Juveniles go before grand jury

SANFORD — The November shooting death of Mark Edward Marsh will come before a Seminole County grand jury today.

Two youths, ages 13 and 15, have been held at the Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center at Five Points since their arrest last week. Police are seeking a third suspect in Edward's murder. Police have recommended the youths be tried as adults, but have not released their names pending a determination by a grand jury to accept their recommendation.

The grand jury can either declare there is insufficient evidence to try them, or declare there is enough evidence to try them as adults or juveniles.

Sanford police believe the 13-year-old shot and killed Marsh, 30, during a struggle in the early morning hours of Nov. 7. Police believe the three suspects sought to rob Marsh, who recently moved here, but he resisted. Police originally believed robbery was not the motive because they found his wallet and other valuables with his body by Park Avenue.

Police now believe after the shotgun discharged, the three suspects fled.

Festival meeting planned

SANFORD — The St. Lucia Festival meeting will be held this Wednesday, at 5:15 p.m., at the First Street Gallery. An advance report indicated the meeting was scheduled for Tuesday.

Committee chairpersons from "Light Up Sanford," "Miss St. Lucia Pageant," and the Christmas Parade will begin to formulate plans for this year's event which will include all three organizations.

Kay Bartholomew, of the St. Lucia Festival, urged any persons who may have some ideas for the event, to attend the meeting and help give input into the annual event, held in downtown Sanford each December.

The meeting is scheduled for 5:15 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 10, at the First Street Gallery, 203 E. First Street in downtown Sanford. For information, phone 323-9178.

Awards night date changed

The Greater Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce has changed the date for the annual "Awards and Appreciation" Banquet. Originally scheduled for tonight, the event will be held on Wednesday, March 3, beginning at 7 p.m., at Doro's International Restaurant, 951 Greenwood Blvd., Lake Mary. Tickets are $35 per person. Advance reservations are requested by phoning 333-4748.

Brazilian satellite in orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL — A Pegasus rocket launched from a B-52 bomber flying eight miles above the Atlantic Ocean today lofted a Brazilian environmental satellite into orbit.

The Pegasus was dropped off the wing of NASA's modified B-52. After five seconds of free fall, the rocket motors were fired one by one and propelled the satellite into an orbit about 470 miles high.

The $20 million satellite is designed to monitor the Amazon River and surrounding rain forests. It was built by Brazil's space agency.

Former astronaut C. Gordon Fullerton took off in the B-52 at 8:17 a.m. from the shuttle landing strip at Kennedy Space Center.

Citizens blast drugs

Mayor dares residents to offer solution

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Citizens are demanding a crackdown by the city on drug sales. Mayor Bettye Smith responded by daring the citizens to come up with a solution to the problem.

A number of them spoke strongly about the problem at last night's Sanford City Commission meeting. The comments mostly aimed at problems seen in the east side of the city, came during the citizen participation period at the conclusion of the regular agenda.

"I'm a taxpayer of this city," said Leon Brooks. "and I don't feel I'm getting my money's worth of protection from drug sales."

He explained, "I constantly see drug sales, right in broad daylight, especially in the area near Hamilton Elementary School and nothing is being done about it."

Mildred Godfrey commented, "I've called the police a number of times to report drug problems, but nothing is ever done. These are whites and blacks. They shout out profanities, sell drugs right in front of the kids, and no one tries to stop them."

"Please help us do something about this problem," she asked.

Eliza Richardson complained that drug sales have taken place at times right in her own driveway. "I have also called numerous times and no one does anything," she said. "I thought we paid taxes for our protection."

Bernard Mitchell asked the commissioners, "Are you really concerned about our neighborhoods?" He continued, "I've been here before the commission a number of times before asking for help, but nothing has been done."

Mitchell also complained that the response time by police was too long.

Commissioner Whitey Eckstein responded, "Mr. Mitchell, the next time you call the police, write down the time, and write down when they responded. Then let us know. If it's a delay, I'll be asking why."

Commissioner Bob Thomas agreed with the speakers. "My church is near the area you are talking about, and I agree with what has been said. Attitudes by the drug dealers are terrible, and this is painful to me." He added, "And when the police do respond, people tell me they act like pussycats."

Commissioner Lon Howell asked Acting Police Chief Ralph Russell if money from a government grant had been received. The money is to be used to hire four SANFORD — One effort to organize a citizens group to seek ways to combat drug sales and other crime is dragging. Hardly anyone wants to get involved.

The effort is being undertaken by Martha Yancey, public affairs chairman for the Woman's Club of Sanford. "We are trying to contact people and get some type of organization together to look into this problem," she said.

Teacher arrested on sex charges

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — Sanford police arrested Lakeview Middle School teacher, Stephen Paterson, this morning. Paterson, 37, has been charged with lewd and lascivious acts on a child under 16, and having a sexual act with a child under 16 in his custodial authority.

Sanford police Lt. Dennis Whitmire made the announcement this morning at the Sanford Police station where Paterson was being booked. "We have at least three victims who we believe may have also been involved in these incidents," he said. "They are all juveniles but will probably be charged with similar counts, and there may be four or five additional arrests before this is over."

Paterson, a band teacher, had been suspended in February, 1991 for playing recordings of the Cheech and Chong comedy duo for students. The School Board found the recordings objectionable because they contained racial slurs and obscenities.

"This alleged sexual activity between Paterson and the students probably happened about that same time," Whitmire said. "We believe at least one of the instances may have happened while he

Income status increases in county during 1980s

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Although the income status of Seminole County residents improved during the 1980s, county officials say their work isn't done.

According to a new report released by the U.S. Bureau of the Census, 7.2 percent of the 287,521 people living in the county in 1990 were earning less than the local poverty level. In 1980, 9.2 percent of the 179,752 people living here then were bringing home less than federally-established poverty wages.

The 1990 poverty level was $6,310 for individuals and $12,674 for a family of four.

The number of individuals and families living below poverty levels actually increased during SANFORD — Against all odds, five young men of the West Sanford Boys and Girls Club Senior Basketball League brought home the club's first tournament trophy this past weekend.

With Don Miller as their coach and Craig Martin, a member of the club, as his assistant, Hubert Rivers, Willie Williams, Richard Reddick, Vincent Butler and Richard Harrell, all age 15, teamed up to take on 16 other Boys and Girls Clubs from Gainesville, Palmetto, Sarasota, Ocala and surrounding counties in the Bradenton Invitational, held at the Bradenton Boys and Girls Club.

"The team went into the tournament short team members," said Miller, director of the three Seminole County clubs. "They knew they would each have to play every game all the way through without rotations. They did an outstanding job."

Juvenile justice needs expansion

TALLAHASSEE — There are many good juvenile justice programs across Florida, Attorney General Bob Butterworth told lawmakers.

The key is to expand them and to get police officers, principals and social workers from the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services talking with each other about the teens they're all dealing with, he said while addressing a joint meeting Monday of the House committees on Criminal Justice and Education.

"When a kid ... starts to go bad, we have to get to that kid immediately," Butterworth said. "And it really — from our standpoint — doesn't make any difference if it's HRS or it's education or it's law enforcement."

Education Commissioner Betty Castor echoed Butterworth's comments about sharing information. Only in exceptional cases today do schools let police departments or sheriff's offices know when students are suspended or expelled, she said.

Cancer Society says to up smoke taxes

TALLAHASSEE — Florida should raise its tax on cigarettes from 34 cents a pack to $1, a coalition of health organizations said, saying the plan would raise $1 billion and cut smoking.

"The cigarette excise tax is the most popular tax we could impose," Eric Tilton, with the American Cancer Society, said Monday. "And we like to think of it not as a tax but as a user-fee."

The American Cancer Society joined with the American Heart Association and the American Lung Association to form the Florida Coalition on Smoking Or Health.

The coalition said a survey of 604 registered voters — 23 percent of them smokers — found that three-quarters supported raising the tax on cigarettes and that 60 percent supported raising it to $1. The survey had a margin of error of 4 percent.

"We firmly believe it's the right tax at the right time," said Beth Labasky of the American Lung Association.

The coalition is not advocating a specific use for the approximately $1 billion that would be raised, she said.

Rep. Robert Casey, R-Gainesville, said he was sponsoring the legislation because during 25 years as a family physician he's seen firsthand the illness and death caused by smoking.

Sen. Gary Stiegel, R-Longwood, has sponsored a bill (SB 528) that would increase the tax by 25 cents and spend half of the $330 million raised on prison beds and half on health care.

Four in 10 babies born on Medicaid

TALLAHASSEE — Four of every 10 babies born in Florida last year were to mothers on Medicaid, the joint federal-state program for welfare recipients.

The number has more than tripled in the past six years.

Some of the increase can be attributed to a deliberate policy adopted with Gov. Lawton Chiles' push to get health care to more pregnant women.

"With Healthy Start, we increased access to prenatal care — that's a cost saving of at least $3 on every dollar," he said Monday.

But the president of the Florida Chapter of the American Academy of Obstetrics said he was surprised by the statistic. "Remembered by the figures," said Dr. David Cimino. "I had no idea it was this high."

And Jack Levine, executive director of the Florida Center for Children & Youth, said the number shows that there are two Floridas.

"There is the Florida that is 18th-ranked in the nation in per-capita income," he said. "And there is the other Florida, which is the impoverished ... young families."

Prenatal and childbirth expenses under Medicaid this year could hit $289 million, according to Gary Crayton, chief of Medicaid analysis for the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

The state pays 45 percent of the cost. The U.S. government pays the rest.

