Car Lot Plans Spark Protests

By ED PRICKEIT
Herald Staff Writer

Locating a dealership at the site is "an incentive" for other commercial development — including other car lots, Chanary said. And Dickinson wrote a three-page letter to the commission asking the board to reconsider the decision.

Williams said today the "board did reconsider and decided not to reconsider."

Williams said he wasn't convinced that the dealership would harm the hammock's lush, forest growth. Also, the chairman said the county's comprehensive plan will include the hammock and provide special protection.

Williams agreed, however, that the Datsun dealership will be built before the comprehensive plan is adopted in October.

Planners say construction of the dealership could cause the following:

- Disturb wildlife in the area.
- Create a blight on an otherwise attractive area.

CALNO: Define Double Taxation Today

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Winter Springs City Councilman John Daniels, acting as chairman of the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County, told member governmental representatives Wednesday night that it is time for the county to move forward with defining sums of money levied against city residents in the form of double taxation.

Daniels said the chairman of the organization, Winter Springs Mayor Troy Piland, will be corresponding with the county commission to urge that the double taxation money be defined and offer assistance from the council in the effort.

Noting that a committee named by the Seminole County Legislative delegation, in a report to the legislators, designated 10 separate areas of county government where city taxpayers are denied services wholly or in part to the same degree enjoyed by residents of the unincorporated areas, Daniels said it is time "we queried the county on their anticipated actions dealing with the double taxation question."

"We have all sat back until now waiting for the delegation's committee to complete its report," Daniels said, adding he is

Ranch May Have Illegally Put Kids In Foster Homes

By MARYLIN TIPTON
Herald Writer

Despite having been notified by the Florida Department of Social and Economic Services that only their Chulota and Glastonbury Avenue, English Estates facilities were licensed for child care, the Sky King Youth Ranches of America, Inc. apparently continued to place children in unlicensed homes.

In a letter dated September 10, 1976, addressed to Kirby Grant, founder of the ranch, a representative for the state specified: "I have been informed by our Winter Park staff that you have already moved some children into another facility. I must advise you that only the residence at 1411 Glastonbury Road is licensed as a child caring facility and children can be accepted for care only at that facility."

The letter continues, "Please advise Mr. Corley (Harrell Corley, executive director) that children must be placed only at the licensed facility, and that I will have to have a program description prior to the issuing of a license for additional facilities."

The letter is signed by "Doris Abraham, Consultant, Foster Care Program" for the department. Mrs. Abraham said today more facilities had been licensed for child care by Sky King Youth Ranches of America, Inc.

In a statement dated

November 1, 1976, and signed by Corley, he turned over two children to a couple for care, claiming "legal custody" of the children.

"Right now we just found out this morning that SES is investigating all phases of the operation and I do not feel it would be appropriate for me to make a statement at this time," Corley responded this morning.

According to Chapter 39.01, subparagraph 9: "Legal Custody" means a legal status created by court order which vests in a custodian, whether an agency or an individual, the right to have physical custody of the child and the right and duty to protect, train and discipline and to provide him with food, shelter, education and ordinary medical dental psychiatric and psychological care. An agency granted legal custody shall have the right to determine where and with whom the child shall live, but an individual granted legal custody shall exercise all rights and duties personally unless otherwise ordered by the court."

The letter is signed by "Doris Abraham, Consultant, Foster Care Program" for the department. Mrs. Abraham said today more facilities had been licensed for child care by Sky King Youth Ranches of America, Inc.

Boy Parlays Bottle $$ Into Inauguration Invite

IMMOKALEE (AP) — A 6-year-old boy with an affection for girls, Kojak, mixed vegetables and politics has parlayed a garage full of soft-drink bottles into an invitation to Jimmy Carter's inaugural.

The cream-colored envelope carrying David Whittington's personal invitation to the President in a inaugural ceremony arrived several days ago. It made the curly-haired blond the toast of Bethune Elementary School.

"Since they found out what I did, they even gave me more food today," David said Wednesday. "Usually, you only get one scoop of mixed vegetables. But today I got two."

David, wearing a "Jimmy Carter, For President" T-shirt and a

Weeks passed. No T-shirt. David's mother, Connie, finally sent a letter to Carter headquarters in Atlanta and explained the situation. Shortly afterward, a Carter aide called the family, asked how the boy was and expressed the thrill that a 6-year-old would care enough to contribute.

David soon got the T-shirt and a bonus — a signed photograph of Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter standing on the podium at the Democratic National Convention.

"My husband was for Ford and I was for Carter," she said. "We used to banter back and forth and I got David on my side."

Mrs. Whittington said that after being introduced to politics, David kept abreast of the Carter quest while also keeping up with his girlfriends.

"He kept track of the delegate count and actually knew more than most of my friends," she said.

The boy was roaming around this week — and will tell all in The Sunday Herald.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Demands Continue

For Probe Of Labor Party

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Demands for a full investigation of the latest scandal to hit Israel's ruling Labor Party continued today despite Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's claim that his housing minister who committed suicide was falsely accused of embezzlement. The potential for damage to the party's chances in the May 17 election was heightened by suggestions that Avraham Ofer shot himself Monday night because Rabin and other members of the cabinet turned their backs on him.

