Erratic Pressure Caused By Stress

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm hoping you will help me with a question my doctor doesn't seem to answer. And I have found no literature on the subject. Lola has been written about plain high blood pressure but so little about the patient whose blood pressure is up and down.
Much of the time though the day is normal or lower; 120 over 70, 140 over 80. Then anytime, and especially evening, it will go up to 150 over 90 or even as high as 200 over 115.
My doctor does not give me blood pressure medicine because he says it is not regular high blood pressure. But I am very uncomfortable when it goes up and feel very weak and nervous. I take a light Librium and a nitroglycerine under the tongue. The nitro usually brings it down but it will often soon go back up.
I am not overweight, do not smoke, or drink coffee. If I had plain high blood pressure there would be medicines for it but there seems to be so little to do with this up and down problem. I dread evenings because of this problem. Can you help me?
DEAR READER - I have written about this problem before but it is common enough to justify repeating. Your doctor is absolutely right in not giving you high blood pressure medicine in view of your fairly regular normal readings. These individuals with your problem are called vascular hyperreactors. I have seen hundreds of them. Even young healthy people may have such reactions in the doctor's office, only to have perfectly normal readings an hour later.
Your blood pressure can rise and fall as a reflex response, as the small arteries in your body constrict or dilate in response to reflex actions. Such responses can follow stress of any kind.

Hammock Car Dealer Plan Wins OK; Building Nears

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

A controversial site plan for construction of a Baird-Ray Datsun dealership on U.S. 17-92 near Spring Hammock was approved today with little or no discussion by the Seminole County Commission. The motion to approve the site plan was made by Commissioner John Kimbrough and seconded by Commissioner Bill Kirkhoff. The third vote was provided by Commissioner Bob French.

Commission Chairman Dick Williams and Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski were absent when the vote was taken.

The action clears the way for issuance of building permits for the dealership, which is scheduled for construction near General Hutchison Parkway. The dealership will occupy about 2½ acres.

Land Development Administrator Herb Hardin said today's plans submitted by Datsun dealership owner Bill Ray "more than meet the code."

Controversy surfaced after the commissioners on Dec. 14 overrode their own professional staff and changed zoning from agricultural to commercial. That decision brought strong criticism from the Sierra Club and the League of Women Voters.

Last week, the commission rejected Ray's site plan. Commissioners instructed Ray to install a 20-foot natural buffer zone to protect the trees, to have a drainage plan approved by County Engineer Bill Bush, and to insure installation of proper acceleration and deceleration lanes in front of the dealership, which fronts U.S. 17-92.

