5th American Captive

Kidnap In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Gunmen abducted an American educator in Moslem west Beirut and an extremist Moslem group already holding American hostages claimed responsibility for the kidnapping.

The Islamic Jihad Organization, which is holding at least three Americans and three Frenchmen hostage, said in a statement to a Western news agency it had seized Frank Reed and accused him of being a U.S. intelligence agent.

U.S. Embassy sources refused to confirm or deny the report of the kidnapping.

Reed, in his 50s and a director of the Lebanese International School for four years, had reportedly converted to Islam, according to an aquaintance, but the Jihad statement described the conversion as a cover story.

"We have uncovered the game of Reed who thought that by converting to Islam he will be able to mislead the true Moslems who ... will punish all those involved (in the game)," it said.

Police official Youssef Midej told United Press International that Frank Herbert Reed was kidnapped by gunmen in a dark blue Swedish-made sedan near the Beirut Hospital in the Jnah area at Beirut's southern entrance at 11:05 a.m.

A witness said four gunmen in a Volvo intercepted a van with a foreigner and four Lebanese at Ramlet el Balda, an area near Jnah. Two gunmen got out of the Volvo and at gunpoint took the foreigner with them.

1928 Olympic Gold Medalist Games' Honorary Chairman

Betty Robinson Schwartz, 74, Olympic gold medalist on the U.S. Olympic Team in 1928 and 1936, has been named honorary chairman of Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, Vic Arnett, acting president, announced today.

"I think we are very fortunate to have an Olympic gold medalist in our own community who we can invite to be the honorary chairman of the Golden Age Games this year," said Arnett, who is originator and chairman emeritus of the Games in Sanford.

"I am pleased that she has agreed to serve. She is very happy we asked her and is looking forward to attending the Golden Age Games Executive Committee meeting on Sept. 23."

This year's Golden Age Games for men and women 55 years and older will be held Nov. 10-15.

Arnett said he first heard of Mrs. Schwartz when her husband, Dick, visited the chamber office and mentioned he was new in the community and his wife was a former Olympic winner.

Originally from Chicago, Mrs. Schwartz won the first woman to win the 100-meter sprint in the Olympics. An obscure 16-year-

New York Times Rejects Heathrow Ads

Too Disparaging, Newspaper Says

By Fred Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

A Heathrow advertising campaign blasting Manhattan commercial landlords and described by Jenio Paulucci as "provocative" has been labeled by The New York Times as "unfit to print."

Headlines, such as "Get Out of Manhattan — while you've got time" and "Say, Manhattan, when your lease runs out — let it!" are followed by copy citing New York commercial leases at $45 per square foot and comparing that with $18 at Heathrow International Business Center.

One block of copy states that the lease rate for a Manhattan office address also includes extras such as "gridlock, pollution, subway thrill rides and crowded steamtrains."

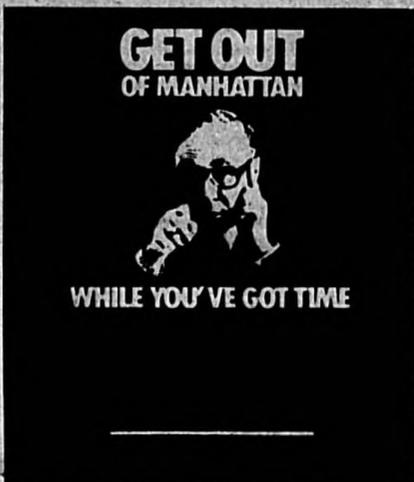

"Any advertising which denigrates the competition by engaging in name-calling is not considered suitable to print in our newspaper," said Leonard R. Harris, The New York Times vice president of corporate relations.

"The ads were severely critical of the city and its citizens and we feel advertisers should stress what is good in their product, not the bad in others," he added.

According to Heathrow spokesmen, the ads are scheduled to run in USA Today, the Wall Street Journal and Newsday newspapers, as well as the major newweeklies, Time, Newsweek and U.S. News and World Report.

However, a Newsday advertising executive said the schedule of ads was declined by that newspaper for

The Wall Street Journal accepted the two Heathrow advertisements shown on top, since neither refers to a specific individual, but refused to publish the ads directed to Mr. Trump and Mayor Koch.

Sanford Tax Cut On Way

22-Cent Drop Needs Final Vote

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford commissioners on Monday moved towards adopting the city's $16 million budget for 1986-87 and its accompanying $4.16 "rollback" property tax rate.

Commissioners tentatively endorsed the budget and tax rate.

Final adoption is set for Sept. 22 when a final public hearing will be held. The budget and tax rate will take effect Oct. 1.

The rate, $4.16 per $1,000 assessed property valuation, is 22 cents less than the property tax commissioners adopted to assist funding of last year's $13.5 million budget.

The rollback rate is possible due to increased property tax assessments and new property on the tax rolls. The rollback rate is the rate certified by the County property appraiser that would raise the same amount of revenues as the previous year's rate, taking into consideration higher assessments and new property. Sanford's tax rate last year was $4.38 per $1,000 assessed property value.

Commissioners on Monday further agreed contingency funds would be used to pay for a $20,000 van to assist a local senior citizens group and another $54,000 in contingencies would be transferred to the police department's budget for drug enforcement efforts.

The 1986-87 contingency fund contains $90,000. The $74,000 allocation from this account for the van and law enforcement additions will be reimbursed the fund after Oct. 1, with cash carry overs the city anticipates from its 1985-86 general fund, said City Finance Director Henry Tamm.

Also allocated Monday was $43,320 for city hall computer software. The monies are down payment on a $107,150 computer software agreement commissioners entered into with Lawson Associates, Inc. of Minnesota.

Down payment for the non-exclusive licensing agreement with Lawson came from 1985-86 capital improvement cultural arts funds, as proposed by City Manager Frank Falson.

Falson said these monies will be reimbursed the cultural arts fund after Oct. 1, with funds the 1986-87 budget earmarks for computer software and hardware. The balance payment on the Lawson agreement, $63,830, will also come from this 1986-87 fund, which contains $170,000 for computer hardware and software. Falson said his recommendation for the monies to be pulled from a 1985-86 account, although earmarked as a 1986-87 expenditure, was due to a necessity for "immediate" planning to begin for the new payroll system Sanford hopes to have in place by January 1987.

The system will process Sanford's payroll at city hall, rather than its continuing to be processed at Lakeland city hall, he said.

Gunman Grabs Italian Consul

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — An armed man burst in the Italian consulate in Cairo today and took the consul hostage, Italian and Egyptian officials said.

There were reports three Egyptians were also taken captive.

"An unknown person stormed the Italian consulate in Cairo today," the state-controlled Middle East News Agency said. "Egyptian police are taking charge of the situation. The reasons behind this action are not known."

First reports said the consulate was stormed by three terrorists. But an Italian embassy official said the attacker who took consul Francesco Ercolano hostage was alone.

"The situation is less serious than we thought at first," said the official, who asked that his name not be used. "The man is an Egyptian. He seems to be unbalanced. He is asking for money."

Hearing Tonight On County's Proposed Tax Hike

A county wide tax increase of 10.5 percent will be considered by Seminole County Commissioners during a public hearing tonight.

The proposed rate is $4.60 per $1,000 of property valuation. The 1985-86 tax rate was set at $4.18 per $1,000. County administrators are proposing a budget of $128.3 million. The 1985-86 budget was to $124.5 million, according to Jean Kassab, senior county analyst.

The proposed tax rate increase is 19.48 percent above the certified rollback rate of $3.85 per $1,000 property valuation.

The rollback rate is the rate which would yield the same amount of tax dollars as the previous fiscal year. The rollback rate takes into consideration higher property assessments and new property on the tax rolls.

The hearings will be held at the County Services Building, 1101 East First St., Sanford. Tonight's session is set for 7 p.m., however, it will likely start after that time, since the commission is also holding public hearings on amendment requests for the Comprehensive Land Use Plan, starting at 6 p.m.

City, Church Sign Pact In Land Dispute

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood and the Episcopal Diocese of Central Florida have reached an agreement over the former park where the city's police station is being built. The pact will pay the church $125,000 and grant other concessions in return for a quit claim deed to the property.

City officials are hopeful that this will clear the way for the $1 million loan to finance the police station. The loan is being held up by Sun Bank until the title issue is cleared. Under the agreement, the diocese promises to deliver the quit claim deed, releasing all interests it may have in the property, on the date the city closes on the $1 million bond issue or on Oct. 3, whichever comes first.

The diocese conveyed the property, which is bordered by Church Avenue, Jessup Avenue and West

Lake Avenue, to the city on Oct. 11, 1938 for $1, but the deed contained a reverter clause that would cause the ownership to go back to the diocese should the land be used for purposes other than a city park.

Longwood City Commission voted Monday night to authorize Mayor Larry Goldberg to sign the agreement, which was hammered out by City Attorney Ann Colby and the attorney for the diocese, David Hedrick. Representatives of the diocese are scheduled to sign the document today.

"I think it's great that it's finally reached a settlement," Goldberg said. "I still think the site is a good one and the cheapest. If we had to stop construction it would have cost us even more. Those who knew about the problem with the deed should have brought it to our attention before."

Construction has continued on the building in spite of the controversy, because the city would have been required to pay the contractor $800 a day if it was halted.

After the park was chosen as the site for the new police facility and construction began in June, ownership became in doubt when the reverter clause was pointed out by former commissioner Steve Uskert in a commission meeting.

The city has agreed to release Christ Church, Inc. (the local Episcopal church) from the restriction contained in a Dec. 3, 1964 deed that the west 50 feet of its property be used for parking purposes only. The church obtained the property from city in a land swap at that time.

The city has nullified any leasehold it may have on any of the property it conveyed to the church and has agreed to take down the baseball backstop now located on

Coretta King Cancels Meeting With South African President

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Coretta Scott King, widow of slain American civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., today failed to show up for a controversial meeting she had requested with President Pieter Botha.

Botha was kept waiting for 10 minutes before black American businessman Robert Browne arrived at his Cape Town office to tell his staff that the meeting was off.

Black dissident leaders including Winnie Mandela, wife of jailed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, had threatened not to see King if she insisted on seeing Botha.

There was no immediate comment from Botha's office, where aides were first visibly confused and then clearly angry when it emerged that King had decided to stand the president up.

Japan Joins SDI Program

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan today announced it has agreed to take part in the U.S. "Star Wars" research program, but left unsettled political and commercial concerns that senior officials conceded could derail active participation.

The decision, highly controversial in the only nation ever to suffer an atomic attack, came after 18 months of study and gave formal approval for Japanese defense, high-technology and electronics companies to participate in research on the Strategic Defense Initiative, also known as "Star Wars."

