Killer tornadoes: Aftermath

SANFORD - Tornadors that descended on Central Florida. killing 12 people in Sanford and at least 38 overall, have given way to sunny skies and mild temperatures. But the memory of the horror lingers for those picking up the pieces of ransacked lives.

Showdown Please, no sleaze plea from Fern Park

By RUSS WHITE Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - They came from Fern Park on Tuesday to plead their case one more time, and they vowed to be back at 7 p.m. on March 10.

That's the date the Board of Seminole County Commission ers is scheduled to make a momentous decision in the contentious adult entertainment issue.

For many years, Fern Park has been war zone for nude dancing clubs and sexually oriented businesses. Residents say they are fired of the sleaze. The county commission has been struggling for a solution not just for Fern Park but the whole county.

"We represent all the people in the entire county," Commisstoner Win Adams said at a public hearing Tuesday.

The big decision Adams and the other commissioners face is whether to "grandfather" the existing cabarets and sexually oriented businesses or make them relocate to industrial arcas in Sanford by Sept. 30. 1999. At this, Sanford is none too thrilled

Sanford Mayor Larry Dale has told the county that the city would terminate an interlocal agreement if the commisstoners fail to grandfather the Fern Park clubs. The county needs the Sanford sites to conform to a roling by the courts.

It appears that three of the five county commissioners will vote to grandlather the Fern-Park clubs. Chairman Randy Morris, Daryl McLain and Adams are the three. Grant Maloy and Dick Van Der Weide are vehemently opposed.

"Let's take the grandfathering provision out." Maloy said Tuesday. "Those strip clubs have a monopoly and a great location. And here we are spending our tax dollars to help competition from opening

"I'm not for grandfathering them in." Van Der Weide said, "These people (from Fern Park) believe the county has caved in which we have if we give in to these businesses."

Maloy and Van Der Weide voted against spending $800,000 to jump start a redevelopment of U.S. Highway 17-92, and said later that this money ought to go for a legal detense lund for suits against the adult entertainment indus-Ury.

cuss this with Mr. Daniels. He's perfectly willing to discuss this, but no, he reads about it in the newspaper and he's never even asked to comment on these matters." "The work sessions and commission meetings are open to the public and anyone is welcome to attend at all times." responded Mayor Larry Dale. Knowles responded that the city should have been more considerate and informed Daniels that the matter would be brought up. He then went into a lengthy report on the history of the Mayfair Country Club, originally owned by the New York Giants baseball team, and subsequently taken over by Daniels in 1981. Commissioner Whitey Eckstein reminded Knowles that a group of three had held the lease between the Glants and Dantels, to which Knowles disputed who actually held control during that period, insisting that Daniels was the main instigator during that time of major improvements to the course. They just couldn't maintain the course," Knowles said. "That's when Mr. Daniels came into the picture, and it was because of him that the course is as fine as it is today." "As it stands now," Knowles

Airport safety improves with new fire station

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - Ground-breaking ceremonies were held at 10 a.m. this morning for a new Aircraft Fire Fighting and Rescue Station at the Orlando-Sanford Airport.

Construction for the new 10,800- square foot station has already started on the cast side of runway 18-36 in the aircraft operations area. The location will allow for ready access to all aircraft areas as well as the passenger terminal.

Director of Marketing and Development Ray Wise said the new station will replace the 4,000 square - foot metal building originally constructed by the Navy as an alrcraft engine repair shop.

Financing for the new structure is being provided by the Federal Aviation Administration, Florida Department of Transportation and Sanford Airport Authority. In addition to the new facility, two new fire fighting vehicles are also to be purchased as part of the project. They are high mobility Oshkosh T-1500's, each carrying 1,500 gallons of water and 210 gallons of foam.

The total cost of construction and equipment is approximately $1.86 million.

When operational, the new structure will house six crash trucks, dormitory and living facilities for 10 firefighters per shift, an elevated observation tower and a state-ofthe-art rapid refill station for reservicing the crash trucks with extinguishing agent in the event of emergency.

