Sympathetic Judge Gives Kelly Lightest Abscam Sentence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Rep. Richard Kelly, R-Fla., received a lighter jail sentence than any other congressman convicted in the FBI's Abscam probe, but he says his six-to-18-month term is not "fair at all" because he is innocent.

Kelly, 59, was sentenced Thursday, almost three years after a District of Columbia jury convicted him of taking a $25,000 bribe.

U.S. District Judge William Bryant was openly sympathetic to the gray-haired, tall but slightly stooped former county judge and prosecutor.

Bryant is the trial judge who in May 1982 blasted the government's behavior in Abscam as "outrageous" and threw out Kelly's jury conviction, only to see it reinstated and upheld by higher courts.

Kelly could have been sentenced to up to 25 years in jail and fined thousands of dollars. His prison sentence is shorter than any given six other congressmen also snared in the Abscam scheme, in which FBI agents posed as middlemen buying favors for fictitious Arab sheiks. Four ex-lawmakers are now serving their time in prison.

"If I had been treated fairly and was guilty, I would think it's a fair sentence," Kelly told reporters outside the courthouse. "But since I was not treated fairly, and since I'm not guilty, I don't think it's fair at all."

Kelly, who was videotaped stuffing bribe money into his pockets, insists that government agents illegally pestered him into accepting the bribe for a favor in an immigration matter, after he initially rejected their offer.

"I told them 'No' nine times over two days, and they kept insisting," he said.

Bryant said from the bench:

"So far as we know, (Kelly) would live to be 105 and never disobey a law" if he had not been targeted by Abscam agents.

Kelly's lawyers had hoped for a sentence of probation. However, assistant U.S. attorney Roger Adelman argued Kelly deserved jail time because he is a "corrupt public officer" guilty of a "clear, blatant and unforgivable abuse of his office."

Bryant sentenced Kelly to up to 18 months in prison on his bribery conviction and three years' probation on convictions for conspiracy and interstate travel to aid a racketeering enterprise.

Earlier in the day, Bryant "very reluctantly" rejected a personal plea by Kelly to grant him a new trial or acquittal. Kelly will remain free while he appeals that order.

All of the other congressmen convicted in Abscam got tougher sentences, ranging from former South Carolina congressman John Jenrette's sentence of two years in prison plus a $20,000 fine to the others' typical sentence of three years in prison plus fines.

Groundbreakings Herald New Elementary Facilities

A new school in Sanford — Hamilton Elementary — and an addition to Lawton Elementary in Oviedo, are slated for completion in time for the 1983-84 school year.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Thursday at Lawton for a $1.5 million addition, designed by Frizzell Architects of Winter Park. The portion of the old school built in 1922 has already been razed.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new $4 million Hamilton Elementary School, touted as the most complete elementary facility in the county and the first new school built in the Sanford area in 20 years, are slated for 2 p.m. Monday at the school site on Eighth Street and Mellonville Avenue.

Immediately after the Hamilton school groundbreaking, a reception will be held at the school administrative offices, next door, at 1211 S. Mellonville Ave.

The public is invited to both the groundbreaking and the reception.

The 82,000 square foot Hamilton Elementary was designed by the Casselberry architectural firm of Dalmwood, Derryberry and Pavelchak. Planned to house 792 students, the school is named after William and Aletha Hamilton, who together have 85 years service in the county school system. Both will be honored guests at the groundbreaking.

The Hamilton school will replace Southside, Sanford Grammar and Hopper elementary schools. Tentative plans are to turn Sanford Grammar into a children's museum. Southside may be developed into an administrative annex and plans for using Hopper are still in the development stage.

Meanwhile, a committee of educators, parents and citizens has been meeting regularly since October to develop a zoning plan for the Hamilton School. The zoning plan may effect students attending eight elementary schools in northern Seminole County. These include Idyllwild, Lake Mary and Wilson elementaries in addition to Sanford Grammar, Southside, Hopper, Pinecrest and Goldsboro.

Pinecrest and Goldsboro are the only elementary schools in the county which do not have kindergarten through fifth grade classes. Both schools are expected to be boosted to full elementaries.

Members of the zoning committee, which is to report its recommendations to School Superintendent Robert Hughes in February, are: School Board member Jean Bryant, County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff, Pinecrest Principal Caren Gager, Hopper teacher Ray George, Goldsboro Principal Leroy Johnson, Sanford Grammar teacher Sally Keith, Seminole NAACP President Willie King, Southside Assistant Principal Barbara Kirby, and parent representatives Pat Lake (Wilson), Doris Thomas (Idyllwild), Thomas Westhelle (Lake Mary).

Hughes is scheduled to report the committee's and his recommendations to the School Board in March.

Happy at the prospect of new classrooms, McGill Hodges, 10-year old fourth grader at Lawton Elementary and a member of the school's student council, participates in the groundbreaking ceremonies for the $1.5 million addition.

No Bond Sanford Men Face Murder Charge

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Two suspects in the murder of a Sanford man shot during a drug deal argument were formally charged in Seminole County Court Thursday. They are being held at the Seminole County jail without bond.

Carl F. Presley, 22, of 1114 E. 11th St., and Freddie Lee Conquest, 25, of 107 McKay Blvd., both of Sanford, appeared before County Judge Harold F. Johnson at the Five Points courtroom on charges of first degree murder. They are charged in the death of Michael McCloud, 22, of 29 William Clark Court, Sanford.

Presley and Conquest will be arraigned Jan. 27.

A 17-year-old Sanford youth arrested Tuesday in the case, was turned over Tuesday to juvenile authorities who have declined to say whether he been being held of had been released.

According to Sanford Assistant Police Chief Herb Shea, officers were dispatched to 29 William Clark Court Tuesday afternoon after receiving an anonymous telephone report of a shooting. Upon arrival, they found McCloud's body.

Witnesses told police that three men had been arguing with McCloud when one of the men handed a pistol to a second man who fired at McCloud, killing him. A single shot hit McCloud in the upper arm, traveled through his chest and pierced both lungs and the heart, Shea said.

He said the argument involved a "drug rip-off," but he did not know who had ripped off whom or what kind or quantity of drug was involved.

After the shooting, the trio fled and Shea said officers conducted a search and found Conquest near the scene. Witnesses told the police it was Conquest who handed the gun to the second man who fired the shot that killed McCloud.

The 17-year-old suspect, who was allegedly the third person involved in the fight with McCloud, called police and told them he knew they were looking for him and told them where he was, Shea said.

Assaid Baby Ruling Due By Jan. 23

The fate of convicted child killer Susan Barrett Assaid's baby will be decided by a Seminole Circuit Court judge within 10 days.

Judge Kenneth M. Lefler announced Thursday that he will make his decision by Jan. 23 regarding who will have custody of the child and whether Assaid, who could be paroled within two years, can have visitation rights.

Mrs. Assaid, who is serving a 15-year prison sentence for manslaughter in the September 1982 death of her 5-year-old daughter, Ursula Sunshine Assaid, gave birth to a baby boy May 30 while in custody.

Lefler said he would make his decision based upon written reports, testimony by Assaid and the opinion of Winter Park child psychologist, Dr. Martin Lazortiz.

Don Lykkebak, attorney for the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services which is asking for permanent custody of the 8-month-old infant, said Lazortiz would testify it would be in the best interest of the child not to know its background. Lykkebak said HRS wants to place the child with parents who know nothing about the infant or his parents.

Mrs. Assaid and her attorney are trying to block permanent adoption of the baby. Instead, they want some arrangement whereby she would be able to visit the child on a permanent basis when she is eventually released from prison.