Couple claims part of Lotto jackpot

TALLAHASSEE — A share of the $6.02 million Lotto grand prize won Jan. 18 went to a Miami couple.

Sholem and Cheyana Grubin claimed their $2,006 million on Monday. It will be paid in 20 annual installments of $100,333.34.

The auto mechanic and his wife won with the numbers 02-12-17-21-36-48.

Two other winning tickets, purchased in Venice and Miami, have not yet been turned in for payment.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Is new law school worth the cost?

By Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — Supporters of a third Florida public law school, likely to face opposition because of its cost, say it would increase opportunities for minorities and working people who want to become lawyers.

The $34 million estimated price tag to start a new school comes during a budget crunch that has hit education hard.

Members of the Legislative Black Caucus plan to introduce a bill this week to have Florida A&M in Tallahassee run the law school, to be based in an urban area. Florida International University in Miami, the University of South Florida in Tampa and the University of Central Florida in Orlando would like to host it.

But the unanswered question is how to fund it. In the last three years, public universities saw their budgets cut by $160 million, and face a proposed $23 million cut now.

Mike Robinson, who heads Broward County's association of black lawyers, said Florida needs an urban public law school, an idea that has been raised in past years.

"It will allow more opportunities not only for minorities but for working students," Robinson said.

Florida ranks third nationally in ratio of lawyers to population, according to the American Bar Association. The state has nearly 45,000 lawyers, or one for every 288 residents. Nationally, there is one lawyer for every 340 residents.

But minorities are under-represented in the field. Blacks make up 13.8 percent of the state's population, but 14 percent of lawyers, a 1991 study for the Florida Supreme Court said. Hispanics comprise 12.2 percent of the population but 5 percent of the lawyers.

Supporters of a third public law school say it would cater to working professionals and minorities by offering part-time and night classes. Many in those groups cannot afford tuition at private law schools or attend public ones in Tallahassee and Gainesville.

FAMU is the state's only historically black public university. It ran a black law school before lawmakers desegregated it and relocated it to Florida State University in 1969.

"I believe FAMU, under the leadership of Dr. (Frederick) Humphries, has proven it can bring in top-flight minority students," said Rep. Douglas Jamerson, D-St. Petersburg, who chairs the House education committee. "Look how well its doctoral pharmacy program is doing. It can do the same for minorities who want to enter law school."

The $34 million price tag for a new school would cover only the start-up costs for construction, a 150,000-volume library and professors' salaries to instruct 600 students. Educators estimate it would cost $8 million annually.

Officials at the state's four private law schools say there is a cheaper alternative. They want the state to subsidize their tuitions so more minorities can attend their law schools.

True love

At the Sanford Public Library, recently, youngsters had the opportunity to create symbols of their love by making valentines of paper, glitter and brightly colored stickers. The library wanted to give little ones the chance to show their love to friends and family in a creative way. Gabrielle Khachikian, 3, of Winter Springs, above, was very intent on making the perfect Valentine with multi-colored stickers. Hurricane still halting recycling

By Associated Press

MIAMI — The city recycling program suspended after Hurricane Andrew hasn't been resumed — bad news for some Miamians who have been painstakingly doing their part for the environment.

For months, the cleaned bottles, rinsed cans and bundled newspapers some residents separated from their trash haven't been recycled.

"It's a travesty," said resident Humberto Perez. "We are doing a lot of work and they don't even tell us that it's for nothing. It's bad."

Miami is the only community in Dade that doesn't have a recycling program, said Debbie Higer, the county's recycling coordinator. The other programs resumed in the weeks after the Aug. 24 hurricane.

Miami, which was among the first communities in South Florida to start recycling three years ago this month, reached about half the city's 60,000 homes after Andrew, the city issued no press releases announcing suspension of recycling, said spokeswoman Elizabeth Babun. There was some public discussion at City Commission meetings televised on cable systems.

City commissioners, who have twice delayed a decision on whether to hand over curbside recycling to a private company, are expected to take the matter up again Tuesday.

City leaders cite several reasons for canceling recycling. Right after the hurricane, they were overwhelmed by debris on the street and didn't have enough manpower.

The 14 city workers assigned to the program were transferred to emergency hurricane and trash pickup duty.

The city has recycled large quantities of hurricane debris, said Ron Williams, assistant city manager in charge of solid waste.

POLICE

Three arrested in car chase

Sheriff's deputies arrested three persons Sunday, following a high speed chase. Officers reported seeing a car traveling east on S.R. 46, believed to have a stolen tag. When they began to pursue the vehicle, they said the car sped up, and at one point was clocked at speeds of 110 miles per hour. The vehicle was finally stopped near Cameron Wright Park, on S.R. 46. The driver of the vehicle, identified as a juvenile, was charged with reckless driving and confined at the juvenile detention center. One passenger, Joseph Watkins Jr., 21, 2271 Broadway, was charged with possession of crack cocaine. Another man in the vehicle, Anthony Regade Neal, 2311 Dollar Way, was charged with theft, in connection with the license tag on the vehicle, which had been reported stolen.

Attempted burglary charged

Sanford police arrested Brian Keith Curry, 20, of 401 W. Seminole Blvd. on Sunday. Police were called to investigate a possible burglary at Sallpoint Apartments on Sunday. Officers said when they arrived, they found Curry, who answered a description given by the caller, sitting on a porch. They said the screen on the porch had been removed. Curry was charged with attempted burglary and loitering and prowling.

Traffic stop brings arrest

Sanford police arrested David Michael Simmons, 21, 2519 Poinsetta Ave., Sanford, following a traffic stop Sunday at 25th Place and Willow Ave. Simmons was charged with reckless driving, possession of cannabis under 20 grams, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Daytona woman arrested

Nancy Mae Robinson, 34, of Daytona Beach, was arrested by Lake Mary police Sunday. Officers said they saw her leaving a shopping center, and followed her to Market Square in Heathrow, where she was stopped. She was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, possession of less than 20 grams of cannabis, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Man charged with retail theft

Sanford police arrested Willie Long, 34, of 701 Locust Ave., on Saturday. Officers said they located him at a store in the 700 block of French Avenue, attempting to place undisclosed merchandise under his jacket. Long was charged with retail theft.

Warrants served

• Sheriff's deputies arrested Margurite Ranson Johnson, 40, 1204 Cedar Creek Circle Sanford, on Sunday. She was wanted on a warrant for obtaining property with a worthless check.
 • William Jefferson Baggs, 28, 1680 Sipes Ave., was arrested by deputies at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Saturday. He was wanted on a warrant for failure to appear on a charge of driving with a suspended license.

Domestic violence cases

Richard Allen Edwards, 25, 1106 Scott Avenue, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence Sunday following a dispute with his wife. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.
 • Thomas Stanley Ogleby, Jr., 23, 2554 S. Orange Avenue, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence Saturday following an altercation with a female. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.

Incidents reported to the sheriff

• A residential burglary was reported in the 2000 block of McCarthy Avenue, Sanford, during the weekend. The home owner reported six bath towels, 10 cans of vegetables, and frozen meat were missing from the kitchen area.
 • A car phone valued at $400 was reportedly stolen from a vehicle parked on Harvest Oak Court, Remington Oaks, on Sunday.
 • A burglary was reported Sunday at Clearwater Missionary Baptist Church, 2204 Southwest Road on Sunday. Deputies said a soda machine was broken open, and a $600 microwave oven was removed from the kitchen.
 • A burglary was reported at Korean Seventh Day Adventist Church, 2735 Sand Lake Road, Longwood, over the weekend. Deputies said $1,950 in lawn equipment was reportedly taken from a storage shed near the church.

Incidents reported to police

• A brown 1983 Jaguar, with license number JSP-03F, was reportedly stolen from an apartment complex in the 1400 block of Rosecliff Circle on Saturday. The vehicle is owned by a Merritt Island man.
 • Two men riding a bike reportedly robbed a man in his car near a convenience store in the 1800 block of W. First Street Sunday. The victim reported one of the men had a 38 caliber revolver. He told officers the men took his wallet with $24 in cash and a number of credit cards, then fled on their bikes.
 • A gun cabinet was reportedly broken open in an apartment in the 400 block of S. Mellonville Avenue Saturday. Nothing was immediately reported as missing.
 • $450 in food stamps were reportedly stolen from the kitchen of a home on Lake Monroe Terrace last Thursday.
 • A Stereo and turntable were reportedly stolen Saturday from a home in the 1700 block of W. 13th Street. Police said the home's owner was in the hospital at the time of the theft.
 • A CD player, amplifier and speaker were reportedly stolen from a vehicle parked in a parking lot in the 1200 block of Cornwall Road between Feb. 1 and Feb. 5. The incident was reported Friday.
 • A tool box and tools valued at $600 were reportedly stolen Friday from a residence in the 2500 block of Poinsetta Avenue in Sanford.

Arrest made in teen abductions

By Associated Press

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Police refused Monday to speculate on the fate of two 13-year-old Talladega cousins despite the arrest in Florida of a man accused of abducting them.
 "We have no hard information on where the girls are," Chief Mike Hamlin said after FBI agents arrested Fredrick Huntley, 31, Talladega, late Saturday at a bus terminal in Orlando.