General contractor of the project is McKee Construction Company of Sanford.

SANFORD - A proposed city study of the Mayfair County Club lease resulted in verbal head butting during Monday night's Sanford City Commisston meeting. On one side of the matter were the mayor and commission. On the other side: former Sanford City Manager Warren E. "Pete" Knowles.

During a work session meeting on Feb. 9, the commission discussed questions pertaining to the lease of the country club, including what was perceived as a lack of adequate financial information being submitted to the city. At that time, it was proposed that the city might undertake a study of the leasing agreements, and examine the club's financial books.

Monday night, Knowles appeared before the commission. identifying himself as the representative of Jack Daniels. present holder of the lease.

Knowles said he was upset over the commission instructing the city manager to direct the city attorney to investigate a possible default letter regarding rental payments between the city and country club. "Before you do something like this," Knowles said, "why couldn't you sit down and dis-said, "Mr. Daniels would just as soon walk away from it. Right now, he has a new lesse offer, and hopefully, it would be more palatable to everybody."

Knowles had given the commission information that United Golf, part of the Club Corporation of America, Nashville, Tenn., was interested in taking over the lease. He observed that the firm owns and operates over a hundred golf courses and clubhouses, with assets in excess of $200 million.

"But right now," he said, "I urge you to sit down and talk with Mr. Daniels. There was no audit required in the lease. This can be worked out without you threatening him with default. This isn't going to do anyone any good."

Knowles suggested if the city would be run properly, "if something is wrong, you would notify Mr. Daniels within 30 days, then he would have 60 days in which to reply. But you have not done anything like thus."

Regarding the audit, Mayor Dale responded that while there may be no audit required in the lease, nothing in the lease prevents the city from undertaking an audit.

Then he had better reexamine it," added Knowles. "I get the feeling you are reprimanding us," said Commissioner Velma Williams. "What objections does Mr. Daniels have to an audit anyway?" "It's because he hasn't been asked," responded Knowles. "One of my main objections is that you are airing this in the papers," Knowles commented. "Everything we do is a matter of public record," Dale said. "and as such it's available to the press,"

"You ought to let me teach you how to keep things out of the press," Knowles told Dale. "I go all over the state giving speeches on this and I know how it can be done.

The entire matter started when City Manager Simmons requested the commission approve his sending a letter to Daniels regarding provisions of the present leasing agreement. Subsequently, following a lengthy give-and-take with Knowles, Mayor Dale suggested a notice be sent to Mr. Daniels suggesting he and his staff meet with city officials and staff, and attempt to meet some type of unanimous agreement on the differences.

After long hiatus, Makah Indians will resume whaling

WASHINGTON-Sometime next fall-the exact date is a closely held secret -- a group of Makah Indians will embark through six-foot waves off the shores of Neah Bay, Wash., in a carved wooden canoe, for the purpose of hunting and killing four gray whales.

At their side will be a harpoon, the traditional whaling weapon of yesteryear, but also a specially designed, 50-caliber rifle to finish off the beasts as humanely as possible. Trailing the canoe will be a 200horsepowered boat, which will be used to tow the giant mammal to shore.

It will mark the first whale hunt in the lower 48 states in at least 30 years--and the first time in more than 70 years that the Makaha get to do what they took for granted for centurice, until commercial whaling nearly killed off the species.

The planned hunt has touched off an international firestorm involving the Clinton administration, the U.S. Congress and dozens of domestic and foreign environmental groups.

Since the Makaha announced their intentions, tribal leaders say they have received numerous threats from environmental groups, some vowing to block the hunt by any means necessary. A conservative congressman from the region, Rep. Jack Metcalf, R-Wash., has even joined with radical environmental groups, some vowing to block the hunt by any means necessary. A conservative congreasman from the region, Rep. Jack Metcalf, R-Wash., has even joined with radical environmentalists to sue the Clinton administration in an effort to block the hunt.