Mass Funeral Readied

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Approaches to the Christian sector of Beirut were barricaded today in preparation for a mass funeral of the victims of the bombing Monday night that killed 40 persons, the Christian Phalangist radio reported.

Incoming motorists were stopped. Cars allowed to enter were given careful checks by Syrian troops. An investigation into the bombing and other attacks in the Christian enclave northeast of Beirut points to the Lebanese Communists, the newspaper Al Ahrar said. The paper speaks for former President Camille Chamoun, his National Liberal Party and its Tigers militia.

Lebanon Begins Censorship

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Censorship was imposed on news dispatches sent out of Lebanon by foreign reporters beginning Wednesday. Censorship of all publications inside Lebanon began Monday.

Outgoing dispatches cleared by the censors Wednesday and today indicated that only reports from the Lebanese Christians and the Syrians would be allowed to be sent abroad. These dispatches contained no information from the Palestinians or the leftist Lebanese Moslems.

The maximum punishment for violation of censorship regulations is five years imprisonment.

3 Hanged For Sabotage

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Syrian government hanged a Palestinian and two Syrians at dawn today, less than five hours after announcing their conviction on charges of sabotage instigated by Iraq. Hundreds of people gathered in the main squares of Damascus and the northern city of Aleppo to watch the executions.

Damascus radio announced that another death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, three other members of the sabotage network got life terms and five others were sentenced to prison terms ranging from one to seven years.

...Sky King Ranch

(Continued From Page 1-A) says she has never supplied anyone with medical release or custody forms. Her daughter was previously a resident at the Gastonberry facility but was moved due to the presence of teenage girls. "My daughter is 11," she said, "and she just didn't need to be around those older girls. Anyway, my child is not in the custody of the ranch," she said. She also said that Corley picks her child up each morning at the house in Matland and delivers her to school in English Estates. The State Department of Social and Economic Services through their Winter Park office, is now investigating the alleged placement of children in unlicensed homes and other activities of the Sky King Ranches of America, Inc.

Police Badge, Cuffs Taken In Breakin

Seminole sheriff's investigators today were probing an office burglary at Lake Howell High School in south Seminole and Sanford police were looking for the thief who took an Orlando policeman's badge from his car parked at a Sanford apartment complex.

Sheriff's deputy John Thorpe reported burglars smashed glass in an exterior door and an office door to gain entry at Lake Howell High, on Dixie Road.

An electric typewriter and a CB radio base station, valued at $744, were reported missing from the school office after the break-in.

Orlando policeman Samuel B. Ins reported items valued at $250 were stolen from his parked auto at Seminole Gardens Apartments, W. Sixth St., Sanford.

Sanford police patrolman R. T. Nance said the items stolen included an Orlando Police Department badge, an Orange County Deputy Sheriff's badge, a pair of handcuffs, 20 stereo tapes, a blue jacket and other personal items.

Trial Delay Sought

Charles Jess Palmer, 38, of Longwood, is seeking a four-month delay in his trials, scheduled at Sanford next week, on four counts of prostitution, three charges of sexual battery and two counts of incest.

Palmer, arrested Oct. 8 at a fish camp west of Sanford on the Wekiva River where he'd been vacationing, was identified by then-State Atty. Abbott Herring as the head of a south Seminole prostitution ring allegedly operating out of a rental residence in The Springs, west of Longwood.

"It appears to be a pimp-type commercial operation with a promoter," Herring said. "We have evidence of a very sophisticated operation and indications of steady customers."

Palmer has filed a handwritten motion for a trial continuance from his Seminole County Jail cell. In the motion he asks the circuit court declare him indigent, appoint an attorney and allow a four-month trial delay so he can prepare his defense against the felony charges.

Henry Gonzales, a Tampa lawyer listed in court files as Palmer's attorney but in the motion Palmer says Gonzales is withdrawing from the case unless he gets a $5,000 fee in advance of the trial.

Meanwhile, Palmer's wife of five months, Christine Curtis, 27, of Altamonte Springs, was acquitted Wednesday by an Orange County circuit court jury on prostitution charges. She was arrested on the Orange County charges in Seminole on Oct. 20.

Tax Rules On Sick Pay Changed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of Americans may find themselves unexpectedly owing money to Uncle Sam on 1976 income taxes because Congress last year changed the rules on sick pay and income earned overseas.

At the same time, Congress put off the effective date for two tax-saving benefits so that eligible taxpayers will have to wait until they file their 1977 income taxes.

The congressional decisions were prompted by the desire to raise more revenues to meet federal budget goals. In the case of sick pay and foreign income, the law enacted Oct. 4 was made retroactive to Jan. 1. Thus, taxes will have to be paid on such income for the entire year.

The same law also gave some taxpayers a break by making it easier to take a deduction for alimony payments.