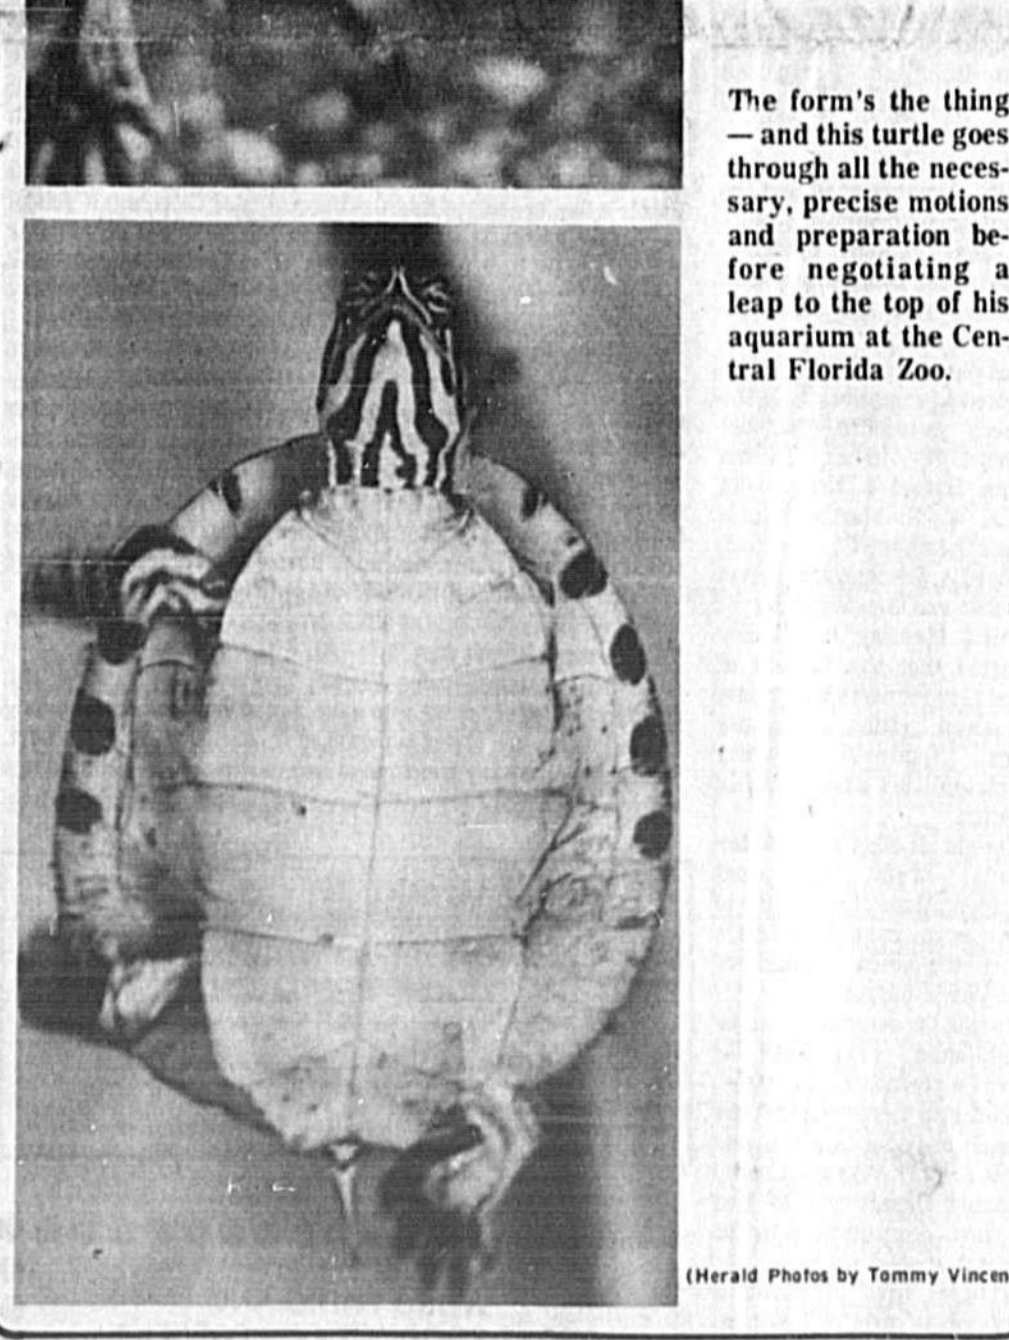

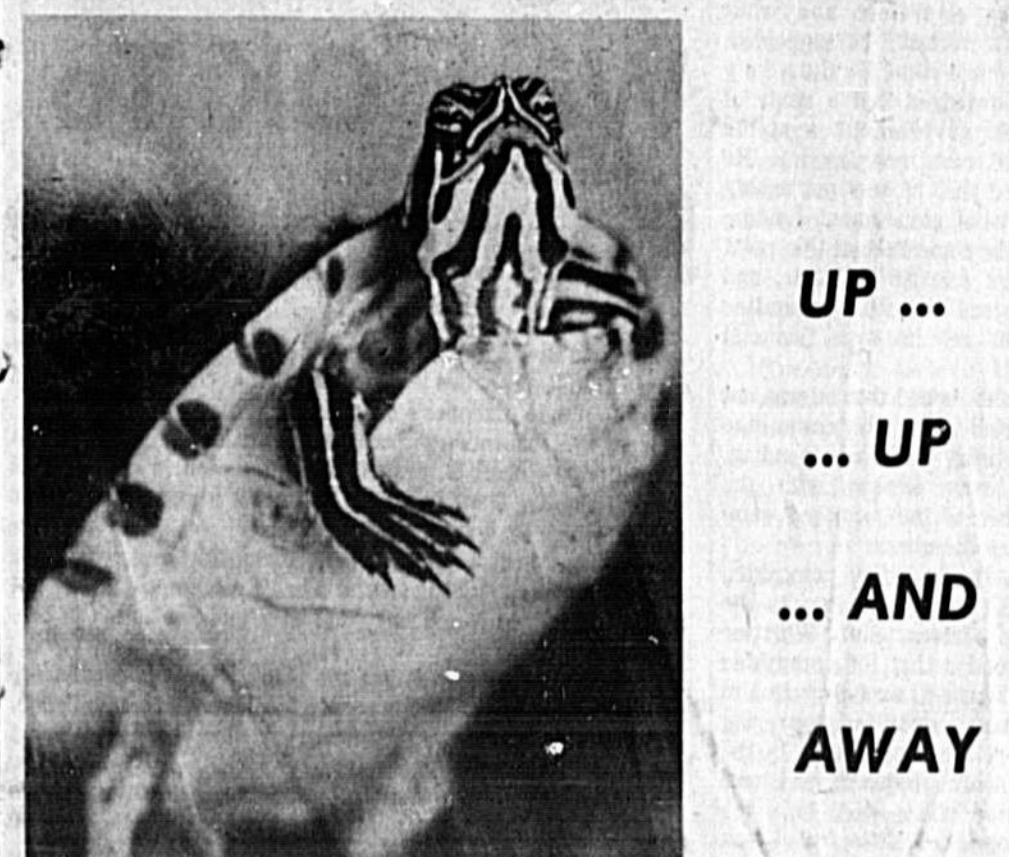

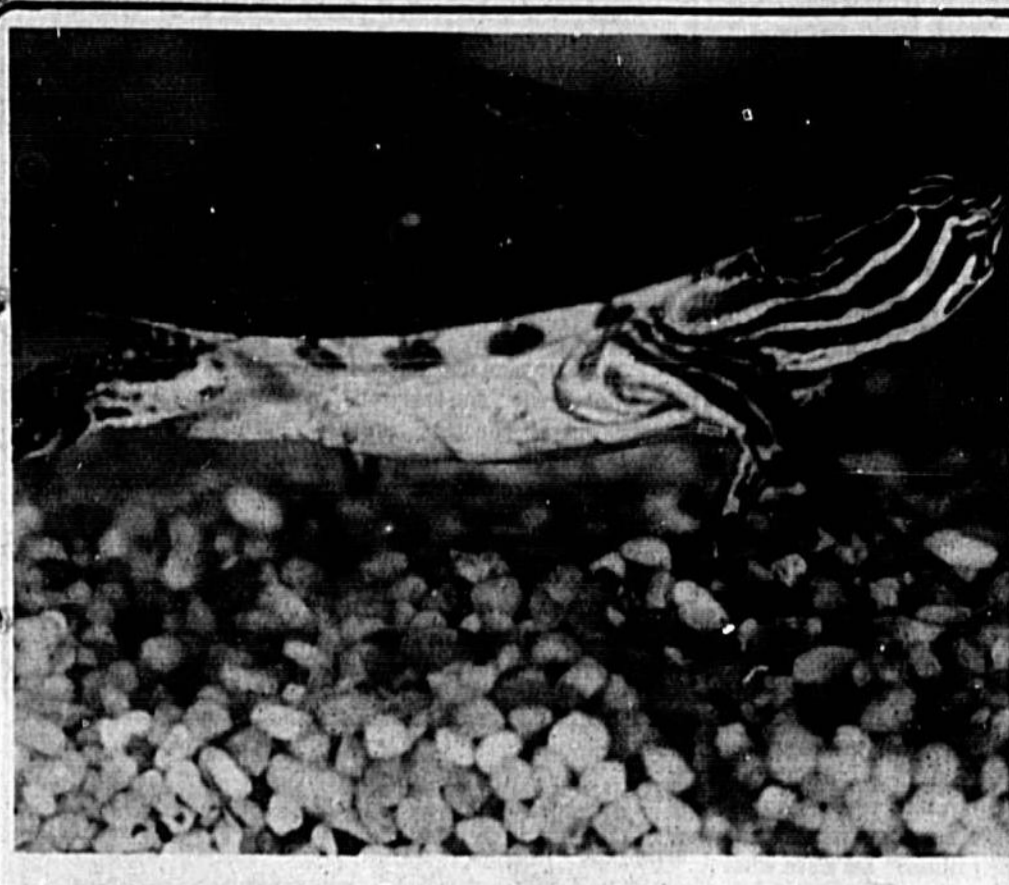

Hardin told the commissioners today that Ray has met specifications outlined last week by the commission.