Agents learned that Huntley had been in the West Palm Beach, Fla., area and was traveling to Chicago by bus. He was apprehended when the bus made a scheduled stop in Orlando and was charged with second-degree kidnapping and unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Belinda Denise McElroy and Aderian Von Chae Robinson disappeared early on the morning of Jan. 31 from the home where they both live. Huntley previously had dated Angela Robinson, Miss Robinson's aunt.
 "I'm grateful that he's been caught, but I don't feel any better," said Miss Robinson's mother, Janice Norwood. "I feel just as depressed and helpless as ever."

Talladega investigators went to Orlando on Sunday to question Huntley, Hamlin said.

"We hope that someone will give police some information on the young ladies," Talladega Mayor Larry Barton said. "The unknown is worse than getting bad news."

"Naturally," Hamlin said, "our hopes are that we will find the girls safe, but speculating about their whereabouts or safety would be inappropriate at this time."

Huntley was unarmed and offered no resistance when arrested, said Frank Crider, an FBI spokesman.

The girls were reported missing about 2 a.m. when their mothers returned home and found evidence the house had been broken into.

Police said Huntley disappeared the same night.

Huntley served two years in prison on a 1986 child-abuse charge in connection with the starvation death of his infant son.

Sheriff Dyess faces prison on cocaine charges

By Associated Press

FORT MYERS — Former Hendry County Sheriff Earl Sermon Dyess Jr. faces 10 years to life in prison after pleading guilty to four counts of trafficking in cocaine, prosecutors say.

Dyess, who was arrested on his last day in office last month, also could be fined up to $4 million.

"Corruption inside a law enforcement office strikes at the very heart of the criminal justice system," U.S. Attorney Robert Genzman said in a statement announcing the pleas Monday.

At his hearing in federal court in Fort Myers, Dyess was much more subdued than at earlier hearings, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Doug Molloy.

He said Dyess was not offered any deals for his plea and will be sentenced April 16.

"The case was extremely strong against him," Molloy said. "It was a massive investigation, and it's not over yet."

The former lawman will help federal officials with the probe, said his lawyer, Ralph Elver.

Dyess, 51, was charged with importing cocaine in 1988 and conspiring to import the drug in 1979. Elver described him as "the most remorseful client I ever had."

"Sermon's not a hardened criminal," the lawyer said. "He was a guy who made a mistake early on, and you don't get out of it after that. Well, you can, but it's very difficult and Sermon wasn't able to."

By pleading guilty, Dyess gives up his claim to any property that the government can prove came from drug money — potentially including his home, rental properties, boat, jewelry and Jeep.

Also named in the January indictment was Ismael Meza Jr., 33, who owned the Pioneer Horse Farm in Clewiston; and Raul Roman "Palma" Fernandez, who is awaiting trial in Fort Myers on related 1992 charges, prosecutors said.

Before the indictment, Dyess publicly denied rumors that he had anything to do with Jorge Valdes, who ran another Clewiston horse farm called Rancho Santa Barbara.

Court documents in the arrest and conviction of Valdes on drug charges filed in Mobile, Ala., describe a scheme in which Valdes and Meza sold quarterhorses to each other at artificial prices to launder proceeds from arranging drug transactions in South Florida.

Valdes is serving three 10-year sentences at a federal prison in Georgia. The assets of the two stables were sold at auction.

Prosecutors and defense attorneys have never described how Dyess was involved with Valdes and Rancho Santa Barbara other than to confirm that the two cases were connected.

Thomas Vaughan, a former Dyess deputy who succeeded him in office, said it was common knowledge that Dyess afforded special treatment to friends.

Inmate talks of slayings

By Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — The man accused in the slayings of five college students here has been talking a lot with a friend, who has in turn been talking a lot with investigators, a newspaper reported today.

Danny Harold Rolling, who is awaiting trial in the 1990 murders, first met convicted killer Bobby Lewis last summer when Rolling came to Florida State Prison near Starke to serve five life terms for a series of robberies. Lewis has spent the last two weeks telling investigators about their extended conversations, a third inmate told The Gainesville Sun.

"Lewis, for the past two weeks, has been off the wing, taken to the front," said James H. Williams, 32, a convicted robber who lives in the prison's protective-management wing with Rolling, Lewis and about 80 others.

"They take him off every night, at least once a day during the day and he's talking to cops from all over the country...Everybody knows what he's doing."

Also, sources close to the investigation told The Sun Lewis had provided tips about a key piece of evidence, possibly the murder weapon.

Following them up, investigators searched a tract of land owned by the University of Florida and situated less than a mile from the three murder sites. It was not known whether anything useful was turned up, the paper reported.

Williams said Lewis told him he had talked to agents of the FBI and Florida Department of Law Enforcement, as well as police in Louisiana, Alabama and Georgia as part of a deal to get Lewis out of prison. He is serving a life sentence.

Department of Corrections officials would not confirm Monday that Lewis has met with law-enforcement officials. The newspaper could not reach Prison Superintendent Everitt Perrin for comment.

Will Irby, a spokesman for the State Attorney's Office, declined Monday to comment about Lewis or about the weekend search for evidence. Rolling's lawyer, public defender Rick Parker, also wouldn't comment.

Also Monday, a freelance journalist said she has become Rolling's exclusive spokesperson and agent for his writings, artwork and songs.

Sondra London of Atlanta announced that Rolling, whom she met last Friday, has agreed to talk to prosecutors about the case in exchange for frequent, supervised visits with her at the prison.

Irby said the State Attorney's Office has no agreement with London.

"It sounds like she might be trying to take advantage of his notoriety to get publicity for publication of some of his personal works," Rolling's lawyer Parker said.

'Chalk Talk' opens avenues

School board vice chairman Sandy Robinson has hit on a key to communicating with her constituents with her "Chalk Talks" that are held periodically throughout the school year.

During these informal meetings, Robinson and the public have the opportunity to talk candidly about their concerns and wants for the Seminole County public schools.

The primary benefits of these talks is that the lines of communication are kept open between the school board and the public it serves.

Some people may be intimidated by the formal structure followed at school board meetings and hesitate to stand up in that forum and express their concerns. Or, they may feel that their questions are not important enough for those meetings.

The "Chalk Talks" can open additional avenues for discussion and provide a more relaxed access to a school board member.

Robinson is also able to explain some of the actions and positions taken by the school board in a less hostile environment.

Stepping away from the boardroom can allow board members and the public alike the opportunity to see things from a different perspective.

Perhaps each school board member should hold "Chalk Talks" so that each might get a clearer picture of how the public really feels.

Suspended officer

I have lived in Sanford all my life and as I grow into middle age, I've found that I've become more interested in the goings-on of Sanford's government and police department.

On Thursday night, Jan. 28, I found that because of certain representatives of our city government, namely those on the Civil Service Board, brought a little more shame and disgrace to the city and citizens of my hometown.

The incident that I'm referring to is the decision as to whether to terminate Officer Terry Mullins for cursing in public. Fortunately, they did one thing right, and that was to reinstate him to his position as a police officer. What was an unjust and disgraceful performance was to suspend Officer Mullins for 60 days without pay.

Now I was a police officer once, my wife is a police officer, my uncle is a deputy, and I have many friends in law enforcement. To my knowledge most police officers as well as most people can cuss a blue streak when the circumstances are right. It's hard to believe that these supposedly intelligent people on this board would even consider proceeding against Officer Mullins on such a trivial matter.

The Civil Service Board's time would be better spent following up the more serious infractions of city policy, rather than playing trivial pursuit. It shows the board's serious lack of continuity of policy.

Terry's a good officer, as testified by his previous award citations. He knows his job well. Terry's problem is that when he believes in something, he speaks his mind regardless of those present.

I do know that under the previous chief's leadership the department went to the dogs. So much for a well-educated and young chief.

Captain Russell and Lt. Bishop both have the command experience that is necessary, and more importantly, they have what's known as "the experience." Sanford's police department cannot stand another young inexperienced chief. Sanford needs a chief that isn't going to show favoritism to certain officers. That's why it's important for a chief to stay somewhat aloof from those under his command. Right now morale is very low, officers are discontent and can't seem to trust their fellow officers.

In closing, I'd like to express to Terry Mullins my congratulations on retaining his job, and my apology for the outrageous conduct of the Civil Service Board for handing down such a draconian punishment.

Abused mates don't have right to kill

Brenda Clubine was convicted 10 years ago of killing her husband by cracking his skull with an empty wine bottle. She says she was a victim of spousal abuse.

While serving a sentence of 15 years to life at the California Institute for Women, the former nurse founded Convicted Women Against Abuse, a support group of 21 inmates who similarly claim killing abusive mates. The women convicts have petitioned Gov. Pete Wilson for mass clemency.

California is one of more than 20 states in which battered women's advocates are seeking blanket absolution for convicted women. While Wilson is resolved to make clemency decisions on a case-by-case basis, the politically charged movement resulted in 27 women being set free in Ohio two years ago, eight in Maryland last year and two in Missouri.

The nation's governors are being asked to grant mass clemencies to acknowledge the prevalence of domestic violence in American society. In fact, between 1985 and 1991, 28 percent of murdered women were the victims of present or former husbands or boyfriends, according to the FBI.

Such unsettling statistics prompted both the American Medical Association and the Surgeon

General last year to declare that violent men constitute a major threat to women's health.

Accepting that this is true, it nonetheless is troubling that women convicted of murder can finagle reprieves by simply claiming abuse at the hands of their dead mates. What desperate woman doing time for killing her man will not hide behind battered women's syndrome if she thinks it might enable her to beat the rap?