Mrs. Assaid, 30, pleaded guilty to the manslaughter charge March 25.

The body of her daughter, who was beaten and tortured to death, was recovered from an Altamonte Springs pond in December 1982 after Mrs. Assaid told police in Riverside, Calif., where she had moved, of the incident. She was sentenced June 18.

Donald Glenn McDougall, 27, Mrs. Assaid's boyfriend who was charged with first-degree murder in the girl's death, was convicted of second-degree murder and aggravated child abuse by a St. Petersburg jury in October and sentenced to 34 years in prison on Nov. 4.

According to Lykkebak, McDougall has neither confirmed nor denied being the infant's father.

Seminole Circuit Court Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. gave temporary custody of the child to HRS in June. Mrs. Assaid was allowed to see the baby three hours a week until November when Lefler reduced the weekly visits to one hour. The child is in a foster home in Seminole County.

Dalton Given 50-50 Chance To Live

A Longwood man wounded in an Orlando courtroom shooting spree was given a 50-50 chance for survival by his doctor shortly after his accused assailant was formally charged with his assault.

The gunman was also charged with the assault on a correction officer and the shooting death of a bailiff.

Harry Dalton, 53, of 121 Ruby Red Lane, was listed in critical condition today at Florida Hospital-Orlando, according to a hospital spokesman. At a press conference Thursday afternoon, Dalton's neurosurgeon, Dr. Norberto Priu, said Dalton has a 50-50 chance of survival. And if he does live, Priu said, he will probably have weakness on the left side. Dalton, a court bailiff, was shot above the right eye and remains in a coma.

Shortly before the hospital press conference, Orange County Judge Dorothy Russell went to the bedside of the accused assailant, Thomas Harrison Provenzano, 34, of 1510 Miller Ave., Winter Park, to initiate court proceedings in the case.

Provenzano suffered a gunshot wound to his left side during Tuesday's shoot-out and is listed in fair condition at the Orlando Regional Medical Center, a hospital spokesman said.

Ms. Russell informed Provenzano of the charges against him — one count of first-degree murder, two counts of attempted murder and possession of a firearm.

Aided by a court-appointed attorney, Provenzano indicated he understood the charges during the 10-minute arraignment.

According to police, Provenzano was to appear in court Tuesday for an appearance on a misdemeanor charge of resisting arrest. He walked into a courtroom wearing military fatigues and when a bailiff started to search him, reportedly drew a .38-cal. revolver, a 12-gauge shotgun and a .45-cal. assault rifle which he had concealed under a jacket. EDB-Water Crisis Tab Inching Up To $500,000

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Costs of Sanford's fight to rid six wells of contamination by the suspected carcinogen EDB and to replace the water supply from those shutdown wells have reached nearly $500,000.

This, despite the state's agreeing to pay Frank, Mark and Patricia Stensstrom for the city's use of their irrigation wells. The wells were connected to the city water system on a temporary and emergency basis two weeks ago. The state has also agreed to pay for use of pumping equipment at the wells.

The Department of Environmental Regulation expedited the permitting process to allow the immediate connection of those wells to the Sanford system and City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles has asked the state agency to continue the assistance.

He is also asking for a change in state policy on the testing of water supplies. Rather than testing individual wells, Knowles is requesting that state agencies test the "blended raw water" for central water systems.

"Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services' regulations of tests only at the well head are not the final answer. Blended water is what the public receives, not well head flows," Knowles says in a letter to Ms. Mimi Drew of the DER Tallahassee office.

In the letter, Knowles brings the state agency up to date on what the city has done so far to solve the water shortage created when six of the city wells became unusable because of EDB contamination and the methods it is using to rid wells of EDB.

Well 5, the only uncontaminated well of the seven at the Mayfair Golf Course, has been shut down and modified with a test pump to see if 1,500 gallons per minute production is feasible. If so, a new pump and motor to obtain this higher production will be installed.

In the interim, the capacity of the two irrigation wells will be expanded.

Well 3, the least contaminated well in the Mayfair field, is to be "slip cased." The new casing is to be forced into this well in an attempt to by-pass the point where EDB — ethylene dibromide — is entering the well. The entry is believed to be in the upper strata of soil. The estimated cost of slip casing each well is $15,000. Logs are being kept of Well 3 as studies continue to determine the exact entry of the contamination into all six wells.

At this point all wells on the city system show no trace of EDB contamination. In addition to the one well at the golf course and the two irrigation wells, the city has eight wells at a field in the U.S. Highway 17-92 Airport Boulevard area.

The city has retained the services of consulting engineers, Conklin, Porter & Holmes of Sanford, and ESE of Gainesville, a firm considered expert in the field of water contamination.

Sanford has contracted for four, new 12-inch wells in the Hidden Lake Park. Drilling on two of those is expected to be completed in the next few days. The first is more than 200 feet deep.

'We've Flunked, Why More Tests?'

A state agency has notified Sanford to get ready to test city water supplies for more than 130 potential pollutants.

The mayor's immediate reaction: This is another program mandated by the state but not funded by them. Local taxpayers will be expected to pick up the tab.

"Since we have flunked the EDB test up front," Mayor Lee P. Moore added, "What's the need of spending the money looking for other things?"

But, anticipating a proposed law approved by a state House committee this week will pass the full Legislature when it convenes in April, the state Department of Environmental Regulation told Sanford to get ready.

Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles said the state DER estimated the tests would cost about $1,000 for each well.

Course have been found to be contaminated with EDB (ethylene Dibromide) and are shut down.

Knowles said, "We have probably been consuming the compounds the state is speaking of for years and the state has now decided to test and see if those compounds are in our particular area. It is like a survey or a research project that they are going to have the local users pay for."

Although the testing for the 130 potential pollutants is not required until the Legislature actually adopts the law, Knowles said that he has instructed city staff to find a laboratory that can run the required tests.

The water testing bill approved by the House Community Affairs Committee would require annual testing for 130 potential pollutants by public or com-

Classified Evidence On Soviets Goes To Hill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In advance of his speech on U.S.-Soviet relations, President Reagan sent his foreign policy advisers to Capitol Hill today to discuss classified evidence of Kremlin nuclear treaty violations.

Aides said although Reagan shares the view that the past accords have been violated, he is expected to downplay differences in what is being billed as a conciliatory speech Monday.

The president also will drop his tough rhetoric against Moscow in his speech. Reagan once described the Soviet Union as "the focus of evil in the modern world."

Although Reagan may refer to this subject Monday, Speakes said, the speech will be more positive in tone and will be directed in large part at Western Europe, where fears of a new Cold War are intense.

Did General Kill Himself?

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Investigators say it is possible an Army general found hanged committed suicide despite an apparent terrorist note announcing he had been "executed" and a handwritten message saying he had seen intruders in the building.

The FBI said there was no indication of violence or foul play in the death of Maj. Gen. Robert G. Ownby Jr., commander of the 90th Army Reserve Command. The medical examiner said the possibility that Ownby himself tied his hands behind his back had not been ruled out.

No one has claimed responsibility for the death, and FBI special agent John W. Dalseg said Thursday the FBI and Army investigators were trying to determine if the death was suicide or murder.

Custodians End Sickout

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The decision by custodial workers for Cleveland public schools to end their two-day sickout that forced the cancellation of classes for 79,000 students does not end the dispute, a school board lawyer says.

The 300 custodians and their assistants, still simmering over the school board's demand for contract concessions, announced Thursday they would return to their jobs today.

The move headed off unspecified action by the board, which said it had a few different plans for forcing its employees back to work at the 131 public schools. The board would not elaborate on the plans.