Pinochet People To Rally

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Supporters of President Augusto Pinochet, who survived an assassination attempt, planned to rally today in support of his government and its state-of-siege crackdown against political opponents, priests and the press.

Pinochet's supporters were to gather outside the presidential palace in the afternoon to express support for the 70-year-old army general on the eve of the 13th anniversary of his CIA-backed coup that toppled Socialist leader Salvador Allende.

IN BRIEF

Federal Auto Safety Laws 20 Years Old Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twenty years ago today, President Lyndon Johnson — noting that more Americans were dying on the nation's highways than in Vietnam — signed into law the first federal auto safety standards.

Since then, the legislation has been credited with helping save the lives of tens of thousands of Americans — probably more than the 58,000 U.S. troops killed in the jungles of Southeast Asia.

As he was about to sign the measures, Johnson said: "Over the Labor Day weekend, 29 American servicemen died in Vietnam. During the same Labor Day weekend, 614 Americans died in our highways in automobile accidents."

Brian O'Neill, president of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, said the non-profit private group would like to see air bags and automatic safety belts in all new automobiles because they save lives.

"They are cheaper ... than a day in the hospital," O'Neill said, adding that air bags could be produced for about $300 each.

In 1966, more than 53,000 people were killed in auto accidents at a rate of 5.72 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles traveled, federal statistics show. Last year, fewer than 44,000 people were killed and the number of deaths per 100 million miles traveled dropped to 2.47.

U.S. Mints Gold Eagle Coin

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — Patriotic collectors and high-rolling traders next month can buy the American Eagle — the first U.S. gold bullion coin minted in 53 years as legal tender — hailed as a beautiful, and shrewd, treasure.

Treasury Secretary James Baker pushed a button on a press Monday and put the United States into the market with the new gold bullion coins, whose prices are linked to the volatile gold market in competition with the Canadian Maple Leaf and South African Kruggerand.

The American Eagle coin, available Oct. 20, will be minted in four weights — 1 ounce, one-half ounce, one-quarter ounce and one-tenth ounce — and sold in $50, $25, $10 and $5 denominations. But prices will be set slightly above the gold market value, which soars to hundreds of dollars an ounce.

Teacher Strikes Tenacious

By United Press International
Teachers in three districts in Illinois, Michigan and Washington state have settled labor disputes but strikes that disrupted the start of the school year for up to three weeks today again shut out 93,867 students in seven states.

Teacher strikes today still disrupted elementary and secondary school classes for 17,600 pupils in Illinois, 5,800 in Massachusetts, 17,471 in Michigan, 4,100 in Ohio, 45,498 in Pennsylvania, 1,900 in Rhode Island and 1,500 in Washington state.

In New Jersey, a strike affecting 14,000 students at Fairleigh Dickinson University was settled early today, and 426 professors will return to work at the school's three campuses today, administration spokesman Regis Ebner said.

Longwood Mayor To Seek Re-Election

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood Mayor Larry Goldberg was undecided about running for re-election until his one-time opponent Dave Gunter Sr. "made up my mind for me."

Goldberg said when Gunter filed suit against the city commissioners in August seeking an injunction to halt construction of a new police facility in Peppermint Park and charging some of the commission's actions as unconstitutional, he decided to run again.

Longwood voters go to the polls Dec. 2 to fill two commission seats and vote on proposed amendments to the city charter.

Qualifying for the two Longwood City Commission seats held by Mayor Larry Goldberg and Commissioner Perry Faulkner will open at 8 a.m., Oct. 3 and close at 5 p.m. Oct. 17.

Goldberg represents District 3. Gunter, who lives in Goldberg's district, filed suit against the police building in August, charging the city illegally started building the facility when ownership of the land is in question. If no longer used as a park, the site was supposed to revert to its previous owner, Gunter contends.

Goldberg, 47, defeated Gunter, 48, for the commission seat in 1984 by 645 to 490 in a run-off. Gunter, who has been criticizing the commission at recent meetings, has said his suit is not politically motivated.

Faulkner said he is "seriously considering not running again," but is waiting to see how things go "business-wise in the next two months."

If the proposed amendments are approved by the voters, beginning in 1989, future elections will be held on the first Tuesday of November each year and newly elected and re-elected members of the city commission will be sworn in within 15 days following the date of election instead of the following January.

Another amendment concerning election procedures will specify that any qualified voter of the city may qualify to run a district commissioner and will be required to put up a non-refundable qualifying fee equal to five percent of the annual salary for commissioners. Candidates will no longer have to submit a petition unless they are unable to pay the qualifying fee, in which case they will be required to qualify in accordance with state law by submitting a petition signed by three percent of the registered voters.

The amendments were proposed by a Charter Review Committee, which had recommended the candidate receiving the highest number of votes, instead of a more than half the votes cast, be declared winner to eliminate the cost of a run-off election. At the recommendation of City Attorney Ann Colby a provision was added for a run-off in case of a tie, with the run-off election to be held on the second Tuesday following the regular election with the candidate receiving the highest number of votes to be declared the winner.

In the event of not more than one person qualifying to run for office for a designated seat, under the proposed amendments, the candidate would be presumed to have voted for him or herself and will be automatically elected without having their name placed on the ballot.

Other proposed changes have to do with appointment of the city clerk, city attorney and acting city administrator as well as future charter review.

Victor's Signs Recycled

Defeated Candidate Says He'll Run Again

By Paul C. Schofer
Herald Staff Writer

A defeated Seminole County Commission candidate says he'll run again, and an incumbent school member with a financially strapped campaign fund is recycling another candidate's signs in order to save money in his run-off campaign.

Robert Desmond, Jr., 28, R-Sanford, defeated by county commission Chairman Bob Sturm, 60, R-Lake Mary, in Sept. 2nd's Republican primary, says he'll probably run for a commission seat again in two years. Commissioners Fred Streetman, Barbara Christensen, and Bill Kirchhoff will be up for re-election. He said he would review each commissioner's record in determining which seat to seek.

Desmond stopped short of making a full endorsement of Sturm in his November general election race against Democrat Bob French, 52, Casselberry, but said his efforts will now be concentrated on "reuniting the Republican party."

Desmond took 40 percent of the Republican vote in his loss to Sturm. French said he hopes to capitalize on trying to attract the more than 5,000 voters who cast ballots for the rebel Republican. Sturm got more than 7,300 votes. French's name did not appear on the Democratic primary ballot since he is unopposed.

"By the numbers, I lost Tuesday, but I consider it a moral victory," Desmond said. Some veteran observers were surprised by the amount of votes Desmond attracted.

Meanwhile, incumbent school board member Bill Kroll, Longwood, whose campaign fund was broke by primary time, says he spent much of Thursday "pulling up Frank Stone's signs." Kroll said he'll have them re-printed, to carry his name.

Stone, R-Casselberry, who defeated State

Rep. Carl Selph to capture the House District 34 seat, doesn't need the signs anymore. He has no Democratic opposition in the November general election so he was elected by just the primary vote. Stone's signs were larger than Kroll's, and were colored in red and white, as Kroll's were.

Kroll says he asked Stone's permission to collect the signs for re-use in his general election runoff against Larry Betsinger. Longwood. Kroll and Betsinger were the two top vote getters in Tuesday's District 1 non-partisan school board race, while Rudy Sloan was eliminated. Kroll won by a narrow margin, 8,142 votes (37.2 percent) against Betsinger's 7,955 votes (36.3 percent). To win the Tuesday race and avoid a runoff, a candidate had to capture 50 percent plus one vote. Sloan is said to be considering making an endorsement of one of the two remaining candidates.

Betsinger said the vote results, in which more than 60 percent of the ballots cast were for he and Sloan, show dissatisfaction with Kroll. Kroll says vote split in a three candidate race was expected, and that he will fare much better in the general election.

Kroll collected $2,380 for his primary race, and spent $2,429. Betsinger collected $2,465, and spent $2,414. Sloan's unsuccessful bid cost $7,476.

In the other school board race, Ann Neiswender, Paola, spent $6,059 to top the District 5 school board campaign spending over incumbent Jean Bryant, Sanford, who spent $1,071. Mrs. Neiswender was also the top vote getter, and will meet Mrs. Bryant in the general election runoff.

All board candidates funds were depleted by the end of the primary race. Kroll and others said they will attempt to raise funds to conduct their runoff election campaigns.

Gorbachev: Pact 'Not One Inch Closer'

U.S. Weighs Options In Daniloff Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. response to the Soviet jailing of American journalist Nicholas Daniloff could include cuts in official and cultural contacts and expulsion of Russian diplomats from the United States, administration officials say.

But President Reagan has stopped short of suggesting the issue could derail a second superpower summit between him and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

The line between criticism of the Soviets and optimism for another summit became increasingly delicate Monday as White House and State Department officials were asked about administration responses to the Daniloff case.

At the State Department, spokesman Bernard Kalb indicated the pre-summit meeting between Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, set for Sept. 19-20 in Washington, could be in jeopardy.

"We would hope that Daniloff would be released before then," Kalb said, then added, "Assuming the meeting takes place on schedule, there is no doubt in my mind that the Daniloff item will be one of the centerpieces of discussion."

In Moscow, declaring the superpowers are "not even one inch closer" to a meaningful arms agreement, Soviet leader

Mikhail Gorbachev said there is no guarantee he will meet President Reagan later this year in Washington.

Gorbachev said the summit depends entirely on meetings in the United States Sept. 19-20 between U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz and Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

"We expect that the meeting ... will help establish where we stand now and will show if the Soviet-American dialogue stands further chances of progress," Gorbachev said.

Gorbachev made his remarks in written answers to questions from the Czech newspaper Rude Pravo. They were released by the Tass news agency and read on Soviet television.

Gorbachev made no mention of Daniloff in his written remarks.

Gorbachev expressed disappointment in the U.S. response to Soviet proposals on arms reduction and the 13-month-old Soviet moratorium on nuclear testing which the U.S. has rejected as not being in its best interests.

"There is no sense in holding a meeting for the sake of nothing. Maybe this would suit somebody fine, but certainly not us," he said. "If one pieces the U.S. administration's post-Geneva policies together, the resulting picture is alarming."

"Since the Geneva meeting, we have not moved even an inch closer to an arms reduction agreement despite all the efforts by the U.S.S.R."

With the president meanwhile, White House spokesman Larry Speakes played down the link between Daniloff and the summit, saying preliminary talks for the Reagan-Gorbachev session are going ahead "without a change in schedule."

"It cannot be business as usual with the Soviets," Speakes conceded, and the Daniloff case will be raised "in every appropriate forum" with the Soviets.

Reagan himself did not mention the summit in remarks Monday at a fund-raising stop in Denver, but stressed that the future of U.S.-Soviet diplomacy hinges on the Daniloff case, which could become "a major obstacle in our relations."