Indeed, one of the women granted clemency by Maryland Gov. William Donald Shafer boasted afterward about having gotten away with her crime. And a woman set free in 1989 by Washington Gov. Booth

Gardner (in an act of individual rather than mass clemency), was found to have hired a contract killer to fake a robbery at her home, while murdering her husband in the process.

Surely these women did not deserve to have their prison terms set aside. And surely some, if not many, of the women now serving life sentences for killing their mates rightfully deserve their punishments. By granting mass clemency, rather than weighing each individual case on its merits, governors make no distinction between women justly punished and those truly deserving of mercy.

Consider the case of Brenda Clubine, who hopes to capitalize on the national clemency movement, and who is fairly representative of the kind of women-killers who stand to be set free. Her crime appears to have been an act of pre-meditation.

She was separated from her husband. But she felt comfortable enough to meet him alone in a hotel room where he was staying. She claims he struck her several times before she finally grabbed the bottle and delivered the fatal blow. But the evidence suggests that she drugged her husband and killed him when he was most vulnerable.

Violent men constitute a major threat to women's health.

Giving a child a helping hand

While mourning the accidental death of a young boy shot by a classmate in an inner-city school, author Bebe Moore Campbell made so much sense I had to stop and reconsider her proposal: Surely something that simple and sensible, yet so filled with promise, can't be that easy. Her suggestion? That those of us with gifts to give, roles to model, love to share, become vitally involved with kids who need them in ways that can change their lives.

She made it clear that she didn't mean just going over to the school and delivering a nice sermon, but truly intertwining our lives with theirs: nurturing, advising, finding and extolling what is unique and wonderful about them. It's the stuff all kids need and deserve, but fewer and fewer of them get.

How do we reach kids - fatherless in some cases, kids with mothers who either don't care, can't care or are too overwhelmed to care - with the adults who can fill that killing void? Since it's not going to happen by itself, Campbell says schools have to draw the role models into schools and into young lives. And as I said, they can't just be assembly speakers. These children need adults who are willing to go through life with them one-on-one, in the kind of esteem-building relationship that says, "You are important to me, so important to me that no one else can fill your place in my life." It's something we all have to hear, and some of these children never hear it.

Try as I could, I couldn't find any holes in Campbell's idea. I've talked to too many men and women who have joined the national organization "Big Brothers/Big Sisters," which carefully screens adults and then matches them with kids who need another adult role model in their lives. These folks spend time each week with their little sisters or brothers doing whatever it is the child wants to do, as long as all the adults involved agree it's OK.

As part of my job, I've interviewed BB/BS staff and volunteers and produced a half-hour television program for the organization. I've heard the "big" rave about their "littles," and I've listened to very little boys on the "waiting list" talk about what they'd like to do if they had a big brother. One boy's testimony can still make me cry: He was going through the awkward stage so many of us go through, and would probably be the last kid picked if all the candidates were lined up. But oh, how he needed someone! Shyly showing his drawings and talking about his interests, our microphones barely picked up his halting words spoken with down-turned chin into his chest. Off-camera, his mother seemed almost frantic to find a man who could love her son, even for a short time each week.

In my personal life, I signed up to be a Big Sister seven years ago and went through the screening process. Just as I was about to be matched, I transferred jobs and sadly removed my name from the Big Sister list....

My little sister would love anyway. A year later the company I worked for enrolled in a plan whereby each employee was to have a student "pen pal" from one of the city's poorest schools. I received a call from a 6th-grade teacher who was matching his students with newspaper pen pals. He told me, "I have a kid who's really going through some challenges. I read your column every week and I think you'd be perfect for her...." To make a long story short, we graduated from being pen pals to going to movies, shopping and eating out together often. Six years and two cross-country moves later, we are still close. No one else can fill her place in my life, and I believe she knows it.

It's the stuff all kids need and deserve, but fewer and fewer of them get.

U.S. leaders rethink fuel options

The notion that we're all irretrievably stuck with a dependence on oil and coal is about to be challenged. That notion is ingrained so deeply in large measure because the past two administrations have insisted upon it so adamantly. The Clinton administration is taking office with some different ideas.

"We're very optimistic," says Mike German, senior vice president of the American Gas Association. "The administration seems to be committed to a tripartite policy of renewables, efficiency and natural gas. This is really the first time natural gas has been put into a national energy and environmental policy as an answer to the nation's problems."

The transition away from oil and coal will be neither easy nor fast. Coal fires most of our electric power plants. Oil, accounting for half our trade deficit and a huge chunk of our foreign policy, ultimately moves nearly everything from fork lifts to 747s. But the idea that we can change, that this situation is not some canon writ in stone, finally has White House advocates.

Because natural gas is part of the Clinton administration's triad of approaches to a new energy policy, it deserves attention.

Like coal and oil, natural gas is a fossil fuel. As such when burned, it produces the greenhouse gas carbon dioxide. A demagoguery of ignorance and extremism has tended recently to drown out the warning from the world's top climate scientists that greenhouse emissions can be expected to increase average global temperature by 4.5 degrees within about the next 50 years.

Some purists argue that because natural gas is a carbon-based fuel, it should be shunned as fervently as coal or oil.

That argument ignores the comparative advantage using natural gas has over coal and oil in reducing greenhouse emissions. For every unit of energy produced, natural gas generates only about half the carbon dioxide emitted from burning coal and about a third less than results from burning oil.

Natural gas is cleaner than coal or oil in other ways, too. For starters, it doesn't spill like oil and it can be recovered without strip mining. A power plant fired by natural gas does not produce any of the acid rain-causing sulfur emissions associated with coal. Burning natural gas does not produce particulates that can affect human health, either. The most advanced natural gas systems for generating electricity emit 85 percent fewer nitrous oxides, also a health threat, than the most advanced coal-fired plants, according to Christopher Flavin of the Worldwatch Institute, an environmental research organization.

Then there's the economic factor. We don't have to buy and import natural gas from the Middle East. The United States has about 60 years worth of natural gas recoverable reserves, at the current consumption rate.

While unconvincing to purists, these arguments have persuaded others, including apparently the Clinton administration, to view natural gas as a bridge fuel on the path toward widespread use of renewable energy sources.

As part of the transition, natural gas can substitute for coal and oil to generate electricity, to heat and cool homes and businesses, and to fuel vehicles.

There are cautions, however. The first is that considering natural gas as a bridge fuel means just that. Accelerated work has to go forward on renewables and efficiency so that the bridge gets us where we want to go. On another front, taking advantage of natural gas should not become license to pressure for renewed drilling in environmentally sensitive areas.

Finally, natural gas (or more precisely the methane which is its major constituent) is itself a powerful greenhouse gas. Methane, in fact, is 11 times more effective than carbon dioxide in directly trapping heat that adds to the greenhouse effect. Scientists estimate that of the 500 million metric tons of methane released globally into the atmosphere annually, 100 million metric tons leak from the natural gas production and distribution system. Leakage above about 6 percent cancels the comparative advantage natural gas has over coal or oil in terms of greenhouse gas emissions.

The U.S. natural gas industry and the Environmental Protection Agency have just begun a program to reduce system leakage in this country that is currently estimated at about 1 percent. The plan is to develop and use techniques that pay for themselves by the value of the gas they save.

Houston-based ENRON Corp. is already applying what it has learned as the nation's largest natural gas company in a contract to seal leakage in the Russian system where the problem is notorious. It makes sense for ENRON's bottom line, certainly for the Russians and, in the end, for all of us because it makes sense for the environment.

The transition away from oil and coal will be neither easy nor fast.

Endangered Species Act tested

By RITA BEANISH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt said today the conflict between loggers and environmentalists in the Northwest over the spotted owl "is going to be the test case" for the Clinton administration's enforcement of the Endangered Species Act.

"I feel confident we can set aside areas to protect not only the spotted owl and salmon runs and at the same time get the logging industry back on its feet," Babbitt said on NBC's "Today" show.

The survival of both the spotted owl and some species of salmon in the Northwest are dependent on enforcement of the federal species protection law. Loggers have complained that protecting the owl will cost them thousands of jobs.

Babbitt said this "crisis is going to be the test case for my department and this administration."

On Monday, Babbitt defended the Endangered Species Act, which his predecessor, Manuel Lujan and the Bush administration, had argued should be "changed to" better take into account the protection of economic concerns.

In a speech to the American Mining Congress, Babbitt called the species law "soundly premised" and that it was needed to "maintain the biodiversity that supports the life systems of the planet, the life systems of the water and the land resources and productivity of this country."

Meanwhile, Babbitt said during his interview today that he welcomed the creation, announced by President Clinton on Monday, of an Office of Environmental Policy within the White House.

He said the change will help the administration "anticipate environmental problems" and plan ahead to deal with them "so you won't have a train wreck."

Clinton promised Monday to give the new office, which will replace the Council on Environmental Quality, a coordinating voice on environmental issues across the board, "changing the way government works."

"After years of waiting for scraps, environmental issues finally have a seat at the table," said Frances Beinecke of the Natural Resources Defense Council.

In announcing the restructuring, Clinton said he will ask Congress to abolish the Council on Environmental Quality, created by legislation 24 years ago. He also renewed his pledge to press Congress to make the Environmental Protection Agency a Cabinet department.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., chairman of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, said he wanted to study Clinton's proposal and see how the CEQ's functions would be handled by the new office.

