State Urged To Buy Wekiva Tract

By JEAN PATTEON
Herald Staff Writer

The purchase by the state of almost 25,000 acres along the Wekiva River in Seminole and Lake Counties — rather than simply a 200- or 300-foot wide buffer zone — was urged by area legislators and representatives of conservation agencies at a public hearing held in the Seminole County Court House Wednesday night.

"They (representatives at the hearing) were unanimous in favoring the entire purchase rather than a buffer strip," said Del Euga, representative of the Florida Council on Conservation and the Environment.

Euga said the cost of the entire tract, which would include the 6,000 acre Seminole Springs Tract and 5,800 acres owned by the Orlando-based Major Realty Corp., is $38 million.

Monday night the state's interagency planning council of which Euga is a member, rejected the purchase of some 19,300 acres in Seminole and Lake Counties, including Major Realty's Three Rivers housing development project along the Wekiva.

Euga said the interagency planning council seemed reluctant to purchase the entire tract due to the high cost per acre of the land and the small amount of money left in the state fund for environmentally endangered lands.

Of the $240 million in the fund, which $40 million was used for the purchase of only 17.5 Cypress Swamps, only $17.5 million remains, according to Euga. He said 452 projects had been presented for purchase by the state under the environmentally endangered lands project.

The state has appraised the Seminole Springs tract, located in Lake County east of SR44 and above SR46A, at $10.2 million, and the Major Realty property at $10.16 million — double the $5.8 million paid by the corporation in 1972.

Euga said a final hearing on the purchase of Wekiva River lands would be held in Tallahassee around August 5.

He said the state did decide to purchase the entire 25,000 acres, the area would be turned into some kind of recreational park and wildlife reserve administered by the Department of Parks and Recreation and the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

"It would have significance as a historical reserve also," commented Euga, explaining the area along the Wekiva River is the only large tract of virgin Florida forest remaining in Central Florida.

For years local government agencies, civic groups and individuals have been striving to have the Wekiva protected in its natural state. The most recent effort has been to have it included in the state's Scenic and Wild River project.

Board Cuts Polk Budget $900,000

By CHRIS NELSON
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County commissioners, mixing a little with a loud bark, have accused Sheriff John Polk of "giving us false information" while slashing his record $2.5 million budget request by nearly $900,000.

Polk was scheduled to try and pick up the pieces at a meeting with the board today. However, commissioners have indicated they will stick by the cuts, and "come an appeal to Tallahassee if Polk desires."

While Polk would not comment this morning on charges leveled against him by several commissioners during the preliminary review process, board members have been reluctant to state their feelings.

Commissioner Mike Hattaway, with Chairman John Kimbrough and Vice Chairman Dick Williams nodding in agreement, Wednesday hit Polk for "giving us false information" on actual staff positions and authorized salaries.

Further, Hattaway charged, the sheriff's budget presentation is not in the form requested by the commission, and is so difficult to decipher that the board must "disregard everything he gave us."

Commissioners said they were upset with Polk because of what they called his habit of requesting new deputies, then not filling the positions and using the accumulated salaries to grant unauthorized raises or create entirely new positions.

About two-thirds of the commission's Wednesday slashing operation — $585,000 — came from Polk's salary requests.

The board approved $170,000 for operating the Sanford Airport Jail, but put the money in a separate account "so the sheriff can't divert the money to unapproved purposes as has been done in the past," Kimbrough said.

Polk today said he suggested the separate jail fund last week, and that he thought he (Geter) had permission from the St. Petersburg (Parole and Probation) Office to go.

"It would appear to me that in view of Geter's behavior, and his grandmother's inability to handle him, that I had to sign the warrant," Williams said.

The judge said Geter will be returned to the custody of the State Division of Youth Services, and, hopefully, will be placed in a strict control environment where he can receive training and psychiatric guidance.

However, Williams said, judges have no control over the Division of Youth Services.

Geter pleaded no contest to a reduced charge of manslaughter after Ogbesby's death, and defense attorney T. David Burns announced he would adopt him.

Burns, with a wife and six of his own children, said Geter was an intelligent boy who needed closer supervision than his parents, or the Seminole County School system could provide.

WINDS WRECK S & L BUILDING
Two crane operators escape uninjured

Storms Ravage Area, Several People Hurt

High winds and violent thunder and lightning storms in South Seminole and Orange Counties late Wednesday afternoon struck down three persons, wrecked a building under construction and caused flooding in the eastern part of Altamonte Springs where almost four inches of rain fell.

Two Orlando men were admitted to Winter Park Memorial Hospital Wednesday afternoon after being struck by a lightning bolt while working on a construction site at the Naval Training Center.

Thomas Cantwell, 27, was admitted to the hospital's intensive care unit in critical condition, and remains in serious condition today. William C. Andrews, 20, was treated for shock and kept under observation overnight before being released this morning.

In Seminole County, nine-year-old John Wayne Fulghum was struck by lightning while playing in the street near his home on the corner of Central and Myrtle Streets in Florida Hospital North, treated for shock and released to a satisfactory condition.

In the southwest part of the county, two men escaped injury during the storm when steel girders of a partially completed building collapsed on the crane which they were operating.

David Berrien, local manager of the Altamonte Springs branch of Florida Federal Savings and Loan Association said the steel girders for the association's new three-story building on SR 436 at SR 434 opposite the Brantley Square shopping center had been erected Wednesday morning. High winds during the afternoon storm blew down the girders, leaving useless, tangled wreckage on the construction site.

Berrien said he and nine other persons were in a two-story office building 20 feet away during the incident, but they suffered no injuries.

The 30,000 square foot, $1.1 million building was scheduled for completion in March, and occupancy of the first floor by December, but Berrien said he is uncertain now of the completion date.

According to Berrien, construction had been delayed six months while they waited for the steel to be delivered, and he has no idea how long they will have to wait for the damaged girders to be replaced.

No dollar estimate of the damage is available at this time. Cleanup on the twisted steel started this morning under the supervision of Coastal Steel Corp., which was erecting the girders, and general contractor, McCree Design and Construction Co. of Orlando.

In the same area, the Little Wekiva River overflowed and flooded near Greenbriar Road.

Nixon Gave His Okay After Hearing Ellsberg Burglary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon privately voiced "after-the-fact" approval of the White House plumbers' burglary despite his public repudiation of it, according to evidence just released by the House impeachment panel.

Documents said Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen told the Watergate Grand Jury that Nixon ordered the Justice Department away from the case in a telephone conversation April 18, 1973, "I know about that... you stay out of that."

In view of the fact that qualifying ends Tuesday, Malby felt it prudent to make his intentions known as soon as possible.

After hanging up that the plumbers' break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist was "fully justified by the circumstances."

Ehrlichman, who last week was convicted on four felony counts related to the incident, said Nixon again indicated "his after-the-fact approval" in early May, 1973. He quoted Nixon directly as saying "I surely recognize the valid national security reasons it was done."

Ehrlichman's statements were in an affidavit dated April 30 this year.

Nixon claimed publicly last summer that he had no knowledge of the burglary before-hand, that he would have prohibited it if he did, and that he viewed it as "completely deplorable."

The Justice Department, several days after Nixon's verbal with Petersen, ultimately informed the Ellsberg's Pentagon Papers trial of the break-in, having first sought and received — the President's concurrence.

The contradictions over the President's role in the case were among four new volumes of impeachment evidence, totaling 2,000 pages, released by the House Judiciary Committee. A fifth volume, 225 pages, contained defense evidence.

The White House defense on the Ellsberg burglary stopped short of claiming legitimacy for it, but hinted strongly that such measures were warranted by concern over leaks.

Nowhere is there any hard evidence that Nixon might have known of the operation in advance, or, for that matter, until John W. Dean mentioned it on March 17, 1973. But it was noted that Ehrlichman spoke with Nixon at length on the same day that Ehrlichman was himself briefed by one of the principals after the operation.

Porno Battle On Seizure In 2 Courts

An Orlando federal court injunction was being sought with a chance of Guichrist Seminoles State's Attorney's office attempt to seize the entire contents of an Altamonte Springs warehouse raided for containing pornographic materials Wednesday.

Meanwhile, another hearing in Sanford before Guichrist County Judge Millard Lang was dealing with the alleged pornographic materials seized by the state attorney and sheriff's raiders.

Chief State Atty's investigator Jack Fulwider said 927 individual items, representing one of every individual bulk item in the 423 Joanne Court warehouse were seized and the entire stock inventoried overnight.

Jerry Mable, owner of the warehouse, was not arrested, but observed the raid. His attorney, Gerald Rutberg, today opposed efforts to seize the warehouse contents.

Assistant State Atty. Bill Staley said no decision has been made on what criminal charges if any will be filed as a result of the raid and seizures.

Red Tape Cut To Aid Blind Woman

By BILL BELLEVILLE
Herald Staff Writer

Eighty-year-old Mary Steele, a legally blind Sanford lady cared for by the State's Division of Family Services (DFS), languished for several weeks in her condemned home because DFS refused to provide moving services for her.

Sanford City Manager Pete Knowles said, "We found a place for her, but when we checked back two weeks later, Mrs. Steele was still there. DFS said they couldn't move her."

Knowles, a building inspector, and a Parks Department employee drove a city truck to Mrs. Steele's city-condemned house on Palmetto Avenue and transferred her to an apartment in Redding Gardens.

Mrs. Steele's house had been condemned since April as unsafe, dilapidated and unsanitary. The original 90-day eviction notice was postponed by Knowles until a new residence could be found.

"Tom Wilson (public housing director) and I came up with one," Knowles said. Family Services rejected that one because there was not adequate heat. Mrs. Steele has a chronic arthritis condition requiring that she be kept warm most of the time — even in summer.

Then on July 1, a satisfactory apartment became available in the Gardens.

"I expected Mrs. Steele to be in right away," Knowles said this week. "But when I checked back last week she was still on Palmetto."

Knowles said he was disappointed by the DFS's bureaucratic attitude in the situation.

FBI Still Hunts Patty

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The FBI agent in charge of the Patricia Hearst kidnaping case says he lies awake nights thinking about ways to find the fugitive heiress and the two companions whose terrorist cause she has adopted.

"We've interviewed 22,000 people right here in this damn office alone," said Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the Symbionese Liberation Army investigation. The investigation's principal aim now is the arrest of the 29-year-old Miss Hearst and Emily and Bill Harris.

Bates said Wednesday that 150 agents had been working on the case since Miss Hearst was abducted from her Berkeley apartment by the SLA Feb. 4. She later renounced her family and said she had joined the terrorist organization.

Bates said he would guarantee safety for the three if they turned themselves in.

Miss Hearst and the Harris are the only known survivors of the SLA. Six other members of the organization died in a blazing shoot-out with Los Angeles police May 17.

Cox, Man Nixon Fired, Returns To Law

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Archibald Cox, the man hired and fired by President Nixon as special Watergate prosecutor, has eased back into the role that seems to suit him best—a professor, not prosecutor, or lawyer, at Harvard.

Cox, a victim of what has come to be called the "Saturday Night Massacre" last October, spends his days now grading law papers and lecturing to his students, extolling with occasional sermons the virtues of fairness and reason. Life for Cox goes on almost as before.

With a few exceptions. Like the lingering stares he gets when he pedals across campus on his bicycle, his tired insistence that no, he cannot discuss Watergate, and the wonder, now that he could have been the center of a hurricane of national controversy over a major government shakeup.

Cox seems to have made a studied attempt to run his life with the courtly, Yankee good humor and the slight eccentricities that make him such a distinctive campus figure.

ARCHIBALD COX

He still drives a pickup truck to Harvard Law School.

He still shovels out the stables at the family farm where his wife raises Morgan horses.

He still gets panned in student reviews of his teaching style.

He still wears his narrow lapel, slope shoulder suits and button-down shirts. And in a time of wide ties, fat bows or none at all, he still wears his skinny bow ties.

Above it all, there is the talk of fair play and civility that he dwelled on before he became special prosecutor, and that he dwells on now. It is the theme of his public speeches.