Reagan sent a letter last week to Gorbachev personally assuring the Soviet leader that Daniloff, a correspondent for U.S. News & World Report, is not a spy — but the Kremlin responded by formally charging the reporter Sunday.

An administration official said Reagan, who returned to Washington Monday after a three-week vacation at his California ranch, had not decided what specific action to take since his message to Gorbachev was rejected.

The official said expulsion of some Soviet personnel at the United Nations "is one of the steps we could take" but such steps should not be confused with the forced reduction of Soviet U.N. staff scheduled to begin Oct. 1.

Under an order signed by Reagan, the official said, the Soviets will begin phasing down the number of their personnel in New York, including some serving on the U.N. Secretariat, from about 275 to "a more manageable 150."

Subsequent stages of the reduction will occur April 1, 1987, Oct. 1, 1987, and April 1, 1988.

Another casualty of the Daniloff affair could be a U.S.-Soviet cultural exchange scheduled to begin this week, administration sources said.

About 250 Americans, including about 20 journalists, have signed up for a chartered plane to leave Thursday for the Soviet Union. The exchange, modeled on a similar trip last year, was planned to include joint U.S.-Soviet cultural performances and "town meetings" involving American and Russian citizens.

One source said Monday it would be "inconceivable" for Reagan and Shultz to allow participation of senior U.S. officials in the exchange, and that could prompt organizers to call it off.

Bombs Explode Across Europe; 1 Dead, Heavy Damage

United Press International

Bomb attacks, including a car bomb claimed by rival terrorist groups, inflicted heavy damage and killed at least one person in four cities across Europe Monday, police said.

In Paris, a bomb exploded just before closing time in the crowded post office at city hall, killing a woman and injuring 18 other people, including a 3-year-old girl, police said.

A remote-control car bomb blasted a gaping hole in the facade of the headquarters of West Germany's version of the FBI early Monday, authorities said. One person was slightly hurt. Two rival terrorist groups claimed responsibility.

A bomb in the Netherlands went off outside the offices of a civil engineering and construction firm that peace activists say is a contractor for Dutch cruise missile installations. No injuries were reported.

In Stockholm, a bomb damaged the Swedish offices of the African National Congress, South Africa's main nationalist guerrilla group, but caused no injuries.

The Paris explosion at the city hall post office came as Prime Minister Jacques Chirac was meeting with senior officials at the prime minister's offices to discuss ways to combat terrorism. The focus was a threat last week from a shadowy Arab group to renew a bombing campaign in France.

The blast rocked the offices of the post office on the bottom floor of the city's administrative building, the Hotel de Ville, at about 7 p.m., police said.

It sent shards of shattered glass showering onto the concrete plaza in front of the building. Police swarmed over the plaza and ambulance workers rushed to carry the injured out of the building.

Police said a witness told them he saw two "Arab-looking" men enter the post office shortly before the explosion, deposit a parcel on a bench and leave quickly.

Police said one woman was decapitated in the blast, a 26-year-old man was seriously injured with multiple bone fractures and 17 other people, including a 3-year-old girl, were slightly injured, mainly by flying glass.

"We must engage in an all-out war against terrorism," a grim-faced Chirac said in a nationally broadcast statement. "It is up to the government first to work with all available means to struggle against this plague."

Pygmy Rattlesnake Bites Boy

A 16-year-old Sanford boy bitten by a pygmy rattlesnake he caught at about 10 a.m. Thursday was released from South Seminole Community Hospital in Longwood early Monday.

A Seminole County sheriff's report said Joe Beron, 3933 Moore Station, was bitten when he and Lonnie Griffin, 16, of Myrtle Avenue, Sanford, were catching snakes in woods near South Sanford Avenue.

Beron, who had been bitten, was walking with Griffin on South Sanford Avenue carrying a pygmy rattlesnake in a cloth bag, when they told sheriff's deputy Helen Proudfoot about the injury but that Beron had been bitten by a different snake.

He was transported via ambulance to South Seminole Community hospital, where he remained from Thursday morning through Monday morning.

the Hotline Bottle Club, State Road 436, Altamonte Springs, at about 4 a.m. Sunday.

A plastic bag of brown powder and chunks was reportedly found on the running board of the pickup truck the two were near. A bag of white powder and a razor blade, a straw and a mirror were reportedly found inside the truck.

Arrested were: Harry K. Capen, 22, and Randy Howard Morgan, 22, both of Orlando. They have been released on $1,000 bond each to appear in court Sept. 22.

TRUCK THEFT ARREST
A Seminole County sheriff's deputy who traced a pickup truck reported stolen in Longwood to a home on North Street near Altamonte Springs, Saturday, arrested the man who allegedly stole the vehicle.

Mark Leon Florence, 28, of 173 North Street, was charged at his home with grand theft auto and resisting arrest at about 4:20 p.m. Saturday.

He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

DUI ARRESTS
The following people have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—David Eugene Stokes, 36, of Orlando, was arrested at 4:25 p.m. Sunday on State Road 426 at State Road 434. Oviedo, after police received a report that a possible drunk driver had forced another vehicle off the road.

—Amelia Sorensen, 54, of Orlando, at 10 a.m. Saturday after her car was in an accident on State Road 436. She was also charged with violating the right-of-way.

—David Richard Dunlap, 38, of 2045 Park Drive #88, Sanford, at 8 p.m. Sunday after his car was in an accident on Ocoola Road, east of Sanford. Also in that same accident and charged with violating the right-of-way and DUI was:

—Christopher S. Bailey, 21, of 1020 Forest Circle, Winter Springs, who was arrested at the same time and place and who is accused of failing to yield at a stop sign. He was also charged with violating driver's license restrictions.

—Bobby R. Rutherford, 26, of Orlando, at 11 a.m. Sunday on State Road 434 after he backed his car into a parked car and fled. He was caught two miles from the scene.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

Albert S. Dooley Jr., 65, of Satellite Beach, reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that a $625 television and a $425 stereo were stolen from his vacation home at 286 Wekiva Park Road, Sanford, between Aug. 28 and Sunday.

A $600 helium-filled balloon was cut free from its security ropes and drifted away from Goldenrod Groves, Aloma Avenue, Goldenrod, between 8 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Sunday. The balloon, which belongs to Thomas Wall, 44, of Orlando, is red and is 10 feet in diameter. No sightings have been reported to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department.

Dennis Meixell, 35, of 720 Honeysuckle Lane, Casselberry, reported to sheriff's deputies he was robbed at gunpoint of $20 and a $200 gold necklace by three men after he left the Hotline Bottle Club, Altamonte Springs, with them.

He said that when he was in the suspects' car the passenger pointed a gun at his head and the suspects took his cash and necklace. He last saw them as they drove south on Tusawilla Road at State Road 436, Casselberry. The incident occurred at about 6 a.m. Sunday.

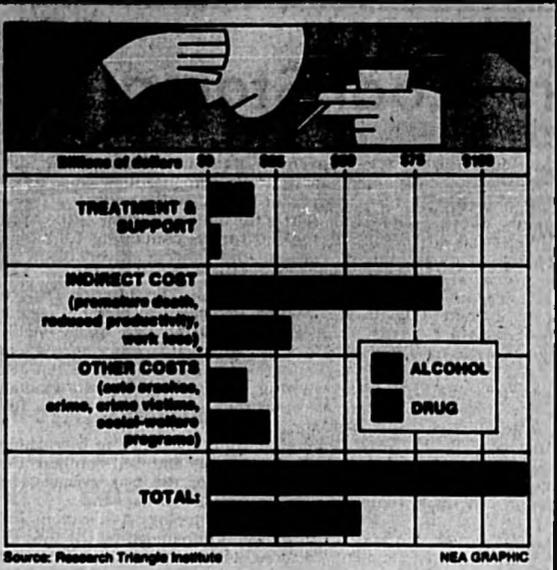

Rosa Mahaica, 36, of 9612 McNorton Road, Altamonte Springs, gave sheriff's deputies the name of a suspect who may have stolen a $200 gold chain from her purse between Sept. 1 and Saturday.

A $400 radar detector was stolen from the car of Norman Arcotte, 44, of 377 Champagne Place #104, Longwood, on Friday or Saturday.

A 1986 Yamaha motorscooter valued at $1,700, which belongs to Russell Damerell, 18, of the U.S. Naval Training Center in Orlando, was stolen while parked at the House of Babes, U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park, Saturday.

Albert Cohen, of 215 Canterclub Trail, Longwood, reported to sheriff's deputies that a $100 pair of binoculars and a $60 battery charger were stolen from his boat at his home Saturday or Sunday.

A $250 lawnmower and a $10 rake have been stolen from the yard of Walter Derthick, 64, of 235 Ashwood Drive, Maitland. A sheriff's report said the theft occurred Wednesday or Thursday.

The High Cost Of Abuse

Drug and alcohol abuse costs society nearly $177 billion each year — the cost of treatment and prevention, job losses, work problems, and abuse-related accidents and crime.

Mob Family Boss' N.Y. Trial Opens

NEW YORK (UPI) — The reputed leaders of the Genovese, Lucchese and Colombo organized crime families went on trial Monday charged with directing a national racketeering operation through a board of directors called "The Commission."

Eight defendants appeared in U.S. District Court, Manhattan, before Judge Richard Owen, as the government brought to a climax an investigation into organized crime leadership that began several years ago.

The eight, as well as a ninth defendant to be tried separately at a later date, pleaded innocent to charges contained in a 58-page indictment that they coordinated an organized crime operation that stretched from coast to coast.

Owen lectured 100 prospective jurors assembled in room 318 for 25 minutes on the rights of a juror, that their names would be anonymous to prevent jury tampering, that they should not read, listen or watch accounts of the trial and he instructed them on filling out a 10 page questionnaire for jury selection. The trial is the second to begin in recent weeks in New York involving alleged organized crime bosses.

John Gotti, described by authorities as the nation's No. 1 mobster, is on trial along with six others in federal court on racketeering and murder charges. Open statements are scheduled this week in Gotti's trial.

The defendants on trial headed "The Commission" — a body that was formed in 1931 and resolved territorial and other disputes within the Mafia, the indictment said. The Commission also established formal rules under which the crime families operated.

In addition, it said the group coordinated most organized crime narcotics, gambling and extortion activities in the nation and maintained formal relations with the Mafia in Sicily.

In the New York area, The Commission decided which contractors would be permitted to work on major projects and obtained payoffs from contractors, prosecutors said. Those who would not pay, the indictment charged, would face strikes and problems with cement deliveries.

Among the defendants in the Manhattan trial are Anthony "Fat Tony" Salerno, 74, of Rhinebeck, N.Y., reputed head of the Genovese family; Anthony "Tony Ducks" Corallo, 73, alleged boss of the Lucchese family, and his underboss, Salvatore "Tom Mix" Santoro, 70, of the Bronx.

