locations in the citrus belt.

The Gem Nursery and Citrus Products Co., is to be congratulated on securing the business and services of the Wakefields as their citrus products have the reputation of being of the best manufactured in Florida.

GROUND BROKEN TODAY FOR PRE-COOLING PLANT FOR FARMER'S EXCHANGE

Plant That Promises Much for the Future of Sanford

PROVE THE VALUE

OF THE PRE-COOLING IDEA FOR BETTER PACKING AND SHIP- PING OF VEGETABLES, FRUIT

Ground is being broken in Sanford for what is said to be the biggest undertaking by any truck-grower anywhere in the state, and one which promises much for the future of the celery industry here. This is a large pre-cooling plant to be erected for the Sanford Farmers Exchange where celery from the fields will by the pre-cooling process be reduced to a low temperature before loading into the freight cars, insuring better carrying quality for it on its way to market, and effecting large reduction in bills for icing cars as the amount of ice required for the car bunkers on the northward trip will be materially less than were the celery loaded while still warm.

Pre-cooling plants recently have proven their value in the handling of Florida citrus shipments, several of the larger packing houses within the last two years having obtained most satisfactory results from their installations of pre-cooling equipment and at the same time realizing large economies through the lesser amounts of ice consumed in the refrigerator cars. The Sanford Farmers' Exchange takes the leadership among the truck growers organizations in Florida in installing such equipment, and those behind the movement are entirely confident the results will far more than justify the expense involved.

Shortly after the pre-cooling plant of the Florence Villa citrus growers association was completed, Mr. J. W. Andrews, formerly of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, began there, at the direction of Mr. Stewart, a series of experiments in pre-cooling celery and other vegetables. This was done with Sanford directly in mind, as the Florida Citrus Exchange sells in the markets the products of the co-operative organization of the Sanford Farmers Exchange, and is well informed as to the needs of the vegetable growers here. Through the courtesy of the Florence Villa citrus men, these experiments were carried on over a long period, tryouts being made in almost every conceivable manner with Sanford grown products.

Manager R. R. Deas of the Board of Directors of the Sanford Farmers Exchange; Field Agent C. M. Berry have been in close touch with the experiments since the very beginning, and have devoted a large amount of time since to working out a practical plan for the installation of such a plant in Sanford.

The location of the plant, on the Atlantic Coast Line tracks on Boardwalk ave., gives it place right in the center of production on the East Side, about three miles from the center of the city. The site includes approximately nine acres of land, and allows abundant room for any later needed expansion. Buildings and equipment is such that capacity may be increased from twelve cars this season to twenty-four cars every twenty-four hours next season without necessity for remodeling the plant with which the start is made.

Construction work, which has started, is under the personal supervision of A. B. Hale of Tampa, a well known refrigeration engineer. Mr. Hale has established an enviable reputation in twelve years experience in construction work along purely refrigeration lines, which has included a number of notably successful plants.

Power for operation will come from crude oil. Two Fairbanks Morse 150 horse power crude oil engines will be used. Electrical generators operated from these will furnish electricity for

LENA CLARKE TAKES STAND IN DEFENSE

Celebrated Case at Or- lando Takes on New Interest

DESCRIBES SCENE

THAT TOOK PLACE IN ROOM OF HOTEL WHEN MILTMORE LOST HIS LIFE.

ORLANDO, Nov. 29.—Lena M. T. Clarke took the stand in her own defense this afternoon and in describing the scene in the room in which she is charged with having killed F. A. Miltmore on the night of August 1, after she put a drug in a glass of water he drank, she said she suddenly became dizzy, the lights blinded her and the next she knew she bumped into someone in the hall.

This, she said, brought her somewhat out of her dazed condition and the next she saw was Patterson coming down the hall.

Miss Clarke charged Miltmore with drugging her brother Paul and stealing $30,000 in July, 1918. She says she obtained the money with which to replace the loss from Joseph Elwell, but later began juggling the money order accounts and took enough to repay Elwell. She admitted taking the $32,000 registered packages from the registered pouch in August of this year and putting spurious packages in their stead.