For Killing Of Chopper Pilot

No Military Retaliation Against Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. officials want an explanation from Nicaragua about the killing of an American helicopter pilot whose craft was forced down just inside Honduras but won't resort to direct military retaliation.

Secretary of State George Shultz Thursday said it was "unacceptable" conduct for the Nicaraguans to shoot at the crew of an unarmed helicopter on the ground.

He said the helicopter may have strayed into Nicaraguan airspace, but the real question was raised by the Nicaraguan actions after the helicopter landed in Honduran territory, when it was shot at from Nicaragua.

But Shultz ruled out any direct American military response.

"If the question is if there is any plan or instinct to undertake a military operation directly against Nicaragua, the answer is no," he told a State Department news conference.

However, Shultz refused to confirm or deny U.S. support for an insurgent action against Nicaragua, saying only that the helicopters which may be flown in the area in attacks against Nicaragua are not flown by U.S. military forces.

Reagan called the killing of Chief Warrant Officer Jeffrey Schwab of Joliet, Ill., "a great tragedy."

Schwab's unarmed helicopter apparently strayed off course Wednesday during exercises in a 5-month-old series of joint maneuvers involving 5,000 American GIs and Honduran troops. It was fired on by Nicaraguan troops and came down just inside Honduran territory, U.S. and Nicaraguan officials said.

Honduran soldiers who said they witnessed the downing of the helicopter said today the crew jumped out of the chopper in a hail of Nicaraguan gunfire with their arms raised and seconds later the pilot fell dead.

The Honduran soldiers, who did not want their names used, were interviewed by UPI outside the Honduran border town of Cifuentes. They said their platoon was atop an adjacent hill and saw the helicopter come under small arms fire.

"When the three men jumped out of the helicopter they placed their hands up behind their heads, thinking they might be on enemy soil," said one soldier.

"The pilot stepped out of the helicopter, swayed and fell to the ground," the soldier said. "The other two American soldiers were uninjured."

Judge Says Church-Owned Firms Can't Discriminate

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A federal judge has declared unconstitutional the firings of workers in non-religious jobs in church-owned businesses because of their beliefs.

American Civil Liberties Union attorney Elizabeth Dunning said the decision against the Mormon Church was believed to be the first time a judge has struck down laws that allow discrimination by church-owned businesses based on religious beliefs.

"I think it's a significant First Amendment ruling," Ms. Dunning said Thursday.

U.S. Judge David Winder made the ruling Wednesday in denying motions by the Mormon Church in a lawsuit by five former workers in church-owned businesses who said they were fired because they were not in good standing with the church.

The city is also studying possible well sites to acquire new wells to provide raw water to the main water plant at the golf course. "This may be necessary for developing a new well field if shielding efforts at the tainted wells are not successful," Knowles said.

EDB contamination of two of the seven wells at Mayfair was found on Nov. 15 after samples taken by the county's health department were tested by a state laboratory in Jacksonville. Knowles ordered those wells shut down. In the weeks since, four other wells were found to have EDB levels above the state's accepted .1 part per billion, which equates to one drop per 110,000 gallons of water.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency still has not set levels of EDB acceptable for water or food products.

munity water systems serving at least 15 households and a minimum of 25 people.

DER officials estimate the cost of the tests at $650 to $1,000 each. The cost would be borne by the water system operator and could be passed on to the consumer.

The bill also provides for a fine up to $5,000 per day for violation of the law. The House Community Affairs Committee also unanimously passed out a bill to transform the state's emergency EDB task force into a permanent body designed to handle all emergency water contamination situations.

The committee and its chairman, Rep. Sid Martin, D-Hawthorne, have been pressing for a solution to Florida's water pollution problem since the pesticide Temik and EDB were discovered in wells earlier this year.

One of the its approved bills is an attempt to deal with the problem head on by giving the Pesticide Review Council greater statutory authority over the pesticides it can examine.

Under current law, the council is authorized to study only pesticides classified as "restricted use."

Martin noted that neither Temik nor EDB, two controversial pesticides, were listed as restricted.

The council has, in fact, already begun to examine non-restricted pesticides, despite the lack of clear authority under present law.

Last year, House Speaker Lee Moffitt's water task force recommended that all public water supplies be tested, and the DER has already developed rules to test supplies serving over 1,000 people.

The emergency contamination bill would establish the Groundwater Protection Task Force as a permanent interagency group to coordinate all activities relating to supplying water and information to people whose water supply has been polluted by dangerous chemicals.

The group would include representatives from the DER, the Department of Community Affairs, the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Transportation.

2 N.C. Men Jailed In Sale Of Prescription Drugs

Two North Carolina men who allegedly sold prescription drugs, including codeine capsules, to Seminole County drug agents are both scheduled to appear in court at the county jail at 1:30 p.m. today.

The undercover agents reported that at about 10 p.m. Thursday, they made contact with one of the suspects at the Scottish Pub, U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry.

The suspect allegedly offered to sell them a variety of prescription drugs. The agents reported that they paid the man $9 and received eight pills and capsules, some of which contained codeine and a tranquilizer, tem-pazepam.

The suspect was arrested at 10:15 p.m. and was charged with three counts of sale of a controlled substance. When he was searched, the officers reported finding a .25-caliber handgun in his jacket pocket. Carl Fabin Felts III, 21, of Asheville, faces additional charges of carrying a concealed weapon without a license, possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony and possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

The officers reported that after his arrest, Felts allegedly said he had 5,000 additional illegal prescription pills in his motel room.

Agents went to Room 1 at the Oak Ridge Motel, Fern Park, and made contact with a second suspect who reportedly invited them in and sold them four codeine capsules.

Marshall Allen Williams, 24, of Asheville, was charged with sale of a controlled substance. He is being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

The agents returned to the jail, and because additional illegal drugs (about 5,000 capsules and tablets) were found in the motel room, which the two suspects allegedly shared, Felts' bond was increased from $8,000 to $13,000, a sheriff's report said. Both men remain in jail.

and child abuse posted $3,000 bond and was released from the Seminole County jail.

The man was arrested Thursday at his home. Sheriff's deputies began a search for the suspect Wednesday after a 12-year-old girl and her mother came to the sheriff's department where the girl gave investigators information on two incidents when she was allegedly fondled and on one occasion forced to have oral sex with the suspect, a sheriff's report said.

The incident reportedly occurred at the girl's home at 9 p.m. Jan. 3 and at 3 p.m. the following day. Wallace Leroy Oglesby, 34, of 841 Upsala Road, was released from jail Thursday. He is scheduled to appear in court on Jan. 27.

PURSE PICK-UP

An Altamonte Springs woman who placed her wallet on a newspaper vending machine at Albertson's on State Road 434, Longwood, reported to the Seminole County sheriff's department that a thief apparently walked away with her wallet.

Andrea Ferrarini, 23, of 1000 Douglas Ave., said the wallet, which contained about $150 and was worth $30, disappeared at about 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, a sheriff's report said.

JEWELRY TAKEN

Murphy G. Sewell, 41, of 222 Graham Road, Fern Park, reported that between 8:40 a.m. and 8 p.m. Wednesday, someone took jewelry, including a gold ring, chains and charms of undetermined value from a box on a dresser in a bedroom of his home.

Sewell told sheriff's deputies that several workmen had access to his home on the day the jewelry disappeared, a sheriff's report said.

Harry J. Simposn, 43, of 1321 Van Arsdale St., Oviedo, also reported that four gold chains valued at $2,500 had been stolen from a box on a shelf in his living room.

Simpson said the chains disappeared during the Christmas holidays when he had a lot of visitors in his home, a sheriff's report said. Simpson reported his loss to the sheriff's department Wednesday.