Texas Town In Grips Of Rabies Epidemic

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

- ★ Fires
- ★ Courts
- ★ Police Beat

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — Police in this border town have orders to "shoot to kill" any dogs acting suspiciously as authorities fear a rabies epidemic that has killed at least 20 dogs is likely to spread further.

Seven persons, including two children under 10, have been bitten by rabid dogs and 14 other persons have been exposed. All started getting antirabies shots before the incubation period ended, and none has contracted the almost invariably fatal disease.

"Certainly 20 cases is an epidemic," Jose Gonzalez of the Laredo-Webb County Health Department said Wednesday. "Because of the nature of this disease — the incubation period of 20-60 days — the tremendous possibility of secondary infection means we are going to be facing quite a lot more cases before this thing is through ..."

"This is the first case (in the Laredo area) in 20 years. But we are very concerned, since we haven't reached a peak yet," he said.

So far only two of the rabid animals have been shot by police. Most of the dogs have had "dumb rabies," meaning they usually don't bite but drool all the time. The saliva has the virus in it, and many owners are exposed to it when they put their hands in their pets' mouths to ease the choking.

According to the federal Center for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta, only two persons are known to have survived after contracting the disease before the painful shots could be started.

Rabies is a form of encephalitis, which causes an inflammation of the brain. An initial nervous reaction is followed by hydrophobia, a fear of water. When it reaches that stage, death is almost certain.

The CDC said the Mexican border is practically the only area of the United States where rabies in dogs has not been eliminated.

Ex-Migrant Aid Boss Reported Under Probe

LAKELAND (AP) — The Lakeland Ledger says the former head of a Florida migrant workers' aid organization is being investigated for possible misuse of federal funds. The newspaper said Wednesday it learned Otis Williams is suspected of mismanaging portions of the $1.5 million grant the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL) allocated to the Community Action Migrant Program (CAMP) in 1976. Williams was then board chairman of the non-profit organization.

Panel Weighs Amur Issue

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission lawyers say they don't want to stop research on an exotic weed-eating fish — but neither do they want a rival agency to stock more lakes with amur. Commission lawyer Kenneth Hallett said that a proposed panel rule to halt stocking of more lakes won't end legitimate research on the white amur by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

The cabinet was to examine the proposal today for a possible hearing.

Unionist Rejects Miami Bid

MIAMI (AP) — Negotiations in the Christmas Day hotel service employees strike have bogged down in another steppe after the union's national leader stepped in and rejected management's offer. "I took over the negotiations," said Edward Hanley, president of the Hotel, Motel and Restaurant Employees union, after he flew in from Cincinnati on Wednesday and halted talks conducted by federal mediator Leland Dean.

Illegal Evidence, Case Dropped

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

State Atty. Douglas Cheshire's office dropped drug charges against an Orlando man Wednesday after Circuit Court Judge Robert D. McGregor ruled that evidence seized by police couldn't be used in his trial.

Alfonso Leon Faniel, 26, of Orlando, had been arrested on charges of felony possession of heroin and possession of drug paraphernalia in connection with an Aug. 9 incident at Altamonte Springs.

Defense lawyer Richard Rhodes argued that a search of Faniel's apartment by police was illegal. Judge McGregor granted a defense motion to suppress evidence in the Wednesday hearing at Sanford.

The court dismissed a receiving stolen property charge against Jim Franklin Poovey, 56, of 1414 Valencia Court W., Sanford. Poovey had been charged with possession of an air compressor reportedly stolen in Indian River County.

Faniel and Poovey had been scheduled for trials next week before Judge McGregor at Sanford. There are 53 other cases remaining on the court's trial docket for the next two weeks.

3 More Join Area Committee Sewer Panelists Named

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The final three appointees to complete the nine-member North Seminole regional sewer system advisory committee were named by representatives of Lake Mary, Sanford and the Seminole County Commission Wednesday.

Named were John Carli, marketing representative for Chase and Co.; L. Michael Durak, formerly with the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council; and Sidney M. RICHARD Jr., Sanford director of utilities. Although RICHARD is leaving Sanford employ for a similar job in New Smyrna Beach, he plans to continue living in Sanford for at least a year.

The three men will join representatives of the governing bodies — City Manager W. E. Knowles and City Commissioner John Morris of Sanford; County Commissioner John Kimbrough and Administrative Assistant Roger Neiswender of the county and City councilman Harry Terry and Nick Martucci of Lake Mary — on the committee. Under a tri-party interlocal agreement, the three governing bodies have organized the interim study committee to solve the need for regional sewer treatment for the north end of Seminole County, as required by federal regulations. Purpose of the committee is development of a plan for a permanent organization to administer and develop the regional concept on sewage treatment. The organizational meeting of the committee is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday in the city commission room at Sanford City Hall. Paul Porter of Clark, Dietz and Associates, consulting engineers, will brief the members on the status of the work.

Cabinet Stocked With Fine Talent

President-elect Jimmy Carter completed his delivery of Cabinet packages before Christmas as he promised.

