Ooops! State Loses Sanford's Amtrak Station

At least one local resident is up in arms over the omission of Sanford from the list of Amtrak stations on the Florida Official Transportation Map being distributed at the State Welcome Stations.

Ursula M. West, of 326 Evansdale Road, Lake Mary, is so incensed that she has written to the Florida Department of Transportation in Tallahassee to complain, with copies sent to Amtrak, the Sanford City Commission, the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and the Evening Herald as well.

She points out that "Sanford was once a major center in the Florida Railroad system. The city has had passenger service since the construction of the South Florida Railroad in 1884. For 9½ years Sanford was the southern terminus for Auto-Train and will be that again for the soon-to-be inaugurated Amtrak Auto Train service."

According to Amtrak reservations office two northbound trains and two southbound trains stop in Sanford each day to pick up and let off passengers.

As a result of a call from the Herald to State Topographer W.C. "Pete" DeLoach in Tallahassee, concerning the oversight, there's good news and bad news.

The good news is he is going to look into why Sanford was left off the list and has agreed to correct the situation in the next publication of the official map.

The bad news it will not be updated again until 1985. Up until this year the map has been published annually, but the latest edition, which came out in June, was for two years.

It lists places such as Wildwood, Palatka and Kissimmee, but not Sanford.

"I don't know why Sanford was left out," said DeLoach. "It may have been an oversight, but I'm sorry."—Jane Casselberry.

Billie Jean Wins Singles, But Wade Nets The Applause

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Billy Jean King won the singles championship Sunday by default in the Tiger Balm Women's Tennis Classic at Sabal Point Country Club near Longwood when her opponent Virginia Wade was forced to withdraw in the second set.

Wade injured her big toe and pulled a tendon in her right foot when she slipped on a wet court Saturday during her semi-finals match with Rosie Casals, but agreed to go ahead with the finals for the sake of the tournament.

She was holding her own (four games against King's six) in the first set, but after King took the first game in the second set she decided it was not worth suffering the pain and risking further injury to continue.

Some 2,000 tennis fans turned out for Sunday's finals under sunny skies and it was the largest crowd of the four-day event.

King, who will be 40 in two months, was not at her best and it was rumored that she was having a problem with her back. She took the $8,000 singles first prize, while Wade received $4,500 for her efforts.

After winning the singles, King teamed with Sharon Walsh to defeat Francoise Durr and Kerry Reid for the doubles championship, 6-0, 6-3.

"I am absolutely delighted with the tour," said David W. Tricker, president of Intermedia Services, Inc., which put on the tournament. "The officials at Sabal Point have done a superb job in preparing for the event and keeping the facilities up to top standards."

Tricker said the only thing he was not entirely satisfied with was the weather, which he blamed for keeping down attendance. Even though only one event was interrupted by rain, threatening skies and heavy rains in the area had a distinct impact on attendance, he said.

The score was tied 4-4 when rain delayed the King-Walsh semi-final match Saturday night in the third set, but King went on to win when play resumed with 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Saturday afternoon's matches were played under ominous black clouds with an intermittent drizzle. "I told Virginia (Wade) this is just like a Saturday afternoon in England," Tricker said.

In her match against Rosie Casals it was obvious that Wade, affectionately called "Ginny" by her fans, was the favorite of the crowd, which loudly applauded every time she came on the court and gave her a standing ovation when she won the hard fought event 5-7, 6-3, 3-6.

Tricker said the standard of play at the Sabal Point Tiger Balm Women's Classic was quite high, especially considering some of the players had just come from competing in the U.S. Open and it was a change of courts and they had not had a lot of time to practice.

Tobacco Road?

Mobile Home Violations Spur Protest

By Micheal Beha
Herald Staff Writer

At least one resident of Osceola Road, in eastern Seminole County, plans to protest what she calls "tobacco road" development of that area tonight before the Seminole County Board of Adjustment.

Gerri Small, a property owner on Osceola Road, claims violations of county housing, health and building codes are rampant in the area and wants to put a stop to further development in the area until existing mobile homes in the area are cleaned up.

Mrs. Small said she will oppose requests for special exceptions from eight property owners at the Board of Adjustment meeting at 7 p.m. in the Seminole County Courthouse.

Those requests are from W.R. Lundy, Donald Howard, Michael D. Palmer, Donald L. Jackson, Gregory Mobile Homes and A.G. Conklin, who want to place mobile homes off of Osceola Road and Teresa Lynn Rice and Robert Fiehn, who want to put mobile homes off of Retreat Road.

Mrs. Small claims that mobile homes parked on the road near the St. Johns River have been parked there illegally and that some trailers along the river, used primarily on weekends, have privies which run directly into the river. Mrs. Small said the health department has cited owners of the privies but the outhouses remain in use. Health department staff could find no record of recent citations in that area in a check today.

Herb Hardin, Seminole County's Land Management Manager, said a time-consuming investigation is being conducted into the complaints by the Osceola Road property owner. Mobile homes are not permitted in Seminole County unless they are approved by the county's Board of Adjustment. Privies are a violation of county health ordinances.

Hardin said the investigation could continue for some time. Much staff time is required, he said, to pinpoint the location of a mobile home and to determine who owns the property where it's located.

The Osceola Road area is the "county's most isolated area," Hardin said. There are hundreds of acres of low, swampy land along the St. Johns River and the vast majority of residents in the area live in mobile homes. There is no potable water in the area, he said.

In that area, many of the mobile homes are on tracts of 40 acres or more, he said.

When a special exception is approved, county officials inspect the trailers to make sure they conform to county codes. They must pass a county inspection before the electricity can be turned on, Hardin said.

"Granted, some of them just go in without a permit," he said. "But we're working to determine which ones have permits and which ones are illegally placed."

If an investigation reveals that a mobile home is illegally placed, two options exist for correcting the situation, he said. The trailer can be moved or the owner can apply for a special exception to live in it. If the exception is sought, county officials will back off of legal action until a determination is made by the board of adjustment, Hardin said.

Sanford To Host State Hearing On Annexation

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The state wide Advisory Council on Intergovernmental Relations, a special committee named by the Florida Legislature to study the issue of annexation, will hold a public hearing in Sanford Wednesday at the civic center.

The hearing will begin at 10 a.m. and adjourn at 5.

The purpose of the committee is to review the state's current annexation policy and to make recommendations for possible changes to the law for consideration of the Florida Legislature in 1984.

The Sanford meeting is to be the first of three public hearings on the issue in the state. The other two hearings will be held in Riviera Beach and Pinellas Park.

Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles said today he believes the Legislature will take up some annexation law changes in the 1984 session and the hearing in Sanford will give the ACIR an opportunity to get public input on the issue.

"Florida has one of the most restrictive annexation laws in the nation," Knowles said, and this can both hamper and disorganize growth because it interferes with the delivery of public services, including public safety, utilities, transportation planning and building inspections," he said.

"In the 1984 legislative session, you will see new law passed which is more in keeping with other states where annexation is a means of allowing service delivery for urban areas," Knowles predicted.

The committee is expected to consider allowing cities to annex pockets of unincorporated areas within their boundaries, he said, noting this is a major problem in many cities throughout the state. Knowles cited the city of Clearwater which reportedly has 120 pockets of unincorporated areas within its city limits. Sanford has about 14 pockets.

Some of the pockets were created during the 1960s and early 1970s when cities annexed vast areas on petition of land developers and pockets of unincorporated areas, some as small as a single lot or homestead, were created as a result.

At the same time, Knowles said he expects the rights of those residents in unincorporated areas to be preserved. He pointed to the difficulty of a county fire department, as an example, providing fire protection to a small pocket within a city.

He also expects the rights of cities such as the small ones near Daytona Beach to be preserved from being annexed against their will to the city of Daytona beach.

The Sanford and Lake Mary city commissions some months ago supported those small cities in their battle to stop proposed legislation that would have allowed the action by Daytona Beach through a single vote rather than referendum in each individual city.

"These hearings should have some impact on the 1984 Legislature and the public will benefit from the resulting good legislation," Knowles said.

The committee is being chaired by Rep. Charles R. Smith, D-Brooksville.

TODAY

High Schools Host Parents

Lake Mary, Lyman and Oviedo high schools will hold open house programs for parents tonight. Lake Mary's program will begin at 7 p.m. in the auditorium with welcoming remarks from Principal Don Reynolds. Parents will then have an opportunity to visit their children's classes.

At Lyman and Oviedo programs will begin at 7:30 p.m. with opening remarks, followed by classroom visits with teachers.

Seminole High School will hold open house Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Officials at each of the schools will explain goals and expectations for the year, rule changes and the impact of new state graduation requirements on student schedules.

She Backs ERA And Abortion

First Black Miss America Begins Outspoken Reign

By Louis Toscano

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Vanessa Williams, who broke one tradition by becoming the first black Miss America, appears to be breaking more with her opinions on the ERA and abortion.

The 20-year-old Syracuse University junior, competing as Miss New York, shattered one of the nation's oldest remaining racial barriers Saturday night by capturing the crown. She began her reign Sunday after two hours of sleep with an early-morning photo session and a breakfast news conference.

She was scheduled to be in New York today for a television appearance and a news conference at the Plaza Hotel.

Wearing her rhinestone-studded crown and a peach party dress

Vanessa Williams

'Just because I'm black doesn't mean I'm going to favor every black position. I'm my own person with my own opinions.'

Sunday, the 5-foot-6 brunette, also the first black Miss New York winner, wasted little time in setting herself apart from previous pageant winner, who usually ducked controversial issues.