For instance, in his Phi Beta Kappa Oration at Harvard this spring, Cox compared the tactics of the Senate Watergate committee to those of the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy in the 1950s.

The committee or its staff "leaked the result of incomplete investigation, gives out the accusatory inferences it draws from secret testimony and even releases proposed findings of guilt upon men under indictment," Cox said.

Cox is a liberal. But in his concern for his favorite virtues, he avoids some of the popular liberal causes.

In a speech at Brandeis University upon men under indictment, Cox said:

Cox seems content, for the time being, to continue as a professor—an occupation that has filled the time between forays into federal government law. The most notable of those, until last year, was a term during the Kennedy administration as solicitor general.

He maintains there is nothing in him in elective politics.

"I have neither the desire nor the intention to run for office," he says in a tone that makes it clear he's repeated it enough to get better-perfect.

Faculty scoldings had it for years that Cox would have been appointed to the Supreme Court if President John F. Kennedy had lived. Now F. Kennedy did live. Now F. Kennedy, D-Mass., might become president.

Though deluged with requests for appearances, Cox has confined his speaking to Harvard affairs, four commencements, three or four established legal lectures and an appearance for Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz.

But he does occasionally grant interviews in his tiny, book-lined office in a modern law school building.

Cox carefully places topics to his left—deafness in his right ear is one of the few signs of his 63 years—and he settles down to talk about his favorite topic, the law.

250,000 Workers Striking

By CHARLES WHITE, Associated Press Writer

Tentative agreements have ended strikes of Rhode Island prison guards and 4,000 state employees in Ohio, but nearly a quarter of a million other Americans stayed away from work today as a result of labor disputes.

Communications workers authorized a strike vote against the Bell Telephone System and pickets marched at two air lines, Arizona copper mines, San Francisco bus garages, and a Minnesota snowmobile maker. Walkouts also affected municipal workers in hundreds of cities and private industry.

Labor experts say the strike surge swiftly followed the end of federal economic controls, and in most instances workers sought to fight inflation with wage hike demands that exceeded 10 percent.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service said it has tallied more strikes than at any time since it began counting in 1959, with 230,000 workers involved in 588 strikes during the week that ended last Monday.

This was the labor scene early today.

TELEPHONES—The Communications Workers of America file today authorized a strike vote against the Bell Telephone System, but a union spokesman said talks would continue while the union's 500,000 members vote on the strike question over the next two weeks.

However, some 1,300 CWA members of Local 2001 in West Virginia voted on strike and an official of the local expected 2,500 employees of Western Electric and AT&T to honor the picket lines. Workers in other localities in the state were expected to return to work today.

At midnight Wednesday 33 contracts covering 750,000 Bell employees expired. Neither the company or the union's demand was disclosed.

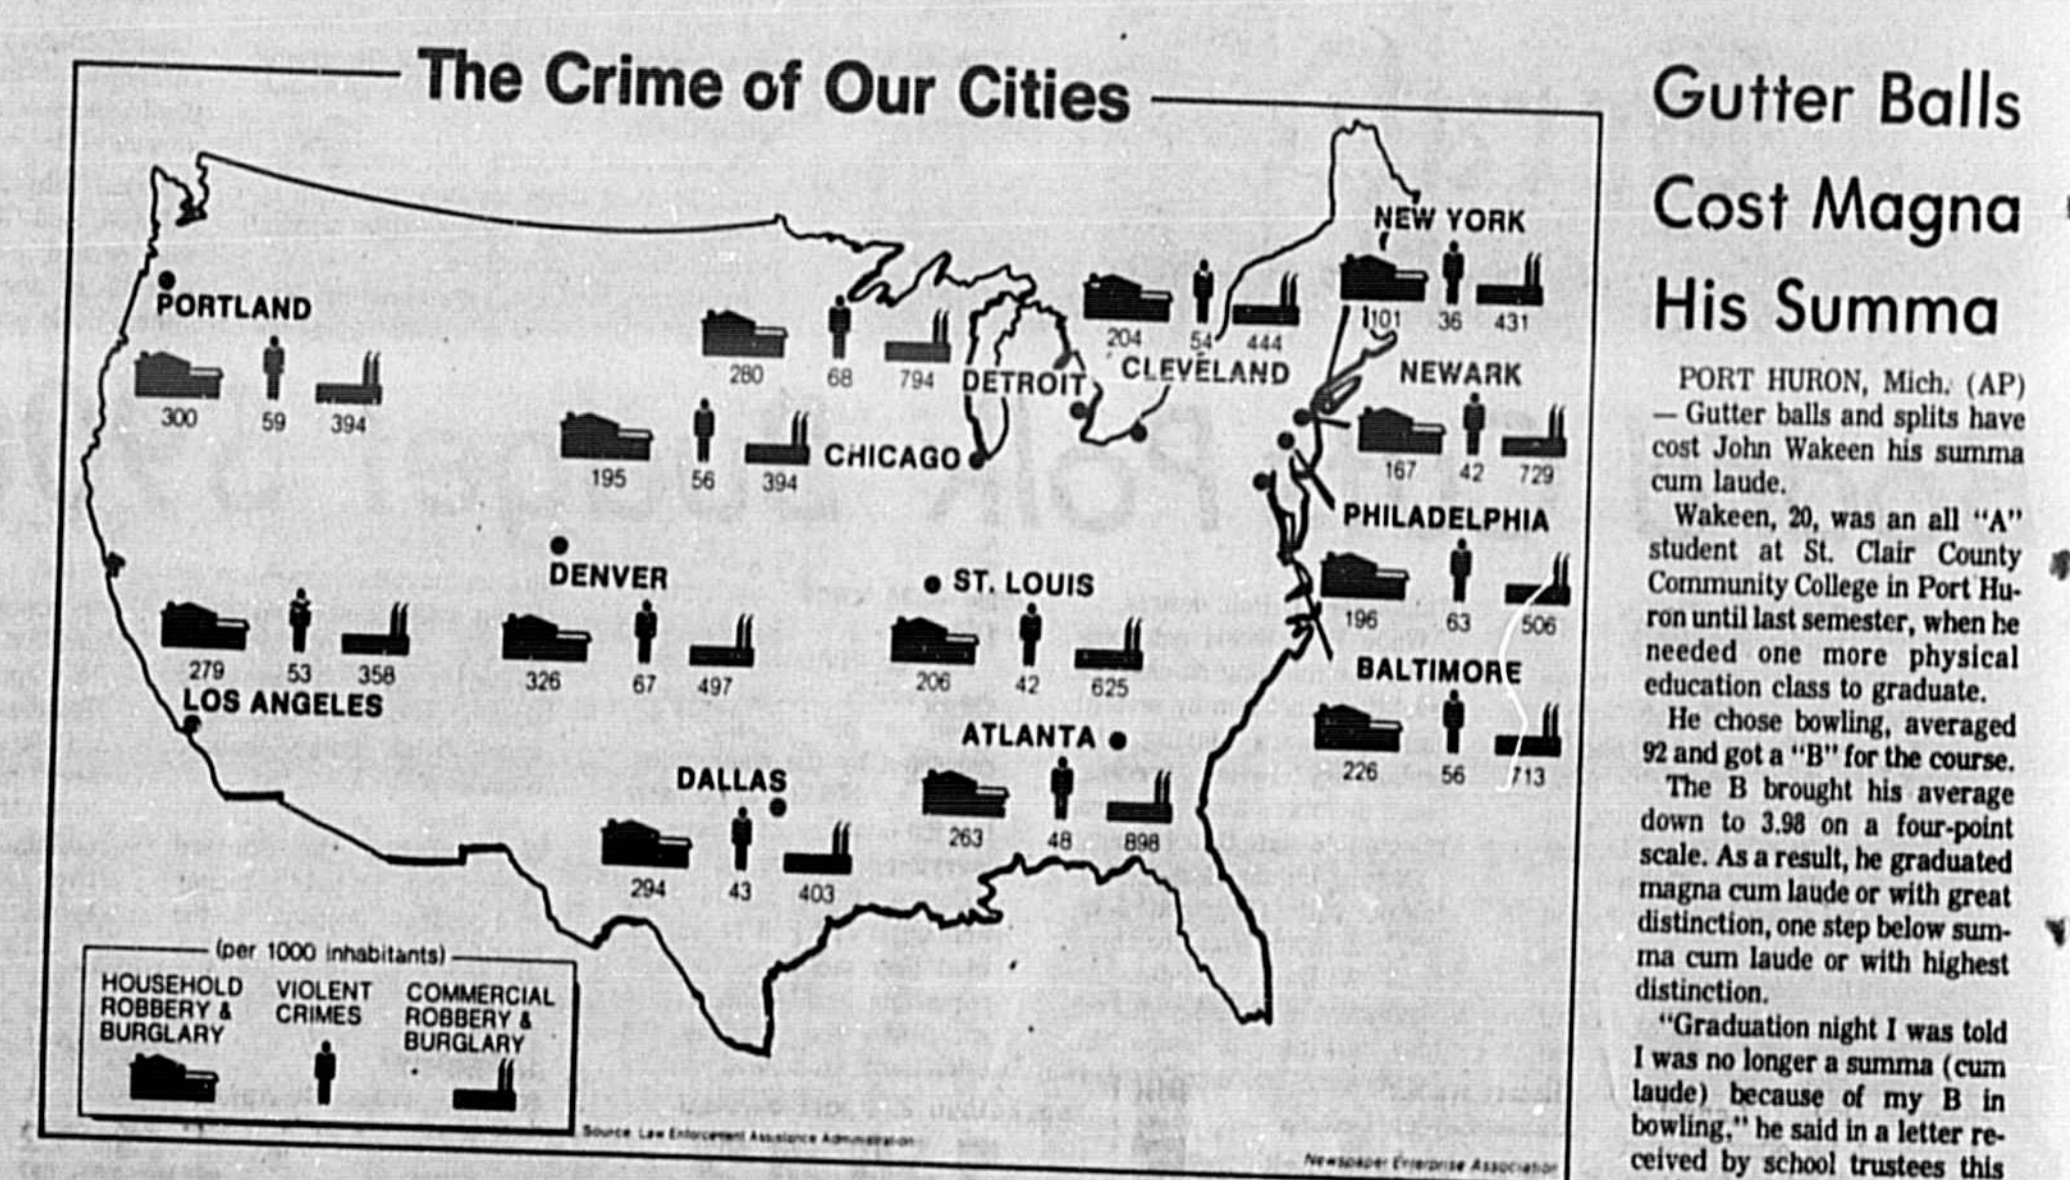

RHODE ISLAND—National Guardsmen and state troopers were ordered off duty in Cranston by Gov. Philip Noel, who announced a settlement Wednesday in the walkout of guards at the state prison in the town.

Some of the 247 guards walked off the job to protest what they felt was lenient handling of an inmate who had assaulted guards, triggering the full-scale strike two days ago.

He said he was assured by officials of the Brotherhood of Correctional Officers that future union policy would not include the use of job actions as a bargaining tactic.

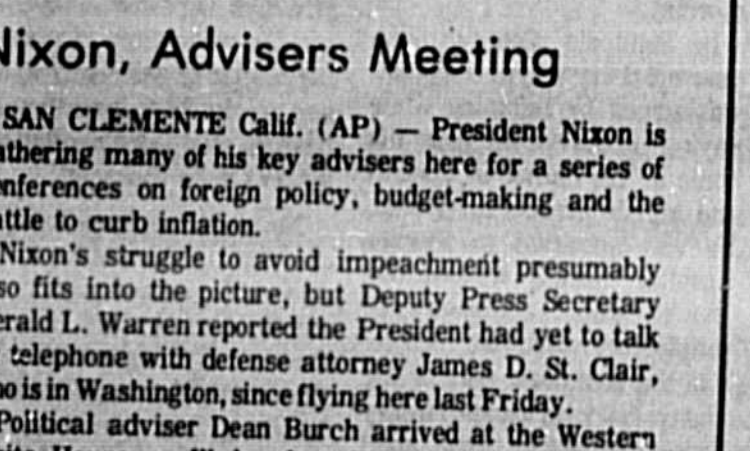

OHIO—A legislative pay raise proposal was reluctantly accepted by 4,000 of the 7,500 state employees striking prisons, mental health hospitals, liquor stores and other facilities.