The morning session was given over to a great extent to a resume of testimony. The session was enlivened by one unusual and quite unexpected touch. At 10:45 a. m., just before States Attorney Jones rested the case for the state, Lena Clarke's handbag, that was found in room 87 after the murder, was introduced into evidence by the prosecutor. It was a small handbag and worn into condition of being shabby, but it contained something dear to the girl's heart and that was the last check her dead brother, Paul, had ever given her. The contents were emptied out upon the table, and the check was folded in with several others. Court was in a relaxed mood, there was an examination going on of the contents of the bag when all of a sudden, like a voice from the sky, Lena exclaimed: "You can have everything else but that check of my brother's."

Reaching across the table to grasp the coveted piece of paper, her tone loud, her voice fairly echoing through the room, there was about it and the action itself a childish quality, some intimate suggestion of the infantile. A very evident and embarrassed silence fell over the room, and then Mr. Jones relieved the situation by assuring Miss Clarke that she could retain not only her brother's check, but all of them.

There was also introduced as evidence at the time the cigarette stub found in the room when a search was made on Wednesday following the killing on Monday. It was recalled that the cigarette butt bore the imprint of a popular brand which Officer Frank Gordon said Patterson told him he smoked.

Mrs. J. T. Ellis, of Georgia, who declared she heard the report of the gun that killed Miltmore, was the last witness for the state. She said she went to her room, No. 85, on the fourth floor, adjoining No. 86, on the evening of the crime, and went to sleep. She was awakened some time later, she thought perhaps about 9 o'clock, by the report seemingly of a pistol. Then she said she went to sleep again. Later, as she was going down the hall to go out she saw men at the door of No. 87 and then saw a woman's handbag lying on the bed.

The chief of police was recalled to tell about finding $725 in the wash tank of the bath room adjoining room 87.

He saw Lena in the jail, he said, some two or three days after the murder and she told him that the night before she had a dream and in this dream she saw the money she had lost in the bath room.

Chief Vestel said he took Frank Gordon, special officer, with him to the hotel when they searched the bath

Main Building
 Osceola Cypress Co.,
 Burned Last Night

One of Largest Lumber Mills in County Suffers Big Loss

Word came today of the burning of the main mill of the Osceola Cypress Company at Osceola in this county. It happened some time during the night and the fire was confined to the main building by the local fire company of the mill and also due to the fact that but little wind was blowing. The main mill was a large structure where the logs were sawed into rough lumber and contained much valuable machinery. None of the lumber or the planing mill or any other part of the plant was touched by the flames. The main part of the mill will be a big loss to the owners and as this is one of the largest plants in the county the shut down of the mill just at this time will be felt through many channels of trade. The sympathy of the many Sanford friends of the owners of the mill are extended to them in their loss. The main structure will be rebuilt as soon as possible it is learned.

First Frost Policy Written Arcadia

ARCADIA, Nov. 28.—The first "frost" insurance policy ever made in this city was written here Monday in favor of the Arcadia Citrus Exchange Branch of the county organization for the amount of $75,000 to cover this year's crop from frost or freeze. The policy was written by the Florida Trust and Banking company, assisted by Special Agents

Stanley and Gates of the Atlanta office of the Hartford Insurance company. The premium is 10 per cent of the gross amount of the insurance carried and will cost the grower members of the exchange $7,500, which is divided pro rata on the box basis and will cost the 250 members three cents per box, basing the estimate on a normal crop.

HOOKER-WILLOUGHBY WEDDING AT LONGWOOD

A wedding of much interest was solemnized Monday afternoon, Nov. 21, 1921, when Miss Ola Mae Willoughby became the bride of Mr. Frank C. Hooker, of Longwood. The ceremony was performed in the county court house at Sanford, T. W. Lawton officiating.

The bride is the young and pretty daughter of Mr. J. D. Willoughby of Orlando, and the groom is the son of Constable and Mrs. D. H. Hooker, of Longwood, and holds a responsible position as manager of the Orange Cafe in Orlando.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hooker motored to Longwood for an elegant dinner with Mr. Hooker's parents and a few invited guests, after which they were at home with friends at 210 West Pine street.

The writer extends to the young couple her many good wishes for a long and happy life.

RECORDS HUMIDITY IN AIR

Both Temperature and "Livability" Shown by Twin Thermometer—Likely to Become Popular.

