Lease signed for new post office

SANFORD - It's official. The U.S. Post Office is moving to the corner of 1st Street and Sanford Avenue.

A lease was signed Friday, May 31, said Joseph Breckenridge, spokesman for the Central Florida District of the U.S. Postal Service. The $49,600 annual lease runs 10 years with two five-year options.

"We expect to have the new retail facility built and operating within six months," Breckenridge said.

The Postal Service will utilize a little more than 6,200 square feet of the 29,000-squarefoot commercial building located on the southeast corner of the 1st Street and Sanford Avenue.

Renovations will include adding P.O. Box modules and a state-of-the-art retail operation. The new facility will not accommodate

The exterior of the building will be renovated under the terms of the lease. Other improvements include patching, sealing and restriping the parking lot; adding more disability parking spots; and installing new light fixtures and diamond-shaped landscaping areas in the parking lot. The city has mail sorting functions, which have already been moved to the Post Office's new annex and irrigation improvements along 1st and irrigation improvements along 1st Street and Senford Avenue.

Former NYC mayor helps Bush stump in Central Florida

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Gov. Jeb Bush and former New York City Mayor Rudy Giuliani were greeted Monday to sea of firelighters and paramedics wearing red "Firelighters for Jeb" T-shirts.

The two star-studded Republicans were honored guests at the 58th annual conference for the Florida Professional Firefighters. Bush received the endorsement for re-election Monday from the 17,000-member firefighter's union. He made his speech short, saving most of the podium spotlight for Giuliani.

"We've accomplished a lot in the past three years," Bush said referring to improved pension and compensation benefits for firefighters. "I want to be your governor for four more years."

Bush then wished good luck to fellow Republican and House Speaker Tom Feeney (R-Oviedo) who is a candidate for Congress, and handed the show over to Giuliani.

It's the second time in two separate campaigns that Giuliani has helped Bush stump around the Sunshine State. In 1998, the former mayor helped Bush by making several stops with him around the South Florida. Monday was no different as Giuliani referred to Bush as a

Seminole County Sheriff Milliot dies at age 65

By Christopher Patton Staff Writer

LONGWOOD - Seminole County's eighth acting sheriff, Peter Douglas Milliot, 65, died Friday, May 31.

A resident of Presaview Avenue in Longwood, Milliot served as Seminole's top cop from 1967 to 1969. Appointed by Governor Claude Kirk after Sheriff J.L. Hobby was suspended for illegal activity involving the dog track, Milliot helped change the department into what it is today.

He was not a favorite among county commissioners, said current sheriff's office Lt. William Robbins who worked as a deputy under Milliot. On two occasions, Milliot reportedly went above the commissioners' heads to Tallahassee to secure budget funds.

'He was not concerned with impressing the county commission," Robbins said. "He was trying to build a sheriff's office. Milliot was not the type that was going to let politics get in the

Lake Mary High Winter Guard honored by City Commission

LONGWOOD - On Monday, a host of officials from two cities honored the Lake Mary High School Winter Guard.

Under the direction of Lake teacher Michele Dershimer the winter guard has become one of Central Florida's most heralded school teams. In the past four years, the Lake Mary Winter Guard has won or placed for several national titles. In the 2002 season, the 19member guard laid claim to several championships including the International Suncoast and South Florida Regionals. They also won the title for the state at the Florida Federation of Color Guard Circuit Championships. In April, the guard traveled undefeated to Dayton, Ohio for the three-days of competition at Clummer vacation can be a difficult time for working parents with older children. Pre-teen and teen-age family members are too old for daycare but too young for summer jobs, which leaves few options for parents.

Summer camps are one alternative, but the hours are not always conducive to the work day. Another is leaving a child at home without adult supervision.

This summer, however, the Seminole Police Athletic League (PAL) is giving parents an additional option the North Seminole County Student Police Academy. From 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. each week day, children participate in various athletic and educational activities provided by volunteers with PAL, the Sanford Police

Tournament raises funds for 'beating' the heat

By Christopher Patton Staff Writer

LONGWOOD -, For some, "beating the heat" is a frosty treat or escaping into the confines of an air conditioned theater, but for car crazed teen-agers nationwide it's the stuff Hollywood movies are made of.

