April housing starts down

WASHINGTON — Housing starts plunged 17 percent in April, the largest drop in eight years, the government said today. Each region of the country suffered declines.

Analysts attributed the fall to relatively higher mortgage rates in April and unseasonably warm weather in January and February. The warm weather prompted many builders to begin construction that they otherwise would have postponed until spring.

"The key was rising mortgage rates through April" which caused sales to fall, said Mark Corinaky, an economist with the Federal National Mortgage Association.

Ken Collins, executive vice president of the National Association of Home Builders, said he still believes the housing industry is recovering from the recession but added, "there is some question about how robust the recovery will be."

Nunn sets first-graders straight

ROSWELL, Ga. — A group of first-graders invited Sen. Sam Nunn to tea and accompanied the invitation with drawings of what they think a senator does for a living.

The Georgia Democrat could not attend Friday's tea, but made a special trip to the school Monday to convince the pupils that he doesn't polish the White House bowling alley, arrest people or run a bank.

First-grader Katie Ingraham had written: "A senator is a guy that cleans the pool and polish (s) the bowling alley, and goes around cleaning the President's room."

Her classmate, Daniel Shumaker, said he believed the senator arrested people and had a sidekick, Willie.

"One of the children had the misconception that he was a banker. It might have come from all the news of check-bouncing," said Charlotte McNeely, assistant principal at Esther Jackson Elementary School.

Others were closer to the mark. Wesley Platt knew the senator worked for the government, "but I thought he worked for the president. But he doesn't, he just helps."

"I thought he helped the poor and homeless people, and he does," said Tim Secesnak. "I think someday he might be President Nunn."

I-4 lights stay bright

LAKE MARY — State road officials have rejected all proposals to modify lighting at the new Interstate 4 interchange at Lake Mary Boulevard.

"After reviewing the issue with my staff, I concur in their recommendation that the system remain as designed and constructed," wrote Tom Barry, district secretary of the Florida Department of Transportation.

"It's unbelievably atrocious," said Frank Shelton, who lives within sight of the interchange lights. "It's almost impossible to live with."

Shelton, president of the Markham Woods Homeowners Association, said he will contact Lake Mary and Seminole County officials to encourage them to increase the pressure on road officials to change the lighting.

"I'll try to get it over-ruled somehow," Shelton said.

Residents living east and west of the interchange have protested the lights atop the high poles which they say intrudes into their neighborhoods. FDOT officials say the 13 140-foot poles provide less of a safety hazard than the 88 light poles needed if conventional poles were used. Also, the light is spread more evenly, allowing motorists' eyes to adjust to the brightness, officials say.

After receiving resolutions in February from Lake Mary and Seminole County commissioners asking them to reconsider the lighting, Barry ordered three of his top administrators to study lighting alternatives.

Bob Lavette, district director of operations and a member of the three-man committee, said the Lake Mary Boulevard interchange has the best lighting in central Florida. He said light shielding at the EPCOT exit south of Orlando reduces the LAKE MARY — If you come, we will build it. Seminole County is hoping to use that turn on a simple celluloid formula to become the permanent home of the United States Soccer Federation's training facility.

On Monday morning at AAA National Headquarters in Heathrow, "Team Seminole" made its official bid to lure the USSF to a facility that would be developed at the Seminole Soccer Club's 14-field site on Markham Road.

Pros and cons increase in area dirt war

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — A group of South Sanford Avenue area residents have strengthened their numbers in their efforts to block new dirt pits in their rural community — even as an application for a new pit has been proposed for their neighborhood.

"There are many, many people very worried about this," said Gerri Small, a Palm Way resident who has been leading the effort.

Small said a meeting at her home last night was attended by about 35, mostly first-time, visitors.

About 65 people attended a similar meeting last week.

Small said the organization, the North Lake Jesup Homeowners Association, is seeking a moratorium on new "borrow" pit construction until a study of the effects of more holes in the ground can be completed.

Although the county completed a similar study two years ago in response to borrow pit fears in Geneva, Small said the South Sanford Avenue area is different.

"We're a water (discharge) area," said Small. "Geneva is a water (recharge) situation. They're totally different."

Small said the groundwater staff at the St. Johns River Water Management District will also be solicited to conduct the study.

Small said as many as nine operating or proposed borrow pits are in a 1½-square-mile area in their community. County staff are currently reviewing a proposal by former county commissioner Sid Vihlen at the northeast end of Silver Lake Drive.

Small said the group will attend a May 26 county commission hearing scheduled to consider LONGWOOD — James McFellin took over his new role as Longwood City Administrator yesterday. McFellin, 52, has been serving as City Manager in Nassau Bay, Texas for several years.

His first day on the job included a City Commission workshop meeting at 6:15, and a regular commission meeting that began at 7.

"I'm glad to be here," he commented. "I've always liked this area of Central Florida and I'm looking forward to working here in Longwood."

"I'm already familiar with this area," he commented. "My wife's uncle, Rev. Sim Whalley, used to be pastor of the Central Baptist Church in Sanford, back in the late 1950's."

Regarding his plans for the future of Longwood he projected, "I've just started work, but as far as I'm concerned, things will get better and better from now on."

He projected, "For the immediate future, I'll be working on a very strong community relations campaign." He added, "My goal is to build up and really strengthen the community's respect for its city government."

Hot dog! Food sale for SHS grad party

By VICKI BOGOSIAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — There are some times when eating a hot dog with all the fixings is good for you.

Or good for the senior class at Seminole High School, at least.

Thursday through Saturday this week, the hot dog stand in front of the Kmart in Sanford will be staffed by the organizers of Seminole High's Project Graduation. Fifty cents from every dollar they make will go toward helping pay for that celebration.

"Project Graduation is a drug- and alcohol-free party that is planned and run by the parents of graduates the evening of graduation."

"The parents have been working very hard on this," said Gale Hodgins, publicity chairman of Seminole's party this year. "This is very important to the students and the parents that there is a drug-free alternative to graduation night parties."

The Seminole group has planned an evening of music, unlimited food and dancing at the Sanford Civic Center and an excursion on Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River aboard the Rivership Grand Romance. There will also be a breakfast for the students.

Radio station XL106.7 will provide the music and entertainment for the evening.

"That's not an inexpensive thing," Marge Battista, president of the group, said. "Getting the DJ from a big station like that you need lots of money right up front."

She added that there will also be videos, games and door prizes for the students.

Congressional redistricting delayed

TALLAHASSEE — The months-long effort to draw 23 new Florida congressional districts was delayed by a federal judge who wasn't able to finish his proposal on time.

Senior U.S. District Judge C. Clyde Atkins informed the federal court clerk's office that he would now file the recommendation today instead of Monday as originally planned.

Atkins was appointed to recommend a congressional redistricting plan to a panel of three federal judges, who took control in March after the Legislature was unable to pass a plan. The three-judge panel intends to adopt a final plan on May 29.

A proposal drawn last week by court-appointed expert M. David Gelfand provided Atkins with a blueprint from which to work. Atkins can accept, modify or reject that plan.

Testimony begins in child murder trial

MELBOURNE — The kidnap, rape and murder trial of Mark Dean Schwab began with emotional testimony from the mother of the young victim, who spoke about her fruitless search for the boy.

The courtroom was packed Monday with spectators and relatives of the dead boy, 11-year-old Junny Omar Rios-Martinez.

The boy's father, Junny Rios-Martinez, sat subdued through the testimony in a front-row seat, taking notes for his wife, Vicki, who waited outside the courtroom until time for her testimony.

Taking the stand, she spoke clearly, until asked about the night her son was missing.

"I opened the door and called his name," she said, overcome with emotion. "He was not there."

Former officer sentenced

TAMPA — A former Florida Marine Patrol officer was sentenced to 30 years in prison without parole for taking money to protect a drug shipment.

Authorities videotaped Roy Vinson Rickman of Manatee County taking $40,000 in a motel room last summer to protect the unloading of a cocaine-laden ship. He was wearing his uniform and service pistol as he watched while the drugs were taken from a ship and loaded into a van.

Rickman claimed he was conducting his own investigation of the smugglers and did not inform superiors to guard against leaks.

Media group concerned

MIAMI — The Inter American Press Association expressed surprise and concern at recent measures in Argentina which have affected press freedom in that country.

In a declaration issued here Monday, IAPA cited a judicial order constituting prior censorship of a television program and attacks on private media and journalists made by government television stations.

"The attacks ... and prior censorship ... are acts normally seen in nations with dictatorial government but not in democracies such as Argentina," the IAPA declaration said.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Oldest banks merge, plan cuts

Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — Shareholders may profit, but many bank workers could hit the unemployment line after Florida's two oldest bank companies agreed to become one.

Barnett Banks Inc. and First Florida Banks Inc. agreed Monday to merge in an $885 million stock swap.

"It's an in-market deal where they expect to close a lot of branches and consolidate a lot of functions," said Ron McRae, editor of the Bank Mergers and Acquisitions Newsletter. "The idea is you end up with a lot of layoffs and the big savings are in personnel."

Barnett and First Florida are just the latest to merge in the past year as the banking industry sheds fat in a fiercely competitive environment. The mergers have been driven by a surplus of banks in the country chasing after a declining supply of solid loans, a situation that has put some banks on shaky footing.

First Florida's stock soared in over-the-counter trading, gaining $13.87 1/2 to close Monday at $45.37 1/2, while Barnett's stock dropped $3.25 to close at $36 a share.

Under the agreement, First Florida shareholders will receive

1.42 shares of Barnett common stock for each First Florida common share, an exchange that First Florida investors found attractive.

Based on Barnett's closing price of $39.25 Friday on the New York Stock Exchange, the merger exchange of stock would be valued at $885 million.

The new combined bank, which will retain the Barnett Banks name, will become one of the nation's 20 largest banks with about $38 billion in assets.

The merger, which requires approval of bank regulators and shareholders of both companies, is scheduled for completion by Dec. 31.

Allen Lastinger Jr., Barnett president and chief operating officer, said "the combination is a terrific strategic fit for Barnett."

The banks intend to "eliminate redundant administrative expenses," but Lastinger said it was too early to estimate the number of workers who would lose their jobs.

Analysts estimate as many as 100 First Florida and some Barnett branches could be affected. Barnett, headquartered in Jacksonville, is the largest financial institution based in Florida and 19th largest in the nation with $32.9 billion in assets, 550 offices in Florida.