Sensations of heat or cold, as experienced by a normally healthy person, are caused almost entirely by the condition of the surrounding atmosphere. If it is still, damp, and about 75 degrees or more in temperature, a feeling of disagreeable heat and oppression results; while if of the same temperature, but dry and in moderate motion, no discomfort is felt. The reasons for this are that dry, moving air takes away bodily heat about as rapidly as it is generated, while damp, still air does not, explains a writer in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Therefore in designing an instrument to determine whether atmospheric conditions are conducive to bodily comfort, other factors than temperature must be taken into account. For this reason the ordinary dry-bulb thermometer is unreliable and has been supplemented by another instrument of the so-called wet-bulb type, in which the bulb is inclosed in a fabric mesh bag which keeps it damp. To use, both bulbs are immersed in hot water until they register 110 degrees. They are then removed, and the time required for each to drop to atmospheric temperature noted. The wet bulb will always cool more rapidly than the dry one. This difference in cooling rates serves to index the degree of comfort one should be experiencing, as it roughly indicates the moisture in the air and whether or not air is in motion.

ROMANCE EVEN IN NEW YORK

Almost the Last Place on Earth One Would Look for It, but It Is There, Nevertheless.

Two New Yorkers have set up jeweled tablets in a fashionable uptown cafe, where they first met the women who became their wives. The tablets commemorate the felicitous events.

However incredible this may sound to a race of wives whose husbands forget their wedding anniversaries and a public that does not associate fashionable cafes with conjugal constancy or New York with sentiment, it may easily be confirmed by looking in at the grill of the Cafe Deux-Arts.

Both memorials are bronze plaques inlaid in the wall in alcoves of the grill and inclosed with glass. The first is set with a fiery opal and carries the mystic inscription "Happy Dawn, September, 1905," nothing else. Andre Hustanoby remembers who put it there, but does not say. The other was the work of a celebrated local lawyer. It is set with a large turquoise and engraved, "A. and L. Aere Perennius, MCMIX." Like the other, it celebrates the meeting with and hours spent with the wife, to be. And 12 years have elapsed since the second was put up without any request for permission to alter the inscription or efface.

Mysterious Feat of Rats.

Here's another mystery problem to set beside that of how the Egyptians built the pyramids. G. W. Youngblood, a business man of No. 125 South Broadway, Los Angeles, is responsible for it.

Youngblood related that on opening his office one morning he found that rats had chewed off the tops of car-nations which were standing in a glass vase about 14 inches high. According to the real estate man, the rats did not move a chair next to the vase and thus reach the succulent stems, nor was there anything else near by on which they might have stood. And he does not believe the rodents could have climbed the sides of the smooth vase. Still the flowers suffered heavily.

And to make the problem harder, Youngblood said that the rats, displaying a highly developed artistic sense, carried roses from one desk to another which lacked posies. How did the rats accomplish their task?

HAS POSITION TO MAINTAIN

Drum-Horse of British and American Cavalry Bands Must Be of Distinguished Appearance.

There are grades of honor, even among horses. We are apt to think of the war horse as a proud animal, and so he is, and has a right to be, for he is called upon to be as brave as he is proud. But proudest and most dignified of all horses of the army is the animal that is called upon to fill the position of drum-horse in the regimental band. In the American and British armies cavalry bands are mounted, and the most honorable position in all the band is that of the bearer of the kettle-drums. The horse is selected for his distinguished appearance. He is often pinto, altho sometimes pure white.

Something more than mere beauty of form is required of the drum-horse. He must be trained until he becomes a dignified and graceful bearer of the handsome trappings that pertain to his high calling. His education is severe and prolonged bringing him up to that point where his pride and intelligence make him equal to the duties required of him.

He is severely tried by the booming of the large drums he carries, but in time he becomes indifferent to their noise. In the parade, his rider has his hands full in the use of the sticks; he controls the horse by means of reins fastened to the stirrup-strap near the foot.—Christian Science Monitor.

USED BAMBOO TO MAKE CLOCK

Remarkable Work of Italian Considered Well Worth the Money He Asks for It.

An eight-day clock whittled out of bamboo by Costanzo Renzi, of Rome, and valued at $50,000, is on exhibition in the jewelry and silverware division on the fourth floor of the Bush Terminal sales building, says the New York Times. Two years were required to make the clock, which is made entirely of bamboo with the exception of the leaden weight and two small glasses which serve as gongs.