While environmental leaders, many of whom were called to the White House on Sunday and informed of the changes, were laudatory, some sounded a cautionary note.

Rodger Schlickelsen, president of the Defenders of Wildlife, said he welcomed the change so long as CEQ's responsibilities, including oversight of government environmental impact statements, are fulfilled. The White House did not say how that function would be handled.

"For too long, the CEQ has been like a distant cousin relegated to the backwaters of policy-making, but now the Clinton administration has signaled that the environment is part of the family and should come home," said Schlickelsen.

Mike Deland, who was CEQ chairman in the Bush administration, derided the move as bad news for the environment.

Housing

since early January.

During last night's commission workshop presentation, City Planner Jay Marder explained the latest proposal which was fine-tuned from previous ordinance presentations. "We have narrowed down the original proposal to include only transient rental housing," he said, "rather than focus on all rental housing."

Marder explained that the ordinance would not involve units where leases of at least six months were granted.

"All you are doing is causing people to be illegal," said Commissioner Lon Howell. "Someone comes in, the owner has them sign a lease for six months, and the people move out in a few weeks. In order to have this plan work," he added, "you are going to have to inspect all rental units, not just a few."

"We have looked at all aspects of this," Marder responded. "We looked at inspecting every unit every year, but the job would be simply too large, so we decided to concentrate strictly on the weekly rentals."

Howell suggested some stipulation be written into the ordinance that would allow the city to inspect any and all rental units, if they were suspected of falling into the transient rental classification.

Under Marder's latest proposal, owners of all transient rental housing must obtain an occupational license from the city. Minimum standards must then be followed regarding housing codes, fire safety codes, and other city requirements.

The units would also be made available for inspection to determine if the housing was in full compliance with all of the codes.

Mayor Bettye Smith questioned if allowing the city to inspect any rental unit, regardless of the classification, might be legal. She requested City Manager Bill Simmons ask City Attorney Bill Colbert to be on hand for the next commission workshop to discuss the legal ramifications of the matter.

By consensus vote, the proposed ordinance is to be discussed at length during the next workshop, which the Mayor has scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. on Feb. 22. "By starting that meeting early," she said, "we'll be able to devote as much time as necessary in order to get this matter resolved."

was on campus at the school."

Whitmire explained, "Paterson was recently suspended by the School Board when the Department of Education launched into an investigation of the case."

"The students with whom he was apparently involved back then probably didn't tell the truth during the 1991 investigation," he said, "because they were still having to face him in school activities."

He continued, "But now they are in different schools, and several have come forth to tell us what happened." Whitmire said there may be more who know of the incidents, "and we would like to hear from them if at all possible."

Paterson was booked at police headquarters this morning following his arrest, then was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

said, "but we just can't seem to get anyone interested."

"I even phoned the police department to ask what kind of crime fighting program they might have that we could get involved in," she said. "The man I talked with said they didn't have any such program."

"This is discouraging," Yancey commented. "People say they want to do something to fight drug abuse and crime, yet when the Woman's Club tries to get something organized, we get hardly any support."

"We need to tell the criminals that we don't want them, that they should get out of town," she said.

Yancey said she is not ready to give up. "This is my city," she said, "and if anyone else considers Sanford as their city, then we shouldn't give up." She urged people to contact her or the club and get involved. "We won't know if we can really do something unless we give it a try," she added.

Summer Food Service Program underused

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON — Poor children who get low-cost or free meals at school often have less to eat during the summer because a federal meals program is underused, an advocacy group says.

Launching a public education campaign to increase participation in the Summer Food Service Program for Children, the Food Research and Action Center said only 1.9 million children used it last year.

The summer program cost $207 million in 1992, according to the Department of Agriculture, which runs it.

More than 12 million poor children take part in the USDA's School Lunch Program, which receives more than $4 billion a year.

"When school closes for the summer, the cafeteria closes too," said Robert J. Ferah, executive director of the action center. "Meanwhile, the development of children does not take a vacation."

The group wants to raise participation by 500,000 children over the next few years. Children whose families earn 185 percent of the poverty level or less may take part, meaning a family of four can make up to $25,808 a year and qualify.

"This is a good program," said Phil Bhanholzer, a spokesman for USDA's Food and Nutrition Service. "We think more communities ought to use it."

The enrollment formulas also keep out too many children, the group says.

Sponsors can include schools, units of government from the state on down, residential camps and private nonprofit organizations. Ideally, the programs would be coordinated with summer recreation programs, said Mike Haga, a field organizer for the center.

the 1980s, but not at the same 60 percent overall population increase rate. In 1990, there were 16,408 people and 3,479 families living in poverty. In 1990, there were 20,513 people and 4,137 families living in poverty.

"I think we're doing a pretty good job," said Bob Sturm, chairman of the county commission. "But I think it has a lot to do with the economy itself. That has improved and we followed right along with it."

Sturm said the county's efforts to attract more jobs here should pay off with higher wages. The county economic development task force reported last year that much of the county's job base is comprised of service-oriented jobs vulnerable to economic downturns. The task force is working to find ways to attract more economically-stable jobs here.

Housing may be a significant reason for the poverty downturn, said Buddy Balagia, county community development officer. "More rich folks moved in than poor folks," said Balagia.

place trophy, they were literally just one point away from the championship with seconds left in the fifth and last game on Saturday, but it just wasn't meant to be.

"The first game we played and won," according to Vincent Butler. "It was a confidence builder for the guys."

"The second win reinforced that until we lost the third, which was a team we had already beat," according to Butler. "In the fourth game we played that team again and won, that moved us into the championship playoff."

"Overall we did pretty good," he said. "Like I was telling Mr. Miller, it doesn't get much better than this."

"Most of these young men haven't played at this level before," he said. "I was very pleased to see them work together and succeed in the way they did."

The team, which earned the nickname "Iron 5" from the referees of the tournament because of their stamina, dedicated the victory to Spanky Thomas, a former director of the center killed in an automobile accident in 1990.

"The team took their good luck ball (a basketball in the trophy case that belonged to Spanky) to the tournament with them," said Lillian Morris, program director for the club. "I think he was there with the guys giving them the strength."

"I'm just grateful for the opportunity to continue what Spanky started," Miller said. "And also the opportunity to work with these kids — it's like looking in the mirror at my past."

The Seminole County Boys and Girls Clubs, including West Sanford, Midway and East Altamonte, boast a membership of 600 youths ages 6-18.

The club offers academic tutorials, a computer lab, drug and family counseling and recreational activities for disadvantaged youths.

additional police officers especially for the drug problem areas.

"We received the money about two weeks ago," Russell responded. "And we'll be adding to the force in a short period of time."

"I just want to comment," he continued, "we have increased our arrests on the east side of the city, where you have been talking about, and we expect to close down one of the area's major drug operations in the near future, so we are doing something and our efforts are ongoing."

Mayor Bettye Smith commented about a recent conference on street crime she had attended in St. Petersburg. "Things are going to get worse," she said. "They told us that by October of this year, the prison system will be at a gridlock and where are we going to put drug dealers?" She continued, "But there is simply not enough money to pay for enough police to stop all of this."

Smith challenged the people. "If any one of you has a solution that we as a commission can do, that we are not already doing, tell us. Don't accuse us of not caring. We have to work together or this won't get done."

Citizen comments continued with Pat Mitchell. "Several beer and wine businesses have opened recently in my neighborhood," she said. "Maybe one way to cut down on these drug sales and street problems is to prevent places like these from opening."

Dorothy Louise Gibson told of problems near her home. "Both white and black drug dealers have just taken over my whole neighborhood," she said. "Their cars are loud and disturbing the people all night. And nobody has a name, they just call each other the same thing. They don't respect nobody. They bring noise, loud cars, and even shoot their guns."

Russell commented, "I know the neighborhood you are talking about, but the owner of a business there where the people seem to gather, has told us he doesn't want the police to enforce the loitering law there, so there is nothing we can do."

The last citizen comment came from Linda Williams, who arrived late in the meeting. "Excuse me for being delayed," she said, "but my son was just accosted on the corner you are talking about. A gold chain was pulled from around his neck."

She added, "This just happened, so we haven't even reported it yet, but it goes to show you that we need more protection on the streets. People who apparently don't have much are constantly trying to take things away from anyone who seems to have something, and that isn't the way people should live."

Mayor Smith reiterated an earlier statement, "I say again. If anyone has a suggestion on how to help us combat this problem, let us know. I dare you."

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Lenders make refunds to 700,000

ALBANY, N.Y. — About 700,000 people in 26 states will get refunds from one of the nation's largest mortgage lenders under a $150 million settlement of allegations it put too much money into mortgage escrow accounts.

The settlement was reached with Fleet Mortgage Corp. and Fleet Real Estate Funding Corp., subsidiaries of Fleet Financial Group of Providence, R.I.

They were accused in a lawsuit of putting more money than allowed into escrow accounts and then pocketing the interest. Lender keeps such accounts to pay homeowners' property tax bills and insurance premiums as they come due.

Fleet settled without admitting any wrongdoing.

The refunds will average $150.

The states in the settlement announced Monday were: Alabama; Arizona; Arkansas; California; Connecticut; Delaware; Florida; Idaho; Illinois; Iowa; Maine; Maryland; Massachusetts; Minnesota; Nevada; New Jersey; New York; New Mexico; North Carolina; Oregon; Pennsylvania; Tennessee; Texas; Vermont; Washington and Wisconsin.