American Lung Association fears ban may jeopardize medical inhaler

By BETH DUFF-BROWN
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH — Eleven-year-old Charity Adams says she wouldn't be able to go to summer camp with her friends if it weren't for the little pocket-sized pump that helps her breathe.

"When I was a baby, I was in the hospital because of my asthma every three or four months," said Charity, a fifth-grader at Plantation Park Elementary School in Fort Lauderdale. "Inhalers are very important to me."

Charity spoke at a news conference Monday with lung specialists who fear an upcoming ban on chlorofluorocarbons to protect the Earth's ozone layer will jeopardize the supply of medical inhalers for asthma and emphysema sufferers.

"People's lives depend on these things. They're portable, they're cheap and they're incredibly reliable. And we just simply can't afford not to have them," Dr. Jeffrey M. Drazen of Harvard Medical School.

An international treaty adopted in 1987 known as the Montreal Protocol would ban the production of chlorofluorocarbons, known as CFCs, by the year 2000. CFCs are linked to the depletion of the Earth's protective ozone layer.

One-armed trucker fights rules

Associated Press

SHAMROCK, Fla. — A trucker who lost his left arm when he was 8 years old says he can maneuver an 18-wheel rig just as well as his two-armed commercial colleagues.

So Hal Gainey intends to fight new federal safety standards that keep him from driving trucks on interstate highways.

Beginning in April, the U.S. Department of Transportation barred commercial licenses to anyone with heart problems, insulin-dependent diabetes, epilepsy, less than 20/40 vision in each eye — or loss of a limb.

Gainey, of this Dixie County city, said he had no accidents — and only one ticket — while working as a truck driver and raising his first five children. He wants to raise his youngest son, now 14, by driving a big tractor-trailer.

"I've had blowouts and never left the road, and there are a lot of guys with two arms who get in bad wrecks when they have a blowout," Gainey said. "This whole thing just doesn't seem fair, keeping a guy from working when he wants to work and he can work."

The new rule says he can drive an 18-wheeler if he wears an artificial limb. But much of Gainey's shoulder is missing, making a prosthesis almost impossible to use.

Gainey lost his arm after he fell from a fence and broke it. The doctor who set the fracture put a cast on too tight, resulting in blood poisoning. The arm was amputated at the shoulder.

Russians inspect

Cape checked for missile treaty compliance

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL — With only five hours notice, Russian inspectors showed up at Cape Canaveral Air Force Station to look for any evidence of banned intermediate nuclear missiles.

The six-member Commonwealth of Independent States team was accompanied by a dozen U.S. disarmament officials when they arrived Sunday aboard an Air Force C-141 for the visit, Capt. Ken Warren said Monday.

The inspections are allowed under the 1987 Intermediate Nuclear Force Treaty signed by the United States and the then-Soviet Union, Warren said. It bans nuclear-tipped missiles with ranges of between 500 and 5,500 miles.

"We used to process and test-launch Pershing II missiles, and obviously that series of weapons was eliminated by the treaty, and the inspectors are here to ensure we have done that," he said.

Asked if the base had indeed eliminated the Pershing, he quickly replied, "Oh yes."

Warren said the inspectors were approved to check three areas at the base — an old Pershing assembly area, the test launch pad, and the road between the two.

The team apparently finished their duties Monday and were expected to head back to Washington before later returning to the CIS, said Warren.

Under the treaty, the inspectors have 32 hours to finish their work and be on their way, he added.

The treaty says the surprise inspections can continue up through 2001, and the Sunday visit was not the first under the treaty, he noted.

"This is the fourth time — but it's never routine," said Warren.

In the past, the inspectors did not limit their activities to the rigors of ensuring international disarmament.

"They've asked for quarters and to sit on the beach," noted Brig. Gen. Jimmy Morrell, commander of the 45th Space Wing.

Student leaders support tax plan

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles told university student leaders he was counting on them to help him sell his $1.4 billion tax plan — and the students said they were ready for the job.

"We're going to be getting in the face of legislators," said Todd Talbot, student body president of Florida Atlantic University in Boca Raton. "We're going to be in their office, we're going to be in Tallahassee, we're going to be wherever they turn and we're not going away."

Charlie Ward, student body vice president of Florida State University in Tallahassee, said Chiles' proposal would be a fairer way to distribute the state's tax burden. The governor wants to extend the sales tax to 99 goods and services now exempted while rolling it back a penny to 5 cents and giving some property owners lower rates.

"If I ever saw a bunch of folks who were off their duff, it's you all," Chiles told the student leaders at a Monday press conference.

Last fall at a rally protesting impending budget cuts, Chiles told hundreds of students to get off their duff and help him advance his plan for improving state government.

No one wants new taxes but university students are in a position to understand how much spending has already been cut and how great the need is for more tax money, Chiles said Monday.

Multiple charges filed

Sanford police arrested Huron James Braxton, 40, of 108 Franklin Arms Apartments, Sanford, on Saturday. According to the police report, Braxton had forced Vernita Brown, of 1120 Florida Avenue, to walk with him. During the walk, police said he threw her to the ground and stabbed her in the left elbow and hand with a butcher knife. Brown told police he had taken her with him for what she believed was a possible drug purchase. She told officers Braxton had also taken her purse with $35, before they returned to the woman's home where police arrested Braxton.

He was charged with false imprisonment, sexual battery, aggravated battery, strong armed robbery and the use of a weapon in committing a felony. Police found he was also wanted on an outstanding warrant charging him with a misdemeanor.

Robbery charged

Sanford police arrested Howard Bailey, 27, of 1600 Dixie Way, Sanford, Sunday morning at 919 Perimmon Avenue. According to the police report, Alton Burke was sitting in his pickup truck at 1610 W. 13th Street, when Bailey came up to him. The police report said Bailey told Burke, "Let me sit in your truck." According to officers, Burke attempted to drive off in his truck, but Bailey reached inside the window, turned the keys off, and pulled Burke from the truck, onto the ground. Police said he took Burke's wallet, but when other persons started approaching the area, Bailey ran. Police said they later found Bailey on Perimmon Avenue, and a search uncovered $223 hidden inside his pant leg. Burke had reported his wallet contained $50. Bailey has been charged with strong armed robbery, burglary, and battery of a person over 65 years of age.

Aggravated battery

Seminole County Sheriff's deputies arrested Mark Anthony Lombardi, 41, of 1995 S. Highway 17-92 in Longwood Sunday. They report finding him in a confrontation with Jancee Sizemore at 207 Moyes Road, near Howell Branch Road. Deputies said two men, David and Bryant Prescott, attempted to stop the fight. They told deputies Lombardi obtained a baseball bat from his vehicle and struck the woman as well as both of them before fleeing. Deputies located Lombardi by a description given to them by the men, at Jergo Road, and placed him under arrest. He has been charged with aggravated battery, and battery (domestic violence).

DUI arrests

- Wayne Winfield Lankford, 33, 1407 Sumter Ave., Kissimmee.
 - Richard George Soloway, 37, 122 Genevieve Dr., Altamonte Springs.
 - Bradley Frederick Gabriel, 31, 1723 Semoran North, Apt. 203, Winter Park.
- All were held in lieu of $500 bond.

Paraphernalia possession charged

Seminole County Sheriff's deputies arrested Lawanda Denise Collins, 29, of 2040 Dixie Avenue, Sanford on Sunday. Responding to a complaint of noise, deputies questioned the woman, and reported finding drug paraphernalia in her purse. She was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia, and also served a warrant issued against her on a charge of grand theft.

Wrong license tag

Lake Mary police arrested Richard Lee Taylor, 30, of 407 Myrtle Avenue, Lake Mary, on Saturday. An officer stopped in a parking lot, checked the license tag on Taylor's car as it passed, and found it was not the tag assigned to the vehicle. Police stopped him at Country Club Road and Wilbur Avenue, and charged him with having an attached tag not assigned, and driving with a suspended drivers license.

Warrants served

The following warrants have been served by Sanford police and Seminole County Sheriff's deputies:

- Jamie Robert Rought, 21, of 5355 Orange Blvd., Lake Monroe, was located at 186 Twin Coach Court, Sanford, by Sanford police Sunday. He was wanted on a Seminole County warrant charging him with a misdemeanor, criminal mischief.
- James Keith Walker, 21, of 2250 Deepwater, Sanford, was served a warrant at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Sunday. He was wanted for failing to appear on a charge if driving with a suspended license.
- Melinda E. Hundley, 20, 410 Evesham St., Longwood, on charges of failure to appear in court on charges of driving with a suspended license. She was held in lieu of $500 bond.
- Alton Jerome Butts, 22, 1216 W. 13th St., Sanford, on charges of failure to appear in court on charges of possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana.
- Joe Carr Hawkins, 56, who has no local address, on charges of driving with a suspended driver's license.

Reported to sheriff's office

The following incidents were reported to the Seminole

County Sheriff's office:

• The home of Bruce Heggie, 2829 Sun Lake Court, Lake Mary, was reported burglarized Sunday. Deputies said entry was made through the front door. A man's watch was among items reported taken.

• Marion J. Ricciardelli, of Orlando, told deputies someone had approached her behind her back at a convenience store at 4800 S.R. 46, Saturday, and taken her purse with $17 in currency. She told deputies the man then ran to an awaiting vehicle and escaped.

• Jane D. Solverson of Apopka reported her purse had been taken from her car, parked at Sweetwater Oaks Nursery School, 885 Fox Valley Drive in Longwood on Friday.

• A residential burglary was reported Friday at the home of Angela C. Francisco, 6035 Lake Avenue, Sanford. Deputies said entry was made through an open screen window. Items taken included a VCR, stereo and crock pot with a total value of over $400.

• Stereo equipment valued at over $450 was reported taken Thursday, from a vehicle owned by Dennis George Jakubowski, 117 Mill Run Drive, Lake Mary.

• Over $1,475 worth of lawn and gardening equipment was reported taken Friday, from the carport at the home of Danny Eugene Huff, 229 Lazy Acres, in Longwood.

Incidents reported to Sanford police

The following incidents have been reported to the Sanford police:

• The residence of Robin Lowery, 70 Lake Monroe Terrace, was reported burglarized Sunday. Entry was reportedly made by breaking the window of the front door. The only items reported missing were packages of meat from the freezer.

