Jail inmate dies after being rushed to hospital

An inmate at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility was rushed to the hospital, but died after suffering an asthma attack on Friday.

According to Sheriff Don Eslinger, David Todd Bush was taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital to be treated for the asthma attack.

He said Bush was pronounced dead at the hospital a short time later.

Eslinger said Bush had been treated for his asthma condition at the jail in the past. Jail officials sent him to the hospital for treatment after Friday's attack which was more severe.

Bush had been in the Seminole County facility since April 8, Eslinger said, on charges of violation of probation on a charge of driving under the influence. The 30-year-old man was a resident of Key West.

The sheriff has ordered a routine investigation into the inmate's death, but said he does not suspect foul play in the death.

Topic: School rezoning

Sanford residents, especially parents who live in the Georgetown, Washington Oaks and Midway areas, are invited to attend a meeting on Tuesday to discuss the school board's plan to rezone students living in those areas and currently attending Seminole High School, to Winter Springs High School in 1997.

The meeting, planned by the Westside Community Association, is set for 7 p.m. at St. Matthews, Missionary Baptist Church on Main Street in Midway.

WCA represents the mostly black Goldshore community of Sanford. Members of the group, who have been meeting regularly since the redistricting plan surfaced, are urging area ministers to announce details about the meeting during today's church services. Members are also handing out fliers about the meeting.

While trying to conform to a federal desegregation order, the school board members unanimously adopted a plan that calls for

Students' writing test scores improve

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County students are getting better at writing with each passing year, test scores show.

They even score better than the state average on all aspects of the test.

"We're seeing some significant improvements on this," said Davide Winger, director of testing for the Seminole County school district. "Scores look like they are up in every category in grades 4, 8 and 10."

The state began testing students in those grades on their ability to express themselves through the written word several years ago.

Educators at the secondary and post-secondary level and employers had expressed concern that young people could not communicate effectively in writing. A renewed emphasis was placed on that skill in the classroom and testing was begun to measure the successes in

Veterans: Meaning of Memorial Day fading in schools

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — While Sanford area veterans will once again march in the annual Memorial Day parade Monday, more and more concern is being voiced about the lack of interest in the observance.

Arthur H. Wilson, national adjutant for the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) organization considers it, "a day in danger of losing all meaning in the flurry of retail sales that mark the last Monday in May, along with the first day at the pool and other rites of summer's beginning."

Wilson says, as a veteran of one of our nation's wars, Memorial day means much to him, especially since many of his personal friends died in Vietnam.

"It will also mean a great deal to over one million other disabled veterans who belong to the DAV," he added.

While adults will be focusing their thoughts on those who did not return from service among the adults, they are wondering if teenagers are even aware of the day's significance.

"The youngsters of today just don't know about Memorial Day," observed Bud Sampson, commander of the Sanford Disabled American Veterans organization. He didn't directly blame the youngsters however, "It's the schools which aren't letting children be involved in patriotic events any more," he said.

Russ Germain, commander of Sanford's Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Post 10108 said the lack of patriotism appears more at the high school level. "When we (the VFW) have presented programs and ceremonies at elementary schools," he said, "the youngsters really seem to understand what it's all about, and I believe they really get a lot out of this."

"The high schools however, just give us excuses, and don't seem to be willing to participate," Germain said when high schools are asked to supply a marching band for the Memorial Day parade, most respond, "it isn't in the budget."

"I firmly believe that if they are allowed to participate the youngsters would really enjoy this," Germain added.

There has been regular participation however.

If you've been grumbling about high water bills...

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — If you've been grumbling about your water bill, it might surprise you to know how much you pay in comparison to other areas in the state. Sanford customers pay about the average. Lake Mary customers, a little less.

A new statewide survey has just been released. It was undertaken by the Florida League of Cities, which contracted with David M. Griffin & Associates, Ltd. of Tallahassee. The firm tracked rates for 198 Florida cities with populations of at least 1,000.

The results of the survey indicates Sarasota residents pay the most for water and sewer services while people living in the tiny town of Belleair, near Clearwater, pay the least.

The combined water and sewer bill for Sarasota County Utilities customers who use 10,000 gallons of water per month — typical for a family of four — was $103.14. Belleair households paid $7.25.

Average Sanford users of 10,000 gallons, pay a combined water/sewer bill of $54.42.

Lake Mary residents average billing for the same amount is $36.80.

But if all you want is lower priced utilities, don't be in a rush to move.

Bob McLain, a senior manager of the firm that did the survey for the Florida League of Cities, said Thursday that ranking cities requires more than just comparing bills.

"You have to consider the survey doesn't tell you how well cities are maintaining their sewer and water systems," he said. "You could have someone with the lowest bill, but you don't know if the utility is spending enough to maintain their lines."

The survey found that on average, monthly water and sewer bills have risen only about $2 since the last check was conducted two years ago.

McLain also said differences in a utility's financial relationship with other government bodies should be considered.

One utility might use more tax dollars than another to pay for the services, which would result in a lower bill for that utility's customers.

Dangerous water Rip currents threaten holiday beachgoers

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County residents as well as guests and visitors planning to spend part of this weekend's Memorial Day holiday at the beaches of Volusia and Brevard counties, are being urged to exercise extreme caution. Swimmers, even those who may consider themselves as experts, could be caught in powerful rip currents.

The caution isn't only for persons who go out to swimming depth, but persons, especially children, who only want to wade along the shoreline.

With thousands expected to jam the east coast beaches during this Memorial Day Holiday weekend, words of caution are being voiced throughout the area.

Dangerous currents led to eight rescues involving 16 people

Wednesday and 25 rescues with 43 bathers by 5 p.m. Thursday, said Volusia County beaches spokeswoman Tami Andrasco.

Similar conditions extend south into Brevard County, said Tony Cristaldi, meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Melbourne. Differences in land orientation south of Cape Canaveral would probably make rip currents less likely, he said.

"All the way to the Cape I would expect the same conditions as Volusia is experiencing," he said.

There will be more staff in lifeguard towers along the 42-mile stretch of beach from Canaveral Seashore at the Brevard County line through Ormond Beach this weekend, Andrasco said.

Chiles asks Abrams to lead HRS

MIAMI — Gov. Lawton Chiles has asked former state Rep. Mike Abrams, a vocal advocate for the needy through his 12 years in the House, to consider leading Florida's mammoth social services agency, a newspaper reported Saturday.

Abrams, 47, will consider the offer over the Memorial Day weekend. The Miami Herald reported.

"In a perfect world, if the situation were different, it would be something I wouldn't even hesitate over," said Abrams, a Democrat who represented North Miami Beach. "But it's going to be tough for me to do. I want to give it the thought it deserves."

Chiles made Abrams the offer Friday over breakfast, the paper said, adding that Abrams is among two dozen potential candidates to be secretary of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Current chief Jim Towey is to leave June 2 after failing to win confirmation from the Republican-dominated Senate; senators voted 22-18 along partisan lines much to Chiles' frustration.

Any new appointee to head the 30,000-employee, $4 billion agency, the state's largest, would have to win Senate confirmation in the spring.

"Mike would be a marvelous person in that job," said Tom Herndon, Chiles' chief of staff. "No. 1, he's got the compassion and the passion for the job, which are critical factors. No. 2, he is tough when he needs to be. No. 3, he understands and maneuvers around the legislative process very well."

41-year-old retiree sues city over pension

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. — Kathryn Ward took advantage of her employer's offer of early retirement in March. She agreed to step down from her job as director of environmental management for the city of Hollywood in return for more than $32,000 a year.

But the 41-year-old retiree says she's entitled to more. She filed a lawsuit Friday seeking an additional $4,000 annually.

Mrs. Ward was one of 183 employees to accept Hollywood's early retirement program implemented earlier this year to cut costs.

At first, city officials told her to expect $36,477 a year. When they reviewed policies, however, the city discovered that federal laws prohibit someone Mrs. Ward's age from collect so much retirement money.

According to the Internal Revenue Code, the most Ms. Ward could collect is $32,568.

"They don't want you to be able to pay highly compensated people major bucks," said Tom Smith of the accounting and consulting firm Peat Marwick.

For that reason, the city won't pay what they originally offered.

But Mrs. Ward's attorney calls their action unfair.

"The city made an offer to pay a specified pension benefit and Mrs. Ward accepted the offer," attorney Charles P. Sacher said in a letter to the city.

If the city abides by IRS regulations, Sacher said it should pay the difference out of other funds.

Mrs. Ward could not be reached for comment.

New area code goes into effect

The new 941 area code goes into effect Sunday for 13 Central and Southern Florida counties that had been in the 813 area code. They are:

Polk, Manatee, Sarasota, Hardee, DeSoto, Charlotte, Lee, Collier, Hendry, Glades, Highlands, Okeechobee, Monroe (except the Keys, which will remain a part of the 305 code).

Fiat sales help Florida Lottery slide

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Lottery became the nation's top lottery soon after it was born seven years ago. Big jackpots and the novelty of placing bets lured players from Florida and surrounding states where gambling was forbidden.

But annual sales, which reached nearly $2.2 billion in 1991, have since only slightly bettered that mark, leaving lottery officials searching for new ways to attract players.

Lotteries in Texas, Massachusetts and New York have passed Florida in annual sales, partly because of exciting new games. The Miami Herald reported Saturday.

Florida's sales in 1991 reached $2.19 billion, rising to $2.2 billion last year. In comparison, Massachusetts saw $1.6 billion in sales in 1991 and $2.4 billion last year.

So far, Florida's lawmakers and lottery officials have not been receptive to casino-like games that have become increasingly popular in other states. Instead, they are hoping a new Saturday evening television game show, slated to begin in the fall, will boost lottery sales.

"The number one thing will be more visibility for the lottery, to reach an audience that might not otherwise think about playing," said lottery spokesman Ed George.

Disney honors Dreamers, Doers

3 county students cited

By VICKI BUCHANAN
Herald Senior Staff Writer

Sanford schools produced two-thirds of the Seminole County students who were honored as Dreamers and Doers by the Walt Disney Company recently.

Michael Medlock, a ninth grader at Crooms Academy in Sanford; Holly Basehore, an eighth grader at Sanford Middle School in Sanford; and Heather Wade, a fifth grader at Red Bug Elementary School in Casselberry were named to the honor that seeks out students who work hard to reach their goals.

The Dreamers and Doers program was established to bring attention to the attributes that Walt Disney called the "4 C's": Curiosity, Courage, Creativity, and Caring.

The winners were all honored for having overcome adversity to achieve their personal best.

The winners were presented medallions by Miss America, Heather Whitestone and congratulated by other celebrities such as Mickey and Minnie Mouse.

Medlock's application for the award said he has "faced death eight times, including one which

The way we were: From Seminole County to state spelling bee

There is an article in the San-Ju-Hi News about my winning the Seminole County spelling contest so I will enlarge on that for you today. According to an entry in my diary at the time, my winning this contest was the most thrilling thing that had ever happened to me. I do not know how many of the details, although I do have my diary and newspaper clippings to prod my memory.

On March 23, 1950, we had our school spelling bee in chapel to determine the Sanford Junior High representatives. Jimmy Whitley and I, both eighth graders, were the winners. During the next few days, we both studied and practiced spelling whenever we could. At one point, I told my diary that I was getting tired of all this spelling — but it did pay off!