French, who is the district commissioner, declared it is "important to preserve" the natural environment because of the dealership's sensitive location.

Environmentalists protested the Datsun dealership because they felt it would harm the sensitive hammock area, which is a natural filtering system for water that runs into Soldiers Creek and then into Lake Jessup.

The issue ended in a classic confrontation between environmentalists and builders.

Although Ray today received permission to begin construction, environmentalists have been promised a commission decision on whether to ban further construction in the 330-acre hammock area until the comprehensive plan is adopted in October.

What, Us Feud?
A bidding controversy between the Seminole County Commission and the Sanford Port Authority was nipped today when the commissioners gave port officials authority to continue construction of a warehouse on port property.
The issue surfaced two weeks ago when the commissioners refused to grant port officials a construction permit until the port complied with county regulations.
The port contended it was unnecessary to secure a county permit because the port was created by an act of the state legislature and, as such, could legally issue its own permit.
Land Development Administrator Herb Hardin said today's action resolved the controversy, at least as far as construction of the 10,000-square-foot warehouse is concerned.
When the disagreement surfaced, Port Administrator Jim Ryan claimed the county was attempting to halt growth in Seminole by stalling the port on construction of the warehouse. The warehouse, according to Ryan, is being built for a tenant.
County Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski said Ryan's statement that the commission is holding up growth was absurd.

Also Urges Victim Compensation

Askew: Register Handguns

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Gov. Reubin Askew today released a comprehensive crime-fighting program which included a call for the registration of all handguns in Florida.
He also created a council of prosecutors to fight organized crime and announced support for a limited program to compensate victims of crime.
Retracting his earlier call for a ban on the cheap handguns known as "Saturday Night Specials," Askew advocated statewide registration of handguns. He called for a cooling off period in the purchase of such guns.
"We need a full-scale assault on the frightening specter of the handgun," Askew said in a statement released by his office. He is in Europe on a trip to promote foreign investment in the state.
Releasing a comprehensive crime-fighting program for the legislature, the governor appointed five state attorneys to his Council for Prosecution of Organized Crime. They are Ed Austin, Jacksonville, chairman; Richard Gerstein, Miami; James Russell, Clearwater; Robert Stone, Fort Pierce; and Quilan Yancey, Bartow.
The governor urged the legislature to provide adequate funds so the council can conduct statewide fight against organized crime with the assistance of special units created by each of the 20 state attorneys.
Calling for concerted efforts to fight both organized and street crime, Askew said statistics to be released soon by the Florida Department of Criminal Law Enforcement (FDCL) will show that past crime-fighting efforts are paying off.
He said murders dropped by 20.3 per cent last year, robberies by 21.3 per cent, armed robberies by 33.2 per cent and the dollar loss from crime by 15.2 per cent. However, Askew warned against complacency and said efforts to rid the state of organized crime must be stepped up.
He called for passage of an anti-racketeering law to drive mobsters out of legitimate business ventures. Askew also recommended increased powers for the Department of Business Regulation to keep gangsters out of regulated industries.
In other highlights of his program, the governor recommended:
—Compensating crime victims, but probably only for medical expenses and pain and suffering.
—Establishing a system of probation and restitution centers for minor offenders who should not be sent to prison. They could continue to work and earn money to make reimbursement to their victims.
—Creating a task force to study ways to cut down on crimes against the elderly.
—Reducing immunity from prosecution to the actual information on which suspects testify. They could be prosecuted for the crime on which they testify on the basis of independent information.
—Passing tough new laws to crack down on the "fences" who sell stolen goods.
—Increasing the size of the statewide grand jury and allowing it to investigate pornography, which Askew said is dominated by organized crime.
—Appropriating $25,000 to hire 26 new FDCL agents to fight organized crime.

9-Member Panel Completes Review

Sewer Panel Rejects Option On Treatment Plant

By MARK WEINBERG
Herald Staff Writer

The Interim Regional Sewer Plan Committee Monday narrowly defeated a motion that would have permitted the proposed regional sewer district to go into the sewage collection business.
The vote came as the nine-member committee completed a page-by-page review of proposed state legislation to create a North Seminole Sewerage District encompassing Sanford, Lake Mary and northern Seminole County.
The legislation, drafted by Lake Mary City Attorney Gary Massey and Sanford City Attorney C. Vernon Mize Jr., was presented to the Seminole state legislative delegation Feb. 28.
The legislation must still be reviewed by the city governments of Lake Mary and Sanford and the Seminole County Commission before being presented in final form to the legislative delegation April 15.
At Monday's meeting, committee member Harry Terry, a Lake Mary city councilman, made a motion for the district to have the option of building and operating a sewage collection (and transmission and treatment) system at the request of a local government within the district's boundaries.
"I think there's a strong possibility that Lake Mary may prefer to have (the district) do it with their greater expertise," Terry said.
The interim committee has confined the proposed district's functions to construction and operation of a regional sewerage transmission and treatment system, with collection systems being the responsibility of Sanford, Lake Mary and the county.
Roger Neiswander, county administrator, objected to Terry's proposal. "I see (this motion as) a total change in the concept... This could put the district in a position of bargaining with individual customers... From a management standpoint, this is an entirely different ball game."
Neiswander said he would have to vote against Terry's motion because there was no time to evaluate its ramifications.
The motion failed in a 3-3 vote. In favor were Terry, Nicholas Martucci (Lake Mary) and John Carl (at large). Voting against Terry's motion were Neiswander, John Kimbrough (Seminole County commissioner) and Sidney M. Richard Jr. (at large).
Massey and Mize will re-draft the legislation, incorporating changes and deletions from Monday's interim committee meeting. The committee Monday decided to submit the proposed legislation to fiscal adviser Loomis Leedy for his comments and advice.
The draft bill will then be reviewed by the city governments of Lake Mary, Sanford and the county commission.
The interim committee's review of the 31-page legislation included decisions to: —Let stand, over Kimbrough's objection, a provision allowing the district, in its first five years of existence, to issue general obligation bonds, backed by an assessment of up to 1 mill. "I don't think we should ever project an idea of a board which could levy taxes. More important, the state legislative delegation won't buy it," Kimbrough said.
—Require construction by the district to conform to local government building codes.
—Require the district to get approval of a local government in which it wishes to condemn land before the district could use its condemnation power.
—State that only local governments could require individuals to connect to local sewer collection systems connected to the regional transmission and treatment system.
—Require the district's long-range plans for placing transmission lines be in conformance with the cities' and county's long range land use plans.
—Require the district to seek approval of the local government in whose jurisdiction the district wished to use easements, rights of way or other lands for the regional system.
The interim committee will meet again March 22 at 4 p.m. at Sanford city hall.