• Booker T. Smith, Jr., 407 W. 18th Street, reported to police that two men had grabbed him and pushed him to the ground on the SCX railroad tracks early Sunday morning. He told police the men shocked him with an unknown device, and took $140 in cash plus a gold chain from him.

• Jewelry, cash and food stamps were reportedly taken from the home of Richard Salmon, 2620 S. Elm Avenue in Sanford, on Saturday. Entry was reportedly made by removing three panes from a jalouse window.

• The home of Lori Ann Stergill, 2622 S. Elm Avenue, was reported burglarized early Sunday morning. The woman reported her purse had been taken. Police reported no signs of forced entry were noted.

• Four wheels and tires were reportedly taken Saturday, from a 1991 vehicle at Aristocrat Motors, 4175 Orlando Drive in Sanford.

• A home burglary was reported between Saturday night and Sunday morning, at the home of Jeffery Nadear, 918 S. Park Avenue. The only item listed as missing was a VCR recorder.

Code stands with fireworks vendors

Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Fireworks and Christmas Tree vendors have been given the word. The City Commission will not grant any more variances of the City Code.

In the past, waivers had been requested with regard to the requirements of the code, that states, "all peddlers must move to a new location at least 1,000 feet away, every two hours, with no location to be used more than once in a 24-hour period."

During previous years, fireworks and tree selling businesses have requested variances to the restriction, to allow them to set up operations at one location for a specific length of time.

On Sept. 23, of last year, the City Commission determined that there would no longer be any waivers or exceptions granted. It also requested that notification of the action be sent to all persons and businesses who received waivers in the past.

The policy however, allows for an automatic waiver of the two hour moving requirement in the case of sales of Christmas trees by non-profit civic organizations based within the City of Sanford.

Class act

As was the case throughout its eight-year run, the recent final episode of "The Cosby Show" drew criticism for airing a TV comedy while violence and anarchy held sway in the streets of Los Angeles.

In this case, the decision to broadcast seemed defensible, given the integrity of the program in question. And characteristically, Bill Cosby came on camera at the end to ask Americans to "pray for a better tomorrow, which starts today."

From its inception, criticism of "Cosby" came mainly from those who thought the Huxtable TV family wasn't "black" enough: They were too affluent, too removed from the grit of the ghetto, too happy and well-adjusted, too much like a blackface "Father Knows Best," a 1950s sitcom that has been criticized in retrospect for drawing a too-pristine portrait of middle-class white family life, as if comedy must always show family life, warts and all.

The answer to that argument is that "The Cosby Show" transcended the black stereotypes that have been all too commonly portrayed on TV. If the portrait that emerged seemed somewhat idealized, the fact is that many black families have become affluent.

The Huxtables were legitimate role models, not only for their affluence and not only for blacks: Their humanity, their mutual love and respect, their devotion to education and to social tradition deserve praise and emulation in their own right.

Nor did "Cosby" neglect the uniqueness of black experience. Bill Cosby, a major benefactor to black institutions, saw to that — from the paintings by black artists that adorned the walls of the Huxtable home to the frequent references to black colleges and historical figures to the occasional inclusion of a race-oriented social problem. It was always subtle but always to the point and never preachy.

And beyond its sensitivity to real life, "Cosby" was a highly professional, very funny show, just what good TV ought to be.

Fiscal Integrity

The idea of former Sen. Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts and Sen. Warren Rudman of New Hampshire leading a fight to restore fiscal responsibility to the federal government has appeal. Rudman, a Republican, and Tsongas, a Democrat, could be effective spokesmen for the effort.

What the two propose is radical. Both say they want to push for responsible economic policies.

Of the changes needed in America, few are more important than changing the attitude of Congress about spending tax money.

Rudman believes that the best way to get Congress to make the hard choices is to generate support across the country for the cause of reasonable fiscal management. By changing the thinking of Americans, Rudman believes it will be easier to promote policies in Congress that embrace the concept of fiscal discipline.

His thoughts on the economy are remarkably similar. Rudman, interviewed on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," said he and Tsongas "share the view that the fiscal integrity of this country, unless things change very rapidly, is going to dissipate, and we will face a major crisis within a very few years."

Rudman has been fighting a lonely battle to bring fiscal responsibility to the federal government. The New Hampshire senator was a co-author of the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law that Congress and the White House enacted in 1985. He is retiring from the Senate this year because of, among other things, his frustration over efforts to reduce the budget deficit.

Tsongas, who dropped out of the Democratic race for the presidential nomination, has sensible ideas about the economy. He said government's responsibility is to provide jobs, not handouts. The government, he said, can't afford new social programs. Tsongas' economic program included incentives that Republicans have sometimes favored, such as tax credits, a targeted capital gains tax reduction and export assistance.

Both Rudman and Tsongas have talked about the deficit and the other economic problems that have dragged down the vitality of America. Their message deserves to be heard. How much more effective that message will be if delivered from the same platform.

Can government aid underclass?

In a recent column, I asserted that the problem of America's underclass is not, at bottom, economic at all, but moral. This flies directly in the face of the liberals' basic assumption that there is nothing wrong with America's poor that money, distributed by the welfare bureaucracy either directly (in the form of cash and food stamps) or indirectly (in the form of special education, free medical care, etc.), can't solve.

They couldn't be more mistaken. People will not shake off the mentality of dependency and become constructive members of society unless their more brutish impulses are restrained by religious or at least ethical training, and unless an allegiance to such norms as the work ethic is fostered by membership in a stable family structure. I realize that at this point the argument tends to become circular (how can a poor person born on the streets become a member of a stable family?), but the fact that the problem is knotty or even insoluble in the case of particular individuals doesn't invalidate the point, let alone justify just throwing money at such people.

There are, however, certain things of an economic nature that government can do to ameliorate the problem, even though they fall far short of solving it. One of the simplest and best is HUD Secretary Jack Kemp's proposal for "enterprise zones" in our inner cities.

Essentially, this proposal would create zones in which entrepreneurs who are willing to live, work and invest in them would not have to pay a capital gains tax in the businesses thus created. The result would be new locally owned enterprises providing new jobs for people willing and able to work, as well as new income tax revenues for government. To repeat, enterprise zones won't solve the whole problem, but they are certainly a step in the right direction.

This proposal, which is closely identified with Secretary Kemp, was adopted by the Bush administration and has been sitting in the "In" basket of the Democrat-controlled Congress for three years, gathering dust. Now, in the wake of the Los Angeles riots, it appears that bipartisan support may at last be building to pass it. It is, to say the least, high time.

What has taken Congress so long? Predictably, the Democratic leaders have tried to blame President Bush. "He didn't give it a high priority," they put -- as if they leap with alacrity to pass bills to which Mr. Bush gives a high priority. (Eliminating the capital gains tax altogether, for example?) Since when, in any case, has the Party of Compassion claimed to need a prod from Mr. Bush to do something so clearly helpful to the poor?

No, the real reason for the Democrats' sluggishness in authorizing enterprise zones is probably the fact that implementing them wouldn't require the creation of another elaborate patronage network of welfare bureaucrats, like those who administer food stamps, Head Start, Medicaid and the rest. All it would require is a bill exempting certain types of businesses from the capital gains tax. What juicy boondoggle is there in that?

One of the simplest and best is Kemp's 'enterprise zones.'

Perot should think like news reporter

Not a moment too soon, H. Ross Perot entered the Cocoon Phase of his all-but-official campaign to be our president. Dashed into it, actually.

Perot spun himself into metamorphic seclusion — no in-depth interviews until he gets a few in-depth ideas — not because he is afraid he cannot be a good candidate, but because he knows he indeed can be. He knows he can emerge from his cocoon to soar above the roughly paved campaign trail (a veritable Macadam Butterfly) and even win in November. But only if he gets his act together in May.

Back at IBM, they still talk about how Perot, a sure-fire talker-seller-marketer, met a year's sales quota in a month. But a May-ful of smooth talking won't produce a November victory if his problem-solving rhetoric crumbles under proper public inquiry and basic fact-checking.

Perhaps Perot sensed the danger of a collapse into billionaire buffoonery the morning of Sunday, May 3, when a nation of television viewers actually saw it start happening before their awakening eyes. NBC News' "Meet the Press" produced 30 minutes of sharp interrogation that was a marked departure from the tedium of the medium we've come to expect each Sunday, on all networks.

Perhaps Perot expected yet another network news-chaat with semi-planned, quasi-prepared interviews. But the Meet the Pressers — Tim Russert, Lim Myers and Al Hunt — did the sort of classic interviewing that happens these days mainly in off-camera print interviews, if it happens at all. Questions and follow-ups were based on facts, well-researched and absorbed — on gun control, Job Corps, affirmative action, enterprise zones, welfare, abortion, our national deficit and the real, painful numbers behind every pol's pain-free Holy Trinity: "eliminate waste, fraud and abuse."

The Perot we saw fumbled, flim-flamed and filibustered, apparently hoping to stall his way into a commercial. He blamed the reporters and the medium. In long rambling answers, he complained that TV "sound bites" never offer enough time for him to explain what he thinks. Deep down, he had to know: His temper got short only when his answers fell short.

With all that in mind, I have decided to make the following in-kind contribution to Perot for President. Below is a memo of strategy advice — the sort that any average presidentially aspiring billionaire might want to clip and affix to his refrigerator as a handy reminder:

TO: H. Ross Perot, populist without a party.
FROM: Martin Schram, strategist without a cause.

SUBJECT: How to Master the Media and Win the Presidency.
You've had grand success in business by out-thinking your adversaries, analyzing their objectives — then beating them at their game. Now you must put that technique to work on your present little problem: increasingly inquisitive journalists.

Step One: Put yourself in their shoes — become H. Ross Perot, ace reporter. (P.S.: I like the way you begin every answer with "Step One" or "First" or "Number One." Keep that — listeners will think they're hearing a detailed plan.)

Reporter Perot, you are about to interview a high-profile fellow who burst onto your front pages and is soaring in the polls — but nobody knows what he'd really do about the problems that worry us most. Being your thorough, aggressive-but-always-fair self, figure out just how you'd interview him. Of course, you'd be as prepared in the interview as you are in the boardroom.