A Challenge To Democracy

The recent military coup in Nigeria, black Africa's most populous nation and recently its most prominent democracy, is being attributed to a marked deterioration in that country's economy. There is ample evidence to support this interpretation. But this latest setback for the cause of democracy in black Africa also reflects some broader, and decidedly unpleasant, truths about post-colonial Africa.

Nigeria's economy is based on oil exports, which generate fully 80 percent of that country's foreign currency reserves and 90 percent of government revenues. Since 1981, Nigeria's oil exports have dropped 27 percent even as the world price of oil has declined from $34 per barrel to $29 per barrel. As a result, Nigeria's oil revenues have plummeted by 50 percent. That has left Nigeria increasingly hard-pressed to purchase vital imports needed to keep its economy going. Worse, it has undercut the government's ability to pay even the interest on a $14 billion foreign debt run-up when oil seemed the guarantor of perpetual prosperity.

The government of President Alhaji Shehu Shagari, overthrown in the coup, must bear much of the responsibility for Nigeria's economic plight. Although Shagari's administration could do little to influence a weakening world market for oil, Nigeria's economy was a mess even before petroleum prices began dropping last spring. Inept planning and flagrant government corruption were already crippling Nigeria's considerable economic potential.

Nonetheless, President Shagari was re-elected in a presidential election last August that was judged reasonably free and fair by most observers. The election was seen as a remarkable and most heartening demonstration that democracy could work in Africa, even in a country as large and diverse as Nigeria. These assumptions can only have been damaged by the coup, staged by a Nigerian army general who promised to rebuild the economy and suppress corruption.

The cause of democracy in Africa has been dealt a serious setback. Ironically, the setback will be all the more serious if the new military government succeeds in implementing some reforms. Authoritarianism will have scored an impressive success where democracy seemingly failed.

The coup in Nigeria leaves black Africa with only one genuine democracy: tiny, inconsequential Botswana. Everywhere else in black Africa, one-party rule or outright dictatorships are the norm. The blame for this belongs in many quarters. Colonial regimes did far too little to prepare Africans for independence. The British did most — as in Nigeria and Kenya, for example — and the Portuguese and Belgians did the least.

Africans have few traditions of democracy in any case, so no one should be surprised when democracy fails to flourish only 20 years after the colonialists departed. Western nations, America included, should continue promoting democratic practices in Africa, as elsewhere, simply because they will probably prove the most successful in the long run. But in the short run, there is less and less cause for any illusions about democracy's prospects in Africa.

It's All Relative

One of the lesser-known items in the tax reform bill that is a new rule that would tax as income all the free flights that airlines provide to the parents of employees. The employees themselves, their spouses and their children could still get free airline tickets as a non-taxable fringe benefit. But since the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee is himself the father of three flight attendants and didn't want to appear to be in any conflict of interest, the tax-free benefit for parents had to go.

And then the mail started coming in from irate mothers and fathers. Soon, no doubt, the House will hear as well from pro-family lobbies about the proper role of government in encouraging family relations. In fact, the issue is shaping up into a major headache for the Ways and Means Committee, given its chairman's awkward position. But the Senate is expected to ride to the rescue of airline parents, by deleting a line or two when it gets the bill into its own committee system.

And then, presumably, the grandparents will write in.

BERRY'S WORLD

... and ANOTHER depressing thing about these major world crises — they make trivia seem EVEN MORE trivial!

By Deane Jordan

If the singles-bar dating scene has not been your preferred evening, you may have considered the use of a dating service.

If you have, the word from central Florida officials is look into the operation before you commit your cash on the hopes of finding the right person for you.

There are two basic types of dating, matrimonial, and social referral services, according to the Better Business Bureau of Central Florida.

Many of the services are "for profit" organizations which appeal to single men and women for a variety of reasons.

Some of them offer just a social environment such as dances, dinners, teas and get-togethers. Those, according to the bureau, are alternatives to the typical bar scene. Others are specifically structured to find mates for members.

The bureau has offered several suggestions for a person considering the use of a dating service to follow before anyone signs a contract with any service.

Their first bit of advice is to think through what you may reasonably expect from the service in comparison to the financial investment involved.

You should also look into the background of the members.

How thoroughly are the candidates pre-screened to ensure compatibility? Are the attributes you would like in a match covered in a questionnaire provided by the service? Do they have a list of pleased customers?

Prospective dating service customers should find out how the selected singles are introduced.

Is there simply an exchange of telephone numbers, or are names and addresses exchanged along with other personal data? Is a personal introduction provided by the company at its office or at a special meeting place that is public, or is one person supposed to contact the other?

If you do not like the service, what recourse do you have?

Will the company extend the duration of their service if person right is not located or will the company refund your money? What are the terms and total cost of the service offered and how is the money to be paid and by when?

Other data the bureau suggests you gather is information usually collected when any business transaction is considered.

How long has the company been in business?

Based on its history, can you expect the company to be in business long enough to honor your membership?

If your questions are not answered thoroughly, the bureau suggests you look elsewhere for a service that will increase your chances of finding person right.

Nicotine Gum Help To Smokers

By Al Rooster Jr.
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is increasing evidence that nicotine gum can help people quit smoking.

A British study found that smokers given gum containing nicotine by their doctors were twice as likely to stop smoking after four months and one year than those who were just advised to give up the habit.

A recent California study came up with similar results.

Dr. M. A. H. Russell of the Institute of Psychiatry in London said the results of the British study indicated that American physicians could help millions of their patients stop smoking by prescribing the gum.

The gum is on the market in Canada and Great Britain but has not yet been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, which is assessing its safety as well as effectiveness.

The report of Russell's study, published in the British Medical Journal, said researchers did not attempt to determine how the nicotine gum worked — whether the nicotine in the gum actually had a role in stopping the smoking, or whether it was more of a psychological effect.

However, the California study by researchers at UCLA and the Brentwood Veterans Administration Medical Center compared results of nicotine gum with a taste-alike gum that did not contain nicotine and found that those who chewed the nicotine gum were more successful in quitting smoking.

The British study evaluated 1,938 smokers who saw 34 doctors in six group practices in south London and in the towns of Maidstone, Tonbridge and Tunbridge Wells. The average age of the smokers was 40.5 and 57 percent were women.

The smokers were divided into three groups — those who received no anti-smoking advice from their doctors, those who were given simple but firm recommendations to quit smoking along with a "Give Up Smoking" booklet, and those who also were offered a prescription for free nicotine chewing gum called Nicorette.

The quit-smoking success rate was only 3.9 percent for the group given no advice, 4.1 percent for those given advice only and 8.8 percent for those offered nicotine gum.

Russell and his associates said the higher success rate of the group offered gum was achieved despite the fact that only 53 percent of the smokers in the group actually tried the gum.

"The results show a clear increase in the success rate when the advice of general practitioners to stop smoking is accompanied by an offer of treatment with nicotine chewing gum," the report said.

"Patients who were offered gum were more likely to give up smoking during the next six weeks and to be still abstinent after four months and one year."

"One effect of the gum was to motivate more patients to try to give up smoking."

CIA Established Death Squads?

WASHINGTON — Operating at the subterranean level of Latin American politics is a far-flung network of affiliated death squads.

Their purpose: to intimidate suspected leftists and deter movements that threaten the status quo throughout Latin America.

Their methods: kidnapping and assassinations, secret pacts, intrigues, terrorism and blackmail.

But what is truly appalling is the possibility that the idea of an anti-communist Murder Inc. was germinated at CIA headquarters.

Sources familiar with the secret history — including a former covert operations specialist for the CIA — say the death squads were first formed under agency sponsorship in 1954. This is denied by CIA officials.