WORLD IN BRIEF

1,085 Bodies Unearthed, 6,405 Hurt In Romania

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — As rescue teams press their increasingly futile search for survivors amid the rubble, the official toll in the earthquake that battered the Balkans last weekend has risen to 1,085 dead and 6,405 injured. The toll included 810 confirmed dead in Bucharest, 224 elsewhere in Romania, and 6,185 injured; 50 dead and 120 injured in neighboring Bulgaria, and one dead and 100 injured in Yugoslavia. Western diplomats estimate that the dead in Bucharest could total 4,000 by the time the work teams finish digging through the ruins of 32 apartment buildings and other structures that were leveled.

Bhutto Wins In Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's party won a landslide victory in Monday's general election. Final returns today gave it 153 of the 200 elected seats. It will also appoint members to 16 other seats representing women and other minorities and will have the support of eight independents from tribal areas, giving it a majority of 142. The nine-party opposition coalition, the Pakistan National Alliance, won only 33 seats.

Gunman Holding City Hall Police To Carter: Help Us

CLEVELAND (AP) — Police telephoned the White House today in an effort to get President Carter to speak with a black gunman who held a white policeman hostage, saying he wants to free his people from oppression and wants whites to leave the earth within a week. ### They're Bugged At City Hall

As if the current controversy over the city charter is not enough to bug the Oviedo City Council, another gnawing problem has cropped up in Oviedo City Hall — termites. At Monday night's weekly meeting in Oviedo, Council Chairman R. W. Whittier disclosed that wood-eating pests have been discovered in the walled area of the city hall section.

Warrenville Heights Police Chief Craig Merchant said his office has contacted the Secret Service about possibly arranging a conversation between Moore and Carter.

Merchant said the Moore expressed dissatisfaction today with what he saw as the news media's apparent disregard of his plight.

Whittier said that the council decided that the committee would begin work April 1 and study the present charter and proposed revisions for six months.

Much of the discussion concerned financing the committee and its relationship to the city council. Whittier recommended that the committee be given the aid of City Attorney S. Joseph Davis Jr. that would indicate the direction the council wished the citizens committee to operate in their investigation.

Maybe it was because of the rain. Maybe it was because the hearing was called for Monday, following a beautiful weekend. Or maybe nobody cared.

Mayor Gerald Christensen was informally authorized by the Casselberry City Council Monday night to begin the quest for a five-acre tract of land in the U.S. 17-92 area for a proposed $15 million to $20 million city hall complex.

Decision Needed On Supercarrier

Congress, in its wisdom, would do well to consider carefully the recommendation by the Defense Department not to build any more nuclear supercarriers.

These huge ships are the most expensive in the fleet. They are also potentially vulnerable to satellite surveillance and missile attack, especially in confined waters like the Mediterranean Sea and more especially in an all-out nuclear war.

Such big supercarriers tend to become the pride of any navy, like the Japanese superbattleship Yamato, the biggest battleship with the biggest guns when it was built, 1937-1941. Yamato steamed out of the Inland Sea in the last year of World War II without air cover and was sunk in less than three hours after she came under air attack by U.S. carrier planes the next day. She never got a chance to fire her big guns at the U.S. invasion fleet off Okinawa. It was a classic demonstration of the obsolescence of the battleship under an expertly delivered air onslaught.

It takes five years to build a nuclear-powered supercarrier like the Nimitz and such a ship would be expected to remain operational for at least 15 years — almost until the year 2000.

It is impossible to predict what the state of missile technology will be by 1990 but there are already signs that the U.S. Navy is vulnerable to the Soviet anti-ship cruise missile threat. And cruise missile technology has reached a stage of explosive development.

Under these circumstances, it may be advisable to avoid the cost of additional large-deck carriers in the future and to reduce the vulnerability of U.S. air assets by basing them widely throughout the fleet.

Strike Force 'Out'

One of the few original ideas for fighting organized crime, the interdepartmental strike force, appears to be headed for extinction.

In the mid-1960s, the fascination with organized crime in law enforcement circles was exceeded only by the frustration over what to do about organized racketeers. The idea behind the strike force was that the Justice Department and other federal investigative agencies would focus their full attention on a particular mob family and bring their combined resources to bear on finding out everything that could be used against that particular group.

Results of the first such application, in Buffalo in 1967, were sufficiently impressive to make that strike force a model. However, within the Justice Department, the seeds for destruction were already being sown.

The problem was political. Offices of the U.S. attorneys could not be counted on to push against local crime syndicates. The U.S. attorneys, after all, were political appointees who owed their rise more often than not to the local political power nibbled to death.

That state of affairs resulted in many investigations being nibbled to death.

At the same time, a more telling failure of the strike force program became apparent: There was no system for determining whether the teams were really inhibiting the overall operations of organized crime. The strike forces had no overall basis for justifying their existence.

The experience suggests two lessons: That new programs should not be permitted to ignore the structures that preceded them, and that no program should be permitted to operate for almost a decade without thorough and periodic evaluation.

The strike force concept was a good idea. It is its management that appears to be bringing it down. (Washington Post)

BERRY'S WORLD

WASHINGTON — In the convivial atmosphere of the House, it is the Christian practice that only those without sin will eat the first mudball. Republican leader John Rhodes started his colleagues, therefore, by flinging mud at Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. last year. Now it has turned out that Rhodes was not without sin after all. He attacked Tip O'Neill in a book that was largely written by a House employee. Thus the taxpayers subsidized the scathing prose, but Rhodes pocketed the royalties.

The affidavit book, "The Fulle System," portrays O'Neill unfavorably as a blustering partisan. This deeply offended O'Neill who expressed his indignation characteristically with a roar of outrage from the House floor.

The short, dapper Rhodes played the madman to the roaring, bull-like O'Neill. "The gentleman from Massachusetts," responded Rhodes defiantly, "will find some very interesting reading in that book."