The final three high-level appointments made by Mr. Carter represent an interesting span of administrations and philosophies, ranging from President Kennedy's administration to that of President Ford.

Of the three, Theodore Sorensen, who will be the director of intelligence, may have the easiest task. He is familiar with the activities, having participated in National Security Council meetings during the Kennedy years.

More Herculean tasks face Joseph A. Califano Jr. and James R. Schlesinger who were appointed secretary of Health, Education and Welfare and energy director, respectively.

HEW is the epitome of how bureaucracies just grow. Not only has it resisted the efforts of presidents to reform it, it is not fulfilling its public service functions properly.

Conversely, Mr. Schlesinger's task is as much to deflate the expectations of American citizens as it is to align the various energy offices into a single file.

The inauguration is yet to take place, but in the infant Carter administration all systems still are go.

Odd Russian Game

The Western news media have been worried about the possibility of restricted Olympic news coverage ever since the Soviet Union acquired the games for 1980.

Few could have expected that the restrictions would take an economic form, or come so soon.

The coverage and sums that may yet change hands are clouded in mystery. But there is no doubt that the Soviet Union is milking the Olympics for all of the Yankee dollars that it can acquire.

It all looks very capitalistic from here.

West Point Honor Code 'Mockery'

The Corps of Cadets at West Point has voted to retain the academy's much-criticized code of honor as is.

The penalty for any violation of the code - which states that "a cadet shall not lie, cheat or steal, or tolerate those who do" - remains automatic expulsion.

At issue was a proposed change which would have introduced an element of flexibility in the handling of code violators by permitting an honor board to consider a cadet's experience, attitude or previous record.

Yet about the same time as the cadets were holding their referendum, a special commission convened in the wake of the worst scandal in the academy's history - a scandal which resulted in the expulsion of 121 cadets for allegedly cheating on a take-home test.

The commission, composed of both active and retired officers and headed by former astronaut Frank Borman, has recommended that the 121 cadets be immediately reinstated and that the honor system be reformed to allow punishments other than expulsion, depending upon the offense.

However, Army Secretary Martin R. Hoffman was expected to reject this proposal. There will be no immediate reinstatements, he indicated in announcing a timetable calling for at least a year's suspension before reinstatement.

The wording of the honor code should be retained as it is, says the commission's report, but cadet honor boards should be allowed to take into account whether an offense was self-reported and be given the latitude to issue warnings or to order counseling for inexperienced cadets accused of trivial offenses.

The present West Point honor code, the commission found, actually rewards the dishonest while punishing those who admit mistakes. This has turned cadets "cool on honor."

Sour Evidence About Saccharin

WASHINGTON - The Food and Drug Administration is sitting on scientific evidence that saccharin, the artificial sweetener used by billions, may cause cancer.

The evidence is so persuasive that many FDA officials are privately alarmed at the agency's failure to act. Saccharin should be taken off the market, they say, because of several tests showing it causes malignant tumors in the bladders of animals.

The tests are as conclusive, scientists have told us, as the evidence linking cyclamates and cancer. Cyclamates have been banned from the market.

Americans consume five million pounds of saccharin each year in diet drinks, ice cream and puddings. It is also widely used as coffee and tea sweeteners.

Yet the FDA has established from its own tests that a disturbing number of animals developed malignant bladder cancer after consuming saccharin. Other studies indicated that saccharin caused cancer of the uterus in female animals.

The FDA is supposed to protect the public from dangerous foods and drugs. Yet the agency won't issue warnings against saccharin until more tests have been conducted. These will take at least until 1978.

Our sources compare this attitude to the FDA's inaction on Red Dye No. 2, which the agency left on the market for 15 years despite evidence that it causes birth defects, genetic damage and cancer. The dye was finally banned this year.

The General Accounting Office, after a confidential investigation of its own, warned the FDA that the continued use of saccharin "could expose the public to unnecessary risk."

Somebody should write a book about conventional wisdom - how it sustains us, nourishes us, betrays us and finally mucks us.

Conventional wisdom is a catch-all term. It refers to beliefs held and propagated by the major institutions of any society. It reflects a learning plateau, which may be a high or low plateau, depending upon the society.

Conventional wisdom is frequently challenged by new ideas, but those who put forth such ideas do so at their own peril - even if science and history eventually prove them correct.

The great scientist Galileo had the temerity to challenge conventional wisdom, and was viciously prosecuted. The explorer Columbus ignored conventional wisdom, which held that the earth was flat, and was viewed by many as a fool or a madman.

One example of modern conventional wisdom which has later proved faulty would include the acceptance of the Warren Commission report on the death of J.F.K. Although accepted as gospel at the time, recent developments have shown us that it was woefully inadequate.

Another example would be the arguments in support of the war in Vietnam, which proved to be a disaster. Few people now recall that the war was widely accepted as justifiable during its early and middle stages. The New York Times editorially proclaimed the morality of the American position.

Now another crucial issue confronts Americans, and conventional wisdom is as prevalent as ever. The issue: amnesty for Vietnam-era draft evaders.