The clock, with its complicated bamboo mechanism suggesting a miniature steel skyscraper in course of construction, stands about 7½ feet high. At any time by looking at it one can tell the hour, minute and second, the day of the week and the month of the year, as well as the phases of the moon.

The clock strikes the hours and quarter-hours, a cane mallet forced by a cane spring striking two gongs which serve as bells. The chimes are regulated to indicate the time to those who cannot see the clock. At noon, if desired, a small flag is raised, the raising being preceded by a whistle from a bamboo tube, and one minute after the noon hour a cannon at the top of the clock is discharged.

Saw the Six Hundred Ride to Death.

William Richardson, a Crimewar veteran and an eye witness to the charge of the Light brigade at Balaklava, died here recently, aged ninety years. He, with seven members of the crew of a British merchant sailing ship at Constantinople and enlisted in the navy with the Saucy Aretusa. When the old wooden battleship was put out of action at Sebastopol he and 55 others volunteered for land service in the Greenhill battery. While at headquarters he was only about twelve feet from Lord Raglan when he landed an order to Captain Nolan, who carried the message to Lieman, who issued the order for the charge to Cardigan.—St. Catharines correspondence Toronto Globe.

Future of Brazil.

Brazil, which is almost wholly in the tropics, has the opportunity to upset the belief that no people can reach the very highest civilization in a tropical climate. The census, just completed, credits Brazil with 30,500,000 people, which makes it the second American country in point of population. Some modern men of science maintain that when means have been found to utilize the heat of the sun as a mechanical energy the tropics will become centers of production and therefore of civilization. If that should be true, what country could match Brazil, with its great resources of minerals, timber and land, and its great navigable rivers?

Texas Raises Less Rice.

It is estimated that the rice acreage in Texas this season is more than 50 per cent less than that of last year. Growers assert that they lost money on their crop last year, due to low prices and poor marketing conditions. The Southern Rice Growers' association has gone out of business and its place is being taken by the American Rice Growers' association, which is said to be patterned after the California Fruit Growers' association, so far as its co-operative and marketing features are concerned.

1. The Campaign of Circumstantial Evidence. Had the Defense managed to exclude the testimony of E. D. Vestel from the jury the state would to a large extent be forced to rely upon circumstantial evidence to convict. This item has been fought with the state victoriously.
2. The Campaign of the Insanity Plea. The defense, from the calling of the first man from the venire of 75, summoned for jury, up to the present moment in the case, has at every opportunity struck with a view of proving apparently that their defendant was insane at the time Miltmore met his death. "Are you prejudiced toward the plea of insanity?" was the question that went to every move of the defense from the first. It has predicted the fight that will be waged this week when the defense draws on its witnesses, as the constant propounding of the law governing circumstantial evidence forecasted the struggle which has marked the last week of the trial.
3. The Campaign of Self Defense. Here is the hidden bolt of the defense which may be loosed should the expert legal diagnostician see the tide going against Lena Clarke when the establishing of a reasonable doubt as to her sanity is being striven for. No inkling of a "self defense" plea has been given so far by the defense in the trial, but in the twinkling of an eye it could come when a homely, red-headed woman in weird checked gingham is put on the stand.

Sanford has a real band.
 And Sanford will soon have a most beautiful lake front.
 Much work to be done but the people have the right vision.
 Precooling seems to be a popular pastime just now.
 President Knight gave the pavilion to Mayor Stevens and the mayor took it, by gum.

And the precooled breezes from the northern regions are making our lettuce crop look good.
 "Fatty Arbuckle Takes The Stand," "Lena Clarke Takes the Stand," says headlines in today's papers. Probably the last stand they will ever make.

Campbell-Lossing Post, American Legion, has one of the most active organizations in the state. They are doing something all the time to keep the pot boiling and all of us in hot water.

Sanford is among those sensible cities of Florida that did not believe in sending away for a band for winter concerts. We have as good a band as anyone and they will not cost $1,000 a week.

"Ex-saloon men own one-third of New York's drug stores" says dispatch in dailies. Well, why shouldn't they? Prohibition put them out of business and they just naturally drifted into the drug business.

RECOGNIZING OUR POSSIBILITIES.

Today's Herald carries the story of the big precooling plant to be erected here at once by the Farmer's Exchange. They are home people, growers, farmers, men who know what they are doing and, having faith in this proposition, are putting their money into a precooling plant because they know the possibilities of the Sanford section.

