ASK THE DOCTOR...HE KNOWS!

... but he probably will refuse to tell you the facts.

Can't You Imagine What He Thinks of The Patient Who, When He Gets Well, Fails to Pay For Medical Attention?

Keep your own conscience clear by paying all your creditors when their bills come due. Then you will not find it advisable to cross the street when you see the man you owe coming.

And remember, the individual who has a reputation for paying bis bills always gets good service, yes better service....

BE SAFE!

.... you may need quick service some day you will get it if you're known to be a person who pays bills promptly.

AN UNFINISHED LETTER

Dear Jin: I am writing to tell you that Old Doc died last week. A few of us chipped in and paid for his burial, and the boys named me custodian of his stuff — scarely worth ten

It seems he's been selling his doctor's tools.

That scary, old stethoscope, Remember? It's gone.

And the big watch he held in his hand while he counted a kid's pulse . . . . Member we all had measles at the same time?

I found the book in which he jotted down items of various kinds, I guess Old Doc brought half our town into the world, Jim, and how he did take care of everybody in that flu epidemic, and when typhoid broke loose in Shanty Town!

I got a lot of information out of that book.
It's a sort of saga of our town, but, Gosh, Jim, did you know that some of the most properous people we have never paid old Doc? They owed their very lives to him, but . . . .

The rest of the letter is missing, but it already told enough. Surely the ingrates of the world are the most despicable of all mankind.

MAGIC YOU CAN DO

COR a trick in which you make writing vanish, you need two envelopes, two sheets of paper, a pencil, a pair of scissors and some paste. Cut away the back of one envelope, leaving the front with the gummed flap attached. Cover the whole of the flap with paste and allow it to dry. Then put some paste round the three sides of the cut envelope and stick it inside the whole envelope so that the three pasted sides stick to the whole envelope. Add a narrow line of adhesive on the flap of the envelope. Finally, place a single sheet of blank paper between the two envelopes and stick the two flaps together. The two flaps must appear as one. When performing the trick you place the "secret" envelope on the table and invite someone to write something on the sheet of paper, put the paper in the envelope and seal it.

Make several magic passes over the envelope, after which you cut off the flap with a pair of seissors. Then you take out the plain sheet of paper. The writing has disappeared!

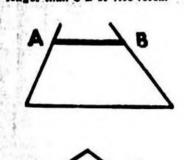

Go on to another trick, so your audience will be distracted from examining the envelope you used.

OU know what a conventional checkerboard looks like. Well, cut out all of the 14 figures above and use them to form a checkerboard. There are a number of ways it can be done successfully; so the problem is to see how many distinctly different arrangements of the segments into a checkerboard that you can work out.

Many folks have found this a more fascinating cutout than conventional jigsaw puzzles, so you may want to mount the pieces on cardboard and shellac them so they can be used over and over.

THIS number maze, as you see, consists of 36 numbers arranged in six rows of six each and connected by diagonals.

The problem is to select numbers totaling the highest possible score in accordance with this rule: no two numbers are to be on the same diagonal. You may pick as many numbers as you wish, provided you adhere to that rule.

Try this on friends and see if they can beat your score.