Conventional wisdom, as usual, has produced many emotional and irrational arguments in support of the position that the draft dodgers should be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

But let us not forget that one of the prime functions of conventional wisdom is to protect fragile egos threatened by developments which reveal naive and stupidly.

There is blame aplenty in the Vietnam debacle, but those who deserve it most - the politicians and generals who engineered our involvement - have escaped completely. They retire with fat pensions, among the accolades of the public. Conventional wisdom reigns supreme.

Thus we must strain at the gnat - the guilt of the draft dodgers - while the monster issue of supreme guilt is ignored.

But it had nothing to do with those who evaded the draft. And if some died after some others evaded the draft, does punishing the evaders make those deaths less final? Does it make them more meaningful? Does it change who is responsible?

Holley Battles Merit System

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - Florida's new constitutional amendment providing for merit-retention of judges is under attack once more.

Charles Holley, a defeated Supreme Court candidate, took his challenge to the amendment to the 5th U.S. District Court of Appeals on Wednesday.

Holley, a Naples attorney, wants the New Orleans court to overturn a decision made last month by U.S. District Judge William Stafford of Tallahassee. Stafford upheld the amendment.

The amendment, which went into effect this week after being approved by the voters last November, does away with contested elections for Supreme Court and district court of appeal judges in Florida.

Holley contends the amendment violates the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution because it prohibits direct election of judges.

But Stafford ruled that voters would still be electing judges and the 14th Amendment was being violated by Holley.

Deputy Atty Gen. James White said it was unclear whether the new Orleans court up to a year to decide the case and that the amendment was not in jeopardy while the case is pending.

Afraid You're Going Deaf?

Chicago, Ill. - A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone, a non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

True, all hearing problems are not alike... and some cannot be helped by a hearing aid. But audiologists report that many can. So, send for this non-operating model now. Wear it in the privacy of your own home to see how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 5815, Beltone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, Ill. 60646.

The 6,000-Year-Old Hunters

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) - Nine skeletons unearthed in Warren County may be those of people who hunted deer and gathered roots and berries as much as 6,000 years ago, scientists say.

Dr. Jack Schock, an assistant professor of anthropology at Western Kentucky University, said that all but two of the skeletons have been removed from a building site near Plum Springs. A bulldozer exposed the bones.

Can 1978 Be Far Behind? Shevin Twits Tucker -- The Race Is On

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin has taken advantage of a rare opportunity to direct some political mischief at House Speaker Donald Tucker, a probable rival for the 1978 Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Shevin advised House dissidents last week that the legislature would not have to consider veto messages if rebels formed a special session on rules reforms.

The attorney general's opinion, which has the impact of law unless overturned by a court, made it easier for the dissidents who were pressing for a special session.

Tucker refused to call a special session on his own, saying he had given House members every opportunity to change the rules at the 1978 session.

But the dissidents produced evidence of strong support, and Rep. Hyatt Brown, D-Daytona Beach, negotiated a compromise.

Brown, who has not been considered a dissident, got Tucker to agree to support several rules reforms and allow the House to consider them at the start of the 1977 session.

That helped to get Tucker out of the immediate box in which Shevin's opinion helped put him, but the rules conflict is by no means over.

It remains to be seen if the dissidents can get legislators to pass the reforms Tucker agreed to support. In addition, it is unclear how hard the dissidents will fight for reforms beyond those Tucker approved.

There is no doubt, however, that the dissidents would have less leverage with which to pry concessions out of Tucker without the fulcrum provided by Shevin.

It was widely assumed by legislators prior to Shevin's ruling that lawmakers were required to reconsider last year's vetoes by Gov. Reubin Askew at the next regular or special legislative session, whichever came first.

Shevin's interpretation of the Florida Constitution, however, runs contrary to that assumption. Could there be a hint of politics in the attorney general's opinion? Some people think so.

But then the issue of a special session is marbled with political considerations.

Reps. George Sheldon, D-Tampa, and William Nelson, D-Melbourne, are leaders of the House dissidents. It was Sheldon who requested Shevin's opinion.

It has been reported that both Sheldon and Nelson have higher political ambitions. Sheldon reportedly is considering a 1978 race for secretary of state — if Smathers runs for governor.

Nelson, meanwhile, has some Tampa area backers who are pushing him for governor in 1978.

"I never seriously considered that," he said. "I never cease to be amazed at how rumors can get started."

Nelson, 34, is unquestionably ambitious, but governor may be beyond the scope of his immediate goals. Running for lieutenant governor in 1978 seems a more realistic possibility.

James Barrett, Shevin's press aide, said the attorney general's aides have discussed a number of potential running mates and Nelson is one of them.

Also figuring in speculation on possible Shevin running mates is Sen. Jim Gilson, D-Eustis, who switched parties last week with the attorney general's blessing.

Barrett's office distributed this week a press release for Gilson on the senator's bill calling for mandatory one-year prison sentences for convicted burglars.