Whatever their origins, the death squads clearly got out of control. Dedicated to the physical elimination of suspected leftists, they recruited assassins from the military services, police forces and security agencies of right-wing governments.

WILLIAM RUSHER

Question Of Fairness

NEW YORK (NEA) — If you think the coverage of political topics that you see on television is fair, you can safely skip this column. If, on the other hand, you think it is about as lopsided as the odds an ancient Christian faced when they tossed him to the lions, you would do well to be concerned about a step the Federal Communications Commission is preparing to take. The FCC wants to junk the Fairness Doctrine.

The Fairness Doctrine (which requires broadcasters to give reasonable amounts of time to both sides of controversial issues) is hardly the solution to the problem of biased television reporting: It has been on the books, as an FCC regulation, for to these many years, and nobody would pretend that it has in fact compelled broadcasters to be fair. But junking it assuredly isn't going to make a bad situation any better. On the contrary, it will be understood by TV producers (and rightly) as a signal that it's safe to abandon what little caution they have heretofore exercised. When it comes to TV bias, in short, you ain't seen nothin' yet.

What makes this such a slippery issue is that it doesn't divide people neatly along the usual conservative vs. liberal lines. Liberals by and large favor abolishing the Fairness Doctrine: There's not a thing wrong with current television news coverage as far as they can see, and junking the Fairness Doctrine comes comfortably under the virtuous heading of "encouraging freedom of speech."

Conservatives, on the other hand, are sharply divided. The more libertarian varieties (including Mark Fowler, President Reagan's choice as head of the FCC) consider the Fairness Doctrine just a particularly vicious example of government regulation, and are eager to get it off the backs of America's TV and radio station owners. Who is the FCC, they demand, to tell American citizens who own such stations what they must (or mustn't) broadcast?

Other leading conservatives — including, for example, Phyllis Schlafly, the one-woman vanquisher of ERA — disagree. They know that most television news broadcasts are open sewers of liberal misinformation and disinformation, and suspect that what little evenhandedness occasionally creeps into the reportage is largely attributable to broadcasters' fears that somebody may try to invoke the Fairness Doctrine and revoke their license to broadcast. As for the "free speech" argument, conservative defenders of the Fairness Doctrine say speech is scarcely "free" when all most Americans see, as a practical matter, is one of three network news broadcasts all produced by people with the same liberal prejudices.

In addition, Mrs. Schlafly and a few other conservative activists have actually been successful, every now and then, in using the Fairness Doctrine to shoehorn an occasional conservative viewpoint.

Fowler, however, has been after the Fairness Doctrine ever since he took over as chairman of the FCC in 1981. That very September he asked Congress to abolish it by passing a law, but Congress cautiously refused. So on June 29, 1983 the commission issued a "Notice of Proposed Rulemaking," announcing its intention to promulgate a regulation that would have the same effect. Opponents were given until Jan. 5 to file objections to the proposed regulation, and now the FCC must decide whether to promulgate it over those objections.

This is one of those cases in which slavish adherence to a sound principle (the less government regulation, the better) merely plays into the hands of forces that already possess a dangerous monopoly of the channels of public communication in this country. It may be clever to tell people who disapprove of the violence and leftist bias in most major television programming to go and buy their own station, but it hardly faces up to the problem.

ROBERT WALTERS

John's Petty Crusade

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The bad news is that independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson probably will be allowed to fritter away at least $6.6 million in public funds this year to finance his second futile bid for the White House.

The good news is that Anderson's share of the vote next November almost certainly won't be as high as the 12 percent to 16 percent he has been receiving in recent public opinion polls.

Indeed, Anderson will be fortunate to match the 6.6 percent of the total vote he received in the 1980 presidential election. But even if his 1984 vote percentage is only half that, he could distort the results of the election in a sizable number of states.

When Anderson entered the presidential race four years ago, he offered himself as a progressive, thoughtful and independent alternative to the hide-bound policies and self-serving politics embraced by the two major parties.

But the campaign, which initially reflected Anderson's refreshing candor and integrity, rapidly deteriorated into a slick promotional operation most notable for the candidate's self-delusion and his deception of the public.

While Anderson's positions on most issues were (and are) appealing to many well-informed and concerned voters, his self-righteous, sanctimonious preaching antagonized vast numbers of potential supporters.

Perhaps most importantly, Anderson held out the promise of radically transforming the nation's political system by establishing a new party to serve as political home for those who had lost confidence in both the Republican and Democratic parties.

Instead, the 1980 organization was little more than a narrowly focused enterprise to promote Anderson's candidacy. The 1984 campaign committee probably will serve an equally ignoble purpose.

Although Anderson offered himself to the public as the leader of a crusade for improved governance, he did virtually nothing to build the organization needed to implement his stated goals or to otherwise promote his positions in the three years following the 1980 elections.

The Election Commission certified Anderson as the 1980 presidential candidate of what the Federal Election Campaign Act designates as "a new party," but the law required that he wait until after the election to receive $6.5 million in federal funding.

Because Anderson received more than 5 percent of all votes cast in the 1980 presidential election, he is qualified under FECA provisions to be the candidate this year of a "minor party" eligible to receive $6.6 million or more in public funds during the campaign.

But Anderson's National Unity Party exists almost exclusively as a vehicle to qualify him for federal funding under the FECA's requirements. He has made no real effort to establish national, state or local party structures or to involve potential supporters in the decision-making process leading Honduran secret police, arranged a face-to-face meeting with the Honduran death squad leader. I'll call him El Lobo, which means "The Wolf."

El Lobo said he and some friends founded the Honduran death squad in 1979 with 85 members. "Now we have 400," he boasted, "and we've successfully infiltrated the leftists with our own spies in the university and labor unions."

"We've eliminated 16 people so far. They were either labor unionists or university professors — all confirmed Marxists."

El Lobo explained how "his death squad operates. "First we investigate and follow a suspect who has come to our attention," he said. "Then, if we decide the case merits further action, we either kidnap the victim or leave him an anonymous warning."

The usual warning, he said, is a scrap of paper with the message: "Men don't fight with flowers, they fight with bullets."

"If the suspect heeds our warning, and we confirm his rehabilitation, we leave him alone," said El Lobo. "If he doesn't, we machine gun him." He did not explain how they can be sure the victim simply failed to understand the cryptic warning.

One victim apparently never had a chance to mend his ways. A peasant cooperative leader, staying at the same small hotel in Tegucigalpa as my associate, disappeared the day after he arrived. Police found his body crammed into the trunk of his car, his head riddled with bullets. The official explanation of the crime was "robbery."

El Lobo said his group gets "unofficial help" from the Honduran military, whose head, Gen. Gustavo Alvarez, is the de facto ruler of the country. Alvarez dismisses even the best-documented reports of leftist disappearances as "subversive propaganda."

But in 1982, Leonidas Torres Arias, former Honduran military intelligence chief, defected and publicly implicated Alvarez in death squad activity. Torres Arias is now in hiding in the Washington, D.C., area. He is afraid to speak out, for fear he will be deported to Honduras and certain death.

Take Your Time In Pruning Back Dead Plant Material After 'Big Freeze'

The "big freeze" of Christmas 1983 is now starting to show its full effects on our landscape plants. The news media has been very helpful in getting post freeze information to the public with the repeated suggestion to be in no hurry to start pruning.

Every day it is becoming more obvious that this recommendation makes good sense. The two days of very low temperatures apparently caused much more serious damage than appeared to be the case shortly after the freeze.

On the more tender plants there now seems to be much more twig and branch damage and the plants are dying back much further than would normally be expected.