Local chapter presidents of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees accepted a joint legislative committee's suggested increases in hourly wages of 30 cents for those earning less than $6,000 annually.

WHAT IS the safest big city in the United States? Would you believe New York? According to a recent study by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, New York had the fewest crimes of violence per inhabitant of the 13 cities studied. The LEAA also rated cities according to burglaries and robberies of both households and businesses.

Nixon, Advisers Meeting

SAN CLEMENTE Calif. (AP)—President Nixon is gathering many of his key advisers here for a series of conferences on foreign policy, budget-making and the battle to curb inflation.

Nixon's struggle to avoid impeachment, presumably also fits into the picture, but Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren reported the President had yet to talk by telephone with defense attorney James D. St. Clair, who is in Washington, since flying here last Friday.

Political adviser Dean Brown arrived at the Western White House on Wednesday. Warren said Brown and Nixon would discuss the budgetary impact of pending legislation.

Scheduled to arrive today for meetings with the President were retiring Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Nixon and Kissinger conferred by phone at least twice on Wednesday, with the Cyprus situation the principal topic.

At Kissinger's recommendation, Nixon dispatched Under Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco to London for talks with British and Turkish officials.

Marriage Credits

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP)—An Alaska man who flunked a "Problems of Marriage" course 33 years ago thinks his grade should be changed because he has proven his professor wrong.

Ieroy M. McDonald of Anchorage told Washington State University's registrar this spring that he has been married to the same woman for 31 years.

McDonald asked whether he should petition university regents for special consideration. He said he was "trying hard to get a degree before my youngest child does."

It was the second time McDonald has tried to have his academic failure in Sociology 40 in 1941 wiped off the records.

Six years ago, he wrote the university. "This year I completed 25 years of marriage to the same woman and have raised two fine boys. Is it possible that you could extend me credits for this course?"

He noted that he received an "A" in a wedding course but said he was certain some of those words since had been broken.

WSU Registrar C. James Quinn said that perhaps McDonald should be hired as a consultant for the course, which is still in the curriculum.

Impeachment Politics

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Gerald R. Ford and three other top Republicans have accused Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss of injecting politics into the congressional impeachment inquiry.

"It makes it partisan," Ford said of Strauss' pro-impeachment statement. "I could have a backstab" that will help the President, Ford told a reporter Wednesday night.

St. Clair To Offer Nixon's Defense As Impeach Articles Are Prepared

WASHINGTON (AP)—White House lawyer James D. St. Clair will present President Nixon's impeachment defense to a House Judiciary Committee that already is drafting proposed articles of impeachment.

St. Clair's summation today, aimed at establishing that Nixon was not involved in the Watergate cover-up or any other matter under investigation, brings to a close the final stage of its impeachment inquiry.

Starting Friday it will receive from special counsel John Doar a number of alternative articles of impeachment, together with supporting facts, that will serve as the basis for the committee's deliberations next week.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., rejected the charge made by some Republicans that Doar was abandoning the objective, nonpartisan stance he has maintained throughout the impeachment proceedings in drawing up proposed articles.

"I am not advocating a position," Rodino said in an interview.

The committee moved into the summation phase after hearing its last witness Wednesday, Nixon's former personal lawyer Herbert W. Kalmbach. He described his role in a $2 million dairy campaign pledge and in arranging ambassadorships.

Some members said later Kalmbach testified he did not discuss with Nixon any of his activities under investigation, including the raising of alleged hush money for Watergate defendants.

Kalmbach, serving a 6-to-18-month jail sentence for violating campaign fund-raising laws and offering ambassadorships to Nixon campaign contributors, told of receiving a $100,000 offer for Nixon's campaign from J. Pile Symington, who was ambassador to Trinidad-Tobago but who hoped to receive an ambassadorship to a European country.

Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., said Kalmbach called then-White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, who was out, and relayed the offer to Lawrence Higby, a Haldeman aide.

Higby called back shortly and said "the word is go. Lock it up."

Another presidential aide blocked the appointment, Wiggins said.

In a related Watergate matter, the perjurer trial of I.G. Gov. Ed Reinecke of California is continuing after U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker rejected a defense motion to dismiss the case.

The college administration says it will consider a pass-fail system for physical education classes that wouldn't jeopardize grade-point averages. However, the school's faculty has rejected such a system twice before.

Trustees conceded Waken has a point. But Dr. Richard L. Norris, college president, said an athlete who gets all A's in physical education, but can't do math, could make the same point.

Waken took mostly mathematics courses and received an A for another physical education course in calisthenics. He also insists he still enjoys bowling.

Pro, Con Of Free Bus Rides

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Four double-decker buses from England have started free shuttle service here and nearly everybody seems happy.

City officials are pleased, and so are shoppers and the bank which bought the buses in London, had them refurbished and shipped them to Milwaukee.

But not so the Milwaukee and Suburban Transport Co., which operates the regular bus system here. "It says that since no fare is charged, the buses do not come under its regulations.

The transport company has appealed the PSC's action to the Dane County Circuit Court in Madison.

"It's the wrong approach," said Henry W. Mayer, the company's vice president and general manager. "They should charge a fare. That would mean the State Public Service Commission could regulate them."

The company claims the free bus service, with which the Midland National Bank hopes to get more people downtown, will cut sharply into a prime revenue area.

The Public Service Commission has refused to declare the shuttle bus system a "common carrier." It says that since no fare is charged, the buses do not come under its regulations.

The buses operate from 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on weekdays and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays along a nine-block stretch of the main downtown thoroughfare.

Gutter Balls Cost Magna His Summa

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP)—Gutter balls and splits have cost John Waken his summa cum laude.

Waken, 20, was an all "A" student at St. Clair County Community College in Port Huron until last semester, when he needed one more physical education class to graduate.

He chose bowling, averaged 92 and got a "B" for the course.

The B brought his average down to 3.88 on a four-point scale. As a result, he graduated magna cum laude or with great distinction, one step below summa cum laude or with highest distinction.

"Graduation night I was told I was no longer a summa (cum laude) because of my B in bowling," he said in a letter received by school trustees this week.

"I consider the Latin terminology employed in my system to be a farce," Waken told trustees. "I've been insulted by the college as a result of my inability to manipulate a bowling ball down a bowling alley."

The college administration says it will consider a pass-fail system for physical education classes that wouldn't jeopardize grade-point averages. However, the school's faculty has rejected such a system twice before.

Trustees conceded Waken has a point. But Dr. Richard L. Norris, college president, said an athlete who gets all A's in physical education, but can't do math, could make the same point.

Waken took mostly mathematics courses and received an A for another physical education course in calisthenics. He also insists he still enjoys bowling.

Drug Agent Didn't Pay Salary Tax

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—An undercover agent says he never paid income tax on money he was paid by the government for information on an alleged drug-smuggling ring.

Eugene Lloyd made the statement Wednesday while testifying in the trial of William Fenton Langston of Tallahassee and Lawrence Murphy of Delray Beach.

Lloyd said he was paid $7,500 for information that led to charges against Langston, Murphy and two other persons.

But Lloyd said he never reported the money on his income tax return.

A federal Drug Enforcement Administration agent, Robert Johnson, testified that he had told Lloyd he did not have to report the payments and did not know until Wednesday that such reports are required.

Johnstone is in charge of the DEA's office in Anchorage, Alaska, where Lloyd lives.

Langston is the son-in-law of former Judge G. Harold Carswell and was a legal aide to former Gov. Claude Kirk.

Editorial Finance Work Will Aid Simon

Treasury Secretary William Simon's mission to Saudi Arabia reminds us that he was successful securities dealer before he got into government. This could serve him well, since one hope for resolving the problem of too many dollars in Arab hands is to attract more of them back to America in long-term investments.

The Arabs may be chary of tying up funds in an economy being battered by inflation and fears of recession. However, Simon has an opportunity to remind the Arabs that they are part of our economic problem and it would serve them well to become part of the solution.

The climate should be improving for international cooperation to deal with the widespread economic trouble resulting from price-gouging by oil exporters and the massive trade imbalances being incurred by the oil-consuming nations. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, on his recent swing through Europe, renewed his call for meeting the energy crisis with a common front. Europeans may now be more willing to do so than they were last winter when the scramble for oil gave rise to a mentality of every man for himself.

Saudi Arabia may be especially receptive at this time to the proposition that we are all in the energy boat together. Having more money than they can manage effectively is not the only dilemma facing the oil-rich sheiks. They also have more oil on their hands than they know what to do with. Although the long-term depletion of oil resources is as real a threat as ever, the 300 per

The U.S. Supreme Court: Nine Men Who Are Alone

By TOM TIEDE
The Herald Staff

WASHINGTON — (NEA) While the people of the United States wait for the decision in the case of their government vs. their president, the eight participating Supreme Court justices go about what Arthur Goldberg calls "the lonely business of judging."

Lonely indeed. Secluded in their marble chamber, some of them avoiding even news accounts of litigation in progress, the old men operate "in Washington's one remaining isolation ward. They do not have the luxury of polls to gauge the republic's attitude. There are no leaks to relieve the pressures of their responsibilities. There is, as Goldberg says, communion "with the great spirits of the masters of the law who, preceded," but otherwise, "each man must decide the matter entirely by himself."

Goldberg's own history is a graduate of the supreme legal monastery (1952-65), one of four living former justices. Now in private Washington practice, he remembers his first day on the big bench as "the time when my telephone stopped ringing. Nobody calls a Supreme Court justice. They are men apart. The public view of them is that they are wizards of Oz, to be respected but never approached lest the Great Decision-Making Process be interrupted.

The public view is, of course, excessive. But there is, according to Goldberg, much that is monkish about the men who can integrate schools, outlaw pornography and judge presidents.

"You do not shop for opinions," says Goldberg of members; the wives, sons and bowling partners of the justices are never consulted about matters before the court. "When I was there, I didn't talk to anybody outside the court. I didn't even tell my law clerk how I'd vote."

Instead, members consult each other in a variety of ways. One-to-one contact is naturally frequent, with exchanges of ideas, opinions and sometimes arguments. "They don't roar at one another," says a court official, "what they do is use

President Can't Lose This Bet

By DON OAKLEY
The Herald Staff

WASHINGTON—Hall of Federal today drinks flouridated water to avert cavities. Yet federal authorities are suddenly taking another related look at its safety and effectiveness.

This could reveal the great fluoridation controversy of 20 years ago, although the authorities are going about it coolly and quietly.

The fluoride fighters of the 1950s regarded the addition of fluoride to drinking water as a "Communist plot" to brainwash the American people.

For those who have forgotten or are too young to remember, there really were "little old ladies in tennis shoes" passing out pamphlets in the aisles of New York subways. There were town meetings and angry campaigns. The daughters of the American Revolution were agast.

In his defense of the doctrine of executive privilege — specifically, the right of the President to withhold 64 White House tapes from the special Watergate prosecutor, St. Clair stated his argument in these sweeping terms:

Only Congress, he told the justices, through the impeachment process, has the power to breach the constitutional balance between the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the government. In all other cases, even in a criminal proceeding, the President has not the right to refuse to disclose confidential information in his possession to either Congress or the courts if, in his judgment, such disclosure would jeopardize or encroach upon his executive functioning.

In other words, in any matter before the Congress in which it is believed the President has relevant information — even if the President is not himself personally involved — the House of Representatives must first impeach the President before he can be required to produce that information.

Ironically, this is precisely the opposite of the position of most Republican members of the House Judiciary Committee.

On June 3, with much hedging and apology, Groth wrote to Dr. Lloyd Tepper, FDA's energetic associate commissioner, himself a student of anti-cavity additives.

"I must admit to being a bit reluctant to write to you on this subject," he told Tepper, "since I do not want to get into a position of supporting the opponents of fluoridation, with whom I have little sympathy."