JOSEPH SPEAR

Why not quit politics today

If you cup your ears and lean toward Washington, you might be able to hear what sounds like the muffled drums of a dead march. It isn't, but it amounts to the same thing: It's a low moan that has begun to build within establishment ranks over the prospect that the country is about to clean Congress' clock.

We seem to be fed up with $400 billion deficits and $500 billion S&L scandals. We seem to be tired of Stealth pay raises and representatives who can't balance their own checkbooks. We seem in the mood, finally, to delouse the damn place.

Indeed, apprehensive lawmakers are already leaving by the score. As I write these words, more than 60 of them have been dumped in primary elections, have announced their resignations or have signaled their intentions to run for other offices. This number could easily double, and mainstream polls, pressies and think-tankers are getting gassy at the thought of it.

When Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., announced he was leaving, Norman Ornstein of the American Enterprise Institute openly brooded to the Baltimore Sun: "We're losing an awful lot of people who are very, very good." When Matthew McHugh, D-N.Y., and Vin Weber, R-Minn., declared their retirements, Washington Post columnist David Broder waxed forlorn: "When you lose too many people like them, you cripple the Congress." Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., was also beside himself over the McHugh departure: "What does it do when we lose people like that? It rips the guts out."

Before you sell the farm and depart for Saskatchewan, I feel I ought to inform you there is another body of opinion, one to which your correspondent enthusiastically subscribes. It holds that the Founders intended to create a legislative body through which fresh blood would forever course. They meant for lawmakers to be representative of the real world. They never contemplated a Congress peopled by career politicians.

It is therefore healthy, I think, to purge the place periodically. It will rid the system of impurities and give it a ruddier complexion and sturdier constitution.

Be not concerned, either, that all the sanctimonious solons who are flaying their colleagues and bashing the press as they toss in the towel are departing for principled reasons. Some are beating a retreat, pure and simple.

Take Timothy Wirth, the Democratic senator from Colorado. He is quitting, he said, because he is tired of partisan bickering and the sensation-seeking media. You'd never know that Wirth's polls augured defeat, that he was being berated for trying to set up a House-style bank in the Senate, that he was likely to be skewered because he did legislative favors for the junk-bond industry. Not to mention the fact that he was one of the cable television industry's favorite waterboys, which makes me personally overjoyed that he is leaving.

When Rep. Larry Smith, D-Fla., announced his retirement, he whined about a system that "doesn't work anymore." He forgot to mention that he had overdrawn his House bank account 161 times over a 39-month period. Vin Weber blamed "divided government" — a White House held by one party and a Congress controlled by another. He wrote 125 bad checks. Rep. Edward Feighan, D-Ohio, said he was being driven out by the "mean-spirited" mood in Washington. He overdraw his account 397 times.

Others will be leaving to take advantage of a 1989 law that allows members who took office before 1980 to convert their campaign funds to personal use — if they do so before the next Congress convenes. Thirty departing members are eligible for the golden parachute, but only one has declared his intention to bank his campaign moolah.

That figure will surely increase, and it could be a blessing. Providing members of Congress with a financial incentive to leave could save a bundle of money in the long run. Indeed, it's an idea that might bear repeating in a few years.

Apprehensive lawmakers are already leaving by the score.

Only two citizens stepped forward to speak in favor of the proposal. Pat Lombardo suggested, "Mandated controls on the lake are necessary to protect the safety of the people using it, and eliminate noise problems." Lombardo commented that the power boats start using the lake as early as 8 a.m.

Carol Smith told the Commissioners, "This is a terrible problem. You would think the people who use those power boats, especially jet skis, would be more considerate of property owners." She added, "Our seawalls are being destroyed."

Most of the area where the restrictions were to have been placed were in the Columbus Harbor subdivision. Almost a dozen residents, most of whom live on lakefront property, spoke against the ordinance.

Craig Bush observed, "From time to time, there are problems and we know we can't please everyone, but we can work them out between officials and the homeowners association."

He commented, "I can't except the excuse of noise problems. If we are worried about noise, then we should consider shutting down the public address speakers at Lyman High School's football field."

Bush added, "Speed limits aren't needed. A no wake zone doesn't control waves on the shore, and a no wake zone will bring about problems for skiers."

Peter Katoskus also spoke, indicating that his opening remarks were presented as the president of the Columbus Harbor Homeowners Association, then as a private individual.

"I think this should be a matter of what the people want," he suggested, "but do you know what they actually want?" He said he had contacted over 55 home owners and had a petition signed by over 50 of them, in opposition to the ordinance. He presented a copy of the petition to the members of the Commission.

"As president of the association," he said, "I assure you we are willing to talk about this, and take any additional steps we can such as policing our own area, monitoring water craft, and even speak to individuals who are causing problems."

"Speaking personally," Katoskus added, "I bought my home at Columbus Harbor to enjoy water recreation. We can ski from our back yard. Now," he said, "you want me to take my children 200 feet out before they can start skiing or to drop them off when they come in?"

A number of other homeowners also spoke of the 200 foot area from the shore where the powerboats would not be allowed to reach speeds suitable for skiing. Several commented on safety problems with young children.

At the conclusion of the public hearing, Lombardo commented, "It's easy for people who are causing the problem to tell you there is no problem, but there is, and I urge you to adopt this ordinance."

Commissioner Clanci Keith was the first on the Commission to comment on the public's observations. "From what I have been hearing," she said, "I think this ordinance would just add further restrictions." She added, "The way the lake is now, I'm not hearing of any safety problems or property damage."

Mayor Adrienne Perry observed, "I was out on the lake looking at the situation and I found you actually get a bigger wake at lower speeds." She added, "I couldn't visually see any signs of erosion either."

When she called for a motion from the Commission, there was no response. The Mayor then turned the gavel over to Deputy Mayor Rex Anderson, and made the motion to deny the ordinance herself.

Commissioner Keith gave the second, and the ordinance was killed. The audience burst into applause at the results.

Katoskus told the Commission the homeowners association would take a close look at any problems, and do what it could in the future to keep the lake in a usable and enjoyable condition for all of the homeowners with land on and adjacent to Fairy Lake.

Phil's Hot Spot wins approval from Sanford City Commission

By NICK PFEIFFER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford City Commission approved an application for a game room last night. The approval came after a change in the request that eliminated the serving of alcohol.

Philip Gittleman had requested approval for the game room, to be known as Phil's Hot Spot, at 2511 Airport Blvd., in the Riverboat Landing.

The matter had been brought before the Commission during two previous meetings. During the April 27 meeting, a decision was postponed due to the need for further information regarding Gittleman's inclusion of alcoholic beverages to be served at the establishment, in the occupational license application.

The matter was brought up for consideration again on the May 18 City Commission meeting, but tabled because Gittleman was unable to attend and address the Commissioners on his request.

Prior to last night's City Commission meeting, Gittleman submitted a new application to replace his original request made April 27. The original was declared null and void, and the new one contained no indication that alcoholic would be served or permitted on the property.

The only items listed in the application were coin operated machines, a museum machines, and four pool tables. Gittleman described the business as "A family recreation center."

The request had already received approval from the building, zoning and fire inspection divisions with no objections.

Following a brief discussion, the Commission voted to approve Gittleman's application for the game room.

expected to bring in several hundred dollars for the project, according to Battista. But the cost of putting on the party for the young people can be very high.

Battista said that the rental on the Grand Romance alone is $4,000 for three hours.

Students and their parents will be operating the hot dog stand outside the Kmart during the fundraising drive.

"We've had some great support for this project from the parents and the community," Battista said. "I'm very pleased. I hope they support the hot dog stand this Thursday, Friday and Saturday."

"I see nothing but progress in Longwood's future," he said.

He described his first meetings Monday evening as being very interesting. He commented, "I wasn't really prepared to speak out on any of the major subjects on my first day in this position, but you can be certain I'll be ready from now on."

er a proposal for a second new pit in their area. The pit is sought by White Construction Co., a Chiefland, Fla. company building the northern section of the Seminole County expressway. The proposed White pit is on a 16.5-acre site west of South Sanford Avenue and south of Pine Way.

Monday, White submitted an application for another pit on a 39-acre site owned by Joe Baker and other heirs of the C.W. Baker family, said Ginny Markley. The site is located east of South Sanford Avenue about one-quarter mile and north of Pine Way. The proposal is to excavate 831,160 cubic yards of material to create a 19.5-acre pit, said Markley.

The proposal is under staff review and has been scheduled for a June 3 staff meeting, although Markley said two weeks may not allow adequate time for staff review.

Glenn Semanisin, director of the county Development Review Division, said said the 1989 study should address the same concerns of the North Lake Jeaupresidents.

Semanisin said the study was performed by homeowners, school officials, engineers and other interested people.

"We had people from a wide range of areas," Semanisin said. "Following the study, the committee recommended changes to the county borrow pit ordinance which were substantially adopted. The new ordinance requires borrow pit applicants to perform surveys of soils near the pit to determine groundwater flows. The ordinance also requires the applicant to survey the immediate area for wells to determine potential impacts of the pits."

But Lee Voorhees, president of Geneva Citizens Association and a member of the county's borrow pit committee, said the committee members with the most technical skills were the borrow pit owners themselves.

Voorhees said the committee never studied the impacts of pits, but concentrated on changing the county borrow pit ordinance to address resident's concerns about safety, noise and other factors.

"We didn't get into any environmental issues," said Voorhees. "There were no engineering aspects."

Voorhees supports the call for a borrow pit study.

"They're making decision without sound study," Voorhees said.

the past six weeks by the city staff and our consultants from Lochrane Engineering."

Tibbler explained several changes in the ordinance that had been made since the proposal was first presented two weeks earlier. In addition to changing the rate from $2.61 to $3 per household, changes were also made in the amount to be charged for property with no mitigation, as well as commercial property.

Prior to the final hearing on the ordinance, the City had sent out over 3,000 brochures explaining the Stormwater Utility Ordinance and fees to all property owners that would be affected.

Bo Simpson was the only member of the audience who commented on the ordinance. "I think the money you spent sending out that brochure is one of the best public relations piece you could do," he observed. Simpson expressed concern however, "You don't have any part of the ordinance that deals with fees to be placed on vacant lots," he said, "I think it isn't equitable to leave that out."