Now it is the Speaker's turn to call Rhodes' attention to some interesting reading. For we have learned that Rhodes used a ghostwriter named J. Brian Smith to put the book into literary form. Rhodes dictated the material; then Smith rewrote it.

The talented Smith was paid, however, not by Rhodes but by the taxpayers. Smith accepted the public payroll as a $11,000-a-year recipient of the taxpayers' largesse. Yet Rhodes collected the full $3,000 in royalties.

Smith told us that his boss generously offered him part of the royalties. The ghostwriter turned down the offer presumably because he had already been paid adequately by the taxpayers. ## ANGLE-WALTERS 'Cabinet' Shadowy Gimmick

WASHINGTON — There's never been any shortage of pretentious ideas in American politics, but some self-anointed conservative gurus have come up with a gimmick that is hard to surpass for sheer brass.

They've trotted forth their very own "citizens' cabinet," a dozen gentlemen who graciously consented to form a conservative shadow government as a counterweight to all those liberal Carter imposters who somehow seized power recently.

With straight faces and proper pomf, the members of this "cabinet" were duly introduced last week at a Washington press conference orchestrated by The Conservative Caucus, Inc., a lobby group which claims 200,000 members nationwide.

The introductions included a brief biography of each "secretary," which was certainly fortunate since names like Meldrim Thomson, Hans F. Semholz, Henry Haslett, Larry McDonald, William A. Ruber, John Harmer, Ron Paul, Steve Symms, Robert Carlsson, John McCaughey and Sam H. Husbands wouldn't mean much to the average citizen.

But that's really beside the point. Most Americans would be hard pressed to identify more than one or two members of the real cabinet in this or any other administration.

What is so breathtaking about the conservative "shadow government" is that it was conceived and assembled without recourse to anything so tacky and common as a popular election.

About 400 hard-core conservatives met in Chicago last December to brood about the plight of the right. They couldn't work up much interest in forming a new political party, so they dreamed up the best thing: a "government" without a base.

Some of their peripatetic proselytizers such as direct mail whiz Richard A. Viguerie, beer magnate Joseph Coors, National Ryzers publisher William Ruber and Conservative Caucus director Howard Phillips, scurried about recruiting a "cabinet."

The venture, they said last week, was patterned after the shadow governments formed in Great Britain by the party out of power — which sounds plausible enough until you take a closer look at the comparison.

First of all, this country doesn't have a parliamentary system of government. Secondly, if we did the Republican Party would form a shadow government — not the conservatives, who don't happen to constitute a political party.

Taxes Paid Rhodes' Writer

WASHINGTON — In the convivial atmosphere of the House, it is the Christian practice that only those without sin will eat the first mudball. Republican leader John Rhodes started his colleagues, therefore, by flinging mud at Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. last year. Now it has turned out that Rhodes was not without sin after all. He attacked Tip O'Neill in a book that was largely written by a House employee. Thus the taxpayers subsidized the scathing prose, but Rhodes pocketed the royalties.

The short, dapper Rhodes played the madman to the roaring, bull-like O'Neill. "The gentleman from Massachusetts," responded Rhodes defiantly, "will find some very interesting reading in that book."

Now it is the Speaker's turn to call Rhodes' attention to some interesting reading. For we have learned that Rhodes used a ghostwriter named J. Brian Smith to put the book into literary form. Rhodes dictated the material; then Smith rewrote it.

The talented Smith was paid, however, not by Rhodes but by the taxpayers. Smith accepted the public payroll as a $11,000-a-year recipient of the taxpayers' largesse. Yet Rhodes collected the full $3,000 in royalties.

Smith told us that his boss generously offered him part of the royalties. The ghostwriter turned down the offer presumably because he had already been paid adequately by the taxpayers. This raises an interesting legal question. It is against the law for a congressman to take kickbacks from his employees. It instead he takes the proceeds from an employee's public service, does this constitute a kickback?

In an anguished interview, Smith insisted there had been no impropriety. He acknowledged that he had worked on the book during office hours, but he said he had also labored over it evenings and weekends. "I put in my 40 hours for the government," he said.

There is more to the story. Smith has a sideline; he is a 50 per cent partner in the public relations firm of Smith and Harroff. Rhodes retained the firm last year to handle the advertising for his re-election campaign. For its efforts, the firm was paid $12,500 in fees and commissions from the congressman's campaign collections. Smith has renounced any income from the firm while he is working for the government, but he still has a stake in its welfare. For half of the company's assets will revert to him when he leaves the federal payroll.

Both Rhodes and Smith contend that their actions didn't violate the House ethics code in effect last year or the tougher new code adopted last week. This depends, of course, on the definition of a kickback.

TOO MUCH ADVICE: Our federal administrators receive altogether too much advice. Most of it bad, from a bewildering assortment of advisory committees. President Jimmy Carter promised to clear out some of this bureaucratic underbrush if he made it to the White House. Within 30 days of his arrival, he created four new advisory committees.

This distorts the Senate Subcommittees on Reports, Accounting and Management, which has tried to keep a check on advisory committees. The subcommittee found 61 committees, for example, advising the government what to do about energy. These committees were split into a multitude of subcommittees and task forces, all concerning the same subject. The total number of advisory units, of this occurs in William Faulkner's "Light in August." An inveterate member of a community and is highly connoisseur. She is judged as a "bad" girl merely because of one of her actions.

Lena Grove (the woman) is able to get one person in the town to think as his own, instead of following the dictates of what he has been told to think.

Although he, too, is condemned for taking up with her, they find each other in the process. Instead of living someone else's life, they strike out and live their own lives.

Huckleberry Finn had the same trouble when he wanted to free his slave companion. He was wrong and wanted to free Jim. However, the ideas he had been taught led to utter confusion in the youth's mind.

Even so, Huck used his head for more than a harrack. Do we? Questioning our beliefs will make some of them stronger. We can discard those ideas that no longer fit our situation.

The changes in the quality of life are also recorded in literature. Henry David Thoreau lived a rich, thoughtful life. In studying his works, we may hold on to that which applies to us.

Quite the opposite of Thoreau's life, Saul Bellow adequately illustrates the shallowness and ambivalence of 20th century living in "Seize the Day."

If we see a portion of ourselves mirrored in a novel — whether it be something we like or not — we try to correct it. Perhaps we discover a limitation; in that case, so much the better. When our limitations are discovered, we can work freely within them.