Groth said he recognized that the body of research seeming to "Support the effectiveness and safety of fluoridation is enormous. And there is an apparently overwhelming consensus among experts that (fluoridation) reduces dental caries some 60 per cent, without any adverse effects on any person."

That duly acknowledged, Groth proceeded to make a devastating case for reopening the files on fluoridation.

For one thing, he observes, the Public Health Service was involved in a gigantic conflict of interest at the time of the fluoride fever.

The fluoridation idea, as Groth explains it, "was developed by the dental branch of PHIS, and the evaluation of the adequacy of the evidence was conducted primarily by PHIS scientists and by other outside scientists who were also very much involved in the development and promotion of the measure."

The key studies, said Groth, lacked even "the most basic elements of 'blind' design" which ensure total objectivity. Besides, factors such as the subjects' dental care, diet and fluoride intake were never even cranked into the studies, he reported.

More ominously, Groth wrote, "There is still not adequate evidence, despite numerous statements from high places to the contrary, that (fluoridation) is 'without appreciable risk.'"

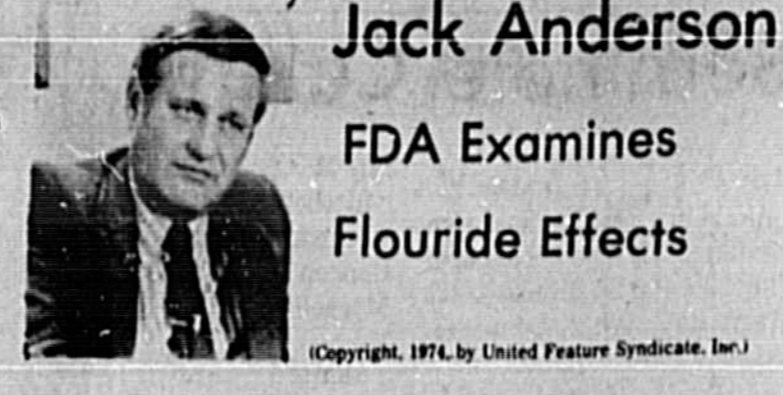

All these considerations were brushed aside 20 years ago because of "the political controversy which swirled around fluoridation." The heat of the debate "made it expedient to have as firm a scientific statement as possible, and as early in the game as possible," Groth concluded.

When Tepper got the letter, he told us he decided that "we could not just push it aside. It comes with credentials of a high order." Not only Groth, he explained, but some of his elders, including two well-known biologists and a pharmacologist, are also concerned about the longrange effects of fluoridation.

"We definitely have made no conclusions, but we are going to look into the issue," he told us.

Groth, who had hoped the new fluoridation controversy could be handled within the scientific community, told us: "My keeping my fingers crossed. I don't want it to lead to more choosing up sides."

Footnote: Groth has at least one powerful ally in Washington. Ralph Nader tells us he has been worried about the inadequacy of follow-tests on fluoride intake for years. He blames the FDA for footdragging on a definitive nationwide survey.

Strike Talks Deadlock

MIAMI (AP) — Federal mediators trying to break a deadlock over fringe benefits were to meet in Washington today with representatives of National Airlines and striking members of the International Association of Machinists.

The strike, which has shut down the carrier's operations since Monday, is the fifth suffered by National in the past eight years and the third directly involving the IAM.

William Spurlock, chief negotiator for the 1,600 union members, said major unsettled issues include pensions, paid lunch breaks for workers on the midnight shift, vacations and a proposed cost-of-living pay escalation clause.

Dyer called Wednesday for a full, fair and open public hearing on the millions of dollars in additional charges that have resulted from the fuel adjustment clause.

"A sense of fairness demands that consumers of this state be given the opportunity to be heard," he said in a letter to PSC Chairman Bill Bevis.

For years, the fuel adjustment clause has been a part of rate schedules that were adopted after public hearings.

PSC Practice Attacked

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Rep. Harold Dyer, D-Hollywood, says the Public Service Commission's practice of allowing electric companies to raise rates as fuel oil prices go up is illegal.

Dyer called Wednesday for a full, fair and open public hearing on the millions of dollars in additional charges that have resulted from the fuel adjustment clause.

"A sense of fairness demands that consumers of this state be given the opportunity to be heard," he said in a letter to PSC Chairman Bill Bevis.

For years, the fuel adjustment clause has been a part of rate schedules that were adopted after public hearings.

Revels Seeks Governorship

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — J. P. Revels, a Green Cove Springs businessman, said today he has been nominated by the American Party as its candidate for governor.

Revels said he plans to announce his candidacy in Tallahassee next week. He must obtain 105,000 signatures by Aug. 5 to get on the ballot for the Nov. 5 general election.

The American Party resulted from Alabama Gov. George Wallace's 1968 presidential campaign. Revels, who has real estate and investment interests, said he was a former Clay County chairman for Wallace.

Mom Arranges Funeral; Kills Self, 3 Children

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Hazel Johnston wrote to a funeral home, laid out her three children's best clothes on the living room couch and placed a 35-caliber pistol upon a nearby table.

Police say she then lined the kids up on a bed, shot each to death and killed herself with the 35-caliber pistol used on the children.

Clinton 12, LaAnna Michelle, 6; Cynthia Yvonne, 4, and Mrs. Johnston, 32, were all shot in the head, said homicide investigator Gordon Bass.

The tragedy came to light Wednesday when a funeral home received Mrs. Johnston's letter detailing plans for the funeral of her children and herself.

Bass said the shootings occurred sometime after 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

"I am at this point ready to meet my Master," Mrs. Johnston said in her letter. "I have been sick for so long."

She also left a note in the home for the Rev. Harold R.

Court Denies Dismissal Of Christian Charges

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Circuit Judge John Rudd has denied five motions to dismiss charges against former Education Commissioner Floyd Christian and was expected to rule today on others.

Rudd ruled Wednesday on five of the 20 motions argued in court Monday by a team of four Christian defense attorneys and a special prosecutor, Asst. State Atty. Aaron Bowden of Jacksonville.

Christian's attorneys admitted Monday that he had received $63,074.57 from Robert Bussey, a former business associate.

But they disputed charges that Christian accepted the money as bribes to channel several state education contracts to Bussey firms.

A Leon County grand jury indicted Christian on 19 counts of bribery, conspiracy, and perjury.

In one of the most significant rulings Wednesday, Rudd rejected Christian's contention that a state Cabinet member cannot be indicted before he is impeached by the legislature or resigns. Christian did not resign until after his indictment.

"The commissioner of education is not immune from criminal indictment and prosecution while in office," Rudd ruled.

The judge also rejected a defense contention that Gov. Reubin Askew's executive order assigning State Atty. T. Edward Gurney's seat Wednesday but has not yet qualified.

Spector and England are trying to force an election to fill the vacancy that will be created on the Supreme Court next January when Justice Richard Ervin turns 70, the mandatory retirement age.

Ervin attempted to resign this summer, effective in January, but Shevin issued a legal opinion saying he could not resign unless it was effective before the election.

Spector said he will not run for re-election to the appeal court if he loses the fight to qualify as a Supreme Court candidate.

added. "Therefore, any waiver by the defendant of such rights was strictly an individual, voluntary act."

Rudd said a defense argument that the two-year statute of limitations had expired since the alleged acts took place in 1969 and 1971 was "not well-founded."

"The commissioner of education is on an equal or near equal status with the governor and is not controlled by the governor or his directives," the judge

Judge Postpones Bid For High Court Seat

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Judge Sam Spector of the 1st District Court of Appeal today postponed until Monday his attempt to qualify for a seat on the Florida Supreme Court — a post that is not up for election this year.

Spector said he changed his plans to attempt to qualify today and file suit if he is rejected because of the death Wednesday of his mother-in-law, Billie Jo Lanier of Tallahassee.

"Everything is ready to go and I had fully intended to go today, but because of this untimely event I'll just have to wait until Monday," he said.

Spector's attempt to qualify apparently will end up in the courts since Arthur England, a Miami attorney, was rejected by state elections officials Wednesday when he attempted to qualify for the same Supreme Court seat.

Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin said the seat is not vacant. Meanwhile, Rep. Lou Frey, R-Fla., has called a news conference in Washington today to announce whether he will join Public Service Commissioner Paula Hawkins as a Republican Senate primary opponent to indicted Sen. Edward Gurney.

Mrs. Hawkins announced for

Contempt Citations Tossed Out

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court has tossed out the contempt of court citations against six of the "Gainesville Eight" defendants and a trial spectator.

The conviction came before the eight were tried last summer on charges of plotting to violently disrupt the 1972 Republican National Convention. The trial cleared the eight members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, of those charges.