Tibbler explained that he was presently drafting a proposal on the vacant property as an addition to the ordinance. "I should have that ready to be placed on the agenda for the first meeting in June," he commented.

Commissioner Paul Lovestrand questioned if the ordinance would give any credit to businesses on S.R. 434 which utilized a drainage system created by the Department of Transportation.

Tibbler responded that it would not. "That was build before the 1985 developments there," he said. "And our ordinance specifies a system must be city approved, which this is not." He said it would only effect a few small businesses." Commissioner Fred Pearl moved to approve the ordinance, with seconding by Commissioner Rex Anderson. The vote on the proposal was four to one, with Lovestrand voting in the negative.

county's major corporations.

After a presentation that included a short film, speeches by local dignitaries, an appearance by a Disney character and a chorus of SSC players, Steve Sampson, USSF vice president for Site Selection, said that it was the available facilities that makes Seminole County a very viable candidate.

"What impresses me is that there's plenty of space, yet there's still some privacy to the fields, some seclusion," said Sampson after a helicopter tour of the SSC fields and surrounding neighborhoods.

"It's still close enough so the players have things to do when they're not training. That's important when you bring in a team to train for 15 months."

While Sampson said he was impressed with the SSC grounds, he said that there were several improvements that would have to be made, most notably the upgrading of the surface of two of the fields. But he and county representatives both said that wouldn't present a problem.

"They are allowing us a lot of input into what needs to be done and the design of the facility," said Sampson. "It truly can become a world-class facility."

Jack Wert, director of Tourist Development for Seminole County and the chairman of the Training Site Organizing Committee, said that the county is giving the USSF carte blanche in determining what needs to be done and how they want it done. "Basically, we've told them,

"Tell us what you want and need, and we'll build it," said Wert.

While the available expansion space and cooperative attitude are the main planks in the county's platform to land the training site, the package being presented — and considered by the USSF — includes all of Central Florida, indeed, the entire state.

"Florida has a strong history of being a hotpot of youth soccer," said Sampson. "There's that grassroots appeal of soccer already in place."

Another consideration is being on the Atlantic Coast, improving the access to Europe and South America, where the U.S. National Team would travel to play a great majority of its games.

On a more local level, one of the points emphasized by Team Seminole is the friendlier financial climate than that of Los Angeles or Dallas, two other cities bidding to become the new home of the USSF.

"When we took them on a tour of the area, we showed them $250,000 homes that would go for $1.25 million in Los Angeles," said Wert. "One of the important considerations for the USSF coming here is our lower cost of living."

Wert and the rest of Team Seminole also showed that they are capable of working within the timetable dictated by the USSF.

With the 1994 World Cup now about two years away, the USSF wants to pick a new home and get situated quickly so that the national team can begin training continuously later this year.

Poll critics spread blame, pollsters answer

By HOWARD GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

ST. PETERSBURG — Pollsters are taking notice of critics who say self-serving marketing research and an explosion of political polls get too much attention.

"It hasn't been hard to find people in the research business who readily concede there's a lot of junk masquerading as studies these days," said Cynthia Crossen, who investigated the survey industry for The Wall Street Journal. "Of course, it's always the other guy."

Instead of polls being a quest for truth, "many today are little more than vehicles for pitching a product or opinion," Crossen said in a speech Sunday at the annual meeting of the American Association for Public Opinion Research.

Christopher Hitchens, Washington editor of Harper's Magazine, said polls no longer just measure public opinion, but influence it.

Leading pollsters invited this criticism and listened intently because their profession is perpetually at the mercy of the kindness of strangers: More people than ever are unwilling to take time to answer surveys.

"We need to face the problem squarely and solve it," Norman Bradburn, director of the National Opinion Research Center, said in a speech Monday marking the end of his term as president of the pollsters' professional association.

James Beninger, a University of Southern California professor who invited Crossen and Hitchens, said public confidence in surveys will erode if people feel they are being spoon-fed cooked data — even if the numbers are pulled from legitimate polls.

Likening such partial results to campaign sound bites, Stanford University professor Herbert Clark dubbed them "poll bites."

As examples of self-serving polls, Crossen cited a study sponsored by Chrysler that found test drivers preferred Chryslers to Toyotas and one sponsored by the paper bag industry that found shoppers prefer paper bags.

Other junk polls are based on tiny samples or self-selected groups or have loaded questions, pollsters say.

Crossen said editors push reporters to get statistics, even from sloppy studies. Even more troubling, she said, reporters and editors promise good, uncritical play for studies promised as exclusives.

Sheldon Gawaiser, a polling consultant for both marketers and the media, said it is the reporter's responsibility to treat an advocacy poll critically.

"If you got any other information from someone who has a vested interest, you're going to treat that information differently than if you get it from a subject that's independent," Gawaiser said.

Harry O'Neill, vice chairman of the Roper Organization, said a few reporters have learned to differentiate between good polls and bad, but many have not. It is the polling company's responsibility to make sure an advocacy group releases its data completely and accurately. "but once the media get hold of it, that's where my control ends," he said.

Lawrence Welk

Lawrence Welk, 89, dies at home

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Lawrence Welk, the "wonderful, wonderful" champagne music master who struck up his band with "ah-one, an' ah-two" for a generation of TV viewers, has died at 89.

Welk had pneumonia and died Sunday night at his home in Santa Monica, said spokeswoman Bernice McCeehan.

"The Lawrence Welk Show," ran for 30 years, until 1982, and continues today in reruns. Welk stopped performing in 1989.

Welk, who accompanied his orchestra on the accordion and waited with his Champagne Lady singer, never wavered from the bouncing, effervescent dance music he began playing as a young man in his native North Dakota.

To many, his wholesome formula was hopelessly square. But it worked. Swing, rock 'n' roll, bebop, progressive and other pop genres came and went, but Welk held his status among mostly older fans.

"We try to please our audience," he said in 1984. "We try to bring it some joy, happiness and relaxation and always to be in good taste — the kind of entertainment that should come into the home."

His "Champagne Music," and the phrases "Ah-one, an' ah-two" and "wonderful, wonderful" in his German accent became part of the nation's lexicon. The show's theme song for half its run was "Bubbles in the Wine."

The sunny orchestra leader toured the country for 25 years before hitting it big with a TV appearance in Los Angeles in 1951. After two years of high ratings there, the show was picked up by ABC.

"The Lawrence Welk Show" ran on ABC for 16 years, ending in 1971. After that, it was syndicated on 248 stations in the United States and Canada until 1982 — 1,542 performances in all.

Welk assembled a stable of mostly unknown but always wholesome talent. Members of his "musical family" who were with him from the first TV season to the last included saxophonist Dick Dale, accordionist Myron Floren and singer Jim Roberts.

Among the most popular shows were the Christmas specials during which musicians, singers and dancers brought their families on stage for caroling and gifts.

Off stage, he was a stern taskmaster. He was reputed to be tight-fisted with salaries. He fired original Champagne Lady Alice Lon in 1959 for showing "too much knee" on camera. And the Lennon Sisters, among the show's most famous acts, left a decade later amid reports of friction with their boss.

Welk listened to his viewers, keeping track of what performers got the most fan mail — and making sure they were featured.

"He was really on the pulse of his audience. We did three tours a year to find out what the people wanted to hear," said Bobby Burgess, a dancer on the show from 1961 to 1982. "They had to be able to feel that they could dance along with us."

When it comes to service, where do you let up? If you promise to deliver service, where do you stop? When do you decide that such-and-such doesn't matter? Or so-and-so isn't important? The answer is, you don't. The answer is that when it comes to service, everything matters. A smile. A pen with ink in it. A convenient location. A human being to answer your questions. 24 Hour Banking Machines that are reliable. Simplified mortgage applications. Help for first-time home owners and for refinancing. Individualized savings programs. Customized checking accounts. The readiness to loan five hundred dollars and the ability to lend 50 million. But always with the wisdom and farsightedness to lend responsibly. Because, when it comes to service, we never forget that the most valuable service we provide is to safeguard your money. To watch it. Protect it. And help you to help it grow. After all is

Lawmakers to debate Legislature may expand or restrict bingo

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Two proposed bingo bills are already in the works as lawmakers prepare for a new debate next month on whether to regulate the game or let play remain virtually unrestricted.

One, sponsored by Rep. Ed Healy, D-West Palm Beach, could virtually wipe out commercial bingo, restricting hours of operation and the use of commercial halls.

Another bill, drafted by Rep. Ron Silver, D-North Miami Beach, would let commercial bingo halls operate seven days a week.

Florida's bingo regulations are to expire in two weeks, but action is expected at the start of the June 1-19 special legislative session to extend them by 30 days.

Silver and other foes of the Healy bill say it would be a severe financial blow to many charitable organizations that depend on commercial halls to operate their bingo games because they don't have facilities of their own.

"Many of the charities who rely on this for a main source of revenue will certainly be hurting," said Cheryl Naylor, deputy director of the state division of pari-mutuel wagering.

American Red Cross of Bradenton, for example, relies on commercial hall bingo for 12 percent of its $220,000 annual budget.

"I pray that it doesn't go away," said Roberta Omlor, the Red Cross chapter's executive director. "The government is not going to be able to replace it."

The Legislature didn't agree on bingo in its regular session. The House adopted the Healy bill, over objections from Silver and others. The Senate voted to return to bingo regulations of 1990, before controversial legislative reforms.

Those changes, enacted in 1991, were aimed at preventing commercial operators from skimming excessive profits from the games, but non-profit groups said the restrictions were too harsh.

Healy said he hopes for a compromise in the special session, but he said neither he nor Silver has budged.

"You just can't accommodate the guy. He wants Vegas," he said of Silver. "I just want it to be the way the law has always been ... a game permitted for those raising funds for charity."

Silver said his bill will move the debate along by incorporating many changes from the Healy bill, such as requiring licensing fees, criminal checks and annual reports from bingo operators, but will still let commercial halls make a profit.

Frank Mirabella, a lobbyist representing the Florida Bingo Association, said he thinks there's support in the House for his group's position, in favor of legislation that allows for commercial operations.

Whether the Senate will go along is anyone's guess, Mirabella said. "I'd expect something a lot fairer than what Healy was proposing and something along the lines of what we were recommending."

Honors go to Boys—Girls Club

By NICK PFENAU
Herald Staff Writer

The Boys & Girls Clubs of Central Florida have been given a national honor. The organization received a Gold Award for Marketing and Communications.

