Sheriff's program helps seniors thwart con games

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A new task force has been formed to look into the need to protect elderly citizens from crime.

Head is an educational and proactive program which involves the sheriff, all the municipal police chiefs, and senior citizen advocates from throughout Seminole County.

Sheriff Don Eslinger, who initiated the program, said he is concerned for the well-being of the elderly citizens of Seminole County.

Seniors are often times more affected mentally when they are victims of crime, either violent crime or fraud, he said.

Eslinger said he recently attended a class at the FBI Academy in Quantico, Virginia dealing with ways to help curb crime against the elderly. He and about 60 other law enforcement chiefs from across the nation, were invited to learn techniques to better equip police people to defend themselves.

According to Eslinger, Americans over the age of 60 are the fastest growing demographic group.

Eslinger said he has seen in Seminole County we've had two cases where there have been con artists. See Crime, Page 5A

Task force to draft recommendations for freshwater protection

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Geneva Freshwater Lens Task Force stopped short of banning borrow pits in the high recharge areas of the Geneva Bubble Thursday but recommended restrictions which could prevent future dirt pits in the area.

The task force completed most of their recommendations yesterday and will meet once again Nov. 15 to review a draft of their proposals and to consider a recommendations for the transportation of hazardous materials through the area. The group must submit their recommendations to the Legislature Dec. 1.

Hugh Mitchell-Tapping, a bubble expert with the St. Johns River

Water Management District, told the group he reviewed well-drilling data for more than 50 wells in the Geneva Bubble area for the presence of clay layers which serve to protect the drinking water. Other areas of the bubble have a higher degree of protection because of the filtering layers.

Mitchell-Tapping said he found the thinnest and most inconsistent filtering clay layers in three or four ridge areas which were once ancient barrier islands when much of Florida was covered by the seas.

The area takes up most of the central area of the bubble generally west of the intersection of State Road 46 and First Street. The controversial Excavated Products pit site lies outside the ridge areas.

Memorial services held for Phoenix

MICANOPY — Family and friends gathered under an oak tree on River Phoenix's north Florida ranch here to remember the actor who died this week.

They "spoke, sang and remembered the young man who touched their lives so deeply," said a statement issued Thursday from Susan Patricola, who was his publicist.

Other friends met privately in Los Angeles. No details or names of those who attended the memorials were released.

The star of "Stand by Me," "My Private Idaho" and other films suffered a seizure outside a Los Angeles nightclub early Sunday and died. He was 23.

An autopsy didn't immediately reveal the cause of death. Toxicological and other tests are continuing.

The actor's mother said a public memorial is being planned, most likely in Gainesville, and will be announced shortly. There won't be a funeral.

"Even if they didn't know him, there was something in his acting that was different than anybody else," she said. "And that's because he exposed himself, he was vulnerable. He was not afraid to show who he was."

The eldest of five children, 23-year-old River Phoenix lived at the family's Alachua County home for months at a time, between film projects in California.

Business inspections slide

TALLAHASSEE — Florida officials have virtually stopped doing on-site inspections to verify the qualifications of minority businesses that get special consideration for state contracts, auditors have found.

Such inspections are vital for determining whether the businesses are 51 percent owned by women or members of racial minorities and if such ownership is real, substantial and continuing as required by state law, according to a review released Thursday by the auditor general's office.

State law also requires that a woman or minority group member must have dominant control over management and daily operations, that the business cannot be affiliated with a non-minority company for operational requirements and that it be headquartered in Florida.

The review of the Minority Business Enterprise Assistance Program showed the Department of Management Services conducted only 22 on-site inspections, 12 of them in the Tallahassee area, of 1,608 new applicants during the budget year that ended June 30.

Only one on-site inspection was made during the budget year of 1,179 renewals.

Department officials told the auditors they do not have enough travel money to make routine on-site inspections. It would cost about $68,000 for visits to 25 percent of the applicants, the number state officials said should be seen, but the agency had a travel allotment of only $14,644 last year.

TV personalities real to many viewers

GAINESVILLE — Many people come to believe they have close relationships with people they regularly see on television, especially news anchors, according to a study by a University of Florida graduate student.

Yang Ho Choi, who is studying mass communications at UF's College of Journalism and Communications, questioned 585 people on and off campus about their viewing habits, their attitudes toward television, characters and personalities, and the interaction between television and viewers.

One finding, according to Choi's study, was that lonely adults sometimes feel news anchors and characters portrayed on television shows are their only friends.

Choi said even graduate students studying such "parasocial interaction" can find themselves participating in it.

Choi's got his questionnaire to 303 college students and 282 non-college students, aged from 12 to 79.

Chapin will not seek re-election

ORLANDO — Orange County Chairman Linda Chapin, the area's most powerful elected local official, announced she would not seek re-election.

Chapin, 53, will step down when her term as the county's first "mayor" ends in Nov. 1994, she said Thursday.

She told a gathering at her third State of the County Address that by this time next year she would have accomplished all she set out to do and kept her promises to the voters. She said she wants more time with her family.

County Commissioner Fran Pignone and former Maitland Mayor Darcy Bone have announced their candidacies for the office. Chapin's decision could draw a crowded field, including former Orlando Mayor Bill Frederick.

The position became a nonpartisan one after a 1992 change in the county charter.

Lawmakers work toward compromise on gun bill

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Lawmakers were faced on the last day of their weeklong special session with settling differences on how to best keep guns out of the hands of teen-agers.

Both the Senate and House have passed bills outlawing possession of a gun for anyone under 18 except for hunting and marksmanship.

But there are important differences in the two versions.

For one, the Senate bill calls for spending $14 million to build more detention beds and programs for juveniles soon after their first forays into crime. The House wants to make sure that violent teen-agers are treated as adults, something that could cost $12 million in new prison beds.

Sen. Patsy Ann Kurth, D-Malabar, and

'We're not talking about shoplifting, we're talking about some violent juvenile offenders.'

-GOP Leader Sandra Wortham

Sen. Jim Boezar, D-Sarasota, argued Thursday it would be far wiser to spend money getting rid of the waiting lists that make the juvenile justice system a joke and possibly diverting some teen-agers from a life of crime.

House GOP leader Sandra Wortham of Largo said the Senate weakened the bill.

"We're not talking about shoplifting, we're talking about some violent juvenile offenders," she said.

The Senate also changed another key

House provision that would give judges the right to order parents to do community service along with their armed teen-agers. Instead, the Senate said judges could order parents to undergo training on a first offense and community service on a second offense.

The Senate voted 27-11 to use $2 million from a state trust fund that provides matching funds for politicians for juvenile justice spending. The amendment was offered by Sen. Ander Crenshaw, a Jacksonville Republican who is running for governor.

Before the Senate floor action Thursday night, the key difference between the legislation passed Wednesday by the House and the pending Senate bill was whether community service should be mandatory or left to judges' discretion.

Body of dog returns

By Associated Press

DAVIE — When Lauri Schallenberger's dog Buster died, she took his body to the veterinarian to have him put to rest. The last thing she expected was for her dead dog to turn up on a carport one month later.

But that's what Schallenberger discovered when her veterinarian left a frozen Buster in a black bag on her carport in retaliation for an unpaid bill.

"It's disgusting," Schallenberger said. "The dog was thawing out. How could a responsible vet just toss him in my carport?"

Dr. Andrew Newman had previously agreed to dispose of the 3½-year-old boxer, but changed his mind and returned the dog when he could not collect on a bill.

Schallenberger said she didn't pay the $77 bill for treatment and cancelled her check because Buster died in her home the day after she took him to see Newman.

The dog was treated for diarrhea, but the reason he died is not known.

Schallenberger then brought Buster back to the veterinarian for disposal.

Newman agreed to let her just return the dog's medication rather than charge the usual fee for that service. But the dog was never cremated.

Newman, a veterinarian in Broward County since 1987, kept the dog frozen for a month, hoping to resolve the debt after he learned Schallenberger stopped payment on the check.

"She robbed me of my services, she robbed me of my time," Newman said on Thursday. "I went to her house to get the money or return the animal. I did not have to dispose of her material. Let her call Animal Control."

Schallenberger called police after the dog was left outside her mobile home. The police report states no crime occurred, and the case is considered a civil matter.

Grand jury blasts HRS in abuse cases

By Associated Press

ORLANDO — A grand jury accused Florida's social service agency of poorly investigating early warning signs in fatal child-abuse cases and hiding potentially damaging records from prosecutors.

The Orange County grand jury indicted one but recommended several ways the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services should improve its child-abuse investigations and record handling.

"I've got serious concerns about what happened," HRS Secretary Jim Towey said after the report was issued Thursday.

"I think they (jurors) were fair, and I think they pointed out some serious problems that affect Florida's children. Whatever the grand jury says, we are responsible to do better, we are going to do better."

Orlando's HRS district was investigated after a former HRS abuse investigator alleged her bosses ordered her to withhold evidence from state attorneys in the deaths of two young boys in separate cases.

The documents withheld dealt with HRS handling of original complaints that the children were being abused by their stepfathers.

"If they (HRS) had intervened, there stands a chance the children would still be alive," said prosecutor Robin Wilkinson, who presented evidence to the grand jury.

The grand jury inquiry eventually broadened to include several more abuse cases.

The jurors finally addressed several abuse cases involving children in foster care. HRS licenses foster-care homes, and the jurors said the agency did not report some abuse cases. One 11-month-old foster child in a body cast was found to have live maggots, urine, feces and sperm inside the cast but a judge in her case was never told, the report said.

The grand jurors met five times since April to take testimony from current and former HRS workers, court officials and the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, which investigated the agency.

College students recruited to rate violence in TV shows

By MARILYNN WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

FARGO, N.D. — A slap across the face is violent, but not life-threatening. Amy Hendrickson gives it an "A."

Two men are shot. Deadly force gets "C's."

Hendrickson is one of 120 Concordia College students who volunteered to rate violence on television during a week's worth of prime-time programming as part of a study for a U.S. senator.

It is a revealing exercise. "I thought, 'How many violent acts probably occur in half an hour? Oh, probably one, when somebody gets blown away,'" said Hendrickson, 20.

She is tuned in to a CBS made-for-television movie, "River of Rage." The heroine, played by Victoria Principal, is on a rafting trip with her boyfriend.

At the 20-minute mark, the rafters are set upon by a pack of drug-dealing desperados. The boyfriend and river guide are shot to death. The heroine is abducted, slapped around, then stalked through the desert by a bowhunter.

That's C, C, B, A, C.

By the end of the hour, Hendrickson has counted 15 acts of violence. She puts down her pencil.

"I didn't realize how much I overlooked," she said.

Concordia, across the state line from Fargo in Moorhead, Minn., is conducting the study for Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., sponsor of a bill that would require the Federal Communications Commission to issue a quarterly report card on TV violence.

Each volunteer rated a three-hour segment of programs taped between Sept. 28 and Oct. 4. The ratings were completed Tuesday and sample report cards are expected within two months.

"I hope this study will demonstrate that it can be done and that it should be done," Dorgan said.

At a Senate hearing Oct. 20, Attorney General Janet Reno warned that the government will intervene if the TV industry doesn't take steps to curb violence on television.

The Concordia study defines violence as the "deliberate and hostile use of overt force by one individual against another," a standard set by the National Coalition on Television Violence.

An "A" covers aggression that inflicts minor or momentary pain: pushing, grabbing, spanking, spitting, mild slapping.

A "B" is for stronger violence that still lacks deadly force.

A "C" is for acts in which a character clearly intends to kill, maim or incapacitate. Shooting, strangling, stabbing, poisoning, bombing, hanging, torture and rape are covered.

Martin Franks, Washington vice president for CBS, said Dorgan's bill and all the other anti-violence legislation pending before Congress have the same problem: They would require subjective judgments about what is violent.

"Define violence," said Franks, recalling the Senate hearing, during which the lawmakers themselves could not agree on a definition.

Hendrickson, who lives in Melrose, Minn., said she volunteered "because in no way, shape or form do I want censorship in television or any media. But I don't think there's anything wrong with a rating system."

"The feedback that's coming back from students was that they hadn't really watched television with their eyes open," said psychology professor Mark Covey, coordinator of the project.

CBS' Franks said Dorgan's bill would unfairly target advertiser-supported television.

"If advertisers were intimidated into not showing what was interpreted as objectionable programming, that may get it off the networks," he said. "Does it get it off the independent channels or cable? No."

But Covey said the industry can't have it both ways.

"On the one hand they're saying to sponsors, 'Buy time on this show, because people will watch it,'" he said. "They are trying to show television as an effective medium for changing behavior, that is, getting people to buy products."

"On the other hand, the industry is saying, 'There isn't that much effect to what we show'."

Flushing out alleged drug dealers

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Members of the City/County Investigative Bureau made two arrests Wednesday night, in connection with drug possession and cultivation. The men have already been released from the John E. Polk Correctional Facility after posting $3000 bond each.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, "Marijuana plants were spotted from a helicopter in the afternoon."

Armed with a warrant, CCIB agents raided the house at 2100 E. Triangle Street, between Longwood and Altamonte Springs, and discovered three plants hidden in a septic tank. Officers said they also uncovered what later proved to be both marijuana and cocaine in the home.

Arrested were Rodney Raymond Struble, 45, and his son, Vern Struble, 20.

They were charged with possession of a controlled substance, marijuana; possession of a controlled substance, cocaine; cultivation of marijuana; and destruction of evidence.

Kids with guns: stronger laws

Lawmakers in Tallahassee are working on legislation which would ban youngsters under 18 from having a gun. If the bill is enacted, it calls for a punishment of only 100 hours community service.

The measure has cleared the Florida House, with action now underway in the Senate. The governor says he will review the measure in February before making any decisions.

We agree with some of the objections voiced in legislative discussions. The punishment is not severe enough. It's another example of allowing someone to go beyond the law with nothing more than a slap on the wrist. It will accomplish nothing.

If there are difficulties in the bill being proposed for consideration, they should be remedied.

What other purpose would a teenager have in carrying a firearm, than an intent to commit a crime. Carrying one for self protection is no excuse. It may eventually lead to a shooting.

Even in criminal activity which does not involve firearms, our laws are too lenient. Two teens, age 18 and 16 were arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies on Oct. 31 in connection with the theft of a vehicle. Deputies said records indicate the 16-year old had been arrested over 20 times in the past for various crimes.

Lawmakers admit Florida is being cast as a 20th century version of the lawless Wild West. Until legislation is enacted to punish criminals more severely, and unless law enforcement receives backing by the courts, nothing will change. It will only get worse.

This is a problem which everyone realizes but few try to resolve. How long will we allow the excuse of no room in the jails to be the reason for letting criminals roam our streets?

It's time for our legislators and the people of Florida to move beyond the fretting and stewing stage and do something.

We urge the members of our legislature, courts, and law enforcement agencies to immediately launch an all-out attack against teen crime. Restrictions against possession of a firearm is a good starting point.

Perhaps a reference to our situation resembling the Wild West is too mild. In the olden days, parents kept their youngsters under control. Only adults toted a six-gun.

We've gone beyond that stage. It's time to do something. When we discuss crime and punishment, let's work on bringing back the meaning of "punishment" as something to be feared.

Senior health care

At the "Over 50" Club meeting of Oct. 26 at the Sanford Senior Center, 50 signatures were obtained supporting a universal, portable (transferable to other plants), cost-effective health system having as a controlling feature an identification (ID) U.S. "health" card. The ID number based on Social Security number or precursor ID (infants) would be useful for obtaining medical services, drugs, equipment, etc. from supplier(s) chosen by U.S. citizens holding said ID card, with safeguards for proper usage.

This system would inhibit illegal use, fraud and wrongful conversion of card by holder and/or the supplier by: photograph or coded dental/medical record, voice print (digital), fingerprints (actual), or digital-coded, as well as individuals' Social Security number and Social Security records or status.

It would emphasize disease prevention to help control cost of related subsequent disabling disease.

It would separate, by law and budget, disabled persons and benefits from the Social Security elderly pension insurance benefits and Medicare A and B benefits.

It would control direct costs, overhead managerial and bookkeeping by using universal forms, computer software, computer hardware compatible systems.

It would lessen the cost-discrimination against the elderly relative to cuts in Medicare benefits, Social Security cost-of-living (COLA) increments, deductibility level necessary before benefits accrue, increases in federal income taxes on, and basic monthly deductions from, Social Security, and uneven (discriminatory) treatment of elderly within the Social Security and Medicare benefit systems; and Maintain a level of financial opportunity for the elderly and protect the Social Security trust fund and current receipts therefore from invasion by the federal government for other than the Social Security health component for Medicare A and B, and the remainder for the Social Security monthly pension for the elderly.

Sisterhood surrendered at the polls

"If you live in a country which is run by a committee," sociologist William Graham Sumner once observed, "make sure you're on the committee."

In Virginia, a woman gubernatorial candidate was trying to get on the committee. Women voters, studiously neutral or just plain antagonistic, helped to keep her off the committee.

Virginia Democrat May Sue Terry lost her bid for governor Tuesday. She seemed destined to replicate Canadian voters' humiliating rejection of incumbent Kim Campbell, that nation's first woman prime minister.

Campbell almost led pipered her Progressive Conservative party into a watery grave. Voters reduced the PC's legislative seats from 175 to 21. Arrogant and insensitive beyond believability, Campbell campaigned as if she didn't owe anything to anyone.

Her defeat raises two questions about women candidates:

- 1) Is success more likely if they run gender-neutral campaigns, rather than gender-specific campaigns?
- 2) If a woman candidate does not show any particular empathy for women, should women return the favor by voting against her?

The dilemma for women voters begins with their accelerated movement into mainstream political offices. As that happens, a corresponding force of gender-neutral scrutiny will judge them.

But how will women ever achieve political parity if they succumb to the myth that they must play the electoral game on a meritocratic playing field. I say "myth" because a multicultural democracy is not, never has been, and never will be a political and educational meritocracy.

In Virginia Terry was defeated, after having run significantly ahead in polls a month ago.

Her defeat raises two questions about women candidates.

Republican George F. Allen led Terry, 53 to 39 in polls prior to the election.

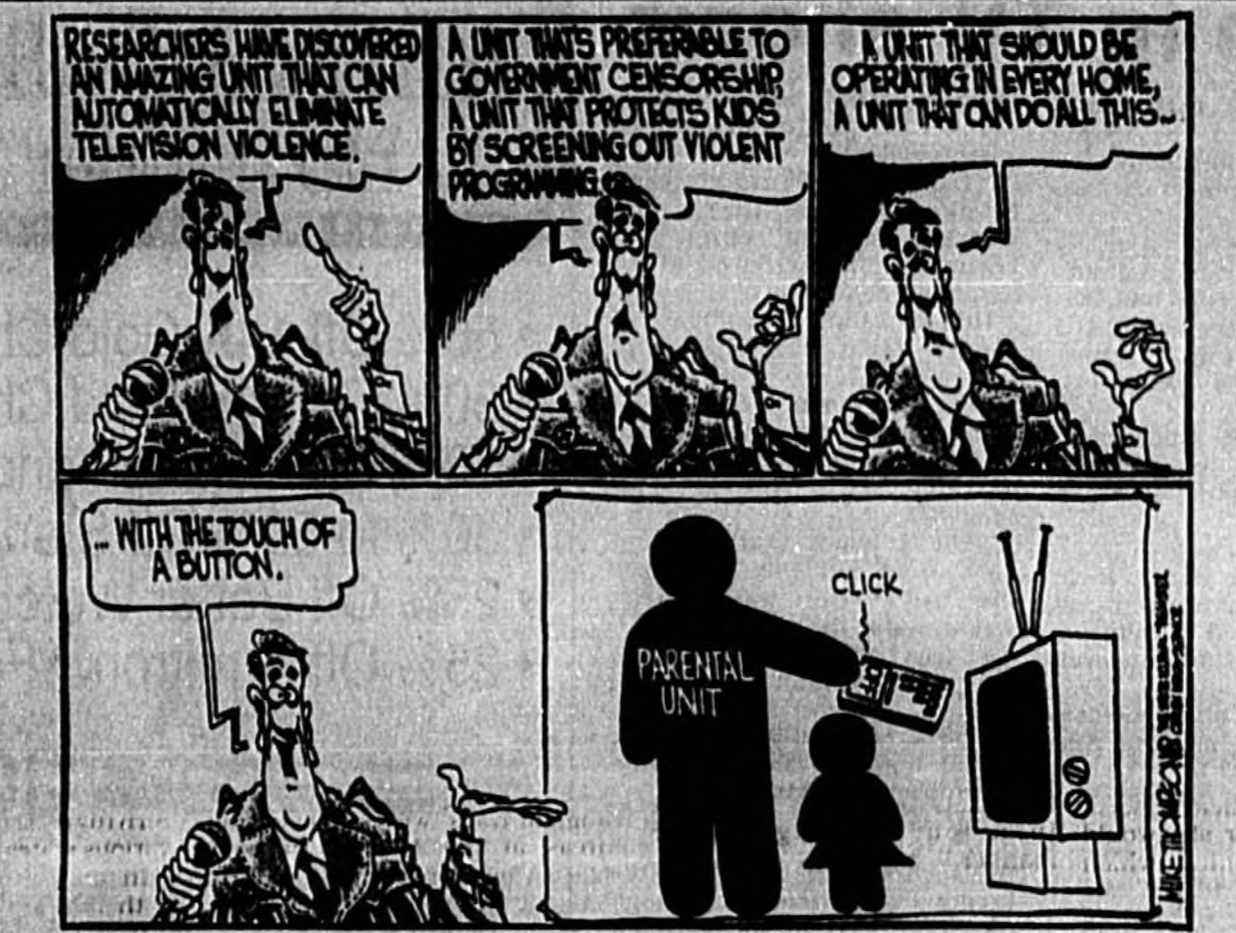

This gets back to the role of gender, especially among women voters. Women voters don't need advice from males on how to orchestrate their agenda. But as a black male deeply involved in black politics for 35 years as a congressional aide, campaign manager, black-power activist and textbook author, I also can cite American history to authenticate bloc voting as an effective catalyst.

Without bloc voting, neither blacks, Hispanics, Irish, Italians, Jews nor Poles would have risen to their present plateau of political power.

Without a national mobilization of women suffragettes, America would never have passed the 19th Amendment.

But as both blacks and women move closer to their political destinations, both are tempted to abandon the strategies that brought them there.

It's a dilemma because the Margaret Thatchers, the Kim Campbells and the Jeanne Kirkpatrick are as antagonistic to the progress of American diversity as the Ronald Reagans, the Orrin Hatches and the Jesse Helmses.

Thatcher lashes out in memoirs

WASHINGTON — Former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's memoirs have been published in London. Surprising no one, they show her to be bitter about the way her Conservative Party turned its back on her. Her writings also reveal some fascinating insights into recent world events.

Thatcher says that her years at 10 Downing Street came to an end because she was betrayed by friends and allies. She describes herself as "sick at heart" over what she interprets as nothing less than a cabinet coup.

In November 1990 her popularity rating hit rock bottom. She was challenged for the leadership of the conservatives by Michael Heseltine, and on the first ballot came within two votes of defeating him. But since she was short of a majority, a second ballot was necessary.

She called her cabinet together and was shocked to hear that, while each said they personally continued to support her, none thought she could win. She asked John Major, who ended up as her successor to sign her nomination petition for the second ballot. When he hesitated, she knew all was lost.

"I could have resisted the opposition of opponents and potential rivals and even respected them for it," Thatcher writes. "But what grieved me was the desertion of those I had always considered friends and allies and the weasel words whereby they had transmuted their betrayal into concern for my fate."

One of the most revealing sections of the book details Thatcher's attempts to derail — or at least slow — German reunification, and how George Bush prevented her plan from succeeding.

Thatcher was always opposed to the European Community, fearful that Britain's rivals on the continent would use economic union to freeze Britain out. But she was reluctantly forced to go along with the formation of the EC, although she did so dragging her heels every inch of the way.

However, the idea of German reunification was just too much. She had a visceral disregard for German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, and she believed that a reunified Germany would totally dominate the EC to Britain's detriment.

The German character, she writes "swerves unpredictably between aggression and self-doubt." As for a reunified Germany, "It would simply be too much and too powerful... and is a destabilizing rather than a stabilizing force in Europe."

She figured her best ally in blocking reunification would be French President Francois Mitterrand. They met three times privately in Strasbourg and Paris, and Thatcher thought she had a deal.

The plan was for the two to approach Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to try to get the Soviets to demand a plebiscite in East Germany before allowing reunification. Thatcher hoped that East Germany would emerge as a separate, independent country. Even if this did not happen, she thought a plebiscite would at least slow down the process for a number of years.

She says Mitterrand was all for the effort, and then he double-crossed her. Instead, France entered into a bilateral economic agreement with Germany, and Mitterrand suddenly became an outspoken proponent of reunification.

Says Thatcher in her book: "He (Mitterrand) made the wrong decision for France. Moreover, his failure to match private words with public deeds also increased my difficulties."

But she was not done. She figured that if George Bush would throw U.S. weight behind slowing down German reunification, Gorbachev would have no choice but to agree. On Nov. 10 the Berlin Wall fell, and Kohl called her to say that he was moving forward quickly with reunification efforts. So she called Bush and he agreed to meet her at Camp David on Nov. 24.

The meeting did not go well. She says had it still been Ronald Reagan who she was dealing with, she believes the United States would have helped her effort. But she was not dealing with Reagan.

"I found myself dealing with an administration which saw Germany as its main European partner... I left feeling I could no longer rely as before on American cooperation."

Over the next weeks, Kohl simply outmaneuvered her. He promised Gorbachev much-needed hard currency to pay for the removal of Soviet troops from East Germany. To Bush, Kohl promised a means of allowing the United States to close many of its expensive European military bases.

In the end, her effort to stop reunification was an "unambiguous failure." But, she says, she still believes she was right and she has no regrets for having made the attempt.

Thatcher says that her years at 10 Downing Street came to an end because she was betrayed by friends and allies.

Drug war mess sends message

Optimism, F. Scott Fitzgerald once wrote, is the content of small men in high places.

Maybe that explains why the politicians keep pumping money into the war on drugs. No government program has failed more abysmally, yet we push on with it, year after year. Nothing we have tried has worked. Planes, ships, dope-sniffing dogs, police, prisons — nothing works. The drug war is a catastrophe.

Drug use? Even as measured by the government's fatuous surveys, the late 80s decline in drug use has bottomed out. Heroin use is on the increase and more young people are using marijuana, cocaine, crack, LSD and a sort of hallucinogens.

The criminal justice system? The criminal justice system is devoting so much of its resources and attention to drug offenses (that it is on the fast track to collapse," said Neal Sonnett, chairman of the American Bar Association's criminal justice section, last February.

Prisons? The number of adults imprisoned for drug offenses soared 327 percent from 1986 to 1991. Thanks to lengthy mandatory sentences for drug offenders, violent criminals are being turned out to make room for them.

And the killing? My God, the killing. Within an hour's drive of my home in the Maryland suburbs of Washington, about 1,000 human beings are murdered each year. As I write these words, 382 people have been slain since the first of January in the nation's capital. At least half of all homicides, maybe more, are drug related. If current trends continue, the Senate Judiciary Committee has estimated, more than 250,000 Americans will die in drug-related murders in this decade.

During the Bush administration's war on drugs, we spent $32 billion trying to purge the scourge. And what did we get for our money? Drugs flooded the streets, the criminal justice system went to hell and nearly 80,000 people were murdered.

Isn't it time we tried something else? Personally, I'd like to hear a robust national debate on the advantages and disadvantages of decriminalizing drugs. I think such a system would take the profit out of drug dealing and thereby halve the murder rate and maybe even revive our desolated cities.

I see a system in which marijuana and diluted forms of cocaine would be legal. Hard drugs would be decriminalized and addicts treated as medical patients. The potency of drugs would be regulated, the product taxed, sellers licensed, advertising forbidden, sales to minors outlawed. I believe black market prices would be undercut a hundredfold, traffickers would go out of business and drug-related crime would dissipate.

I can even see the crack cocaine market drying up. With safer drugs legally available at a fraction of the price, who would use it? Kids? Would the South American cartels stay in business to service adolescents? Where are the bootleggers who exist to supply underage drinkers?

Baltimore Sun columnist Michael Olesker once asked a drug dealer who was raking in $350,000 a year how decriminalization would affect him. "It would put me out of business," the dealer said. "When?" asked Olesker. "Tomorrow," said the dealer.

In 1928, with the nation in the throes of an unprecedented crime wave, thanks largely to the ban on booze, President Herbert Hoover created the Wickersham Commission to study how prohibition might be better enforced. Most of the commissioners concluded prohibition was a failure and ought to be abolished.

And the killing? My God, the killing.

Help the elderly

Stop for a moment and consider what it must be like to be elderly, frail and alone, these are the facts of life for many of Seminole County's citizens.

Meals on Wheels helps these seniors by providing hot meals five days a week. The food is delivered by volunteers who not only provide nourishment but also human contact, for some clients the Meals on Wheels driver is the only person they will see or talk to all day.

Better Living for Seniors administers the program throughout Seminole County. There are several opening for drivers in the Sanford area. Substitute drivers are also needed to fill in for regular route drivers.

It takes an hour, once a week to drive a meal route. Anyone interested in need of more information, please call 831-1831.

Judge candidates narrow

Gov. Lawton Chiles will pick one of three Seminole County attorneys nominated to complete the unexpired term of retiring Circuit Judge Robert McGregor.

Sanford attorney Ned N. Julian Jr., Kenneth V. Bevan and Thomas G. Freeman, both of Altamonte Springs were selected by the Eighteenth Circuit Judicial Nominating Commission for consideration by the governor. The Eighteenth Circuit includes Seminole and Divard counties.

Twelve men applied for the judgeship. After six applicants were interviewed Thursday in Sanford City Hall, the three men were chosen.

Chiles will select McGregor's replacement in 60 days. The new judge will take over when McGregor retires in February and will serve through 1994.

In order to retain the post, the judge appointee must seek election to the six-year term in November, 1994.

Flute reported stolen was misplaced

Sanford Middle School officials stated that a flute and case that were reported stolen from the school on Friday have been recovered.

They said that the owner of the flute had misplaced the instrument, valued at over $500. It was found at the school earlier this week.

There was no damage to the instrument or the case. Owner and instrument have been reunited and are making beautiful music together once again.

agreement to propose to the commission. The agreement would release the commission and McFellin from his contract adding that neither party would sue the other. An undisclosed severance payment is also part of the proposal.

At various times throughout the year, Mayor Paul Lovstrand and commissioner Steve Miller had both indicated they had lost confidence in the administrator. However, former commissioners Rex Anderson, Fred Pearl and Harvey Smerilason supported McFellin. A majority vote is necessary to fire McFellin.

McFellin has been the Longwood administrator about a year and a half.

In pre-election interviews, newly elected commissioners Annamarie Vaeza and Iris Benson both said they would like to work with the administrator before making any decision on removing him. Also elected, Ron Sargent said he would like to see what other candidates were available.

McFellin was chosen from over 200 applicants as administrator. A search committee narrowed the list of candidates to eight and the city commission cut the list of finalists to five.

In other city business, McFellin described a reported shoving incident between the city finance director and purchasing director "much ado about nothing."

McFellin placed finance director Dan McNutt on paid leave after an Oct. 7 incident with purchasing director Rhonda Ledford.

"I don't want to lose a valuable employee," McNutt said, referring to McNutt. McFellin placed McNutt on leave pending an investigation of the incident.

Thursday, Ledford filed a battery complaint against McNutt.

The incident stemmed from the finance department computers being taken off line by Ledford's authorization allegedly without informing computer users.

McNutt and witnesses said the finance director went to Ledford's office loudly complaining about the incident. When Ledford later went to McNutt's office to discuss the matter, he "yelled in a loud and aggressive manner," according to the report.

Further, the report states, McNutt approached Ledford "in a threatening manner" and shoved her, telling her to leave. Ledford's foot apparently was stuck when McNutt slammed the door.

McFellin said the disciplinary action was taken against McNutt over the shoving incident because if he hadn't and a similar incident happened again, the city would be open to liability.

McNutt was suspended for three weeks and a psychological evaluation was done to see whether or not it would be a recurring incident. McNutt, 54, who has been with the city since January 1992, returned to work Monday. He is undergoing stress counseling.

Young children scampered after candy that was thrown from some of the cars and floats. Older ones cheered for their friends or danced alongside the crowd.

Superleague World Championship racing is slated to start at 1 p.m. Sunday, with racing expected to last until possibly 5 p.m. on both days.

The course is a one-mile rectangular track, with good viewing areas at the Monroe Harbor Marina waterfront area, and the Lake Monroe Lakefront as far east as the N. Sanford Avenue intersection.

Dickey tersely told assistant state attorney Meryl Allawas she cited the wrong rule in requesting Brewster's bond be revoked.

Brewster was arrested last week for carrying a concealed firearm.

Allawas told the court that Brewster's arrest raised questions about his conduct and the safety of the community. In lieu of revoking bond, Allawas requested the court impose a strict curfew and electronic monitoring of Brewster.

"I'm tired of representatives of Mr. (Norm) Wolfinger's office coming in here, trying to revoke people's bonds because they are a threat to the community," Dickey admonished. "If you want a bond revoked, file it under the right statute."

Judge Dickey said he faced similar situations many times as a county court judge.

He added if the legislature wants to pass a law revoking the schools sent representatives to the event. Sheriff Don Fellingner school board members Jeanne Morris and Larry Strickler and Commissioner Bob Thomas also joined in the celebration.

Following the parade, Magnolia Square exploded with the deafening cheers of the Seminole faithful. The cheers, punctuated by renditions of the alma mater and other spirited songs played by the marching band, grew to a crescendo as the Fighting Seminole football team vowed to squash the opposition at tonight's game against the Leesburg Yellowjackets.

School officials named the Interact Club, the sophomore class and the freshman class entries as the top three floats in the parade.

Following tonight's 7 p.m. gridiron clash, there will be a Homecoming dance at the Sanford Civic Center.

Heading the entry list is Todd Bowden, of Monrovia, Cal., and his European counterpart, Mike Ashton, CPRA Champion, of London, England. In a field of possibly as many as 25 top names in racing, several entries are from Florida.

They include Stew Bakley of Naples, Kim Jernigan of Tampa, Steve Johns of Crystal River, Jack Withrow of St. Petersburg, and Larry Miller of Orlando.

Other racers have come to Sanford from Mexico and various states across the nation. In addition to the big boats, with a reach-and-sustain speed of 110 miles per hour, the event will also include two invitational classes. The SST 60 is a mid-range powerboat with an average speed of 80 to 90 mph, and formula 50, a new entry-level class with speeds of 75 to 85 mph.

The Sanford event is the 1993 International Powerboat Super League World Final. After six successful years of racing in England, owners of each series agreed to combine forces, form the super-league, and present one of the premier powerboat races of 1993, the World Finals.

Through efforts of race producers Sherron and Sam Winer, Sanford was chosen as the site, over several other locations in the nation.

Deen added, "this car was doing nothing wrong. It was driving around the streets."

After the hearing, Allawas said the judge has a view of the rule he wants followed and although the state has a different view, she added, "he's the judge."

Prior to the bond hearing, Dickey ruled testimony relating to the history of the relationship between Brewster and the youth he is charged with molesting over a two year period will be allowed at the trial. Although the first eight counts against Brewster were dismissed because the statute of limitations had expired on prosecuting them, information about the period in question is admissible.

Brewster is charged with molesting a police Explorer between 1987 and 1989, starting when the youth was 15. The boy was a student at Lakeview Middle School when he met Brewster, who was the school resource officer.

called for a ban on all borrow pits in the high recharge areas of the bubble. Rich said there was too great a risk of contamination getting into the pit, then traveling unfiltered into the drinking water supply. No one supported his call for a vote.

Hal Wilkening of the water district said the task force had already recommended the district develop special rules for borrow pits in the 25-square-mile bubble area. Wilkening said those rules will include special requirements for those areas where there are no protective clay layers.

"We may require a 50-foot separation between the bottom of the excavation and the aquifer which would effectively eliminate future pits in those areas," said Wilkening.

In other recommendations, the task force approved most of recommendations proposed by Rodney Dehan of the Department of Environmental Protection. The regulations, if approved, would require the future expansion of the county dump to have a plastic liner. The dump does not have such a layer, but county officials say the 40- to 50-foot clay layer under it is adequate protection. Other recommendations would require industrial and domestic waste pipelines to meet the highest level of leak-prevention construction and require a higher standard for stormwater systems.

scheming to commit fraud against senior citizens," he said.

Within the last month, he reported, a California man allegedly called a local woman and told her she had won a $50,075 prize and that she could collect the award if she would pay him $5,000 in taxes owed on the money.

A suspicious bank teller alerted police and investigators in San Jose, California arrested James Haggard, who will be extradited to Seminole County to face charges.

Another man called, a local woman and told her she would be eligible for a contest which had a prize of $50,000 if she would donate $1,000 to a charity called Operation Life.

An investigation revealed there is no such charitable organization and the woman did not send her money.

"But there are so many older people who do fall victim to these kinds of schemes," he said. "And too often they are too embarrassed to tell anyone what has happened or they are afraid their family will think they are incompetent."

Ealling believes Triad will begin to address the education of seniors to better equip them to defend themselves against crime of all sorts.

Sue Allbee, director of the Area Agency on Aging of Central Florida, said she looks forward to the program taking effect.

"We need something like this to help protect the elderly in our community," she said.

Senate endorses $22.2 billion anti-crime plan

By LAWRENCE L. KRUTSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — In an unaccustomed display of bipartisan unity, the Senate is embracing a $22.2 billion plan to build new jails and recruit 100,000 police officers for the war against violent crime.

The anti-crime blueprint endorsed in a 94-4 roll call late Thursday night calls for the construction of a $3 billion nationwide chain of regional prisons to house violent criminals and for spending $1 billion on correctional boot camps and other facilities for lesser offenders.

"I can say this by far and away the most significant federal effort to deal with violent crime in America that has ever been undertaken in the U.S. Senate," said Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Democrats, eager to avoid being portrayed as soft on crime, hailed the arrangement, which was crafted by Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert Byrd, D-W.Va. in the form of an amendment to a still-pending crime bill.

The amendment's centerpiece is an innovative financing mechanism that would earmark for the anti-crime fight the billions of dollars the Clinton administration hopes to save by eliminating 250,000 federal jobs over the next five years.

The money would be shifted to a new Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund and made available to congressional appropriators to pay for the police-recruitment and prison-building programs.

Among the supporters of the Senate agreement: Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, the GOP floor manager of the crime bill, Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine.

The Byrd amendment would earmark $12.2 billion to fully finance the programs of the original and less ambitious crime bill, which envisioned recruiting 60,000 new police officers.

It would boost financing by $3.7 billion to add 40,000 state and local law enforcement officers, thus reaching the 100,000 total originally sought by President Clinton.

The House has approved a separate measure that would permit states and cities to hire 50,000 new police officers.

The Senate amendment also calls for authorizing these other programs:

— $3 billion to build and operate the regional prison system.

— $1 billion to build jails, correctional boot camps and other minimum security state and local facilities.

— $500 million to build and operate secure institutions to house violent juveniles.

— $1.8 billion to finance the Violence Against Women Act, a law to combat domestic violence.

"This is real and it is such a quantum leap from where we were a few hours ago that you have to pinch yourself," said Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., who helped engineer the deal.

Although the Senate endorsed the Byrd amendment overwhelmingly, it left a few senators unhappy.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., voted against the plan, saying he adamantly opposed spending $3 billion on more prisons.

"As we have put more people into prisons our crime rate has grown," Simon said. "That is true because our prisons to a large degree are schools for crime."

But many Republicans insisted that increasing prison space and assuring that convicts serve all or most of the terms to which they are sentenced will remove wrongdoers from the streets and dramatically reduce the crime rate.

Joining Simon in voting against the amendment were Sens. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore.; Harlan Mathews, D-Tenn. and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I. Not voting were Sens. David Durenberger, R-Minn. and Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

On the other side of the Capitol, the House Judiciary Committee voted 23-12 to send the Brady gun bill to the House floor for action next Wednesday.

Named for James Brady, the former presidential press secretary shot in the head during the 1981 assassination attempt on President Reagan, the bill requires a five-business-day waiting period and a background check on would-be handgun buyers.

However, it would phase out as criminal records became computerized and instantly accessible. At that point, instant checks would be required before purchases of both handguns and long guns.

Nurses say when they got Met, they got duped

By JAMES MARTINEZ Associated Press Writer

TAMPA — When Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. offered a "retirement plan" to thousands of nurses around the country, its agents delivered a carefully scripted pitch and sent mailings with pictures of Snoopy.

Nowhere in all the talk of annuities and pensions was there any mention of what the company was really selling — life insurance.

"I grew up with Snoopy," said Joyce Armbruster, a Largo nurse who says she was duped and is suing MetLife. "I never thought Snoopy would do this."

The misrepresentation of high-commission, whole life insurance policies as savings vehicles is common, industry officials say. But seldom has the practice been as widespread as in the case of MetLife.

MetLife has offered to refund premiums to 18,000 people in 37 states who may have been misled when they bought such policies through the company's Tampa office.

Florida insurance regulators, who are investigating MetLife's sales practices, say $20 million in premiums have been put into those policies since 1987.

Other states — including Pennsylvania, Texas and North Carolina — are also looking into complaints from customers of the New York-based company.

"We're considering getting a toll-free number because of all the people we're hearing from," said Judy Hoyer, a Tampa lawyer. Her firm sued MetLife on behalf of two nurses and is seeking to make the case a class-action lawsuit.

MetLife, the nation's largest life insurance company with more than $1 trillion worth of policies in force, operated a glorified telemarketing scam out of its 100-member Tampa district sales office, Hoyer said.

The company mailed letters to nurses promoting a "new concept in retirement planning."

Nurses who returned a tear-off portion were either called or visited by agents who had memorized an 11-page, 7,000-word script.

While the document discusses adherence to insurance laws in the creation of a guaranteed program, it refers to "deposits" rather than premiums and "investments" rather than insurance.

The distinction is important: People who thought they were buying high-interest retirement accounts were led to believe their money was earning interest from the first payment and could be withdrawn at any time.

But with most whole life insurance policies, the first year or two of payments go toward commissions and administrative expenses.

Whole-life policies combine lifetime insurance with an investment fund that determines how fast the value of the policy grows. Policyholders can borrow against the policy's cash value amount or cancel it and receive the cash.

Raider men host tourney; SCC women open season

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole Community College Health and Physical Education Center will be a busy place this weekend, with Coach Bernard Merthie's men's squad hosting the two-night Raider Tournament and Coach Ileana Gallagher's women's team seeing their first action of the season.

The men's team got off to a good start this past Tuesday night as it trimmed visiting Pasco-Hernando Community College from New Port Richey, 74-69, behind the trio of freshman Mike Sheppard (18 points), Lyman graduate Bruce Philpott (14 points) and Don Tillman (11 points). They will look to keep building momentum toward a winning season against a stellar field of Florida Junior College talent.

Tonight at 6 p.m., Broward Community College from Ft. Lauderdale will take on Gulf Coast Community College from Panama City and, at 8 p.m., the Raiders will host always tough Brevard Community College from Cocoa.

The loser's of tonight's games will meet in a consolation contest at 6 p.m. Saturday, with Friday's winners meeting for the championship at 8 p.m.

Gallagher and new assistant Ken Patrick, who has coached at Florida Community College at Jacksonville and the University of Miami, will get their first look at a tall but inexperienced group when the women host Broward Community College at 4 p.m. Saturday, prior to the men's doubleheader.

Among the players expected to help the Raiders are Sanford's 6-foot, 2-inch Sheri Reddicks, who was a star at Seminole High School a few years ago, and a pair of young ladies from Finland, 6-foot, 2-inch Irina Haltonen and 6-foot, 1-inch Paivi Koivisto.

Justin Vantek and the rest of the Lake Brantley Patriots can secure their second 5A-District 4 championship in three years with a win over the Deltona Wolves tonight.

Tribe, Patriots in district clinchers

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — Tonight could be the night. There will be four homecomings on tonight's live game Seminole County high school football schedule. But the crowning of kings and queens will take a backseat to what could happen in Sanford and Altamonte Springs.

Both Seminole and Lake Brantley will claim home field advantage in the first round of the state playoffs if they can win their games tonight.

The Tribe (6-2, 2-0) will host Leesburg (3-6, 1-1) in the final Class 4A District 4 game of the year at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium while the Patriots (6-2, 5-1) will welcome Deltona (5-3, 1-3) to Tom Storey Field for a Class 5A District 5 contest.

Also on tonight's schedule are Spruce Creek (5-3, 3-2) at Lyman (2-6, 2-1), Mainland (1-7, 1-6) vs. Lake Howell (4-4, 4-2) at Richard E. Evans Stadium and Lake Mary (1-7, 1-6) vs. Oviedo (3-5, 3-3) at John Courter Field.

Seminole, Lake Brantley, Lake Howell, and Oviedo all will be celebrating their homecomings this evening. All five games are set for a 7:30 p.m. start.

A Seminole win would give it the district championship while Cypress Creek (5-3, 2-1) would earn the second state playoff spot. A Tribe loss would throw the district into a Kansas tie-breaker between Seminole, Cypress Creek and Leesburg for the two playoff berths.

A Lake Brantley victory would ensure the Patriots of finishing no worse than 6-2 in the district (they finish with Lyman next week). And while both Spruce Creek and Lake Howell only have two losses each, Lake Brantley holds wins over both.

Spruce Creek can clinch a playoff berth by beating Lyman.

Insurance World gains on crown

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Insurance World moved a win closer to the championship in the Sanford Recreation Senior Girls Slowpitch Softball League at Fort Mellon Park, defeating Hirsch Chiropractic 16-13 Thursday night.

Second-place John's Small Engine Equipment kept pace with a forfeit win over Conklin, Porter and Holmes.

Insurance World (6-1) leads John's Small Engine Equipment (4-2), Hirsch Chiropractic (2-5) and Conklin, Porter and Holmes (1-5).

After taking a week off because of the Golden Age Games, the league will resume play on Thursday, Nov. 18, when John's Small Engine Equipment plays Insurance World at 6 p.m. and Hirsch Chiropractic faces Conklin, Porter and Holmes at 7 p.m.

Race gets tighter at Pinehurst

Holidays are special times

Bring out the silver; tips to clean and protect

As the holidays approach, even families who seldom fuss have the urge to make things special. All over the country fine silver is making its way out of drawers and closets to add a festive note to holiday meals. After some of the phone calls I've received, Seminole County is no different.

Whether the silver is new or of vintage quality, some simple care is all that is needed to bring out its inherent beauty. Regardless of how often silver is used, it should be polished a minimum of once or twice a year. Using a soft cloth or an all-natural soap, apply a liquid or paste polish that is specifically recommended for silver. Rub gently and evenly to remove dirt and tarnish, then rinse in warm water. If the piece will be used for eating or serving food, hand wash it in a solution of liquid hand dishwashing detergent and warm water, then rinse thoroughly. To eliminate the water residue that can cause dark spots, hand dry with a clean, soft cloth. To create more sheen, buff each piece with another clean, soft cloth.

When it comes to keeping silver shiny, careful storage or frequent use, rather than frequent polishing, is the key. Because polishing removes a layer of silver, it should not be done too often, especially for silver-plated items. Frequent use helps reduce tarnish build-up and enhances the protective, mellow surface finish (patina) that develops with age and use. Consider rotating flatware so all pieces wear evenly and develop a similar patina.

CONSUMER FOCUS

Tarnish is caused by exposure to sulphur and chloride salts. These two culprits are found in many things, including plastic, egg yolks, olives, citrus fruit, vinegar, flowers, natural gas, sea salt and sea air, rubber, perspiration and air pollution. Beware of letting food sit too long on silver dishes...and, if the silver is not being used frequently, store it safely and properly.

To store silver, wrap it in flannel or acid-free tissue paper, then place it in a plastic bag. To help keep it tarnish-free, force the air out of the bag, avoid contact between the plastic and the silver and do not use rubber bands as closures. For added protection consider anti-tarnish strips and camphor squares. Both are available through jewelry supply stores.

An alternative to silver polish is to pour water into an aluminum or enameled pan with aluminum foil covering the bottom of the pan, fill to a depth of 2 to 3 inches (enough to cover silver with water). Add 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon salt, and heat until water boils. Add tarnished silver and boil 3 minutes. Remove silver, wash in soapy water and polish dry (not for use on silver jewelry or flatware with hollow handles).

Garden club benefit card party, lunch

Martha Ashby (from left), Emy Sokol, Vivienne Sweeney and Ruth Jean Robson were among the players at the Sanford Garden Club's annual card party and luncheon on Oct. 28. Proceeds will send two youths to camp this summer. A Halloween motif was carried out in the clubhouse decor and luncheon was served by Betty Akers, Barbara Bradshaw, Mary Childers and Mary Lou McDonald.

Millions share assassination trauma

DEAR READERS: We've all experienced a moment in our lives that is literally unforgettable. If you were 4 years old or older, you will remember where you were when you heard the numbing news that President Kennedy had been assassinated. (I was in Tokyo, Japan, vacationing with my husband.)

Last year, I asked my readers to send me a postcard telling me where they were when they heard the shocking news. I wisely rented a post office box so these postcards would not get mixed up with the routine Dear Abby mail, but I was not prepared for the deluge that was to follow.

In the first two weeks, I received more than 300,000 postcards — plus long letters — from people who were eager to share their recollections.

Mail came in from small towns and major cities — from Alaska to the Philippines, from Berlin to Africa. The recollections were heartwarming: "I was Jack's roommate at Harvard," wrote one reader who is now in his 70s. Another wrote, "My folks had a framed picture of President Kennedy in our living room...next to the one of the pope."

Although this was the beginning of a violent chapter in American history, the responses reflected a less hectic time when children came home for lunch, their mothers ironed a lot, and families watched black-and-white TV.

There were the inevitable theories of why and how — and a spattering of negative anecdotes, tales of "ESP" and premonitions — but the majority of the responses were moving tributes to our slain president.

Many of you wrote that you looked forward to reading what others were doing that fateful day, so I shared some of the responses in a Dec. 20, 1992, column, but it became clear that I had to share more of them. Thus, those recollections became a paperback book titled "Where Were You When President Kennedy Was Shot?" I asked Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's close friend and press secretary, if he would write the foreword. He accepted graciously without hesitation.

It's available in most bookstores, or from the publisher, Andrews and McMeel. Call (800) 913-ABBY, or write to: Abby's Kennedy Book, Andrews

DEAR ABBY: Thank you from the bottom of my heart for printing the letter from "One of Many Unwed Mothers." It is my fervent hope that my birth daughter's adoptive parents will read that column and decide to forgive me for finding my daughter.

The pain of not knowing my child's fate, and the guilt I felt from cutting her off from her history, led me to locate her three years ago, when she was 24.

I was blessed. She has had an excellent upbringing — far better than I could have given her at the time. She welcomed the medical and genealogical history I had gathered for her, and gave me the chance to tell her why I have given her up for adoption. This resolved my long-standing guilt, and allowed us to form a special friendship.

I realize that some adoptive parents have unresolved feelings over the adoption issue.

Abby, please say something to reassure them. I know that they have always been my daughter's "real" parents...and they have no reason to feel they are "losing" her. In fact, accepting me as their daughter's special friend can only strengthen her love for them.

I hope that someday they'll see that a daughter can love two mothers just as naturally as a mother can love two children. Sign me...

GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: I've heard adopted children say that birth parents gave them life — but adoptive parents gave them love. Adoptive parents who have built a warm, loving relationship with their children should not fear losing their children — children need to find their "roots," but they never forget who nurtured them to adulthood and gave them wings.

If and when a child meets his birth parents, his life is enriched by having the love of all his parents. Thank you for confirming this.

Woman likes buzz from a few drinks

DEAR MARY: Since you're never going to know who I am, I'm going to be real honest about why I like going to a club on Friday night and having some drinks with my friends. My life doesn't have too much excitement in it during the week, but after I go out and have a few drinks, I get to feeling real good. It seems to make me more attractive to men and I feel real sexy and desirable.

I'm not shy about talking to men who come up to me and I've even been known to make a few advances myself. Frankly, I like the way it makes me feel when I get a little buzz on and I also like the way I'm not so inhibited after I've had a few drinks. Anything that does that much for me can't be too bad!

HONEST
DEAR HONEST: I appreciate your honesty, and as a matter of fact, you are right on target with some of your observations about how alcohol changes the way you feel and act.

Alcohol is a central nervous system depressant so it lowers a person's inhibitions by slowing down certain brain functions and impairing judgment. Also, as William Shakespeare said so well in "Macbeth," alcohol "provokes the desire, but it takes away the performance." While it often makes people feel more sexy and uninhibited, its function as a central nervous system depressant actually hinders performance.

DRUG COUNSELOR

You didn't ask for advice but I can't resist this opportunity to warn you and everyone else again that casual sexual behavior these days makes as much sense as playing Russian Roulette with a loaded gun.

Scriptures Selected by The American Bible Society

Today, they are remembering...remembering embraces that could have been their last...battles that brought a bloodstained halt to fast, but abruptly fleeting friendships. They are remembering fighting for the future of their children, their grandchildren, or their great-grandchildren.

With us, even today, are those who served in our Armed Forces from World War I through the most recent conflict in the Middle East. For many of us, it is impossible to conceive of the price they paid for the freedom of our country now and for generations to come.

Many of these men and women find their recollections too dreadful to discuss, as if the very act of verbalization would reconstitute the tragedy into actuality; so they spend the day remembering...

This year on Veterans' Day, may we remember those who find their memories too painful to forget.

SANFORD — The Deaconess Department of Reddick Memorial cordially invites the community to an evening of praise as they give thanks for Diocese Deaconess Beatrice Baker.

The appreciation services for Deaconess Baker will be held Saturday, Nov. 6, at 7:30 p.m.

Guest speaker will be Minister Jimmie Blake, Elder J. J. Ligon, pastor.

MOPS to meet monthly

LAKE MARY — The First Presbyterian Church of Lake Mary, 128 W. Wilbur Ave., would like to invite the mother of preschoolers to the Nov. 13 meeting of MOPS (Mothers Of Preschoolers).

132nd FBC annual meeting set

Florida's largest evangelical denomination will gather to worship, fellowship and transact business during the 132nd annual meeting of the Florida Baptist State Convention at the Broward County Convention Center in Fort Lauderdale, Nov. 15-17, according to a release from the FBC.

An estimated 1,800 Florida Baptists representing the one-million member denomination are expected to return to South Florida for the first time since 1985 when the annual meeting was held in Miami.

Among the business which messengers (delegates) will consider is a proposed constitutional amendment to clear the way for Baptist congregations in Haiti to affiliate with the FBC. Currently there are 131 Haitian congregations in Florida affiliated with the Florida Baptist Convention — including 74 congregations with 3,323 members in the three Southeast counties.

The Florida Baptist Haitian congregations have started 60 mission churches on their island homeland. The proposed change in the constitution will allow the missions in Haiti to organize and affiliate with their mother churches in Florida. A change in the constitution requires a two-thirds vote of the messengers during two successive annual conventions.

In other matters, the messengers will be asked to approve partnerships between the FBC and Baptist entities in the East African nation of Tanzania and a partnership with Baptist entities in the Caribbean Islands nation. Both partnerships will encourage state Baptists to participate in evangelistic and ministry-oriented mission trips to the partnership nations.

The convention meeting in Fort Lauderdale is especially timely this year, since the elected president of the state convention resides in Hollywood. Tim Locher, a commercial airline pilot, is the first layperson to serve as president of the convention since 1980. Previous presidents have all served as pastors of a church in the state. A member of Sheridan Hills Baptist Church in Hollywood, Locher will preside over the three-day meeting and will deliver a presidential address on Tuesday morning at 11:30 a.m. Locher was elected to the one-year term last year at the convention in Fort Myers. A new president will be elected Tuesday morning.

Other speakers scheduled for the statewide meeting include SBC statesman Hershel Hobbs of Oklahoma City; Peace Committee member SBC President Ed Young of Houston, Texas; Dellanna O'Brien, executive director of the Women's Missionary Union in Birmingham; and Robert McGee, Houston.

Drug therapy may cause thin hair

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there a relation between high blood pressure medicine and hair thinning? Since taking Vasotec, my hair is thinning much faster than it ever has and I'm concerned.

DEAR READER: Almost any medication can, in rare instances, cause thinning of hair. Anti-hypertensive drugs are no exception. Loss of hair is an acknowledged (but infrequent) side effect of Vasotec, a medicine used for high blood pressure and heart disorders. Ask your doctor to consider changing your medication, because another anti-hypertensive drug might not cause hair loss in your particular case.

To give you more information on your high blood pressure, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Hypertension." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffered a stroke 2-1/2 years ago and have controlled hypertension with medication. What risks would there be, if any, in having a hysterectomy?

DEAR READER: This depends on the reason for your hysterectomy. You must weigh the benefits of surgery against the risks.

For example, if your gynecologist believes that you have a tumor or some other serious disorder, the risks of NOT having surgery exceed the risks of the procedure.

Conversely, if you are considering hysterectomy for something like small fibroids (benign growths in the uterus), the benefits of surgery are simply not worth the risks.

Having had a stroke increases the possibility that you could have another stroke during or after surgery. Controlled hypertension, although not a contraindication to surgery of any kind, is a health problem nonetheless and should be a factor in your decision.

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

You and your surgeon should carefully analyze the risk/benefit ratio of the proposed procedure.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

The new book "Pre-empts from A to Z" by Sabine Zenkel and Ron Andersen (Magnus Books, $17.95, 800-274-2221) is recommended for serious partnerships. I particularly like the authors' stress on discipline, but not in the way you may think. When you open with a pre-empt, you should have what your partner expects. If he expects jack-sixth and out, that is what you must have. It's no good holding king-queen-jack-sixth and then complaining when you miss a laydown game.

However, the authors never point out that if you make a pre-empt and the opponents buy the contract, you will have helped the declarer play the hand - as in today's deal.

South ruffed the second round of spades, drew trumps with the king and ace, and then ruffed dummy's last spade in hand;

West threw a club.

Declarer had to assume West held the diamond king, but was the suit breaking 3-2 or 2-1? To find the answer, South cashed both top clubs before leading the diamond jack. West covered with the king and East dropped the eight. When declarer ruffed a club in hand, the count was complete. East was known to have started with seven spades, two hearts, three clubs, and therefore only one diamond.

South led the diamond two. When West played the three, dummy's four was finessed, equaling the world record. (If West had played high, declarer would have returned to hand with a trump.)

True, if East passes throughout and the slam is reached (which is unlikely), South should play the same way. But the pre-empt makes it easier.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Nov. 6, 1993

November 6, 1993 In the year ahead you could be quite restless and eager to explore areas you never previously examined. Exciting developments are in the offing with a number of big surprises.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Persons who disagree with your ideas and opinions today might be classified by you as enemies instead of merely individuals who have other points of view. Be fair minded. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your own attitude will be the determining factor in your success or failures today. If you see yourself as a loser, you'll find a way to prove it true.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.

19) If a friend is reluctant to discuss certain confidential matters with you today, be respectful of his/her wishes. This person has valid reasons for secrecy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be your own advocate today instead of letting a surrogate speak for you to authority figures. He/she won't plead your case half as well as you can.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today if you want something serious done, you must shoulder your share of the burden. If you're inclined to just issue orders, don't expect a productive response.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you're involved in some type of commercial endeavor today that includes others, don't make any changes without consulting everyone concerned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Arguments between you and your mate should be dealt with privately and not aired before others. Onlooker could lose respect for both of you if this occurs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Guard against inclinations today to make mountains from molehills. If you expand upon petty infractions, you could create a real problem.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today if you're an impulsive buyer, two things could happen to you. One, you may buy inferior merchandise and two, you might spend much more for it than you should.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In order to be a good leader today, you must lead by example, and your directives must be explicit and clear. You won't have a following if you fail in either area.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When you talk about doing something today, there's a chance you might convince yourself it is already done just because it was discussed. This attitude could severely dilute your productivity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be extremely careful today regarding to whom you go for financial advice, especially if it involves substantial amounts of money.