A year ago GMAC Mortgage Corp. reached a similar agreement in 11 states, paying about $100 million in refunds.

Youths allegedly attacked at home

GERING, Neb. — Worried that locked doors aren't protection enough, some children have been sleeping in their parents' beds, and even in closets, since two alleged attacks on youths at home.

"I think the citizenry is pretty jumpy and spooked about the whole thing," Mayor Bob Unzicker said Monday.

A 17-year-old reported that a man in a ski mask ran into her garage and tried to assault her Saturday as she got out of her car, Police Chief Mel Griggs said. The girl honked the horn and the man fled, Griggs said.

On Jan. 27, a 10-year-old told police a man in a ski mask pulled her from her bedroom and fondled her outside while the rest of her family slept.

Police said they have no suspects.

Painting offends Jews, blacks

NEW YORK — A painting on the cover of The New Yorker of a black woman and a Hasidic Jew kissing offended blacks and Jews alike.

The artist, Pulitzer Prize winner Art Spiegelman, and editor Tina Brown said the Valentine's Day cover on newstands Monday advocates love instead of conflict. Blacks and Hasidic Jews in Brooklyn's Crown Heights neighborhood have been at each other's throats in the past few years.

But the Rev. Herbert Daughtry, a black activist, said of the cover: "I think that instead of healing anything, there will be anger emanating because of this."

And Rabbi Joseph Spielman, chairman of the Crown Heights Jewish Community Council, said, "Rather than healing, this just makes everything ludicrous." He noted that Hasidic Jews may not even show public affection toward their wives.

Spiegelman, who won a Pulitzer last year for "Maus: A Survivor's Tale," a two-volume comic book about the Holocaust, acknowledged that his image is "knowingly naive."

"But once a year, perhaps, it's permissible, even if just for a moment, to close one's eyes, see beyond the tragic complexities of modern life, and imagine that it might really be true that 'All you need is love,'" he wrote in an accompanying commentary.

Nuclear plant crash probed

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Gov. Robert P. Casey has ordered an investigation of an incident in which a man crashed his station wagon through the gates of the Three Mile Island nuclear plant and hid in a building.

"How could the security system at TMI be breached by a young man in a station wagon acting alone?" the governor asked Monday. "To what level of danger did that expose our people?"

Casey ordered Pennsylvania's environmental resources secretary and lieutenant governor to investigate and make recommendations.

Pierce Nye, 31, was found Sunday in a building that houses electrical generating equipment. He never threatened the nuclear controls and refused to say why he entered the plant, officials said.

Nye was jailed on $250,000 bail on charges including risking a catastrophe and criminal trespass.

Robert Pollard of the Union of Concerned Scientists in Washington said a car loaded with dynamite could have caused a nuclear catastrophe. "These buildings are not designed to withstand a nearby explosion," he said.

Three Mile Island was the site of the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident in 1979.

Aspirin may reduce risk of heart attacks

DALLAS — The American Heart Association is more enthusiastic than ever about the use of aspirin to prevent heart attacks.

In the February issue of its journal Circulation, the association cited studies on the benefits of aspirin, which thins the blood and prevents clots.

The association cited a study that shows aspirin can reduce the risk of a first heart attack by up to 44 percent in healthy people.

And aspirin can reduce recurrences by 20 percent to 40 percent, said Dr. Valentin Fuster of Harvard University.

Fuster cautioned that people shouldn't take aspirin regularly without consulting a doctor. Aspirin can cause ulcers, bleeding and other complications.

About 1.5 million Americans suffer heart attacks each year, and 43 percent die within a year.

Gun bill approved

RICHMOND, Va. — Virginia's House rejected a proposed compromise on Gov. L. Douglas Wilder's gun control bill Monday and approved his original, stricter proposal.

Under the compromise, state residents could buy more than one handgun a month if they got a certificate authorizing them to do so from state police. Wilder's plan would limit handgun purchases to one a month, with no exceptions.

The House voted 65-34, largely along party lines, to reject the Republican-backed compromise. Delegates then approved the Democratic governor's original bill 59-41. The Senate still must vote on the compromise.

"We're very pleased to see the very strong support for gun control as evidenced in the House vote tonight," Wilder said.

State and federal authorities have said the state's lax gun laws have made it a weapons marketplace for gun dealers. Forty percent of the traceable handguns found at crime scenes in New York City in 1991 were sold in Virginia, according to the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Virginia now has no limit on handgun purchases for state residents.

Detroit angry over Clinton's choice

By A.J. DICKERSON
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT — President Clinton hopes his town meeting at a TV station here will help him keep his finger on America's pulse. One thing's for sure: It's raised blood pressure at the city's other stations.

WXYZ, an ABC affiliate, will be the host of Wednesday night's meeting, in which 60 people in the studio will get a chance to question Clinton. Audiences in ABC affiliates in Seattle, Miami and Atlanta will participate via satellite.

Other ABC affiliates may air the meeting, and CNN and C-SPAN plan to carry it.

Officials at other Detroit stations said they should have been included.

"I'm so mad, I've never seen anything like this. It was thoughtless, ignorant and it was inexcusable," said Mort Melner, news director of CBS affiliate WJBK.

Clinton "is coming to Detroit at taxpayers' expense. Therefore, he has an obligation to reach as many taxpayers as possible. That means at least appearing on Channels 2, 4 and 50," Melner said.

"We're somewhat concerned about one station being anointed in a city the size of Detroit," said Duane Kell, general manager of Fox affiliate WKBD. "For one station to be considered the sole and special outlet for his thoughts and interactions with the community is inappropriate."

"We were not happy with the way this happened," said Alan Frank, general manager of NBC affiliate WJTV. "They give an appearance that the White House is trying to control the event."

No slights were intended in picking WXYZ, which played host to a town meeting with candidate Clinton last fall, said Jeff Eller, White House director of media affairs.

WXYZ was selected because the president's staff is familiar with its layout and because the layout makes it easier to provide security, Eller said.

"This is a president who's said he's committed to doing town meetings," Eller said. "Everybody will get a chance over the next four years."

While the other stations fume, WXYZ is scrubbing its offices and assembling an audience of 40 ordinary people from hundreds of volunteers who called the station. The audience also will include 20 community leaders picked by the station.

People who volunteered voiced concerns ranging from crime and the economy to race relations and Iraq, said Chuck Stokes, the station's editorial director.

Michele Hall, a secretary at Michigan Bell, hopes her concerns about education land her in the audience. She wants a tax break for sending children to private schools.

"The schools are falling, and the parents have to take over. I work to put my child through (private) school," she said. "When are these kids going to get a break and when is the middle class going to get a break?"

AIDS ban may be lifted soon

By Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Clinton administration is moving to rescind the 8-year-old policy that bars people infected with the AIDS virus from entering the country.

President Clinton, as promised during the campaign, has ordered the Health and Human Services Department to lift the ban, and department officials said Monday they would act soon. The New York Times reported today.

"It's a welcome sign that public health decisions are now being made on the basis of public health, not on politics," said Jeffrey Levi, legislative director for AIDS Action Council, a Washington lobbying group.

The action would immediately affect 274 Haitian refugees, most of them AIDS infected, who are being held at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

The proposed new rule, which must be published in the Federal Register, also would lift the ban on other diseases such as syphilis and leprosy, the Times said.

With that move, infectious tuberculosis would be the only medical grounds for barring someone from entering the United States.

The 1987 rule drew cries of discrimination and prompted a 1992 international conference on AIDS to move from Boston to Amsterdam. South Africa is the only other industrialized nation that restricts entry of people with the AIDS virus.

Since the policy began, about 600 people a year have been kept out of the United States, according to the Times.

DeLand keeps county from boys' soccer sweep

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — The domination continues.

The opening night of the Class 4A-District 9 Boys' Soccer Tournament Monday night went according to planned as the top four seeded teams all posted victories.

But the county boys could not quite match their female counterparts as only three teams will advance to the quarterfinals. Last week, the girls' district final four were all from Seminole County.

No. 4 seed DeLand High School barely kept the county from sweeping as the Bulldogs shutout the Oviedo Lions 1-0 at Spec Martin Memorial Stadium in DeLand.

The other three games went handily to county squads as top seeded Lyman crushed Daytona Beach-Mainland, 7-1, at Lyman High School; No. 2 Lake Mary whitewashed Deltona, 3-0, at Don T. Reynolds Stadium and No. 3 Lake Brantley doubled the score on Lake Howell, 4-2, at Tom Storey Field.

Wednesday night's semifinals will find DeLand traveling to Lyman and Lake Brantley visiting Lake Mary. The winner's will then meet for the district championship at the home of the highest seeded team left on Friday.

All games are scheduled to start at 7 p.m.

Rams survive shootout

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — Was the NBA in town Monday night? If you like offensive basketball games, Lake Mary High School was the place to be as the Rams and visiting Eustis hooked up in one of the high scoring games in county history with the home team prevailing 90-86.

The Panthers pressed full-court the whole game, which played right into the athletic Rams' hands, who are at their best when they are running the fast break.

Eustis was on fire in the opening half, shooting well over 50-percent from the floor, including canning five three-pointers, to take a 40-38 lead at intermission.

But Lake Mary head coach Willie Richardson made a defensive change at the half that turned the game around for the Rams.

Richardson had his team overplay the wings and guards to take the three-pointer away from Eustis, forcing the Panthers to go to the basket.

And while it did not slow down the Eustis attack a lot, the change in defense did allow the taller Lake Mary to control the boards and get out on the break.