According to Communications Director Nona Grampp, "We were honored during our national convention in Washington, D.C. last week, for our work in publicity and media relations during the time period of September 1990 through August 1991."

The award was given by the national parent organization, the Boys & Girls Clubs of America.

Grampp explained, "We submit annual reports on what we have done, and scrapbooks of the total local operation, which are judged on the national level. "Since we play such an important role in the lives of thousands of youth and their families," she said, "we are very happy to know that information on what we are doing is getting out to our local people who are vital to our efforts."

The total Central Florida organization consists of seven branch operations, most of them in the Orlando area.

Only one is in Seminole County. The West Sanford Branch is located at 919 S. Persimmon Ave.

Sen. Winston "Bud" Gardner Gardner backs off abolition of commission

By JACKIE HALLWAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Abolishing the state game board for allowing the hunting of Florida's threatened black bear would be going too far, a lawmaker said. But he still intends to fight the panel's decision in other ways.

"My initial reaction was perhaps an overreaction, an angry reaction," Sen. Winston "Bud" Gardner, chair of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said Monday.

Two weeks ago, Gardner called for the abolition of the state Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission after the board voted to continue to allow hunting of the Florida black bear.

Gardner, a hunter, had proposed a ban of black bear hunting in the spring legislative session but held off because the issue was pending before the game commission.

Gardner said Monday he would continue his effort to enact a ban on black bear hunting.

He admitted that the Legislature could face legal problems if it were to try to enact such a ban because, according to the state constitution, that responsibility is assigned to the game commission. But, he said, he could instead seek to impose a fee for the killing of each bear.

Although some have suggested a $75,000 tag, Gardner said he thought $10,000 might be more reasonable.

All these issues could be dealt with during June's special session on the budget, Gardner said.

Bobby Brantly, executive director of the game commission, said the $10,000 tag or stamp an obvious attempt to get around the commission's stance on bear hunting.

Hunting of Florida's black bear, believed to number anywhere from 400 to 1,500, is allowed a few weeks of each year in three North Florida locations.

The subspecies was declared threatened by the state board in 1974, but staff biologists for the commission said earlier this month that continued hunting did not threaten the bear's survival.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in January said the Florida black bear warranted inclusion on the federal listing of threatened animals but would not be added because of a backlog of other threatened species.

Gardner, D-Titusville, said Monday the state game board served a very good purpose but that some changes were needed.

First of all, an appeal process needs to be created.

"Mice" clinch league

CASSELBERRY — The Paddy McGee "Mice" got a scare Monday night, but recovered in time to win its 12th straight game, 11-9 over the Rebellettes in Women's Class C Springs Softball League action at Red Bug Park.

The "Mice" defeated the Rebellettes 20-0 the last time the two teams played, but they found themselves on the short end of a 9-8 score entering the seventh inning.

The "Mice" took advantage of walks and smart, aggressive baserunning in the rally as Karen Koha had only hit of the inning.

Jackie Janowiak and Mary Beth McCullough led the offense with two hits each. One of McCullough's hits was a home run, while Janowiak had three RBI. April Stoner and Theresa Walburger contributed three runs scored each.

The win, coupled with an Aqua Turf loss, clinched the league title for the "Mice" as they have a four game lead with three games left. There will be no games next week, but the "Mice" will return to the field June 1st for a 7:30 p.m. game with O-Bat.

Spring football schedule

SANFORD — Seminole High School will hold its annual Spring Orange and Black Intersquad game this Friday night, May 22nd at 7 p.m. at Thomas E. Whigham Field. Admission will be $2 or the donation of a box of laundry detergent.

It was also announced that the Spring Football Jamboree will be Friday, May 29th at Thomas E. Whigham Field starting at 7 p.m. Admission will be $3.

The first and second quarters will have Lake Mary playing Lake Brantley, Oviedo and Lake Howell will square off in the third quarter. Seminole will face Lake Howell in the fourth quarter and Seminole and Oviedo will play the fifth and final quarter.

UCF set to join TAAC

ORLANDO — The Trans American Athletic Conference will add a new member when it includes the University of Central Florida to its lineup, the school announced Monday.

The conference will have nine schools with the addition of Central Florida. It will join Centenary, The College of Charleston, Florida International University, Georgia State, Mercer, Samford, Southeastern Louisiana and Stetson.

Regional baseball set

CORAL GABLES — Here's a familiar scenario: the Miami Hurricanes facing Notre Dame with a championship at stake.

It could happen again this weekend. Top-ranked Miami and the No. 17 Fighting Irish, arch-rivals in football, are part of the six-team Atlantic Regional to be hosted by the baseball Hurricanes.

The Hurricanes (49-7) will open at 7:30 p.m. EDT Friday against unranked Maryland-Baltimore County (37-11).

Florida was awarded the top seed in the East Regional and will open Thursday at 7:30 against Rider (18-33).

Florida State (41-18) was seeded second in the South II Regional and will open Thursday at 7 p.m. against Western Carolina (41-19-1). Stetson (38-19) also earned a berth and will play Stanford (37-21) in Tallahassee at 11 a.m. Thursday.

Jordan is NBA MVP again

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan won the NBA Most Valuable Player award, the seventh player to earn the honor at least three times.

The Chicago star received 80 of 98 first-place votes and 900 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Portland's Clyde Drexler finished second with 12 first-place votes and 561 points, while San Antonio's David Robinson was third with two firsts and 337 points.

AROUND THE WORLD

Courier No.1 seed

PARIS — Sanford-born Jim Courier, newly crowned Italian Open champion, heads to the French Open as the top seed on the basis of ATP Tour rankings. The $7.4 million tournament, a Grand Slam event, begins May 25.

Courier, the defending French champion, will be the top seed and Stefan Edberg of Sweden the second seed. Former U.S. Open champion Pete Sampras is No. 3, followed by Boris Becker, Michael Stich and Michael Chang.

Cardinals clinch division

Knights of Columbus join Rotary Royals in city series

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The champions are back. The defending City Champion Knights of Columbus Cardinals collected their third straight "must" win Monday evening at Sanford Memorial Stadium to claim the National Division title of the Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League.

The Cardinals scored seven runs in the top of the sixth inning to break a 6-6 tie and went on to maul the Moose Lodge Pirates 17-7 in a game that was suspended from April 8th.

The game brought to a close a very competitive regular season and set up a best-of-three City Championship series between the Cardinals and the Rotary Club Royals, who clinched the American Division earlier.

The series could be a dog fight as in the only game between the two teams this season resulted in an 11-10 victory for the Cardinals, who scored the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Knights of Columbus Cardinals	201	127	4	-	17	14	3
Moose Lodge Pirates	622	101	8	-	7	1	4

The City Championships will start today at Sanford Memorial Stadium. Because the lights are not working at the stadium the starting time has been moved back to 5:30 p.m. in hopes of getting the complete seven inning game played before dark.

Game two of the series will be played Thursday, also at 5:30 p.m., with the third game, if necessary, being played next Wednesday, May 27th at 5:30 p.m.

The final standings in the National Division showed the Cardinals winning with a 12-1 record. Trailing the winners were the Pirates (11-2), the Hungry Howie Cubs (4-9) and the Templeton Roofing Expos (1-12).

The Royals claimed the American Division with a 9-4 mark. Completing the division were the Kiwanis Club Orioles (8-7), the Woodman of the World A's (5-7) and the Security National Bank Blue Jays (3-9).

When the Pirates knocked the Cardinals from the ranks of the unbeaten with a 14-11 victory last Wednesday and then clobbered the Expos 19-4 last Saturday, the Pirates (11-1) had two game lead on the Cardinals (9-1) in the division.

That meant the Cardinals had to beat the Cubs in their final regular season game and then knock off the Cubs and Pirates in games that were suspended by darkness earlier in the season.

And the Cardinals did just that, beating the Cubs 12-2 in the regular game, scoring 12 runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to blast the Cubs 25-13 in the suspended game (the game had been called with the score 13-13 on April 18th) and See Babe Ruth, Page 2B

Ken Rummel, Cafe Sorrento cruise to wins

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Ken Rummel Chevrolet and Cafe Sorrento posted easy wins in Sanford Recreation Department Men's Monday Night Super C Spring Softball League action at Chase Park to increase their advantage in the league.

Ken Rummel remained unbeaten with a 12-0 triumph in five-innings over winless McCormick & Associates and Cafe Sorrento stayed just a game behind the leaders with a 21-4 thrashing of Lake Mary Pub, also in five innings.

Ken Rummel stands at 4-0, while Cafe Sorrento is 3-1, Lake Mary Pub 1-3 and McCormick & Associates 0-4.

There will be no games next week in observance of the Memorial Day holiday. On June 1, McCormick & Associates will challenge Cafe Sorrento at 6:30 p.m. and Ken Rummel will battle Lake Mary Pub at 7:30 p.m.

Ken Rummel got off to a slow start, only leading 2-0 after three innings. But a four run fourth inning and another four run fifth ended the game by the 12-run rule.

Doing the damage for Ken Rummel were team manager Mark Russi (triple, double, three runs), Mike McLohan (double, single, two runs, RBI), Terrell Ervin (two singles, three RBI), Mark Aten and Derrell Ervin (two singles, one run and two RBI each) and Phillip Rothrock (two singles, run, RBI).

Also hitting were Buddy Stump (single, two runs), Jim Lamb and Mike Owens (one single, one run and one RBI each) and Chuck Lamb and Terry Russi (one single each). Stump, meanwhile, had a perfect game for two innings and faced the minimum number of batters, and had a no-hitter, for 4 1/3-innings. He only allowed one McCormick & Associates player, Dave Webster, to reach base twice, on a single and a walk, and only allowed one runner to reach second while tossing a three-hitter. Scott Gold and Scott Huddleston had the other singles. See Softball, Page 2B

Knights of Columbus Cardinals third baseman Lloyd Dixon contributed a two-run single and played an excellent defensive game as the Cardinals crushed the Moose Lodge Pirates 17-7 to advance to the Babe Ruth Baseball League City Championship at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

then topping the Pirates Monday.

The Pirates had the first crack at the lead Monday as they had men on first and third with two out in the bottom of the fifth inning when the game was suspended. But the Cardinals' Richard Badger struck out the Pirates batter on a full-count to keep the game tied at 6-6.