Thoreau said in "Walden": "To know that we know what we know, to know that we do not know what we do not know, that is true knowledge."

Literature, then, is a rich source of insight. Further understanding and discoveries of ourselves and others can help us lead a full life. These discoveries are what studying literature is all about.

TV Equipment Aiding Search For 5 Miners

TOWER CITY, Pa. (AP) — Working with sensitive television and sound equipment — and the thin hope for a miracle — rescuers today prepared to electronically search the spot in a mine where they believe five men have been trapped since last Tuesday. The miners were trapped with five others at midday last Tuesday when a torrent of water broke through the Porter Tunnel. Four bodies have been removed from the mud and debris. Only one of the 10, Ronald Adley, 37, has been found alive.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is meeting for a third, originally unscheduled session with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of Israel, who is asking Carter to guarantee Israel's strength to stand alone against its adversaries. Rabin is meeting with Carter today at the White House. He was invited to lunch with members of Congress and scheduled a news conference later in the day at Blair House, the government guest residence across from the White House. The prime minister said he was gratified by Carter's endorsement Monday of "defensible borders" for Israel.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Outnumbered House Republicans are hoping to pick up enough Democratic votes to junk President Carter's proposed $50-perperson rebate and give Americans a permanent tax cut instead. Several Democrats share the GOP's distaste for the rebate, but there is no indication that enough will switch votes to kill the plan. The vote on the Republican proposal is expected to be the last preliminary question before the House was to decide late today on a tax cut aimed at stimulating the economy. House approval of the tax-cut package would send the measure to the Senate.

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Paul C. Warnke is confirmed as chief U.S. disarmament negotiator, the Carter administration could have trouble winning ratification of any agreement he reaches with the Soviets, Senate opponents say. The debate over Warnke continues today, with votes set for Wednesday on his twin appointments to be chief strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) negotiator and director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

WASHINGTON (AP) — British Prime Minister James Callaghan, flying here this week aboard a Concorde jetliner for talks with President Carter, will stress British determination to land the supersonic airplanes at U.S. airports. Diplomats say both the British and French governments will demand a 16-month demonstration program at New York's Kennedy Airport, where local officials have barred the Concorde.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Statewide water rationing may be imposed if voluntary conservation efforts fail, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. warned at the opening of a two-day conference here on California's devastating drought. He told the meeting of about 800 state water officials, agriculture and industry executives and community representatives on Monday that he has the power to impose rationing if he declares a state of emergency.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will make his first overseas trip early in May when he attends an international economic summit in London, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell announced today. Although Powell said he had nothing more to announce at this time, he indicated that Carter likely would remain in Europe after the scheduled May 7-8 meeting to confer with leaders of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

BAL HABOUR (AP) — Senior citizens who own their homes free and clear but are having financial difficulties because of fixed incomes and rising costs could receive monthly payments from a proposed plan called "reverse mortgage."

"Reverse mortgages would open up a new source of income for millions of Americans whose largest single asset, the home where they live, sits idle," said John A. Hardin, president of the United States League of Savings Associations.

Watch Your Weight And Live Longer

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband and I are in our upper 60s and quite well. We keep busy and thank our Lord daily for our good health. We watch our diets, as I do have high cholesterol. Luckily I've been able to keep it under control. I would be glad to send it to you but your letter did not have your address on it. I'd like to take this opportunity to tell all readers to be sure they have their address on their letter as well as on a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Be sure it is complete and clear enough to be read. Others who want information on weight control can send 50 cents for this issue with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB: It is necessary for a 58-year-old woman who has not menstruated for 11 years to use protection during sex to prevent pregnancy. Please answer as this is very urgent. DEAR READER— This question keeps coming up. To solve your immediate problem the answer for you is NO. For the rest of women with the question of "when can I stop birth control pills?" you should know there is no reliable record of any pregnancy in any woman after age 57. In general, you can assume that if you have gone through the menopause for two years you are most unlikely to have a pregnancy. Some authorities say if a year has passed that is sufficient. I would recommend that a woman ask her doctor about her own status if there is any doubt about whether she has completed the menopause and she is less than 57 years old. Remember that birth control pills are just female hormones and some doctors like to have women continue some of these to prevent the changes that occur with the menopause. So don't decide on your own that you should quit. Your doctor may have you on them for a good reason, or may wish to switch you to some other hormone to help you if you need hormone support during this phase of your life.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL For Wednesday, March 9, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There's no doubt you can make gains today, but you may not enjoy what you accumulate. There are too many problems. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may face a potentially serious disagreement between you and your mate today. It can be prevented with unselfish compromise. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The route to your goals is fraught with many obstacles today. If you are singular of purpose you will not be easily dissuaded. CANCER (June 21-July 21) Don't put your usual faith in those you trust. If buying or investing today. Though their intentions are good, they could lead you astray. LEO (July 22-Aug. 22) Ordinarily you'd not do things for others just to feather your nest. Today, however, such motives could guide your actions. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have a tendency to treat people too sternly at first today. Once you become more compassionate, you'll fare better. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Money matters are a mixed bag today. The dilation of a windfall could be offset when an old debt rears its head. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't try to use others to further your ambitions today. It's far better to enjoy them as friends or individuals. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's folly to cling to archaic ideas that you know won't work. Your nimble mind to select timely alternatives. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's probable persons you can usually depend upon won't be there when you need them today. Figure how to get along without them. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Safeguard your own interests today. The only person you can really count upon is you. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't try to delegate authority today. If you want something done right, do it yourself. YOUR BIRTHDAY March 9, 1977 It would be a big mistake this year to pass up any chance you have to add to knowledge in your chosen field. What you'll learn governs what you'll get.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 13, and I've had it with my mother. She has absolutely no respect for my personal privacy. When I'm gone she goes through my room, all my belongings and everything I own. I've never given her any reason not to trust me, but she asks me where I get every penny of my money, who I've been hanging around with and what they're like. I've asked her to please stop going through my things, but it doesn't do any good. Please help me, but don't send your reply in the mail because she reads my mail, too.