Frank J. Jasa

County Extension Director
323-2500
Ext. 182

Even less hardy trees such as the golden raintree and ear tree will likely have to sprout out from the main trunk or branches. Shrubs such as gardenias, hibiscus and crotons were mostly frozen to the ground level. Even though they appear entirely dead, in most instances they will sprout out from the stump.

The recommendation still holds — take your time in pruning back the dead plant material. Most of the new growth will not be evident until spring, which is the time to start removing the dead branches.

Most of the more hardy trees and shrubs will lose their leaves but wood damage should be minimal. Most of the citrus trees are dropping their leaves which is a good sign. If the leaves remain attached such as on the more tender lemon tree, there is likely considerable wood damage. All of the citrus fruit in this area was frozen unless well protected. The relatively cool weather has kept the fruit from breaking down, however, the majority of it has dropped to the ground so we will have an extremely short season.

While most of the shrubs and trees will likely recover, that is not the case with cold sensitive foliage plants. Those plants that were not brought inside will not recover. Most of the succulent plants were entirely frozen and have no heavy "stump" from which to resprout. Even plants that were brought inside carports or unheated garages may show severe damage.

Post freeze care of damaged plants should be limited to a normal watering schedule. Fertilizing should be held back until plants start spring growth and then should be applied sparingly. Remember, that the size of plants has been reduced and thus will not require as much plant food.

If there is one consolation in all the bad news, the freeze damage should also reduce the number of insects on plants. The one exception would likely be aphids which may become prevalent on all the new tender growth when it emerges.

Lawns that appeared to get through the freeze in good condition are now also showing the effects. Most of the grass has turned brown and even the grass stems are showing some damage. Except for some weak spots, lawns should recover if there are no more severe freezes. The same cultural practices apply as in plants. Follow a normal watering schedule and hold back on fertilizing unless lawn has been overseeded with ryegrass.

In following post freeze cultural recommendations, it must be remembered that this freeze was early in the winter season and additional frosts and freezes are possible and even likely. Because of the current damage, these plants are more vulnerable to additional cold weather and should be protected if freezing weather is forecast.

School Defeats Longwood In 'Gardening' Contest

The teachers of Geneva School claim the children have been so quiet since coming back to school.

The school has three new well-needed cabinets donated by Keeth Elementary. Also cabinets and nice tables were donated by Southern Bell and Kathy Glenn.

Nancy McNamers was asked to be on a national committee to review children's literature books that are being published. Nancy has received new books valued at more than $3,000 from the Geneva School Library. It is expected that over $10,000 worth of new books will be added to the present library collection.

Nancy also reports the new playground equipment is almost finished. There will be a dedication in a few weeks, she says.

Geneva School is proud to say they won the crown for collard greens in competition with Longwood Elementary School. The Geneva students grew 18 pounds of collards in 48 square feet of soil for a 6.0 ounce average.

Thanks go to Terri Edge and Mrs. Brooks for taking their time out during the holidays to care for the plants in the greenhouse at the school.

Two children are chosen from each class at Geneva Elementary as "most helpful."

'Disrupting' A Life May Sometimes Save It

DEAR ABBY: Recently a problem occurred that I hope never occurs again, but in case it does, I want to know how to handle it.

A friend who lives 300 miles away started writing letters containing threats of suicide. She is divorced with a 6-year-old daughter. I became concerned, so I telephoned her. At first she seemed normal, then she became hysterical and started shouting things that made no sense at all. Among other things she threatened to kill her daughter and then commit suicide. Then she hung up.

I was terribly worried, so I called her back. She went into a rage again, vowing to kill her child and herself. Then she hung up again.

I tried frantically to reach her mother, her brothers and her ex-husband, who live near her, but I could reach no one. Finally I called my neighbor over who urged me to notify the police in my friend's town, so that's what I did.

The police picked her up and she was subsequently hospitalized. She's better now, but she has never forgiven me for "disrupting" her life.

My husband says I was wrong to have called the police, but what were my alternatives? I couldn't take a chance on her carrying out her threat. If I had called a minister or psychiatrist, she wouldn't have let them in. How would you have handled it?

GOOD INTENTIONS
DEAR GOOD: Just as you did. It's sometimes necessary to "disrupt" a life in order to save it. I hope your friend comes to realize that you acted in her best interests. In the meantime, don't judge her too harshly. She could still be far from well.

DEAR ABBY: I am the grandmother of a very smart, strong-willed, 20-month-old boy who resides in a state in which seat belts for children under four years old became mandatory right after the first of the year.

No matter how tightly this child is strapped into his seat belt, he can pull a "Houdini act" and wiggle out of it. I have seen him do it twice, even while he was wearing a bulky winter coat!

He refuses to ride in a car unless he's sitting on someone's lap, and he absolutely will not stay buckled in any kind of seat belt. Spanking, bribing and reasoning have not worked. I am worried sick that his mother will have an accident while trying to force that child to stay buckled up. Please help.

MISSOURI GRANDMOTHER

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: There is an obvious power struggle going on between your daughter and her young son — and the boy is winning. Advise her to consult her local safety council (motor vehicle division) for some helpful suggestions. And if this precocious 20-month-old is already calling the signals, your daughter should take a course in parenting, or the boy will have her jumping through hoops before he's three.

DEAR ABBY: I recently celebrated an "important" birthday and received many lovely cards.

A friend casually mentioned (on seeing the stack of cards) that I would be very tired by the time I had written thank-you notes for all those cards.

Abby, does a person have to write thank-you notes for cards?

WRITER'S CRAMP

DEAR CRAMP: No one "has to" acknowledge anything. But those with the best manners acknowledge everything — cards included.

Every teenager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Art Groups Asked To Perform At Capitol

Secretary of State George Firestone today issued an invitation for all performing arts groups interested in appearing in the "Live! At the Capitol" series during the upcoming legislative session to contact the Department of State. This series consists of one-hour performances starting at noon each weekday during the season, which is scheduled to begin April 3 and end June 1 this year.

Each participating group will be responsible for its own transportation and lodging.

"Response to last year's series was excellent," Secretary Firestone said. "Performers came from every corner of the State."

The goal of the series is to make the performing arts more accessible to the public and to provide a showcase for performing groups. It is thought to be the only regular performing arts series using a State Capitol rotunda as its stage.

Secretary Firestone indicated that musical, dance and theatre groups are all welcome to participate. Those interested should contact Dennis Hewlett, Division of Cultural Affairs, Department of State, the Capitol, Tallahassee, Florida 32301. (904) 488-3956.

Heating Does Not Rid Milk Of Lactose

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read in your column about a woman who suffered stomach cramps and bouts of diarrhea until it was suggested she stop drinking milk. I have found that for me this has improved a similar problem.

Can you please tell me if it's only raw milk that causes this trouble, or whether it also happens with foods in which the milk is boiled, such as Ovaltine, milk pudding and custard? What about milk products, such as yogurt, cream cheese, cottage cheese and ice cream? I avoid them all, except butter and real cheese.

DEAR READER — You are wise to avoid them all if you have lactose intolerance. Some people who have this problem with milk are unaware that lactose is in many foods other than milk. It's even in a large number of candies. And, of course, lactose is found in all food prepared by using milk, such as milk gravy, or as you mentioned the desserts made with milk puddings.

Heating milk does not get rid of the lactose. Lactose is a double sugar. When a person doesn't have enough enzymes in the digestive system to break the double sugar down into two single sugars, problems occur. It can't be absorbed into the blood stream and the undigested lactose is fermented, creating the symptoms that people complain about, such as gas distention and bouts of diarrhea.