The release, however, identified Gilson as a Republican.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gov. Jim Williams, the only person who has officially become a 1978 gubernatorial candidate, received calls from rivals in an effort to improve his name recognition.

Williams announced that his Department of Administration was renewing the state's health insurance contract with Blue Cross-Blue Shield despite a 25 per cent rate hike.

Sen. Robert Graham, D-Miami, and Insurance Commissioner Bill Guter wasted no time attacking the renewal — and Williams' for approving it.

Graham has said he plans to run for governor in 1978, while Guter is frequently mentioned as a possible candidate.

Williams' staff could have avoided the large health insurance rate hike by awarding the contract to Aetna Insurance Co., which would have cost more initially but promised second year savings, Graham said.

Guter said the health insurance hike was unacceptable and calls for the creation of a self-insurance plan administered by the state.

Club Notes

Juniors Hold Induction Lunch

The Junior Woman's Club of Sanford welcomed Martha Dowman, District Seven's junior district director, to their induction luncheon at the Sanford Inn. Club President Linda Beck presided, and Mrs. Walter (Bill) Gielow, club sponsor, was a guest of honor.

New club members include Nancy Crawford, Carol Quinn, Nancy Hirsch, Judy Wimshish, Gail Stewart, Elizabeth Ganas, Miriam Phillips and Myra Schand.

Also, Vida Smith, Edna Southard, Florence Stenstrom, Nancy Terwilliger, Annette Wing and Kay Hall.

During the business meeting, Nancy Terwilliger, members voted to give a donation to the American Land Trust for the acquisition and conservation of America's significant and threatened land areas.

The Ixora Garden Club closed out 1976 with a covered dish luncheon and plant exchange at the Sanora Club House.

The club house was decorated in the Christmas motif, complete with fire in the fireplace. Cheerful fellowship and a delicious lunch were enjoyed by the following members:

Katherine Bishop, Beth Bush, Carolyn Cornelius, Dossie de Gonalh, Boo Ganas, LeVerne Hamilton, Rose Long, Junny Mercer, Elsie Mero, Nancy Morgan and Shirley Schilke.

Also, Vida Smith, Edna Southard, Florence Stenstrom, Nancy Terwilliger, Annette Wing and Kay Hall.

During the business meeting, Nancy Terwilliger, members voted to give a donation to the American Land Trust for the acquisition and conservation of America's significant and threatened land areas.

Fathers Step Into Mothers' Shoes

NEW YORK (AP) — For nearly two years, James E. Levine crisscrossed the country talking to fathers who were willingly stepped into the shoes of mothers.

The result of those conversations is his recently published book on men and child care, "Who Will Raise the Children? New Options for Fathers (and Mothers)." In it, Levine examines what he terms a new phenomenon in the United States — the growing number of men who have a taste for full-time fatherhood.

These men, says Levine, include househusbands, single men who have decided to adopt, men who have sought and won child custody and men who arrange to work part-time so they'll have more time with their young children.

In his travels for the book, Levine spoke with more than 120 men who have taken on a different view of family living. The 30-year-old Levine, who is married and the father of two, is a consultant on day care and child care in Wellesley, Mass.

Given the newness of the idea of men as full-time givers of child care, the author said that few statistics are available on how many men have taken to what he calls "parenting."

Numbers are important, he asserts, "but we can't hang this on numbers alone, it's much more of a conceptual phenomenon. We've always thought of women in child-rearing roles and the fact that men are doing this is something new in itself."

Available figures show that 13 per cent of families in the United States are headed by single parents and 8 per cent are headed by men, Levine states.

The study he conducted with the aid of a Ford Foundation grant yielded this finding: A man's role reversal from family provider to child rearer needn't portend disaster — but can be a viable, effective choice that offers a fresh approach to family living.

Etching a profile of the man who typifies this new breed of father, Levine says he has found him to be:

"Very independent minded, with a lot of ego strength and self-assuredness; open-minded and flexible; supportive of the women's movement; and usually somewhere between his late 20s and early 40s."

Levine then lists the benefits he feels focused fatherhood offers to the family unit.

A major plus for the father, Levine continues, "is deriving an understanding of what women's lives are like, especially in terms of taking care of another person. A man also can develop an emotional closeness with his children, which many men can't express now."

Mothers benefit because more choices open up for them in terms of new jobs and the educational opportunities and other ways of fulfilling themselves as individuals, says Levine.

"Women who feel that child-rearing is their responsibility and that they must succeed as mothers will be relieved of some of their guilt," he maintains.

The child gains "by experiencing a breakdown of many barriers." The author adds:

"It's important for kids to see more men in nurturing roles — for them to see that it's okay to be caring and to be a male. This can have a big effect on kids' lives. When they see their parents share feelings as well as tasks, children can only become more flexible."

("Who Will Raise the Children?" is published by Lippincott.)

He Treats Wife (A Lady) Like Tramp

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to you a few years back asking why a married man would pick up some tramp and treat her like a lady, then turn around and treat his wife who is really a lady like a tramp.