DEAR ABBY: There is a little girl in our neighborhood who likes to bite other children. My children have been bitten by her several times and I am tired of it. I have heard that a human bite can be more serious than a dog's bite. Is that true? CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Yes, if the skin has been broken, the victim should be protected against infection by a tetanus shot. Also, antibiotics are recommended, depending on the severity of the bite. A human bite CAN be more serious than an animal bite. DEAR ABBY: I am married and am the father of two children who are both in grade school. For seven years I have been seeing (and for the most part supporting) a beautiful woman and her two school-age children. We are not mine. (I made it clear from the start that I was married, and divorcing my wife was out of the question.) This woman has decided that we should not see each other because she wants to get married, and her children need a father. I happen to agree with her, but there's one thing we do not agree on. She thinks I should continue to send her checks until she finds a job or a man — to support herself and her children. She says that's the least I can do for her. I say I'm stop seeing each other, we stop the whole thing — including the money. She says she can't get along without my financial support, and if I discontinue it while she is in need she will tell all to my wife. I would feel like a fool sending her money, but it would crush my wife and ruin my marriage if I were ever found out. I know I've had my cake and eaten it too these years, but I need your sound advice.

DEAR WITHHOLD: Anyone who is threatened with blackmail, and has as much to lose as you apparently have, should run — not walk — to his lawyer.

Betty A. Williams of Orlando, an employe at Sweeney's Office Supply in Sanford, discovers this monstrous mustard green measures 51 inches across. The plant is a volunteer (offshoot) of a plant grown by her late husband, Leroy Williams, among the azaleas outside the Orlando Post Office, where he was employed.

'Just Call Her Governor' Dixy Stirs Up Winter Storms WOMEN

EDITOR'S NOTE — Her parents thought she should have a choice, so she was named until she was 16 when she chose the South and a rebel general she admired. She thought she should have a choice, so she didn't declare her political allegiance until she was past 60. She's Dixy Lee Ray, Democrat from Washington state. Just call her governor.

By DAVID AMMONS Associated Press Writer OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Dixy Lee Ray, Washington state's first woman governor, has become this state capital's most significant winter storm. Her unconventional campaign style has been transformed into a madcap, quizzical first few weeks in office. She has jabbed at and angered environmentalists, shaken state bureaucrats, chided President Carter, sparred with the press and puzzled nearby residents. She is feisty, tough, and sometimes disorganized. Miss Ray, 62, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and assistant U.S. secretary of state for scientific affairs under Henry Kissinger, was an easy victor last fall. An anti-politics, shake-up government campaign paid off, and she moved into the governor's mansion with her widowed sister, Mrs. Marian Reid, and her silver pooch, Jacques. She vowed "change, change and change" when she was inaugurated, and change there has been.

When a job has to be done and "I'm convinced it's necessary." A glimpse of what she meant came on the day before her inauguration when she gave all brass their walking papers. There were to be no holdovers. The bluntness and speed of the sackings aroused a cry of "Tuesday afternoon massacre."

She persuaded the Democratic-dominated state Senate to send back to her office the nominations of 124 persons who had been named to high government positions by Evans, but who had not been confirmed. She was not ready with her own replacements, and several boards and commissions were left without quorums for days. Republicans quickly branded it "a political spoils system" by a woman who had run as a nonpolitician. But Miss Ray ignored it. "No one owns a job. From now on, we'll send them a Keesee at the time they're fired if they're going to be a crybaby." Many state newspapers editorialized against her moves. One said, "Even a thorough housecleaning should not entail throwing all the furniture over the balcony."

In her inaugural address, she called for a period of austerity while she studied ways to reorganize state government. A fortnight later, she slapped a freeze on state hiring.

"It is probably the most encouraging thing that has happened to this state in years," exulted state Sen. Hubert Donahue, who is writing the state budget.

Louise Gill is Speaker of the Sanford Homemakers Club. She is speaking at the meeting of the club at the Florida Power & Light Co. Ms. Gill is working on a new handbook, two for each club. Much discussion on the contents followed her talk. She explained affirmative action: each club is open to all, regardless of creed, color or race. There was a fine exhibit of handwork, crocheted tablecloth, alphabets, ponchos, booties and baby sweater and hat sets. Ideas and suggestions on the articles were exchanged among the members and guests. Mildred McCoy was welcomed back after a long absence. Miss Gertrude Fischer, chairman, appointed Pauline Poole as foods and nutrition chairman; Mary Elder, home clothing and textiles; Mary Simons, family life; Laura Jackson, health and safety; Lottie Wood, home management; Eva Hunt, publicity; Sarah Tatum, citizenship and 4-H; Ila Presnell, cultural and creative arts and Virginia Gorby, international relations.

Williams Hammock Plan May Replace Moratorium

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

All plans to build on property in Seminole's Spring Hammock will require county commission approval before any further building is done, if commissioners at next Tuesday's meeting approve a proposal by Commission Chairman Dick Williams.

On Tuesday, commissioners instructed the county's planning department to establish hammock boundaries, the first step toward requiring the commission stamp of approval for all building projects.

Williams said the new tactic is "in lieu" of a moratorium on all construction in the 330-acre Spring Hammock, something conservationists asked for until the county's comprehensive land plan is adopted in October.

The controversy surfaced shortly after the commission on Dec. 14 rezoned four acres near the hammock to pave the way for construction of a Baird-Ray Datsun dealership fronting U.S. 17-92.

The Sierra Club and the League of Women voters protested the vote, claiming the hammock is too important to the county to take a chance of harming the area's natural water filtering system.

Both groups asked for a moratorium. But Williams said today his proposal is "faster" than a building ban because action can be taken by the commission at next Tuesday's meeting.

Williams said it takes a "long hearing process" to establish a moratorium.

The chairman was acting on a memorandum from Asst. County Atty. Gary Siegel. In the memo, Siegel said the county legally can declare a moratorium. But Siegel also pointed out eight months is a long time.

Conservationists asked for an eight-month moratorium because by October the county's comprehensive land plan is scheduled for adoption.

And, environmentalists say the plan will define the hammock as an environmentally sensitive area to Seminole. As such, they say it should be left undeveloped.

Commissioner John Kimbrough said Tuesday's instruction to planners was to "define what the hammock area is."

No one actually decided the car lot was in the hammock. Some officials said it was, while others said the dealership — which is near General Hutchison Parkway — was on the "edge" of but not "in" lush Spring Hammock.

The dealership received commission approval Tuesday to begin construction on about two and one-half acres, part of which fronts U.S. 17-92.