During the evening of April 7, all of the school winners in the county, from grades five through eight, had a practice at radio station WTRR which was broadcast. Jimmy and I and another girl were the only ones who didn't miss any words.

WTRR at that time was located across from the present Seminole County Services building on East First Street and it had only been in that building a short time. I believe its first studio was in the Mayfair Hotel and I seem to recall that it began broadcasting in 1947 or 1948.

Other contestants were Wayne McCoy and Marty Cameron, Sanford Grammar; Lucille Price and Jackie Williams, Lake Monroe; John Allen Shaw and Rachael Ruah, Wilson School; Phillip Toney and Walter Wiederhold, Lake Mary; Frances Smith and Virginia Boone, Lyman; Richard Wrye and Ann Leinhardt, Oviedo; Carlton Jacobs and James Bowen, Geneva.

At that time, Lyman included grades 1 to 12 and I believe that Oviedo did also. Lake Mary and Geneva schools each had grades 1-8 and then students entered Seminole High. Wilson probably housed grades 1 to 6 with Lake Monroe being a junior high with grades 7-8; these students also later entered SHS. Let me know if these configurations are incorrect.

Sanford also had two primary schools, Southside and Westside, which were for grades 1-4. And the schools being segregated, there was Crooms Academy, a high school, and a few elementary schools throughout the county for the black students.

The growth and changes in the school system since then is mind boggling!

April 11 was the big day for the county spelling match. It was held at 8 that evening on the

A concrete repair products salesman from Tampa fulfilled the dream of millions working people by winning $2.36 million in last week's Florida Lottery.

It wasn't what Robert Rose said, it was the way he said it. After verifying the ticket contained the winning numbers 7-29-40-41-44-49, Rose played the Johnny Paycheck song, "Take This Job and Shove It" to his boss over the phone.

"Well, I played it two times yesterday," the 62-year-old winner said Wednesday as he and his wife, Shirley, 57, claimed their prize. "I did it to my immediate boss and then she had her boss call me later on and I played it later for her, too. I have a good relationship with them, so I played it real loud and I started singing. So, for whoever's wanted to do that, I did it — and it was great!"

Burke was at the scene but was not the trigger man. Two teen-age boys told police, "while they were trying to buy drugs in the area of Third Street and Olive Avenue," an unnamed subject "in the company of several other black males shot at them several times during one of the times in the left side of the face." # Gas prices climb in Florida

AAA predicts even higher prices through summer

By BOB POWERS
Herald Staff Writer

HEATHROW — AAA Clubs of Florida has issued the latest report on gas prices across the state. Not only are prices high, but indications are that costs could continue to climb even higher through the summer months.

Public and Government Relations Manager Tom Schroder commented, "The bad news is that several areas across the state have seen increases of more than 10 cents per gallon for self-serve Regular Unleaded since late April."

He continued, "I supposed the good news is that our survey continues to find price spreads of four or five cents per gallon in some areas. Motorists should continue to shop carefully for gasoline and buy at the best price they can find."

In the Orlando/Sanford area, the prices shown as of May 28 were $1.251 for regular unleaded, $1.328 for mid-grade unleaded, and $1.45 for premium unleaded.

In comparison, the Port Charlotte area was lowest for regular gas at $1.15 per gallon. Leesburg was lowest for mid-grade at $1.357, and Brandon area was lowest for premium gas at $1.351 per gallon.

On the highest levels for self-service, DeRay Beach was highest in all categories, with premium unleaded gas at $1.516 per gallon.

Regarding prices at full service stations, the Cocoa/Melbourne area was highest at $1.636 for regular, going up to $1.67 per gallon for premium.

Schroder said the increase in prices found as part of the current survey come from continued high demand for gasoline and a relatively tight supply of oil and gasoline.

He does not, however, expect any supply problems. "And we expect no impact on the travel plans of those Americans planning summer vacations," he added.

State-wide average prices show $1.234 for regular unleaded and $1.435 for premium at self-service stations. For full-service stations, the state average was $1.545 for regular and $1.717 for premium.

In the past two weeks, Schroder says surveys indicate prices have gone up nearly seven cents.

New council aims at preserving arts in county

By BOB POWERS
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Another organization has been established in the Sanford area. This one is aimed at promoting and preserving all aspects of the arts.

Called, Seminole Cultural Arts Council, the group will hold an organizational meeting beginning at 7 p.m. Thursday, at Seminole Community College's Fine Arts Building (#6), room 105.

While many people have been invited, the meeting is open to all, especially those interested in the cultural arts, representatives of cultural arts and historic organizations, and individual musicians, artists, actors, etc.

"We have made tremendous strides in developing a strong council," said Dr. Karen Copp, cultural arts coordinator for the college, and one of three of the council founders. "We are now incorporating, have conducted a county-wide needs assessment, and have applied for our non-profit status, all in less than one year."

The results of the assessment are scheduled to be announced during this Thursday's meeting. Also to be discussed will be recommendations of the state's arts board from which the council may eventually derive funds.

An interim board is being formed, and plans for the remainder of the year are in place. Also in readiness are preliminary plans for the next two to five year period.

These plans will be explored to coincide with an update on the county's feasibility study for a convention/performing arts center.

Thursday night's meeting, to begin at 7 p.m., is open to all interested persons.

For additional information, contact Dr. Karen Copp, at 328-4722.

Patriotism

Monday, May 29 will mark the observance of Memorial Day, although Tuesday is the actual anniversary. It's always an interesting day to observe.

Once again, veterans, their families, and others will pay tribute to the memory of their fallen friends, many of whom died in battle on foreign soil.

Yet as Sanford City Commissioner Whitley Eckstein recently commented, today's school children appear to be lacking in patriotism, including a disregard for the honors which should be paid to our American flag.

As most adults know, this has not always been the case. During wartime, or even undeclared confrontations such as the Desert Storm conflict, patriotism is generally high. As an example, who could forget the cheering and applauding that went on when our Desert Storm troops returned to their homeland.

In Sanford, we had a parade, with large-scale welcoming events held at the American Legion Post. It was inspirational. It was a time during which almost everyone felt proud to be part of our great nation.

There is one way to bring back the enormous feelings of patriotism and support of our nation. Unfortunately it would take an armed conflict, a war, and no one wants that.

We have many men and women serving their country now in the various armed forces. We are to honor them on Armed Forces Day, which was last Saturday, May 20th. But what did anyone do? Very little, if anything.

Armed Forces Day, as with Memorial Day, has been losing momentum with each passing non-conflict year.

Even though most of the world is considered "at peace" these days, there is no assurance that this continues. Something could break out any day which would require our men and women to shoulder their arms and be transported across the world's oceans.

With that in mind, everyone serving in the military at this present time, is actually putting their lives on the line for the protection of our nation.

Hopefully they will never have to face an enemy. Yet, as far as we should be concerned, they are heroes, and deserve to be rightfully honored.

Take some time this Memorial Day to honor the fallen, but pay tribute as well to those who have, are, and will serve in our military branches. And do so outwardly in order to prove to everyone, including the youngsters, that there is nothing "square" or "un-cool" about being patriotic.

LETTER

A strong America

Will this Memorial Day be relegated to the limbo of forgetfulness? Will it become just an obscure holiday, void of ceremony, emphasis or recognition?

Will there be scant editorializing, and but meager reference to the day? Shall we erase the record and blot out the memories of those countless millions who have served in the Armed Forces of the United States?

Not if we remember why these Americans have served ... and many died. They served that America might remain free, a land of opportunity with freedom of choice in speech, religion, politics. They served that aggression might be stopped, that peace might come. That freedom might continue to live, not only in America. But also in the hearts and lives of the oppressed, the yearning ones, of the unfortunate victims of oppression throughout the world.

We need to refresh our minds, the world is still in turmoil. There are many "loose canons" out there waiting to precipitate serious crises in world events. There are many emerging "powers" who now have nuclear capability. Daring to thrust it into the hands of terroristic groups. Who have no compunctions about thrusting us into another "Pearl Harbor," or far worse, a nuclear Armageddon.

We need to overcome political squabbling which erodes our nation's strength. We need to regain our military might and capability so we can deter any aggressor, any terroristic threat which threatens to engulf the world with violence and mayhem.

On this Memorial Day of 1995 we should remember - and give tribute, to those members of the Army, the Navy, the Air Force, the Coast Guard, the Marines, both active duty and reserves who have served their country well, and many still serving, in peace and in war, in the various conflicts and crises of the century.

For the future is assured, only if we retain our vigilance, only if we regain a vision of a friendly world with flourishing peace, democracy and opportunity. The nation - and the world - can only enjoy the full fruits of freedom and democracy if America has the wisdom, the courage, the strength, to lead the way. Remember, only a strong America will remain a free America.

Excitement marks airport festivities as new terminal grand opening nears

Excitement is the key word for the grand opening of the A. Kay Shoemaker International Terminal scheduled for Thursday, June 1, 1995. The state of the art invitation to the event mimics a passport with the destination "Passage to a New Era." The airport has been renamed the Orlando Sanford Airport, which is a strategic marketing technique. Orlando is known worldwide as a premiere tourist destination. Linking Sanford to Orlando provides instant location recognition and gives status to the airport. In essence, positives associated with Orlando immediately accrue to Sanford.

Steve Cook, director of aviation for the airport, acknowledged that although the terminal has been open for several months, the formal dedication will usher in several important events. The Central Florida Terminal incorporated has agreed to build an international departure terminal and will have a groundbreaking ceremony during the festivities. The terminal will be designed as a European type of facility. Ticketing will take place on the first floor. The second floor will be for lounging and boarding. There will be an abundance of vendors to address the comfort of the travelers.

SEMINOLE OPINION

LURLINE SWEETING

The primary tenant for the International Departure Terminal will be Airtours International Airline based in Manchester, England. Sanford is a charming small town strategically located between Orlando and Daytona Beach. The new halfway affords easy accessibility to Orlando with an uncomplicated road system.

The Orlando Sanford Airport has progressed dramatically from the 1940s when it opened as a naval training base. The base was returned to the city of Sanford in 1959. In recent years there has been great impetus to accelerate the expansion of the airport. As the airport develops, more jobs will be available to the citizens of Sanford. Measuring growth is objectively done through assessing the capital improvements, the added roadways and the increasing number of flights. In 1994, the airport handled 28,000 flights. This year they have already had 27,000 flights and the year has seven more months. Consequently, it is apparent that their services are being utilized more and more.

Charters from Sanford Airport are both national and international. Magnet Tours schedules two to three flights per week to such destinations as Monterey, Guadalupe and Cancun, Mexico. International Air Tours has weekly flights to the Bahamas. Av-Atlantic offers tours to the casinos in Missis, Miss. two to three times weekly. Residents in the area should think of leaving from Sanford if they are contemplating visiting any of the aforementioned places.

It is a tribute to the men of vision who saw the potential of converting the naval facility to a viable airport that the A. Kay Shoemaker International Terminal is located on One Red Cleveland Boulevard. These men were the pioneers who contributed substantially to the development of the Orlando Sanford Airport.

On this Memorial Day, 1995...

The bands are beginning to tune up, the last touches are being placed on a million floral decorations. The spit shines once drummed in during six weeks of basic are being renewed and the ceremonial crossbells are again being chalked snow white. These are but a few of the multitude of homages being prepared for the ceremonies of the 29th through 31st. In remembrance, those are the words traditionally spoken; for those who died in defense of their country ... melancholy sentiments meant to praise the lives so untimely taken, so unselfishly given.

