The per centage of Florida's school funds derived from state sources is igrowing smaller and smaller with each year. In 193-94 about 23 per cent of school funds came from the state, as compared with 5-1-2 per cent to-day. This is disclosed in the bit canillar report of the state's educational superintendent, which will be placed before the next legislature for consideration in dealing with measures relating to Florida's school system.

The tendency now is to raise school funds by local taxation, "the report points out, adding that "this will work well in the courtees of wealth, but the poorer counties and districts will find it impossible to maintain schools in this way."