INTERSTATE FATALITY
A 23-year-old Orlando man who left his stalled auto to buy a pack of cigarettes was struck and killed by another auto on Interstate-4 Tuesday night. A Florida Highway Patrol spokesman in Deland said Randall Keith Becker, 1746-C Americana Boulevard, was crossing the highway when he was struck by an auto driven by Henry Franklin Scruggs, 61, of Altamonte Springs. No charges were filed in the accident, which occurred one-half mile west of Deltona. More accidents, Page 2-A

Carter Repudiates Apology 'Red Nations' Travel Ban Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today repudiated an apology offered by a U.S. diplomat for alleged American involvement in the overthrow of a left-wing Chilean government, and at the same time announced the end of the ban on American travel to four Communist nations.

In repudiating the statement on Chile by United Nations envoy Brady Tyson, Carter acknowledged that the United States "has been at fault in some instances" for infringing on human rights accords. But he did not put the 1973 overthrow of Chilean President Salvador Allende in that category.

He said, instead, that the American travel ban was such an instance, and that it will be lifted effective March 18. That will permit U.S. citizens to travel to Cuba, Vietnam, North Korea and Cambodia.

Tyson said in Geneva that he exceeded his instructions but did not act contrary to them in apologizing for what he said was American involvement in the ouster of Allende.

"I think the remarks made by the delegate concerning our past involvement in Chilean internal affairs was inappropriate," Carter told his third White House news conference today. "I think the committee has not found any proof that the United States was involved in Allende's overthrow."

The statement was made on his own and does not represent the view of our government," Carter said.

He linked that episode with the broader question of human rights under the Helsinki agreement, saying that the administration remains concerned about that issue. Carter noted that administration officials will go to Belgrade later this year to join in assessment of the human rights accord.

During the presidential campaign, Carter himself had said the United States was involved in the Allende overthrow. On Oct. 10 in a campaign debate, he said the Republican administration had agreed to provide a restaurant in the Sanford-Central Florida Airport terminal. Airport Manager J.S. Cleveland said today.

The firm plans to have the restaurant operating by September. There has been no restaurant at the airport since last May.

Cleveland said he is negotiating with Jerry's since last December.

The project will cost about $175,000, with SAA supplying $100,000 and Jerry's installing equipment worth $75,000.

Jerry's Inc. is "very successful in this operation. They're professional, and they know what they're doing," Cleveland said.

The firm has been in the airline-related food business for 40 years said the airport manager, and was a pioneer in providing in-flight meals for airlines.

Jerry's Inc., a Miami-based firm, has agreed to contract terms to provide a restaurant in the Sanford-Central Florida Airport terminal. Airport Manager J.S. Cleveland said today.

The firm plans to have the restaurant operating by September. There has been no restaurant at the airport since last May.

Cleveland said he is negotiating with Jerry's since last December.

The project will cost about $175,000, with SAA supplying $100,000 and Jerry's installing equipment worth $75,000.

Impact Fee Rhubarb Is Again On Horizon

A new slant on Seminole County's impact fee controversy is surfacing as county commissioners refuse to recognize $4.5-million in Planned Unit Development (PUD) fees as impact fees.

For the past two years, the county has collected from builders a $10 per unit fee on new construction. About $50,000 is on the books for collection in conventional zoning fees in addition to the $4.5-million in PUD.

Fernando County Atty. Tom Freeman and a report prepared by an ad hoc committee recommended outlawing collection of all impact fees unless it's done by county ordinance.

"I think if developers want to try to collect on the PUD, they might as well get their lawyers lined up," Commissioner John Kimbrough said today.

Kimbrough said the county has learned that all PUD commitments are in writing on file at the courthouse in Sanford.

"PUD is contracting; it's a different ballgame," the Republican commissioner added.

Developers who want to reclaim the $30 for conventional fees can appear before the commission and get the refund. That policy went into effect last year when the board was dominated by a Democratic majority.

Impact fees are used in Seminole County for the countywide fire district and for clean-up and repair of old schools in the school district.

Both Kimbrough and Commission Chairman Dick Williams have favored collection of fees to offset any burden a new development might place on the county.

Freeman warned the commission that after time that a lawsuit could be back all impact fees paid and those on the books for future collection.

A Brevard County judge last year ruled against collection of impact fees and ordered one city to repay fees that had been collected.

But Kimbrough said today a state Supreme Court ruling this year said collection of fees for specific purposes has been found to be legal.

However, Kimbrough said none of the rulings will apply to the $4.5-million because, in his opinion, PUD collections are done on a contractual basis.

Williams said the comprehensive plan will address itself to the impact fee situation. The plan, which is mandated by state law, is scheduled for adoption in October. — ED PRICKETT

Some Are Happy; Others Are Disappointed

By STEVE DAVIS
Herald Staff Writer

Reactions vary among local teachers on the tentative contract agreement between the Seminole County School Board and the Seminole Education Association.

Negotiators accepted the contract, which is subject to ratification by the school board and teachers union, Monday following a 10-month dispute.

Among the items agreed upon were a $300 a year base salary increase and classroom size limitations.

Although most teachers had differing views on the negotiation's outcome, all conceded they were glad to have a working contract.

Linda Antonio, an English teacher at Seminole High School and a SEA negotiator, explained the union had accepted the board's proposal for an $8,300 base salary due to annual contracts for some teachers being subject to renewal next month.

"I am disappointed in terms of salary," she said, "but I feel like we (the SEA) have made some gains, such as adding one additional paid holiday."

She stated that class size limitations were "a step in the right direction" but added additional funding was needed on the remedial level.

"I would like to see Seminole County take the lead and show the rest of the state what can be done," she said.

Another Seminole High teacher, Ann Neiswender, said she was not concerned with salary hikes but felt that as professionals teachers should be paid on a competitive basis.

"The biggest tragedy is the young male teacher having to give up the teaching profession because he can't support a family."

Speaking of the outcome of the contract negotiations she said "I think that if bargaining had really been in good faith, the whole thing would have been settled a long time ago."

William Kirby, a social studies teacher at Seminole High stated that he was "embarrassed" by the entire negotiation process.

"I think we have created a bad public image for all. After all this bargaining, they (the SEA) ended up accepting the board's original offer."

A different view was expressed by Esther Hernandez, a Spanish teacher. "I have no complaints about the new contract," she said. "I think we have come a long way since the strikes eight years ago."

Mrs. Hernandez, a teacher for 26 years, said she participated in the strike because "she felt it was the right thing to do."