But not all environmental groups have been so quick to rush to judgment. Some, like Greenpeace and the Sierra Club, have remained mum on the matter. It's a touchy issue for liberala, who are torn be-tween their competing dealres to save the whales and to support indigenous cultures like the Makaha'.

Combined with the Intense media interest that will likely accompany the hunt, tribal leaders worry that their ancient ritual on their remote stretch of ocean will be come a classic, 1990s-style media feeding frenzy.

We've had big discussions about this for quite some time," said John McCarty, executive director of the Makah Whaling Commission, a tribal group. "We get piles and piles of letters (from people) who wanted to come in and be on the hunt. ...The more (attention) that's brought to us, the more secretive we're going to have to be."

Already the tribe has con-sulted with law enforcement agencies far and wide. The U.S. Coast Guard, the U.S. Marshals Service, the Federal Bureau of investigation and sevlocal law enforcement eni agencies have had discussions with the tribe about security.

The Makaha' big break came three years ago, when gray whales were taken off the U.S. government's list of endan-gered species. The gray whale population has grown steadily in the 30 years since serious conservation efforts began, to the point when they now num-ber some 22,000.

Once the whales were no longer endangered, the Makaha saw an opportunity to bring back some of their lost cultural heritage by reviving a 1,500-year-old tradition. Legally, they're on solid ground. A 1985 pact, the Treaty of Neah Bay, specifically guarantees the tribe's right to conduct whaling. It's the only treaty of its kind, we're told, and it's still valid.

Legally speaking, the Makaha didn't need to ask anyone's permission to resume their hunts. But that's what they did--for political reasons more than anything. First they went to the National Marine Fisheries Service and asked for a legal opinion. The agency's lawyers affirmed that the treaty was valid.

At the agency's urging, the Makaha then came up with a management plan on how to conduct the hunt and disperse the meat. (Makah officials say none of the meat will be sold commercially, though a bray whale can bring up to $1 mil-lion on the open market.) Finally, with backing from the Clinton administration, the Makaha won approval last year from the International Whaling Commission to harvest four whales. Nevertheless, Metcalf and several environmental groups are planning to argue in court that the IWC's approval isn't valid. Metcalf added that he doesn't buy the Makahs' piedge that the whale meat won't be sold commercially, "This is a historic, landmark decision," Metcalf said, "I don't think the people of American are ready for any kind of commercial whaling

But the Makaha' supporters say this has nothing to do with money or publicity and everything to do with a small group of people trying to revive their dying culture.

"(Metcalf's opposition) is completely out of keeping with his whole political agenda," said Alvin Ziontz, an attorney for the tribe. "But there's no personal vendetta here. We just don't like things being said about the Makaha that aren't true."

Human cloning: Nip it before the bud

BOSTON--To be frank, I've had a little trouble taking the business of human clonemaking seriously. Consider the most celebrated would-be cione-maker: Richard Seed. Would you take your infertility problems to someone named Dr. Seed?

When the Chicago physicist announced that he was going begin cloning people, thought the business motto alone went over the top: Identical Twins--30 Years Apart!"

The 69-year-old who conisseed that he is "only a near-enius" predicted cheerily that "Clones are going to be fun. I can't wait to make two or three of my own self."

That prospect alone would have chilled any lingering support for human cloning. And that was before the Raelian Movement, a Swiss cult that ves life on Earth was created by extraterrestrials, offered seed money to Seed. The whole thing has had the surs of high comedy, not cutting-edge science. But Seed planted a reminder in the fertile public imagination.

Soon after his announcesent, Dolly the sheep was followed by George and Charlie the calf clones. We are told that pigs are in the offing. A ceneral notion has grown that oner or later, somewhere or other, somebody will try to re-produce another body.