Carmine "The Snake" Persico, 52, boss of the Colombo family, who spent the last 14 years in prison for his mob activities; his underboss, Gennaro "Gerry Lang" Langella, 47, of Brooklyn; and Colombo family "soldier" Ralph Scopo, 57, of Queens, a former concrete workers union president, were included.

Persico and Langella were among nine Colombo family members and associates convicted in federal court June 13 after an eight-month-long racketeering and conspiracy trial. Scopo was severed from the case because of illness.

Also named were Christopher "Christie Tick" Furnari, 61, of Staten Island, a consigliere, or counselor, to the Lucchese family, and Anthony "Bruno" Indelicato, 30, of the Bonanno family, who has been in prison the last 20 months on an unrelated conviction.

Indelicato was charged with being among the gunmen who killed Bonanno family boss Carmine Galante and two associates in 1979.

Authorities said the ninth defendant — reputed Bonanno boss Philip "Rusty" Rastelli — was to have been tried with the eight others.

His case will be heard at a later date because he is also a defendant in the ongoing Gotti trial. Prosecutors said Paul "Big Paul" Castellano — the former head of the Gambino family — was initially named as a tenth defendant in the indictment.

Castellano was gunned down outside a Manhattan steak house last Dec. 16 in what authorities said was the culmination of a power struggle for control of the organization.

Medical Examiner Says Cocaine Deaths Soar

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The number of deaths in Hillsborough County related to cocaine has soared to epidemic proportions in the past two years, Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Peter Lardizabal said Monday.

"Before 1984, there were few cocaine-related deaths in Hillsborough County — seven at the most in a year's time," Lardizabal said. "Now, that number has increased to over 24 deaths a year."

Lardizabal said cocaine kills more people than most realize, and said among the many causes of death in the county, the growing number of cocaine-related deaths concerns him the most.

Last year, 26 deaths in the county were related to cocaine use, and during the period of Jan. 1 to Aug. 31 this year, there have been 40 cocaine-related deaths recorded by the medical examiner — three of which were caused directly by cocaine.

"The epidemic that started in 1984 is still continuing at a very alarming rate," he said. "A majority of the cases involve young people."

"The increased number of cocaine-related deaths is an example of human tragedy that should sound a loud warning none of us can ignore. If we care at all for our fellow man," Lardizabal said.

Lardizabal said the county had three homicides involving "wheeling, dealing and buying drugs," and three deaths where workers died by accidental means attributed to the use of cocaine.

"In 1982, we started having traffic fatalities due to cocaine use," he said. He said five deaths were cocaine-related in 1982 and seven in 1983.

"In 1984, we knew we had a problem," he said. "The statistics were alarming. Ten of the 24 (related) deaths were attributed directly to cocaine."

Lardizabal said 1984 marked the time when crack, or rock cocaine, became accessible to people in the area. The forensic pathologist said the highly concentrated crack is the most addictive form of cocaine.

The Sanford Fire Department has responded to the following calls, details based on fire reports:

SUNDAY
—5:24 p.m., Apt. 512 Bram Towers, rescue. A 77-year-old woman reported pain in her right leg. She was transported to the hospital.

MONDAY
—12:45 a.m., 2100 W. Country Club Road, car accident. Brett Rank, 21, 124 Mayfair Circle suffered a cut on his forehead and a possible nose fracture. He was transported to the hospital.

—1:04 a.m., 1012 W. Ninth Street, rescue. A 1-year-old boy was suffering from a high fever. He was taken to the hospital by private vehicle.

—7:43 a.m., 818 E. Seventh Street, rescue. A 67-year-old woman who had suffered a possible heart attack was transported to the hospital.

—10:48 a.m., Airport Boulevard and Old Lake Mary Road, car accident. Hajdde Jacobson, 40, 820 Hobson St., Longwood, reported facial pain. Hospital transport was declined.

Male Nurse Sues Colleagues; For Allegedly Slandering Him

An Orlando man has filed suit against two nurses saying they slandered him while he was looking for a job in Seminole County.

Lawrence F. Dunn, a nurse, filed suit against Erin McCormick of Bushnell, Fla., and Christina Domozik of Shenandoah, Pa. He is seeking an unspecified amount of damages in excess of $5,000.

According to the suit, in March and April of this year, Dunn applied for work at the Seminole Community Medical Center. He states in the suit Ms. Domozik by phone told Ms. McCormick that he forged names on the bottom of a letter of recommendation and that Ms. McCormick by phone told two employees at the medical center — including a director — that he forged the names.

Dunn states in the suit that the comments have adversely affected his personal and professional reputation. He says he has asked the nurses to retract their statements but they have not.

The case has been assigned to Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. No hearing date has been set.

Greenwood Lakes Open House Today

The county's newest school, Greenwood Lakes Middle School, will be open for inspection tonight during its first annual PTA Open House.

Beginning with a brief meeting in the gymnasium at 7 p.m., the open house will allow for parents to follow an abbreviated schedule of their son's or daughter's classes and meet with teachers, according to Greenwood Lakes Principal Ted Barker.

Teachers will discuss the students' programs of study. All Greenwood Lakes parents are invited to attend.

Polish Bishops Urge End To Persecution

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Polish bishops urged the government Monday to stop persecuting Poles holding views differing from communist ideology and said they hoped officials will free all political prisoners under a new clemency act.

The bishops' statement, released after a two-day conference in Tarnow in southern Poland, also said they will hold official talks with the government over "the schedule of the third pilgrimage of Pope John Paul II to his homeland in 1987." No details were disclosed.

The Polish-born pontiff visited Poland in 1979 and 1983. There has not been an official announcement that he will visit in 1987.

A government clemency for political prisoners has been in force since July 23 and expires in mid-September. According to official figures, more than 100 of a total of 189 prisoners were freed under the clemency, including Adam Michnik and Bogdan Lis, prominent senior officials of the banned Solidarity union. Most of the freed Solidarity activists, however, refused to pledge to discontinue their union operation and can be rearrested.

The bishops said they hoped "the use of the clemency will result in the release of all political prisoners from jails."

The Roman Catholic bishops repeatedly condemned imprisonment of Poles for their convictions and called for reinstatement of Solidarity.

They said "new social and legal solutions were required (to be introduced by the government) which would not cause political discrimination" of Poles with views differing from communist ideology.

The bishops said creation of social organizations independent of the Communist Party would give a chance to Poles of various political persuasions and end the problem of political prisoners.

Solidarity was banned following imposition of martial law in 1981. An unspecified number of Solidarity activists has continued an illegal union operation.

The bishops criticized authorities for not permitting non-party people to hold key state jobs. "Everybody should have the right to hold public jobs and be promoted after his qualifications, honesty and job efficiency were taken into account," they said.

Labor Unions Still Powerful

There is a haunting parallel between the beleaguered American steel industry and organized labor's declining fortunes.

America's eight largest steel producers have lost $8 billion since 1982. Last July, the LTV Corp., the nation's second largest steelmaker filed for bankruptcy, renegotiated its labor contracts and suspended some of its pension benefits. LTV joins seventh-ranked Wheeling-Pittsburgh in seeking protection under Chapter 11, and many industry analysts worry that Bethlehem Steel may not be far behind. The nation's No. 3 producer suffered a $23.8 million second-quarter loss and omitted the dividend on its preferred stock. Meanwhile, 22,000 employees of USX Corp., formerly U.S. Steel, are on the street because the company refused to extend their contract that expired Aug. 1.

The specter of additional bankruptcies, plant closings, layoffs and labor strife raises serious questions about the survival of a once robust industry that used to dictate prices and labor contracts throughout the nation.

Simply stated, American steel cannot compete so long as its labor costs are far higher than those of many foreign competitors. Yet the steelworkers' union is unwilling to make the wage concessions that are necessary for the industry to regain the markets it has lost to importers during the last 10 years.

Not surprisingly, the USX labor dispute stems from the company's request to pare wages and benefits $3.27 per hour. Such a reduction would bring its labor costs closer to the steel industry average of $22.81 an hour. Even then, steelworker salaries are nearly 70 percent above the wages and fringes of the average worker in manufacturing.

Despite a drastic reduction in the work force and a corresponding emphasis on increased productivity, American labor costs per ton of steel are still $154, compared with $104 in Japan and $22 in South Korea. Yet the union continues to resist further mill closings, even though American steel output exceeds demand. Meanwhile, domestic mini-mills, which make steel from melted scrap and hire non-union workers, are running circles around the larger companies. The mini-mills production costs average five man-hours per ton, compared with nine hours a ton for Big Steel.

Little wonder that nearly half the people responding to a Lou Harris poll last year said that labor unions increase the risk of a company going out of business. Or that some 63 percent said they would not vote to establish a union at their workplace.

Today, fewer than one worker in every five belongs to a union, compared with one in three 30 years ago. This steady decline in organized labor's ranks has prompted second thought among many union executives. For example, Lane Kirkland, president of the AFL-CIO, is urging local affiliates to pursue realistic bargaining strategies rather than the all-or-nothing approach that has cost many workers their jobs. Such obstinacy can be seen in UAW President Owen Bieber's demand that Deere & Co. provide higher pay, reduced working hours and job security. This despite a depressed farm economy that has caused the company to incur heavy financial losses.

Clearly, increased foreign competition, coupled with declining union membership, has put organized labor on the ropes during the last two decades. Nevertheless, the 17-million member labor movement still remains a powerful force in this nation. All the more reason why the leadership and the rank-and-file ought to enhance the American economic system, rather than endanger it with unreasonable demands.

Wyoming Leads Western Coal Stampede

CASPER, Wyo. (NEA) — From the early 1800s, when coal became one of this country's major sources of fuel, until less than a decade ago, Appalachia has been the nation's most important coal producing area.

As recently as 1976, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and West Virginia were the three leading coal-mining states, accounting for a total of almost 345 million tons annually. In the same year, Wyoming ranked a distant seventh, yielding only slightly more than 30 million tons.

The past two decades, however, have produced profound changes in U.S. coal production. Only first-ranked Kentucky, expected to account for 163 million tons this year, retains its former status. Wyoming, whose projected 1986 production is 148 million tons, has taken over second place.

All four of the country's largest coal mines are located in Wyoming and the fifth biggest is in neighboring Montana. Those two states account for eight of the nation's 10 most productive coal mines.

Montana ranks first in demonstrated coal reserves available for future mining. Illinois is in second place, followed by Wyoming — while Kentucky, Pennsylvania and West Virginia trail in fourth, fifth and sixth place, respectively.

As coal mining continues to shift markedly from the East to the West, the federal government owns 80 percent of all Western coal reserves and indirectly controls an additional 20 percent.