You will find variable amounts of lactose in yogurt, depending on how it is prepared. Cottage cheese may contain less lactose, but it will contain some. Even processed cheese will contain a certain amount of lactose.

Butter shouldn't, because it simply contains the fat in milk and not any lactose. Of course, if you wanted to avoid butter, you could use margarine made from vegetable oil.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Why have I been gaining weight in recent months? I'm a 30-year-old woman, 5 feet 6 inches tall and weigh 124 pounds. Four of those pounds were gained within the past 10 days; and nine in the past three months.

I don't think of myself as overweight and it is awfully depressing to find my clothes fitting tighter even though I watch what I eat and exercise daily. I jog five miles a day at least four times a week and I ride a stationary bicycle for 30 minutes daily.

DEAR READER — It depends on the type of weight gain. A person's weight may fluctuate five pounds just on the basis of how much water the body retains, or how much undigested food residue is retained in the digestive system.

If it's fat, you should know from the fat under your skin. In that case you are eating too many calories for your level of exercise. If you are really eating very little and you still gain weight, you might check with your doctor to be sure it's not related to your metabolism. Only a few people gain weight because of a low thyroid problem.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

lead. South wasted no time in getting himself into trouble. He won the club lead in his own hand, led the jack of spades and let it ride. East took his queen and returned the eight of hearts.

South was on the horns of a dilemma. He needed either a successful heart finesse (a 50 percent chance) or a good break in diamonds (which, if they didn't break 3-3, could also combine in a possible squeeze if the same defender held four diamonds and the king of hearts).

South finally decided not to go right down. He rose with his ace of hearts and ran off his top tricks slowly, carefully and unsuccessfully since West held the diamond stopper and East the king of hearts.

Do you see how South chucked the hand? He should have tried the heart first. If it had lost, he would have had no immediate decision to make and could have tried both the spade finesse and the diamond break in his own time. Of course, the heart finesse would have worked, and the slam would have come right home.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

North looked at his 18 high-card points and responded with a Stayman two clubs to his partner's opening no-trump. South denied possession of a four-card major and since South used a 15-17 point range for his no-trump openings, North settled for six no-trump.

Floridians Go Skiing?

Sure, Nearest Resort Is Only A 10-Hour Drive

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

If you dream of snow skiing — schussing down steep slopes kicking up puffs of powdery white snow as the cold, mountain air turns your cheeks a ruddy red — it may be easier and less expensive to fulfill that dream than you think.

The most popular ski destination in North Carolina, Beech Mountain in Banner Elk, is just a 12-hour drive from Central Florida, making it easily accessible to skiers who want to hit the slopes, but avoid the $400 round-trip airfare to a western resort like Vail or Aspen, Colo.

Sanford travel agent Melissa Petsos said if you ski the eastern slopes you will also save money on lodging and equipment rental, but you usually will be skiing on man-made snow over a 4-5-inch natural snow base.

She said that natural snow, much more abundant out West, is more powdery and easier to ski than the icy man-made white stuff common in the East.

Even so, she recommends eastern and southeastern skiing for the beginner and the budget conscious.

The southeast resorts are geared to the weekend skier and most lodging is available for a minimum of three days. Rates are about $60 a night for a single and $90 a night for a group of three, although cheaper rates can be found.

And the price of lift tickets from East to West can be like a vertical drop at Vail. While lift ticket prices hover around $25 in the western resorts, they can be as low as $5 a day in the East.

The western resorts are usually booked for a weekly stay and at a premier Rocky Mountain lodge, expenses for a week can run upwards of $500, including meals.

Other southeast ski areas include Sugar Mountain, N.C.; Snowshoe, Va.; Gatlinburg, Tenn.; and Cataloochee, N.C., the closest ski resort to Central Florida, a 10-hour drive.

Skiing expert Henry Barlow, the author of several books on the subject, has this comparison of the slopes in the East and West: "It's a different world and requires you to be a much better skier. The eastern slopes are more narrow, more crowded and more of a challenge."

He said the western slopes are barren and impersonal and the narrow trails in the east are more interesting.

The eastern snow isn't as good as the Rocky Mountain snow, according to Barlow, but he said some skiers prefer to ski on man-made snow.

Ms. Petsos, who started skiing as a child, said she prefers to ski in Vermont, because natural snow is more plentiful there than in the southeast and the atmosphere is more hospitable than in the West. She also said that the airfare to the West is so expensive that you could spend the same amount of money and buy a European ski package.

Even so, Harry Mason, the 50-year-old president of the Ski Club of Central Florida, said the 300 members of his group prefer to ski out West. He agrees that the southeast is a good place to start, and recommends the novice first try skiing there. He said the only other advantages to skiing in the southeast are the proximity of the resorts and their cheaper costs.

He said an advantage of traveling with a group like his are reduced rates (about $800 total cost for a round-trip to a western resort including everything except equipment rental) and the companionship of other skiers at all skill levels.

Both Mason and Ms. Petsos said that the Florida skier probably should not buy any equipment, pointing out that rental equipment and professional instruction is available in all ski areas.

Mason said members of his club usually travel in a group of 50-100 skiers and make six to eight trips a year. Members pay $15 annual dues per person, or $25 a year per family. And, he added, trips are not non-stop skiing. There is time for other activities such as horseback riding and rafting.

Mason said: "Skiing is a beautiful sport. If you are an outdoors person I urge you to try it, because it will grab hold of you. I've never found a better way to relax, except maybe sex."

His favorite ski resort is Snowmass, Colo. "It's a quaint village with a massive scenic area. It's so gigantic that no matter how big the crowd is it's an easy place to ski and the lift lines are short. It's a good place to go to lose yourself."

Study: Religious TV Shows Favor White Males

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Religious television programs are "highly unrepresentative of the real world" and imitate commercial TV shows by favoring white men over minorities and women, a university study says.

Robert Abelman and Kimberly Neuendorf, communications professors at Cleveland State University, studied three episodes each of the 27 most popular religious programs in the United States.

"Both commercial and religious television programming are highly unrepresentative of the real world population. This negates the possibility of positive religious role models for women and minorities," Abelman said.

Minority characters in religious programs — ranging from game shows to soap operas to evangelism programs — usually hold minor or guest roles, are younger in age and have lower income levels than whites, the study said.

Church worker characters overwhelmingly were male and from the middle and upper classes, the report said.

The researchers found regular viewers of religious programs, usually watching more than two hours a day of such programming, are exposed to an "incredible" amount of contribution requests.

Liberace In Concert

By Cindy Adams

NEW YORK — Here organizing his Radio City Music Hall appearance in April, Liberace told me: "I'll wear $1 million in wardrobe. And I'll have 10 changes." One suit is purple satin with a matching cape that has a high collar, ruffles, lining and 16 foot train which six rockettes will carry. Another outfit is made with pink seashells, pearls and coral. The coat weighs 126 pounds. "You get a hernia lifting it," the entertainer said. "I got one idea from the coronation robe of King George V."

In his Hilton suite eating a Big Mac right from the take-out container, Liberace said: "Elton tries to copy me but it doesn't work. When I started this in the '50s, people gasped, 'Ohhhh, Goddd.'"

For his spring concert, he'll have three pianos, drive on in one car, change to another, drive off in a third and have 10 security guards "just for my furs and jewelry."

'Smithsonian World' Airs 7-Part Series

By Peter Meade

Anyone who thinks of the Smithsonian Institution as just the home of moon rocks, Archie Bunker's chair and the Wright brothers' flying machine has a lot to learn from PBS' new series "Smithsonian World," to premiere Wednesday, Jan. 18.