The plant will be a big success from the very start, and will not only be a big thing for the growers but a big thing for the entire section, as it will produce a better pack, a better grade of vegetables, and they will go into the markets in better shape than ever before, thus creating a demand for Sanford vegetables such as no other section can command.

The local people have been the first to erect such a plant. They are breaking ground today for this plant. This of itself means so much to the Sanford section, for it demonstrates that home people have faith in their own project.

New York capitalists were here last week with the same proposition on a larger scale. Their project should go forward with an added impetus now that the Farmer's Exchange, without any previous notice, have gone straight to the point and started their building at once. Investors from other states should have no compunctions about investing their money in a project that has already been backed and will be backed again by home people. There will be other

SANFORD HERALD'S BIG ACHIEVEMENT

The Sanford Herald of Nov. 25 contains a solid eight-page ad for one firm in the "largest city on Lake Monroe." Congratulations. When The Tribune a few Sundays ago carried a forty-page section, advertising by one Tampa firm, the Tampa Hardware Company, it broke all records for daily newspaper advertising in this country. The achievement of the Sanford Herald is no less wonderful, and it is to be praised. Taking eight pages in a daily in a town the size of Sanford is some enterprise on the part of the advertiser. It shows that the Sanford Herald is a fine advertising medium, for business men do not buy costly space in newspapers today because they are "friendly to the editor," or because they are "loyal to their town;" they buy because they expect to get value received, and more.

Porkins & Britt, the Sanford men's furnishing and clothing firm taking the eight-page advertisement, are live business men. They know how to get results; and we are sure they will get all they hope for.—Tampa Tribune.

ADVERTISING DID IT.

Out in Youngstown, Ohio, there was a grocer-butcher, who was a liberal and persistent patron of the advertising columns of the local newspaper. His name was Oles, and he lived on a farm just outside the city limits. One day he made a jocular announcement in his meat market ad that he was going to move into town and run for mayor. The announcement was made more for the purpose of drawing attention to his advertisement than with any serious intent. But his neighbors took it in all seriousness, and so many of them insisted on him making good, that the political bee finally got into his head gear, and he announced himself as a candidate against the incumbent, who was the regular party nominee. Mr. Oles did not have the backing of any organization, and continued his meat business, but mixing more and more of municipal matters with his advertising. It was good business and it was good advertising. His ads must have been widely read and convincing, for when the votes were counted, he led his opponent, who had the party behind him, by more than 400 votes. The moral is obvious. Advertising pays, and George L. Oles, mayor of Youngstown, Ohio, gratefully acknowledges that it does. Another point that seems to creep out is that the advertising must contain something more than a mere recital of prices. Make it interesting if you would have it read.—Tamp Times.

WHO PAYS FOR ADVERTISING?

The next time anyone tries to "string you along" with that old chestnut about his line selling cheaper because his firm does not spend a lot of money in advertising, just remember the story of the three mouse traps.

In a certain town three firms were manufacturing mouse traps. Their manufacturing costs were just about the same and they did an equal amount of business.

The traps cost 15 cents to make, sold to the dealer at 20 cents, and were sold to the consumer at 30 cents. Each manufacturer made 5 cents per trap, or 33 1-3 per cent profit, on his turnover. Each dealer made 10 cents, or 50 per cent profit. Each dealer, of course, carried all three traps, for there was about an equal demand for each.

One day one manufacturer made up his mind to spend one cent per trap in advertising. This reduced his profit to four cents a trap. He did not advance his prices and neither did the dealers.

He started his advertising and kept it up for two years. During this time the other two manufacturers kept on taking their five cent profits per trap and quietly laughed at the "poor advertiser."

During the second year, however, a popular demand "seemed to arise" for this advertised trap. This manufacturer actually found demand getting ahead of production. In seeking to keep up with it he installed new machinery. He found that under improved methods, and with quantity production, he could turn just as good a trap at a cost of nine cents as formerly cost 15 cents. So he reduced his selling price to the dealer from 20

WORK OF ANCIENT BUILDERS

Methods of Thousands of Years Ago Seem Crude Today, but They Were Effective.

Dr. C. S. Fisher of the University of Pennsylvania has recently spent six years at the head of archeological expeditions to Egypt, and among his discoveries were some which help to make the methods of the ancient builders less mysterious.