The Mineral Lands Leasing Act of 1920 authorized the Interior Department to offer long-term leases to individuals and companies seeking to mine the coal, but only 166 leases were issued in the ensuing 40 years.

From 1980 to 1970, however, 319 federal coal leases were issued, many of them to real estate speculators who had no interest in developing the coal resources.

To halt that scandalous practice and gain time to devise remedial measures, the Interior Department imposed a moratorium on all coal-lease sales from 1971 to 1981.

After the program resumed in January 1981, 14 coal-lease sales were held — but in November 1983, Congress imposed another moratorium (which is still in effect) after a new scandal developed.

The current moratorium followed the disclosure of multiple irregularities and gross mismanagement in connection with the largest coal-lease sale in the nation's history — the April 1982 offering of 13 tracts containing 1.6 billion tons of coal in the Powder River Basin of Wyoming and Montana.

Among the problems: The Interior Department inexplicably changed its bidding system only six weeks prior to the sale, and valuable government data apparently was "leaked" to bidders. A congressional subcommittee charged that the winning bidders had reaped "windfall profits" because they received leases at "fire sale" prices.

The General Accounting Office in a scathing critique calculated that the $67 million the government received for the leases was $100 million less than their fair market value.

Both the Office of Technology Assessment and a special commission impaneled by the Interior Department concluded that the irregularities were the result of a departmental policy of generally leasing too much coal too quickly.

Aspin Is Mending Fences

By Elliot Bremer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the middle of the year, House Democratic liberals began signaling their displeasure with Chairman Les Aspin of the Armed Services Committee and suggesting he ought to be booted out of the prestigious job in January.

To paraphrase Aspin — a philosophical and professorial sort given to snappy answers — "Jeez, that would be goofy."

Aspin, D-Wis., wrenched the job away from the aging Mel Price, D-Ill., at the start of the 99th Congress in 1985, jumping over several more senior members for the post. The House Democratic Caucus, at the start of each Congress, votes on retaining committee chairmen, and if one is ousted the race is on to replace him.

In Aspin's case, were he booted out, conservative Texas Democrat Marvin Leath is actively seeking the job as is Charles Bennett of Florida, who has served 38 years in the House. Liberal Nick Mavroules of Massachusetts, while not running for the job, is ready to become a candidate if Aspin is ousted.

Aspin's vote last year for the MX missile, after liberals thought he had promised to start opposing it, and then conceding major points to the Senate in conference, won him few friends. His switch this year for aid to the U.S.-backed rebels in Nicaragua angered liberals and talk started of replacing him.

But last month — six weeks after touching off the rush for his job with a pro-Contra aid vote — Aspin arranged the debate rules for the defense bill so as to clearly put arms control advocates and other House liberals in the driver's seat.

Conservative Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., described the rule as Aspin's attempt "to rehabilitate himself with the 'Slater Boom-Boom' wing (liberal wing) of the Democratic Party," a reference to a flamboyant San Francisco transvestite who drew attention at the last Democratic convention.

That may well be the case, but it is nothing new for a man who revels in the minutiae of parliamentary procedure and legislative fine print.

Liberals who want Aspin out might consider that the Contra vote had nothing to do with the arms control agenda they have pushed, even though Aspin's yea vote was a switch from his earlier votes on the issue.

Liberals may not get a better deal elsewhere.

Cuomo And Values

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo is not the political leader to whom most conservatives would instinctively turn for guidance on questions of morality. Although he is an avowed and apparently serious Roman Catholic, Cuomo allowed himself to become involved in a widely publicized dispute with Cardinal John J. O'Connor of New York over the obligations of Catholic public officials. In addition, more generally, he has confessed to a fondness for political kidney-punching that would disqualify him as an exponent of the Marquess of Queensberry rules in such matters.

But these facts merely add weight and significance to the conclusion that Cuomo recently told reporters he has reached concerning the teaching of "values" in the public schools of New York State. "When you have kids in elementary school and you don't teach anything about values," the governor explained, "I suspect that the message you're sending is that there are no values. What's happened in the last 20 years is that we've said, 'No values — we'll teach no values.' It's all produced a vacuum. I don't think we're teaching any moral structure in any formal way."

Indeed we aren't, and the governor intends to do something about it. He is drawing up proposals to restore the teaching of "values" in New York's public schools.

By "values," the governor stressed, he did not mean the teaching of "any religion, or atheism." Nor does he want the schools to deal with such touchy matters as sexual orientation, or the desirability of marriage or children. ("You begin sounding religious, moralistic, unctuous.") He said he was referring, rather, to such concepts as "Love thy neighbor" and respect for the law and the environment.

Cuomo added that Supreme Court rulings against teaching religion in the classroom had made school officials too cautious. It is possible, he insisted, to teach "values" without linking them to religion.

Now, I happen to think that Gov. Cuomo's basic instinct here is perfectly sound. The total exclusion of religion from the classroom — even the humble acknowledgment of a creator, or so much as a moment for meditation — has unquestionably contributed to the atmosphere of moral anarchy that is now so widely prevalent. "Values" (to adopt that deplorably neutral but undeniably useful term) are indispensable to civilized life, and the notion that children should be left to learn them "at home" simply betrays a woeful ignorance of what many homes are like these days.

But just how possible is it to teach "values" without rooting them either in a religious base or in some other source of apodictic authority? Communist societies find the necessary sanction for their "values" in Marx's interpretation of the laws of history (plus such special revelations as the thoughts of Chairman Mao); other societies have looked in even crazier places. But can reasonable people simply sit down and draw up a logical set of "values" by which a whole society will agree to abide? The Ethical Culture Society thinks so; but does Gov. Cuomo really intend to turn New York's classrooms over to the Ethical Culture Society?

As a matter of fact, the governor inadvertently illustrated the complexity of the problem when he singled out "Love thy neighbor" as one of the clearly unobjectionable things he wants taught in the classroom. He won't get any argument about that from me.

Homing Noses Of Turtles

By Gayle Young
UPI Science Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Over miles and years, a sea turtle can zero in on the exact strip of beach it was born on and biologists have always suspected the giant creatures use a powerful sense of smell to find their way home.

But for the first time, scientists have confirmed in a laboratory experiment that the endangered turtles do imprint certain smells as infants and return to areas with those smells as often as possible.

"The theory that sea turtles followed their noses was derived in a process of elimination and a jump to conclusions," said David D. Owens, professor of biology at Texas A&M University.

"We've found in experiments with baby sea turtles that the little guys do imprint smells and orientate themselves to those smells," he said.

Owens said his findings, derived from four years of tests, will be published in an upcoming issue of the scientific journal Animal Behavior.

Giant sea turtles — of which there are eight species around the world — and their phenomenal homing instincts have interested biologists and ecologists for decades.

Ecologists say all species of giant sea turtles are endangered because they continue to return to the beaches on which they were born even though many of these beaches have become populated, polluted or destroyed. In an attempt to save one species of the sea turtles from extinction, ecologists in the southwestern United States and Mexico have established an ambitious program in which baby sea turtles are removed from their natural hatching sites and placed on protected beaches on Texas islands.

They hope the babies will imprint smells of the new beaches and then return to them when they reach adulthood, a process that takes 15 years, Owens said.

Experiments in Texas by Owens and his colleague, doctoral student Mark Grassman, have shown the ecologists could be on the right track.

The baby turtles repeatedly returned to nests that contained chemicals they had been exposed to shortly after birth, he said. The babies would stay in the nests for extended periods of time, even though they were not given food to entice them to linger.

Treasury Bill Gets A Beer Rider

By Jack Anderson
And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — The rule among Capitol Hill lobbyists is this: If at first you don't succeed, try something really bizarre.

The nation's beer wholesalers failed to get a Senate vote on legislation to exempt them from antitrust laws — thanks to opponents' threat of a filibuster and our embarrassing disclosure that the beer barons had raised $25,000 for Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., at a bash in February. So their lobbyists tried a new tack: They got a friendly member of the Senate to add their amendment to an appropriations bill.

What makes this peculiar is that it was the Treasury's appropriations bill. And while the senators behind the beer bill note that the Treasury Department does include the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, BATF would have nothing to do with enforcement of the antitrust amendment. That chore would be handled by the Justice Department, like all other antitrust actions.

But it seemed like a good idea at the time to the beer lobbyists. The plan was perfected in "strict confidence," according to a memo the National Beer Wholesalers Association sent to distributors nationwide.

The memo, dated Aug. 15, was obtained by our associate Stewart Harris. It describes proudly the pressure brought to bear on Sen. James Abdnor, R-S.D., chairman of the appropriations subcommittee that oversees the Treasury. "Wholesalers in South Dakota were instrumental in obtaining Sen. Abdnor's agreement" to tack the legislation onto the Treasury bill, the memo explained.

With Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., a subcommittee member who also happened to have introduced the original beer bill, Abdnor was able to ramrod the amendment through the subcommittee.

Caught off guard, the beer bill's opponents had little time to challenge it when it wound up before the Appropriations Committee in its new form as a Treasury amendment. Meanwhile, according to the industry memo, beer wholesalers mounted a nationwide telephone campaign to persuade members of the full committee, while the lobbyists did their own number in person.

The Treasury bill passed the Appropriations Committee with the beer language intact.

"This entire process once again demonstrated the effectiveness and viability of the National Beer Wholesalers Association's greatest asset, its 'grassroots network'... you, the beer wholesaler," gushed the memo.

"It was a damn slick maneuver," conceded one opponent.

But the beer lobbyists may have slipped on their own suds. The opposition has now been alerted: When the Senate takes up the Treasury bill sometime after it returns from summer vacation today, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, has threatened "extended debate" if the beer rider isn't deleted — no idle threat coming from the Senate's current filibuster king.

Even more formidable is the opposition of Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., chairman of the Judiciary Committee. In addition to his distaste for any Good Industry's exemption from antitrust laws, Thurmond complained that the beer legislation had no business in an appropriations bill.

"The Treasury Department appropriations bill, which contains funding for many important agencies and functions, should not be hopelessly tied up," he explained.

But time is on the side of the beer barons. In the crush of last-minute activity as Congress rushes to adjourn for the fall political campaigns, Senate leaders may feel pressured to pass the Treasury

Miami Defense Leaves Gators With Bad Taste

GAINESVILLE — Galen Hall, Kerwin Bell and Ricky Nattiel aren't used to having bad days at the office. Whenever those three Gators get together at Florida Field, the outcome is usually predictable: Hall makes the correct coaching moves while Bell and Nattiel execute those moves to perfection.

The moves and movements, however, were amiss Saturday against the Miami Hurricanes. Hall didn't make the right moves while Bell and Nattiel were rendered helpless by a blistering Miami pass rush.

The result: Miami 23, Florida 15.