She told reporters she is a political independent who opposes the legalization of marijuana, backs the Equal Rights Amendment and favors abortion.

"I think it's (abortion) a right that women should have," she said. "It should be there for women to use but I don't think everyone should."

Miss Williams, who wants to be a Broadway star, stressed that she will not use her title as a platform for pronouncements on black issues.

"Just because I'm black doesn't mean I'm going to favor every black position," said the 110-pound, green-eyed singer. "I'm my own person with my own opinions."

She also made it quite clear that she does not see herself as a "beauty queen."

"I've never felt like a beauty queen and I don't think I ever will, because that's a stereotype I don't agree with," said Miss Williams, the daughter of two Millwood, N.Y., public school music teachers.

Most of the questions focused on her race, an issue that bothers her.

"At times I get annoyed because it seems the people and press aren't focusing on my accomplishments," she said. "I've made some waves and I'm ready to handle that. People aren't used to dealing with changes but it just had to happen."

Her triumph marked a milestone in the pageant's 63-year history. Only a dozen blacks have competed since a "whites-only" rule was lifted in the late 1950s. Until Cheryl Brown of Iowa crossed the color line in 1970, blacks had appeared on stage only once, playing "slaves" in a production number in 1922.

IN BRIEF

Court Asked To Order Cancer Treatment For Girl

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — An appeals court panel will hear arguments on whether a 12-year-old cancer victim should be allowed to die "when the Lord gets ready for me" or be forced by the state to take treatment that violates her religious beliefs.

Pamela Irene Hamilton was taken to East Tennessee Children's Hospital late Saturday after Juvenile Court Judge Charles Herman ruled in Jacksboro, Tenn. that the girl must take chemotherapy and radiation treatments.

Appeals Court Judge Herschell Franks stayed Herman's treatment order until a three-judge panel of the Court of Appeals could review the decision today.

James A.H. Bell, the parents' attorney, argued the state is infringing on the Hamiltons' First Amendment right to freedom of religion. But Assistant State Attorney General Mike Terry said the state has a right to interfere for the girl's benefit.

Cancer specialists say that Pamela will die within nine months if no treatment is given. If she takes treatment for the tumor in her left thigh, she would have a 50-50 chance of survival.

New Taxes Considered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional and administration sources agree Congress will come up with some sort of tax bill this year, but it is likely to fall far short of the $12 billion in revenue called for in the budget for fiscal 1984 that begins Oct. 1.

With only days to go before Friday's deadline for complying with the budget goals, the House and Senate tax-writing committees will try, if somewhat unwillingly, to devise a way for raising revenue as dictated by Congress for next year's budget.

Whatever Congress comes up with is likely to include a wide array of tax rule changes that are due to expire at the end of the year or, tax shelter abuses so flagrant that they can't be ignored.

Despite the pressure of $200 billion budget deficits, President Reagan has rejected calls for offsetting tax increases this year or next, preferring to rely on his "standby tax" proposal that would go into effect in 1985 only if the economy warranted and if Congress had made significant cuts in federal spending.

But the standby plan, which included a $5-a-barrel oil import fee and an income tax surcharge, never generated much attention on Capitol Hill.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Thunderstorms poured up to a half foot of rain on the Gulf Coast and Rio Grande Valley, turning roads into raging rivers that pulled a Texas woman to her death, while late-summer snow blanketed Montana. Thunderstorms, hail and lightning swept across a Midwest cold front extending from Iowa to Michigan. Snow reportedly fell at a rate of one inch an hour in Montana early today, as Helena reported four inches while Great Falls and Lewiston had three. A heavy snow warning was issued for southwestern Montana early today. Texas-sized thunderstorms, accompanied by winds gusting to 63 mph, soaked Quemado with 6 inches of rain and closed roads in Maverick and Atascosa counties. A 17-year-old San Antonio, Texas woman was found dead Sunday night 400 yards downstream from a flooded bridge she had tried to drive across, police said. The two passengers with driver Josephine Perez Quintanilla were rescued from their stranded automobile by a passerby.

Central Florida Attractions Partly To Blame

S. Florida Tourism Has Hit The Skids

MIAMI (UPI) — The south Florida tourism industry — hit by riots, refugees and competition from Disney World — is in its worst season ever and next year the drought of northern dollars may be even more severe, officials say.

South Florida tourism once thrived on midwesterners and northerners who drove the family car down for two weeks of sun and surf. But fundamental changes in vacation patterns, along with Miami's effort to become a cosmopolitan, international city, have discouraged many of those traditional visitors, officials said.

"If this continues for another year or two years, it will be virtually impossible for us to re-establish a place in the market," hotel developer Sherwood Weiser told The Miami Herald.

International currency problems along with recession in the United States are making this summer the toughest ever for the faltering hotels, restaurants and clubs, the newspaper said, and next year could be even worse.

Disney World and other Central Florida attractions siphon off many of the Americans who once would have spent their vacation dollars on Miami Beach. At the same time, Latin and European tourists who boosted trade in recent years no longer can afford to visit the country.

Tourism still fuels south Florida commerce. It provides nearly three out of every 10 jobs in the area. The Herald said, and about 20 percent of the area's gross annual product.

But evidence of decline is easy to find: The Miami Seaquarium's attendance dropped by nearly half in the last three years. Hotels are closing. Restaurants are moving away. The number of visitors to Broward County dropped more than 13 percent in the first quarter after three consecutive years of decline. More than 2,300 people lost tourism-related jobs in the first half of this year, state employment figures show.

Tourism officials say vacation patterns are changing. Cheaper air fares allow the people who would have packed up the car and headed for Miami Beach during the 1950s and 1960s to jet to other locations today. There is gambling in Las Vegas and Atlantic City, bigger convention facilities in many cities, and the lure of points such as the Caribbean, Europe and Mexico. And there is the big push by Disney and other upstate rivals.

"We didn't realize that other places were cropping up and spending millions of dollars on tourist promotion," said H.J. Mustel, executive director of the Miami Beach Convention and Visitor Authority. "We failed to recognize what was happening."

Finally, the Miami's effort to become a finance center and to develop into a major urban area — coupled with riots in the black ghettos and an influx of Cuban and Haitian refugees — has severely undercut the area's image as the nation's playground.

"Miami's success in becoming a sophisticated, cosmopolitan city and international banking center — these are great," said Sid Levin, the former Florida secretary of commerce who now works with Miami Beach developer Stephen Muss. "But they also create the image that we are an urban center, and that kind of puts us between a rock and a hard place."

"To a guy watching TV in some Northeastern city, it looks just like his hometown. So why would he want to come here for a vacation — to get away?"

Marines Going By The Book

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite the rhetoric about new retaliatory powers for the Marines in Beirut, little has actually changed. They are still going by the book.

Although four Marines were killed in recent weeks and another 2,016 Marines have arrived offshore aboard three ships, the forces are still guided by the "rules of engagement."

Those regulations tell a U.S. soldier what kinds of firearms he may carry, whether they can be loaded and under what circumstances, if any, they may be used. U.S. Army advisers in El Salvador, for example, can carry loaded pistols for self-protection.

The rules of engagement for the Marines in Lebanon have become so complex they occupy two typewritten pages, defense sources said. The Pentagon has declined to disclose them because, it said, it would "provide a formula that a potential adversary could possibly exploit."

The secrecy, coupled with the openness surrounding the movements of Marine and naval forces off the Lebanese coast, appears designed to keep the other side guessing as to how the Americans may react in the hope the veil will act as a deterrent to attack.

Israeli forces use similar methods under the rubric of "tell the enemy nothing that it doesn't need to know."

A National Security Council meeting at the White House Sept. 11 that was reported to have resulted in a presidential decision to give the Marines in Beirut sweeping powers of reprisal against their attackers actually was little more than an

'The Marines are a peace-keeping force and are not there to support the Lebanese army with artillery. The Marines are not even asking to do that. The Marines will not participate in combat, though the joint chiefs (of staff) are always talking about it.'

question-and-answer session, the sources said.

What was resolved, they said, was that the Marine commander in Beirut, Col. Timothy Geraghty, would not have to go up the chain of command to the president if he wanted to call in offshore air power or naval bombardments to silence Lebanese militia positions hampering his 1,200 soldiers.

Instead, Gen. Bernard Rogers, the commander of U.S. forces in Europe, would be empowered to make those decisions, the sources said.

No decision has been made with regard to off- or on-shore artillery for use in supporting Lebanese army units that have come under attack, unless the loss of a particular Lebanese army position near the Marines will endanger the Marines directly, they said.

"The rules haven't changed," one source said. "The Joint Chiefs of Staff are looking very closely at the rules and there are questions about them daily. But anything that would involve the Marines in combat still is not in the cards."

"The Marines are a peace-keeping force and are not there to support the Lebanese army with artillery. The Marines are not even asking to do that. The Marines will not participate in combat, though the joint chiefs are always talking about it."

The sources said the Marines do not have blanket permission to use naval and Marine firepower offshore in the event of a skirmish but that a decision on how to retaliate is made on a case-by-case basis.

Search Goes On For Black Box

WAKKANAI, Japan (UPI) — A Soviet ship, trying to outmaneuver U.S. vessels, put another mini-submarine into the Sea of Japan today in a search for the "black box" aboard a South Korean airliner shot down by a Russian warplane.

The mini-sub, searching the sea bed about 100 miles north of the Japanese island of Hokkaido, was deployed after another craft in the Soviet salvage fleet completed two underwater missions Sunday, a Maritime Safety agency official said today.