Is it possible for damage to be done to a child if conception occurred while the parent was on a sandy beach and a grain of sand entered the woman's vagina and was carried into her womb with the sperm?

This didn't take place in a public area. It happened in private, but I have been worried about it ever since. Thank you.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please check this question with your medical advisers? I can't face my doctor with it and he has no way of knowing.

DEAR MINNIE: A man picks up a tramp because he wants a female companion who is no better than he is. In her company he doesn't feel inferior. He rewards her by treating her like a lady.

He treats his wife (who is a lady) like a tramp because he feels that by degrading her he will bring her down to his level.

Motion Sickness Related To Ear

DEAR DR. LAMB—What is happening to me while traveling in motion? I have had motion sickness of different degrees depending on the vehicle in motion. Thank goodness for Dramamine, although I try to read or carry on a conversation, I feel myself working against the experienced terrible motion sickness on a sailboat and a bus ride that was extremely fast, on a winding and hilly road. Could I have helped myself in another way? I am not nervous about any vehicles—including jets.

DEAR READER—Some people are more susceptible to motion sickness than others. It is generally believed that motion sickness is related to overstimulation of the three little balance canals (the labyrinth) of each ear. These work like a carpenter's level when you tilt your head the fluid in the canals shifts and this stimulates nerve endings that relay the information back to central control—the brain. This is one of the major ways your brain has of finding out the position of your head.

Some people can be trained to be less sensitive to motion. A good example is a long cruise. Many people will have motion sensation the first few days and then will no longer notice the movement of the ship. They no longer stagger across the deck. Then a curious thing happens—when the ship docks the people who have the most trouble with motion originally may have it return after they are off the ship. This is sometimes called "sea-legs." That too disappears after a few days.

Apparently a person's balance mechanism—canals and brain receptors—becomes accustomed to whatever level of motion a person is regularly exposed to, and when the exposure changes, either increasing or decreasing, symptoms of motion sickness occur. We worried about this in regard to the space program. We thought that when gravity was no longer a factor it might cause a temporary reaction and that when the astronauts returned to earth after a long space voyage it might be a problem. There were some reactions, but they were tolerable.

Incidentally, people can be trained to be resistant to motion by using special chiasmata designed to whiplash the individual about in different directions and literally overstimulate the balance mechanism. With enough stimulation it is possible to make almost anyone sick from excess motion.

Dramamine is commonly used to prevent motion sickness. It is an antihistamine and does make you drowsy. There are other medicines that are sometimes used to counteract the drowsiness.

You may be able to help yourself when you notice an attack starting. Lie back as much as possible and press your head against the seat or a pillow. Shut your eyes or focus on a fixed point. These hints may help, but very sensitive people still need to take medicine to avoid the unpleasant reaction.

Puerto Rico Statehood Hailed Here

Congress' reception to President Ford's eleventh hour request for Puerto Rico statehood may be cool, but the growing colony of Puerto Rican expatriates here is elated. They were so enthusiastic that they contacted Rep. Richard Kelly's office with a list of names favoring statehood and asked for his support of a statehood bill. Some have lived in this area for many years and others arrived only a few days ago from Puerto Rico.

Mr. Maldonado says he does not have a vote. Mr. Maldonado says he has a cousin serving in this capacity. Puerto Rico is not liable to federal taxation, this many of the wealthier class oppose statehood, which would impose income tax and other federal taxes, he said. Puerto Ricans do pay higher state taxes, however, and everything, including food, is taxed. The cost of living is high because of inflation and the high duties on imports into the country.

Mr. Maldonado said the average electric bill runs between $125 and $150 a month. Electricity and television is available in even the most remote part of the island. A 16-year tax exempt status has lured many industries, including the second largest oil refinery in the world, to Puerto Rico, said Cintron. Many items such as shoes and medicine manufactured in Puerto Rico are sent to the United States and imported into Puerto Rico and taxed making them costly to purchase, Cintron said. There are more cars per capita in Puerto Rico than any other state, he added. Gasoline costs 85 cents a gallon for regular, and an automobile which costs $4,000 would cost $9,000 there, Cintron said.

Cintron commented that "The U.S. gets more revenue from Puerto Rico each year than from Japan or from all the Latin American countries combined," and its per capita income—though far below the United States—exceeds that of any Latin American country.

Both men predicted that if Puerto Rico does not achieve statehood, eventually—in possibly 10 years—it would go Communist, Cintron said. Puerto Rico is one of the most important U.S. nuclear sites and would be a prime target in case of war.

Puerto Rico does not send members to Congress. It has a resident commissioner in the House of Representatives who may introduce legislation, but he does not have a vote. Mr. Maldonado said that if Puerto Rico is not granted statehood, it would be a prime target in case of war.

New Double-Tax Laws Unneeded, Panel Says; Talks Urged On Issue

No legislation is needed at this time to settle the double taxation feud between city and county governments in Seminole County, a special committee that has studied the issue locally told legislators Thursday.