We are about to celebrate Memorial Day in this country, a 24-hour period of time decreed by congressional bill to show our respect for the dead of war, and for our horror there unto, lest we allow a new international conflict to add to the grief of those left behind, and unforgivably alone. A day like so many similar ones around the world, whereby we give thanks to those who fought aggression, and died during the attempt.

This year, the festivities have been slightly overshadowed by the celebratory seal of the 50th V-E Day. Despite historical revelations which have suggested the possibility that some of the crime of the last war might have been prevented, Churchill might have known about the attack on Pearl Harbor in advance, we knew the dropping of the A-bomb was unnecessary the day it was dropped. Despite such historical revelations, the truth of what we are about to celebrate remains as shining a beacon to our souls as any which might so draw our collective consciousness together. When the world is overshadowed by the greed and bloodthirst of evil men, others will rise up to slay them where they stand. Good men, unselfish men, who only know that through their struggles, what they do is for the greater advancement of all toward the light, and away from the darkness.

Whether it be the "Big One," WW II, Korea, Vietnam or the Persian Gulf, or a multitude of similar situations of right versus wrong over the millennia, men and women died in order to protect the concept of freedom from oppression. The philosophical differences which existed may have seemed inappropriate at the time perhaps, the "love children" versus the "establishment," the bohemian beatniks of the '50s in their opposition to a certain police action. In actuality, these were societal burps which showed our strength, not our divisions. And the fact that Lincoln freed the slaves to get re-elected has very little to do with the ultimate effect.

We are a nation of peoples, a world of individuals who through common strengths, and differences, somehow have come together to form this great country. Despite adversities, and regardless of the divisions which sometimes divide us, somehow when a common foe threatens, we all manage to come together as one great juggernaut of freedom and smite the evil before us until we are ultimately triumphant. That defiance of evil has cost us lives, time and time again, and it is those righteously spent and countless lives lost which we are now set to honor, and it is to those now gone that we owe our thanks this Memorial Day.

Now many will celebrate this national holiday, and in their own special ways. Some, too few perhaps, will attend one of the numerous ceremonies to be found, while others will simply view the whole day as an occasion to sleep in or perhaps "go out on the boat." Me, I'll probably fall into the latter category, I will do so I suppose, because like most Americans, my patriotic fervor needs something to be awoken. As the great Japanese admiral, Yamamoto, is reputed to have warned his superiors before Pearl Harbor, the American peoples are like a sleeping giant. Harmless unless awoken ... so perhaps it is more patriotic and traditional for those of us who choose to celebrate this holiday by our mindless pursuits, rather than by some symbolic attendance at any given ceremonial function. Perhaps that is indeed the right which was fought for all along; the right to have the choice.

By the bye, if you are seeking to commemorate this day in the more time honored way, the various veterans' groups in the area are going to have a little shindig on Monday, the 29th. Starting around 10:45 a.m. or so on Main Street in Sanford, there will be a parade down to the flag at the bandstand. Some feelings will be shared, some truths told, and a few politicians will speak. Worth attending folks; heck, I might even go. It's the least we can do.

Newt blames the news' messengers

Speaking via satellite to a group of publishers at a Newspaper Association of America convention in New Orleans a few weeks ago, House Speaker Newt Gingrich offered an "affectionate critique" of his audience's product.

"My major complaint is that it's cynical," he said.

Well now, isn't this interesting? I was just flipping through a stack of clippings on my desk, and here is a small sampling of the stories they tell:

... Robert McNamara, the defense secretary for John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson who planned and supervised the war in Vietnam, has written a memoir in which he says -- 30 years and 58,000 American lives after the fact -- that "we were wrong, terribly wrong, to get involved in that conflict."

May God rest their cynical souls.

... Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole once opposed moving the U.S. embassy in Israel to Jerusalem, but now he favors it. Robert Dole once favored affirmative action, but now he is against it. Robert Dole campaigned for Oliver North. Robert Dole changed churches because the pastor was too liberal. Robert Dole once got a letter from Richard Nixon, advising him that to win the GOP nomination for president he should "run as far as you can to the right." To get elected, he should "run as fast as you can back to the middle."

... Two months after Bill Clinton submitted a federal budget that projected $200 billion deficits well into the next century, he complained to an Iowa State University crowd that the Republicans were trying to trim funds spent on port studies. "We need more agricultural research, not less," he said.

... A week after Texas senator/GOP presidential candidate Phil Gramm traveled to Jerry Falwell's Liberty University to declare his inalienable fidelity to moral values, The New Republic magazine reported that Gramm had once invested $7,500 in an R-rated movie called "Beauty Queens." (The senator said he had invested the money with his ex-brother-in-law, had never seen a script and the movie was never made.)

I could go on for several thousand words, but you get the essential point here: Which is worse, the cynics who report the news, or the hypocrites who make it?

As a cynical media person, I would love to argue that it started with Mr. Nixon, but that would be wrong. We have been governed by dissemblers and charlatans since the days of General Washington (who allegedly shored his soldiers to finance real estate deals), and their misdeeds have been reported and our security preserved and our sanity nourished by a long line of noble pamphleteers and commentators.

"It could probably be shown by facts and figures that there is no distinctly native American criminal class except Congress," wrote a scorpious named Mark Twain. "More men have been elected between sundown and sunup, than ever were elected between sunup and sundown," said a curmudgeon named Will Rogers.

May God rest their cynical souls. As skeptical as journalists are, we are not nearly as much so as the public that reads and watches us -- and you don't have to trust my sardonic hide on this matter. The Times Mirror Center for the People and the Press recently conducted a poll to uncover the most contemptuous segment of American society, and guess who won? You did, that's who. The general public. The only subculture that came even close to matching your surly attitude was radio talk-show hosts.

On Memorial Day, The DAV Asks You To Remember The Sacrifices That Paid For Peace.

Memorial

by high school Junior ROTC students, who have annually been involved in Memorial Day parades and programs.

"We have discussed the possibility of having school programs presented on patriotism," DAV's Sampson said, "but so far nothing has taken place."

Sampson added that it's difficult to get school cooperation for events as the Memorial Day parade.

Years ago, school bands and marching units participated regularly in Memorial Day parades, but in recent times, the event is considered only as a legal holiday during which time schools are closed.

Regarding their personal opinions of the observance of Memorial Day, most former military personnel consider it an important day.

"During my over 29 years in the Navy," Germain said, "I saw around, and had coffee with, many pilots who were launched from the carrier but never came back. And these are only some of the brave people we lost, who must be remembered at least for this particular day of the year."

Germain, as a member of the Seminole County Veterans Advisory Council, will serve as chairman for this year's Memorial Day celebration. It is chaired on a rotational basis among the various clubs in the Sanford area.

Monday's Memorial Day parade will begin at 11 a.m. at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce area on E. First Street. After heading west on First Street then north on Park Avenue, the parade will culminate at Memorial Park on the lakefront where Congressman John Mica will be featured speaker.

An additional Memorial Day event will be held Tuesday by the VFW and Auxiliary.

The organizations plan to dedicate a Montpelier Crepe Myrtle and Jim Bowie Live Oak in honor of their deceased members, and a Valley Forge Sycamore in honor of all veterans.

Water

ers, but not necessarily cheaper services.

After Sarasota, the costliest bills for water and sewer services were: Ponce Inlet, near Daytona Beach, ($92.07), Charlotte ($92.05), St. Johns ($89.42), Pahokee, near Belle Glade, ($81.43), Palm Coast Utility Corp. ($80.11), Lee County Utilities ($79.25), Venice ($78.78), Martin County Utilities ($77.90), and West Melbourne ($77.43).

The cheapest bills, after Belleair, were: Orlando Utilities Commission ($8.95), Davenport, near Lakeland, ($12.35), Loxahatchee River District ($13), Fruitland Park, in Lake County, ($15.09), Boca Raton Public Utilities ($15.30), Minneola, in Lake County, ($15.50), Highland Beach, in Palm Beach County, ($19.50), High Springs, near Gainesville, ($19.85), and Surfside, on Miami Beach, ($20.10).

Sanford's Utilities Director Paul Moore questions the reliability of the findings submitted in the study. Sanford was one of the cities which filled out the questionnaire submitted by the research agency.

"The results of the study sometimes may not take into consideration the billing methods various areas used," he said. "Orlando Utilities Commission for example, show they are low, but they only supply water. Sewer service is through another agency, even though the bills are combined. That leads to confusion in figuring out the actual combined billing for water and sewer."

Moore said he simply cannot imagine how a municipality or service area could possibly operate water and sewage plants by charging as low as $9 or $10 per month for 10,000 gallons.

Ken Small, the league's director of economic research admitted that the cost of operation would add to the billing charges and result in rate increases.

"Fast-growing cities find themselves charging more for the same amount of water," Small explained. "So do cities that must build new water and sewage treatment plants or improve their old ones."

The federal government is also regulating water quality more strictly.

"We have all these mandates that we have to follow," notes Sue Teets, assistant city manager of Belle Glade, which recently revamped its rates to accommodate a new sewage treatment system. "It's an expensive operation," she told the Palm Beach Post.

Cities don't meter sewer services; most bill for sewer based on water usage.

Information from Associated Press is contained in this report.

that area.

This year, 41 states checked the writing skills of their students in the three grade levels.

"We still have a long way to go," Frank Brogan, the state commissioner of education, said. "But these results are certainly encouraging."

Students in three different grades were given a writing folder with a topic and allowed 45 minutes to read the topic and write a response.

On a scale of 1 to 6, with 6 as the best grade, fourth-grade students in Seminole County scored an average 2.4 in the writing to explain category (students statewide had an average score of 2.1) and 3.0 in the writing to tell a story portion of the test (statewide, students scored 2.7 for a combined score of 2.7. (The average state score was 2.4.)

Eighth graders in Seminole County scored 3.3 in the writing to explain category (they scored 3.1 statewide) and they scored 3.2 in the writing to convince category (statewide the score was 3.0). Locally, the average combined score was 3.2. (Statewide, the combined score was 3.1.)

High school sophomores in this county averaged 3.5 on the writing to explain portion of the test (statewide, the score was 3.3); the local students scored 3.4 on the writing to convince section (their peers across the state scored 3.2). The combined score, locally, was 3.5 (the state average score was 3.3.)

According to testing officials, students were evaluated on how well they maintained focus on the assigned topic, whether the organization pattern allowed the reader to follow the flow of ideas, supporting ideas and adherence to standard English.

Local officials expressed satisfaction with the improvements made by students in this county. Emphasis on writing will remain strong in the classroom.

At many schools the emphasis on writing skills is being coupled with a strong push for improved reading skills.

"We are teaching strong reading and writing skills," Bill Moore, principal of Sanford Middle School, said recently. "You need to have one with the other."

Despite efforts like Moore's, Florida students still rank below average when compared to writers in the same grades in other states.

A National Assessment of Educational Progress Reading Assessment released last month showed Florida fourth graders ranked 34th among the 41 states and jurisdictions taking the test.

Across Florida, the test was given to 144,485 fourth graders, 125,414 eighth graders and 105,704 high school sophomores in January and February. Elementary students have now taken the writing test three times, while high school students were taking it for the second year.

the beach through breaking waves. They can drag swimmers rapidly into deeper water, where they tend to become exhausted and panic.

The best way to escape is to swim parallel to the shoreline until freed from the generally narrow strip of strong seaward current, beach officials say.