Now, in rapid order, the White House called for a five-year ban on cloning people, the FDA warned anyone not to clone without its permission and two pieces of anti-cloning Senate. gialation were filed in the regulated nature of fertility treatment is partly due to arguments about reproductive freedom that spill over from the abortion debate. The ad-vancing technology is also protected under the rubric of free scientific inquiry.

But the operating instruc-tions of private clinics also have been, in the words of Chicago-Kent law school ethicist Lori Andrews, "Show me the money."

Don't let them stop you." I have no idea of infertile adults would line up to be guinea-clone-pigs but, as An-drews says, "I think we are creating needs rather than meeting them." There is no "need" for a clone. And no excuse.

The medical risks of failure are horrendous. In cloning sheep, the rate of success was one healthy Dolly for 277 at-tempts. For cows it's five or ten out of a hundred. We have no ides how much greater the chances of miscarriage or deformities are for humans. As for the ethical, legal, psy-chological, philosophical risks of success--the odds are even worse. The legal world is already asking whether a clone is a person or a copy of a person. Does the original 'own' the copy? What does it say about a parent who reproduces himself or herself? What does it mean to a child? That he or she is a commodity?

Andrews raises the Michael Jordan Factor. Imagine if Clone Jordan broke his kneecap at age 10. Would that end his reason for being? Imagine if Michael had a heart attack at 40. Would that make Clone uninsurable? That's just the casy stuff.

When we talk about bans, someone in the scientific community inevitably warns us about stopping progress. But as the more reasoned of the two Senate bills--the Kennedy-Feinstein bill--suggests, it's not that hard to keep medical re-search on track while forbidding the creation of a human clone.

Spare us Dr. Seed and any other little seedlings getting ready to cash in on clones. This is one idea that has to be nipped before the bud.

Lake Mary's Robinson: the woman behind the champions

LAKE MARY _ This week's unsung hero is much deserved and long over due.

On the cusp of Lake Mary's girls basketball team's state championship, an unsung hero has come to light that has been in the back drop for vears

While head coach Carl Brown and the outstanding players on the team are receiving all of the publicity, press coverage and congratulations, assistant coach Laurel Robinson has been sitting back and allowing her fellow team members to enjoy their moment.

"Everyone deserves the credit for this," Robinson said. "It takes more than one coach or one player to make a team as special as this one is. I'm not one to want all the glory. I've been with these girls and Carl for years and I'm just so happy for them."

This is Robinson's moment as well and she descrives just as big a piece of the credit. She's waited a long time for this.

Coaching is something Robinson always knew she wanted to do. Born in Cleveland, Ohio, she played softball all of her young life and continued to play when, her family moved to Florida and she attended Eustis High School. In addition to softball, Robinson also played volleyball, basketball and swam at the varsity level.

After high school, Robinson attended Stetson University on a scholarship and played basket-ball and softball while pursuing a degree in physical education. When she graduated, Robinson was hired to teach at Greenwood Lakes and son was hired to teach at Greenwood Lakes and coached swimming as well as junior varsity bas-ketball, softball and baseball at her alma mater. Everything sort of came together for Robinson and the Lake Mary program five years ago. She decided to go back to college and get her Mas-ter's Degree which meant she wouldn't have nearly as much time to coach. She was ap-proached by the then Lake Mary strip basketball proached by the then Lake Mary girls basketball coach Anna Van Landingham and was asked to be the varsity assistant. "When Anna asked me to be her assistant, I When Anna asked me to be ner assistant, i knew that this was going to be a special situa-tion since I helped out with the Greenwood Lakes team and had Ashlee (Ballance). Lauren (Bradley) and Becky (Pedro) there. With my school situation it just worked out to be ideal for me. Then, the following year, Anna stepped down Carl was the junior yarsity coach and he down. Carl was the junior varsity coach and he told me that if I stayed, he'd stay."

Raiders eliminated Santa Fe edges SCC women in conference playoff

By DEAN SMITH Herald Sports Editor

OCALA _ Needing just one win to qualify for the state tournament, the Seminole Community College women's basketball team could not get over the hump, losing twice by a total of six points.