Try out running a police cruiser on Interstate 4 and expect to spend five to 10 years in prison. Smoke a copper in the law enforcement program "Beat the Heat," and it's all part of the fun.

In its 10th year as a non-profit organization with chapters across the country and Canada, "Beat the Heat" is gradually winning in the deadly game of street racing. Designed to attract teens that love the thrill of drag racing, "Beat the Heat" encourages them to relocate their illegal street activities to sanctioned tracks that offer the essential safety precautions.

Got a problem with City Hall? Jethrey Beuer is most likely the man you'll talk to. As the liaison for the Sanford Mayor and City Commission, Jeffrey helps citizens stay in touch with the commission, keeps the public schedules for the commissionant and mayor, and Arts degree in Political Science and History from Stateon University.

He is close to completing work for a Master's Degree, and he has a paralegal certification from Rollins College.

DP: Why do you do what you do? JB: That's a very interesting question. I guess it's the chance to work with a cross section of the community who have various backgrounds interests and opinions.

DP: What's the best thing about your job? JB: No two days are the same. There's always something different happening, so I never get DP: What's the worst thing about your job? JB: Same as the best thing. Sometimes the worst part of the job is that nothing is ever routine. The other thing would be not always having the answers residents want to hear.

DP: What's a typical day like?

JB: There is no typical day.
DP: How would you explain what you do? JB: Basically, I'm the conduit of information to and from the city commission. I funnel information to them from city (i.e. city employees, department heads) and citizens. I also funnel information the other way - from the city commission to the citizens. What's neat about this positions is I work directly for the mayor and city commission. Some municipalities have liaisons, but none that I know of in Seminole County. I no the school board doesn't anything like it. They have secretaries that assist board members, but they actually work for the superintendent.

DP: Do you have a weird or unusual incident that occurred on the job?

JB: You mean one you can print?

DP: Of course.

JB: There's always something a little unusual going on, but one time I worked with a resident who lived in a subdivision and wanted to have farm animals in there back yard.

DP: Like chickens? JB: Yeah, like chickens and cows and horses.

Basically she wanted to start a farm in her subdivision. She couldn't understand why the city didn't allow that.

DP: I guess that's one of those times where you didn't have the answer the citizen wanted to hear. JB: Exactly.

DP: What type of training do you need for this

JB: At a minimum, you need a four-year degree, and you must have experience in dealing with the public. Some political experience is probably good and you have to have writing ability. You also have to have a wide variety of knowledge about all the different functions in the city.

DP: What is your dream job?

JB: Oh, my dream job would be to play major league baseball. DP: What position?

JB: Catcher.

DP: Like Johnny Bench or Mike Piazza?

JB: Johnny Bench would be nice. DP: What are your chances?

JB: (Laughing) I don't think I'll ever get there unless God performs a miracle and grants me more athletic ability than I had in high school. I've got a better chance of winning the lottery.

DP: If you hit the lottery would you still come into work?

JB: Well, I would still work, but I don't know that would work here. I'd probably start my own business.

"true leader" in front of the 500 attending firefighters and paramedics. He also spoke at a gover-nor's private breakfast fund-raiser earlier in the day.

This is a very important endorsement for a very important governor," Giuliani said.

Giuliani went on to comparing all firefighters as the same. He said what makes them the same is their choice to be a firefighter. There's something really special about firefighters and it's real simple," Giuliani said. "You put your lives at risk to protect people, and it takes a very special person to do that."

Giuliani was an odd pick for the governor to speak at the firefighter convention, according to critics. Although most recognized for his leadership post Sept. 11, Giuliani wasn't necessarily the most popular New York City mayor among firefighters. He repeatedly opposed firefighter union's efforts to increase pay and benefits. The dissatisfaction of several firefighters attending the event was evident as they sat refusing to acknowledge Giuliani as he spoke.

Dear Abby

told me as a child that if anyone else had adopted me, they would have given me back as soon as it turned day-

Then last year a miracle happened. My birth mother found me. We talked on the phone, and she came for a visit. Abby, she is the sweetest woman I have ever met. She was only 15 when she gave birth to me, and she placed me for adoption in the hope that I would have a better life than the one she could offer.

The closer my birth mother and I become, the larger the rift has become between me and my adoptive parents. They continue to say terrible things about her. I haven't introduced them because I'm afraid they would say or do something to either embarrass me or hurt my birth mother's feelings. They still refuse to call her by name.