Beachgoers can watch for a sandy brown discoloration of the water extending out to sea, a foam or seaweed line extending offshore and a choppy, somewhat suppressed wave height through the surf, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Clinton: Pass anti-terrorism legislation

WASHINGTON — Turning up pressure for his anti-terrorism package, President Clinton accused congressional critics Saturday of trying to deny police expanded wiretap authority and other tools they need for a fight "we have to be able to win."

"I want the police to stop those people cold," Clinton said in his weekly radio address. "The restrictive view taken by some people in Congress would handicap our ability to track terrorists down, follow them when they move and prevent their attacks on innocent people."

Congressional critics maintain that Clinton's proposals go too far, and could erode constitutional protections and infringe on civil liberties.

At issue are Clinton proposals to:

• Expand wiretap authority. Clinton wants police to be able to move their wiretaps without getting a new court order each time terrorists move to evade surveillance.

"We shouldn't force law enforcement to lose valuable time by making them get a court to agree that a terrorist is trying to knowingly evade us," Clinton argued.

The Senate voted 82-28 on Friday to block a Democratic attempt to expand the government's wiretapping authority. Republicans expressed concern that the provision could infringe on the civil liberties of domestic political groups.

• Expand the role of the military in fighting terrorism. Clinton wants to involve the military when terrorists are contemplating the use of biological or chemical weapons. Currently, the military can join in criminal investigations only when they involve nuclear weapons.

Foster nomination builds momentum

WASHINGTON — Dr. Henry Foster's nomination for surgeon general is headed to the Senate floor, where supporters are trying to gather the votes to stop a threatened filibuster.

On Friday, the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee voted 9-7 to recommend confirmation, and three of the opposing Republicans said they believed he deserved a vote on the floor.

Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas, a contender for the Republican presidential nomination, renewed his pledge to try to keep the nomination from a vote by the full Senate.

"I am going to filibuster that nomination and the president and his supporters are going to have to get 60 votes to end that filibuster," Gramm said on a campaign trip in Iowa. He said it wasn't clear whether the nomination would be approved if brought to floor vote.

Sen. Bill Frist, R-Tenn., a cardiologist in his first year in Congress, announced his support for Foster minutes before the vote, urging colleagues to judge the nominee "not based on politics, but rather the man — his qualifications and ability."

Jacqueline Kennedy's hopes and horrors

BOSTON — Even in her grief, Jacqueline Kennedy had the strength to recount her husband's assassination in vivid detail and the presence of mind to convey her hopes for his memorial.

"His last expression was so neat," Mrs. Kennedy told journalist Theodore H. White in comments released for the first time Friday. "He had his hand out, I could see a piece of his skull coming off ... and I can see this perfectly clean piece detaching itself from his head."

"Then he slumped in my lap," she said. "His blood and brains were in my lap."

"I kept saying 'Jack, Jack, Jack' and someone was yelling: 'He's dead, he's dead.' All the ride to the hospital I kept bending over him saying: 'Jack, Jack, can you hear me, I love you Jack.' I kept holding the top of his head down, trying to keep the brains in," she said on Nov. 29, 1963, a week after the president's assassination.

Excerpts from the interview have appeared in Life magazine and White's 1978 memoir, "In Search of History," and the sight of the dazed widow in her bloodstained pink suit has become a 20th century icon. Now, the John F. Kennedy Library has released the full record of that interview, 34 pages that include White's handwritten notes and revisions in Mrs. Kennedy's handwriting.

Up to 8 billion cigarettes recalled

NEW YORK — The maker of Marlboros and Virginia Slims says it launched an unprecedented domestic recall of up to 8 billion cigarettes over fear that a faulty filter could make smokers dizzy or start wheezing.

The announcement Friday by the nation's biggest tobacco company, Philip Morris USA, came as the cigarette industry faces unprecedented pressure over the health consequences of smoking. Tobacco critics called the recall an absurdity.

"A company that makes products that are lethal and responsible for hundreds of thousands of deaths in the United States a year seems suddenly to have taken an interest in a little dizziness," said Dr. Alan Blum of Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "That's what most of us that get around smoking experience anyway."

In a sweeping pre-emptive strike, Philip Morris sent Mailgrams to cigarette vendors telling them to quit selling the possibly tainted smokes for at least several days. It advised smokers to exchange affected packs for a refund and it dispatched legions of sales representatives to collect the cigarettes.

The company said "a small percentage" of filters were found to contain a material that could cause smokers "temporary discomfort" ranging from a bad taste and eye, nose and throat irritation to dizziness, coughing or wheezing.

The brand packages recalled include the Marlboro red box, Marlboro soft pack and gold box and gold soft packs of Marlboro 100's, Marlboro Lights and Marlboro Lights 100's.

The recall also included various packs of Virginia Slims, Benson & Hedges, Merit, Cambridge and Basic.

WORLD BRIEFS

Tension with Serbs soars

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — The new U.N. tactic of confronting the Bosnian Serbs escalated into warfare Saturday as Serbs and French peacekeepers battled for control of a U.N. observation post near the center of Sarajevo.

Two French peacekeepers and four Serbs were killed in fighting that followed NATO airstrikes and the detention of more than 200 U.N. soldiers. Some of the soldiers were chained to liberty NATO targets as human shields.

World leaders were faced with the choice of getting tougher or backing off — and possibly backing out of Bosnia. NATO said it supported a stronger U.N. mission. The U.N. Security Council said it would "not yield to blackmail" by the Serbs.

Citizens petition drive: Add Interstate exchange

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The sun peeks over the horizon signaling the start of another day. Families everywhere hurry to complete morning household tasks. Preparing school lunches for the kids while grabbing breakfast or just a cup of coffee, then its out the door and into the car for the daily commute. A quick turn out of the subdivision, down the street to the road feeding onto I-4 where you stop in a mile long line of traffic.

Minutes click by on the digital clock, as you inch along with scores of other drivers hoping to make it to work on time.

It is a scene replayed over and over as suburbs grow and the number of vehicles on the road increases. Subdivisions, apartments and businesses continue to be built along Lake Emma Road in Lake Mary adding more traffic. Lake Emma Road connects Lake Mary Boulevard to Longwood Hills Road and is scheduled for four laning in the county's traffic plan. However, some citizens are concerned major bottlenecks will increase at both ends of Lake Emma Road as drivers seek ways onto I-4.

An ad hoc group concerned with the traffic issue will launch a petition drive soon urging the commissions of Seminole County, Lake Mary and Longwood to present a united request to Florida Department of Transportation officials for an interchange between Longwood (State Road 434) and Lake Mary.

The non-partisan group of concerned county residents will present an informational gathering for interested citizens Saturday, June 3 in the Longwood city hall commission chambers between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The proposed petition states: "We the residents of Seminole County hereby request the Seminole County Commission, the City of Lake Mary commission and the City of Longwood commission to jointly request the Florida Department of Transportation to pursue the study and installation of an interchange off I-4 with an east-west on-off access onto Lake Emma Road. The interchange to be north of Longwood Hills Road and south of Lake Mary Boulevard.

Several residents of subdivisions impacted by the traffic have expressed interest in the petition drive, according to Highland Hills resident Nadine Tolos, including Danbury Mill, Woodlands, Devonshire, Sandalwood, Bowling Farms and North Cove.

"Our intent is not to connect to Markham Woods Road, and we are requesting that of FDOT," Tolos explained. "We simply want to use the trumpet ramp which is a smaller ramp with an east-west on-off access from Lake Emma."

More information is available on the meeting from Nadine Tolos, 767-5771, Nelda Fryor, 332-7429 or Joanne Rebelo, 332-5325.

Which way to Orlando's airport?

The Greater Orlando Aviation Authority recently directed its lawyers to look into blocking a name change by the Sanford airport that members fear will confuse people. Board member Jim Pugh blasted the Orlando Sanford Airport name change. Formerly the Central Florida Regional Airport, officials at Sanford's airport authority changed the name to better compete in an expanding market. Pugh says it's misleading and confusing. Orlando International attorney Egerton van den Berg will report to the board in June. Steve Cooke, director of the Sanford airport, says not to worry, there's plenty of business for everybody. Sanford will be the new home to a British charter flight service, and the grand opening of an international arrivals terminal will take place soon. Although smaller planes, such as the one at left, have been the norm at the former U.S. Navy base, big things are beginning to happen, Cooke has said.

After compensation, Rosewood survivors, families look ahead

By ADAM YERGAN
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — For survivors and descendants of Rosewood, the gnawing memories of the racist violence that wiped out the tiny black settlement 73 years ago are finally being soothed. Many will be richer after the state wraps up its $6 million program to compensate nine Rosewood survivors and several dozen descendants of families who lost property. The last payments are expected to be made in the next week or two.

All have the satisfaction of knowing that what happened to Rosewood is no longer a dark secret for a few survivors who were children when they fled their homes during the first week of January 1923.

When family members gather for their summer reunion later this year, they can look ahead knowing the story has been told. "It should be behind us by that time. We should be able to move on with our lives," said Arnett Doctor, whose great-grandmother was killed by members of a white mob that burned almost every building and drove families from their homes in the community east of Cedar Key.

Even with the payments, the saga of Rosewood is far from over.

In the works are a book, a motion picture deal and a permanent memorial where the hamlet once existed.

The violence began on New Year's Day, when a mob of whites, angry after a fruitless search for a black man accused of attacking a white woman, rampaged through the community of about 150 people. At least six blacks and two whites died. In 1968, Gary Moore, then a reporter for the St. Petersburg Times, wrote about Rosewood, sparking interest that smoldered over the next decade until it ignited. Elderly survivors, one by one, began speaking out about the incident that had faded from public memory.

State lawmakers passed a precedent-setting compensation plan in 1984. They agreed government authorities had failed to maintain law and order and protect Rosewood's residents.

As a result, nine elderly survivors received $150,000 apiece from the state.

But it has taken months for the attorney general's office to sort through hundreds of claims from people who say their families lost property. The Legislature approved $600,000 to be paid to the Rosewood survivors and descendants.

"I've handled a lot of different cases in my life. I have never had as difficult a time as Rosewood or one as rewarding either," said Gregory Durden, chief of the attorney general's civil rights office.

To determine who had legitimate claims to the money, assistant Attorney General Guy David Robinson and investigator Frank Beiser conducted their own investigation.

It followed in-depth probes by Moore and then a group of university researchers as well as a review by the attorney general's office, which originally represented the state in opposing the claims bill last year.

Robinson created a "family tree" of 18 families who owned property in Rosewood and went through the painstaking process of identifying descendants. The chart covering a wall in the attorney general's Hollywood office contains more than 1,500 names.

The state pays damages for a race-based hate crime. That's never happened in this country. It's an opportunity for filmmakers to see what Rosewood was — a relatively prosperous black community in the South.

—Greg Galloway

To confirm who deserved property compensation, Beiser traveled to Levy County and surrounding areas several times to review records and try to uncover new documents that could confirm their findings.

In one visit, the investigator found records from the 1920s stored in an old school bus barn. Pages literally crumbled when he tried to turn them. Such documents helped to reduce the number of supposed heirs because they showed some families did not live in Rosewood.

With the latest investigation, the search for descendants is now over.

Within the next week or two, between 60 and 70 descendants will receive a share of the $600,000 in amounts ranging from $145 to $6,000, Durden said.