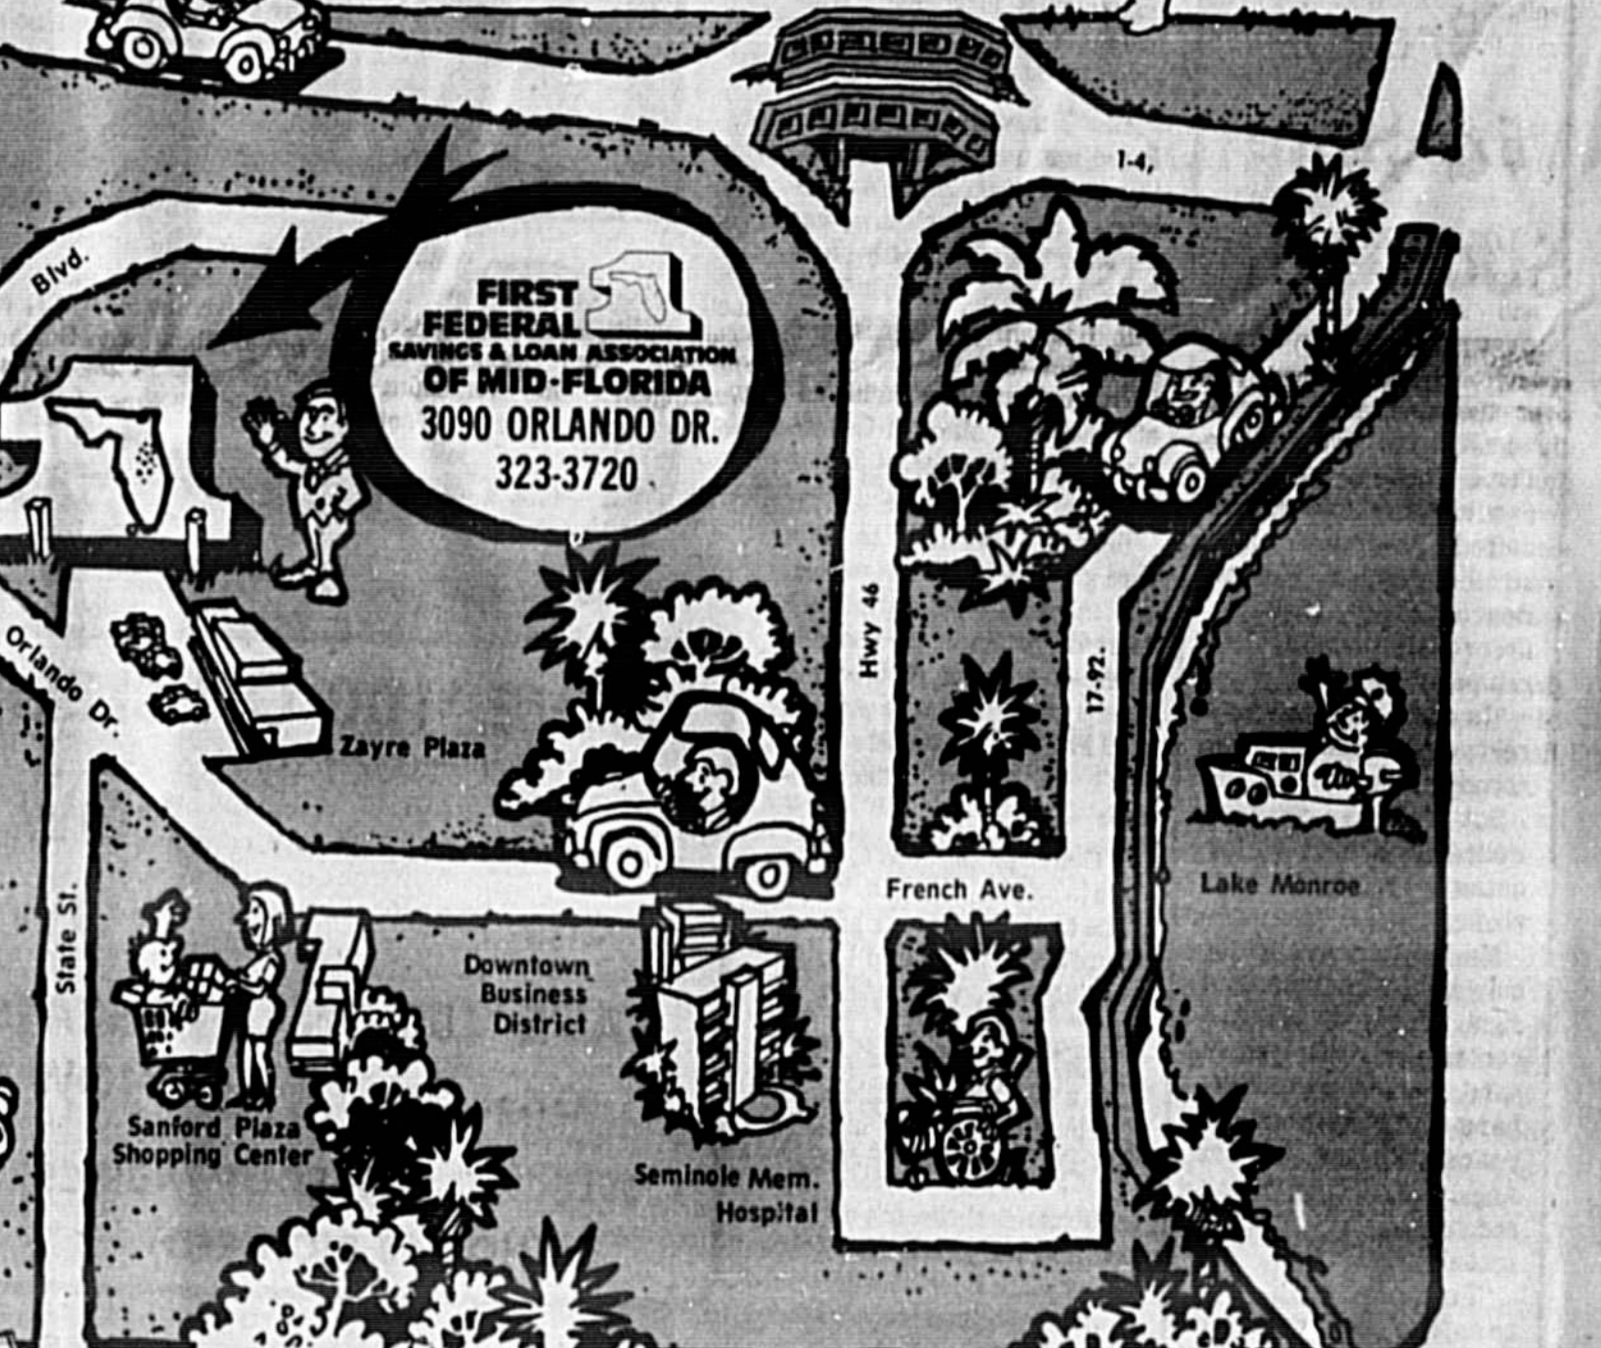

The contempt conviction, levied by U.S. District Judge Winston Arnov because of a disturbance in the courtroom during a pretrial hearing, brought a sentence of unsupervised probation during the length of the trial.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals threw out the conviction Wednesday, saying that Arnov failed to show in the record that he observed the disturbance and that he failed to list a recitation of the facts of the disturbance.

Appealing the contempt convictions were Scott Canill, Alton C. Foss, John W. Kliffen, Stanley K. Nicholson, William J. Patterson, Donald B. Pardue and the spectator, Frank Hall.

Washington Ordeal Successful Restraint

WASHINGTON (AP) — The specter of bloodshed has hung over the federal courtroom throughout the five-day confrontation between police and two armed convicts. But restraint on both sides produced a siege of wits and endurance instead of bullets.

The government strategy during the 105-hour ordeal was to offer a lesson in patience for police around the nation.

The potential for violence and death was present from the moment the armed convicts, Frank Gorham and Robert Nathan Jones, seized eight hostages and held them at gunpoint in the U.S. District Courthouse cellblock Thursday. They demanded freedom and a flight out of the country in exchange for safe release of the hostages.

The first night passed, and the hostages survived unharmed, and the prisoners were talking by telephone with a team of law enforcement negotiators and with reporters.

The main thrust of our strategy was to keep them eating and our main ally was the press," recalled Deputy Atty. Gen. Laurence Silberman, who became the ultimate decision-maker when the negotiators disagreed among themselves.

When reporters' calls to the cellblock slackened off, law enforcement officials posing as interested citizens made their own calls to keep Gorham and Jones awed and distracted, Silberman said in an interview.

As long as the prisoners held the hostages, there was little dispute about the strategy of waiting. "It was terribly important to us to do nothing to jeopardize the lives of the hostages or the inmates," Silberman said.

But the negotiators sensed there was room for bargaining with Gorham and Jones and played for time.

The government team included Chief U.S. Marshal George McKinley, assistant James Palmer, deputy police chief Maurice Cullinane, Police Chief Jerry Wilson, Acting U.S. Atty. Earl Silber, Norman Carlson, head of the Bureau of Prisons, and Donald Moore, special agent in charge of the Washington FBI office.

Silberman said it appeared violence would be unavoidable when Gorham said he had an axe and threatened that heads would roll.

But again, they waited and again, Gorham cooled down. The hostages escaped unharmed Sunday. With Gorham slumbering and Jones on the telephone, authorities smuggled in an elevator key and the hostages fed within minutes.

And still, authorities chose to wait instead of making the cellblock to subdue Gorham and Jones by force.

"The pressure was off and we were generally inclined to just wait them out," Silberman said.

The siege ended Monday night when Gorham and Jones surrendered after one last futile bid for freedom. Chopping their way through air conditioning ducts, they hid the cellblock and exchanged gunfire with police. No one was hurt.

The 105 hours without injuries surprised some outside observers.

"All in all, I was really pleased to see the restraint, I couldn't believe it, especially in this town. The quick response is to go in and start shooting," said George J. Mische, executive director of the National Coordinating Committee for Justice Under Law, a prison reform group.

Dear Sir:
Why did I have the distinct impression someone was going to ask to see my "Real Estate" license at the Chamber of Commerce meeting in Lake Mary Monday night?

I could have been in a room filled with members I counted nine Real Estate Licensed members?

It seems quite obvious the balance of power has overwhelmingly been acclaimed by those in the community who could profit the most from its development.

As the only openly opposed member in attendance (opposed to remaining a city under the direction of the "three to two" existing council, I can only cry for the citizens who care less for services and more for the sleepy little village to come out and vote. We need.

You. We need the homeowners, the people who gravitate to the "country style living", not to change it, but to enjoy it. Let your voice be heard at the polls.

Abduction Turns Double Murder In Miami Swamp

MIAMI (AP) — A well-to-do businessman tried to buy his wife's safety with a $50,000 ransom, the FBI says, but the decision to deal with an abductor ended in the shooting death of the wealthy couple.

"He decided he wanted to get the money and turn it over to the gunman because he was afraid about his wife," FBI Special Agent Ken Whittaker said Wednesday.

Sydney Gans, 64, rushed into a downtown Miami bank Wednesday morning, told the bank president that his wife Lillian, 60, was being held by a gunman and that he needed $50,000. The president called the FBI and Whittaker rushed to the bank.

Whittaker said Gans told him that the gunman, later identified as Thomas Knight, 23, an employee of Gans' paper-bag company, was circling the block with Mrs. Gans in the Ganses' luxury automobile.

The FBI arranged for discreet surveillance of the import, being driven by Mrs. Gans while the gunman held a semiautomatic carbine to her head, Whittaker said.

Gans placed the $50,000 in a paper bag, left the bank and was picked up by the abductor and Mrs. Gans. All three drove off.

Mrs. Gans was forced to drive to a lonely wooded area in the southwest Miami. The abductor then put a bullet through each of their heads and disappeared into the underbrush as police and agents closed in on him.

Some 200 lawmen converged on the scene and for some five hours used helicopters, a small plane, tracker dogs and tear gas to try to flush the gunman from his swampy hiding place.

Finally, Dade County Police Sgt. Russ Kubik almost stepped on him as his seven-man patrol edged its way through waist-high weeds after lobbing tear gas grenades into the undergrowth.

"He was burrowed into sandy soil on his side," said Kubik. "I thought he might be dead. But I put my gun to his head and said, 'get up, put your hands up.'" "Don't shoot," the man cried.

County police charged Knight, of Miami, with two counts of first-degree murder. The carbine and the money were found nearby after Knight and Mrs. Gans were pulled from the bushes, police said.

Whittaker discounted the possibility that the Ganses were shot because their abductor noticed the car was being followed.

"We believe he meant to bring them here and kill them all along," said Whittaker. "He knew all these roads well."

The gunman, who was riding in the back seat of Gans' Mercedes-Benz, pulled Gans out of the passenger side of the car after the shootings and apparently was trying to pull the body of Mrs. Gans from the driver's side when he "got sprung," an FBI spokesman said.

He gave up the effort and disappeared into the underbrush as police and FBI came driving up.

The front bucket seats of the Gans' car, which had been driven down a narrow, dirt road along the bank of a canal, were splattered with blood. Rivulets of blood still oozed out the door of the driver's side as it was towed away by a wrecker.

Friends described Gans as a rich, active sportsman who was among the owners of a Miami minor league baseball team in the 1940s and 50s. He was one of the founding trustees of Mount Sinai Hospital, one of the area's largest, and had recently been presented the Prime Minister's Silver Anniversary Medal for aid to Israel.

Gans inherited a small bag and paper business in Fort Chester, N.Y., and moved it to Miami, building it into one of the South's largest.

He and his wife are survived by two children, Charles Gans and Harris Gans Shapiro.

John Shapiro, his son-in-law, said the abductor was at the company office when Gans got there. "He had a submachine gun and made him drive home and get his wife."

From their home, the gunman forced the Ganses to drive to City National Bank where Gans told his story to Bank President Daniel Gill and later to the two FBI agents. He also described the weapon as a sub-machine gun. Police later found it was a short, semi-automatic .30-caliber carbine.

"He (Gans) was more concerned for the welfare of his wife than for his own safety," said Gill.

"Unfortunately, it appears that he (the abductor) meant to kill them all along," said Whittaker.

LONDON (AP) — Armed with promises of British support, deposed President Makarios of Cyprus planned to fly to New York today to ask the United Nations to condemn the Greek military junta for the coup that overthrew him.

The bearded, black-gowned archbishop was expected to appear before the Security Council on Friday.

Meanwhile, small-power members of the council were circulating a proposed resolution reportedly calling for the Greek officers who led the coup. In effect it also expressed opposition to annexation of the island by Greece, believed to be the object of the coup.

While Makarios pressed his personal crusade, Britain and the United States were trying to ease the threat of an armed confrontation between Greece and Turkey. Even though both organizations had put their armed forces on emergency alerts, American military officials in Washington said they believed an armed clash between the two ancient enemies was unlikely.

President Nixon ordered Undersecretary of State Joseph J. Sisco to fly to London today for talks with British and Turkish officials. But in contrast to the British government's support for Makarios that it considered him the only legitimate president of Cyprus, the State Department said the situation was unclear "and therefore, in our view, the question of recognition does not arise now."

Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit brought his defense and interior ministers to London, conferred late Wednesday night with Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary James Callaghan and prepared to fly back to Ankara today for an emergency session of the Turkish Parliament. There was no indication what the British told him they would do to prevent the 115,000 Turkish Cypriots being brought under Greek rule.