It's getting to the point that I don't even want them around. My husband says if they bother me that much, I should tell them not to come over any more. I won't have a problem with that, as I have very few feelings left for them. I'm glad I finally found the mother I always wanted - and the one who always wanted me.

BIRTH MOTHER'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: You are no longer a child. At 34 years of age, your childhood is behind you. If your birth mother is the mother you always wanted, then cherish your newfound relationship.

Your adoptive parents may call you ungrateful, but please remember that THEY are the ones who should have been grateful to have YOU - and they had no right to make the hurtful comments that haunt you to this day.

DEAR ABBY: Upon entering a relationship that has the possibility of becoming a lifetime involvement, when should a senior widower disclose to his potential future mate that, due to medical reasons, he'll be unable to fulfill any "bedroom responsibilities"?

Should discreet disclosure be offered before any close feelings develop, or should the subject wait - however long - until intimacy becomes the obvious natural progression?

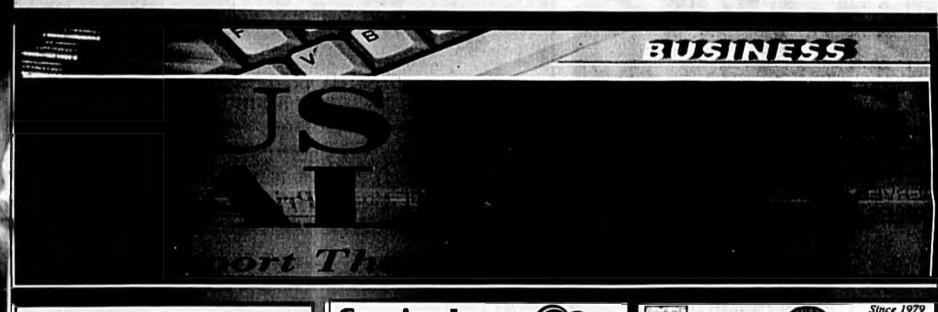

Clearing the air early would give the lady an opportunity to amicably end the relationship. On the other hand, if I delay too long, a decision might never be required! Your thoughts, please. SPOKESMAN FOR MANY UNSURE GUYS IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR UNSURE: There is a difference between clearing the air early and making a premature announcement. Wait until you know the lady well enough to discuss the subject of sex without embarrassment to either of you. According to my mail, although many women are interested in a sexual relationship, not all are.

P.S. I don't know how long it has been since you discussed this subject with your doctor, but you should know that in recent years there have been many advances made in the area of male sexuality.

Former Lake Brantley High School star baseball players Juan Rojas (left) and Justin Smith had outstanding seasons and had even better tournament stats as they helped Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University in Daytona Beach to a fourth place finish in the NAIA World Series last week. Also of local interest was former Lake Brantley teammates Justin Smith and Juan Rojas leading Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University to a fourth place finish in the NAIA World Series last week.

The Eagles, which end the season 52-12

Sanford-based missionary killed

SANFORD — A missionary for New Tribes Mission was killed Friday during a shootout between a radical Islamic group and U.S.-trained Filipino soldiers on a mission to rescue him and his wife from their captors.

Martin Burnham, 42, was shot and killed during the firefight, and his wife, Gracia, was shot in the right thigh. It is unclear whether the injuries came from enemy or friendly fire.

"It hasn't turned out the way we were expecting it to, but we're grateful Gracia is alive," said Doug Burnham, Martin's younger brother.

The Burnhams were kidnapped 377 days ago by the Abu Sayyaf, an extremMartin Burnham shot to death during firefight between Islamic group and Filipino soldiers

Armed with U.S. surveillance technology and night vision goggles, Filipino troops were on an extended two-week rescue mission when they engaged the rebels early Friday between the towns of Sibuco and Sirawai in the southern province of Zamboanga del Norte. Major General Ernesto Carolina, commander of the forces, said U.S. soldiers were not part of the ground troops, but American helicopters were on the scene to remove the wounded.

Four of the Burnham's captors were killed, as was Ediborah Yap, a Filipino nurse abducted shortly after the missionaries. Seven members of the rescue team were wounded.