Near the 19-ship Soviet flotilla, several U.S. Navy ships and the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Monro searched today for the vital flight recorder.

Both fleets were apparently hoping to be first to recover the black box and the recordings of cockpit conversations, which may help explain why the plane veered off course on its flight from New York to Seoul Sept. 1.

See related story, page 2B

The search area, an 8-nautical-mile-wide zone about 100 miles north of Wakkanao on the northern tip of Hokkaido, is believed to be the spot where the Korean airliner plunged into the sea after being hit by Soviet air-to-air missiles.

Maritime Safety Agency Superintendent Masayoshi Kato said today Soviet mini-sub was lowered into the water three times in 24 hours.

South Korea moved a marine survey vessel, the 1,126-ton Pusan 851, to join about a dozen Japanese patrol ships on the northern shores of Hokkaido to search for debris and remains of the 269 people on board the airplane.

The Japanese maritime spokesman said today a Japanese patrol boat spotted a Soviet mini-sub twice being lowered into the Sea of Japan on Sunday and a second mini-sub dropped early today.

Pedestrian Killed By Hit-And-Run Driver On I-4

An Orlando motorist was in the Seminole County jail today following a Sunday night accident in which a pedestrian was killed on Interstate 4 by a hit-and-run driver, the Florida Highway Patrol said.

The FHP said the victim, identified only as a male, was standing on the east side of I-4 on the edge of the roadway just south of State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs and was preparing to cross the highway when he was struck by an eastbound car at 11:30 p.m.

The driver of the 1967 Oldsmobile drove away from the accident scene but was stopped a short time later by another motorist who had witnessed the accident and called troopers.

Richard S. Taylor, 26, of 3300 Drake Road, was charged with driving under the influence, driving with a suspended driver's license and leaving the scene of an accident involving a fatality. He remains in jail today in lieu of $5,750 bond.

The FHP is withholding the name of the victim pending notification of next-of-kin.

The fatality brings to 19 the number of traffic-related deaths in Seminole County this year, according to the FHP.

ASSAULT

A 26-year-old Sanford man was arrested early today after a woman told police he hit her in the mouth, pointed a gun at her and fired it in the air.

Mark Lee Hampton, 1210 W. 19th Court, was charged with aggravated assault and battery.

The victim, Deborah Depew, gave Sanford police this account of the incident:

She said Hampton hit her in the mouth, pointed a gun at her and fired it in the air at a residence at 1920 Summerlin Ave. at about 3 a.m. today.

She said that as she was leaving in her car to drive to the police station, Hampton jumped in the car and at the intersection of French Avenue and 15th Street, he grabbed the steering wheel.

Ms. Depew said she stopped the car and Hampton got out, pointed the gun at her again and threatened "to blow her head off," the police report said.

She drove to the police station, reported the incident and officers arrested Hampton a short time later. Hampton remains in Seminole County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

BURGLAR SMASHES DOOR

A burglar took two color TV sets from a south Seminole woman's condominium apartment after he "destroyed" a door to gain entry.

The front door was split in half and a large panel was knocked out where the thief reached inside to unlock the door's dead bolt, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

Teresa Meyer Armstrong, 48, of 221 Cherrywood Garden Drive near Mailland, said several dresser drawers in her bedroom were also pulled open but nothing appeared to be missing. No estimate was available of her loss.

OVEN TAKEN

Thieves removed a microwave oven, a TV set and $30 cash from a counter in the kitchen of an Oviedo man's home between 5:40 a.m. and 5:19 p.m. Thursday.

John I. Malcolm Jr., 47, of 2744 Pennsylvania Ave., estimated his loss at $528. He said the burglars removed screens from a back bedroom window and raised the window to gain access.

DUI DISPOSITIONS

The following persons have been either convicted or pleaded guilty in Seminole County Court to driving under the influence. Most of them, as first-time offenders, have had their drivers' licenses suspended for six months and have been ordered to pay a $250 fine, $10 to the Crimes Commission Trust Fund, and to perform 50 hours of community service. In cases where periods of license suspension or amounts of fines differ from these figures, the actual sentences are given.

—Gerald D. Hughes, 7706 Killian Drive, Orlando.

—Deborah Kay Snowden, 299 Cherokee Court, Altamonte Springs.

—David A. Hamilton, 510 E. Jackson, Orlando, was ordered to pay a $1,000 fine, to spend 10 days in the Seminole County jail and his driver's license was suspended indefinitely after his fourth DUI conviction.

—James A. Stones, 1940 Howell Branch Road, Winter Park.

—David E. Durham, 517 Lake Kathryn Circle, Casselberry, was ordered to pay a $500 fine and to spend 10 days in the Seminole County jail.

—Thomas W. Lawson, 681 Hermit's Cove, Altamonte Springs, case not prosecuted.

—Mark A. Perry, 1002 Grove Ave., Altamonte Springs, case dismissed.

—Scott Andrew Cyphers, 126 Countryside Drive, Longwood, case not prosecuted.

AMENDED DUIs

The following persons, who were arrested on a charge of driving under the influence, have had that charge amended to a charge of willful and wanton reckless driving:

—Kevin J. Connell, 620 Land Ave., Longwood.

—Charles E. McGrath, 555 N. Lake Ave., Apt. 8, Altamonte Springs.

—Stanley R. Piel, 3111 Ivel Drive, Orlando.

—Thomas M. Yelcho, 543 Little Wekiva Road, Altamonte Springs.

—Brian J. Donovan, 1745 Walker Drive, Winter Park.

—Charles A. Hughes, 417 David St., Winter Springs.

—Terence A. McBride, 116 Coble Court, Longwood.

—James H. Steehler, Houston, Texas.

—Bernard F. Teufel Jr., 1504 Mockingbird Lane, Longwood.

Navy Gunners Pound Druze Mountain Positions

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — U.S. warships pounded the mountains east of Beirut today where Druze Moslems claimed their Syrian-backed forces smashed through government defenses and entered the embattled town of Souk El Gharb.

A Lebanese military spokesman denied the Druze forces entered Souk El Gharb, the army's main line of defense, and said army troops repulsed repeated attacks in fierce hand-to-hand combat.

As the fighting raged, Navy gunners rained a barrage of artillery fire on the mountains after U.S. Marines came under artillery fire at the Beirut airport. There were no casualties.

"There is a lot of outgoing fire now, and a lot of that is ours," Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan said minutes after the 11 a.m. (5 a.m. EDT) barrage began.

Four Marines of the multinational peace-keeping force have died in Lebanon's latest fighting, which began as a Moslem challenge to the Christian-dominated government after Israeli troops withdrew from the Beirut area to more secure lines.

Gromyko Will Stay Home

MOSCOW (UPI) — Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko canceled a trip to New York because the United States "flagrantly violated" its commitments to the United Nations and would not ensure his safety, Radio Moscow said.

Russians were informed during the weekend of the latest diplomatic twist in the Soviet destruction of a South Korean jumbo jet by radio reports portraying the United States as a lawless country acting out of anti-Soviet hostility.

The State Department had assured Moscow that Gromyko could travel to America in a Soviet military plane and land at a U.S. military airfield — safer and more insulated from the public than the New York or Newark, N.J. airports that closed their runways to him Friday.

The broadcasts indicated the Soviet cancellation of Gromyko's visit was aimed primarily at domestic audiences, Western analysts said, adding the cancellation also spared him more international embarrassment over the attack.

Tracer Out To Lunch; 911 Call Sparks Lawsuit

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — The parents of a teenager who was shot and then dialed "911" for help are suing Southern Bell, claiming their son died because phone operators could not trace the call in time to send paramedics.

On July 8, 1979, Joey Vendola, 19, dragged himself to a telephone in his bedroom with a bullet wound to his stomach and dialed "911." Vendola whispered the word "ambulance" into the receiver and collapsed, court records show.

Operators tried to trace the call but as long as two hours later, still had not done so.

Now, attorneys for his parents are suing Southern Bell, claiming the company's tracing system was flawed and therefore prevented potentially life-saving assistance from reaching Vendola.

Court records show the tracing of Vendola's call was delayed because it was made on a Sunday afternoon when staff was reduced and the regular trace technician was out to lunch.

Auto Mileage Ratings Too High, Expert Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An automobile industry expert says the government's car mileage ratings are between 10 percent and 22 percent above what the average motorist can expect to achieve.

Bill Berman, American Automobile Association director of environment and energy, said Congress and government experts know the ratings are inaccurate, but do not require more exacting tests because many cars cannot meet mileage or fuel emission targets.

The Environmental Protection Agency's ratings for 1984 model cars, released over the weekend, showed the gasoline-powered Honda Civic Coupe was the most fuel-efficient car on the American market with a rating of 51 miles per gallon. The Datsun Nissan Sentra, a diesel, was second place with a rating of 50 mpg.

Berman said, however, the ratings are inaccurate. Diesel models especially would suffer if more strenuous testing was done, he said.

"(The EPA tests) do not take into consideration temperatures," he said. "They don't drive them long enough. They also don't turn off the cars."

"They (the EPA and Congress) are aware of the weaknesses but they don't want to change the testing procedures. If there were more realistic testing, mileage rates would be much lower and fuel emissions would be much higher."

EPA spokesman Richard Hoffman noted the agency offers the figures with a standard disclaimer they "are just estimates and don't take into account actual driving conditions and the way people drive."

Chile Swings In Arc Of Agony

Ten years after rebel tanks surrounded Chile's presidential palace, triggering the gunshot death of Chilean President Salvador Allende and overthrowing Chilean democracy, government water cannons silenced opposition leaders protesting the 10-year dictatorship of Gen. Augusto Pinochet.