Granted the 'Canes, who moved up to No. 2 in the United Press International and the Associated Press polls Monday, were a four-point favorite. But Florida Field is Florida Field.

And it was Saturday, too. Swarming with almost 75,000 orange-clad fans, who were armed with regular outbursts of two bits, four bits and the gator growl (arms extended like an alligator's jaws and brought together in unison to invoke a resounding clap), many teams would have wilted under the pressure.

A quick look at history dictated as much. In 21 previous encounters at Florida Field, Hall and his boys had come away with 19 wins and two "alster kissers." Hall was the head coach in 19 of those 21 games.

With this kind of track record, postgame comments become almost meaningless. Hall, Bell and Nattiel usually make the usual nice remarks about the opposition. Everybody has a slice of pizza and then moves on to celebrate yet another Gator victory.

The pizza, though, had to leave a bad taste for the Gators Saturday. Billed as a shootout between Heisman Trophy hopefuls Bell and Miami's Vinnie Testaverde, this early season matchup was supposed to be a wild, high-numbered game.

One could easily envision Bell and Testaverde accounting for three or four TD passes each, similar to last year's explosion which was won by Florida, 35-23.

And the beneficiary of a long-ball war figured to be wideout Nattiel. The 5-9, 181-pounder with the 4.29 40-yard dash speed is the Gators' big-play man. The big plays were missing Saturday though. Even the little plays were missing. Miami's aggressive pass rush saw to that.

Nattiel said he was helpless to do anything about it. "You run your route like you're supposed to," he said. "Then, you look back and see your quarterback in trouble. It's your job to try and get open best you can but there's not much you can do when he has to scramble all over the place."

Nattiel said turnovers killed any Gator comeback hopes. The usually sure-handed punt returner contributed one miscue of his own, misplaying a punt which set up Miami's clinching TD.

"We just had too many turnovers," he said. "The defense was on the field too long. Still, I thought we had a chance. All the way through the game we figured we could score and at least pull out a tie."

With Bell unable to plant and throw, though, the Gators were in trouble. Bell said he had his bell rung a couple of times during the six sacks. "They played a great ball game," Bell said. "I tried to hit my backs but there just wasn't any time. They were in the backfield all day."

Neither of the Heisman hopefuls, though, helped himself Saturday. Bell completed just 16 of 30 for a measly 136 yards. He was hounded unmercifully by 'Canes' defenders Jerome Brown and Danny Stubbs. Stubbs, a physical specimen at 6-4 and 241 sculpted pounds, personally undressed All-America hopeful Jeff Zimmerman on several occasions. Zimmerman, from Orlando and the leader of the Gators' offensive line, was in tears as he made his way from Florida Field after the game.

Kerwin Bell (No. 12), above, had a much better day handling off Saturday than he did throwing the ball. Harrassed all day by Miami's defenders, Bell completed just 16 of 30 passes in a loss to the Hurricanes. At the right, Jeff Zimmerman (No. 74) had his problems, too. The All-America guard hopeful from Orlando couldn't handle Miami's quick offensive linemen. Bell was sacked six times.

Raines Gets 1,000th Hit; Goes By Gwynn In Race

Montreal Expo outfielder Tim Raines reached one milestone Monday night and in the process moved ahead of San Diego's Tony Gwynn in the race for the National League batting average title.

Raines singled twice in four at-bats to push his average to .333 as the Expos clobbered the Mets, 9-1. The two hits gave Raines 1,000 for his career. The Sanford Seminole High product is in his sixth major-league season.

Gwynn, meanwhile, was 0 for 3 Monday and dropped to .331. Raines and Gwynn has been battling back and forth for the past month, but neither has been able to get an upper hand. Gwynn won the batting title two years ago. Raines has never won but has improved his average gradually each year.

Raines, who can become a free agent after this season, said a battling title would help his market value if he did become a free agent.

"I'd like to win it, but it's going to be tough," Raines said. "Gwynn is a good hitter. He's capable of getting a lot of three-hit and four-hit games. I might have to hit .350 to win it."

Raines had 834 hits entering this season and a career batting mark of .299. Raines hit .277 in 1982, batted .298 in '83 and upped it to .309 in '84. Last year, the switch-hitting left fielder jumped his average to .320.

"I'm learning more about hitting each year," Raines, who advocates the Charley Lau theory, said. "I think I can just get better and better each year."

Lendl, Martina Concentrate On Conditioning

NEW YORK (UPI) — Indisputably the best at what they do, Ivan Lendl and Martina Navratilova still are running hard to keep a step ahead of the thundering herd.

Even with the year-end championships still to come, both wrapped up the No. 1 ranking for 1986 when they won the U.S. Open singles titles Sunday. And although both insist they're playing better than ever before, they realize too well how easy it would be to fall back.

Coincidentally, both believe the best way to improve their tennis game is to work on their conditioning. Navratilova was the first of the tennis luminaries to discover the virtues of body work, and Lendl is a more recent convert.

"I realized after the French and after Wimbledon that I'm not going to improve enough by hitting more tennis balls," Lendl said. "I thought I would become a better player if I can become a better athlete. Therefore, I went on some programs of physical exercising and it has helped me tremendously."

"At the moment I would say yes, I think this is the best I've ever played. But, I would like to think that by becoming a better athlete I can play better in the future. The game is developing, and if I want to keep my position I have to develop. The kids and young men, they keep coming at you,

Tennis

Whether it's (Boris) Becker or (Stefan) Edberg or (Mats) Wilander, the oldest of them is 22. They are going to get more experience, and they are going to get better and stronger, so I have to get stronger too."

Navratilova is looking forward to a couple of weeks of rest, heading first to Vail, Colo., before returning to competition at New Orleans Sept. 29. On Monday, she donated $150,000 to the Women's Sports Foundation, and challenged her fellow athletes to join her in supporting the "Aspire Higher" campaign.

"I've always been one who speaks up for things I believe in, and I'm putting my money where my mouth is," she said. "I'm not challenging everyone to put up $150,000, but it would help if they can donate one percent of their annual earnings to this fund."

Navratilova also announced she would team with Billie Jean King in a doubles match against Chris Evert Lloyd and Pam Shriver April 5 to help raise funds for the Foundation. The match, at a site to be determined, will be televised by ABC.

The Women's Sports Foundation was established by King in 1974 to encourage and support participation of women in sports.

Both Lendl and Navratilova swept to the U.S. Open titles with the loss of a single set. In Sunday's final, Lendl routed Miloslav Mecir, 6-4, 6-2, 6-0, after Navratilova had defeated Helena Sukova, 6-3, 6-2. Navratilova, though, had a heart-stopping scare in Saturday's semifinals when she survived three match points before edging Steffi Graf in a third set tie-break.

"I was hoping it wasn't going to be another 7-6 in the third," Navratilova said of the final. "Me and my friends couldn't handle it any more. I got more telegrams saying 'Please consider my heart when you play these matches. Don't do it any more.'"

Navratilova points to the Graf thriller as further proof that the competition in women's tennis is getting stronger and, like Lendl, she feels the best way to maintain her edge is through physical conditioning.

Her primary goal is to surpass Helen Wills Moody as the all-time Wimbledon champion. Having won her seventh singles crown this year, Navratilova is one shy of tying Moody. Otherwise, she says, "It's all numbers now."

"It's how many years I'll be No. 1, how many years I can win the U.S. Open and so on. As long as it's fun and challenging to be out there, as long as there are more pros than cons, I'll still be out there."

Spectacular Start: Herschel's 10-Yard TD Run Tips Giants

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — Herschel Walker was fully expected, over the course of time, to become one of the heroes of the National Football League.

He was not expected to become a legend in just one night.

In one of the most spectacular debuts in NFL history, Walker not only met the hopes of his coaches, teammates and fans Monday evening, but exceeded them beyond even his own dreams.

"It is always exciting to watch great athletes perform," said Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry. "And Herschel is one of those."

Walker stormed through a huge hole and sprinted 10 yards with 76 seconds remaining in the opening Monday night game of the year to bring the Dallas Cowboys a dramatic 31-28 victory over the New York Giants with his second touchdown of the game.

That climaxed an entertaining evening for the nation's football fans, who saw the lead change hands four times in the second half as a result of one big play after another.

"If you like football," said Landry, "you liked this game."

There were potential stars scattered throughout both teams.

New York's Phil Simms completed 300 yards worth of passes and Bobby Johnson caught two touchdown throws — including a spectacular grab for 44 yards and a score which put the Giants ahead with 5:24 to play.

Dallas' Danny White completed 23 of 39 throws for 279 yards and avoided the interceptions which so often have plagued him in big games.

Joe Morris, who signed a new contract less than three hours before the game, put the Giants ahead in the third quarter with a 2-yard touchdown run and gained 87 yards.

And Tony Dorsett came back in the game after spraining an ankle and caught a 36-yard touchdown pass for the night's first score.

But with Dorsett's ankle forcing him to the bench in the second half, the opportunity came for Walker to become the No. 1 headline maker. He did not shirk from the responsibility.

Walker, who left the University of Georgia for the USFL before completing his college eligibility and who was drafted in the fifth round by the Cowboys in hopes they'd one day gain his services, carried 10 times for 64 yards and caught six passes for 32 more.

The Cowboys gained possession of the ball on their own 28-yard line with 2:10 remaining and trailing by four points.

Needing a big play to get their drive started, the Cowboys went to Walker on a screen pass. He ran through four tacklers and gained 23 yards.

"That was the biggest play of the night," said Simms. "That got them in position to score. What do I think of Walker? I hate him."

Dallas' winning drive also included a 35-yard pass from White to Tony Hill and when the march reached the 10-yard line the game was put in Walker's hands.

"I got the ball and had a hole so big to run through that it scared me," Walker said. "I knew if I didn't score then I needed to come out of the game."

"It was exciting to be out there. The crowd was yelling for me and the support helps a lot."

"I wish Tony had not been hurt. I never expected that and it was a disappointment to me. When he went out of the game, I looked up in the sky and said — 'Lord, help me.' I sure didn't expect this."

Apopka, Astronaut Make Poll

The Florida Sports Writers Association released its preseason football rankings Monday night and although Seminole County didn't place any teams in the top 10, two opening-game opponents were ranked.

Titusville Astronaut, coach Jay Donnelly's perennial powerhouse, earned a No. 3 ranking in the Class 3A poll. Astronaut will host coach Dave Mosure's Seminoles Friday night. Astronaut was just 7-4 last year, but Donnelly has the winningest football program in the state the past 10 years.

Apopka, which has racked up quite a reputation the past five years, holds down the No. 5 position in the Class 5A poll. Coach Chip Gierke's Blue Darters invade Lake Mary Friday night.