Both Makarios and Ecevit on their arrival in London on Wednesday said they would seek the restoration of democracy by Cyprus by peaceful means. But both made clear that they held the ruling military junta in Athens responsible for Monday's coup.

No more fighting was reported on Cyprus. The rebellious National Guard and its Greek officers apparently were in full control, and the international airport at Nicosia, the island's capital, reopened today to regular traffic for the first time since the upheaval.

The Cypriot rebels were reported building new defenses along the northern coast against attack from southern Turkey, 44 miles away. Reports from Turkey said 90,000 Turkish troops had been ordered to the south coast.

Reports to the U. S. Defense Department said the Turks had armed some of their F100 fighter-bombers based in southern Turkey and put the pilots on a one-hour alert. Naval movements also were reported along the southern coast. Greek officers who led the coup were reported to be in Greece and the coup leaders and a demonstration of concern for the safety and welfare of the Turkish minority on Cyprus. The officials acknowledged that there might be serious trouble if Greece or Turkey tried to reinforce the small garrisics of fewer than 1,000 men each that they maintain on Cyprus.

About 3,000 cheering Greek Cypriots massed outside Makarios' London hotel to cheer their political and spiritual leader.

Informed sources said that in addition to their assurance that the British government would not recognize the president installed by the coup, Nikos Sampson, Wilson agreed to put diplomatic pressure on Greece to withdraw the Greek officers who led the coup.

Callaghan told Makarios and Ecevit that his government wants to avoid any military involvement in the situation. But he told the House of Commons: "The Greek government bears a heavy responsibility for the situation in the island."

Casualties in the past three days of fighting between National Guard soldiers and pro-Greek forces have not been announced. But Papageorgiou acknowledged they were "high," and a nurse at the Nicosia General Hospital said 200 dead and wounded had been counted there.

Diplomatic sources said an early United Nations estimate of 30 dead in Nicosia was much too low. The only foreign casualties so far reported were a 6-year-old American girl and an American woman hit by bullets while driving through the city.

Their wounds were not critical. Troops with machine guns manned checkpoints throughout Nicosia and lined the main roads to the airport, where three Greek airliners have landed during the past 24 hours with high-ranking officials from Athens.

The American-born wife of another Makarios confidant, Dr. Vassos Lyssarides, was captured in a mountain village. Mrs. Lyssarides, the former Barbara Cornwall, is well known here as a writer and journalist.

Curfew restrictions were lifted Wednesday for eight hours. The capital's Greek Cypriots stripped supermarkets and corner groceries of canned goods in a frantic shopping spree.

Some of Turkey's recent moves have drawn close Pentagon attention. Reports reaching the Defense Department say the Turks have loaded weapons on some of their U.S.-built F100 fighter bombers and placed their pilots on one-hour alert. These planes are based in Incirlik in southern Turkey, about 200 air miles from the Cypriot capital of Nicosia.

If the Turks should attempt to send forces into Cyprus, they most likely would use their parachute brigade. The Turkish air force has a small fleet of about 50 transport planes, including U.S.-provided C130s. U.S. military officers discount the possibility that either Turkey or Greece could mount a major troop and tank invasion by sea. Neither country has more than about 20 landing ships and craft.

Turkey outnumbered Greece in military strength by about 450,000 to 160,000 men.

Their air forces are roughly comparable, but the Turkish army has about a 2 to 1 advantage in tanks over the Greek army. This would be a vital factor in any ground war.

"The Greek junta might like to have Cyprus, but it doesn't want war with Turkey," one senior defense official said.

Whenever Greece and Turkey renew their ancient feud, the United States finds itself in a particularly difficult spot because it is allied with both countries in NATO.

Cyprus Guard Hunts Makarios Supporters

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — (Pooled Dispatch) — The Cyprus National Guard pressed a massive manhunt today for left-wing politicians and others who supported deposed President Makarios.

More than 1,000 persons have been arrested since the guard's Greek officers led it in a coup Monday. Soldiers began house-to-house searches in Nicosia and other cities, towns and villages Wednesday.

All but taken resistance to the coup and the president it installed, Nikos Sampson, ended the last stronghold of Archbishop Makarios on the west coast of the island.

Shooting was reported in the countryside but the new regime's information chief, Spyros Papageorgiou, told newsmen: "The shots you hear are merely the rejoicing of national guardsmen. Our revolution is a complete success and there is no organized resistance."

Papageorgiou's predecessor, Militiades Christodoulou, was arrested Wednesday. He was one of Makarios' closest advisers and an outspoken opponent of the Greek junta in Athens.

The American-born wife of another Makarios confidant, Dr. Vassos Lyssarides, was captured in a mountain village. Mrs. Lyssarides, the former Barbara Cornwall, is well known here as a writer and journalist.

U.S. Military Believes Cyprus Clash Unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military officials believe an armed clash between Turkey and Greece over Cyprus is unlikely, despite military moves by the Turks.

They acknowledge, however, there might be danger if the two rival countries should move to reinforce their small garrisons currently totaling fewer than 1,000 men each on Cyprus.

Pentagon officials note the Greek armed forces have not made any major moves since the new Cyprus crisis broke out early this week. They also interpret Turkish military actions so far as intended to demonstrate their readiness and to show concern for the safety and welfare of the Turkish minority on Cyprus.

The Turks threatened to invade Cyprus during the last such crisis in 1967. The United States and the United Nations worked out a political settlement at the time.

The latest crisis has prompted a trip to London by U.S. Undersecretary of State Joseph J. Sisco. He left Wednesday night for the British capital where ousted Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios has been conferring with British leaders.

In the United States, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger canceled today's appearance before the House Foreign Relations Committee, which he was to brief about the recent Moscow summit. But Kissinger still intended to fly, as scheduled before the Cypriot crisis, to San Clemente, Calif., for a

'Garden State' Has Migrant Black Eye

SWEDESBORO, N.J. (AP) — About a third come from Puerto Rico, their island in the sun. They left their dead broke, hoping one day to return.

Thousands of other migrant farm workers follow the harvest along the East Coast, their children and belongings jammed into battered vehicles resembling those used by the Okies when they went to California 40 years ago.

They pick tomatoes, cucumbers, you name it. They work and sweat and work some more. And buy their food at the company store.

They have helped New Jersey maintain its nickname, "Garden State" but their plight has given the state a black eye.

The "migrant problem" flared into public view earlier this week when State Assemblyman Byron Baer's was broken in a melee at the Sorbello migrant farm in this southern New Jersey community. Baer has advocated improving conditions for migrants.

A Newark Star-Ledger reporter also was beaten.

Baer had gone there to get a rare glimpse inside a New Jersey migrant labor farm. But he broke it up, and the Sorbello foreman accused of breaking Baer's arm, told The Associated Press the 11 workers there don't like "nosey" state officials.

"These people don't come here to help us," he said. "They come here to destroy us and the farmer. If we didn't like working here, we wouldn't be here."

Angel Sanabre, 21, who supports a wife and two children in Puerto Rico, said the workers "get along just like brothers."

Michael Sorbello, one of three owners, contends "publicity seekers like Baer" are just out to make political hay, rather than help the workers.

But among the 20,000 migrants in southern New Jersey, there is considerable discontent.

—The State Department of Labor and Industry reported this week that hundreds of workers are children under age 12, a violation of law.

—Commissioner Joseph A. Hoffman says a number of farmers fail to keep employment records of hours worked and wages paid.

Sorbello workers earn $2.13 an hour. But on many other farms, the legal minimum—$1.75—or less is paid.

Over the years there have been charges, often raised in lawsuits, of filthy living conditions, inadequate heat and lighting, exorbitant prices at "company stores" and outright brutality.

Many migrants are recruited in Puerto Rico and come here under contract. They have little or no political clout.

Sorbello contends politicians who court the migrants are accomplishing nothing.

"Why don't they help the workers in the cities, the day-laborers who make $1.75 an hour?" he said. He noted that migrant workers are provided with free housing, while the impoverished urbanites pay rent.

New Jersey Gov. Brendan T. Byrne has called for a full investigation of the Baer incident. Byrne also said he plans to visit farms in the area next month.

High Court: Auto Seller Beware

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Supreme Court has advised the seller to beware when trying to sell an auto through a used-car dealer.
In a 5-1 opinion Wednesday, the court upheld a Broward County Circuit Court decision that Greyhound Rent-A-Car Inc. could not legally repossess a car sold to Harry Austin through Family Cars Inc.
Austin's son paid Family Cars after the November 1970 sale of the 1970 rental car but Family Cars never paid Greyhound and the title certificate never was given to Austin, the court said.
Greyhound set up and derived benefits from the sales through the used-car lot, which moved 300 to 1,000 of Greyhound's cars in a year, the court said.
The opinion, written by Justice Joseph Boyd said, "It was a procedure by which the petitioner itself created the hazard of which it now complains, a hazard which could have been avoided by the very slightest notice or warning to the public."
Justice David McCain said the buyer is the one who should be required to protect himself by asking the state Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles Department in Tallahassee if he is getting a good title to the car.

Decision Pending On Sanford K-Mart

Investigation Stalls In Death Case

Detectives are still investigating the case of a 14-year-old Sanford man believed to have been beaten to death by a burglar.
John E. Burrows, First Drive and Burrows Lane, was found dead in his ransacked home that was broken into by a thief who cut the screen on the front door, detectives reported.
"That case is still under investigation — it has been around the clock case — but, no arrests have been made, sheriff's homicide investigator George Abby said today.
Burrows, who was described by neighbors as a "nice old man," had complained of burglary attempts and apparently tried to fight the burglar, who left the 85-year-old man beaten, bloodied and crawling on the floor, detectives said.
O'Neill and representatives of the firm, after two months of work with the city Z-P board and local officials, gained site plan approval June 6 for a 14-acre K-Mart shopping center in Sanford will be made within 30 days. The Herald has learned.
Earlier, developers had left the impression that the project had been finalized with site plan approval by the city zoning and planning board.
Michael D. O'Neill, project coordinator for Developers Diversified of St. Petersburg, said today final plans for the proposed $4 million project in the southeast quadrant of the U.S. 17-92-Airport Boulevard intersection are now being presented to S.S. Kresge officials in Michigan.
"We are awaiting their economic analysis of the area," O'Neill said. "If they decide the site is acceptable then it's go. We expect the decision within 30 days."
O'Neill would not say today that K-Mart was firmly committed for a Sanford location, only "they're interested in the area."
O'Neill and representatives of the firm, after two months of work with the city Z-P board and local officials, gained site

Portuguese President Swears In New Regime

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — week. He named his cabinet Wednesday.
The new government appears to be tougher and more decisive than the center-left regime Spínola selected nearly three months ago as military men took over seven cabinet posts, including the key ministries of interior, labor, defense and education.
The new cabinet is expected to take a harder line against labor, for example, to avoid the series of strikes and labor disorders that have plagued the country since the April coup against the rightist regime of Marcelo Caetano.
"We cannot blame just reactionary forces for the excesses that have been taking place in the streets, the businesses and even in the civil government," Spínola said at the swearing-in ceremonies. "This must be stopped at once for the prestige of the Portuguese people is at stake."
In announcing the cabinet Wednesday night, Spínola said in a television broadcast, "The political life of the country is going to go through a new phase of discipline."
Although nine of the 16 cabinet members are civilians, and they include the heads of the Communist and Socialist parties, it was apparent that the clique of about 300 young officers who overthrew the heirs of the Salazar dictatorship on April 25 now are going to dominate the government's day-to-day operations.
The Z-P board will also discuss amending the zoning ordinance to cover condominium construction and hear a report from city planner David Farr on comprehensive land use maps.