The Raiders of head coach Ken Patrick held leads of as many as 16 points in the second half Saturday night, but visiting Valencia Com-munity College railied to spoil SCC's final home game of the season, 60-58, at the Health and Physical Education Center.

That loss dropped the Raiders into a tie for second place in the Mid-Florida Conference with Santa Fe Community College from Gainesville last night at Central Florida Community College in Ocala.

SCC's Jaana Kotova scored 12 points and Gemma Riley poured in 11 points, but the Saints' Kym Howard countered with 18 points and Kim Cue 10 points as the two teams were tied at 47-47 at halftime. Howard and Cue stayed hot in the second half, with Howard hitting four more threepointers and scoring 14 points to finish with a game-high 32 and Cue netting 10 more to finish with 20 points as SFCC advanced to next week's state tournament at Chipola Junior College in Marianna.

Kotova and Daria Kudruyviacva tried to keep the Raiders' season alive, as Kotova dropped in 11 more points to finish with 23 points and Kudruyviseva coming alive to hit three three-pointers to acore 17 of her 23 points in the accond half.

Riley chipped in with 14 points and Crystal Tanner 10 for SCC.

Doing the damage for the Raiders against Valencia were Kotova with 17 points, Kudruyviseva with 13 points, issy Medhanie with 11 points and Tanner with 10 points.

Bretzer twirls a no-no

LAKE MARY _ Brian Bretser acted as if no-hitters were nothing special.

The Lake Mary left-hander fired a five-inning no-hitter last night as Lake Mary pounded Mainland, 13-0. in the Raminole Classic.

Bretzer struck out 11, including the final six batters and was helped by a Lake Mary strack which beltes four home runs and 12 hits in four innings. Bretzer improved to 2-0 and allowed only three walks on the "I've had no-hitters before," Bretzer said. "I just kept them off balance tonight."

She definitely has the talent, experience and ability. That isn't the point.

"This is something special that I could never walk away from," Robinson explained. "I'm not interested in taking on a head coach's position. I'm content right where I am. Bretzer was the ace of the staff last season and mixed fastballs with some wicked breaking balls to notch the no-hitter.

"I know Brian Bretzer will keep us in every ballgame," Lake Mary coach Allen Tuttle said.

Bretzer could afford to rear back and fire. The Lake Mary bats have been silent against some excellent pitching throughout the early part of the season, but they came together last night in a big way.

The Rams (2-3) struck early, scoring four in the first inning after Bretzer struck out two and got an excellent defenatve play from shortstop Scott Hilinaki on a shot

Tribe scalps Winter Springs

From Staff Reports

SANFORD _ Maria Duvall struck out five and pitched a three-hit shutout at Seminole blanked Winter Springs, 10-0, in a Seminole Athletic Conference girls' softball game at Seminole High School Tuesday evening.

The game was the home and Seminole Athletic Conference openers for the Fighting Seminoles, which improved to 2-0 on the season.

Seminole will play a crucial Class 5A-District 5 con-test at Deltona High School on Friday starting at 4 p.m. A win would put the Fighting Seminoles in the drivers seat for the top seed in the district tourna-ment as the local squad already holds a victory over another 5A-5 foe, Pine Ridge.

Seminole took control of the game right off the bat, plating six runs in the bottom of the first inning. The Things did not look too good for SCC in the first game Tuesday as it trailed 2-0 after two innings and the game was tied at 3-3 after four innings.

But the Raiders (7-6) took the lead for good with a run in the top of the fifth inning and then opened the gap up with two runs in the sixth and three in the seventh to win 9-3.

Brittany Scott (1-for-4, two RBI) and Desirae Schwartz, Jamie Sharp, Jonnie Beland and Traci Miller (one run scored each).

The second game was another scoring-fest with game tied at 7-7 after four inning before the Raiders put the game away with four runs in the sixth inning and posting a 13-7 victory.