Doctor, who heads the Rosewood Family Advisory Council, has criticized state officials for slowing the delivery of money, but he said he now was satisfied with how state officials handled the compensation plan.

"Everybody received something out of this process. Everybody in the family had a chance to experience some sort of gain from this process," he said. "We didn't get everything we wanted, but we got more than many people expected."

With the state's role just about over, Rosewood takes on a new dimension.

Greg Galloway, an entertainment lawyer in Orlando who represents the Rosewood families in the film deal, said he believed Rosewood offered a compelling tale that would translate easily to the big screen.

"The state pays damages for a race-based hate crime. That's never happened in this country," he said. "It's an opportunity for filmmakers to see what Rosewood was — a relatively prosperous black community in the South."

A prominent Hollywood producer plans to make the film, but the movie maker doesn't want details of the project released at this time, said Galloway.

In Norfolk, Va., author Mike D'Orso is wrapping up a book with the working title, "And God Was All Around Us: The Story of the Rosewood Massacre." He said he expected it to be released in early 1988.

D'Orso has collaborated on and written several non-fiction books.

Doctor has his own plans to establish a memorial at the site where the community existed about nine miles east of Cedar Key along State Road 24. Today, only road signs mark the spot.

"I'm committed to showing the best light on Rosewood that we can possibly bring to bear," he said. "There was a lot of richness there at that time that's been lost for the most part."

First graders in Mary Jo Thorne's class at Pinecrest Elementary School will learn how a newspaper is produced when a member of the Sanford Herald staff visits the campus Tuesday. The presentation covers where stories come from, layout, assembling the page, press machinery and the fine art of rolling a newspaper for residential subscribers. Each student will receive a copy of the Sanford Herald with their very own picture inside.

Spelling

Sanford Junior High stage before a large crowd of well-wishers. Marion Harmon, WTRR announcer, pronounced the words and judges were Mrs. Marguerite Graham, Miss Ann French and Miss Catherine Clark.

Jimmy Whatley's teacher had tried to teach him another method of spelling which only confused him and he went down in the first round. I was able to continue and eventually won with Virginia Boone from Lyman taking second place.

I was presented with this huge, heavy trophy for the school and had to hold it for several minutes while a woman described it for the radio listeners. I have often wondered where that trophy is now — does anyone know? It was a traveling trophy on which all the county champions' names are engraved. I believe that my name was the third one placed there, but those Miami Herald sponsored county spelling matches were held for many years afterward.

My prize was $10 and a trip to Miami for the state contest; Virginia received $5 plus the trip. While in Miami, I received a small trophy on which is engraved my name and "Champion, Miami Herald Spelling Bee, Seminole County." This trophy continues to be displayed in my home, after 45 years!

The next day, I had my picture taken for the Sanford Herald, The Orlando Sentinel and also for the Miami Herald. I was a celebrity for a few days and thoroughly enjoyed my 15 minutes of fame.

On Friday morning, April 28, Virginia met me at Sanford Junior High and Mr. Ben Steele, county spelling bee director, took us downtown where he introduced us to everyone as the champion spellers. We then ate lunch at Sanford Grammar School where Mr. Steele was principal.

That afternoon, Mr. Steele, Virginia and I along with my parents drove to Miami. We stayed at the Patricia Hotel which was the headquarters for the contestants.

The next morning, several of us spellers went swimming next door in the Robert Clay Hotel pool. During the afternoon we were guests at a party held at Radio Station WQAM whose studios were in the Dupont building. They would broadcast the big event that night.

Bayfront Auditorium was the site for the state spelling match that night. It was the largest auditorium I had ever been in and there was a huge crowd. It was a very long evening — I managed to stay up for three hours and several rounds and came in ninth. Virginia was 20th out of the 48 contestants. Winner was Betty Lou Rosen from Dade County.

The next day we took in some of the sights of the city and went swimming at Crandon park before returning home.

The Miami Herald, sponsor of the contest, gave it a great deal of publicity. There were individual pictures of each contestant, an entire page of photographs of our various activities (I appeared in one taken at the swimming pool), and several long articles.

If any of you readers were Seminole County Spelling Champions during the time the Miami Herald sponsored the contests, let me hear from you so we can compare experiences. And if anyone knows where that trophy is, do let me know!

Lottery

one-third share of Saturday's jackpot — $2.36 million which will be paid in 20 annual installments of $118,000. In addition to retiring effective July 1, the couple said they also plan to pay off debts, fix up their house and help their youngest of six children complete his college education.

"We'll do some things we've been putting off...but we're very conservative in the way we live, so no new car, no trip to Europe or anything like that," Rose said. "We've had a lot of unusual things happen in our life, and this is a very positive thing. So this kind of just makes everything come out right."

The couple bought two tickets for Saturday's drawing as they have each week since the Lotto began. One ticket contained the same set of ages and birthdates they have played for years, but the winning ticket was a Quick Pick, with the computer selecting the numbers.

Rose and his co-workers often discussed what they would do if they won the lottery. For his part, Rose said he'd make three phone calls, one to Tallahassee to validate the ticket, the second to the bank and the third to his boss bidding her the country music adios.

The couple almost missed their chance at the prize when Rose had to work late. He called home to see if his wife remembered to buy the tickets.

"I warned her I'd divorce her if the numbers came up and she didn't buy the ticket...she was gone," Robert joked.

The Roses had a difficult time keeping their secret after checking their numbers in the Sunday paper.

"We went to church that evening, and I just wanted to say 'We won the Lottery!' in the middle of church," she added.

Two winning tickets sold in St. Augustine and Fort Lauderdale have not been presented for payment.

Tribe, Rams win in jamboree; Hawks, 'Hounds play to tie

By TONY BOCCOMINI
Herald Sports Editor

LAKE MARY — As he accepted the congratulations of fans and boosters for his team's 21-14 win over the Oviedo Lions in Friday's Seminole Athletic Conference spring football jamboree, Lake Mary coach Doug Peters put the evening in perspective.

"This is nice," said Peters. "But it doesn't mean anything. A couple years ago, we beat Lake Brantley 21-0 in a jamboree and we haven't beaten them since."

"A lot can happen over the summer. What happens in the weight room this summer will be the difference, for us and everyone else. District championships are won in the weight room."

In the other two "halves," Lyman and Lake Howell played to a scoreless tie and Seminole beat Lake Brantley 13-7 when Walter Bryant blocked a 57-yard John Berardi field goal attempt and Nate Williams returned it 45 yards for a touchdown.

The jamboree — described by some as a 24-minute payoff for 20 days of work — offered little in the way of surprises as coaches kept things simple, rotated in as many people as the two 12-minute periods would allow, and tried to get away without anyone getting hurt.

Toward that end, the evening was a complete success.

"We're ahead of last year," said Oviedo coach Jack Blanton, who lost Shawn Lingard to a broken leg at last year's spring jamboree, an injury that kept him out of action for the first part of the 1994 varsity season. "We were just hoping to score some points tonight."

Lake Mary tailback Recolon Jupp turned in the night's top performance, rushing for 134 yards and a touchdown on 13 carries. His touchdown, a 22-yard dash with 17 seconds left, broke a 14-14 tie for the Rams.

Donny Casey had a 21-yard touchdown run for Lake Mary. Bobby Davidowitz hauled in a 9-yard pass from Shaun St. Dennis for the Rams' other score.

"It was important for us to come out and look fairly decent tonight after the work we did this spring," said Peters. "Now we have to follow that up by working hard this summer."

Oviedo sophomore quarterback Andy Neufeld, who completed four of six passes for 106 yards, nearly gave the Lions a chance to tie or win as he broke loose for a 60-yard run as time expired, only to be tripped less than 15 yards from the end zone.

"Defensively, we didn't do well in stopping them," said Blanton. "Offensively, we only moved the ball on big plays. I had hoped we might move the ball more consistently. But we're so young. We'll come along."

For Oviedo, Josh Greer caught three passes for 93 yards and a touchdown while running back Leroy Jackson rushed for 27 yards and a touchdown (set up by a 45-yard Neufeld-to-Greer completion).

Even though it was a jamboree, the Seminole Fighting Seminoles and Lake Brantley Patriots wasted

Lake Brantley senior Dee Brown, the only returning starting quarterback in the county, contributed 63 yards to the Patriots' 201-yard rushing attack in their jamboree contest Friday night with the Seminole Fighting Seminoles.

Put the brooms away: Pacers hang on, win Game 3

By WENDY S. LANE
AP Basketball Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — Back at home, the Indiana Pacers looked more like their old selves, playing defense and controlling the boards. And suddenly, Orlando didn't seem so magical after all.

The Pacers shut down Shaquille O'Neal and his teammates in the fourth quarter Saturday to take Game 3 of the Eastern Conference finals with a 105-100 victory. Indiana can tie the series 2-2 with a win Monday at Market Square Arena.

After being outplayed in the first two games by the hot-shooting Magic, the Pacers toughened up and beat Orlando for the seventh straight time on their home court.

The Magic could rely on neither O'Neal, who was hampered by foul trouble, nor the kind of outside shooting they had in the first two games.

The Pacers not only defended the perimeter better, they kept O'Neal from getting position in the paint.

After scoring 71 points in the first two games, he finished with just 18 on 8-for-15 shooting.

Orlando still hit 12 3-pointers, giving the Magic 35 for the series, but only two came in the fourth quarter when they missed 15 of 23 shots.

The Pacers were clinging to a two-point lead with little over a minute left when Orlando was called for an illegal defense. Reggie Miller, who led Indiana with 26 points, hit the technical, and Derrick McKey, who had 14 of his 23 in the second half, added an 18-footer from the baseline with 54 seconds left.

Until Anfernee Hardaway, who had 29 points, hit a 3-pointer with 12 seconds left, the Magic had scored just 15 points in the final period. That shot cut Indiana's lead to 102-98, and Hardaway and Dennis Scott both put up air balls from behind the arc in the waning seconds. Meanwhile, the Pacers hit seven of eight free throws in the last 30 seconds to seal the victory.

The Pacers led by two entering the final period and increased their lead to six on McKey's 3-pointer with 9:04 to play before Orlando answered with a basket by O'Neal and a 3-pointer by Scott. That was the last field goal for the Magic for five minutes.

Pacers center Rik Smits ended up in foul trouble like O'Neal, sitting out more than 6 1/2 minutes of the final period. But Dale Davis, Antonio Davis and McKey kept up the frontline pressure, forcing the Magic outside and it showed as the Pacers finished with a 38-26 rebound advantage.

Smits finished with 19 points. O'Neal played just 15 minutes in the first half, scoring 11 points, and was replaced in the lineup by Jeff Turner, who had 10 points.

Holiday weekend tests PFD law

"Wearing a life jacket while boating can save your life." — that's the message being sent out by the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission (the Memorial Day holiday weekend).

The holiday, annually one of the busiest on Florida's waterways, also will be the first major test of the state's new life jacket law.

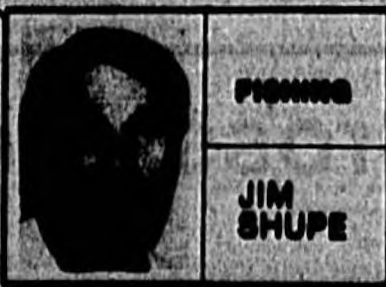

The law requires every boat to have a wearable life jacket for everyone on board. The personal flotation devices (PFDs) must be U.S. Coast Guard-approved Type I, II or III.