Ten years after right-wing goon squads rounded up thousands of sympathizers of the left-wing regime of Allende and tortured and murdered them in the Santiago soccer stadium, thousands of Chileans marched in the streets calling for a return to democracy. Ten protesters were killed and hundreds jailed in recent demonstrations.

Ten years after the socialist experiment of the Allende government brought the economy to a standstill, the orthodox capitalist experiment of the Pinochet regime, advised by University of Chicago economists, has left the economy in a shambles.

Ten years after U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the CIA worked covertly to overthrow the elected government, Kissinger leads a presidential commission studying proposals for Central America, and the CIA backs rebels fighting to overthrow the left-wing Sandinista regime in Nicaragua.

Ten years of dictatorship, repression, textbook economic policies and U.S. meddling have brought Chile, in 1983, to the same polarization it suffered in 1973, after three years of leftist slogans, communes and Cuban-imported socialism.

Why the killing? Why the political intolerance? Why the reliance on foreign economic solutions? Why the Cuban and American meddling?

Because Chile, long known for its democratic tradition and its Western culture, made the mistake of seeking its future in the no-man's-land between the superpowers. It tried to free itself of the domination of the U.S. copper interests by receiving aid from the Soviet Union. Then Chile swung back in the other direction, savagely cutting off ties with the communist bloc and becoming more orthodoxly capitalistic than America.

Pinochet, a martinet who rules by terror, is a lasting symbol of the dangers that befall a country when it swings out of balance. His military-appointed term of office will not end until 1989, when Pinochet says he may renew for another term.

As long as he remains in power, Chile will remain frozen in the extreme right of its arc of agony.

Democracy must return to Chile. And Chile must return to the center, to Chilean solutions to Chilean problems, to the Chilean tradition of culture, tolerance and freedom.

Old Fashioned Way

What happens if you give a bailout and nobody comes? That's the current question in Yugoslavia, where the government has mounted a feverish publicity campaign to convince credit-shy businessmen that they really need roughly $1 billion in largesse from Western governments and the World Bank.

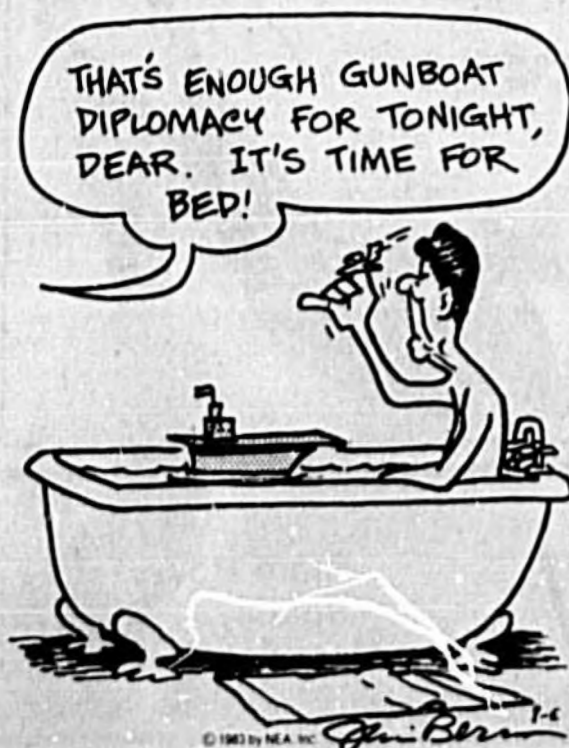

As of Aug. 17, trade and commodity loans were going virtually unused. Of $600 million offered by the German government, for example, only $150 million found takers — even though the loans are earmarked, as London's Financial Times put it, for "badly needed raw materials and components for its export production."

Other banks, including Beogradaska Banka, supervising the French offer of $50 million as well as the World Bank's "structural re-adjustment loan," report the same shortage of customers.

So the Yugoslav government, reacting to the ostensible complaint of businessmen that the terms of credit haven't been sufficiently explained, has been passing out pamphlets, talking up the loans on the radio, and sending representatives door to door to trumpet the scheme's virtues.

But there may be more to the picture than meets the bailout eye. Yugoslavian businessmen have never been this hard to get during previous Western rescue operations. It's just possible that they fear the austerity medicine being attached to the loans more than they fear the disease itself.

BERRY'S WORLD

Gerald Willis, the little heard of lumberman from Piedmont, Ala. who has declared himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president in 1984, has given a new name to the pencils he has been giving school children promoting his candidacy.

After noting recent reports of Pentagon jargonese, purportedly designed to confound attempts to oversee government spending, Willis has renamed his campaign gimmick, "portable hand-held communication inscribers."

Willis' portable hand-held communication inscribers bear his picture, so they are a little different than the run of the mill portable hand-held...

Willis points to the inflated prices various federal departments pay for items which under their every day name are relatively cheap while under a more exotic name command large prices.

He cites as an example the U.S. Navy's purchase of a diode for $110 when the components could have been bought for 4 cents and hammers that cost $435 when their equivalent could be purchased from a hardware store for $6.

State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, has filed legislation aimed at closing a loophole in the current conflict of interest law.

Present law allows elected and appointed office holders to use their offices for personal and financial gain, he says. Brantley's bill is designed to stop this practice.

He said his proposed bill states that any person who serves on an appointed or an elected body and is required to file a financial disclosure shall not be able to vote or make motions on any particular issue in which he has a conflict.

Current law says that no elected official can be prohibited from voting in his official capacity. If, however, the vote will financially benefit the office holder, all he has to do is disclose, in a memorandum, the nature of his financial interest within 15 days of the vote.

"My purpose in filing the bill is to remove any appearance of wrongdoing by any public official as it relates to conflicts of interest," Brantley said.

"Our current law sweeps too broadly in that it not only allows public officials to vote on matters where there is a conflict of interest, but also allows them to make motions where they stand to realize personal gains," Brantley said.

During the 1983 session of the Florida Legislature, Brantley filed an amendment to close this loophole, but the bill was never taken up in the senate.

Brantley is chairman of the Seminole County Legislative delegation.

Looking Ahead To Next Year

By Tom Hillstrom

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Sunshine Law exemptions, divorce law reform, business taxes and wetlands preservation are shaping up to be among the major issues in next year's legislative session.

House members spent three days last week in Tallahassee in their first round of interim committee meetings in preparation for the 1984 session, scheduled to begin in June. The panels will meet one week each month until the 60-day session.

These areas include:
SUNSHINE LAW — A special judiciary subcommittee on open government will continue reviewing the hundreds of exemptions to the open meetings and public records laws already on the books.

The panel's chairman, Rep. Dexter Lehtinen, D-Perrine, said he plans to summon representatives of every affected government agency to justify the exemptions they now enjoy. If the exemptions are not justified, he said, bills will be drafted to scrap them.

Among the targets for possible action are the state Judicial Qualifications Commission and the judicial nominating commissions, which now may meet in secret to investigate and nominate judges respectively.

In the other direction, the panel, at the urging of House Speaker Lee Moffitt, plans to consider ways of allowing elected public bodies to meet privately with lawyers when discussing litigation.

DIVORCE — Another judiciary subcommittee headed by Rep. Ron Silver, D-North Miami Beach, will consider the recommendations of a special commission on marital laws appointed by the state Supreme Court.

In its preliminary recommendations, the commission proposed the use of mandatory mediation for divorcing couples and divorces without lawyers under some circumstances.

TAXES — Bills have already been filed to repeal the controversial unitary tax on corporate profits passed this year and several key legislative leaders have said they expect to modify it to reduce the impact on international banking, the Florida Insurance Exchange in Miami and possibly an international trade center under development in Orlando.

WETLANDS — The natural resources committee, which this year passed landmark water quality legislation, is turning its attention to wetlands and proposals to preserve them ranging from tougher development restrictions to outright purchase.

As part of doing their homework, several committees will be holding meetings at locations around the state.

The open government panel plans to meet in Miami, tentatively on Oct. 24, and the agriculture committee will tour the Homestead area Tuesday.

The community affairs committee will meet Friday in Orlando to reveal an emergency response program to provide drinking water to people whose wells are contaminated by ethylene dibromide (EDB).

Debt Crisis Swept Under The Rug

WASHINGTON — The danger lights are flashing in the White House and on Capitol Hill. The economic recovery could fizzle like a misfired rocket, or it could explode into years of prosperity.

The choice is up to the politicians, but unhappily they are making the wrong choice. They are ignoring urgent warnings that the economic recovery will abort unless the federal deficit is reduced.

Either they must cut federal spending or raise more revenue. Failure to act will cost the American people dearly in the form of another severe recession or disastrous inflation.

For most Americans, it would be less painful to pay a little more in taxes or give up a few government services. But every tax increase and federal cutback produces a howl from voters who see only their immediate losses. Rather than offend the voters, Republicans and Democrats alike have rejected the remedies that most economists insist are essential for our national health.

50 Test Tube Baby Clinics?

By Anne Saker

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — When gynecologists Howard and Georgeanna Jones moved to Norfolk from Johns Hopkins University in 1978, they didn't plan to open a test tube baby clinic and become medical pioneers.

"We had no intention of starting a clinic here," Jones said. "We came to be senior faculty members at the medical school, but I guess there was an omen. We arrived here the day Louise Brown was born."

Louise Brown, born July 25, 1978, in Oldham, England, was the world's first test-tube baby. Her birth culminated 16 years of in-vitro fertilization research by British doctors Robert Edwards and Patrick Steptoe.