The blocks were quarried by means of wooden wedges driven in at intervals along the cleavage line. When soaked with water, the wedges expanded and split off the stone, which was then shaped and dressed with chisels and drills of very hard bronze.

EDUCATION LAWS TOO LOOSE

Children's Bureau of United States Department of Labor Deplores Some Exemptions Allowed.

Every state now has a compulsory day school attendance law, according to information recently furnished by the United States Department of Labor through the children's bureau.

In five states attendance is required until eighteen years of age, in two of these in certain districts only; in three until seventeen; and in thirty-two until sixteen.

Unfortunately, says the bureau, the exemptions in the majority of states are so numerous that they greatly limit the application of the law. The most common exemptions are for employment, or upon completion of a specified school grade.

The amount of attendance required is still unsatisfactory in many states, several demanding only 12, 16, or 20 weeks in a year.

PEOPLES' FORUM

LEFFLER ASKS QUESTIONS
Sanford, Fla., Nov. 28, 1921.

To The Editor,
Sanford Herald.

Dear Sir:

The frank statements of the Hon. Forrest Lake, candidate for City Commissioner, in your issue of the 25th inst., should be carefully considered.

It is to be presumed that no one for an instant would say this gentleman would permit his name to be considered for an office under any form of government he considers bad.

It is known by all men that the present commissioners are broad-gauged men and are only striving for the welfare of our city, and at all times welcome and encourage recommendations from every source and put them in effect whenever it appears to be in the interest of our city. For this reason it would be of interest to know how many times Mr. Lake has been present at meetings of the commission? How many suggestions for improvement have been made by him, written or oral?

Mr. Lake states that the city can, in his opinion, be run in a more economical manner. It would appear reasonable that he should take the voters into his confidence and advise just how this can be done before election rather than afterwards. In other words, all criticisms should be constructive rather than destructive. It is a great deal easier to tear down than to build up. It would appear only fair to the City Commission that he should adopt their methods until he can suggest better, and they would gladly give his views the consideration to which they are entitled.

His remarks as to city budget are not understood, as he could easily have ascertained that the budget system was in force and honestly lived up to. If he could have improved the budget in any way, he should as a good citizen have stated his views to the commission long ago.

It would also interest a large body of taxpayers now, who have to pay large amounts of additional taxes to make good the neglect of former city governments to provide a sinking fund to learn as to how many times he called the Council's attention to this neglect, and if, at any time or place, he ever made any effort during the years he was mayor, to have this fund established.

Mr. Lake states that if elected he would not attempt to disrupt the present form of government. How can he work in harmony with the present commissioners and satisfy his main supporters and sponsors who are now and always have been known antagonists to the city commission form of government?

C. H. LEFFLER.

FIND RELIC OF OLD LONDON

Arch of Bridge Which Must Have Been Built Centuries Ago Just Brought to Life.

A very interesting relic of old London has come to light, according to the London Times, an arch of old London bridge, which was demolished during the construction of the new London bridge, which began in 1825. The arch now discovered is the second from the north side of the old bridge, and is close to St. Magnus' church. It was disclosed during some building operations now in progress.

The first stone bridge over the Thames was built in 1170, but the bridge was constantly repaired and restored, so that there is no evidence of the exact date of this particular arch. It was apparently medieval, and its built of flint and stone with a very flat trajectory. At the beginning of the Eighteenth century, however, three flat wrought-iron supporting ribs were put in, and the middle one of these is dated 1703. The arch is not yet entirely uncovered, but a springer at each side is just being disclosed, and the span is estimated to be about 30 feet. The under surface of the arch is considerably waterworn between the added ribs. It is one of the arches close to which the mill wheel stood for the raising of water into the water tower that stood alongside the bridge. This arch stood in the river, and is, therefore, an evidence of the limits which, as time has gone on, have been imposed on the Thames, the river being now much narrower than it was in medieval times. It is understood that this relic of old London is to be carefully preserved.

CROWDING THE SEA SERPENT

Old Friend of the Ocean Summer Resorts Makes Way for Pirate Ship From Russia.