There is a definite correlation between wearing a life jacket and staying alive if there's an accident," said Lt. Bill Sauter, the commission's boating safety coordinator.

"The new law does not require everyone to wear a life jacket, just to have enough on board. But we hope people realize they might be able to prevent a tragedy simply by wearing the vest."

Children under the age of 6 must wear a life vest while boating.

in the number of accidents and fatalities on the water. In 1984, there were 1,191 accidents reported in the state resulting in 74 deaths, 711 injuries and $4.3 million in property damage.

The new life jacket law replaces one that allowed throwable Type IV flotation devices (such as seat cushions) to be used on vessels under 16 feet. These vessels now must have wearable PFDs for everyone on board. Boats longer than 16 feet must have wearable PFDs for everyone on board, plus at least one Type IV flotation device.

The new regulation does exempt some boats — racing canoes and kayaks, sailboards, racing shells and rowing shells. The law also exempts boats used in children's, race and marine parade. Also, rented boats that are manually powered (such as canoes and rowboats) can continue to use Type IV PFDs for the next year. They will be required to carry wearable life jackets on May 1, 1989.

All available officers with the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission will be on patrol during the Memorial Day weekend, issuing warnings and citations to boaters not in compliance with the new law.

"We really don't want to stop people from having a good time," Sauter said. "We just want to get the message across that safety and responsibility are important when you're on the water."

SHUPE'S BOATS
Life jackets are much cheaper than you think, and can be found for as little as $6 in discount stores and boat supply outlets.

FISHING FORECAST

Boat action is slow except in the river, where dropping water levels keep bass feeding on minnows and grass shrimp forced out into the main channel. From Pease Lake south is excellent for bass.

This will be the last weekend before smelt season closes, so selection later will be packed. Expect plenty of smelt in the 8-15 pound class, with a few 20-pound plus fish. The outgoing tide is best, as bait is funneled out the swift inlet into the mouths of waiting garfish, Redfish, jack craville, scyfish, flounder, and trout will be mixed in with the smelt. Live bait is best in the daytime, and hura work well after dark.

Captain Jack at Pease
General reports plenty of dab and ling, muskellunge, pike, muskellunge and 8-8 muskellunge. A few tripods are in the busy bay, white snapper and sheepshead are being landed.

Trout and redfish are still rated as good on the State of the Sea and Indian rivers.

Small to medium sheepshead are still the top action at Pease Lake, while anglers can also expect drum, redfish, small bluefish, jack craville, and a few flounder. Redfish and trout are rated as good in Mosquito Lagoon.

Pierce's 646 highlights quiet week

Special to the Herald

SANFORD — Just because there was a drop in quantity of league matches rolled at Rowi America-Sanford last week doesn't mean there had to be a drop in the quality.

In one of three league reporting results last week, Pete Pierce put together a strong 646 series in the Highway Valet League that featured a high game of 230.

Also in Highway Valet action, Jack Kaleser posted a 543 series. Leading the women was Marge Butler with her 556 total.

Don Mariotto and Jim Galan posted the top marks in the Friday Night Social League, Mariotto putting together a 551 for high series honors while Galan's 501 was the top single game score.

Jamie Taylor turned in a 536 series (which included a high game of 212) to back up Mariotto. Trailing Galan for high game honors was Tom Veen with a 234.

In the Teen Pro Bowlers League, Eric Smith knocked down a 211 game on his way to a 524 series while Natalie Gettle rolled a 201.

Teams ride big wins up CFDA ladder

Special to the Herald

WINTER PARK — It's amazing what a good week will do for a team's position in the standings.

In each of the four divisions of the Central Florida Darts Association's Steel-Tip League, teams used outstanding outings to jump up to second place.

The most upwardly mobile group was Nice & Easy's Dart Clubbers, who went 5-1 last week to climb from fourth place into a tie for second in the B Division with Crispin's Rowdy Gang.

Moving from third place into second were (with their week's mark) the Royal Blades from Games People Play (5-1) in the AA Division and Fire'em Up out of Kivi's Pub & Grill (5-0) in the A Division.

In the C Division, which continues to be the CFDA's most closely contested circuit, On the Wire of Games People Play (4-5) went from second to first while Southern Jubilee, also no time getting after each other in a spirited half of football.

Led by returners Doc Brown (quarterback) and Del McGee (fullback), the Patriots accumulated over 200 yards rushing in two periods — 60 by McGee, 60 by fullback Brian Gonzalez, and 60 by Brown — but turned the ball over four times to Ron Moore and the Seminole defense.

"I'm tickled to death," said Lake Brantley coach Fred Alford. "We hadn't hit anybody all spring, but we came out here and played a good half against a very good football team. And our new fullback (Gonzales) showed me that he can carry the ball, so I'll breathe a little easier this summer."

McGee struck first, scoring on a 20-yard dash less than 20 seconds into the first quarter. About two minutes later, Terrell Johnson answered for Seminole with a 64-yard touchdown rush (which accounted for most of the Tribe's 98 total offensive yards on the night).

The Patriots spent most of the rest of the night in Seminole territory, running 25 of their final 30 plays on the Tribe's side of the 50-yard line, but had nothing to show for it.

An interception by Chris Youmans ended one Lake Brantley drive while Williams and Moore each recovered a Patriot fumble in Seminole territory. Moore's came on the goal line, snagging the loose ball in midair.

Along with Oviedo, the Lyman Greyhounds and Lake Howell Silver Hawks did a lot of experimenting in their half. Both teams used two quarterbacks and had six different players with at least one carry.

The closest the Silver Hawks came to the Lyman end zone was when they reached the Greyhound 37-yard line late in the first quarter. But Lyman defensive back Otis Williams came up with a tackle for a loss on Lake Howell's next play, then intercepted a pass to snuff the drive.

The Silver Hawks were their own worst enemy, fumbling four times (losing one) and being whittled for 20 yards in penalties.

"We didn't look that bad this spring," said Lake Howell coach Mike Biacoglia. "I'm disappointed with our performance, especially after we had a good spring."

"But we'll get better. We had a couple of nice drives going and that's what it's all about."

Ellis DeJesus rushed for 31 yards on six carries to lead the Lake Howell attack while freshman Ben Williams added 24 yards on five rushes. For Lyman, Alvin Cummings had 46 yards rushing on four carries, including a 32-yard dash to the Lake Howell 28-yard line in the final minutes of the second quarter.

Florida seeks filmdom N. Carolina fights strong battle

By BOB SPURAW
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The motion picture industry continues to grow in the Central Florida area. With MGM, Nickelodeon Studio, Universal Studio, and several movie companies operating in the Orlando Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA) film making and television production is making its mark on the area's economy.

The City of Sanford has been the scene of several feature films and television programs during the past few decades. Recently, scenes at the Orlando Sanford Airport were seen on "Miami Vice" with the showing of "Passenger 57." Other movies such as "My Girl" also show some of the Sanford area.

Still others, such as a tongue-in-cheek tabloid series for TV, filmed partially in Sanford last year, remains to be shown.

The film industry is being promoted heavily in Central Florida through the Economic Development Commission. Many organizations are involved in productions including the Florida Motion Picture and TV Association.

Governor Lawton Chiles recently announced a goal of making film and television production a $1 billion-a-year business by 2000, more than double the current levels there.

While publicity statements from various Central Florida sources often say that this is the "Hollywood East," Florida is now involved in a strong fight from North Carolina.

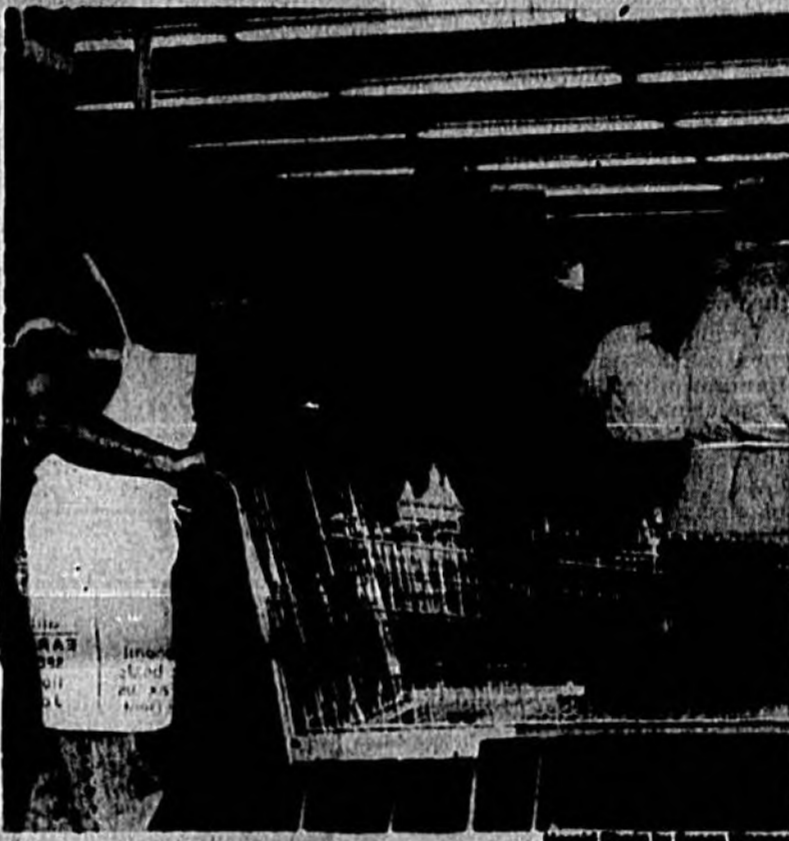

Movie recruiters in other states don't always believe Bill Arnold when he tells them how North Carolina has quietly become a film-production center ranked second or third to California for most of the past decade.

North Carolina has never advertised, choosing subtle rather than aggressive promotions. Arnold, director of the North Carolina Film Office, said Wednesday.

"In the last five years, emissaries, delegations or spies, if you will, from 12 states and 23 foreign countries have come to Raleigh to try to learn the kind of methodology or strategy that the North Carolina Film Office has used so successfully," he said Wednesday.

"... And most of the people that we tell it to don't believe it or shoot back that nobody would run an operation like this on purpose."

Somebody must be listening, however. The number of government agencies in North America that recruit entertainment-industry

By Trabuley, owner of Park and Shop in Sanford, is proud of his new store, new location, and new local friends.

Park and Shop starts anew for the 1990s

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Park and Shop, 329 Sanford Ave., officially opened on March 8. Although the grand opening took place on April 6 the store was operating on a full scale basis.

By Trabuley, reopened the store under the original name Park and Shop but was quick to emphasize that the grocery has new management even though the name is the same as the 60s and early 70s.

"I'm an independent trying to make it in downtown Sanford," said Trabuley. "This area really needs a grocery that's close to downtown since there isn't one close by."

Trabuley is no stranger to the grocery industry. He was raised by parents in the business. "I was sitting on a scale and in a grocery from almost the day I was born," he said.

By's Supermarket in Orlando was owned and operated by Trabuley since 1967. The store was sold in 1988.

His 1988 venture of opening a store in Sanford began after "two years of being bored." He also added, "A friend of mine knew the family that owned the building here. I decided it was time to get back into the business."

The 12,000 square foot building of Park and Shop offers a full service grocery. Trabuley has hired 16 employees that stock and care for six checkouts. He prides himself on the fresh meat and produce, cereals and canned goods. Various personal items and detergents of all kinds line the tidy lanes.