On Dec. 28, 1981, Jones announced the birth of Elizabeth Jordan Carr, America's first test-tube baby, at the clinic he and his wife started at the Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk.

There now are 25 in-vitro clinics across the country, Jones said, and there could be 50 by year's end.

About 40 babies have been born in the United States through the process — 30 from Jones' clinic and the rest from clinics at Vanderbilt University, the University of Southern California and the University of Texas-Houston. Except for two sets of twins, they all have been single births.

"Every case is still exciting," Jones said in an interview. "Everyone involved has a real enthusiasm. It hasn't tarnished at all."

Jones, 72, and Mrs. Jones, 71, opened the EVMS clinic in 1980 with $5,000 "seed money" from a grateful patient. The quick success was surprising.

"When we opened, we said we'd give it three years," he said. "If at the end of three years, we didn't have any births, we'd forget it. It was a little remarkable to us to have Elizabeth a little less than two years into it."

In vitro — Latin for "in glass" — fertilization is a relatively simple process. A doctor inserts a laparoscope, a tube with a fiber optic light on the tip, into a woman's abdomen and retrieves an egg from the woman's ovary.

The egg is placed in a laboratory dish and fertilized with the husband's sperm.

When the egg has divided into eight or 16 cells, usually in 48 hours, it is implanted in the woman's womb.

The procedures can cost between $2,500 and $5,000. The Norfolk clinic charges $3,500, but Jones said that will go up to about $4,000 at the beginning of next year. Most insurance companies don't pay for the procedure because it is considered experimental.

The success rate has been between 10 percent and 20 percent, but Jones believes that will increase as more clinics are started and more women undergo the process.

Despite the rapid growth of clinics in the United States, Jones said in-vitro fertilization should only remain "part of the overall treatment of infertility."

"This still should be a last resort, when all other conventional therapy has been exhausted," he said. "But with the success of the in-vitro concept, I think doctors and patients will delay less in using this after all other treatment has been tried."

Now that doctors have "mastered the basic process," Jones said, the concept can improve reproductive medicine.

"For example, it was always considered good medicine to take out the uterus when removing the fallopian tubes in surgery," Jones said. "In-vitro fertilization has changed that."

Doctors also will be able to induce ovulation in a woman so that more eggs will be available for removal and fertilization. When the eggs are implanted in the womb, "it can enhance the opportunity for pregnancy," Jones said.

The process "has provided new opportunities into the biology of early reproduction," he said. "Doctors can study the early maturation of the conceptus (fertilized egg) and study it. In-vitro fertilization has opened potent doors in this area."

Though the concept has opened new medical doors, others remain closed.

The National Institutes of Health will not grant research funding for work in in-vitro fertilization, though an NIH ethics committee said in 1978 it found no ethical problem in laboratory conceptions for infertile women.

Food Safety Decline?

By Sonja Hillgren

UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal food inspection agencies need to do a better job of keeping adulterated food from reaching American consumers, the General Accounting Office charges.

As food processing technology becomes more sophisticated, the GAO said it fears a decline in federal spending for food regulation "may limit the ability of federal food safety regulation to adequately protect the U.S. public."

For more than a decade, the GAO, the investigative agency of Congress, has published numerous critical reports about unsanitary conditions in food manufacturing firms, illegal pesticide residues in food imports and other contaminants in food. Several reports have concluded that the federal regulatory process does not work as well as it should.

Now the GAO has published an update of how federal food inspection agencies — the Food and Drug Administration and the Agriculture Department's Food Safety and Inspection Service — have responded to its criticisms over the years.

It is generally recognized that the U.S. food supply is one of the world's safest and that federal food safety regulation provides adequate public protection, the GAO said. Immediate deaths or illnesses directly related to consuming adulterated food are rare.

But the agency warned that "long-term cumulative effects of food contamination — by toxic chemicals, for example — on health are unknown."

The 1979 GAO report complained that tests for contaminants took six to 25 days to complete. Because meat products were held at the slaughterhouse for no more than 48 hours, contaminated food was sold and eaten before test results came back.

It also gave Agriculture high marks for development of the new "swab test on premises" which screens carcasses for antibiotic residues within 18 hours, allowing inspectors to keep a suspect carcass from being marketed.

It said that residues in meat and poultry detected by Agriculture officials have dropped and noted that a new program is directed at helping producers raise livestock to avoid residues.

"One major problem identified was that no consistent expression of overall federal policy exists for food safety regulation," the GAO said.

The FDA has authority over foods shipped in interstate commerce, except for meat and poultry. Its plant inspections are comparatively infrequent. The agencies share jurisdiction over eggs and egg products. The report noted that several unsuccessful attempts have been made to pass legislation to improve FDA surveillance.

The GAO was critical of FDA efforts at monitoring pesticides both in U.S.-produced food and in imported foods. It said that Mexican produce with violative pesticide residues enters the U.S. market even though the FDA has placed special emphasis on this problem.

push up interest rates.

This is not what the economic experts have been advising the administration. Their confidential warnings, in fact, have been more urgent than their public statements. Here are a few typical excerpts from classified papers I have studied:

— The failure to reduce the federal deficit is forcing the Federal Reserve Board to make economic policy. Faced with "a clear risk that inflation would be rekindled," the Fed "might at some point feel forced to put on the brakes suddenly, an action which would almost certainly choke off the recovery."

— The International Monetary Fund concluded after a confidential study of the U.S. economy: "There is little doubt that existing deficits, or the prospect of continuing large deficits, are the main obstacles to a satisfactory economy performance in the United States."

— The President's Council of Economic Advisers fears that "the adverse effects of large budget deficits would not be limited to the distant future; rather, the expectation of large deficits for years to come would keep real long-term interest rates higher than they would otherwise be.... These influences would make for an unbalanced recovery and would likely give rise to inflationary pressures...."

— There was general agreement, in the words of one confidential report, that "action to reduce budget deficits would likely dampen economic activity in the short run, but such action is essential to enhance the prospects of lasting economic expansion."

For an administration that has expended so much rhetoric on sound fiscal policy, Reagan & Co. should be more alarmed about the horrendous public debt. The paramount need is that overall leadership be assumed — leadership that is more concerned about the nation's future than the next election. Though Congress cannot escape blame, the one leader having a hand on all the reins and bearing supreme responsibility for the economic security of the nation is the president.

Punter Cohen Exemplifies Struggle For Self-Reliance

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Sanford's Fighting Seminoles won more than a football game Friday night against Southwest Miami.

They conquered a 12-game skid of bad bounces, poor luck, frustration, embarrassment, humiliation, despair and self doubt. All of these obstacles have been encountered over the past 12 games, and the Seminoles always seemed to come up on the wrong side of the scoreboard.

Friday night, however, the Tribe had a perfect setting. Southwest Miami had an 18-game losing streak of its own which was haunting the Eagles. Some people may surmise that this game was a setup for the 'Noles, put on the schedule to make sure the damnable skid would finally end.

Maybe it was, but maybe it wasn't. Southwest Miami had as much and more to gain than Seminole. Six more heartaches dotted its loss skid than Sanford's. Why wouldn't Southwest look at the game as its setup?

No, this game was perfect for both schools. It matched a pair of 1982 losers. The result would show just which team was the hungriest to end its embarrassment. And when Seminole's Bryan Debose pounced on a fumble with just 12 seconds to go, it ensured Sanford's 7-0 victory.

Oh, what a relief it was. To everybody. Seminole Principal Wayne Epps no longer has to dread Saturday mornings. Coach Jerry Posey can stop dreading Friday nights. And the players can stop dreading every day of the week, going through practices with the apprehension that Friday will just be another day to fall.

No doubt, when the Seminoles bopped into the hallways today at school there was no more, "What happened? How did you lose this time?" No, it was replaced by, "Way to go. You finally broke the streak."

There were probably a lot of football players who didn't have to re-route their paths to avoid the questions. Although Friday night was a night to rejoice, Monday morning was a morning to relish just what was accomplished and to savor the rewards.

Seminole punter Rob Cohen best exemplifies what was accomplished. An intelligent and witty young man, Cohen began his football career at Crooms four years ago. During his time, he played a multitude of positions. Although he's played guard, tight end, quarterback and wide receiver, Cohen has never really mastered any of them. He was a rugged blocker on the offensive line at Crooms, but body weight, which isn't his forte, kept him out of the junior varsity and varsity trenches.

He was a bit player on a frustrated team. A team which had become accustomed to losing.

This year has been different, though. If his improvement continues, he could become the top punter in the Five Star Conference. Cohen could always punt the ball in practice. "He would boom them 60 yards," raves Posey.

Then came the game, and then came the shanks. What happened? Why couldn't he make the transition from the practice field to the game? Was it the pressure? Was it a lack of confidence?

Whatever it was, it has seemed to have gone the same route as Sanford's losing streak. Cohen and the Seminole football team have both overcome the mental and physical shortcomings of not being quite good enough to make the grade.

For Cohen, turning that victory corner may have started a week earlier than his teammates. Backed to the end zone against Titusville Astronaut with the game on the line, Cohen relieved the 'Noles of a sticky problem with a boomer to midfield.

But wait. There was a flag. Against Seminole.