The game looked like it might remain tied in the top of the sixth when the Cardinals' first batter grounded out and, after Byron Deese walked, the second out was recorded on a tapper in front of the plate.

But J.J. Gill walked and the runners moved up a base on a passed ball. Robert Randall then singled over first base to score Deese and Gill with the go ahead runs.

Cornell Daniels followed with a single to move Randall to second and the runners moved up on a wild pitch. Lloyd Dixon followed with a sharp single to left to score Randall and Daniels and the rout was on.

Terrell Jackson walked and Dixon and Jackson pulled off a double steal before Craig Stevens ripped a double to left to score two more runs. Stevens scored the final run of the inning on a single by Badger.

George Beasley opened the Pirate sixth with a single to right, the first hit of the game for the Pirates. He stole second and was trying to steal third as Alex Acosta grounded to third. The Cardinals third baseman threw wildly to first and Beasley scored when the first baseman kicked the ball into short right field.

The Cardinals avoided further damage when Dixon made a diving stop on a hard hit by Quintin Hunt and threw to second to retire Acosta. A fly out and a strike out ended the inning.

In the Cardinals' seventh Deese walked and went all the way to third when a grounder off the bat of Peterson was thrown wildly past second trying to get Deese. Gill walked to load the bases and after a strike out, Daniels singled to score Deese.

The Cardinals then got a gift run when Dixon struck out, but the ball got away from the Pirates catcher, allowing Peterson to score. Jackson then completed the scoring with a two-run single to left to score Gill and Daniels.

Badger then put the game away coaxing a grounder to third and then striking out the final two Pirates to close out the game.

Contributing to the Cardinals 14-hit attack were Daniels (four singles, four runs scored, one stolen base, two RBI), Stevens (one double, two singles, one run scored, three stolen bases, three RBI) and Badger (one double, one single, one run scored, one RBI).

Also contributing were Randall (two singles, two runs scored, one stolen base, two RBI), Jackson (two singles, one run scored, three stolen bases, two RBI), Dixon (one single, two runs scored, one stolen base, two runs scored each) and Peterson and Nicholas Barnes (one run scored each).

Other members of the winning Cardinals are Wesley Winkle, Donnie Hinson, Jason Wildermuth, Andy Heaberlin and Shelton Puhang.

Doing the damage for the Pirates were George Beasley (one single, one run scored, one stolen base, one RBI), Mike Wagner (two runs scored, one stolen base), Ryan Colgate (one run scored, two stolen bases) and Acosta, Gregg Lienbach and Shawn Green (one run scored and one stolen base each).

Also contributing to the Pirates offense were Pat Chase and Jack Crumpton (one RBI each), Hunt and James Fields (two stolen bases each) and Tony Guanciale (one stolen base).

Cafe Sorrento scored three runs in each of the first two innings to lead 6-2, then broke the game open with a 13-run third inning.

Contributing to a 20-hit Cafe Sorrento offense were Bill Marino (triple, two singles, three runs, two RBI), Kevin Julian and Rich Moreland (one triple, one single, two runs and two RBI each) and Bubba Split (double, single, run, two RBI).

Also contributing were Shannon Sharp (two singles, three runs, two RBI), Shannon Split and Stu Selock (two singles, two runs and one RBI each), Dan Daugherty (two singles, run, two RBI), Craig Split (triple, two runs, RBI), Dave Oakes (single, two runs, RBI) and Mark Quick (single, run, RBI).

Providing the offense for Lake Mary Pub were Jeff Futrell (two singles), Vince Howard and Denny Clayton (one single and one run each), Anton Grooms (single, two RBI), Ricky Eckstein, Mike Dick and Eric Johnson (one single each), W.L. Gray (run, RBI) and Bobby Rowe (run).

Help find 'Best Dad' in county

The Sanford Herald is searching for an area dad deserving of our annual 'Dad of the Year' title. We need our readers to help by writing letters of nomination, to be reviewed by our panel of judges. Judging will be based on sincerity and clarity, with specific examples or anecdotes about why your nominee is a special dad a plus. Your nominee need not be your own dad. Only residents of Seminole County are eligible to be nominated but their nominators need not live in Seminole County. Here's how to enter: Write us a letter about a special dad, telling us why he's so special.

Letters should be typed or printed legibly. Include the nominee's name, street address, city, and daytime phone number at the top of your letter. At the end of your letter include your name address, daytime phone number and age, if under 18. Deliver or mail to "Dad of the Year," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, Fla., 32771. There is no maximum length limit on letters. Entries are due at the Herald office by 1 p.m., Friday, June 12. The top winners will be featured in the Father's Day edition of the Herald, Sunday, June 21.

Talented young ladies vie for crown

By MARVA HAWKINS
Herald Columnist

"One Moment At A Time" is the theme for the evening of May 30, 7:30 p.m. when 19 lovely young ladies will present themselves with the poise and talent that they so gracefully display. The evening shall not be measured in increments of hours, minutes or seconds, but in the form of special moments. The young ladies from Central Florida's Seminole and Orange counties will display their many dreams and aspirations as they compete for the 1992 title of "Miss Sweetheart Entourage."

The pageant has been a yearly project of the women of the New Bethel A.M.E. Church, Altamonte Springs. The affair will be held at the Wymore Career Education Center Gymnasium, Eatonville. A donation of $3.50 for the evening's pageant is available at Beverly's Haircutting Service, Sanford Ave. Donations also may be made to contestants and committee members.

The following young ladies are aspiring to be crowned "Miss Sweetheart Entourage." Other young ladies will be profiled next week.

Yawn should not be punishable offense

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 42-year-old woman, working full-time outside my home. My second husband and I were blessed with our first baby who is now 7 months old.

During the night I get up to check on the baby, and I'm up every morning at 5:30 in order to fix breakfast for my husband and the baby. After working all day at the office, I come home, fix dinner, and there's always laundry and cleaning up to do. I'm dead tired at the end of the day.

Well, one evening about three months ago, my 68-year-old mother called me to chat. I was doing the listening (as usual), and in the middle of the conversation, I yawned, as I was tired. My mother said, "If you yawn again, I'm going to hang up!"

I thought she was kidding, so I said, "Then you'd better hang up now, because as tired as I am, I'll probably yawn again." She

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Immediately hung up and hasn't called me since.

She called my grown daughter to tell her how rude I was for yawning on the phone. Additionally, I'm pregnant again, and my mother told my daughter because of this yawning incident, she will never have anything to do with this baby after it's born, and furthermore, she thinks it's ridiculous that I'm pregnant again.

Abby, I've always been respectful of my elders, but at 42, I don't think a yawn on the phone is a punishable offense, do you?

HAD IT WITH MOTHER
DEAR HAD IT: No. And considering your condition, and your exhausting schedule, you need not apologize for a yawn or two.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 6040, Los Angeles, Calif. 90060. All correspondence is confidential.)

Seminole Hearing Aid Center Now Offering More Precise, Programmable Hearing Aids

SANFORD: Seminole Hearing Aid Center is now offering those with hearing loss a new solution - programmable technology, the latest advancement in hearing health care.

Seminole Hearing Aid Center has made this new technology available to those with hearing loss through the new INFINITI™ Programmable System from Siemens. The INFINITI™ System consists of a portable programmer and custom-made canal or in-the-ear programmable hearing instruments.

INFINITI™ hearing instruments contain a programmable integrated circuit, which enables Nick Spina, your hearing health care specialist, to precisely adjust various parameters to closely match the hearing loss of the wearer. Four different parameters are stored into the hearing instrument's memory. Once these variables are programmed and "locked" into the memory, the wearer will enjoy precise sound quality and versatility never before possible in conventional hearing instruments.

Nick Spina can adjust an INFINITI™ instrument on the INFINITI™ programmer. With this programmer, Spina has the ability to precisely fit the wearer with sophisticated hearing instruments, and can also handle any further adjustments or fine-tuning in the office. This enables each hearing instrument wearer to be involved in the fitting process, just as they would be in eye examinations. More importantly, the wearer will never be without his/her hearing instruments as they can be adjusted while waiting in the office.

The INFINITI™ Programmable System give Seminole Hearing Aid Center more flexibility and precision in custom-fitting the wearer's personal hearing needs. This significant advancement in technology provides hearing instrument wearers better sound quality and long-term dependability.

For more information on programmable hearing instruments, please call Seminole Hearing Aid Center at 321-0095. Free hearing consultations are available. Seminole Hearing Aid Center offers free cleaning and adjustment with coupon in Business Review. Also with coupon, buy one battery and get one free.

Seminole Hearing Aid Center is a hearing aid dispensary. It is located at 301 W. 1st St. in Sanford. The hours are 9 AM to 4:30 PM Monday through Friday and after hours by appointment. In-home testing is available.

Cole Reed, owner, with Jeanne Mason, manager. Cole is the third owner of the 38 year old Sanford Dairy Queen.

Nothing Says Summer Like Dairy Queen

Nothing says summer more than ice cream. And one of the oldest summer ice cream traditions in Sanford is Dairy Queen.

In 1954, drive-up, open air restaurants, like Dairy Queen, were common place. They were a place for people to gather and socialize. To relax and kick back on a warm summer afternoon, on the way back from the beach.

In 1992, things are certainly different. But in this fast paced world there still is a place to "kick back and relax". The Sanford Dairy Queen is much as it was when it opened in 1954, at 2523 Park Drive, just south of 25th Street. About the only thing that the new owner, Cole Reed, has changed is to keep the ice cream shop open during the winter and on holidays. Cole says, "sometimes folks just can't get enough".

The outside atmosphere of Dairy Queen means that you can visit the store in your bathing suit or your business suit. You can enjoy your treat on an outside bench or take some home to friends and family. It's a nice change of pace to spend time outdoors in the great Florida weather enjoying your ice cream creation.

Cole purchased Dairy Queen in 1985. He is the third owner, preceded by Mark Perry and original owner, Chester Ott.

Dairy Queen's trademark is soft serve ice cream; vanilla is the only flavor. According to Cole, the rich creamy formula is a secret recipe, low in milk fat, so it's naturally lower in calories than ice cream. This also mean the prices are lower, too.