A recent mail-out sent a Park and Shop weekly special flyer to over 23,000 homes in the Sanford area. Trabuley emphasized, "We have special day in and day out."

Newspapers are conveniently located near the customer service desk which handles the overflow of busy shoppers. Lotto and scratch-off lottery tickets are also sold in this area.

Park and Shop cashes payroll and government checks. The store accepts food stamps and WIC checks. Money orders are also available for purchase.

Trabuley said, "Business is great." He shared that he is excited about the possibilities of maintaining his business in Sanford.

Memorial Day weekend radio station 102 JAME will be on hand for entertainment. Free drinks, ice cream and hot dogs will fill bellies while sausage and chicken demonstrations take place in the store.

Business hours are from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Sunday hours are from 8 a.m. to noon.

SHS class of 1930 gathers for 65th reunion

The Cooks observe 40th anniversary

There's nothing like a reunion, family or otherwise, to bring out the best in people. Everybody makes plans for months to attend this special gathering and can't wait to see their friends and loved ones.

And the Seminole High Class of 1930 is no different. Last Saturday, classmates and spouses, all dressed to the nines, happily gathered at the charming home of Nellie and Boyd Coleman to celebrate their 65th class reunion in style. The event got under way with a reception in the afternoon followed by a delicious sit down dinner that evening.

For the past several years the Colemans have hosted these events at their home to the delight of the classmates. What a lovely outing for the octogenarians who all seem to be so young at heart.

The class yearbook, Salmagundi, was passed back and forth as the classmates handled the 65-year-old volume with tender loving care.

DORIS DIETRICH

This class began its freshman year at the high school when it was located on Palmetto Avenue between Ninth and Tenth streets before moving to the then Sanford High School in January, 1927, the present Sanford Middle School on French Avenue.

Although the years were lean back in those days, Bernard (Buddy) Lake said, "We didn't know times were hard." Buddy recalls that, "We always had plenty to do."

He spoke about swimming and boating facilities at several springs in the area including: Sanlando Springs, Rock Springs. See Dietrich, Page 2C

FOX 35 sets the pace for Leukemia Society Televent

WOLF FOX 35 and the Central Florida chapter of the Leukemia Society held a kick-off party Monday, May 22 for VIPs, trustees and board members. The party was held to get everyone excited about the upcoming Leukemia Society Televent to be held on Father's Day, June 18 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Central Florida portion of the televent will be broadcast from FOX 35 in Lake Mary.

Executive Director Ellen Mahoney spoke briefly about the goals for this year's event and then previewed a videotape that will be shown during the televent. Ellen also introduced the 1995 Leukemia Society Ambassadors. The Ambassadors range in age from 5 to 13 and have had leukemia or are being treated for it. The Ambassadors then took the opportunity to hand out pledge cards to all the guests.

Kari Nicole Jennings in Spain.

Student's trip to Spain 'enchanting'

Kari Nicole Jennings, 11th grade student at Seminole High, tells of her once-in-a-lifetime trip to that enchanted country of Spain. After school on Friday, April 7, Kari and a group of other students departed to spend their spring vacation on a never-to-be forgotten trip, with the first stop being the beautiful city of Madrid. There they visited the Royal Palace built by Bourbon King Philip V and viewed the golden throne room. They also visited the town of Toledo, one of the oldest towns in Spain where they visited the cathedral.

From Madrid they went to Valencia. The cathedral there according to legend has become the safekeeper of the Holy Grail of the 15th century. From there, they traveled to Barcelona which is called the Catalanian capital. The stadium is where the

They enjoyed walking down the tree-lined boulevards called Las Ramblas where gifts were purchased and pictures sketched by local artists. Continuing through Barcelona, next stop was the picturesque town of Montserrat located in the north-western part of the country. A jagged mountain towers high above the Llobregat Valley, a lovely scenic backdrop to the small town. The town's rugged mountain setting provides a dramatic backdrop for a ninth century monastery where the basilica houses the Black Virgin of Montserrat.

On to Costa Brava where everyone got a chance to relax on the beach and enjoy the beautiful blue waters. They had a very educational and historical visit and Kari looks forward to one day going back. A special thanks to Spanish teacher, Christina Eldredge for a well-planned educational trip.

Wekiwa Springs and Ponce de Leon Springs. Then, there was the St. Johns River for swimming and boating. Some of the facilities were free and others charged a "dime or a quarter." There were no organized attractions around, but there were movies, Buddy said.

"We had fun, but it didn't cost much," he added. The beach was not the hassle it is today and there were lots of public parks. Buddy mentioned how the citizens supported Sanford's baseball team. "It was backed by everybody in town," he said.

Buddy talked about how caring people were in those days. Nobody went without. Farmers shared their produce with the community and "bread was a dime a loaf."

Standing out in his mind was when the class celebrated Class Day in 1930 with an outing at Ponce de Leon Springs. It was a day to remember, Buddy said. "I got the worst sunburn I have ever had in my life." He doesn't recall a prom to end the school year.

As for Buddy, he was a major league prospect, with the Boston Braves for three years and played baseball in the minor leagues for 15 years. He also reminisced about the service station he and his brother-in-law, John Crawford, operated at the corner of Palmetto and Second from 1950-1981.

Classmates had a good time just talking about the old days and their favorite people in Sanford. A dear friend of the group was Julian Stenstrom whom the classmates admired and still mourn. Also mentioned was their admiration for Julian's brother, Sanford Attorney Douglas Stenstrom, who is doing very well following a serious illness.

Robert (Bob) Yancey, a brother of Ned Yancey of Sanford, arrived with his wife, Motorette, from Jacksonville. Bob was the football hero of the day and can still see his name in headlines in the Sanford Herald. He is retired from the federal government and the Yanceys enjoy travel.

Jack and Hazel Robson were enjoying reliving old times. Jack is a former mayor of Jupiter and Hazel is still a real estate broker.

It was like one big happy family as the classmates and spouses were seated at two beautifully appointed tables in the Coleman home swapping stories and holding themselves to a buffet of Stuffed Chicken Breast, Baby Carrots, Savory Green Beans, Rice Pilaf, Congee Salad, Rolls, Iced Tea, Punch and Pound Cake. Helen Smith assisted the hostess.

According to Buddy Lake, there were 148 freshmen who started out in the class of 1930. Only 84 of that number graduated and there are 42 known deceased.

Among the others attending the reunion were: Esther and Warren Herbst, Juanita Russell, Phyllis Smith, Horace and Thelma Tew Bentley, Ruby Peters Bauer, Lena Stelts, Rosalie Pope Lanier, Denny and Olivia Waters, Kathryn Thrasher, Esther Prosser Lee, Khadra Ward and Jean and Dick Lee.

ties working toward a cure firmly believe that with enough research, there is the potential to impact a cure for kids leukemia by the year 2000. There is also the potential to significantly impact adult leukemia within that time frame.

In conjunction with the fund-raising, there will be a bone marrow registration drive at the Altamonte Mall. To register as a bone marrow donor costs nothing. To donate bone marrow costs nothing. The registry is especially desperate for minority donors. Right now, the chance of an African American, a Native American or a Hispanic finding a match in the system is literally one in a million. The only way to improve those odds is for more minorities to register as donors.

To be a bone marrow donor, you must be between the ages of 18 and 55. That's the only requirement. Then you stick out your arm, feel a little prick and they take just two tablespoons of blood. That's all there's to it. If you're going to be out of town for Father's Day, that's not a good excuse not to register. You can go to any branch of the Central Florida Blood bank to register as a donor.

You can also donate money before the event. You can mail donations to the Leukemia Society of America, Central Florida Chapter, 3101 Maguire Blvd., Orlando, FL 32803.

celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary with a gala open house reception at their Mayfair home on Sunday, May 21. About 130 friends and relatives called during the appointed hours to wish the couple well.

"It was great...it was wonderful," Arthurene said excitedly.

The Cooks were married May 21, 1945 in the First Baptist Church of Sanford by the Rev. Dr. W.P. Brooks Jr. They have lived their entire married life in Sanford.

Walter has been employed by the railroad for 42 years and will retire July 15. Arthurene has mostly been a homemaker but also worked at the courthouse, Wilson-Maier Furniture Co., a family-owned business, and at the post.

The couple are the parents of three children, David and Dan, who live in the area, and Sherry Landry of LeJeune, N.C. There are seven grandsons and two granddaughters plus a deceased grandson. According to Arthurene, grandchildren range in age from 19 down to 2 years old. For the open house, the home was decorated in the traditional colors of ruby red and white. An arrangement of two dozen red roses centered the refreshment table which was laden with a variety of party fare.

Anna Jardine coordinated the refreshments. Sisters-in-law Sandra Wilson and Mary Moore, together with the Friendship Class of the First Baptist Church, assisted with the serving. Also serving were daughters-in-law, Jimette Cook and Patty Cook, and daughter Sherry Landry and her daughter, Melissa.

The Cooks have departed via the Sunset Limited on a train trip to California. They plan to rent a car and enjoy the scenic view of the California coastline before returning home by train.

Pilot Club studies Alzheimer's Disease

Pat Jimison of the Alzheimer

Resource Center, Inc., was the guest speaker at the recent Sanford Pilot Club meeting. According to Marian Rothwell, club president, the speaker told of her life for the past 15 years with her husband, an Alzheimer victim. She told how the disease gradually creeps up on the patient and its devastating effect on the brain.

The guest speaker also mentioned the strain put on caregivers and the expense involved. Pat told the club members that she had to sell property and belongings in order to meet the mounting expenses.

Preceding the program, members enjoyed a covered dish dinner. In keeping with health and fitness, members brought non-meat and non-fat foods. Ruth Gaines, president-elect, attractively decorated the tables with runners of ferns and a variety of vegetables.

The club will install officers at the June meeting.

ESO hears travel expert

Jean Metts was the hostess at her home to the May meeting of Epsilon Sigma Omicron, a reading society of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs.

Assisting as co-hostesses were Fran Mitchell Webster, ESO chairman, and Fran Morton who served sausage balls, pimiento cheese sandwiches, assorted breads, fruit platters, strawberries with chocolate dip, spinach tarts, cheese tarts, punch, coffee and tea.

Program chairman Charlotte Knowles introduced the guest speaker, former Seminole County Commissioner Sandra Glenn now of Sun Travel Agency in Sanford. She spoke about the many trips and tours available through the agency for weekends or just for the day. She said trips from the Orlando Sanford Regional Airport are very popular as well as day trips to St. Petersburg and St. Augustine. Sandra was presented a gift of appreciation for her interesting commentary.

Fran Webster presided over the business session. A nominating committee was announced to include: Shirley Metts, Fran Morton and Betty Halback.

Girl Scouts plan bridging ceremony

The Lake Mary Stardust Service Unit of Girl Scouts has scheduled their bridging ceremony for 9 a.m. Saturday, June 3 at the Lake Mary City Hall Amphitheater. A bridging ceremony is when Girl Scouts move from one level of scouting to another. Daisies bridge to Brownies, Brownies bridge to Juniors and so on. Bridging isn't just a one-day event. For the year leading up to bridging, Girl Scouts must do certain steps to bridge. One of the things they must do is work with girls already in the level they're bridging to.

This year is a very special bridging year. There are six seniors bridging to adults. This troop has been together since they were Brownies.