The Apopka-Lake Mary clash expects to draw a big crowd again this year. Apopka lost a bunch of good players, many of whom graduated to the college ranks. Lake Mary lost three good ones in Ray Hartsfield, Brett Molle and Byron Washington but returns several quality players.

Apopka blanked the Rams, 21-0, last year but Lake Mary handed the Darters a 3-0 setback two years ago.

Orlando Evans, which coach Bill Gierke said should be favored in the tough District 5A-5, is ranked No. 4. Merritt Island is No. 6 and Vero Beach is No. 7.

Elsewhere in the county Friday, Lyman hosts Orlando Boone. Oviedo travels to Lake Brantley for the first Seminole Athletic Conference game and Lake Howell entertains Edgewater. All kickoffs are 8 p.m.

"basically the same reasons as The Times."

The Wall Street Journal has accepted two of the four ads, declining the two which had headlines directed towards individuals: New York Mayor Ed Koch was admonished by one headline to "Remember the Manhattan Project" and another was headed "Hey, Mr. Trump, I want a piece of New York ... yours. Foot by foot." That reference was to real estate developer Donald Trump. Both ads were refused by the Journal.

Paulucci criticized the refusal of The New York Times to publish the Heathrow ads while accepting a similar ad for the Rent Stabilization Association of New York (RSANY).

The RSANY ad contains dual headlines with reference to a worker receiving a pay raise but still being unable to afford to pay the rent for an apartment in Manhattan. It then calls on readers to help solve the rent mess in New York.

Harris defended the Times' acceptance of the RSANY ad, citing it as an opinion ad.

"We accept all types of opinion ads which do not denigrate anyone. We have accepted ads from the governments of the U.S.S.R. and Iran, allowing them to express their opinions. We feel

The city is moving towards cutting the terminal tie-in it has had for many years with the Lakeland system.

The $4.16 property tax rate tentatively set in July by commissioners was unaffected by the expenditures decided on Monday night.

The $54,000 in law enforcement funding will be used to add two undercover officers to the Sanford Police Department drug investigations unit. The $90,000 will be used to by a van for the Federation of Senior Citizen Clubs of Seminole County. Both expenditures had been endorsed informally by commissioners last month.

Crack cocaine prompted the beefed-up police department enforcement division spending and a lack of sufficient transportation for elderly services prompted commissioners to fund the senior organization's van purchase.

As agreed through budget reviews earlier this summer, the police department will also receive $130,000 for a tactical patrol unit that will include a mounted detail and two canine divisions. In all, the police department's 1988-89 budget comes in at about $2.8 million, up $419,786 from last year.

Other Sanford departments will receive budget bolstering in 1988-89, although property taxes are going to drop 22 cents per $1,000.

Woman Wants To Wash Helpful Husband Out Of Laundry Room

DEAR ABBY: Help me before I kill my husband. He insists on doing the laundry and it drives me crazy. I like to do it myself. I have asked, fought, pleaded, reasoned, and even gone as far as making a sign in big letters that says "Do Not Wash!" He ignores it. He says I don't appreciate his help, so I tried to explain that there is more to doing laundry than just throwing everything into the machine with soap, and then into the dryer.

I like to sort out the wash. I like to soak out stains first. I like to fold the clothes as soon as the dryer stops.

Not him. If a sock is in a ball, it's washed in a ball. If there are stains on a shirt, it's washed and dried with the stains — making them harder to get out. He washes tea towels with underwear! I just can't stand it anymore. He's retired and needs to keep busy. Can you or anyone who has had this problem tell me how to handle it?

GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Your hubby needs a hobby. Since he wants to help around the house, put him in charge of the vacuuming, cleaning the bathrooms and dusting the furniture. And tell him that the laundry is off limits.

DEAR ABBY: Fifteen months ago, when I learned that my husband was hooked on cocaine, I was stunned! I have never used drugs in my life and wasn't aware of the signs. I only knew that he was broke all the time, but I didn't know why.

I found out later that my best friend, "Lori," got my husband started on cocaine, and was also his supplier. I felt heart sick, angry and betrayed. It took a lot of love, patience and counseling to keep my marriage together, but I did it.

I broke off all contact with Lori, but now she calls me at work and at home, begging me to forgive her and renew our friendship. I keep telling her I want nothing to do with her, but she comes to my place of work and keeps begging me. If she would clean up her act, I might reconsider, but, Abby, she still uses drugs and insists that she's not addicted.

Am I wrong to distance myself from her? If not, how can I get her to leave me alone?

HARASSED

DEAR HARASSED: Tell Lori that unless she cleans up her act, you want nothing to do with her. (Since your friendship apparently means so much to her, it might be an incentive.) Stick with your decision, and tell her that if she continues to harass you, you will call the police.

then, if necessary, do it. But first do all you can to persuade Lori to get professional help for her addiction.

DEAR ABBY: I am going out of my mind trying to find the answer to this question. Where in the United States can first cousins marry? I spoke to a lawyer in Kentucky and he said there is no state in the United States that permits first cousin marriages, but I think he is wrong. Please, please help us. Abby. We are both over 21.

COUSINS IN LOVE

DEAR COUSINS: The Kentucky lawyer is mistaken. There are 21 states plus the District of Columbia that permit first cousin marriages. They are: Alabama, Alaska, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont and Virginia. And in Wisconsin, a woman may marry her first cousin if she is 55 years or older.

Bob Loveland, owner of Loveland's Refinishing (left), and assistant Larry McKenzie with rocker they are refinishing.

Loveland's Gives Furniture That Tender Loving Touch

Loveland's Refinishing is finishing its second year in its present location at 506 W. 13th St., Sanford, and owner Bob Loveland wants to thank all past and present residential and commercial customers for their business.

"I want to thank everyone who helped make it a successful year for their confidence and business," Bob said, "and for recommending me to their friends."

Bob says now is the time to get your furniture ready for the holidays. If your furniture needs refinishing, touch-ups or repairs, don't delay. Avoid the rush and call Loveland's at 322-7496 today.

If Bob isn't in the office at the time, his assistant, Larry McKenzie will be glad to help you.

Loveland's also brings old doors and kitchen cabinets back to their original beauty. Painted furniture is no problem and Loveland's will do custom refinishing matching any color of paint.

Bob, who will celebrate his second anniversary at the location in November, has nine years experience in the furniture refinishing business, six of which he has operated his own business.

In the near future Loveland's will be expanding into offering furniture upholstery as well.

Don't throw away those old pieces with sentimental value that may be a bit worse for wear. Bob can clean them up and either completely refinish or touch up scratches, water damage or cigarette burns. He can replace damaged or missing parts and have them looking like new.

Bob gives estimates and does work for insurance and moving claims including fire, water and smoke damage. Loveland's also offers furniture stripping and custom painted finishes.

"Most everything can be stripped and redone," says Bob. "Most pieces are worth doing. It is very satisfying to bring back an old part of our heritage and make furniture over like it was yesterday."

Local pick up and delivery are available free of charge.

Loveland's is located just one block east of French Avenue across from the city water tower at the corner of 13th and Laurel Avenue. For easy access to drop off furniture or parking, enter the lot from the Laurel Avenue entrance.

The business is open 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday and Saturday until 5 p.m.

Please don't ask for estimates over the phone as they are very difficult to give without seeing the furniture. Call 322-7496 for an appointment.

Study Proposes Government Without Taxes

By Richard M. Harsett

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The tax reform expected to be passed by Congress is just the first step in a process which could lead to the elimination of all taxation in the United States, according to a study to be released soon by the Pacific Institute for Public Policy Research.

The institute is a scholarly think tank, supported by conservative foundations, corporations and individuals, which boasts that President Reagan often uses its material. It has the undisguised goal of attempting to influence national leaders towards "free enterprise" economic and social policies.

Its forthcoming book, "Taxation and the Deficit Economy," contains essays by a number of scholars who argue that most of the activities of government should be scaled back and economic regulation reduced along with taxes.

In the final summarizing chapter, Eric Mack of Tulane University, says:

"All existing and prospective tax schemes of the U.S. government and its political subdivisions ... involve ... impermissible seizures — seizures that, from the perspective developed here, have the same moral status as banditry."

Mack attempts to show that the chief arguments for taxation, such as the need to take care of the poor and provide essential services such as roads and water, are fallacies. He says government taking someone's money is no different than a thief taking it.

Instead of taxes, he says, every public service should be paid for by those who benefit. Even the nation's defense should be paid for by those who feel the need for it and are willing to shell out voluntarily for it.

According to Mack, citizens could be persuaded "by many forms of permissible social (and economic) pressure" to sign up for defense and pay their share. He concedes the result would be a "suboptimal level" of funding for the various government activities.

"That is an obviously radical concept," William H. Mellor III, the new head of the institute, said in an interview. "But it is one that is made radical not by the fact that it is wrong, but because people have come to accept as normal something which deserves fundamental questioning."

Taxation, he said, "is based on two premises. One is that these services need to be provided, and second, that they need to be provided by government. Both of those premises need to be questioned, and that is what this book does," said Mellor.

All the contributors to the new study "would applaud the direction in which the present tax bill is headed," Mellor said. "But the extent of that direction and the ultimate end that it is headed for they would figure is not final. And they would give you some very persuasive arguments why that is the case."

The Pacific Institute for Public Policy Research was founded in 1979 by Anthony Fisher, who also established the Institute for Economic Affairs in London, which is credited with starting the move that resulted in the Conservative government of Margaret Thatcher.

Fisher also is a founder of other conservative foundations, including the Manhattan Institute in New York, the Fraser Institute, Vancouver, B.C., the National Center for Policy Analysis in Texas.

Mellor said the goal of the institute, which has an annual budget of about three-quarters of a million dollars, "is to lay the intellectual groundwork for policy reform."

"We do not get involved in political activity. We do not get involved in lobbying. We do not get involved in the quick study, the down and dirty kind of legislative analysis. Instead, we gear ourselves to a more scholarly approach."

Previous books issued by the institute include studies of the use of natural resources, the development of power, and the economics of oil.

Authors in the new tax volume include Dwight R. Lee of the University of Georgia, John Baden of Southern Methodist, James Bennett of George Mason University, Bruce Benson of Florida State, James M. Buchanan of George Mason University, Marilyn Flowers of the University of Oklahoma, and others.

Robertson Offers 'Date With Destiny'

DETROIT (UPI) — Television evangelist Pat Robertson, a possible contender for the Republican presidential nomination, has sent out thousands of invitations to voters to watch a 90-minute closed-circuit television program as he announces on Sept. 17 "what may be our date with destiny." It was reported Saturday.

Despite the wording of the invitation, spokesman David West told the Detroit Free Press that Robertson will stop short of announcing he is a candidate for president.

Robertson will announce he has "set up a bench mark of support" which must be met before he becomes a candidate, West said.