Sunday's games were amazing, with the Raid-ers winning the first game 1-0 and then drop-ping the nightcap 4-3 in 10 innings.

Rene Hooper allowed only two hits in the first game, and the only run scored in the fourth in-ning when Ramey tripled with two out and scored on a single to center by Scott.

Ramey finished the game 2-for-3 with the tri-ple and run scored, while Scott was 1-for-3 with the RBI and Macaluso had a single.

Pork-Atarians squeal with delight

In my vegetarian days, the one meat I really missed was pork. Roast pork, bacon, pork chope, ribe, sausage — you name it, I like it. Pork is one of the reasons I'm no longer a vegetari-an, and I know I'm not the only one. At the River Run restaurant in Plain-field, VL, one of my favorite esteries, abseptsh vegetarians sneak in daily to order a side of the reataurant's local-ly grown and utterly delicious bacon. "In a vegetarian, so I always order it burned," one woman told me, by way of explanation. OK.

Anyway, if you are a pork-starian, I have some great recipes for you The first, a dish of pork chops in a ginger and pear sauce, is real "company" food — beautiful and elegant (but ex-— beautiful and elegant (but ex-tremely easy to make). It's from one of the few low-fat cooldbooks I use reg-ularly, "The Eating Well magazine. The stuffed pork ioin is also a crowd pleaser; it's from a coeldbook I collab-orated on with a chef named David Miles called "Fresh From Vermont." The third is from a new and lively book on meating called and lively book on reasting called "Reasons to Reast," by Georgia Chan Downard and Evie Righter. This sausage dish would be perfect for brunch, but I'd also serve it as a light supper. New that you have the recipes, all you have to worry about are those peaky vegetarians. When it comes to pork, they may eat you out of house and home.

How do I invest settlement cash?

DEAR BRUCE: My wife just received a large sum of cash from a lawsuit settlement due to an injury she received in an automobile accident. We are currently renting and would like to buy a house in two or three years. We have $8,000 left from the settlement. What should we do with this monev? - J.B.

DEAR J.B.: I assume, because you are buying your first home, that you are relatively young. If you are only concerned with interest, then consider short-term treasury instruments or even CDs.

However, it seems to me that you would be far better off considering a more aggressive investment. There are many solid growth-oriented mutual funds. While there is a risk of depreciation of capital, it is very likely that over a three-year period, the shares will increase in value. There is a high degree of liquidity; at any given time, the shares can be sold for current market value, which is based upon the overall portfolio.

DEAR BRUCE: I have a smallclaims judgment against someone in Florida. I want to collect. What is the best way to do this - or am I wasting my time? I heard that I might be able to collect from the liable party's homeowners insurance, but because he is in Florida, I can't put a lien against his home. - M.G.

DEAR M.G.: About 70 percent of small-claims judgments are never collected. My suggestion would be to go to a commercial collection agency that operates in his state. They will want about 40 percent of whatever they collect, but 60 percent of something beats 100 percent of nothing. They are professionals and earn their money. They may negotiate a settlement, but they have a stable of attorneys in case legal counsel is necessary. I wouldn't waste my time; I would just assign it to one of these companies.

DEAR BRUCE: 1 plan to remarry soon. My fiance is divorced with two children and has to pay very substantial child-support payments. If we get married, am I responsible for the child support the court has ordered? If this is the case, I think we will have to reconsider this whole thing. - H.W., Fortuna, Calif.

DEAR H.W .: If you do marry, I suggest you keep your finances com-pletely separate. That would mean separate checking accounts, no joint accounts, and separate credit cards. To avoid confusion, keep the accounts in your maiden name. I can find no responsibility on the part of another spouse to pay these obligations; how-ever, if you combine your assets, it is entirely possible that those assets could be attacked. In addition to keeping your finances separate, make sure you keep meticulous records so that this separation can be proved.