The Rams scored 26 points in each of the third and fourth quarters to win the second half 52-46, which was just enough to pick up the victory.

Only four players, two for each team, scored in double figures for the game. The one-two punch of Chessie Pyatt and Coy Patterson combined for 58 points for the Panthers, which was 14 more than Jimmy Newberry and Randy Brown tallied for Lake Mary.

But the Rams balanced attack was much better than Eustis' as the Rams had eight players score at least six points, while only four Panthers had at least six points.

Newberry tossed in 27 points to lead Lake Mary, while Brown added 17. Also contributing for the Rams were Ian Saunders (nine points, eight rebounds), Truk Wakefield (eight points), Richard Roche, Jermaine Ferguson and Kent Pritchard (seven points each), Drew Thomas (six points) and Jarrod Rouse (two points).

Eustis made a remarkable eight three-pointers, with Pyatt and Patterson hitting 3 three-pointers each and Simmons added two more.

Pyatt scored a game-high 30 points for the Panthers, with Patterson just behind with 28.

Lake Mary improved to 5-14 on the season, while Eustis fell to 10-11.

The Rams will be at home again Wednesday night to host Lyman in a Seminole Athletic Conference contest. The junior varsity will open the action at 6 p.m. with the varsity set for 7:30 p.m.

Voters forget county

By DEAN SMITH

SANFORD — Maybe parity isn't so good.

Despite several county schools playing their best basketball in years, especially on the girls' level, for the first time in several seasons not one county team on either the girls or boys level is receiving so much as a vote in this week's Florida Sports Writers Association high school basketball poll.

While the boys' teams being snubbed is somewhat understandable since only defending Class 4A champion Oviedo has a winning record.

Earnhardt still looking for Daytona 500 victory

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Motorsports Writer

DAYTONA BEACH — With all the time he has spent in Victory Lane at Daytona International Speedway, it seems impossible that Dale Earnhardt has't won a Daytona 500.

He has won five Busch Clash starts, five qualifying races, five Busch Grand National events, one Pepsi 400 and one IROC start on Daytona's 2 1/2-mile oval.

Yet, the five-time Winston Cup champion and winner of 53 races since 1979, has not won NASCAR's crown jewel event — and, at 41, he isn't getting any younger.

He has come agonizingly close, finishing second to Cale Yarborough in 1984 and nearly running away with the 1990 race before a cut down tire on the backstretch of the last lap took away what appeared to be certain victory.

In 1991, Earnhardt was battling near the front with six laps remaining when he and Davey Allison spun each other out and Ernie Ivan went on to win under the ensuing caution flag.

Earnhardt has started 14 500s and finished nine times in the top 10 — seven of those in the top five.

"There's so much expense, time, effort and pride involved in coming to Daytona," he said. "You work all winter with this one in mind because it's the opener and the biggest race we run. Then the only way you come out of it with anything is to win."

But bring up his failure to take the checkered flag in the big one and Earnhardt — a man with the reputation of a tough, aggressive, sometimes hostile competitor — is able to joke about his most-prized unrequited racing goal.

"I don't think I'm snake-bit, maybe alligator-bit or Daytona-bit," he said with a grin. "It took Darrell (Waltrip) 17 years to win the Daytona 500. If it takes me 17 or 20 years ... I'm going to keep trying. I've won a lot of races here. Daytona has been good to us. That 500 has eluded us, but if I never win it, I still have accomplished a lot in my career — winning those championships, all those races, the money, giving my family a good home and security."

With his sweep of both halves of Sunday's 20-lap Clash — a race for the previous year's pole winners — Earnhardt has again established himself and his black No. 3 as one of the favorites in the 500.

He came from the back of the field in both segments of the sprint event, leading the last five laps of each half.

"We're really pumped up now," Earnhardt said in the aftermath of his stirring sweep. "When we come to Daytona and enter a race, we enter to win. The 500 isn't any different. We feel the other car, the one that we're going to drive in the 500, is going to be better than the one we drove in the Clash. I think this is one of the better chances I've had to win the Daytona 500 and I'm looking forward to it."

Steamboat exhibit at gallery

Display brings back nostalgic memories of yesteryear

SANFORD — Local residents, who have personal memories of the old steamboats which once plied the St. Johns River from Jacksonville to Sanford, are invited to come by the First Street Gallery while the "Steamboating on the St. Johns" exhibit is still on display, and have their stories recorded by members of the Sanford Historical Society and the First Street Gallery.

Gallery hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday. However, appointments can be made at other hours if necessary. Participants are urged to call for an appointment even during the hours the gallery is open so a designated interviewer can be on hand to chat with the storyteller.

Sparked by the recent guest appearance of Jacksonville author Edward Mueller at the gallery to sign copies of his books, "St. Johns River Steamboats," and "Ocklawaha River Steamboats," there is renewed interest by the gallery to not only record memories about the steamboats, but to obtain loaned memorabilia of that era to augment the exhibit.

Those wishing to loan something from or about the old steamboats are encouraged to call the gallery, 323-8178.

On hand during "Author's Day" at the gallery was Bill Dreggors from DeLand who is also an authority on the steamboat era and who was dressed as Gen. Sanford for the occasion. Also, Troy Ray Jr., who has painted several of the old boats which docked at Sanford, came to greet guests.

The steamboat exhibit which features model replicas of some of the boats, paintings, flags, etc. will be up until Feb. 24.

Call police to clothesline thief

DEAR ABBY: Put me at the top of the list of those who never thought they'd be writing a Dear Abby letter, but your response to the person whose clothes were constantly being stolen off the clothesline in her backyard was so far off base, I had to write.

The criminal element in this country is gaining control because we are afraid to confront the criminal, or the law enforcement agency when it fails to respond promptly. One's home should be the primary source of sanctuary outside of one's church. When we can no longer protect our property, our very lives are next!

The criminal who operates without fear of reprisal runs unabated across the threshold of our right to pursue happiness. Why should any law-abiding citizen have to hide from a petty thief?

Call the police! Record the dates and names of authorities to whom you have spoken; repeat those names to supervisors, friends, relatives, neighbors, civic leaders — and to the media! Let's take a stand for accountability, and not let our lives be dictated by fear or intimidation.

Since this is not likely to see print, a personal word for you, Abby: Stick to the advice to the lovelorn, and stop being a public forum for crybabies.

DON RICHTER, LEESBURG, GA.

DEAR DON: I don't know how the police would handle it in Leesburg, Ga., but in most larger cities, the police are so busy trying to catch drug pushers, murderers, car-jackers, bank robbers and fire-bombers, if a call came in from someone complaining because someone stole the clothes off her clothesline, the thieves would die of old age before they were apprehended.

DEAR ABBY: A few suggestions for "Hurt," whose neighbor didn't invite her to Thanksgiving dinner, but invited her for leftovers the next day. As the popular TV commercial says, "Get back into life!"

I am also a widow; my neighbors still have their husbands. I have no children, and my siblings live clear across the country. Friends and neighbors are kind and caring, but hey, they have their own lives.

If you're lonely, so are a lot of other people. Start thinking about them instead of yourself — how about your having a dinner and inviting them over? If you can't afford to feed a gang, make it potluck.

If that idea doesn't appeal to you, or your apartment is too small, how about volunteering to help serve holiday dinners for the needy or homeless? There are all sorts of organizations for widowed people. Sure beats sitting around moping and whining.

After you lose your mate, your life will change, and it will never be the same again — so make a new one, and make it as good as you possibly can. Please sign me...

the ground within two hours. Everything in sight was on fire from a grass fire started with sparks from a welding machine. High winds fanned it. The fire consumed everything we had. We had no insurance and lost more than $100,000.

We had three smoke detectors and eight fire extinguishers inside — but not one single fire extinguisher outside. In a barn or garage, because we never dreamed a thing like that could happen to us at high noon outdoors!

In 55 years of marriage, this was our only fire. Now we have to start over from scratch. It's never too late to learn fire prevention. Please run this in your column, Abby. It may help others.

Chiles wants to save MacDill

By Associated Press

TAMPA — Gov. Lawton Chiles threw his support behind a bid to keep the runways at MacDill Air Force Base under federal control following a briefing by a group trying to save the base from further cutbacks.

Chiles promised Monday to write a letter to Defense Secretary Les Aspin backing a plan to transfer the airfield to the U.S. Commerce Department when the Air Force relinquishes it in March 1994. He said he probably also would write to Commerce Secretary Donald Brown.

"I think it makes a lot of sense," Chiles said. The governor met with the executive committee of a task force of business and civic leaders that formed two years ago after MacDill was targeted by the Pentagon's base closure commission.

The Pentagon has ordered the 56th Tactical Fighting Wing of F-16s be moved to Luke Air Force Base in Arizona. The 500-member Joint Communications Support Element is slated for transfer to Charleston, S.C.

In December, Mayor Sandy Freedman wrote to outgoing Defense Secretary Dick Cheney stating the case for transferring control to Commerce.

That could help keep the communications unit, which needs an active runway. MacDill will continue to be home to two unified commands: Special Operations and the U.S. Central Command.

"We need to convince the Defense Department and others that all the infrastructure necessary for that command needs to be here," Chiles said.

If the Pentagon wants to save money the communications group should stay put. "And for them to stay here there has to be an active runway," the governor said.

"Here you have a facility that cost a billion dollars to put in and probably would cost more than that to transfer and duplicate it someplace else," he added.

John Melanson, manager of Best Pawn and Jewelry Inc. at Pinecrest Center.

The "Best" Place To Borrow & Buy

Best Pawn & Jewelry is the "Best" place to borrow & buy, especially for Valentine gifts. Whether that favorite person on your list needs an answering machine, a shiny gold ring, CD player or boom box you can find it at Best Pawn & Jewelry who stocks both new and used merchandise.

Best Pawn is currently offering a new service for their customers: They are now accepting loans on handguns and rifles. John says "Sanford is a good market for firearms with so many avid collectors and hunters."

John Melanson, manager of Best Pawn and Jewelry, Inc., specializes in jewelry. He is a bench jeweler, offering repairs and custom jewelry made to order. He has a large selection of loose colored stones, and diamonds and can melt down your old gold jewelry for new pieces and settings. Melanson has twenty-five years' experience in the jewelry business, originally trained by a long-time friend. He has been doing repairs for five years and trade work for ten years. He has a state-of-the-art inspection and cleaning while you wait and free sizing with your gold ring purchase. You will also find a wide selection of watches, bracelets, pearls, rings and chains in 14 kt. gold available at Best Pawn and Jewelry, Inc. Unclaimed pawn items and new jewelry are available at below-market prices.

Best Pawn and Jewelry, Inc. will buy, sell or trade most anything of value. The shop, located in the Pinecrest Shopping Center, corner of 17-92 and 27th Street in Sanford, is loaded with items ranging from answering machines to xylophones. Melanson takes consignment items as well as collateral items. Pawn items are returned to customers at the end of the contract for a set fee. All items are carefully inspected by Melanson, before they are sold, to make sure they are in good working order. Right now, Melanson has many name brand items in stock, ranging from electronics, exercise equipment, fishing equipment, guitars, golf clubs, used Nintendo games and microwaves.

Melanson currently has a large collection of unclaimed TVs, VCR's, stereo systems, and tools. Melanson is originally from Montreal, Canada, immigrating to the United States in 1959, and settling in Daytona Beach. Melanson did a three year stint with the U.S. Army, in the military Police CID Division. He then attended Daytona Beach Community College for two years, majoring in business. He has lived in the Orlando area for the past twelve years and opened Best Pawn and Jewelry, Inc., in Sanford, in March 1991.

Melanson invites everyone to come in and browse. Melanson says a lot of people stop in to look and shop when shopping the other stores in the Pinecrest Shopping Center.

Best Pawn and Jewelry, Inc. is open Monday through Friday, 9:00 AM - 6:00 PM and Saturday 10:00 AM - 5:00 PM. Call Best Pawn and Jewelry, Inc. at 330-4814 for more information.

NOTICE OF CODE ENFORCEMENT BOARD PROCEEDINGS TO: Janie Williams Heirs C/O Genia Parramore & Amanda Sutton or the owner(s) of the following described property:
Lot 10 Blk 12 Tr F Town of Sanford PB 1 PG 54
1021 Orange Avenue, Sanford, FL; Case No. 93-8
The Sanford Code Enforcement Board was created by Sanford City Code, Ordinance 1528, as amended, as authorized by Chapter 162, Florida Statutes. The purpose of this Board is to facilitate the enforcement of the codes and ordinances in force in the City of Sanford. You have been charged with violating the following Code on your property: Chapter 11, sec. 11-27; Chapter 4, sec. 4.1.1 (101.5.1.a) Schedule F section 6.0 by allowing junk & debris to accumulate, allowing high growth to develop; allowing an unlicensed and/or inoperative vehicle to remain; failing to perform routine maintenance to house.
You are hereby formally notified that a Public Hearing will be conducted in the above styled cause by the Code Enforcement Board of the City of Sanford on the 9th day of March, 1993, at 7:00 p.m. in the City Commission Chambers, Room 117, Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue, Sanford, Florida, concerning the above-styled violation. The Board will receive testimony and evidence at said Hearing and shall make findings of fact and conclusions of law.
You are hereby ordered to appear before that Board at the Hearing to answer the charges and present your side of the case. You have the right to obtain an attorney, at your own expense, to represent you before the Board. You have the right to call witnesses on your behalf as well as to cross-examine all other witnesses. If you do not appear, the Board may proceed without you. Should the Board determine that a violation exists, it has the power to issue Orders requiring you to bring the violation into compliance including the power to levy fines and create a lien on your property up to $350.00 for each day the violation continues past the date set for compliance by the Board's Order.
If the violation is not corrected by the time of the Hearing or if, prior to the Hearing, you come into compliance with the above-styled alleged code violation but the violation recurs prior to the Public Hearing, the Hearing will be held on the allegations against you.
If you have questions concerning this matter, please contact the Building Department at (407) 330-5656. SHOULD YOU DECIDE TO APPEAL ANY MATTER CONSIDERED AT THE ABOVE HEARING, YOU MAY NEED A VERBATIM RECORD OF THE PROCEEDINGS, TESTIMONY AND EVIDENCE WHICH RECORD IS NOT PROVIDED BY THE CITY OF SANFORD (F.S. 284.0103).

Take steps to avoid trouble with heart

DEAR DR. GOTT: I recently underwent foot surgery. During normal testing, my family doctor discovered through an EKG that I have a left bundle branch block. He said there is no cure and nothing should be done for my condition except to monitor it. I'm 41, have no reason to doubt my family physician, yet I feel it doesn't hurt to double check on something as important as my heart.

DEAR READER: Electrical impulses that govern the pulse travel to the cardiac muscle through two primary nerve pathways: the left bundle branch and the right bundle branch. Ordinarily, the electrical charges travel quickly down the bundles, reaching their destination in a tenth of a second or less.

Sometimes, however, these electrical impulses meet resistance, which delays their passage through the bundles. Such a situation is always abnormal but the significance varies, depending on which pathway is affected.

Right bundle branch block can exist from birth and may not indicate heart disease. The right bundle is less important than the left (which supplies energy to most of the cardiac muscle). Thus, doctors tend to ignore RBBB, unless it newly appears in a context of recognized heart disease.

Left bundle branch block, on the other hand, is usually a red flag for cardiologists because it reflects underlying coronary artery disease more often than not. Therefore, I don't agree with your family doctor's analysis. In my opinion, your LBBB means you're developing heart disease, until proved otherwise. I believe a prudent physician would insist that you have a stress test, at least.

In addition, you should notify or eliminate appropriate risk factors in your behavior: stop smoking, lose weight, treat hypertension, lower cholesterol, exercise regularly, and so forth. Because the cause of your LBBB is in doubt, I suggest you request a referral to a cardiologist.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

This is the 101st week of columns that I have written. Don't you think it's about time a teen-ager could sign up for Bridge 101 in college? There is an annual national junior (under-26) championship, but, to my knowledge, no scheduled college classes are held.

Vicky Sawyer, 17, and Chris Austin, 14, won last year's Junior Pairs Championship. Both are high-school students - Sawyer in Occoquan, Va., and Austin in Riverdale, Ga.

To win a title, you need to play well and ride your luck. Sawyer and Austin were lucky before a card was played. Though they overslept and arrived late, the game had been delayed and they were allowed to enter. Then they were favored by a helpful opening lead and by friendly distribution in today's deal.

Sawyer rebid three diamonds because of her excellent suit. She was hoping her partner could rebid three no-trump - which is probably what he should have done. But with a youthful rush of adrenalin, Austin used Blackwood and bid the slam.

West made the unfortunate choice of the spade ace for his opening lead. Sawyer won the heart switch in the dummy, drew trumps, cashed the spade king and took the club finesse. When it won, declarer threw her heart six on the club ace. Then she called for the spade jack. East played low, but Sawyer discarded the heart jack. She was confident West wouldn't have led the spade ace if holding the A-Q.

When that worked, Sawyer was plus 1370 and they had a top.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
 Feb. 10, 1993

The year ahead could awaken within you a whole new sense of adventure and daring. You might try things you've never previously attempted, and do remarkably well at them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Things might not go too well for you early in the day due to repeating old, unproductive procedures. Be resourceful and don't duplicate past mistakes. Aquarius, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Aquarius' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone you like might do something today that hurts your feelings. Instead of dwelling on it, be the one who forgives, even though it isn't your fault.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your initial inclination today might be to avoid making difficult decisions. However, when you meet these matters head-on, you'll find you're quite adept at working out proper solutions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Co-workers might be a trifle difficult to get along with today, but if you keep in mind your collective objectives, the rough spots can be minimized.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A loved one may not live up to your expectations today. Instead of making an issue over what occurs, focus on the areas where you are both in accord.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If your objectives are not clearly defined today, you are not likely to live up to your productive potential. Be systematic and keep your target in mind at all times.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Conditions in general are rather favorable for you today, but you must be prepared to make concessions when dealing with others if you want them to cooperate with you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Strive to be discerning and prudent today in the ways you spend your funds. Work on eliminating the non-essentials, and buy only what you really need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In your involvements with outsiders today, you'll instinctively know how to behave in order to win their approval. When dealing with family members, however, you might not show the same wisdom.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Early in the day, your progress might be restricted, and what you have planned might not work out. Later you will be more effective, because you'll know how to handle these variables.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might allow your hopes to be overshadowed by pessimism in areas pertaining to your material security. Don't give in, because remember, you can withstand adversity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If at first you don't succeed, use this as an inspiration instead of a detriment. You can be remarkably successful with your second efforts if you just try.