The program will be beamed from Constitution Hall in Washington, D.C., headquarters of the Daughters of the American Revolution, to 215 hotels and halls across the country.

"I want to ask you to join me personally on Sept. 17 at 7:30 p.m. local time, for what may be our date with destiny," the invitation says.

"You have heard and read that tens of thousands of Americans have been urging me to seek the Republican nomination for the presidency of the United States."

"You know I have been in earnest prayer about this crucial decision and that I have been seeking the council of wise and godly men and women across America and other lands as well," the invitation continues. "Now the time has come to announce my decision, and I want you with me when I do it."

Recipients are instructed to call a toll-free number for reservations.

Congress Returns To Face Backlog

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress, ending a three-week break, returned to Capitol Hill Monday, facing a long and difficult list of unfinished business with little time to act before pre-election adjournment.

The first day back, however, saw only a brief pro forma session in the House and little more than speech-making in the Senate. Most of the lawmakers were not expected to return to their offices until Tuesday.

The pace will pick up later in the week when the House takes up a bipartisan bill to crack down on illegal drugs, and the Senate turns to the two Supreme Court nominations.

The drug bill is an amalgam of several bills drafted by various House committees. The cost is estimated at $2.9 billion over the next three years.

The measure would increase penalties for most drug-related offenses; provide substantially more money for federal, state and local law enforcement efforts, plus funds for more federal prison construction; and bolster programs for drug abuse education, treatment and prevention.

The Senate plans to begin debate Wednesday on the nomination of William Rehnquist to be chief justice and Antonin Scalia to replace Rehnquist as associate justice of the Supreme Court.

Both men are expected to be confirmed, but not until after Rehnquist's critics have aired what they see as serious shortcomings in his civil rights record. The actual votes could be delayed until next week.

Congressional leaders have set Oct. 3 as the target date for adjournment of the 99th Congress, but so much work remains to be done there is increasing doubt the target can be met.

The alternatives would be to delay adjournment — interfering with members' plans to go home and campaign for re-election — or to come back after the Nov. 4 election to finish up the congressional agenda in a lame-duck session.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas told reporters just before the Senate convened Monday that he believes Congress can finish its work without a post-election session.

But Dole did reel off a long list of bills that have to be acted on, and said he will give Republicans a questionnaire to see if they want to quit Oct. 3 and leave some things undone or "come back."

One of the major items of unfinished business is passage of the 13 regular appropriations bills needed to keep federal agencies in business during 1987. None of the bills has yet won final approval and it appears likely Congress will have to lump most of them together in a catch-all "continuing resolution" that would be passed just before adjournment.

The resolution likely would be the largest spending bill in U.S. history.

Approval of the historic tax reform bill is expected this month, although some members of Congress say the voters back home do not particularly like the plan.

"On balance, it's a step in the right direction. But if you're looking for a reason to vote no, you could have found it at home," Dole said.

Accused Kidnapper Arraigned

WEST KINGSTON, R.I. (UPI) — A man accused in the kidnapping and assault of Virginia Chafee, the wife of Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., was arraigned on three charges Monday.

Clinton Coates, 24, was arraigned before Washington County Superior Court Judge Antonio Almeida on one count of kidnapping, one count of simple assault and one count of breaking and entering. The incident occurred June 25 at the Chafees' summer beach home in Matunuck.

Almeida set bail at $30,000 with surety and Coates posted the required $3,000 and was released, a court official said. A pretrial conference is scheduled for Oct. 7.

The state attorney general's office, police and Chafee have declined to comment on specific details of the early morning kidnapping and assault. Sources have said

Virginia Chafee was confronted by an intruder in her bedroom and was prevented from leaving.

A police department statement issued following Coates' arrest said the suspect was charged with "unlawful seizure and confinement of Virginia Chafee." Police refused to elaborate or say how he entered the senator's home or how long he detained Virginia Chafee.

South Kingstown Police Chief Vincent Vespa Jr. has said the 60-year-old woman was alone and was not injured or sexually assaulted.

Chafee, a former Rhode Island governor now in his second term as U.S. senator, was unavailable for comment, but spokesman Michael Ryan said "the senator has made it clear he's not going to comment on the case. All questions should be directed to the prosecuting authorities."

Log Notice

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
SEMINOLE COUNTY INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY
A public hearing will be held by the Seminole County Industrial Development Authority (SCIDA) to consider the act on approval for purposes of Section 190(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, of a bond issue for the project listed below:

The consideration and action relative to the adoption of a resolution authorizing the issuance of its First Mortgage Revenue Bonds (The Friendly Village of Florida, Inc. Project), Series 1986 in the aggregate principal amount not to exceed $3,500,000 (the "Bonds"). The proceeds of the Bonds will be used to refund those certain Series 1981 First Mortgage Revenue Bonds (The Friendly Village of Florida, Inc. Project) of Seminole County Industrial Development Authority, dated November 1, 1981, which were used to finance the cost of acquiring, constructing and equipping a 60-bed intermediate care facility for the mentally retarded located at 2044 Howell Branch Road, Winter Park, Florida.

THE REFUNDING BONDS SHALL NOT REPRESENT OR CONSTITUTE A DEBT OR LIABILITIES OF FAITH AND CREDIT OR TAKING POWER OF THE COUNTY OF SEMINOLE. The primary use of the project will be the Friendly Village of Florida, Inc. d/b/a Howell Branch Road, Winter Park, Florida. The project is presently and will continue to be managed by Development Services, Inc. Interested persons are invited to attend this public hearing and will be given an opportunity to express their views orally and in writing concerning the proposed issuance of the bonds and the location and nature of the project.

The above bond issue will be considered by SCIDA and, if preliminarily approved, such approval will be immediately followed by a public hearing wherein members of the public will be given a reasonable opportunity to express their views of the issuance of bonds and the location and nature of the proposed project.

The public hearing will be held on Wednesday, September 24, 1986, and will begin at 8:30 A.M. in the Council Chambers of the Altamonte Springs City Hall, 225 Newburyport Avenue, Altamonte Springs, Florida, and the public hearing, if any, will immediately follow at the same location.

If a person decides to appeal any decision made by the SCIDA with respect to any matter considered at this meeting or hearing, he will need a record of the proceedings, and, for such purpose, he may need to insure that a verbatim record of the proceedings is made, which record includes the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be based.

Listen To Druggist, Don't Misuse Feldene

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor says I can take up to four or five Feldene capsules a day for my arthritis. My druggist says I shouldn't take more than one a day because of the side effects. Whose advice should I follow?

DEAR READER — I definitely side with your druggist. Feldene is a very effective drug for arthritis. In my experience, if one a day doesn't do the trick, more are unlikely to help. The manufacturer recommends one pill a day. I think that taking four or five Feldene pills a day is too much and will certainly increase your chances of developing side effects, such as peptic ulcer and intestinal distress.

To give you more general information about arthritis, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, UNDERSTANDING OSTEOARTHRITIS. Others who would like a copy should send $1, plus their name and address, to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had a cornea transplant four years ago. My eye is still blurry. The doctor says it is impossible to get 20/20 vision with a transplant. Is he right?

DEAR READER — Apparently, it's hard to achieve perfect 20/20 vision by synthetic or artificial means. Your original cornea was right for you; nothing the doctor provides is going to improve on Nature. Nonetheless, blurry vision is not a common consequence of corneal transplants. You should get a second opinion to determine if anything more can be done to improve your vision.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What does it mean when the blood analysis shows the platelet count is high? Is this dangerous?

DEAR READER — Platelets are tiny blood cells that participate in blood clotting. Too few (thrombocytopenia) can cause hemorrhage. Too many (thrombocytosis) do not affect bleeding, but can indicate an underlying disease, such as iron deficiency or cancer. Thrombocytosis means that a thorough medical investigation must be carried out.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a problem about which I feel uncomfortable asking my doctor. Whenever I have a bowel movement, the anal area starts itching really badly. I have hemorrhoids once in a while, no allergies and am about 90 pounds overweight. What could be causing this problem?

DEAR READER — There may be a low-grade inflammation in the anal area that is irritated by your bowel movements. In overweight people especially, the skin between the buttocks can become chronically inflamed and itchy. Your doctor may be able to help you to overcome the problem — but, of course, you'll have to ask to get help.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Sometimes the play of a hand becomes a duel between declarer and the defenders, each side prepared to make quick thrusts and deft parries. The first thrust against today's slam was the opening lead of the club king. If declarer had ducked, it would have scored a clean hit for the defenders and "curses, foiled again" for declarer. However, the parry was easy to find since the ace doubleton in clubs opposite the small doubleton had "throw-in play" written all over it.

To prepare for the throw-in, declarer drew trumps and played out three rounds of diamonds, ending in his hand. He now led his remaining low club toward dummy's bare 10. If West wins his queen, the duel is over. A club or a diamond lead from West offers a sluff and a ruff; a heart lead surrenders a free finesse. Score the point and match to the declarer.

Was there a winning riposte for the defense? West's opening lead of the club king promised the queen. (The ace was visible in dummy.) With the jack in his hand, East should have signaled by playing the nine. When South later plays his last low club for a throw-in, West could then counter confidently by ducking, and East would be on lead. Now comes the "coup de grace" to finish off declarer — a heart lead through South's A-Q. South must lose a heart trick as well as the club for down one. Touche! The victory goes to East-West.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY

SEPTEMBER 10, 1988
In the year ahead, you will disengage yourself from people and situations that have impeded your progress. The new ties you establish will prove productive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is a questionable day for establishing important agreements. Before taking any action, be sure to seek out expert advice. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to make the relationship work, Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, PO Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Persons with whom you associate today might be a bit dubious about your motives.

Make it a point to lay all of your cards on the table, face up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's a possibility you may find yourself lined up with the minority today in a group endeavor. Instead of bucking the crowd, try to understand its position.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you do not think well of yourself, who will? But today if you think only of yourself, persons who normally think well of you won't.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not suffer a memory lapse today and forget a valuable lesson you learned from a bitter experience. If you repeat your mistakes, you're apt to repeat the results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Guard against temptations today to throw good money after bad. If you are locked into a bum deal, see it for what it is and walk away.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In order to receive cooperation from companions today, you must first set the proper example yourself. If you won't help them, they won't help you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Establish definite boundaries today, or co-workers might try to shift their responsibilities onto you. Be helpful, but don't earn their paychecks for them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have outgrown a relationship that you now have with someone. Today, you might find reasons to see less of this individual.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An objective that is important to you might not be of equal importance to others. If you team up with persons who lack interest, it may not be achieved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be extra careful today of what you say or put in writing. If you do something without thinking, it may later be held against you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) At this time, you may be anxious to acquire something that is out of your reach financially. Be patient and build a cash base, rather than over-obligating yourself.