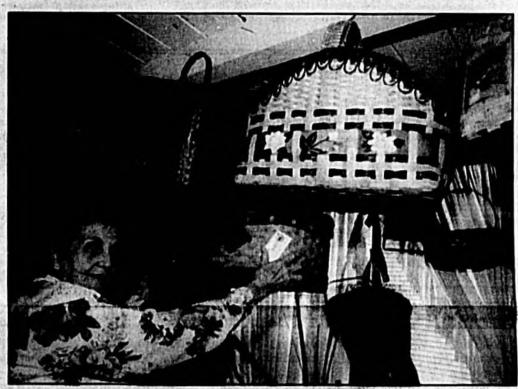

We always thought that military action was the last resort," said Scott Ross, spokesman for New Tribes

Woven wonders

Evelyn Woods shows off a few of her homemade baskets. The Sanford native has been making the wooden creations for the past 25 years and is known in the area for her artistic vessels.

One basket just isn't enough for Woods

By Michelle Jerla Managing Editor

Evelyn Woods' kitchen is an image from basket lover's dream.

Dozens of woven art pieces hang from the ceiling — each with its own unique identity. A basket hanging in the corner has raccoons painted on its sides. Another, hanging next to the ceiling fan, has roosters.

Although many people would be impressed by the kitchen's décor, Woods shrugs at it, explaining "the messy kitchen," is her workroom. It's where the 81-year-old Sanford native spends most of her time weaving reed and rope into intricate wooden ves-

"I'm a basket weaver," Woods said. "That's what I do."

She does it a lot.

Although she can't estimate how many baskets she makes during the year, she knows the number is in the triple digits. She makes sure she has at least 350 baskets to display at each of the five area arts and crafts shows she

Board considers moratorium on new apartments

By Dan Ping Editor

SANFORD - The city's Planning and Zoning board is considering asking the city com-mission to halt all new apartments until city officials can grasp the effects of such development.

Chairman Mike Skat suggested Thursday night that the P&Z board approve a moratorium on apartments. Though the matter wasn't formally approved, there appeared to be a solid majority who favored the idea.

Skat said the sheer number of new apartments — about 3,800 units in two years — should compel the officials to consider the effects of rapid growth and whether the city needs to tweak its development regulations.

"If just one person lives in each apartment — and you know that's not realistic - that translates into a 10 percent population increase in the city of Sanford in 18 months," Skat said. "There's a study that says by 2020, we'll have the same population density as Dade and Broward counties.

Board member Bobby Von Herbulis agreed with Skat's concerns, but said a moratorium might lead the development community to consider Sanford as anti-development.

"A moratorium on anything is a sign that you're not pro-development - that's the perception," Von Herbulis said.

"I don't want to stop progress," Skat said, "I just want to take a breather so we can make sure we allow smart growth."

Fire inspector halts Hopper activities

By Dan Ping Editor

SANFORD - City fire officials have halted all activities at Hopper Academy because the building fails to meet minimum life safety standards.

In addition, the president of the non-profit group which owns the building admits the facility has not had fire insurance for several months.

Built in 1906, Hopper Academy served black students during segregation. After years of disrepair, the historic school has undergone several years of renovations.

Despite those improvements, fire Inspector Tim Robles discov-ered recently that a Certificate of Occupancy has never been issued. He also found the building was being utilized as a day care, and meeting space for child dance tion even though the building was never equipped with smoke detectors, alarms or sprinklers. ,

"The Sanford Fire Department will not allow any occupancy (after school programs) until the minimal life safety (features) are installed inside this structures," Robles wrote in a letter to Alteon Lathrop Was trying to secure an occupational license to operate a dance studio at the facility. "Please understand that our position is to have the building meet the 'safest degree of life safety' prior to any occupancy."

The Community Improvement Association of Seminole County (CIAS), a non-profit group, owns the building. Its president, Charles Rowe, said sprinkler systems were never put into the building during

Green thumb gardener grows 132-pound Carolina Cross watermelon

By Michelle Jerla Managing Editor

SANFORD — Edgar and Mary Ann Bruce have dilemma. They recently picked a 132-pound watermelon from their garden, and they don't have an icebox large enough to keep it chilled.

The super-sized melon is Edgar's creation. A Sanford native with a green thumb, he was surprised when his Carolina Cross watermelon grew to such large proportions.