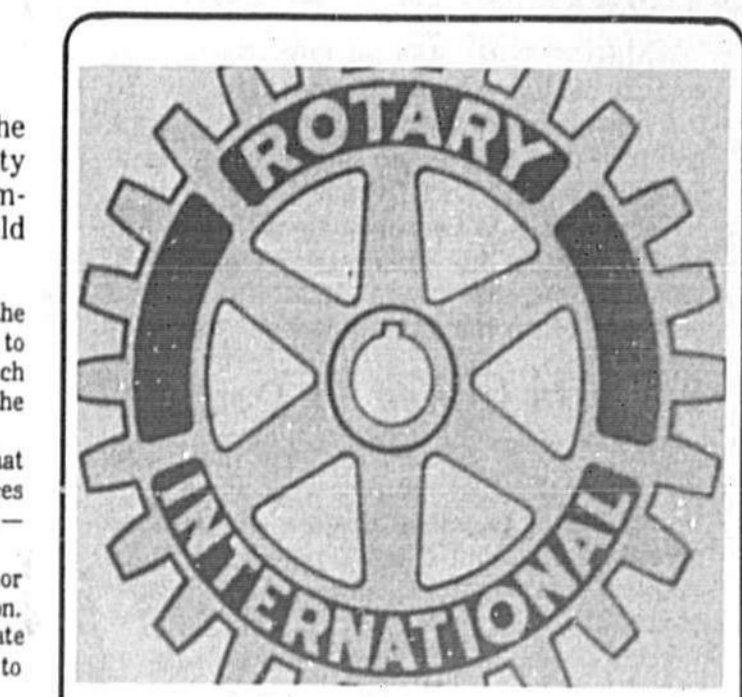

John Krider and Bo Simpson, chairman and co-chairman of the committee appointed by the Seminole Legislative delegation to conduct the nearly year-long study, said the only legislation which might be required is direction to the governmental bodies of the municipalities and county to work the problem out together. Krider and Simpson said the committee had determined that double taxation—taxation levied on city dwellers for services denied by the county or given by the city to a larger degree—definitely exists in Seminole.

But the men said the committee did not have the expertise nor the time or money to determine exact amounts of double taxation. A report given to the delegation by the group listed 10 separate areas of county government where double taxation exists to varying degrees. Krider said the problem is a very delicate one to solve, noting that in one county of Florida where it was admitted that double taxation existed, the county government solution was to raise taxes in the unincorporated areas, thus providing no relief to city taxpayers.

Senator Lori Wilson, who sponsored the current law banning double taxation, said that most people feel the Legislature has provided the necessary tools for local government to solve double taxation. "It goes back to the local governments cooperating," she said.

The ad-hoc committee said double taxation exists for city residents in the following county departments: building, planning and zoning; environmental services; subdivision street maintenance; traffic engineering, road resurfacing and grading; arthropod solid waste control, public works and disposal and the sheriff's department.

The committee in its report recommended that the delegation be prepared upon request or by voluntary action to advise these governmental agencies and interested parties to prepare retrieval data and present it to dialog between themselves and the county commission.

THE ROTARIANS ARE ON THE WAY...

About 150 Rotarians from central Florida cities will converge on Sanford Saturday for a Rotary luncheon, led by Frank Crowder, of Sebring, governor of District 695.

Meetings begin at 9:15 a.m. at the Sanford Civic Center. Host of the one-day affair for the 56 clubs in the district will be Tony Hamed, president of the Sanford Club.

Get out the old fish' pole, Monday. The Shad Derby, which opens Sunday, just might be your cup of tea. Or perhaps even your new fishing pole, or any of the other prizes which will be awarded in the 10-week tournament.

The rules are simple—go out and catch a shad. Limit is 10 per day. Simply bring the biggest one to one of the official weigh-in stations—which includes Lemon Bluff Fish Camp, Marina Isle Camp and Monroe Sports Center—and register it.

Tournament officials are recommending that shad be released, unless the proud fisherman has designs on a new wall addition. Shad, which migrate from the ocean, to Seminole County waters every four years, spawn and then die, with the offspring returning in four years to begin the cycle again.

Stock Lakes With Amur If That's What They Want

Two commissioners who are proponents of the white amur—giant carp—are waging a battle to get the fish stocked in lakes that are stocked, but both maintained it should go into Seminole waters if lakeside residents want it.

Commissioner Chairman Dick Williams agreed the amur will wipe out the game fish population, but the chairman said it's up to residents. "Fish or weeds?" the chairman remarked. County commissioners have decided on whether to place the amur in Lake Orienta, Lake of the Woods and Mirror Lake. Williams and French favor placing the carp in the lakes, while Commissioner John Kimbrough and Bill Kirchoff have voted in opposition.

The cabinet voted unanimously Thursday at a Tallahassee meeting to take testimony from the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), which favors immediate use of the weed carp, and from the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, which opposes introducing the weed-gobbling fish into Florida waters until further study is done.

The vote represented a partial victory for the game commission, which has feuded for two years with DNR over use of the Asian Carp to control weeds in Florida waters.