Parking Ordinance On Planning Agenda

Parking for drug stores and super markets, condominium construction and site plans are on the agenda for today's 8 p.m. Sanford Zoning and Planning Commission meeting at city hall.
A public hearing will be held to consider amending the zoning ordinance to require 10 off-street parking spaces for each 1,000 square feet of retail floor in drug stores and super markets.
A hearing is scheduled on a request for medical industrial zoning for three lots west of Sanford Airport between Mattie Street and Wyly Avenue.
Site plans due review include an addition to Southern Bell Telephone's facilities at Ninth Street and Laurel Avenue, Mission Lake Condominiums on the west side of U.S. 17-92, opposite Sunland Estates and a stadium and industrial building at Seminole High School.
The Z-P board will also discuss amending the zoning ordinance to cover condominium construction and hear a report from city planner David Farr on comprehensive land use maps.

Jobless Rate Could Rise In Fight Against Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidents of three Federal Reserve banks predict interest rates will remain high and unemployment will rise in the fight against what one called the worst peacetime inflation in the nation's history.
They told the House Banking Committee Wednesday that inflation was at a dangerously high level, although not out of control, and said that sacrifices would be required to beat it back.
David P. Eastburn, president of the Federal Reserve bank of Philadelphia, said, "We are in perhaps the worst peacetime

Safeway Stops Remarketing Grocery Items

By LOUISE CROOK Associated Press Writer
The practice of remarketing items on the supermarket shelves as prices go up, a practice that Safeway Stores Inc. says it is stopping, is one of consumers' pet peeves.
"Walk into any supermarket and ask any consumer and they'll scream about it," said Ellen Zarell, president of the National Consumer Congress.
Safeway, the nation's largest chain, announced Wednesday that it would no longer remarket items to reflect higher wholesale costs on new shipments.
Dr. Kent Christensen, vice president of the National Association of Food Chains, said the action probably would force other supermarkets to follow suit.
Officials of most of the other big supermarket chains were not immediately available for comment or said they wanted time to study the situation.
The argument went something like this:
Suppose a can of peas cost the supermarket 20 cents and is selling for 25 cents. The price the supermarket pays goes up to 25 cents and therefore the new shipment will sell for 30 cents.
It contends that it can't put out new cans priced at 30 cents while there are 25-cent cans still left on the shelf.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidents of three Federal Reserve banks predict interest rates will remain high and unemployment will rise in the fight against what one called the worst peacetime inflation in the nation's history.
They told the House Banking Committee Wednesday that inflation was at a dangerously high level, although not out of control, and said that sacrifices would be required to beat it back.
David P. Eastburn, president of the Federal Reserve bank of Philadelphia, said, "We are in perhaps the worst peacetime

Chamber Defends Committees

By J. RICHARDS Herald Staff Writer
LAKE MARY — This embattled city's Chamber of Commerce, which has been drawn into the "unincorporated" fight on the side of the people who would like to see the city keep its charter, says the 25 committees named to study community life have reasons for existence other than to attack the anti-incorporation viewpoint.
Chamber president Larry Dale, who was left "shocked and stunned" over reaction last week to an announcement the chamber was setting up committees to study all facets of the city, said today the chamber's motives should not be suspect.
"These committees exist in every chamber I have ever been associated with," he said. "They are action committees designed to improve the quality of life for all citizens, not just to supply ammunition against the people wanting to have the city's charter surrendered."

Area Pupils Miss Tower Bombing

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Thirty Orange County junior high school students were missing their hotel for a visit to the Tower of London Wednesday when a bomb exploded in the 900-year-old fortress.
"Ten minutes later and we would have been in there," Virginia Long, a Mailland English teacher and leader of the student trip, said in a telephone interview. "We were just dazed for a while."
The terrorist bomb blast in the tourist-packed Tower killed one British woman and injured 36 other persons, about half of them children.
The Orange County students are scheduled to return to Orlando next Wednesday after a one-month tour abroad.

Power Probe

NEW PORT RICHEY, Fla. (AP) — Rep. Ronald Richmond, R-New Port Richey, has asked the Public Service Commission rates being charged by the Florida Power Corp.
In letters written Wednesday to commission members, Richmond also asked an investigation of the fuel adjustment charge on electric bills.

Hyacinths All Night Trap For Port Orange Man

The sheriff's department rescue boat — 115 horsepower engine boat — rammed its way into a 75-foot bank of hyacinths this morning to rescue a Port Orange man who spent the night trapped near the mouth of Lake Monroe, west of the Osteen Bridge.
He was reported missing at 8 p.m. Wednesday night and sheriff's deputies were on the scene one hour later, but according to fish camp employees, no search was made at night.
Charles Merriweather, who rented a small boat from the fish camp Wednesday, was spotted early today from an airplane in the middle of the old channel cut where Lake Monroe empties into the St. Johns, about a mile from the S.R. 415 bridge.
Lake Michigan, with no Canadian boundary, penetrates the great prairies of the Midwest.

Capri Will Finally Get Own Water

CAPRI, Italy (AP) — The Ancient Mariner would not have enjoyed Capri. The tiny, Tyrrhenian island has sun, scenery and water, water everywhere — but not a drop to drink.

Bloody marys, martinis and milk shakes flow in the "American Bars" among the oleanders. But there isn't one fresh spring on the island's eight-square-mile face. Every drop of water drunk in Capri is ferried from the mainland, four miles across the Gulf of Naples.

Capri's 2,000-year-old thirst is, however, soon to be quenched. At the push of a button in late summer, Italy's driest watering place will begin drinking its own sea, filtered through a $480,000 U.S.-built desalination plant projected for the past eight years.

"The water problem had become extremely grave," one official confided. "With tourism increasing by 10 per cent each year and the local population growing all the time, the water we could bring over from the mainland had to be dispensed with a medicine dropper."

Capri's drinking problem, however, has never turned visitors back on their heels. The Roman Emperor Augustus visited Capri in 29 B.C. fell in love with it and bought it from Naples in exchange for its larger and richer neighbor, Ischia. Some 50 years later, Tiberius came, saw and was conquered, and shifted the administration of the vast empire to the tiny island.

Local officials today say tourists seldom realize Capri has a water problem. All hotels have huge water tanks and when supplies run low they ration them.

But direct supplies to private villas dry up, public fountains flow for only one or two hours a day, and police limit households to one bucketful each.

In extremes, doctors at the local hospital have been known to operate with mineral water.

In the crush summer season, four water tankers cross to Capri each day, carrying 1.2 million gallons for the 13,000 native Capri and the thousands of tourists. The main plant, built by a Milwaukee firm, will be able to produce 1.8 million gallons daily — enough for any emergency, officials say.

When the first tanker crossed to Capri in 1928, it made only one trip each day and carried only 25,000 gallons of water — sufficient for the then 3,000 Capri.

There have been many attempts to bring water to Capri — and as many failures.

Wyeth 'Takes' Japan

TOKYO (AP) — A 12-week exhibit of paintings by American artist Andrew Wyeth has attracted 329,655 persons in Tokyo and Kyoto, more than three times the number anticipated by Japanese sponsors.

Perry Rathbone, director of the show of 48 paintings, said Wyeth had conquered the Japanese art world in his first exhibition abroad.

Pope Reads Solzhenitsyn

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has made it known he is among the readers of books by exiled Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

He said during his weekly public audience Wednesday that Solzhenitsyn's "Gulag Archipelago" provides evidence of "inhuman exercise of class power."

The pontiff, referring to the account of Stalin-era concentration camps, warned about the "danger of accepting social formulas which for instance by erecting class struggle as a system turn it inevitably into class hatred and class hatred into the possible inhuman exercise of power."

POW Boss In New Job

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The former commander of U.S. prisoners of war in North Vietnam will begin directing the training of Air Force enlisted recruits here next month.

Maj. Gen. John P. Flynn will succeed Maj. Gen. Robert W. Maloy as Air Force Military Training Center commander at Lackland AFB.

Flynn, 52, was the nation's highest ranking POW in North Vietnam. He was twice promoted by the Air Force during his captivity. Flynn was a POW for 5½ years before his release March 14, 1973.

Maggie Smith Divorcing

LONDON (AP) — Oscar-winning actress Maggie Smith says she and her husband of seven years are seeking a divorce.

The 39-year-old redhead who was honored in 1970 for her performance in "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" said despite frequent reports her marriage to actor Robert Stephens was on the rocks. "We kept quiet about our troubles because of the children."

No Regrets: Butterfield

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The former White House aide who led the Senate Watergate committee that President Nixon had begged the White House office and his telephone says he has no regrets.

"I would certainly do the same thing again," Alexander Butterfield said Wednesday. He had been in charge of White House internal security when he made the revelation to the committee a year ago Tuesday.

Butterfield, who was promoted to head the Federal Aviation Administration two weeks before the Watergate scandal broke in March 1973, said: "I didn't go in to tell about it, but I knew if ever asked the direct question I would answer directly and openly."

British Police Tighten Security After Bombing

LONDON (AP) — British police put stronger security measures in force today after a bomb explosion in the Tower of London that killed one woman and injured 37 persons.

The bomb blast was the fourth in London in four days, and police believed all were set by the Irish Republican Army. Guards were strengthened at places of entertainment and government buildings. The public was warned to watch for letter bombs or abandoned parcels in railway and subway stations and car parks.

Scotland Yard appealed to tourists who were taking pictures at the Tower around the time of the explosion to contact them. They were already studying a film taken by Joan Halgran, 29, from Minnesota, who said she saw a man running from the Tower within seconds of the explosion.

The bomb went off at 2 p.m. Wednesday in a stone dungeon in the basement of the White Tower where a crowd of tourists — many of them foreigners — were looking at cannon and suits of armor. Many others had just left the building to watch the changing of the guard.

Police said Dorothy House, 47, of South London, was fatally injured. The wounded included four Americans and a family of five New Zealanders. Ten were in critical condition, but the Americans — identified as Edward Klein, 27, from Missouri, and Christina Grillo, 24; Jacky Ford, 27, and Sheila Gray, 23, all of Boston, Mass. — were not among them.

A number of the injured were children. Detectives found a child's foot in the wreckage. There was little structural damage to the Tower, but some of the historic collection of arms and armor was badly damaged. The government said the Tower, visited by 10,000 sightseers daily in the summer, would be open today, but the bombed area was closed indefinitely.

The bomb was estimated to contain 19 pounds of explosives and was set off by a clock.

It was 20 years ago, electricity has now reached Celnik's home town in the Soca valley, bringing with it expensive, bulb-burning oscillations in the level of power. But Celnik's supplies stay steady, powering television, washing machine, electric heaters, radiators, refrigerator and a host of smaller domestic appliances.

"And we never pay a penny for electricity," he says. Across the province of Slovenia, in the mountain village of Koritnica, farmer Jure Erzen had the same idea. It was 1964 and a long period of drought had stilled the power station that supplied his saw mill.

A blacksmith by trade, Celnik bought a second-hand generator and turbine and piped water from the river about 450 yards away. The result: a 10-kilowatt power station, rickety in appearance but generating a steady 220 volts.

LOOKING INSIDE herself, a volunteer is directed by a researcher to watch the television screen which shows her internal organs projected by a camera in front of her. The camera, for medical use only, makes internal organs visible without x-rays. The prototype model, developed at the Stanford Research Institute in Menlo Park, Calif., requires the patient to be immersed in water but future models will not.

Center To Open Sept. 1.

The 60,000 square foot Silver Star Plaza is slated for a Sept. 1 opening at Silver Star Road and Powers Drive in Orlando.

Major tenants in the facility will be a Publix Supermarket and Eckerd Drugs.

Also included are twelve local tenants who will occupy the joint venture of Wilson K. Knott Enterprises of Orlando and Eastern State Properties, Trenton, N.J.

The center will include a fast food restaurant, beauty salon, laundry and drycleaning establishment, jewelry ready to wear shop, a card shop and professional space.

Orlando Climbs Metro Ladder

In 1960, Orlando compared with cities like Sioux City, Iowa; Fort Wayne, Ind.; and Saginaw, Mich. in terms of population and retail sales.

Today, Orlando had the characteristics of cities such as Honolulu, Nashville, and Gary-Hammond-East Chicago tri-city area in Illinois. In a 14-year period, Orlando advanced from post 150 to 71 in population and post 70 to 32 in retail sales.

Orlando will be more like New Orleans, Buffalo and San Antonio, Tex., if forecasts for 1983 materialize.