DEAR BRUCE: I am retired and am no longer able to earn money or recoup losses. This tends to make one conservative. We have treasury notes, stocks, bonds and utilities - all welldiversified. What is the best way to keep $10,000 to $20,000 so as to have it readily available without penalty for travel, home improvements and so forth? My husband and I cannot agree on the amount or the method. - J.L., Napa, Calif.

DEAR J.L.: I'm not sure what you mean by "without penalty." If you are talking about monies in a CD, where an early withdrawal has a penalty, then I understand. But no matter how you keep money, there is always going to be some reward or penalty. For example, if your portfolio is doing well and you keep $20,000 in a cash account, the penalty there is the difference between what it is earning in the cash account and what it would be earning had you kept it as part of your regular portfolio. Given the fact that this is emergency money, and you are well situated, it would make sense to apply for a $20,000 line of credit against your home. If you have to draw down on it, under the current rules, the interest paid is tax deductible. There is no cost

DEAR BRUCE: In a recent article, you responded to a question about "and/or" ownership of accounts. Your answer involved the term "either/or." There is "and" and there is "or," but there is no need for "either/or" (it is a redundancy); and the term "and/or" has no logical meaning. In a checking account, for example, two people may elect to have "or" ownership, meaning that either of the two can sign a check. They may elect to have "and" ownership, meaning that both must sign a check. But "and/or" would be the same

DEAR BOB: Thank you very much for the clarification. It is a pleasure to pass it along.

as "or." - Bob Stamey, Manhattan,

Kan.

DEAR BRUCE: I was working until the summer of 1996. I became disabled due to a serious health condition. I own nothing and have moved back in with my parents. I am 31 and currently owe $29,000 between personal loans and five credit cards. My income is $1,265 per month from disability and worker's compensation. Can I file for some sort of bankruptcy? I have called the creditcard companies and asked for a lower APR. What can I do to try to get out of debt? - K.E.N., Kennett Square, Pa.

DEAR K.E.N.: You can - and very likely should - file for Chapter 7 bankruptcy. The likelihood of your ever paying these debts off is remote. I'm not comfortable advocating bankruptcy in most cases, but your situation is representative of the circumstances the laws were made for - so take advantage of it.

Are HMOs good medicine?

DEAR DR. GOTT: According to media reports, health maintenance organizations are scheduled to increase their premiums sharply. I'm a working mother with health problems, and I'm a member of Oxford Health Plans. How can I fight the anticipated premium increases?

DEAR READER: Oxford is at it again. But have hope. The New York Times (Jan. 11, 1998) reported that Oxford is about to be audited by the State of Connecticut. This HMO has already agreed to pay an estimated $500,000 dollars in restitution charges to subscribers in New York because of billing irregularities. Moreover, Oxford recently reported a $78 million third-quarter loss. Is this the company that you want covering your health insurance?

On a broader scale, the Times article addressed the problem of premium increases in all HMOs. These 1 Gloss 7 One who is canvassed 13 Evening party 14 Cutting tool 15 Congenitally joined 16 Quantity 4 MV.'s deg. organizations purposely have kept their premiums low in order to seduce more employees and participants into joining. Now, with medical expenses rapidly escalating, the companies will very likely increase premiums - up to 8 percent - to overcome the artifi-cially low fees that they have charged to spur people to join. This increase is a major concern for many subscribers and raises serious issues about whether HMOs are the most efficient way to provide medical insurance.

As an individual, you have pitifully little recourse. However, if you - and thousands like you - vote with your pocketbooks by abandoning outfits like Oxford, you may be able to change the system by enrolling in other, more user friendly programs. In addition, state and federal authorities are actively involved in investigating HMO financial irregularities that could be possibly fraudulent.

For now, I advise that you sign on with the HMO that most closely meets your needs. The industry is clearly in a state of change. For this reason, I cannot give you an ironclad recommendation.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Insuring Your Good Health." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, selfaddressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention