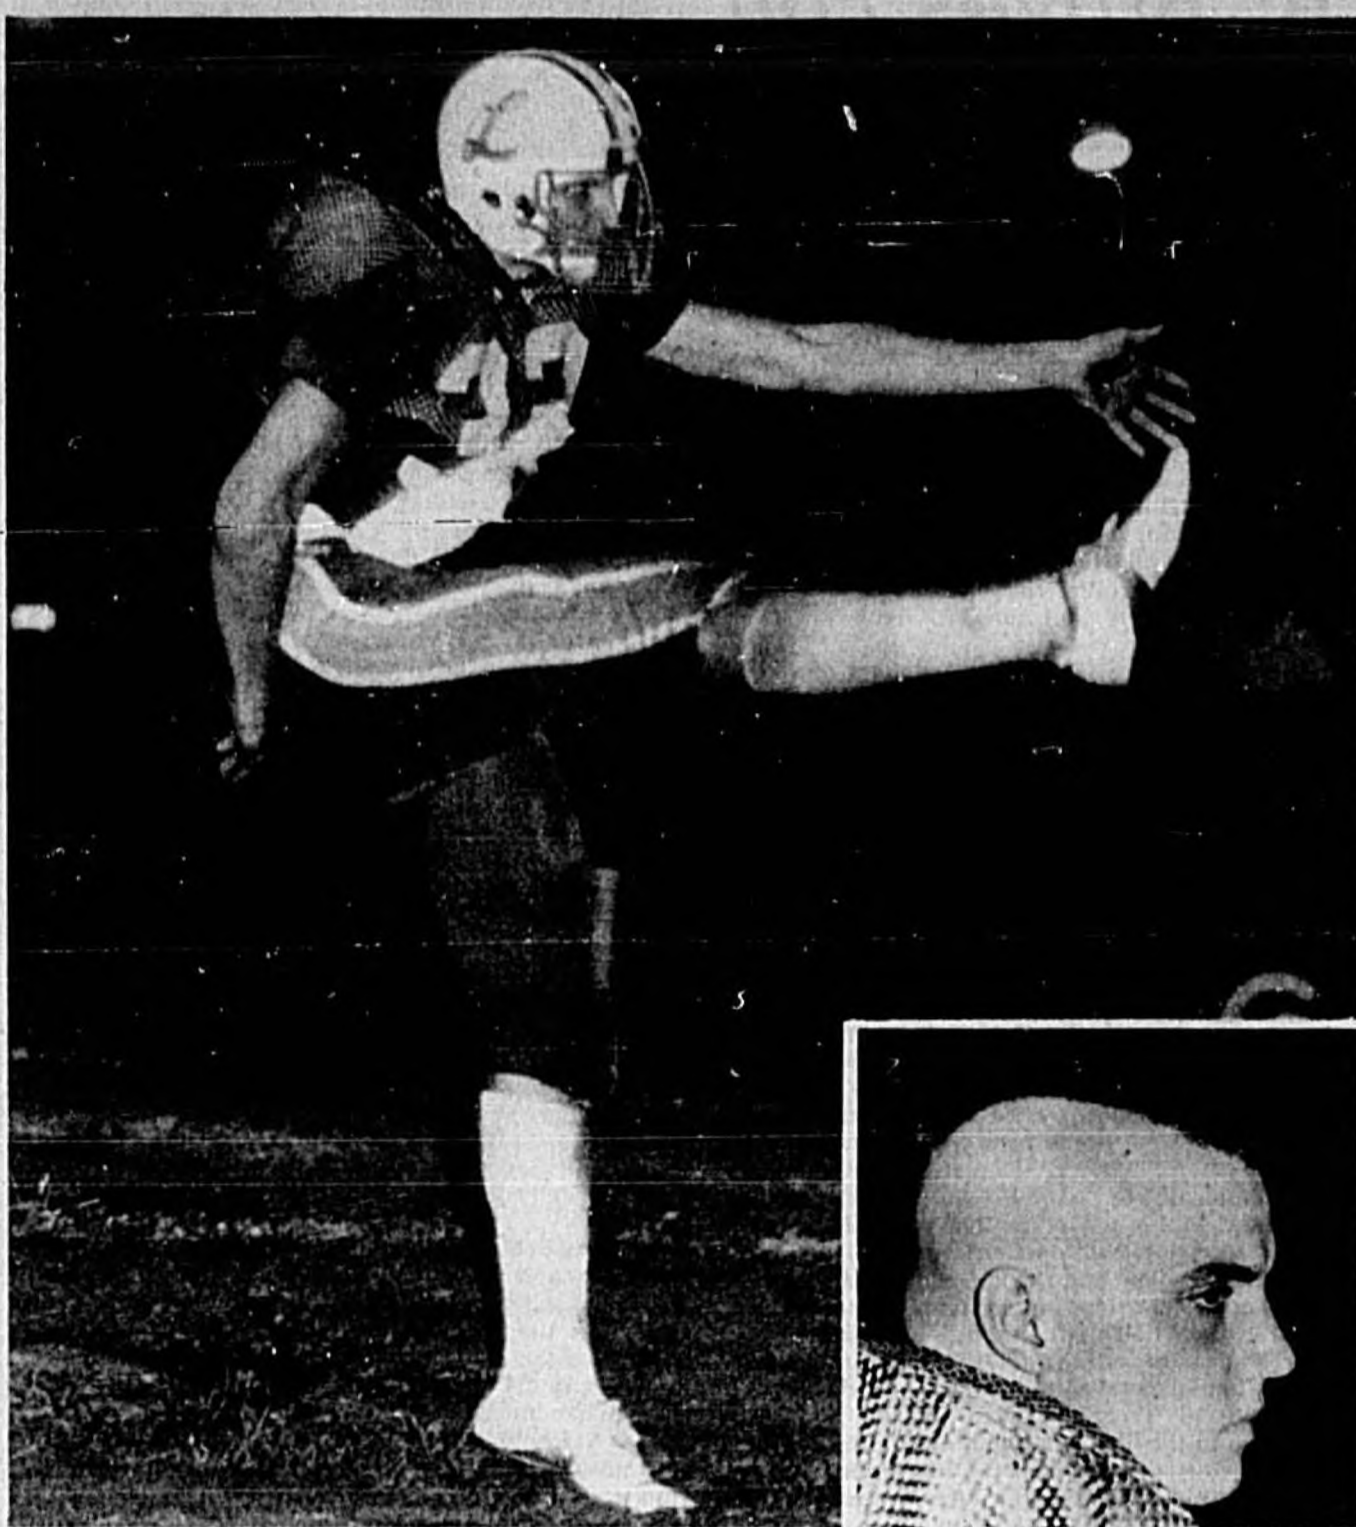

Backed up again, this time five yards deeper. It was bottom line time for Cohen. Would he crack? Would he feel the heat? Not this time. The only crack was of the pigskin hitting the leather shoe. The ball sailed in a nice spiral over midfield to ease the 'Noles out of another trouble spot.

"I don't know if I'm doing anything different," Cohen said after that game. "I guess I just have the confidence to get the job done now."

He got it done again Friday night. Because of an aggressive offensive attack, he wasn't called upon in the first half. But midway through the third quarter the drive stalled. Cohen came on and kicked a 33-yarder. Not great until you examine the runback. No runback.

Later in the fourth quarter, he was needed again. This time, Cohen got it all. He hammered a 52-yard spiral which just trickled into the Southwest Miami end zone. With a little better jump by the speciality team, it could have been downed inside the five-yard line.

See PUNTER, Page 6A.

After last week's opening game loss to Boone, Lyman head coach Bill Scott said his Greyhounds were going back to the basics. Saturday night, Lyman executed those basics to a tee enroute to a 17-6 victory over Five Star Conference rival Lake Brantley at Longwood before 6,000 fans.

The Greyhounds played with a renewed intensity, according to Scott. He said that their performance against the Patriots might have been "over their heads," but they pounced on a win because they played with "great enthusiasm against a tough team."

Scott said that Lake Brantley was a stronger team than Boone, who the Greyhounds lost to last week, 10-6, but his team was able to stay away from turnovers and mistakes in order to beat them. "This game was definitely one of the biggest on the schedule," said Scott. "Our guys really wanted this one."

While it was the running game that eventually secured the win for Lyman, its first strike ironically came on an 81-yard pass play from junior quarterback Tony Johnson to senior tight end Jody Foster. Johnson hit Foster with a short pass up the middle and after tipping it around his fingers, reeled it in and legged it out 70 yards for the touchdown with 6:17 left to play in the first quarter. Steve Abernethy picked the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

Throughout the entire first half, the Brantley offense had a tough time getting untracked at Greyhound defensive linemen continually entered the Patriot backfield as uninvited guests.

The Lyman running game started to unfold in the second quarter as Phil Germano and Karl Simmons proceeded to gain short yardage consistently over the Patriot middle while chewing up the clock. The 'Hounds scored again with 6:33 left in the half on a 27-yard field goal by Abernethy to put them out in front 10-0 at the half. Scott praised the work of his offensive line and said they were a key in the Greyhounds' potent running attack. "The line was tough tonight. They did a real good job," Scott said.

In the third quarter, the Patriots finally started to move with junior quarterback Dennis Groseclose using an array of passes and running plays to move the ball 66 yards down to the Lyman eight-yard line with 3:30 left in the third quarter. On a fourth and four yard situation, the Patriots turned a broken field goal attempt into a touchdown when kicker Chuck Stallings took the bad snap and hit Kurt Marn with an eight-yard toss in the end zone for the Pats only score of the evening. The extra point was missed.

The Greyhounds put their final score of the night on the board after recovering a Patriot fumbled punt on the opening play of the fourth quarter. Lyman marched 32 yards before Mike Henley capped the drive with a one-yard scoring run to ice the game. Lyman's final drive consumed better than six minutes on the clock. Abernethy added the PAT.

The Patriots were put through a vain final effort as the tenacious Lyman defense halted them continually in the fourth quarter when things got serious. In a frantic effort to come-from-behind, the Patriots placed senior quarterback Kenny VanCastern into the game in the fourth quarter but Lyman quickly ended those hopes by sending VanCastern out of the game with a rib injury with a minute left in the contest.

Lake Brantley head coach David Tullis said his team's performance was spotty and uncharacteristic of their capabilities. "I thought our play was inconsistent tonight," he said. "Lyman played real well tonight. They were tough, you have to give them credit."

Tullis said that his team made too many mistakes against Lyman to hope to win. He added, however, that he would not have changed his game plan of trying to run against the Greyhound line throughout the first three quarters of the game.

"They (Lyman) are a good football team. They ran well," Tullis said. "We hit them pretty good but we just didn't play as consistent as we should have."

Scott said that he was happy with the production of his offense and said that he expects the running game to keep improving. He added that Johnson did a good job in the quarterback slot because he was a lot more settled than last week.

Johnson, on the other hand, credited the offensive line for much of his success on the evening. He added that composure was a big plus for the Greyhounds. "We controlled the ball all night and we were mentally right going into this game," Johnson said.

Ricardo Kicks Bucs In OT

Pro Football

TAMPA (UPI) — Benny Ricardo kicked four field goals Sunday but in the final analysis it was missed kicks that enabled the Minnesota Vikings to come away with a 19-16 overtime victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Ricardo, who sat out last year and was picked up by the Vikings less than a week before this season began, kicked a 38-yard field goal with 24 seconds left in the game to send it into overtime and then booted a 42-yarder 9:27 into overtime to win the NFC Central Division game.

But it was three missed kicks by the Buccaneers that proved costly.

Bill Capece was cheated out of an extra point attempt after Tampa's first touchdown when the center snap was fumbled and he tried to run it in, and then he missed wide left on a 47-yard field goal in the second period and was wide left on a 33-yarder that would have given the Bucs their first victory midway through the overtime period.

Tommy Kramer, who went out with a sprained knee on the next to last play of the first period, hooked up with wide receiver Terry LeCount for an 8-yard touchdown in the first period for the Vikings' only touchdown.

Ricardo made it 10-0 with a 29-yard field goal on the fourth play of the second period and added a 37-yard field goal with just 52 seconds left in the first half.

Jack Thompson, making his first start for the Bucs, passed five yards to James Wilder in the fourth period. James Owens scored on a one-yard plunge in the second period and Capece had a 40-yard field goal in the third period.

Ricardo's game-winning field goal came after the Vikings had faked a field goal on the previous play and holder and quarterback Steve Dils' pass was batted down and almost intercepted.

The victory ran Minnesota's record to 2-1 and made the Vikings 1-0 in NFC Central Division play. Tampa now is 0-3, with all the losses division games.

"I don't care who won the game, I think either team deserved to win," said Vikings' Coach Bud Grant. "Tampa Bay's 0-3 but they could win their next three as easy as they lost them."

"We played very poorly and got beat by a superior Minnesota team," said Coach John McKay.

Kramer was hurt as he went out of bounds at the end of a naked reverse at the Tampa 12-yard line.

"You can't ever predict how bad," Grant said of Kramer's knee. "It's bad enough that we're concerned about it."

Kramer had completed all eight passes he had thrown for 78 yards and appeared to be in total control.

The Vikings won the toss and received but were unable to move the ball and punted it away.

Thompson moved the Bucs from their own 47 to the Vikings' 15 where Capece missed his 33-yard attempt.

Dils hit Rickey Young on a crossing pattern for 48 yards to the Tampa 27 and four plays later Ricardo sent the Vikings home victorious.

The Vikings had to convert two 4th down plays in the final drive of regulation time to give Ricardo the chance to send the game into overtime. The first time Dils hit Young for five yards on 4th-and-1 and the second time sprung LeCount on a 31-yard pass on a 4th-and-11 gamble.

"I felt confident because I've been stroking the ball very well," Ricardo said. "There is no thought. You kick best when you kick blank. You've got to keep your mind blank."

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Don Shula hopes to profit by the Raiders' move to Los Angeles.

Shula's Miami Dolphins meet the Raiders tonight (9 p.m. EDT) in the NFL Monday night game at the Coliseum. Los Angeles is 10-2-1 against Miami dating back to 1966.

"The Raiders have had outstanding football teams over the years," Shula said. "We had some real battles with them in Oakland, but we always seemed to come up short. Maybe things will be different in Los Angeles. We certainly hope so."

Pell 'Relieved' After Sycamores Fall; FSU, Knights Tumble

Football

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Florida Coach Charley Pell breathed a sigh of relief and began looking ahead to the Southeastern Conference opener next week after his 15th-ranked Gators rallied to defeat unheralded Indiana State.

Florida needed a 165-yard rushing performance by tailback Neal Anderson and a 15-yard touchdown pass from Wayne Peace to fullback Joe Henderson with 9:22 left in the game Saturday night to beat the feisty Sycamores.

"Indiana State didn't care if Florida was from the Southeastern Conference, the NFL or the USFL," said Pell of the NCAA Division I-AA Sycamores, a member of the Missouri Valley Conference. "They came to play."

Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden says his Seminoles have some obvious problems, but at least he's got some time to work on them.

Tulane defeated the previously unbeaten and ninth-ranked Seminoles 34-29 Saturday, and now Bowden and his squad get an open date before hitting the road for back-to-back games at Auburn and Pittsburgh.

"The kicking game is killing us right now, for some reason," Bowden said after Tulane's upset. "I'm going to look at that real close."

Bowden is also concerned at some signal calling foulups that occurred in the Superdome Saturday.

"We're doing a lot of substituting and I'm afraid we're confusing ourselves some," he said.

At Tallahassee, Delaware State quarterback Pat Spencer tossed a 12-yard touchdown pass to John Taylor with 16 seconds left to defeat Florida A&M (1-1) 36-34.

At Jacksonville, Jon Nicholaisen kicked field goals of 51 and 33 yards to lead Howard University to a 20-17 victory over Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference foe Bethune-Cookman (1-1).

The University of Central Florida dropped to 2-1 with a 54-28 loss at Southeastern Louisiana. The score was tied 21-21 at halftime, but the Lions broke it open with a 21-point third quarter. Quarterback Dana Thyhsen threw for two more touchdowns to run his season total to eight and Elgin Davis picked up 123 yards on the ground. Thyhsen hit 17 of 36 passes for 290 yards. Ted Wilson also returned a kickoff 100 yards for a TD to establish a new UCF record.

The Knights were without linebackers Glenn Whiteley and Kevin Cowart for the second straight game.

While Florida State (2-1) and Bethune Cookman are enjoying open dates next weekend, Florida is at Mississippi State, Miami is home for its well-ballyhooed prime time television game with Notre Dame, Florida A&M is home to Tennessee State, and North Alabama is at Central Florida.

Florida Coach Charley Pell made no apologies for the play of his Gators in their potentially disastrous game with Indiana State, a Division I-AA school.

"They did a great job and earned the respect of our team right away and I admire them," Pell said of the Sycamores. "We were proud to win and relieved to win. Our team fought, they had to."

"I thought we learned a great deal, and I think the fourth quarter, our team realized that these guys were serious and were going to beat our brains out," Pell said.

Miami was led by freshman quarterback Bernie Kosar and a defense which has held two opponents scoreless for seven straight quarters. But Coach Howard Schnellenberger saved most of his praise for his young offensive line.

"We played well in all phases of the game," Schnellenberger said. "The offensive line had another outstanding game. I can't say enough about our makeshift offensive line."

Singing Auditions Called

Chorus and minor role auditions for the Orlando Opera Company's 1983-84 season will be held Thursday, Sept. 29, at the Bob Carr Auditorium from 3 to 5 p.m. Sight reading ability is required and singers are asked to prepare either one opera, operetta or music theater selection. Accompaniment will be provided for the audition.

If you are interested in auditioning for any of the following, please call 896-7575 to reserve your audition time.

Black singers will be auditioned for the chorus and nine minor roles in the March 1984 production of Gershwin's Porgy and Bess, which will star Donnie Ray Albert and Elizabeth Graham.

Both a tenor and a bass are needed to fill the roles of Spoletta and Sciarone, respectively, in the November 1983 production of Puccini's Tosca, which stars Patricia Craig and Barry Busse.

Auditions will also be held for the Camarata Chorus and interested basses are asked to apply.

The Orlando Opera Company is celebrating its 25th anniversary with a special three opera season that includes Tosca, The Pearl Fishers and Porgy and Bess. Season subscriptions are available by calling the Orlando Opera Ticket Hotline, 896-7635.

Country Festival

The 10th Anniversary of the Great Day in the Country Arts and Crafts Festival promises to be a great day of celebrating country style. The sponsoring Oviedo Woman's Club changed the date from spring to fall but plans to keep the same country ambience under the familiar oaks in the picnic area behind St. Luke's Lutheran Church, near the corner of Red Bug Road and State Road 426 in the Slavia area of Oviedo.

The Oct. 15th date affords early Christmas shopping opportunities for those interested in a variety of unique hand crafted gifts in a genial under-the-oaks festival setting. As a special Tenth Anniversary feature, guests will enjoy seeing demonstrations of several old country crafts brought in to generate interest in this field. The entire booth area has been expanded to allow for a greater number and variety of wares to be available.

Plan ahead, mark Oct. 15 on your calendar for a rollicking, frolicking day of music, country food, special children's entertainment, a wide selection of arts and crafts, and especially a heaping helping of country hospitality for a Great Day under the cool shady oaks in Oviedo.

Classy Classic

The $30,000 Tiger Balm Women's Tennis Classic was pure class all the way. Held at Sabal Point, Longwood, the event ended Sunday with several top tennis pros in the competition. A Pre-Tournament Warm-up Gala honored celebrities Thursday night. Setting the pace for the classy classic are Pamela Cox, Altamonte Springs, left (top photo), and Jan Knicely, Longwood. The name of the game was to eat, drink and be merry, lower photo, with a band performing in the gaily festooned gazebo while spectators relished tempting party cuisine. Proceeds will benefit the Lake Brantley High School Band, the Central Florida Blood Bank and Arts Inc.

Girl Down In The Dumps Needs To Clean Up Act

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the 13-year-old girl who is crying the blues because she lives in a "dump." There is something you can do to make your home look better and make you feel better.

When I was 16, I left my aunt's lovely home and went to live in my father's "dump" in another state. (My mother died when I was 5 and my aunt raised me.) My younger sister (14) and I pitched in and cleaned "the dump" up.

The wooden floor was so rough that we got splinters in our hands from wringing out the floor mop. I washed, starched, ironed and mended rotten lace curtains, using a flatiron heated on a wood-burning stove because we couldn't afford electricity. My sister and I cleaned up the yard and kept the place looking as nice as possible without spending any money because we had none to spend. When my boyfriends came to call, I never apologized for my home because I knew I had done all I could to make it presentable. Work helps. Tears do not.

P.S.

DEAR ABBY: If you don't mind, I would like to give that 13-year-old girl who is ashamed of her house a few encouraging words.

I'm a 15-year-old girl whose family is well-off money-wise, and we live in a very nice house.

My friend, "Pam," lives in a house that could use lots of repairs, and her family does have money problems. But Pam is my best friend, and she always will be, no matter what.

To tell you the truth, I spend twice as much time at Pam's house as Pam spends at mine.

A TRUE FRIEND

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from the young girl who was ashamed to invite her friends over because she lived in a dump, I relived my own teen-age years. I also lived in a "dump," and was so ashamed of it. I had my dates pick me up at a girlfriend's house, which I tried to pass off as my own. When they brought me "home," I would say good-night on the porch, and as soon as they were out of sight I'd walk to my own home alone in the dark.

When I was 17, a 19-year-old "college man" from a well-to-do family called for me at my girlfriend's house, but when it came time to take me "home," he drove right up to my "dump!" I was so embarrassed, I started to cry. Then he said very gently: "Honey, I've always known where you live, but it doesn't make any difference in the way I feel about you. Your father is a decent, hardworking man who's giving his family the best he can afford." (My father worked in the coal mines in West Virginia.)

Then he said, "Why be ashamed of a humble home? More good people have come from humble homes than from mansions."

I've never forgotten those words, nor the beautiful college boy who spoke them. He died last year, after giving me four wonderful children and 49 of the happiest years of my life. Sign me...

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY SEPTEMBER 20, 1983
Your attitude will undergo positive revisions this coming year. Your new outlook will enable you to put the emphasis in areas which will serve you best.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone of whom you are fond may require compassionate understanding today. You'll not reach her through her practicality, but through her emotions. Order now: The NEW Matchmaker wheel and booklet which reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Send $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Mail an additional $1 for your Virgo Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead. Be sure to give your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In order to keep abreast of your responsibilities and duties, self-discipline will be required today. Don't yield to urges to goof off.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Letting your heart rule your head will not prove unwise today, especially if you have to make a decision pertaining to someone who has been kind to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Forego your immediate needs today. Focus your thoughts on others. Center your attention on loved ones for whom you feel responsible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you find it necessary to move around today, leave word where you can be reached or you might miss an important message.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) When dicker over financial matters today, be firm regarding your terms. If you behave in a wishy-washy manner you may lose your edge.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Skirt situations today which could restrict your mobility. You'll get much more accomplished if you're able to operate freely and independently.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're apt to be more self-assured at the outset than you will be as events move on today. Delays tend to arouse doubts in your positive perspective.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are likely to broaden your area of responsibility today, because your primary concern will be for others rather than merely for yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your chances for achieving your goals are good today if you execute your plans exactly as you envision them. Don't depart from your blueprint.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You should do exceptionally well today in situations which permit you to use the full scope of your imagination. Don't limit your thinking.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In joint ventures today the perceptions and instincts of your associates may be a trifle keener than yours. Heed their suggestions.

Negative Blood Type Confusing To Mother

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read that if both parents have positive blood types it is not possible to have a baby with negative type blood, even if a grandparent has negative blood, because blood type comes from the parents only.

I was told 27 years ago that I had O positive and my husband has had his typed several times and his is A positive.

Our oldest child definitely has negative type blood. What is your opinion of this? He is definitely the father and I am definitely the mother.

DEAR READER — Well, you are living proof that two parents who are Rh positive can have an offspring with Rh negative blood. That is not exactly news to medical science.

The point of confusion for most people is that there are two types of Rh positive blood groups. To understand that, you need to know that there are two gene locations that determine Rh. We have paired genes.

Let us say that the dominate gene is called positive (+) and the other gene is the weaker and called negative (-). Now a person with the paired genes of (+, +) will test out as Rh positive. He is an Rh positive heterozygous type. He can give his offspring the plus or negative gene.

If the mother is also a heterozygous Rh positive she can also transmit the positive gene or the negative gene (d form for the purists). It follows that if both heterozygous Rh positive parents provide a negative gene the offspring will have a pair of negative genes and be Rh negative. It is a little more complicated than that, but, in essence, that is the way it happens.

If a parent had a pair of positive genes (DD for the purists), he can only (transmit a positive gene and the offspring would definitely be Rh positive but the rub is that Rh heterozygous gene pairs are different from Rh homozygous gene pairs even though both type out as Rh positive.

The importance of the Rh factor in pregnancies is discussed in The Health Letter 6-4, Blood Type, Rh Factor and Transfusions.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In your column about undescended testicles you answered the question about fertility, but you didn't say that he might not live to father a child. A good percent of these turn to cancer by the time the people are 20 years old.

DEAR READER — Cancer is a consideration but not as big a concern as you evidently think. To put things in perspective, statistics show that in 1978 in the entire United States there were only 329 deaths from cancer of the testicle in men aged 15 to 34. That is the age group in which the problem is most likely to arise.

Cancer of an undescended testicle is now believed to be more common in intersex individuals (abnormal people whose characteristics fall between those of males and females). But some reports state that cancer of the testicle is 11 times as common if the testicle is in the inguinal canal (the abdominal wall) and 50 times more common for those in the abdomen. But again that still is not a large number when you consider that all cancers of the testicles caused only 329 deaths in the 15 to 34 age group.

Opening lead: ♠ J

at six spades following an artificial two-club opening by South. During the course of the bidding North responded five diamonds to South's Blackwood and East doubled. West dutifully opens the Jack of diamonds against the slam.

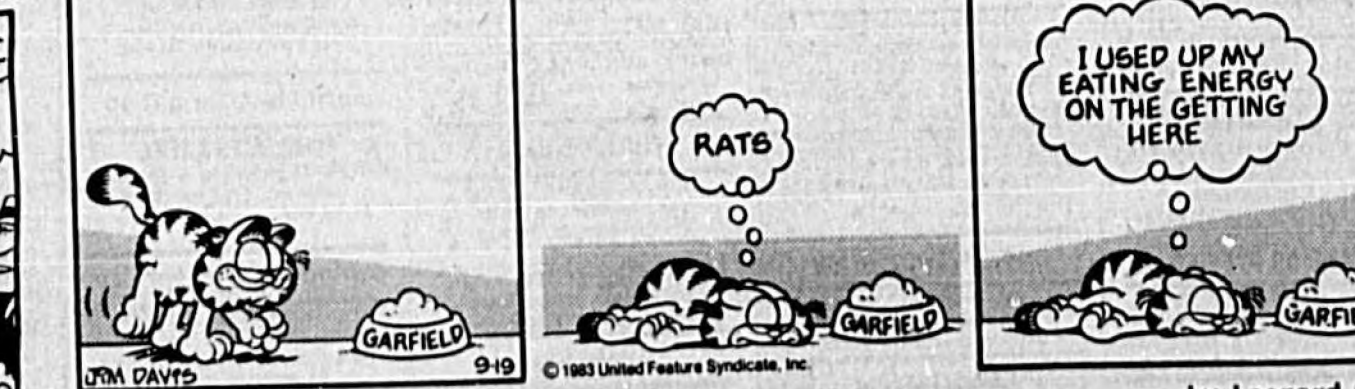

Oswald: "South's slam bid over East's double has clearly indicated that South holds just one diamond. For this reason (as Reese points out) even though dummy plays a low diamond, East should rise with his king to lead back the 10 of hearts and knock out dummy's ace if possible. South plays his queen. West covers with his king and dummy's ace is knocked out. Now South can run off all his black suit winners, but must lose a heart at the finish."

Jim: "That diamond-heart combination play is a tough one to make, but if East doesn't make it, South will ruff the second diamond, draw trumps, cash the top clubs and the rest of his trumps and squeeze West at the finish. West will be forced to unguard his heart king or chuck the good queen of clubs at trick 11."

Oswald: "Terence Reese (England's all-time great) and David Bird have a book with the modest title 'Bridge: The Modern Game.' The bidding is British style and would not meet with much expert American approval, but the play is what one would expect of Terence Reese."

Jim: "Here we find them