We believe but one sea serpent has been sighted so far this season. Perhaps it is still a little early, but the weather has been hot enough to bring our old friend to the surface, and no doubt the frightened and delighted visitors at shore resorts and those who go out to sea in boats for a short distance will soon be rewarded with a sight of his ugly head or fangs, noted by the water churned up by the swishing of his angry tail. However, it is possible, that the sight more calculated to thrill will be the pirate ship from Russia that is moving in such a mysterious way its wonders to perform. If this is so, we are certain that for every view of the sea serpent that is recorded on the part of credible witnesses there will be 20 equally credible witnesses who caught a glimpse of the new terror of the deep, long, low and dark, either just before it submerged or at the moment it came to the surface to cast its eye about for a new ship to capture and sink or to drag away the crew in tons to Bobobovik Russia. To the elderly devotee who inquired where such a craft secured its necessary fuel the assiduous young woman answered that it probably operated by electricity. "That could be more probable?" queried the Court.

Flower Worth Small Fortune.

Ten thousand dollars is an extraordinary price for a single plant; yet it was paid by English horticulturists for an orchid raised in America, the Cattleya gigas alba.

This Cattleya was flowered in 1910, and exhibited at an orchid show in the United States, where it was awarded a gold medal. The plant was found in 1900 in a lot of other specimens of Cattleya gigas. It was only by chance that the plant was not sold for a dollar or two. The only reason was that after most of its companions had been disposed of this one, with some others that were not in very good condition, was set aside. Finally all the specimens were potted.

To the great surprise of the horticulturists when, next spring, the plant came up it was with pure white flowers. The plant was sold in London for perhaps the highest figure that an orchid ever brought.

Apology Needs an Apology.

"Gentlemen"—It came from the lips of an attorney pleading a case recently before the Supreme court of the state of Idaho. In front of him sat the judges clothed with their judicial dignity, listening intently to the case. The attorney had erred. Judges should be addressed as "Your honors."

"Gentlemen"—repeated the lawyer, and the faintest hint of a smile flitted across the features of the men in front of him.

Suddenly he stopped, realizing his blunder.

"I apologize for calling you 'gentlemen,'" he blurted out.

Laughter in a courtroom is not deemed exactly proper, but a joke is a joke and Chief Justice Rice replied simply, "I hope you made no mistake." —Idaho Statesman.

British Museum Overcrowded.

The British museum, says a London writer in the New York Post, has reached the end of its rope, so far as space is concerned. By the law of 1830 every English author, who has domiciled at home or in the dominions is obliged to place two copies of his books with the museum, which in turn guarantees to keep them in good condition and make them accessible to the reading public. The same applies to newspapers. Space for the latter was exhausted some time ago and a special barracks was built to store them. It is now feared that the same plan will have to be adopted for the books.

The Fort Lauderdale Herald says

The Fort Lauderdale Herald says the Gate City planing mill has recently put on a two-story addition at the plant at Nugent avenue and West Fourth street. "This, with the building previously erected, covers a whole block, is the third addition to the plant this year. The company now has one of the best equipped plants on the east coast, and it can furnish any kind of mill work, from a door or window frame to the most intricate mill work," says the newspaper, adding that the firm is steadily increasing its business, and is regarded as one of the really big industries of Ft. Lauderdale.

FORREST LAKE STATES HIS POSITION.

To the Voters of Sanford: It has come to my attention that efforts are still being made to have the people believe that if elected City Commissioner I would disrupt our present form of government.

Now nothing could be further from the truth than such propaganda, for the following reasons:

First: I will be only one of three commissioners and could not do any act without being joined by one or more of the others.

Second: The City Commissioners cannot under the law abolish the present charter, even though they all combine.

The city charter can only be changed by an act of the legislature, or by a vote of the people themselves.

Furthermore, I have no desire to upset the present form of government, as it is the substance that counts in anything, and not the form. However, there can doubtless be some improvements made in the present charter as has already been demonstrated, for example, the present method of nominating candidates; but such improvements are matters for the legislature, or for the people themselves, and cannot be effected by the commissioners.

I believe that the administrative affairs of the city can be run on a more economical basis than is being done at present, and at the same time, with greater efficiency, and if elected I shall work to that end.

I believe that the law requiring a budget for each fiscal year's revenues and expenses should be rigidly followed, and that the administrative affairs of the city should be conducted on that basis.

I have made no statement or promise of what I shall do if elected, and shall not do so, except such public statements as may be published over my signature, as is this one.

Sincerely,
FORREST LAKE.