The 138-year-old Smithsonian, headquartered in Washington, D.C., is really 13 museums, the National Zoo and seven research institutes. The seven-part series, hosted by author and historian David McCullough, plans to show the many worldwide facets of the Smithsonian.

"The Smithsonian has an interest in everything," says McCullough. "Our hardest choice was what not to use. This series is much more than a walk through the Smithsonian."

Executive producer Martin Carr, who spent more than two years researching the institution, chose the themes for the seven programs. "Time and Light" is the first program, followed by "Crossing the Distance" (on Feb. 15), "Speaking Without Words" (March 14), "Designs for Living" (April 11), with "A Desk in the Jungle," "Filling in the Blanks" and "The Last Flower" airing later in 1984.

In "Time and Light" McCullough traveled to the Smithsonian's multiple mirror telescope, located two miles above sea level at the University of Arizona in Mount Hopkins, to study the light from far away galaxies. Then in Rockford, Ill., McCullough took his time walking through the Time Museum, one of the most extensive clock and watch collections in the world. The hour continues with excursions to Puerto Rico, a Caribbean island, the Vatican and the Grand Canyon.

"We came up with the concept of a magazine show," explains Carr, "because there are art, science and history shows on television, but there is no reason why they must be separate. We want to show the relationship and unity between each subject. People in all different fields are studying similar phenomena, like time and light, yet they're doing it from different perspectives."

ABC's 'Automan' Runs Out Of Gas

By David Handler

I got real excited when I heard that ABC was launching a new action series called Automan. I thought it was going to be a show about a hero who's half-man, half-car. I thought it was going to be a major breakthrough in car-chase television.

Rats. Fooled again. Our new small-screen hero is not of the four-wheeled variety. Still, this is a show that will stun and amaze you. Your jaw will go slack. Your eyes will glaze over. You will not believe what you are seeing.

This is no illusion. This...is Automan.

Walter Nebicher (Dest Arnaz Jr.) is a wimpy police department computer wizard who longs for the action and adventure of the streets. No chance. His boss, Captain Boyd (Gerald S. O'Loughlin), thinks he's a glorified typist and an ineffectual boob.

Nobody at the department thinks much of Walter, except for one rumpless, loner detective, Curtis (Robert Lansing), and a gorgeous blonde secretary, Roxanne (Heather McNair).

In true comic book tradition, our frustrated, misunderstood hero spends long, lonely nights tinkering in his basement. He's inventing a computer game called Automan. He has programmed Automan to be what he wants to be — the ultimate detective.

One night he punches the right button. The building shakes... the lights dim... and... and... suddenly this big, beefy young guy appears out of nowhere. He speaks with a slight English accent and glows blue from the neck down. He's Automan — sprung to life as a hologram. Some poor stiff named Chuck Wagner plays him.

Each week, Walter and Automan solve a big case that is stumping the entire department. Actually, there's a third party — Automan's diamond-shaped cursor, which can draw him anything he needs. A jet plane? A chopper? A suitcase filled with $100 bills? You name it and with a blink of the eye it's real. Sort of.

His sleek little sports car is especially neat. Because he isn't in the same dimension as the rest of us, Automan can make 90-degree turns, though they do tend to squash Walter up against the windshield.

When Automan's behind the wheel the city streets become one giant arcade game. Red lights are no problem. He knows the traffic light computer. "Green, please," he says politely.

Auto's only problem is he needs a lot of juice. He lives by night. When the city wakes up, he weakens and dims. He can keep himself going for a few minutes by holding his hand against a light socket — and gasping — but ultimately he must climb back in the computer.

There isn't much else you can say about Automan except that it's basically the same show as Manimal only the gimmick is a computer man. Both shows have been created and produced by Glen Larson, a man whose picture ought to be posted in every school principal's office in America.

Abbott&Costello Team Had Eight Players

DEAR DICK: A month or so ago I saw a rerun of The Abbott and Costello Story, with Buddy Hackett and Harvey Korman. I have listened to their famous "Who's on First?" baseball routine several times and never can catch the name of the player in right field. Is there a right fielder? And, if so, what's his name? — M.L.O., Washington, Mich.

DEAR DICK: What was the title of the film featuring Roman Polanski and Sharon Tate in a frolicking adventure with vampires in Transylvania? — V.J.H., Spencer, Wis.

That film, which a lot of us found more dreary than frolicking, was made in 1967. It was called The Fearless Vampire Killers.

DEAR DICK: In the movie, The World According to Garp, the stars were Robin Williams and Mary Beth Hurt. In the movie Popeye, the stars were Robin Williams, Shelley Duvall and Wesley Hurt. My question is, are Wesley Hurt and Mary Beth Hurt related? —

Ask Dick Kleiner

P.S.S., Trenton, N.J.

No. Mary Beth is a Hurt by marriage only; she used to be married to William Hurt.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know what happened to Jim Nabors? I never see him on TV anymore. Is he married? And how old is he? — B.H., Mobile, Ala.

Don't fret for old Jim. He's doing OK. He lives in Hawaii — and he lives quite well. He made a bundle and invested it wisely. He's big in the macadamia nut business there. He also sings in Hawaiian hotels occasionally. He is not married and this year he celebrated his 50th birthday.

DEAR DICK: A friend of mine told me when Wayne Newton first appeared on TV he wore horn-rimmed glasses. I say he never wore glasses. Needless to say, we both believe we are right. — B.B., Kalamazoo, Mich.

Monta Matoba, who has worked with Newton for more than 20 years, says she has never seen him wear glasses, except for sunglasses.

DEAR DICK: Not long ago I bought a bottle of wine with the Smothers' Brothers name on it. Are they big in the wine business and are they serious about it? — M.L., Santa Marina, Calif.

Yes, they are. This past season, they won several medals for their wine — including a gold medal at the Sonoma Harvest Fair. That was considered a coup, since the Smothers' Winery isn't even in Sonoma County.

DEAR DICK: I know that Erin Gray of Silver Spoons used to be a model. Is she still modeling now that she's a regular on TV? — R.R., Amarillo, Texas.

Yes, Erin manages to continue both careers. She just signed a new deal to be spokesperson for Bloomingdale's department store in New York. She has held that position for six years now.

Variety And Price Make It Nice

Try Dining In Sanford: You'll Like It

Sanford is fortunate in having a variety of restaurants available, most of which offer substantial fare at moderate, if not downright, reasonable prices.

Anything from "down home country cookin'" to dishes with a touch of the international can be found in this community. Chicken and pizza are popular favorites, according to most restaurant owners interviewed, but so are steaks, seafood and other upscale dinners.

Breakfast seems to be a big deal at a small price here with many restaurants serving up platters of sausage gravy on biscuits or the more customary eggs, bacon and...

Restaurants which have been featured in this space during the past eight months exhibit a menu aimed at pleasing the local clientele. Keep it simple, as the expression goes, although simple does not mean without planning, care, thought and, of course, much hard work.

The results of the restaurant features in this space have been surprising to the dining place owners in many instances, bringing many new faces through their doors to try their tempting feasts.

A restaurant advertising on this page for 13 consecutive weeks is entitled to a feature article at least once during this period of the contract. No extra charge is made for this promotional story, which is usually handled through an interview with the owner or restaurant manager.

Multiply this by the average response to consistent advertising, and it is not difficult to understand the excellent reception to the whole program.

Cost of the program is minimal, based on a $4.45 per column inch rate for the weekly ad only. The feature appears Thursday in the Herald Advertiser and, again, on Friday in the Evening Herald's Leisure Magazine...in time for the weekend.

People everywhere enjoy going out and Sanford residents are no exception and, more than that, they like reading about their favorite restaurant, or one they have not visited in some time, or, perhaps, the "new eatery on the block."