Oh, but the things that can be done with that vanilla soft serve. There's banana splits, banana supreme, waffle cones, cones dipped in chocolate, butterscotch or cherry, shakes, malts, peanut butter parfait, sundaes, floats, Dilly bars, Buster bars and the newest DQ creation, which is actually a few years old. The Blizzard. The Blizzard is soft serve mixed at high speed with candy, such as Butterfinger™, Heath Bar™ or Snickers™, or cookies, such as Oreos™.

Cole has also started running a special on Tuesday through Thursday, and a different daily special.

Take advantage of the long hot summer and treat yourself to the taste of the best ice cream in the world. DQ is open seven days a week, from 11:00 AM to 11:00 PM.

Protests heat up in Thailand

By SUSILA MORTUITY
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand — Six hundred protesters held out at a downtown bridge today against troops who have used bullets and batons to try to put down a popular uprising against the military's domination of Thai politics.

At least 21 demonstrators have been killed and thousands arrested.

Nearly 200 marines and navy men surrounded the protesters as rally leaders spoke to the demonstrators on the bridge from atop a bus. Other demonstrators rallied on adjacent streets.

The bridge over the Chao Phraya River is in the area of Bangkok that since Sunday night has been rocked by violent demonstrations demanding the resignation of Prime Minister Suchinda Kraprayoon, a former military chief.

In other parts of the capital, troops appeared to have at least temporarily quelled Thailand's most serious political uprising in 16 years, although small groups of protesters, waving Thai flags and chanting slogans, were seen around the city.

Newspapers today said the protests had spread to at least seven other areas of the country, including the city of Chiang Mai in the north, Khon Kaen in the northeast and Hat Yai in the south.

Speaking on nationwide television, Suchinda said the government had to use force to root out Marxists he claimed were seeking to overthrow the country's constitutional monarchy.

He maintained that all demonstrations in Bangkok had stopped, and urged people to be calm and believe only the government-controlled media.

Thailand's economy has been among the world's fastest-growing and the increasingly educated and affluent middle class resents the military's habit of staging repeated coups to maintain control.

The pro-democracy protesters range from students and academics to poor workers, community leaders and mobile telephone-toting businessmen. Despite the apparent broad support, the pro-democracy forces seem ill-equipped to take on a military establishment that has wielded power in Thailand since 1932.

Make Yourself Comfortable At The Office Warehouse, Inc.

There are 168 hours in a week. Subtract from that the time you spend asleep and you get the time spent either in your home or in your office. For some people that time is divided almost equally. If you are one of those persons, shouldn't your office environment be as comfortable and well-appointed as your home environment?

That's where the Office Warehouse comes in. Recently ranked by the Orlando Business Journal as one of the largest office furniture suppliers in Central Florida, The Office Warehouse can meet all of your office furniture needs.

The Office Warehouse offers a full line of desks, bookcases, chairs and credenzas available with custom upholstery to match your office decor, from traditional to modern.

Say you have an office but don't know what to do with it. The Office Warehouse offers space planning and interior design services including artwork and color coordination.

If you are on a budget or a lot of space to cover, The Office Warehouse carries used furniture and panel systems, to set up several work spaces. The Office Warehouse will buy, sell, lease or trade furniture. They carry HON, Indiana, Whitehall, Global, Shellie Desk and Hickory Leather.

The Office Warehouse was established in 1983, and was family-owned until George P. Schnippel became sole owner in March 1992. George should be well-known to people in this area; he is the general manager of Flea World.

Last month he took advantage of his market experience and opened a Office Warehouse showroom at Flea World on X-Row. The additional showroom was set-up for the convenience of Office Warehouse customers; to give them a weekend showroom.

All of the furniture at Flea World is first quality and all of the service available at the main showroom is also available at the market, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, 8 AM to 5 PM.

Alan Rasmussen, Carolyn Hohman, Suzanne DeMotte and Dan Gaba comprise the sales staff at the main office and at Flea World. Business Manager Liz Lingo oversees the day-to-day operation of the company. Providing excellent service is just important to the Office Warehouse as providing you with quality furniture. The main showroom located on National Drive directly across SR427 from Lyman High School, is open Monday through Friday from 9 AM to 5 PM. Take some time out of your busy day and give them a call at 339-4545. After all, you spend 1/3 of your day at work. You deserve the best.

Christians, Muslims clash, soldiers sent

By FRANK ANTHONY
Associated Press Writer

LAGOS, Nigeria — Christians and Muslims set buildings ablaze today in a third day of communal fighting that has killed at least 100 people in the northern state of Kaduna. Rioters also clashed with soldiers sent to halt the violence.

A Western diplomat reached by telephone in Kaduna city said dozens of buildings were burning and some violence was continuing, but that the army and police had taken control of the downtown area.

Armored vehicles patrolled the streets today after federal troops and the air force deployed to reinforce police in Kaduna, a city of nearly 4 million people.

GARAGE SALE GUIDELINES

1. Advertise what people want! Children's clothing, dishes, collectibles, tools, books and antiques are the most popular items.
2. Make it convenient to shop for your goods. Be sure there is adequate parking space. Post signs with directions to parking areas. Make arrangements with neighbors.
3. Make it easy to pay! Have plenty of change and a system for handling. Make sure one person is on duty at all times at a centralized location, preferably with a calculator or adding machine.
4. Provide prices. Do not make every person ask, "How much is this?" Prices make for quick, effective sales or a good place for customers to start bargaining.
5. Get an early start. Set up displays the evening before, if possible.
6. Departmentalize. Separate the inexpensive items from the more costly or "1.99" furniture, clothing, toys, lawn equipment and other items with similar merchandise.
7. Specialize. Establish one area for "Under $5", another for "Under $1". Consider having a batch of items that are "FREE" with purchase of $3. Remember the youngsters, too. Encourage the sale of small, low-priced items that are appropriate for this purpose.
8. Time your sale carefully! Have it at a time when most people are at home and unconcerned with special events.
9. Combine your effort! Incorporate your sale with a neighbor for more variety and greater impact.
10. Be specific! When advertising your sale in the newspaper, list individual items. Don't simply say, "several things available." Each time you list an item, you are broadening the list of potential customers.
11. Be generous! If you have items left over, give them to a charitable organization. If you see that some items are not moving well during the sale, mark them down during the last hours. Remember, the prime reason for holding the sale is to turn your unwanted items into cash!

Heavy drinking can worsen gout

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband suffers from gout. His doctor has told him to avoid alcohol but is also having tests done on his liver. What is the connection and can he modify his diet to avoid future episodes of gout?

stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR READER: Gout may be worsened by alcohol. Although an across-the-board prohibition is unnecessary for most patients, some imbibers (especially heavy drinkers) are helped by giving up booze. In my experience, the average patient with gout can continue modest alcohol consumption. He or she should, however, avoid organ meats -- such as liver and kidneys -- which can worsen gout.

Alcohol received bad press because, many years ago, lead products were used commercially to clarify wines. When unsuspecting customers drank this wine, they got lead poisoning. This was called "saturnine gout"; it bears no relation to modern gout, which is caused by an inherited abnormality in protein metabolism.

If the doctor is testing your husband's liver, the physician may believe that long-standing alcohol consumption may be related to more than gout. Perhaps it's time to address the issue of alcohol in your family. Discuss this with your husband and, if appropriate, consider the possibility of counseling or a support group, such as Alcoholics Anonymous.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "About Gout." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed,

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Londoner Danny Roth's second quiz-format book is "Awareness — the Way to Improve Your Bridge" (Gollancz, $21.95, 800-274-2221). This one is similar to his first, containing 58 opening-lead, declarer-play and defense problems. The questions are on a right-hand page, with the solutions overleaf.

Today's hand is one of the easiest in the book. Cover the East-West cards and plan the play in three no-trump. West leads the spade jack. Start by counting your top tricks. There are seven: one spade, one heart, three diamonds and two clubs. After the spade lead, you can play low from the dummy to ensure a second trick in the suit. And if the diamond jack appears within three rounds, you have another three tricks from that suit. There appear to be no problems, but you should consider the possibility of a 4-1 diamond break. If you assume the diamonds aren't 5-0, the guaranteed line is to win trick one with dummy's spade ace and then to lead a diamond, finessing your 10 if East doesn't play the jack. Even if West wins with the diamond jack, you must collect at least nine tricks: one spade, one heart, five diamonds and two clubs. At the worst, you will have lost an overtrick or two.

Note that if you play low from the dummy at trick one, East will win with the king and switch to a low heart. You duck West's 10 in dummy, but West should continue with the king, sacrificing it to dummy's ace. Then, to succeed, you will have to guess the diamond position correctly — and why should you do that?

Readers are invited to send card-play questions to Phillip

Alder. In care of this newspaper. They can be answered only through the column.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Osof
YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 20, 1992

Unusual conditions might develop in the year ahead that could prove materially advantageous for you. They will involve two gifted friends who will be working on your behalf.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Ascertaining the desires of others is your key to operating effectively today. However, you must not only diagnose their wants and needs, you must also know how to fulfill them. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Taurus' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It could prove wise to listen to the suggestions of associates in commercial matters today. It's possible they may have some good ideas that haven't occurred to you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Trust your judgment today, especially if you have to make on-the-spot decisions. Your powers of evaluation could be much keener than usual.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Something might develop today where you may be forced to take a risk where your career is concerned. If you're absolutely sure it's worth it, do so without reservation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're in a cycle where you could be rather fortunate in turning acquaintances into friends. This is a wonderful asset you should use to your best advantage.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A matter of paramount importance to you should not be left unresolved today. Use your powers of persuasion to bring it to a head.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you are negotiating for something of value today, make your best offer right off the bat. Grinding and haggling over insignificant points isn't likely to sweeten the terms.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your recompense for special services you might be asked to render today should be agreed upon in advance, in order to avoid a later misunderstanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Assess people and developments as objectively as possible today. The more you can separate your emotions from your logic, the greater your accuracy will be.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Strive to be a good listener today; there is a strong possibility you might learn something of immense value through the chance remarks of another.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Things might not go exactly as you anticipate today, and some last-minute adjustments may be required. Fortunately, adapting to the unexpected should be your cup of tea.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Ideas that may seem a trifle outlandish when initially conceived could prove to be profitable for you today. Don't be afraid to experiment, even if you have to tread on unfamiliar ground. (C)1992, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