The ceremony is open to the public and everyone is invited to attend.

Festival artists given awards

This year, there was something new at Olde Lake Mary Days. The Lake Mary seniors sponsored an art contest for artists of all ages who work in and around Lake Mary. More than 30 paintings were submitted for the contest. The Best of Show went to Jack Patton of Winter Springs for his painting "The Bayou." Awards of distinction went to Maria Copes of Lake Mary for her painting

"Serenity on the Wekiwa" and to Jo Herron of Winter Springs for her painting "Charcoal Lady." Awards of appreciation were given to Marjorie Beay, Beryl Lacky, Naomi Congriff, La Verne Bracwell, Sharon Brender and Audrey Frazer.

There were several drawings at Olde Lake Mary Days. One involved a very large piece of art. Terry Chamberlain of the River Oaks Presbyterian Church in Lake Mary made a quilt for the event. The "Garden of Pansies" design quilt was quite a prize that went to Judi Keister of Lake Mary.

The FOX 35 Kids Club gave away 15 prizes that day to children visiting the Kids Section. The grand prize, a Generation 2 Transformer, was won by Keley Killeason of Longwood.

Changing the world one step at a time

By LYNDEE HOLLIDAY
Herald Correspondent

LONGWOOD — I remember when I was about eight-years-old, I had written a letter to the president stating how I thought the world should change.

Now that I am 15, I had new views to share.

For instance: we complain how far our country is in debt, but we hand off money to other countries as easily as we hand off candy to kids.

Our country is falling down the tubes and no one will help us.

How many countries do we hear about that just send us money air mail whenever we need it? None.

That's right, these other countries take care of their own well-being before others. That's how it should be.

Our country is letting in illegal aliens.

Yes, we all understand why, but our country is suffering from this also.

Overpopulation.

Another thing that bugs me is the cutting down of all our trees. We complain again on how our ozone has holes through itself, but do we do anything about the situations to fix the problem? No.

Like I said when I was

eight-years-old and I will say it again: Everything that we do now and have done before will affect our future well-being.

The future is your children and grandchildren. We are destroying the world and we are causing more problems for the future.

Think about it. If everyone changes the mistakes they make as an individual and if they take care of themselves as an individual, the world will be a better place for all.

So, the next time you see the future adults, think about what you're doing to give the future rulers more complications for our country and our world.

Lyndey Holliday is a sophomore at Lyman High School in Longwood.

New product aids sleeping infant

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Sleep Guardian Inc., a Charleston, S.C. company announces a patented, innovative sleeping pad that supplies supplemental air to a sleeping infant, preventing pooling and rebreathing of carbon dioxide. A recent Consumer Products Safety Commission study showed that rebreathing expired air (carbon dioxide of CO<sub>2</sub>) trapped in certain soft bedding products may have contributed to the deaths of an estimated 30 percent of infants initially diagnosed as dying of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS).

With Sleep Guardian, parents need not worry should their baby roll from the side or back position to its stomach during sleep. A small air pump, placed on top floor channels fresh air to the Sleep Guardian pad. The air is deflected through a series of tiny openings, providing a source of breathable air from beneath the infant. At the same time, the pad diffuses any accumulated CO<sub>2</sub> gas. Sleep Guardian thus provides the infant an added measure of safety from CO<sub>2</sub> poisoning without regard to sleeping position.

The Sleep Guardian Supplemental Air Delivery System which sells for under $100 could prove to be the solution to preventing up to 30 percent of all SIDS related deaths. In order to make the Sleep Guardian Sleeping Pad readily available to the public, a special 800 number (1-800-441-0648) has been set up to place an order until the product is available in retail outlets.

Learning to be 'sun wise' in 1995

By YVONI BOGOSIAN
Herald Senior Staff Writer

National Sun Protection week is concluding, but the glaring sun of the Florida summer makes us aware at all times that sun protection is a necessity of life here.

Sun care experts offer a simple bit of advice for summer: look to the UV index every day before planning your outdoor activities.

Launched last summer by the National Weather Service as well as by private national weather reporting services, the UV index provides a daily reading of the UV (ultra-violet) risk level as part of the local weather forecast.

It also includes helpful information on daily sun protection, such as an estimate of how quickly people may sunburn if unprotected, so Americans can take steps to protect their skin and eyes.

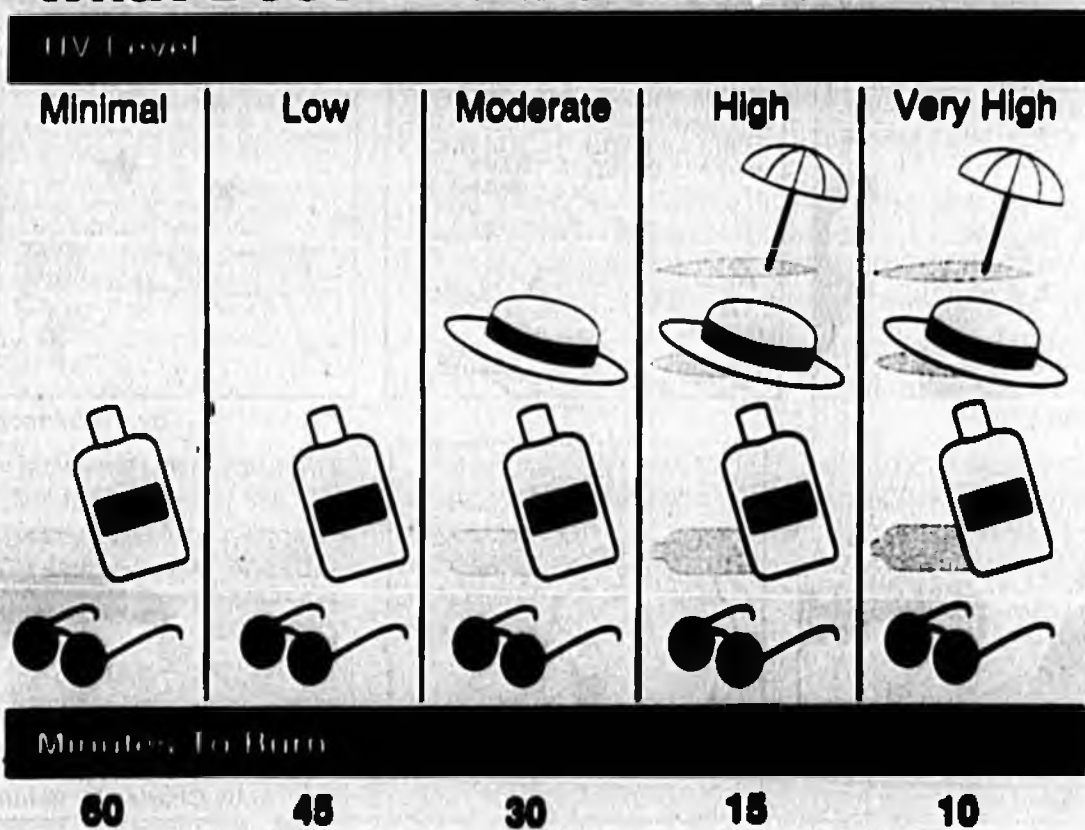

Using a scale of 0-10, or higher in some areas, the UV index also decodes the strength of the sun's five levels: minimal, low, moderate, high and very high.

These levels, which were developed by the National Weather Service in cooperation with the Environmental Protection Agency and the national public health groups, are based on the likelihood of sunburn to fair-skinned individual, (those who sometimes tan, but usually burn).

However, even for people who don't have fair skin, these levels serve as a valuable reference tool, since all skin types can experience skin damage and other effects from overexposure to UV rays.

Because the UV index is a new part of the weather forecast, the best way for consumers to begin using the UV index is to pay attention to the terms that follow the UV index number.

What Does The Index Mean?

Here's what the levels mean: If the UV index is:

0-2 or "minimal" — this means minimal danger from the sun's UV radiation. As a result, the average person can stay in the noon sun unprotected for up to one hour without burning. 3-4 or "low" — this involves some risk of harm from the sun. At this level, the average person will burn in 45 minutes if unprotected.

5-6 or "moderate" — this indicates some measurable risk of skin damage due to the sun. Unprotected exposure can result in a burn in only 30 minutes.

7-10 or "high" — this indicates high risk of harm from unprotected exposure to the sun. At this level, the average person will burn in under 15 minutes.

10 plus or "very high" — this means maximum risk of harm from unprotected sun exposure. At this level, the average person will burn in 10 minutes or less.

Sleep Guardian thus provides the infant an added measure of safety from CO<sub>2</sub> poisoning without regard to sleeping position.

The Sleep Guardian Supplemental Air Delivery System which sells for under $100 could prove to be the solution to preventing up to 30 percent of all SIDS related deaths. In order to make the Sleep Guardian Sleeping Pad readily available to the public, a special 800 number (1-800-441-0648) has been set up to place an order until the product is available in retail outlets.

Only 5 in 8 pregnancies lead to live births in US

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Of the 6.5 million pregnancies in the United States in 1992, some 2.4 million ended in abortions, miscarriages and stillbirths, the government reported.

The National Center for Health Statistics said Thursday the abortion rate dropped by 12 percent from 1980 to 1992, partly due to a drop in the number of women in their late teens and 20s, when abortion rates are highest.

In addition to 1.5 million abortions in 1992, there were 900,000 miscarriages and stillbirths, the center said. Some 4.1 million babies were born that year.

The average American woman has 3.3 pregnancies during her lifetime, representing 2.1 live births, 0.8 abortions, and 0.4 miscarriages and stillbirths, the agency said.

Stephanie Ventura, a demographer and co-author of the report on pregnancy trends, said it documents that black and Hispanic women have more pregnancies than white women.

The average black woman becomes pregnant 5.1 times during her lifetime, the average Hispanic woman 4.7 times and the average white woman 2.8 times.

The difference in lifetime births "is considerably smaller," with Hispanic women bearing three babies, black women 2.6 and whites 1.8.

Pregnancies among black women were twice as likely to end in abortion, said the study.

Helping parents not to hurt

Special to the Herald

In Florida, early this year, a troubled mom, tormented by the pressures of everyday life, shot her 11-year-old son and 13-year-old daughter, then killed herself. The mother died, but her children, partially paralyzed from the bullets, laid in their home for five days without food and water until help arrived. The children now face a long, uncertain struggle to regain the use of their limbs and a long road ahead before they recover from their ordeal.

The tragedy might have been averted if the mother had known about The Childhelp IOF Foresters Hotline (1-800-4-A-CHILD). The Hotline is the only North American, toll-free line which offers 24-hour crisis counseling and referrals to local agencies specializing in the prevention of child abuse.

Childhelp IOF Foresters Hotline counsels children, parents and adult survivors of abuse. Hotline counselors have a master's degree or doctorate in psychology or a related field. Counselors are available who speak English, Spanish and French.

A New Breakthrough In Hernia Repair

Hernia repair is no longer major surgery. Recent advances like the mesh technique have made it as simple as a one-day "walk-in, walk-out" procedure.

A new laparoscopic technique now available at The Hernia Center of Central Florida has simplified things even further. Because this procedure requires only small incisions, it lessens pain and further shortens recovery time.

The Hernia Center is operated by Surgical Associates, an established team of skilled surgeons who have practiced in Central Florida since 1973 and have performed literally thousands of hernia operations.

If you're suffering from a new or recurrent hernia, we can help. For an appointment, call:
