Cataract Surgery Not Always Needed

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB— Is the ultrasonic method of cataract removal accepted and approved by the medical profession? If so, where can I find a doctor who uses this procedure?

DEAR READER— Yes, this method enables the eye surgeon to make a very small incision, fragment the cataract and suck out the little pieces. There is some advantage to having a very small incision as opposed to a larger one.

A decision as to whether a person needs a cataract operation and what kind of surgery should be done depends on the nature of each individual case. To find out if you're really a candidate for surgery and so, what kind of surgery you need, you'll certainly need the evaluation by a competent ophthalmologist.

Meanwhile, I am sending you The Health Letter number 184, Your Cataracts Are Coming. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB— My nine-week-old niece was diagnosed as having galactosemia. She had all the symptoms and a blood test showed that she was lacking an enzyme. She had had jaundice and an enlarged liver. Her liver is still enlarged. Is this normal?

We understand that with the galactosemia she will never be able to have any milk products or sugar in her diet. We're told that if she stays on a very strict diet, free of milk and sugar, that she can live a normal healthy life. Is this correct?

DEAR READER— This is a very rare disease and there are two types of enzyme

YOUR BIRTHDAY August 13, 1980

Something which has been a long time coming today, so there's no reason to let someone else do the book just because this person doesn't want to live up to an obligation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) All your hard work may be for naught today if you bank more heavily on a rather undependable asset than you should. Don't expect miracles from non-producers.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20) You may get cooperation from one who is difficult to convince, but unless this person has his heart in it, he may not be as methodical as the work calls for.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) When you are tending to your business and doing your chores, everything goes fine today. It is by your social plans that later prove disappointing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Domestic tranquility could be disturbed when an unexpected situation occurs today. Unless you're prepared to be quite flexible, it could be frustrating.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The lamp may be burning quite late in your house today when you find out a necessary corner can't be put off until tomorrow.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be careful in whom you place your trust today, especially if money is involved. Just because someone is trustworthy in one area doesn't necessarily make this person reliable in everything.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This act of home won't be running like a well-oiled machine today. If you're prepared for the unexpected, you'll not get flustered if things occur. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail #1 of each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Hunches, yours or someone else's, aren't that reliable today. You could be dismayed if you follow one impulsively, so don't look for miracles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Revolutionary or progressive products have a special appeal to you today. You could buy a white elephant unless you fully investigate the new-fangled items beforehand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You operate effectively today so long as everything goes as you expect it to, but let a setback occur and you may throw in the towel without even trying.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Check everything out thoroughly, especially as the hours get late and you get tired. A mental mistake could slip through, which would create a problem.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're sticking to your principles today, so there's no reason to let someone else do the book just because this person doesn't want to live up to an obligation.

West hand. South was not able to see it there. In fact, South could almost see it held by East. After all, East really ought to hold it as part of his opening bid.

South was looking at nine easy tricks and would be sure of 18 if diamonds broke. He could also see a squeeze for six. The trick is if the man with long diamonds held the heart king. There also was a chance to set up one of dummy's clubs by a series of ruffing finesses.

He decided to try the clubs first so he won the trump in dummy and led the 10 of clubs. East put on the queen. South ruffed and saw the three played by West so the club trick would not materialize.

He led a diamond to dummy's ace and returned the four of hearts. When East played the king of hearts, South took his queen, led a heart to the ace, ruffed back to his hand with a club and cashed the rest of his trumps. West had to throw away a diamond or the king of hearts on the last trump and the squeeze had produced the contract trick.

East took trick one of the club and the king of hearts in the

Couple Digs Up Huge Nugget

PERTH, Australia (UPI) — A couple who will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary in October found a 320-ounce gold nugget today using a metal detector in the new gold rush in Western Australia.

"The nugget was so heavy, I had to stop for a rest several times on my way back to the car," said 72-year-old Jack Bray.

Recent gold finds have started a rush for the precious metal that has sent thousands of hopeful prospectors to mineral-rich Western Australia and the southeastern state of Victoria, where big finds have also been made.

Bray said he found the nugget, worth $196,000 at current prices, near Kalgoorlie, about 300 miles east of Perth. He said he probed about 6 inches below the surface with a metal detector and came out with the nugget.

Kalgoorlie has been rediscovered in the new gold rush. Mines have been reopened because of soaring gold prices and people with metal detectors have been searching the 100-square miles of abandoned gold diggings around town.

Bray and his wife Eva, 69, who celebrate 50 years of marriage Oct. 8, have nicknamed their nugget "Little Ausstr".

Seminole County's hearing for the public to voice complaints against Orange-Seminole Cablevision turned into a session of praise for the firm Tuesday night.

The meeting had been called by county commissioners because they had been receiving numerous complaints about the company, they said. Orange-Seminole is one of two cable television firms franchised by the commission to operate in Seminole County. The commission cited complaints such as persons not being able to get in touch with the firm by phone and the firm not installing promised cable as reasons for the hearing.

But at the meeting several Seminole County residents said Orange-Seminole provides good service and is "courteous, prompt and accommodating" concerning service calls.

And Seminole County staff presented a record kept since November of only 168 phone-in complaints against Orange-

Seminole County from the firm's 15,000 subscribers in Seminole County.

"The absence of people here (with complaints) speaks in your favor," Commissioner Richard Williams told Orange-Seminole Regional Manager Steve McMahon.

McMahon explained the firm added almost 10,000 subscribers in the last six months, and with all that activity he said there is bound to be some complaints.

But he added the firm is committed to correct all problems.

Seminole County resident William R. Bernosky Jr. complained the company had been promising to install cable service in the area in which he lives for two years but never lived up to the promise.

"The latest proposal was that we would have cable by May," he said. "It's unfair for them to tell you you're going to get it and then not deliver. The commitment should be yes or no," Bernosky said.

McMahon acknowledged Bernosky said not have been told the cable service was coming if it wasn't.

"We want as many customers as possible," McMahon said. "And we have met all the requirements of the franchise density-per-mile clause.

The Seminole County Cable TV ordinance requires a franchise install cable where homes are at a density of 65 per mile.

Commissioner Bob Sturm told McMahon the commission wants cable service installed in all the unincorporated areas of the county.

"If we've accomplished nothing else by this (hearing) than to put Orange-Seminole in a more competitive spirit, we've done something."

"You have," McMahon said.

Commissioner Sandra Glenn said she would like to see an office in south Seminole county where people can physically go to pay their bills and talk to company representatives in person.

McMahon said the firm is looking for such an office and promised it would be open within six months.

Winter Springs Cancels Vote

The Winter Springs City Council pulled the referendum program from the November ballot Tuesday night, only three weeks after it voted to put the measure before the people.

The referendum would have proposed expanding the Winter Springs rescue service to include a team of seven paramedics and two rescue vehicles equipped with advanced lifesaving equipment. Under the proposal, city landowners would be assessed an extra $1.50 per $1,000 assessed value to raise the $150,000 needed to fund the program during its first year of operation.

But Councilman Wilfred Arnold, who had proposed the adoption of the referendum last month, demanded it be voted down Tuesday night, claiming mobile home owners would pay very little for the program, while fixed home owners would pay more through a property tax increase.

Arnold was joined by Councilman John Bennett, who has opposed the proposal since it was first offered, and Councilwoman Maureen Boyd, who missed the meeting when the first vote was taken.

"I have concluded Mr. Bennett was right and that I acted too hastily in proposing the referendum," Arnold announced in a memorandum sent to council members on July 28, a week after the 3-1 vote in favor of his plan.

At the meeting, Arnold added he wanted to apologize for what he called hasty action.

Arnold called for holding a special referendum on the program at some other time, a tax per dwelling unit, rather than per assessed value.

Councilman William Jacobs asked Arnold what he thought would be fair to everyone, pointing out residents of new subdivisions pay taxes to repair roads in older subdivisions and other similar inequities.

"You're talking about a special city service, something over and above anything the city has tried before," Arnold replied.

Councilman John Torcaso said the property tax was the fairest. Torcaso, whose district includes a large mobile home park populated by a large number of retirees, said about a quarter of the persons living in the trailers could not afford a per-residence tax.

Jacobs asked if the per-residence tax might not be unfair, because larger families sharing one home were more likely to need the lifesaving service than single persons living alone.

Such a plan also leaves out businesses, which might need the emergency service to treat non-resident employees and customers, the councilman in favor of the referendum said.

Bennett again repeated his statements, made at the last meeting, that figures prepared by City Manager Richard Rotansky based on meetings with Seminole and Orange County paramedic program administrators and equipment salesmen were not accurate enough to base a program on.

Bennett said he is in favor of the paramedic program but has yet to get "all the answers" about costs. "I don't believe anybody on the council or staff has done the work to put a paramedic program," he said.

After the meeting, Torcaso blamed Bennett for convincing Arnold to withdraw his motion.

Torcaso said he still believes Winter Springs residents will eventually get to vote on a paramedic program. "It will be after the November election," he said. — DAVID M. RAZLER

Sanford, Lake Mary Census Bureau To Up Counts

Sanford is supposed to have 19,887 residents according to preliminary census figures. But city officials believe the correct figure is closer to 25,000, Sanford Commissioner Julian Stromstrom said.

The estimate was based on the same criteria used by the University of Florida, which provides population estimates for state officials during the 10 years between census counts.

Sanford's and Lake Mary's problems were due to map errors, said Perkins, explaining areas within both cities' limits were mistakenly counted into Seminole County's unincorporated regions.

In Sanford, the entire block of land between First and 13th Streets between Perdriano and Olive Avenues was not counted.

A similar error left a large chunk of Lake Mary outside the city, on the official forms he said.

Those changes will actually reduce the population levels given for Seminole County's contested regions, said Perkins, adding the county is still claiming four other districts were not accurately counted, a claim, which if checked out, could raise the unincorporated area figure.

Casselberry Grants Coordinator Bruce Furnio blamed the Census Bureau's decision to ignore 799 "unclassified dwelling units" for causing about 2,000 persons to go uncounted.

Furnio said the Census Bureau estimate of 14,744 left out homes where people either did not return forms or made errors.

When those units are taken into account, along with the vacancy rate, the new figure comes close to the city estimate of 16,821, he said.

Furnio also said the census was taken during the summer, when some city residents move north until the fall, further cutting the figures.

Altamonte Springs is claiming about 5,000 to 7,000 more persons than the 20,541 the government gives it credit for, Mayor Norman Floyd said.

The city, which has grown by 367.8 percent since 1970, chalked up the largest growth in the county, based on the official figures.

Floyd said problems with the census were due to the long form which many persons refused to fill out. "It practically asked for your sex life," he said.

Oviedo has filed a complaint asking the federal government to return three times its estimated population. While census figures say the city grew from 646 to 844 persons in the last 10 years, Oviedo officials claim 3,000 in their letter to the bureau.

Casselberry's and Altamonte Springs' unclassified structures will be classified by fieldworkers who have walked the districts and noted each occupied and unoccupied home, Perkins said.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Romania May Be Arranging Mideast Peace Initiative

By United Press International
Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has sent his deputy foreign minister to Bucharest, raising speculation Romania President Nicolae Ceausescu is trying to arrange a Middle East peace initiative.
Tiberius Ghali, who left Egypt for the Romanian capital Tuesday for a five-day mission, was carrying a verbal message for Ceausescu, who in 1978 played a part in arranging Sadat's historic trip to Jerusalem. Ceausescu, whose nation is the only Eastern European bloc country that has diplomatic relations with Israel making it a natural go-between bridging the Arab and Israeli camps, met Tuesday with a Palestinian delegation from the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

Town Tries To Stop Fire

URANIUM CITY, Saskatchewan (UPI) — Residents of a tiny, isolated Canadian mining outpost cleared away brush and timber in a nonstop 20-hour struggle to create a buffer zone that halted a roaring forest fire less than a mile from the town.
"I think if there's no change in the wind, we've got a hold on it. It hasn't advanced on the town," said Sgt. Dennis Schneider of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.
Half the northeast Saskatchewan outpost's 2,500 residents left their homes Monday after winds fanned flames toward the town. About 700 women and children sought temporary shelter at the nearby Eldorado Mines camp.

Soviets Protest Over Boy

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Foreign Ministry today issued a formal protest note to the United States against the holding of a 12-year-old Ukrainian boy whose parents want to return with him to the Soviet Union.
The protest was delivered in a sharply worded note to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. The embassy replied it felt that there was no basis for the protest.
At issue is the holding in Chicago of Walter Polivchak, who arrived in the United States with his family from the Ukraine Jan. 4. The boy's parents decided to return to the Soviet Union, but Walter was away from home July 14 and refused to return with his family, claiming political asylum.

Aborigines Mark Victory

PERTH, Australia (UPI) — Aborigines painted their faces and wore bright plumed head-dresses for a traditional "corroboree" victory dance to celebrate a decision by oilmen to temporarily halt drilling on a tribal land sacred to the lizard god, "Goanna."
The corroboree Tuesday came after Australian union chief Bob Hawke stepped into the dispute over drilling rights on aboriginal land in the mineral-rich state of Western Australia, and won a halt to exploration until a settlement can be reached with the state government in Perth.

Accused Murderer Breaks Into Tears

Joyce Cummings broke into tears this afternoon as Priscilla Bradford's daughter Eva testified how Melbourne optometrist John Bradford was murdered.
Cummings' trial was recessed by Circuit Judge J. William Woodson moments after Cummings, charged with helping Mrs. Bradford and Janice Gould kill the Melbourne man, broke down while listening to Mrs.

Bradford's 14-year-old daughter describe how she watched her mother and Gould hit Bradford as he lay on his dining room floor.
The frying pan had its bottom knocked out and had broken into seven pieces, which were found around the body.
Adamson said Bradford died of asphyxiation, when blows to his head forced his tongue back into his throat, cutting off his air supply.
On cross-examination, Adamson said there was no way his examination could show in what order the blows were delivered or who delivered them.

Cummings is charged with helping John Bradford's wife, Priscilla, and Janice Gould, 35, another of Bradford's employees, beat the optometrist to death using the kitchen implements on March 23 at Bradford's Melbourne home.

When Graham Nominates Carter

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham, who has signed 10 death warrants during his 19 months in office, will be the object of a demonstration by anti-death penalty delegates when he steps up to the podium tonight to deliver the main nominating speech for President Carter.
Signs bearing the message, "Bob Graham, remember John Spenkelink," will be held high in hopes of catching the attention of national television cameras.
One of the demonstrators will be Lois Spenkelink, mother of John, who on May 25, 1979, became the first person to die in the Florida electric chair in 15 years.
"We want to make sure that Graham's national image includes the fact that he has decided to execute poor people and black people," said Jimmy Lohman, one of the organizers of the protest.
Scharlette Holman, director of the Florida Clearing House on Criminal Justice which opposes capital punishment, said today that delegates from all over the country will take part in the floor demonstration.
Plans are for delegates from 15 or so states to die in the "Florida electric chair" in 15 years.
Although Graham has signed 10 death warrants, Spenkelink is the only one that has been carried out. The others won court reprieves which are still pending.

He said he hopes to meet with Kennedy in a move to reunite the party and defeat Ronald Reagan in November.
But top Carter aide Hamilton Jordan cautioned: "Nothing is set." Carter will be nominated by the Democratic National Convention tonight in Madison Square Garden and receive the banner Thursday night in a replay of 1976.
"Four more years. Four more years. Four more years," today that delegates from all over the country will take part in the floor demonstration.
Plans are for delegates from 15 or so states to die in the "Florida electric chair" in 15 years.

Man Ruled Out As Killer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Violent crimes increased by 23.3 percent in Florida during the first six months of this year compared to the same period last year, according to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.
FDLE Commissioner Jim York said there were 129 more murders in the state between Jan. 1 and July 1 compared to the first six months of 1979, an increase of 23.6 percent.
He said the jump in reported crime was probably the result of such factors as violence between family members, drug abuse, population shifts and the recession.

Wreck's Fate Up To Judge

GALVESTON, Texas (UPI) — A federal judge will consider whether a Rice University physicist and his friends may raise the long lost wreck of the Civil War ship Hatteras, which they found 30 miles off the coast in 1976.
U.S. District Judge Hugh Gibson scheduled an expected two-day trial starting today as a lawsuit filed in 1977 by Hatteras Inc., a partnership of physicist Paul Cloutier and three friends, to clear title to what's left of the 210-foot-long vessel.
The U.S. Department of the Interior is opposing the Hatteras Inc. claim on grounds the ship, an early example of a steam-powered iron sidewheeler, remains government property even though it was lost for more than a century.
"If we win, we've already started putting together a team to try to salvage the artifacts from the Hatteras and do exploration of the hull with the intention of bringing it up," Cloutier said.
"We'll also try to bring up the artifacts around it and the superstructure," he has been dragged off by trawlers and storms." The fact that records indicate the ship sank rapidly with all its stores and equipment encourages the discoverers to think the find in historical artifacts will be large.
The Hatteras was sunk Jan. 11, 1863, by the Confederate raider Alabama.

Longwood Man Going To Court To Get Into Meetings

By JANE CASSELL-BERRY
Herald Staff Writer
As the city commission meeting Monday night on the order of Mayor Steven Uskert, Robert Daves says he will seek an injunction against the city, the commission and Uskert.
Daves was escorted from the July 28 city commission meeting by a police officer after refusing to apologize to Uskert for a remark he made when asked to give his name.
When he arrived for this week's meeting, Daves said he was denied entry to the city hall by Police Chief Greg Manning.
Daves charges Uskert violated his civil rights by ordering Manning to bar him from the public meeting Monday night.
This would not be the first time the erstwhile commission candidate has sued the city. His suit last year resulted in forced resignation of Commissioner Larry Goldberg on the grounds that Goldberg no longer lived in the district he was elected to represent. In a previous suit, Daves had challenged the section of the city charter which required a candidate for city office to have been a resident of the city for a year and a property owner. Although the residency requirement was upheld by the court the property ownership requirement was ruled unconstitutional.

Man Shot After Bizarre Deed

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — A minor traffic accident brought death to a Fort Lauderdale man who emerged from his car with a gun, threatened police and wandered away with the gun pointed toward his head.
Police cornered him behind a trash dumpster, and when he shot at one of them and his gun misfired, four officers fired into his body.
The man, Kerry Lynn Oltum, was pronounced dead at Broward Medical Center after the incident Tuesday.

Gov. Graham To Make Pitch For $1.3 Billion For Roads

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham plans to meet with federal officials this week to make a pitch for all or part of a $1.3 billion shortfall in the Florida Interstate highway program.
Graham hopes to catch U. S. Transportation Secretary and other Carter administration officials Friday while they are in New York for the Democratic Convention.
If anyone is in a position to ask a favor, it should be Graham, saying the public defender's office expenses.

Picasso May Grace Shore

MIAMI (UPI) — Pablo Picasso's most massive sculpture design may be in line for a fittingly incongruous home.
A high-backed, 11-story-tall, concrete Cuban woman by the artist who put eyes on the same side of the head and noses where they never grew may soon tower over the low, tile-roofed houses of the north Miami shoreline.
Before the developers of Turnberry Isle Yacht and Racquet Club can erect the colossal sculpture—which may become the world's largest and one of its most costly at $1 million — the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation, the Army Corps of Engineers and at least three other state and federal agencies must approve.

Race-Fixing Indictments Out

MIAMI (UPI) — A federal grand jury has returned a sealed indictment in an alleged 1975 race-fixing scheme at Calder Race Track that cost bettors hundreds of thousands of dollars, the Miami Herald reported today.
The sealed indictment returned by the panel Tuesday implicates horse owners and trainers and reputed Hollywood mobster Anthony Accetturo, the Herald said.
The names of the people indicted by the panel at the conclusion of a two-year investigation will not be disclosed until later this week when they have been arrested.

Judge Nixes Plan State Attorney Wants Trip To French Riviera

MIAMI (UPI) — A $5 robbery trial isn't worth a $1,500 trip to the French Riviera, a Dade County circuit judge has decided.
Judge Dick Lantz Tuesday refused Dade State Attorney Janet Reno's request that he let the state pay an assistant public defender's expenses to the Riviera to take a deposition from the burglarly victim, who says he can come to Miami for the trial in September but not before.
The prosecution wants to foot the bill for the defense to avoid a possible delay in the trial — which could cost the state its star witness, the victim.
But Lantz said that "the public defender should go on his own expense, making the public defender's office expenses," said Kenneth Lange, an assistant state attorney. "So I don't know where we're exactly at."
The case is more important to Ms. Reno's office than it would seem from the size of the robbery.
The defendant, 40-year-old Charles Peck, has 11 prior felony convictions. The state wants to prosecute him as a "career criminal" — which could bring him a 30-year prison sentence, Lange said.
The problem is that Paris businessman Gerard Perrier, who was robbed May 15 in downtown Miami, said he could only

Small Airports In North Unable To Get Aviation Fuel

NEW YORK (UPI) — Many general aviation airports in the Northeast, unable to buy aviation fuel despite a glut on the market, may soon be forced to shut down, an aeronautics official says.
Walter Kies, director of aeronautics for New Jersey, said Tuesday some of the airports — which primarily participate in the taking of the defense funds that need to be investigated, Lange said.
"If the public defender takes the deposition Sept. 15, it's possible we can get the case into trial that week — if the public defender says there is nothing to investigate," Lange said.
"But if the public defender does, the judge has to grant a continuance."
In order to avoid that, Ms. Reno offered to foot the bill for assistant public defender Howard Sohn to go to the Riviera, she wanted to send Lange along — for another $1,500 — to participate in the taking of the deposition from Perrier. But Lantz vetoed that.
Then Sohn canceled his trip, contending Lange's presence was essential for the interview of the victim.
Ms. Reno tried again to get authorization for picking up Sohn's bill, and said she would try to find an attorney on the French Riviera to sit in during the questioning.
Lantz vetoed that, too, Lange said.
"It was Judge Lantz's position that it would be an improper thing to do since the victim expects someone from the state attorney's office to be there," he said.

Boston Clean-Up Underway

BOSTON (UPI) — Some 1,100 municipal workers are cleaning up garbage and debris accumulated during a five-day strike to get the city in shape for the opening of the American Legion Convention Friday.
The strike by Public Works and Parks Departments workers ended Tuesday when the city agreed to submit the filing of five supervisory positions in the two departments to binding arbitration.

Lennox To Produce Record

BOSTON (UPI) — Former Beatle John Lennon and his wife Yoko Ono have started recording their first record album in seven years.
The Lenons began closed recording sessions Tuesday at the Hit Factory studios in New York City according to an industry source, publicist Charles J. Cohen said in a press release from his office here.
"A source close to the recording studio said 'the musicians are all excited over the new Lennon material'." The word is 'it is the best of Lennon to date,'" Cohen said.
He said the source also said the new songs deal with explorations of love fantasies experienced by both men and women.

Iranian Rioters Pay The Price

Those Iranians who participated in riotous anti-shah demonstrations in Washington and in San Diego made a considered choice in jeopardizing their shaky status as guests of the United States. And if deporting them is among the consequences, they must have been aware of the probability when they joined in rioting upon the recent death of the Shah of Iran or — in San Diego — out of "sympathy" for those arrested in Washington and later held in New York.

The effort in Tehran to link the fate of American hostages with the arrest of and possible immigration proceedings against Iranian demonstrators was predictable and meaningless. Iranian officials are quick to seize upon any reason to justify the holding of the hostages now in its 10th month. The cries of "brutality" are similarly worn.

Many of those arrested hold student visas to study in this country. It seems likely that any Iranians serious about pursuing an American education would speak and act very softly in view of the strained relations between Tehran and Washington. Most are continuing their stay in this country under a reprieve from a previous order by President Carter to withhold all visas.

The rioting in Washington and at San Diego State University bears the mark of a plan to perpetuate the conflict between Iran and the United States and prolong the ordeal of the hostages.

Criminal charges of disorderly conduct against the rioters in Washington were dropped by the Washington police. Misdemeanor charges of resisting arrest, failure to disperse and unlawful assembly remain pending against those involved at San Diego State University.

Regardless of the outcome of the criminal proceedings, those responsible for the disorders should be subject to the most stringent of immigration and naturalization service regulations. And that might well include deportation.

Allies Should Help

As Japan and West Germany continue to out-perform the United States in economic terms, it is time they increased their contributions to the maintenance of world peace through strength. It is not realistic to expect that these two countries, defeated in World War II, can continue indefinitely to rely upon the United States to provide the men and conventional weapons necessary for their national defense.

Nuclear weapons are in a special category. We would not advocate that either Japan or West Germany develop an independent nuclear weapons capability.

But why should this country supply men and conventional weapons for the defense of West Germany and Japan when these countries are entirely able to furnish the manpower and support the cost themselves?

One argument has been that Germany and Japan, having been the aggressors in World War II, are not to be trusted if fully rearmed. That argument grows weaker with the passage of time and no longer seems cogent.

The United States is in a sharp recession. We have a substantial deficit in the balance of payments. Our national debt is increasing at the rate of $60 billion a year, inflation is in the double digits.

And yet we continue to spend far more of our gross national product on defense than do Japan and West Germany, neither of which faces the same acute economic problems that we do. We are now increasing our defense spending by about 5 percent a year in constant dollars.

Why should Japan spend less than 1 percent of its GNP on defense while we spend 5 or 6 percent? The lower taxes in Japan give Japanese industry a cost advantage in the world markets. In effect, we are subsidizing their products.

BERRY'S WORLD

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti had a chance to snare White House intimates in a bribery plot much like the ABCAM scam, but he was far more enthusiastic about investigating congressmen than he was about investigating Carter cronies.

The Clock

By DONNA ESTES

Mid-Pac, the political action committee of the Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida, has endorsed four candidates for three Seminole County commission offices up for election this year.

The endorsements are: Barbara Christensen, R-Casselberry, District 1; Robert S. Feather, R-Altamonte, and Norman Floyd, D-Altamonte, District 2; and John Morris, D-Sanford, District 3.

According to Chuck Schmidt, Mid-Pac chairman, the group endorsed candidates whose views on major issues are similar to the construction industry's and who they believe will assist in helping the housing industry meet the demands Central Florida's growth will bring in the next few years.

"We are endorsing our right within the free enterprise system to try to affect the political decisions that concern our future and we want to elect local officials whose decisions will benefit builders, associated industries and housing consumers alike," Schmidt said.

Of particular concern to home builders is the question of housing affordability and government over-regulation. Government over-regulation is defined by Mid-Pac as unnecessary regulations which exceed minimum health and safety standards.

Batchelor said even though he is opposed in his bid for re-election to the Florida House he will do everything he can to help Best win the primary and election.

Tom Pratt, proprietor of the Longwood Village Inn, announced at the Best Banquet, that Robyn Jameson, the Orlando psychic, who recently taped a television appearance at the inn predicted Best would win the congressional primary and November election.

Alamonte Springs' November city election ballot will include candidates for a one-year term as mayor. Floyd has submitted his resignation as mayor, effective in November to run for the county commission.

Candidates being talked up currently are: George Perkins, former city commissioner; current Commissioner Lee Constantine; Howard Sims; former Police Chief Justus East and some are saying the City Commissioner Peggy Childers, whose term on the city commission is expiring this year, may consider the race.

Commissioner Dolores Vickers is saying she is not interested in a race for mayor this year. She says she wants to complete her current term on the city commission.

The Longwood Village Inn was the site over the weekend of a fund-raising banquet honoring David Best, Orlando and Brookville attorney, out of the race for the Democratic nomination for the office several weeks ago, announcing at the same time his support for Best and encouraging his supporters to assist Best.

Introducing Best at the event was State Rep. Dick Batchelor, D-Orlando. Batchelor dropped out of the race for the Democratic nomination for the office several weeks ago, announcing at the same time his support for Best and encouraging his supporters to assist Best.

Batchelor gave an eloquent speech about Best to the gathering, saying he would share the same political philosophy on public service.

Rules, Naked Power

NEW YORK (NEA) — Any honest assessment of the conflicting claims in the fierce debate over the loyalty of delegates to the Democratic National Convention leads to the inescapable conclusion that President Carter is correct.

Acceptance of Carter's legal and moral position on the issue leads, however, to an inevitable political result — the virtually automatic renomination of a president by a party quite thoroughly disenchanted with his leadership.

But the price for dumping Carter is far too high because it requires forsaking more than a decade of profound structural reform that has made the Democratic Party one of the most responsive and representative institutions in our society.

Relying upon an array of specious arguments and a high-powered public-relations campaign, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and other Carter critics have deftly obscured the origin, history and intent of the provision that states:

"All delegates to the national convention shall be bound to vote for the presidential candidate whom they were elected to support for at least the first convention ballot, unless released in writing by the presidential candidate."

"Delegates who seek to violate this rule may be replaced with an alternate of the same presidential preference by the presidential committee" — at any time up to and including the presidential balloting at the national convention."

That language was formulated, discussed and approved unanimously by the Commission on Presidential Nominations and Party Structure, a reform panel established by the Democratic National Committee in the autumn of 1973.

The commission — whose 56 members included several senior political aides to Kennedy who now led a belated crusade against their own recommendations — completed its work in early 1974.

In June 1974 — more than two years ago — the Democratic National Committee approved those recommendations and distributed them to state and local party officials as the "Delegate Selection Rules for the 1980 Democratic National Convention."

In May 1979 — more than one year ago — the Democratic National Committee approved the official "Call for the 1980 Democratic National Convention," a document whose now-famous section 7(f)(3)(c) contained identical language.

On both occasions, there was heated debate over a variety of proposed rules — but virtually no discussion of the clause requiring delegates to remain faithful.

Real News From China

Ros Terrill dropped out of the University of Melbourne, Australia, for a year in 1964 when he was 18, to go to the USSR, the USER, and into China. At the time, he didn't know a word of Chinese, but, as he recalls in his understated way, China "made an impression on me."

Today Terrill may know more about mainland China than anyone else in the Western world. He has just published an authoritative biography, "Mao" (Harper and Row), which writes in a wonderfully clear prose that sometimes rises to epigrammatic splendor. He dresses with non-academic flair and he has just returned from a trip to the Mainland with some real news.

The current Chinese leadership is highly accessible, he says, eager to hear views from the outer world. They are attempting to do what to do about the memory of Mao, and also about what direction to take with a billion people. The two questions are related. As Terrill sees it, the Chinese are much more flexible than the Soviets. There is also a lot of trade with Taiwan — and the products identified as Taiwanese — coming into mainland China through Hong Kong.

What does Terrill see for China in the middle distance?

"There is the potential for a struggle between the Communist Party and the practical demands of the economy. The Communist Party today is stronger, but the demands are also stronger. There will be increasing tension between the northern and southern provinces, with Canton becoming a Southeast Asian city economically, and the northern rulers resenting it."

What about freedom?

There is a great deal more freedom today than before, in all sorts of ways. In the theater, in the movies more than printed matter. There is still an absurd degree of Marxist central planning, the setting of impossible prices. But people often circumvent it, and they are speaking more freely."

"Mao wasn't much interested," says Terrill, "in whether the Chinese had televisions sets."

"Wasn't Mao then really a great reactionary? Opposed to all the currents of modernity and individualism?"

"No," Terrill replies. "In some ways like William Morris, the British poet and artist, who looked to the Middle Ages as a model. But Mao was also a revolutionist, a document whose now-famous section 7(f)(3)(c) contained identical language.

On both occasions, there was heated debate over a variety of proposed rules — but virtually no discussion of the clause requiring delegates to remain faithful.

More Blood To Spill

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK
NEW YORK (UPI) — "There is some blood to spill," the kind-looking lady at the Georgetown garden party said.

It was just as she was stepping out into the sun, just as an outdoor drinking was becoming comfortable in Washington and Jimmy Carter had just looked up enough delegates to win the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

Some of the people at the party were in Ted Kennedy's presidential campaign, but most of the crowd was not directly linked to either candidate.

The lady who uttered the chilling prediction was a congressional aide who had done some part-time work for the Kennedy effort. One of the sharpest political professionals in Washington, she had been tempered in a decade of struggle for Democratic Party reform and women's rights.

Later in the evening, the lady came around to say she hadn't meant the remark about spilling blood. She seemed concerned that the remark she had heard her word pick up on the comment and make a big thing of it.

Actually, the remark was not remarkable for anyone who had watched the Democratic Party committee members in the decade since 1968. It was commonplace to hear and watch Democrats slip up each other during that period.

The surface cause of all that rancor was the Vietnam War. But there was a lot more involved, and for many of the individuals, the war was only the symbol of their real disaffection.

The root cause of that was their unhappiness with the leadership of the party and the structure — based partly on written rules but mostly on precedent and tradition — that gave the Democratic elders control so long that even the hint of dissent was regarded as suicidal.

So the dissidents — the lady above included — set out to reform the Democratic Party in the mid-1960s. In the name of democracy and at the price of dignity that gave Richard Nixon the presidency, they set up a system that just about shut out the "old guard" and elected officials who had been running the party and the nation. They took over, expecting to run the show indefinitely.

Carter won and most who hoped got a piece of the action. But only the Georgians and a few others who were with him from the start were close to the center of power and that rekindled the hostilities of the 1960s.

From that grew the Kennedy candidacy. Its failure in the primaries — a bitter shock to all who had regarded the senator as irresistible to Democrats — had the effect of undoing all the effort the kindling lady and her friends had expended in the previous 10 years.

Now the soothing voice of Heymann has been heard again, assuring alarmed congressmen that nobody from the Justice Department "dangled bait in front of a congressman." But my associate Gary Cohen has examined hours of the sealed ABCAM videotapes. These show that the undercover agents repeatedly dangled petrodollars in front of congressmen.

A Justice Department attorney mentioned the bribery scenes from an adjoining room. He would interrupt the undercover agents with a telephone call when they pressed their victims too hard to take the bribes. There are frequent telephone interruptions on the videotapes. Each time, an agent would answer and would subsequently modify the bribe offer.

Some politicians refused to accept the bribes until they had been pressured by middlemen who in turn, were reportedly urged by agents using their political contacts to sleep playing games and take the cash.

The public can merely speculate whether White House intimates could have been lured to accept direct payoffs if Civiletti had been more in touch with Heymann's activities in the field. In fact, Heymann was the only Republican congressman caught in the ABCAM net.

Shyness Comes Naturally, Says Psychology Researcher

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Shyness is a rational, natural manifestation of wanting to be impressed someone favorably but not being sure you can, says a University of Florida psychology researcher.

"When you're in a situation where you want to make a favorable impression but you don't think you can, it's very natural to feel anxious," Mark Leary, who will receive his Ph.D. at UF graduation Aug. 30, said Monday.

Leary studied laboratory conversations among people who had never met and said those who said they felt most shy during the conversations were those who had a high fear of negative evaluation before the session.

On the other hand, some of those who asked the most questions during the experiment said they felt shy as well.

"Some shy people tend to ask a lot of questions to get the focus off themselves," Leary said.

The 22-year-old researcher believes psychological counselors should help shy people in mind when counseling people who feel shy.

"They are boring, they're not good conversationalists and they know it. If that's the case, they can't make a favorable impression so they feel shy," Leary said.

In this situation, the counselor may teach his client social skills to help remove the client's doubts in his ability to make a favorable impression, such as asking a lot of questions when feeling shy, he said.

Roger Mudd Sits Out Convention

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roger Mudd, who has been covering presidential nominating conventions since 1960, is sitting this one out just as another member of the audience.

As such, he has a warning for his once and future colleagues. "I think it is very hard for television news people to resist the temptation to become more important than the story they are covering," Mudd said in an interview.

"It's something all of us have to guard against or we become the tail that wags the dog, instead of the other way around."

Mudd offered his warning in response to a question about television coverage of the Republican convention. CBS generally, and Dan Rather in particular, were criticized for going overboard about Ronald Reagan wanting Gerald Ford as his running mate.

Mudd wasn't pointing any fingers — he said he wanted to speak only generally so that what he had to say would not be misinterpreted as personal criticism.

"Generally speaking," he continued, "I think television news personnel are impatient to let the story develop naturally. We always want to hasten the action, foreboding the conclusion, so we can make it exciting and succinct. We want to make everything happen in one minute, 30 seconds, and we have to resist trifling with the way life is."

Mudd has plenty of time right now for reflection. He had been on extended leave of absence, mulling over his future, since CBS picked Rather to take over Walter Cronkite's anchor chair next year. He decided to go with NBC.

CBS, however, has no intention of allowing Mudd to use his expertise on an opposition network during the 1980 election campaign.

Mudd would like CBS to retract and let him out of his contract earlier, but "the latest would be midnight, Nov. 13 — that's when they have agreed to let it expire.

Mudd is aware that no matter how responsibly reporters covered the presence of television has made a difference in conventions.

"Television has changed reality," Mudd said. "The last time we went to a second ballot was 1952. It doesn't give a political party to hang up its dirty linen in public. They want it all wrapped up neatly, precisely, smoothly. The presence of television puts pressure to wrap it up in one ballot."

"That's why it's so important we resist being used to wage the truth. We should not be afraid to report a convention as dull, if that's the truth, and resist the temptation to make it more exciting than it really is."

Roger Mudd won't get a chance to talk in like this year, but there's still a Mudd presence at NBC. His daughter is working at the NBC convention as a runner.

Group Plans Guide To Committing Suicide

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A guide to committing suicide will soon be available to terminally ill individuals who want to take their own lives.

An organization called Hemlock says it will publish a booklet presenting a number of case histories of "voluntary active euthanasia" — where terminally ill persons, often with the help of family and friends, commit suicide.

The month-old group formed last month says it will not be a guide to suicide as such, but included in the accounts will be details of the methods used, including choices of drugs and dosages.

Derek Humphry, one of Hemlock's founders, said that by publishing case histories, the group would not be guilty of aiding and abetting suicide, a crime under California law.

Humphry wrote a book in 1978 about the experience of his first wife, who committed suicide at the age of 42, when she was dying of cancer.

In the book, Humphry describes making a brew of sleeping pills and painkillers in a cup of coffee and watching his wife die peacefully.

Humphry makes it clear that he does not advocate suicide as a way out of emotional problems or as a solution to unrequited love. He does believe it should be an option for the terminally ill.

Legal problems forced a euthanasia society in London to abandon its plans for publishing a suicide booklet.

Larry Hill, acting chairman of the euthanasia society, S.U.T.T., said mass distribution of a "Guide to Self-Denial" probably would have led to prosecution under Britain's 1961 Suicide Act.

Section 2 of the act makes it a criminal offense, punishable by up to 14 years in prison, to "aid, abet, counsel or procure" suicides.

"The committee members were not prepared to risk being sent to prison," Hill said Monday night. "A limited number of copies of the 100-member's booklet already have been printed for S.U.T.T. members."

Major League Baseball Roundup

Mets Shade Bucs, Carlton Wins 18th

By United Press International
Ray Burris was so impressive against the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night he had Chuck Tanner and Harvey Haddix shouting superlatives in his behalf.

"He was outstanding," said Tanner, after Burris allowed just one run in eight innings to lift the New York Mets to a 3-1 victory over the Pirates. The loss snapped Pittsburgh's eight-game winning streak and dropped the defending champions into a tie with Montreal for first place in the National League East.

"That's the best game I've seen him pitch," the Pirate manager added.

"He never threw that hard or spaced the ball that well," commented Harold, Pittsburgh's pitching coach. "That wasn't an accident. He was throwing."

In the seventh, Lee Mazzilli and Claudell Washington led off with back-to-back singles off starter Rick Rhoden. The two each advanced a base on Steve Henderson's sacrifice and scored on Alex Trevino's single.

Henderson accounted for the Mets' final run in the ninth when he hit his seventh home run of the season — an inside-the-park shot — off Kent Tekulve.

Mike Esler was the first batter Burris faced in the ninth and he spoiled the shutout with a home run. The job brought in Neil Allen, who picked up his 21st save.

Phillies 5-4, Chicago 5-2
Bob Boone's eighth homer ignited a three-run eighth and Steve Carlton allowed eight hits for his 18th victory for the Phillies. In the completion of the suspended game, Mike McBride's RBI single and a two-run triple by Mike Schmidt lifted Philadelphia.

Boston Spoils Bird's Return

By United Press International
In Capistrano they wait for the swallows to return, in Detroit, it's "The Bird."

"I'm glad the people came out like that," Mark Fidrych said Tuesday night after making a heroic if unsuccessful return to the major leagues before 48,261 fans. "It's a great feeling they gave me."

The Bird, the captivating but injured-plagued right-hander, struggled for two innings then pitched beautifully before allowing a Jim Dwyer home run that gave the Boston Red Sox a 5-4 victory over Detroit.

"I'm pleased (Manager Sparky Anderson) stuck with me," said Fidrych, who allowed 11 hits and five runs in eight innings. "He could have yanked me in the second inning." But Anderson was feeling the excitement, too.

"I've been in four World Series," Anderson said, "and I was more excited tonight. The way he's throwing, I don't think the hoopla will fall off."

Fidrych hadn't started a game in the majors since May 22 of last year, but pitching coach Roger Craig thought he was ready and after those two frustrating innings, The Bird proved the coach right.

Royals 4, Orioles 3
Ballgame Manager Earl Weaver decided to intentionally walk George Brett with runners on first and second and the score tied in the ninth. It backfired when, with the bases loaded, Tim Lincecum walked Amos Otis to force in the run that ended Baltimore's 16-game winning streak and dropped the Orioles 3½ games behind the Yankees.

Blue Jays 5-4, Brewers 1-4

Ernie Whittrip tripled home two runs with two out in the ninth, rallying Toronto in the nightcap. In the opener, Lloyd Moseby delivered a two-run, bases-loaded single in the eighth.

Toronto's Barry Bonnell was hit in the head by a pitch thrown by Larry Sorensen. X-rays taken at Mount Sinai Medical Center showed a fracture above his left cheekbone.

Yankees 1, White Sox 4
Ruppert Jones' grand slam on a 3-2 pitch with one out in the bottom of the 10th lifted New York. Doug Bird, 5-4, was the winner while Ed Farmer, 6-4, took the loss.

Indians 2, Rangers 1
Toby Harrah belted a two-run homer and Rick Watts, 9-10, tossed a six-hitter over 8 2/3 innings. Victor Cruz got the last out for his eighth save. Ferguson Jenkins, 10-11, took the loss.

Twins 2, A's 2
Glenn Adams hit a solo home run with one out in the ninth and Doug Corbett, 8-3, who relieved starter Roger Erickson with one out in the ninth, was the winner.

Angels 8, Mariners 6
Bert Campaneris hit a three-run homer and Bobby Grich had three hits and two RBIs. Mark Clear, 9-8, pitched 3 1/3 innings of shutout relief to get the victory.

Life On The Farm With A Mound Veteran

The 'Other' Brett Faces Tough Return To Big Leagues

NEW YORK (UPI) — The ball game was about over. With the home team 25 games behind first place and trailing by seven runs going into the eighth inning, many of the fans already had left the park.

Some of those who had stayed heard the announcement over the PA system.

"Brett, No. 19, now pitching for the Royals," was what they heard.

In the Omaha Royals' bullpen, Ken Brett, a veteran of more than 10 years in the majors, was about to take what he hoped might be his first step back up to them.

Finishing his warm-up pitches and checking with the scorebook to confirm the Indianapolis Indians were ahead, 8-1, he headed for the mound where he got in on a couple of soft comebackers right to him.

So far, so good. He was off to a fine start with the club he had reported to only hours before. That was in the eighth inning. In the ninth, he showed a little of the rustiness over not having pitched in five months. He gave up a walk to one of the hitters he faced, a clean single to another and an infield hit to a third, but still got out of it nicely without allowing Indianapolis to score.

"Believe it or not, I was a little nervous out there," says the 33-year-old left-hander about last Monday night's effort in Omaha marking his first return to the minors in 11 years after having pitched for the Red Sox, Brewers, Phillies, Pirates, Yankees, White Sox, Angels, Twins and Dodgers in the majors. "My mechanics were a bit off but I felt pretty good after the game."

Bill Gorman, Omaha's general manager, liked what he saw of Brett in the two innings he pitched.

"I thought he did a nice job," Gorman says. "Too bad we didn't have him earlier this year."

Omaha is the Triple A affiliate of the Kansas City Royals for whom Brett's younger brother, George, stars and that had something to do with his launching his comeback try there. The Dodgers released Brett when his elbow locked on him pitching against the Twins in an exhibition game last March 12 and everybody thought that was the end of his baseball career. So did Brett for awhile.

"When the Dodgers let me go this past spring I was upset because I didn't think the whole thing was done right," says President Al Campanis said they were releasing me because they didn't want me to come to them in the middle of the season and tell them I couldn't pitch. The most important thing in my decision to come back and play was to prove to somebody I could pitch."

"I called Kansas City for two reasons," Brett says. "One is because I'd love to play on the same team with George. We never have. The second reason is because Kansas City is short on left-handed pitching. Basically, what I did was sign with Omaha for a month. There were no guarantees. Kansas City would bring me up. I hope they do, but I guess that depends on how I pitch."

Actually a third brother, Bob, was a former outfielder in the Royals' organization and a fourth one, John, played third base in the Red Sox club.

Ken Brett had never been in Omaha before this week. Upon meeting his new manager, Joe Sparks, Monday, he said to him, "I don't wanna at on my butt, I wanna pitch."

MIAMI (UPI) — Miami Dolphins quarterbacks are concentrating on the quarterback competition this year between veteran Bob Griese and 8-year pro Don Strock.

But the key to the quarterback dispute and maybe everything else could be up front in the offensive line where things started out shaky, got much worse and then began improving.

When guard Bob Kuechenberg announced he has retired the day before he was to report, he robbed the line of a decade of experience and a world of versatility.

Then a little over a week later, tackle Joe Gleier went down with a shoulder separation that figured to keep him out of action at least until October. Gleier, a No. 1 draft choice in 1979, had figured to be a mainstay of the Dolphins offensive line despite his lack of game time.

But his injury also spared the Dolphins to try to draw Kuechenberg out of retirement, an effort that was eventually successful.

"It's good to have someone like Kuechenberg, who can play guard and tackle and snaps from center on kicking situations, can help at center and is a great team leader," Coach Don Shula said. "It was even tougher to lose him."

Since Kuechenberg can play — and excel — at three positions, his return adds much more depth than if he were limited to guard, his favorite spot.

"We may have some depth after all," Shula said after Kuechenberg signed.

Despite the return of the 11½-year, 35-year-old veteran the loss of center Jim Langer and tackle Mills Carter to apparent retirements and the possible reintegration of guard Larry Little to a backup role sharply reduces the experience of the front line.

"That could have a bearing on the quarterback situation, because Griese is known for being the kind of quarterback who operates better with a Bolin Royce than with a Model T."

After last year's season-long controversy over who should be the starting quarterback, Struck, Griese, Shula declared that the job would be open in 1990.

"It's just basically who he feels he can go with to win," says Struck. "I don't know. I think it's going to be something he sees that's probably irrelevant to somebody else."

And the 36-year-old Griese is not about to hand the job to someone else.

"I don't come in to be a reserve. I've always been a starter and I've been a guy who has played," Griese said. "I don't like to be a guy who has to be put on the sidelines. I don't really think any other way. I'm not as

Top Seeds Advance As Expected In Canadian Tourny

TORONTO (UPI) — On the day the top seeds at the Canadian International Tennis Tournament made their first appearances, the big news was what did not happen.

Bjorn Borg's jogger's knee did not injure him to quit. John McEnroe's twisted ankle did not force an early retirement. And Martina Navratilova did not fail to an unseeded player two years her junior.

Borg provided tournament organizers and the crowd of about 8,000 at the National Tennis Center at York University with their most anxious moments at the forthcoming U.S. Open — the only major tournament he has not won.

"If I have pain, I'll withdraw," he said later. "The U.S. Open is in two weeks and that's the one I want to win."

Later, the 21-year-old McEnroe stunned the crowd at center court when he fell to his knees in obvious agony in the fourth game of the second set of his first-round match with 17-year-old Ottawa Martin Wostenholme.

McEnroe apparently jammed his right foot against the center tie-down of the net while hitting a backhand volley.

He was not thought to be serious. Navratilova had trouble with her serve on the windy center court and blew the first set, 1-6, before recovering to take the second-round match, 1-6, 6-4, 7-5 (7-3).

In other first-round matches, third-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis, of Kings Point, N.Y., defeated Tom Cain of Richmond, Va., 6-2, 6-1; fourth-seed Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia eliminated Colin Dowdeswell of Switzerland, 6-3, 6-1, and eighth-seed Brian Teacher of Los Angeles, Calif., beat Russell Simpson of New Zealand, 6-3, 7-6 (7-4).

In women's second round matches, second-seed Chris Evert Lloyd of Palm Springs, Calif., defeated JoAnne Russell of Naples, Fla., 6-3, 6-3; fourth-seed Wendy Turnbull of Australia eliminated Rosalyn Fairbank of South Africa, 6-4, 6-0; sixth-seed Virginia Ruzici of Romania beat Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles, Calif., 6-4, 7-5; and eighth-seed Andrea Jaeger of Lincolnshire, Ill., outplayed Susan Leo of Australia, 6-4, 6-3.

Navratilova had a surprisingly tough time against

Shula Feels 'Kooch' Just What The Dolphin Doctor Ordered

MIAMI (UPI) — With "old-fashioned" offensive lineman Bob Kuechenberg back in uniform, Miami Dolphin Coach Don Shula is cheering up.

"Things were bleak a week ago when Larry Canina could'nt make a deal with owner Joe Robbie, the retirement of Kuechenberg and the severe shoulder injury to offensive tackle Joe Gleier."

"That left Shula with no proven big back and an offensive line that went from 48 years experience a year ago to an even dozen."

But Shula did a lot of smiling Tuesday after the versatile 253-pound Kuechenberg had signed a new contract with the Dolphins and suited up for an afternoon workout in the rain.

"It looks now like we've got some depth," said Shula at a news conference. "It's a tough, old-fashioned football player who enjoys the game. It's good to get a guy that can play tackle or guard, snaps for kicks or can even help out at center if he needs to."

"It's important to have him back. We'll use him at tackle now and make whatever decision has to be made later on," Shula said.

Shula and the Dolphins, of course, are still in the market for a big back and the coach says he will continue to investigate trade possibilities for a good offensive lineman.

Kuechenberg retired 20 days ago, saying he wanted more time to nurse his lucrative outside business interests. He said Tuesday he with an option year in 1991. The new one obviously runs at least through 1992.

In another development, Shula announced he was going to try defensive end Duke 1978 AFC rookie of the year, as a backup in the Dolphins' game at Seattle Monday night.

He said the experiment doesn't mean the 5-6, 250-pound Duke will become a full time linebacker, and that the LSU product would continue to work at defensive end. A more likely result would be the Dolphins the option of switching between a three- and four-man front line without substituting.

Duke said he was afraid at first he would fall behind in competition at defensive end, but decided to try it anyway on the condition that if he wasn't making any progress he would go back to concentrating entirely on his old position.

The Dolphins also announced they had brought to camp Benny Leverett, a running back from Bethune-Cookman, who had been let go by the New York Jets.

Waived were fullback Wes Alstott of Fort Hays State (Kan.), safety Jay Megna of East Tennessee State, offensive guard Mike God of Florida State defensive end Dennis McCollins of Southern University.

Miss White, J.L. Graves Repeat Vows

Sandra Lee White, daughter of Mrs. Amy White and the late Mr. Robert E. White Jr., and Sanford and John Lowell Graves...

MR. AND MRS. JOHN LOWELL GRAVES

After a wedding trip to Sea World and South Florida the couple are making their home in Sanford. The bridegroom is shop foreman for Action Honda, Sanford. Mrs. Graves is employed at Auto Parts and Supply, Sanford.

The bride, given in marriage by a close family friend, Roy Barrow, wore a sleeveless gown of sheer nylon eyelet trimmed in satin ribbon over tulle and featuring a chapel train.

Her veil of illusion with lace trim featured a cap of seed pearls and lace. She carried a bouquet of blue and white daisies and baby's breath with white lace streamers.

Mrs. Cindy Martin, Sanford, attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Bobbi Jeanne White, sister of the bride and Miss Dina Lee, both of Sanford. All wore identical spaghetti strap gowns of pale blue and white.

Mrs. Laurel Ellmore sang "Theme From Ice Castles" and "Evergreen" prior to the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony as the couple knelt at the altar. Mrs. Ellmore was accompanied by the church organist, Chuck Anzuchowski.

Tape Of Husband Snoring Stops This Nightly Static

DEAR ABBY: Shortly after I married Mark I discovered that he snored. When I told him he snored, he denied it. Abby, his snoring sounded like a chicken bone in a garbage disposal!

Finally I decided I had had enough of his denials. So two weeks ago I bought a tape recorder and learned how to use it. One night after Mark fell asleep with snoring I turned on the microphone under his nose and got about 10 minutes of snoring. Then I reversed the tape, turned it up and nearly blasted him out of bed. (Thank heavens he didn't hit me.)

Only after I threatened him with a nighty re-run did he agree to see an ear, nose and throat specialist for an examination. The doctor discovered several polyps and nearly blasted him out of bed. (Thank heavens he didn't hit me.)

SEAFOOD GUMBO

The same basic gumbo as for the shrimp is used. In addition to shrimp, add 1 pint oysters and 1 can fresh or frozen oysters and crabmeat, cook slowly for about 15 minutes.

NEW ORLEANS RED BEANS AND RICE. 1 1/2 cups dried red kidney beans, 1 1/2 cups water, 1 ham bone with ham, 2 links smoked sausage (sliced), 1 cup dried ham seasoning, 2 medium onions (chopped fine), 3 cloves garlic (chopped fine), 4 sticks celery (chopped fine), 1 bunch green onions (chopped), 1 large green bell pepper (chopped fine), 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. black pepper, 3 cups parley (chopped fine), 2 bay leaves, 1 tsp. tabasco sauce, 3 cups hot cooked white rice.

SOAK BEANS OVERNIGHT in water. Finely chop onions, garlic, celery, green onions (shallots), bell pepper, and parsley. Mix together and store in covered container overnight in refrigerator.

THE FOLLOWING MORNING, pour beans into large heavy pan or Dutch oven. Start beans cooking on high heat, adding ham bone. In large frying pan, add 2 tablespoons cooking oil, and brown smoked sausage. Remove from pan and drain sausage.

SAUTE MIXED CHOPPED vegetables in sausage drippings, and brown for approximately 15 minutes. Remove and drain in colander.

ADD SAUSAGE, DICED ham, and sautéd vegetables to cooking beans. Add salt, pepper, bay leaves and Tabasco sauce. Remove ham bone from beans, cut off meat and add to beans. Add water when necessary during cooking. Water should barely cover beans at end of cooking time.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for a year to a man I'll call Nick. It's my first marriage and his second. Nick has two children, 12 and 8. He's a mess and I'm 30. I think I should mention that I had nothing to do with Nick's divorce.

When Nick brought me to her home and told her we planned to marry, she glared at me, then turned to Nick and said, "I thought you said you'd never get married again!" (No congratulations, and when you go, nothing else.)

Since Nick's mother ignores you when you visit her, keep your visits to a minimum. And when you go, nothing else. Ignore it. Or better yet, take a magazine along and bury your head in it.

HOME APPLIANCE

Affordable, Appetizing ... That's Some Combination!

Life was easier when steak and chops could be prepared for most meals. Less expensive forms of protein are now a must... for most people. But something interesting is happening as we strive to save money by serving different kinds of lower-cost meats... meals are looking elegant and appetizing! And more and more are including rice.

Some of this new-found elegance comes from the romance of serving meals as they are eaten in their native countries. Still more stems from regional dishes of the United States derived from ethnic backgrounds. Rice has been a part of meal-planning since the beginning of history. In fact, rice today is the staple food for over half of the world's population!

Rice, at about three cents per half-cup serving, can make most meals affordable. Here are some ways to make them appetizing.

SAUSAGE AND BEANS TAMPICO
1 package (12 oz.) smoked pork sausage links, cut in about 1-inch pieces
1 cup chopped onions
2 cans (15 oz. each) pinto beans
1 cup tomato juice
1 teaspoon each salt and chili powder
1/4 teaspoon each garlic powder and pepper
2 cups peeled, cored, and thickly sliced tart cooking apples
3 cups hot cooked rice
1/2 cup sour cream

Cook sausage and onions about 5 minutes, stirring often. Add beans, tomato juice, and seasonings. Simmer, uncovered, 10 minutes. Stir in apples and continue cooking 10 minutes longer or until most of the liquid has evaporated. Serve over beds of fluffy rice and top with dollops of sour cream. Serve with scallions and yellow chiles, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

CHICKEN MEDITERRANEAN
2 whole chicken breasts, cut in half
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 green pepper, cut in strips
1 medium eggplant, cut in 2-inch cubes (1/2 pound)
2 zucchini, cut in 1/2-inch slices
1 can (14 1/2 oz.) whole potatoes
1/4 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
1/4 teaspoon thyme
2 cups hot cooked rice

Season chicken with salt and paprika. Brown on both sides in butter, using an oven-proof skillet. Remove chicken and set aside. Add onions, garlic, green pepper, and eggplant to same skillet; cook until tender crisp. Arrange chicken pieces over vegetables. Add zucchini, tomatoes, and seasonings. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Serve with fluffy rice. Garnish with lemon, if desired. For added elegance, mound rice in center of platter and arrange chicken around edge. Serve vegetables separately. Makes 4 servings.

BEEF RANCHERO
(Hanch Style Beef)
1 1/2 pounds beef chuck, cut in 3/4-inch cubes
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 cup chopped onions
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon salt
1 can (4 oz.) green chiles, diced
1 1/2 cups beef broth
1 can (7 oz.) mild green chile salsa (sauce)
4 ounces cubed Cheddar cheese (about 1 cup)
3 cups hot cooked rice

Season chicken with salt and paprika. Brown on both sides in butter, using an oven-proof skillet. Remove chicken and set aside. Add onions, garlic, green pepper, and eggplant to same skillet; cook until tender crisp. Arrange chicken pieces over vegetables. Add zucchini, tomatoes, and seasonings. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Serve with fluffy rice. Garnish with lemon, if desired. For added elegance, mound rice in center of platter and arrange chicken around edge. Serve vegetables separately. Makes 4 servings.

Fashion Fine Fare Fiesta

If you can't vacation in Acapulco, why not go south of the border for menu inspiration? Colorful, unique combinations of Mexican foods are rising fast in popularity. They will certainly put zip in your life while they are kind to your budget. Balance your menus easily with these novel dishes, low on expensive meats, high in vegetables and beans, generous in their use of cheeses and milk. Pull out a surprise from underneath your sombrero by serving your family some of these peppy foods: Chilled Avocado Soup, cool and green, is a gourmet delight when topped with unseasoned whipped cream, sprinkled with coarse salt. Tostitas are an inexpensive yet appetizer, made by spreading refried beans on butter-fried tortillas, topped with cheese.

CHILLED AVOCADO SOUP

- 2 tablespoons butter
 - 2 tablespoons finely grated onion
 - 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup canned condensed chicken broth, undiluted
 - 1 cup milk
 - 2 cups light cream or half and half
 - 2 cups peeled, mashed avocado (about 2 large)
 - 1/2 teaspoon ginger
 - 1 teaspoon each grated orange peel and grated lemon peel
 - Whipped cream
 - Course salt
 - Melt butter in heavy saucepan; add onion and saute. Stir in flour and salt; cook until bubbly, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Gradually stir in chicken broth and milk. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Cool slightly. Stir in cream, avocado, ginger, orange and lemon peels. Blend in blender or beat until smooth with rotary beater. Chill. Serve with a dollop of whipped cream sprinkled with coarse salt. Yield: 4 1/2 cups.
- TOSTITAS
12 (one 10-oz. pkg.) soft corn tortillas
Butter
2 cups canned refried beans
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup each chopped sweet red pepper and fresh jalapeno or green pepper
1 cup sliced ripe pitted olives
2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
Cut each tortilla into 4 wedges. Lightly brown each over medium-high heat on both sides in a lightly buttered skillet until heated through and crisp. Place crisp tortilla wedges on cookie sheets. Combine refried beans and onion. Spread about 2 tablespoons refried bean mixture over each tortilla wedge. Top with 1/2 teaspoon each red and green pepper, 1 tortilla olive, and 2 teaspoons cheese. Bake in preheated 325 degrees F. oven 3 minutes. Serve hot. Yield: 4 dozen.
- TACOS/PICADILLO SAUCE
1 pound lean ground beef
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cumin
1/2 teaspoon cloves
2 canned jalapeno chilies, seeded and chopped
1/2 cup shivered almonds
12 (one 10-oz. pkg.) soft corn tortillas
Butter
1 1/2 cups (6 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
Brown beef, onion and garlic; drain off drippings. Stir in tomato sauce, salt, cumin, cloves, chilies and raisins. Simmer 10 minutes. Stir in almonds. Lightly brown tortillas over medium-high heat on both sides in a lightly buttered skillet until heated through and softened but not crisp. Place about 1/4 cup meat mixture across, but slightly to one side, on the face of each tortilla. Sprinkle with about 2 tablespoons cheese. Roll up fairly firmly and secure edge with wooden pick. Place filled tortillas on oven-proof platter, cover with foil. Heat in preheated 375 degrees F. oven 10 minutes. Remove picks. Serve immediately. 6 servings (2 tacos each).

Pie Makings From Shelf Sure To Pamper, Please

When Old Mother Hubbard went to the cupboard and discovered what was not there, it taught her to take inventory more often. Don't find yourself in a similar predicament, especially with today's informal and impromptu stress in these hurrying times. Begin with a well-planned shopping strategy that helps solve the problem before it becomes one. Here are pies that will pamper taste buds and please you.

Why? Essentially, they are prepared with basic food items — convenient Jell-O instant pudding and pie filling and other staples, including canned, frozen and refrigerated varieties. Tackling daily tasks and having company in later for French Cherry Pudding Pie will be a snap. Imagine, a mixture of prepared vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling and sour cream chills in the crumb crust in only two hours. Then, a garnish of canned cherry pie filling and off it goes to the table!

FRENCH CHERRY PUDDING PIE
2 cups cold milk
1 cup (1/2 pt.) sour cream
1/4 teaspoon almond extract
1 package (6-serving size) vanilla or French vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling
1 baked 9-inch Vanilla Wafer Crumb Crust, cooled

Combine milk, sour cream and almond extract in bowl. Add pie filling mix. Beat slowly with rotary beater or at low speed of electric mixer until well blended, 1 minute. Quickly pour into pie crust. Chill 2 hours. Spoon cherry pie filling over each serving, or in a ring around edge of pie filling.
Vanilla Wafer Crumb Crust:
Combine 1/4 cup fine vanilla wafer crumbs, 4 teaspoons sugar and 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine. Press firmly on bottom and sides of 9-inch pie pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 8 minutes. Cool.

PRALINE ICE CREAM PUDDING PIE
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons light brown sugar
2/3rd cup chopped pecans
1/4 cup cold milk
1 cup (1/2 pt.) vanilla ice cream, softened
1 package (6-serving size) butter pecan flavor instant pudding and pie filling
Combine brown sugar, butter and nuts in saucepan; heat until butter is melted. Pour into pie shell and bake at 450 degrees for 5 minutes. Cool.
Thoroughly blend milk and ice cream in bowl. Add pie filling mix. Beat slowly with rotary beater or at low speed of electric mixer until blended, about 1 minute. Pour immediately into pie shell. Chill until set, about 3 hours. Garnish with prepared whipped topping and pecan halves, if desired.

MARSHMALLOW-NUT ICE CREAM PUDDING PIE
1/2 cup marshmallow topping
1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled
1/4 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup cold milk
1 cup (1/2 pt.) chocolate ice cream, softened
1 package (6-serving size) chocolate flavor instant pudding and pie filling
Using knife dipped in warm water, spread marshmallow topping in bottom of pie shell. Sprinkle with nuts.
Thoroughly blend milk and ice cream in bowl. Add pie filling mix. Beat slowly with rotary beater or at low speed of electric mixer until blended, about 1 minute. Pour immediately into pie shell. Chill until set, about 3 hours. Garnish with prepared whipped topping, if desired.

Good thing you added flaked coconut to the shopping list for a Quick Coconut Crust for a Chocolate Almond Pudding Pie. Reliable, basic prepared chocolate flavor instant pudding and pie filling will be sensational chilled in the tasty crust. Thawed from whipped topping and on-hand almonds, toasted, do the garnishing honors.

Celebrating will take on new looks and tastes with a contemporary Praline Ice Cream Pudding Pie, even if you have to manufacture an occasion as an excuse to make it. The pie, happily, is a mixture of on-hand basics: butter pecan flavor instant pudding and pie filling, ice cream and milk. A brown-sugar-and-nut bottom crust sets the pie apart from all others.

Add another package of chocolate flavor instant pudding and pie filling to your shopping list. Try the Marshmallow-Nut Ice Cream Pudding Pie recipe.
Being dessert-prepared means deliberately designing to have on-hand ingredients for these sensational pies. Now, it's

Chicken Dish Wins $10,000

ATLANTA, Ga. — A young career woman who is a naturalist at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, DC, has captured the $10,000 top prize in the 1980 National Chicken Cooking Contest.

Shelia Hoban, representing the District of Columbia, called her recipe "Capital Chicken Casserole." It is a tasty combination of cut-up chicken parts cooked with fresh mushrooms and artichoke hearts, seasoned with wine.

Placing second and winning $4,000 was Hedy Penney, a Utah widow and grandmother who was taught to cook as a child by her German mother.

CAPITAL CHICKEN CASSEROLE
1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
4 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon cooking oil
1 package (10 oz.) fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 tablespoon flour
1 can (11 oz.) cream of chicken soup
1 cup dry white wine
1/2 cup cream
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon tarragon leaves
1 can (15 oz.) artichoke hearts, drained
6 green olives, green and white parts included, chopped
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
In large frypan, place butter and oil and heat to medium temperature until butter melts. Add chicken and cook, turning, about 10 minutes or until brown on all sides. Remove chicken and place in baking pan or casserole. In same frypan, saute mushrooms about 5 minutes or until tender. Stir in flour. Add soup, wine and water; simmer, stirring, about 10 minutes or until sauce thickens. Stir in cream, salt, tarragon and pepper; pour over chicken. Bake, uncovered, in 350 degree F oven for 60 minutes. Mix in artichoke hearts, green olives and parsley. Bake about 5 more minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Makes 4 servings.

time to take inventory.
CHOCOLATE ALMOND PUDDING PIE
2-3rd cup alivered blanched almonds
1 package (6-serving size) chocolate flavor instant pudding and pie filling
2/3 cup cold milk
1/4 teaspoon almond extract
Quick Coconut Crust
1 cup thawed frozen whipped topping
Toast almonds in shallow pan at 350 degrees for 3 to 5 minutes. Chop 1/4 cup of the almonds; reserve remaining almonds for garnish. Prepare pie filling mix with the milk as directed on package for pie. Stir in chopped almonds and almond extract. Pour into pie crust and chill at least 4 hours. Garnish with whipped topping and reserve almonds.
Quick Coconut Crust:
Combine 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine and 2 cups flaked coconut. Press evenly into ungreased 9-inch pie pan. Bake at 300 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes or until golden brown.

Garnish Praline Pudding Pie With whipped topping and pecans.

Today's salad bar literally features just about everything from soup to nuts. Cool Cucumber Mold, right, has a base of cream cheese enhanced with a medley of seasonings for texture and flavor. Iceberg Crab Louie and Beef and Vegetable Salads, left, are just what the dieter ordered — for bulk and nutrition.

Savory Mold Outstanding Centerpiece

Molded salads are always popular, especially during warm summer months. Cool Cucumber Mold is a savory salad which can make an outstanding centerpiece when filled with sliced salami, Bologna, hard-cooked eggs and ripe olives.
Combine lemon gelatin and cream cheese, then flavor with vinegar, horseradish and a dash of red pepper seasoning. Add grated cucumber, chives, parsley and wedges of ripe olives to bring color, texture and cool flavor to the salad.
Whenever you make any kind of salad, don't forget the ripe olives. They add a distinct crunch and bold color accent.

- COOL CUCUMBER MOLD
- 1 cup pitted ripe olives
 - 1 medium cucumber
 - 1 (3 ounce) package lemon gelatin
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1 1/2 cups boiling water
 - 1 (3 ounce) package lemon gelatin
 - 1/4 cup vinegar
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons prepared horseradish
 - Dash liquid red pepper seasoning
 - 1/4 cup chopped parsley
 - 1/4 cup finely chopped chives
- Cut olives in wedges. Pare and shred cucumber. Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling water. Add softened cream cheese, beating until smooth. Stir in vinegar, horseradish and red pepper seasoning. Chill until partially thickened. Fold in olives, cucumber, parsley and chives. Turn into 4-cup ring mold; chill until firm. Unmold and garnish as desired.
- ICEBERG CRAB LOUIS
- 1/2 medium head iceberg lettuce
 - 1/4 red cabbage, shredded (about 2 cups)
 - 2 stalks celery, sliced (about 1 cup)
 - 1 carrot, shredded
 - 1/2 onion, chopped
 - 5-6 radishes, sliced
 - 1-3 cup safflower mayonnaise
 - 2/3 tablespoons ketchup
 - 1/4 teaspoon horseradish
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
 - 1 cup (1/4 pound) fresh king crab meat (or use 2 1/2 ounce can, drained)
- To crisp lettuce, core, rinse and drain very well. Place in disposable plastic bag or plastic crispier and chill thoroughly. Clean, cut and chill other vegetables.
For dressing, combine mayonnaise, ketchup, horseradish, salt and mustard.
Shred half lettuce head and combine with other vegetables and crab meat in salad bowl. Pour dressing over and toss for 3 to 5 minutes until everything is moist and well coated.
- BEEF AND VEGETABLE SALADS
- 1 head iceberg lettuce
 - 2-3 cup corn oil
 - 1-3 cup vinegar
 - 4 teaspoons bottled mixed salad seasonings
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon tarragon
 - 1 teaspoon pepper
 - 1 small cauliflower
 - 8 ounces sliced roast beef, boiled ham (2 packages, 4 ounces each) or another luncheon meat
 - 1/4 cup chopped sweet gherkins
 - 1/4 cup (1/2 ounce) sliced pickled beets, drained, chilled
 - Core, rinse and drain lettuce; chill in disposable plastic bag or plastic crispier.
 - Combine oil, vinegar, salad seasonings, salt, tarragon and pepper in jar; cover and shake.
 - Trim cauliflower and separate into florets. Steam in a little boiling salted water for 5 minutes, or until tender-crisp. Drain, cover with dressing and chill 1 to 2 hours until fully flavored.
 - Slice lettuce head crosswise into 4 slices. (Save end pieces to put into tossed salads.) Place each lettuce slice onto luncheon plate. Drizzle each with a little marinade-dressing.
 - Roll roast beef slices around some of gherkins. Arrange rolled meat, cauliflower, beets and remaining gherkins on top of lettuce slices.
 - Serve with remaining marinade-dressing alongside.
- This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

- 1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed chicken broth
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/4 cup wine vinegar
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 5 cups cubed potatoes (about 2 1/2 pounds)
- 1 cup sour cream
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

- 2 tablespoons chipped parsley
In skillet, combine all ingredients except potatoes, sour cream and parsley; add potatoes. Bring to boil; reduce heat. Simmer 25 minutes or until done. Let stand 30 minutes. In bowl blend sour cream and parsley; toss with potato mixture. Serve with grilled knoekwurst. Makes about 4 cups.

Tuna Mousse Based On A French Classic Is Epicurean Treat

A new trend is on the horizon. Haute monde publications, whose food sections are usually designed for readers with an epicurean bent...

In the past their pages might have included a recipe for Viello Tomato, the elegant Italian tuna-sauced yeast classic...

Tuna Tomato Mousse is based on a French classic — lobster mousse topped with tomato aspic, and Tuna Cantaloupe...

'Charcuterie' Wave Is Sweeping Country

If you pride yourself on keeping up with the latest trends in food, you'll be intrigued by the new "charcuterie" wave that's sweeping the country.

When you want to entertain in an innovative French fashion, try a "charcuterie" supper. Pate a la Campagne and Legumes a la Grecque make traditional and exceptionally flavorful choices.

Body To Be Exhumed To See If It's Really Oswald

DALLAS (UPI)—The body believed to be that of Lee Harvey Oswald, assassin of President John F. Kennedy, will be exhumed to determine its identity, UPI has learned.

Marina Oswald, the Russian-born wife of Oswald who has since remarried, told UPI: "It's true."

Mrs. Oswald has the authority to approve the exhumation under Texas law and a confidential source told UPI she had signed the necessary document which would clear the way for a special autopsy of the body buried Nov. 25, 1963. The grave is in Rose Hill Burial Park at Fort Worth, Texas.

The legal document also ordered a subsequent private autopsy to determine the identity of the body — if the grave contained one.

The extraordinary turn of events was prompted by the investigative work of British author and attorney Michael Eddowes, who has probed the Kennedy assassination for 16 years. Eddowes contends that there is a body beneath the red granite marker. It is that of a Soviet secret agent known as a "sleeper" in intelligence circles who became an Oswald imposter after Oswald arrived in the Soviet Union on Oct. 15, 1963.

Eddowes contends the Soviet agent assumed Oswald's identity and returned to the United States in 1962. The real Oswald "disappeared" in Russia, said Eddowes.

Dallas attorney Jerry M. Pittman, who has represented Eddowes in a long legal battle to obtain a court order mandating disinterment of the Oswald grave, said he could make no comment on exhumation and autopsy plans.

"I just can't make any comment in light of the sensitivity of this matter," said Pittman. "We've worked too long and hard on this. Two years, maybe more."

Chief Dallas Medical Examiner Charles Petty also said he could not comment.

Eddowes filed suit in District Court at Fort Worth in January 1973, asking the court to order an exhumation. The court ruled that because Eddowes is a British citizen, he lacked standing in the case. On May 23, the Fort Worth Court of Civil Appeals upheld the lower court ruling, and that case is now before the Texas Supreme Court.

UPI learned last week of secret plans to disinter the body in the Oswald grave. Since then, UPI confirmed the plans with Marina Oswald-Pittman, Oswald's widow, and others sources.

Priscilla Bradford's 14-year-old daughter, Eden, demonstrates how her mother swung a bottle capper at John Bradford, killing him. She testified Wednesday at the trial of Joyce Cummings, accused of helping Mrs. Bradford commit the murder.

Jury Deliberating 'Frying Pan Murder'

The first degree murder case against Joyce Cummings, 18, went to a 12-member Seminole County Circuit Court jury today following closing arguments.

Cummings, of Palm Bay, one of three persons charged with beating Melbourne optometrist John Bradford to death with kitchen implements March 28, sat showing no emotion as her attorney Joan Bickerstaff told the jury the state had failed to prove its case against her client.

"It is true she helped cover up the murder," Bickerstaff said, explaining no evidence showed her client either seriously helped plan the murder or swung any object at Bradford.

Cummings was working for Bradford at his optical lab along with Janice Bradford's wife, Priscilla, has already pleaded guilty to murder. Her daughter, Eden, also a participant in the murder was granted immunity in return for her testimony.

Much of Bickerstaff's closing arguments dealt with the state's witnesses, specifically the 14-year-old daughter who Wednesday testified she had helped her mother and the other two women kill Bradford.

She said she did not believe Eden was candid and truthful with the jurors asking the jury to consider her demeanor on the stand.

But Assistant State Attorney Dean Mosley told the court he believed the measure of truthfulness of a witness was a willingness to testify to things not in the witness' interest.

He pointed out Eden had admitted committing a crime, something which even though would not lead to her prosecution, demonstrated her candor.

The defense rested Wednesday afternoon without calling a single witness, minutes after Circuit Judge J. William Woodson denied a motion to dismiss charges on the grounds the state had not proven its case.

Major Firm To Promote Golden Age Olympics

A major national corporation has agreed to furnish nationwide publicity for Sanford's Golden Age Olympics, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Executive Manager Jack Horner revealed today.

Horner said part of the agreement was not to name the company until the firm's announcement is made in the middle of next week out of New York.

The company, which manufactures a variety of food products, is scheduled to promote the annual senior citizen athletic event on its labels, packages, brochures and stationery as well as in its national advertising on television and in various publications.

Horner said that the firm has retained Buster Crabbe, former Olympic swimmer who served as the Golden Age Olympics' first honorary chairman, to serve as the national spokesman. He said

Crabbe will be making guest appearances on television talks shows to promote the Golden Age Olympics, which will be held in Sanford the first week in November.

This year's honorary chairman may be a much more recent U.S. Olympic swimmer, John Nabor, gold medalist in the Montreal Olympic Games four years ago, Horner said. "Gene Kulture" asked to him the other day in Colorado Springs and he is anxious to come if he has schedule permits," he added.

"I am delighted," said Horner about this latest sponsorship. "It solves the problem of promotion and publicity nationally. A lot of the money from our special money-raising projects has had to go into postage for our national mailouts."

In conjunction with the mystery company's promotional campaign for the Golden Age event, it will extend to Senior Citizen groups its offer of free athletic equipment now given to schools and youth groups which save proof-of-purchase checks, Horner said.

He said he had been negotiating with the company for more than a year.

No outright financial assistance is expected from the new sponsor, he added.

"This is no way changes the need for local sponsorship of various events by area organizations and businesses. We're still in need of local support," Horner emphasized.

This will be the sixth year the Golden Age Olympics has been cosponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the city of Sanford. Participation is open to all men and women 55 years and older and events range from checkers to track and field.

"Our goal is to have champions from preliminary events in cities throughout the country come here to compete," said Horner.

Demos Uniting Around President

NEW YORK (UPI)—President Carter, armed with the cherished endorsement of organized labor and unquashed cries of Edward Kennedy, accepts the Democratic Party's presidential nomination tonight.

As Texas clinched nomination for Carter, his wife Rosalynn bested the newspaper headline "It's Carter Again" the thousands of cheering supporters in Madison Square Garden, Kennedy's party headquarters, the president's head of glory with the words: "It is imperative that we defeat Ronald Reagan in 1980. I urge all Democrats to vote in this effort."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill read Kennedy's statement to the convention and added, with a broad smile, "until we stand." The crowd went wild — and soon after, Kennedy's home state Massachusetts delegation led the move to make Carter's nomination by acclamation.

The only question that remained was whether Kennedy will see Carter and Vice President Walter Mondale on the podium tonight to signify unity and when the divided Democrats end their 210 quadrennial convention.

"I don't know," said a Kennedy aide when asked about the possibility, but another said he has to do after that statement.

Even before Kennedy's endorsement, Lane Kirkland, president of the 18-million-member AFL-CIO, pledged its support for Carter as the strength of his pledge to pursue implementation of the platform's economic plans.

"I don't know what more we could have asked for in these negotiations," Kirkland said in a statement. "This gives labor the necessary push to get the depressed areas and will the Carter-Mondale ticket."

The long-sought Kennedy endorsement, Democrats, both liberal and conservative, that Carter must have in the climb to catch Republican Ronald Reagan and independent John Anderson ended a day of intense political maneuvering.

Despite the inevitability of Carter's nomination, the real vote was not unanimous. Kennedy had tried his telephone, but some time ago departed his despite the push for party unity.

DAY 285... The long struggle of the American hostages in Iran is depicted in this faded flag at the home of Arthur and Thelma Boyd, 288 Lake Mary Blvd., Lake Mary. The Boyds put up a new flag during a national show of unity in January. Mrs. Boyd said she has considered putting up another new flag, but decided the symbolism wouldn't be the same. Today is the 285th day of captivity for the hostages in Iran. The Boyds intend to fly this flag until the final hostage is released.