Auto-Train Has New Schedules

Auto-Train Corporation announced schedule changes on all routes. Trains which run everyday between Lorton, Virginia, and Sanford, will now depart from each terminal at 6 p.m. rather than 9:30 p.m. and will arrive the next day at 9:30 a.m.

Departure times from Louisville, Kentucky, have been changed to 3:30 p.m. (CDT) instead of 5:30 p.m. (CDT) with an arrival in Sanford the next day at 2:30 p.m. (EDT). Trains traveling north from Sanford to Louisville will now depart at 12:30 p.m. (EDT) instead of 12 noon and will arrive at 9:30 a.m. (CDT).

"AutoTrain," which carries both passengers and their automobiles aboard the same luxury train, began service December 6, 1971, and since its inception has carried more than 530,000 passengers and 195,000 automobiles. Service from Louisville was begun on May 24, 1974, with trains running every third day from both Louisville and Sanford. The company plans to institute daily services on this new route early in 1975.

Phone Devices Can Find Prank Callers

In many cases it is now possible to successfully identify the telephone line from which nuisance and obscene telephone calls are made, Tom Hunt, Sanford manager of Southern Bell said.

He said this has been made possible through the use of special devices and line identification techniques, developed in recent years.

Hunt explained that such methods are being used primarily in cases where the harassing or obscene calls are repeated and there is some pattern established.

He said it is still difficult in some cases to determine where the call is coming from because of the different types of telephone equipment and other factors involved.

However, he said special devices and techniques are being used more and more as the telephone company and law enforcement officials step up action against nuisance and obscene calls.

"Southern Bell is concerned about the problem of nuisance and obscene calls," Hunt said, "and we want to do everything we can to help those who get such calls."

Dying Man Sees More Than Death

EDITOR'S NOTE — His wife wishes for a miracle. Orville Kelly has decided there won't be one. He is dying of cancer and filling his last days praying for himself, for his wife and teaching others how to face it.

By TERRY RYAN Associated Press Writer

BURLINGTON, Iowa (AP) — The older kids were out to school and Wanda Kelly sat drinking a second cup of coffee. Orville Kelly, her husband, was in bed in the room at the top of the stairs.

Britly, the 4-year-old, clambered into a chair across the dining room table from Wanda. "Know what happened to the cat?" he began. "One of my cats got run over. It got died."

Wanda's head came up. "What did momma tell you about that?" "I don't remember." "Didn't momma tell you that everyone gets born and lives and dies? That everyone has to die some time?" Britly nodded assent. Orville Kelly is 43 years old. He has 18 months to live. Listen to a dying man ... "When I found out, it wasn't a matter of sadness. I was angry. I didn't accept it. I got drunk one night, and I cursed God right in a bar in Burlington.

"Oh, they don't just walk into the room and suddenly say you are going to die. But they were very frank. They place you in a group of statistics and tell you exactly where you stand.

"Finally I just realized what it was doing to my wife and my children and the people around me. I found it was better to face it and get on with living than to hide and pretend it didn't exist."

It is time, say some, to take another look at dying. In January of this year, Orville Kelly started Make Today Count, an organization of terminally ill people and their families. The letterhead reads: "Formed to allow members to share their mutual problems and to live each day fully."

Eighteen people came to the first meeting at the Burlington Elks Club. Make Today Count is basically a self-help operation. Meetings are like sessions of Alcoholics Anonymous. There may be a speaker, an attorney or will or a doctor on treatments, but it is mostly just people and talk, conversations about the problems and experiences of living with death.

Kelly, the name he's called by his grandsons in the farm country of southeastern Iowa. He signed up a week after high school and spent 12 years in the enlisted man's Army. Wanda was a high school senior in Burlington and Kelly, then 29, was home on leave when they met and married 14 years ago. The children are Mark, 13; Tammy, 12; Lauri, 9, and Britton, 4.

Kelly quit the Army in 1960. He worked in office jobs for a few years and became a reporter in 1966. He was later editor of a weekly newspaper in Illinois. Two years ago, he came back to Burlington, a city of 33,000 on the Mississippi River.

There were no signs of cancer then, but Kelly was not feeling well. He worked occasional odd jobs, but eventually stopped. Wanda started working at an electronics factory. She quit last summer after his cancer was diagnosed.

The Kellys live now on about $400 a month. Social Security disability and other benefits. They rent an old, but comfortable, brick house on Burlington's South Hill for $138 a month. Wanda shops rummage sales the way some women go to shopping centers. Blue Cross pays 80 per cent of the medical bills.

Kelly found the lump under his arm one day in June, 1973, while he was shaving. "In the back of my mind, maybe I suspected. But I thought, 'Hell, that just wouldn't happen to me. Except for a bout of pneumonia, I've been healthy all my life.'"

A biopsy was done at Burlington Memorial Hospital. Kelly was told he had lymphoma, cancer of the lymph system, and learned later that it also involved his lungs, liver and spleen.

Kelly's treatment, chemotherapy, involves the regular use of several toxic drugs. They destroy cancer cells, the progress of the disease. They also suppress the body's natural defense mechanisms, a situation that can create other problems.

the percentages do not total 100 per cent because some respondents answered "don't know" and others gave answers that fit neither yes or no categories.

Behind the buy-now thrust is the growing cynicism of many Americans who feel that little economic good can come out of practicing the old-fashioned virtue of thrift so long as prices continue to rise. And they believe they will rise.

A widespread lack of faith in government combines with the sense of hopelessness about inflation to produce the pessimism that is so commonly reported now by the surveyors.

In May, for example, the Survey Research Center found that 40 per cent of respondents said it was a good time to buy large household goods, while only 22 per cent said it was a poor time to buy.

But it is the professional surveys, by the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan, by Sindlinger & Co. of Swarthmore, Pa., and by the Conference Board which have the wider audience.

The surveys show, among other things, that the consumer is struggling to make up your mind about whether to remain entrenched, saving what money you can, or to spend now to avoid still higher prices later.

During past periods of consumer pessimism, the Survey Research Center explains, opinions about spending also were unfavorable. People became aware that the rainy day might be just around the corner, and they saved for it.

This behavioral pattern helped explain in part the curious proliferation of bank outlets in some areas of cities while outlets of almost every other sort were complaining about poor business.

As anyone knows who has seen his favorite restaurant dispossessed by another pennant-waving, gift-giving savings bank, that tendency still persists. But it is being offset to some degree by the buy-and-advance psychology.

Pessimism Hits Today's Buyers

NEW YORK (AP) — The surveys of consumer sentiment suggest that you are mired in pessimism about the economy and entangled in a dilemma over how to handle your personal finances.

You might say it doesn't take a survey to convey this truth to you—that you could pick up the same results in a few minutes at a supermarket checkout counter. Quite likely you are correct.

The surveys show, among other things, that the consumer is struggling to make up your mind about whether to remain entrenched, saving what money you can, or to spend now to avoid still higher prices later.

During past periods of consumer pessimism, the Survey Research Center explains, opinions about spending also were unfavorable. People became aware that the rainy day might be just around the corner, and they saved for it.

This behavioral pattern helped explain in part the curious proliferation of bank outlets in some areas of cities while outlets of almost every other sort were complaining about poor business.

As anyone knows who has seen his favorite restaurant dispossessed by another pennant-waving, gift-giving savings bank, that tendency still persists. But it is being offset to some degree by the buy-and-advance psychology.

In May, for example, the Survey Research Center found that 40 per cent of respondents said it was a good time to buy large household goods, while only 22 per cent said it was a poor time to buy.

But it is the professional surveys, by the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan, by Sindlinger & Co. of Swarthmore, Pa., and by the Conference Board which have the wider audience.

The surveys show, among other things, that the consumer is struggling to make up your mind about whether to remain entrenched, saving what money you can, or to spend now to avoid still higher prices later.

Henry Moore Selects Own Works In Show

KAMAKURA, Japan (AP) — At 76 the great British sculptor Henry Moore has fulfilled a wish few artists realize in their lifetime: a retrospective exhibition selected by himself. There have been dozens of exhibitions of Moore's works throughout the world, all chosen by critics searching for the essential Moore.

Now, in this medium-sized city 35 miles southwest of Tokyo, it is possible to see what Moore personally judges to be his most representative creations, 83 sculptures and cast maquettes and 72 graphics which range over half a century of his mature creative life.

Set against Japanese lotus ponds, humpbacked bridges and a medieval shrine, they are renewed evidence of the universality of art, of its ability to speak in many tongues and in all ages.

Japanese art lovers privileged to get this first glimpse of Moore's view of Moore have been served up a particularly rich frosting on the cake—24 graphics done in 1973 and never shown before, including a stunning portfolio of 16 studies of Stonehenge.

Why Japan, and not the United States, England or Europe, for this unusual artistic first? The answer is two-fold: the Japanese, treated to a major exhibition in 1969, are in love with Moore; and the Waldenstein Gallery, Moore's agent, decided to inaugurate its new Tokyo branch with a cultural bang.

Eighty per cent of the exhibits come from Moore's home in Essex. The famous familiar pieces are there — the 1927 Reclining Figure, Three Points, and the awesome 1923-33 King and Queen — but unaccountably, Moore included none of the wartime "Air Raid Shelter Drawings" which firmly established his fame. The new graphics more than compensate for this lack. In his old age he has turned, at least on paper, representational, showing us Stonehenge, that mysterious altar to the sun, in all its massive power.

John Russell, the noted British critic, writes in an introduction to the Kamakura catalogue, that "a great part of Moore's work is about power, in one domain or another. Some of it is about fear, also; but fear outpaced and staved down."

Police Corruption A Part Of System?

EDITOR'S NOTE — Corruption scandals are shaking the police departments of half a dozen American cities. Nevertheless, some criminologists say the nation's police are less corrupt today than they were a generation ago. They just seem more corrupt, the argument goes, because of the attention focused on them by the news media.

By PAUL CARPENTER Associated Press Writer

In the Why Not Lounge on the notorious Locust Street strip, a policeman negotiates a payoff with owner Irvin Glatzer. "I'm not a greedy son of a bitch," says the policeman, identified as Officer W. "But let's face it, I got a wife and two kids. If I'm going to put my job on the line, let's make it worthwhile, all right?"

Glatzer: "But I don't want you to get more than an inspector, now."

Officer W: "Well, let me throw a thing at you and we'll dickie. Let me throw $75 a month."

Glatzer: "That's no problem."

Officer W: "For me and my partner ... apiece, $75 for me and $75 for my partner."

They eventually agree on $50 apiece.

When this conversation took place last year, Glatzer ran a bust-out bar, where B-girls used their charms and some strategic fondling to encourage the flow of overpriced booze. Glatzer also had a couple of hidden tape recorders and an agreement to testify before the Pennsylvania Crime Commission.

The Why Not Lounge is still aggliter. Glatzer is still around town. And Officer W is now supporting his wife and kids with something other than the proceeds of Badge No. 7172.

But the image of the Philadelphia Police Department has been mangled. With Glatzer's tapes and other results of an exhaustive investigation, the Pennsylvania Crime Commission put together a 1,400-page report lambasting the force as having "systematic, widespread corruption at all levels."

Similar developments have staggered the police departments in two other major cities, New York and Indianapolis.

Police corruption also has made headlines this year in Cleveland, where a grand jury is investigating payoffs to policemen; in Houston, where nine police are to be tried in connection with a narcotics scandal; and in Denver, where a grand jury is investigating charges of police participation in drug trafficking and a burglary fencing operation.

19 Convicted

In Chicago, 19 policemen, including a captain, were convicted in September, 1973 of shaking down tavern owners on the city's Near North Side. A new police superintendent, James M. Rochford, is shaking up his top commanders after forcing them to take lie detector tests to determine if they are involved in corruption.

"I don't see any trend in this police corruption," says sociologist Albert J. Reiss, Yale law professor and a recognized expert on police. "Corruption is endemic in the system."

In Philadelphia's 8,500-member police force, allegations of corruption range from district captains pocketing regular operations to a restaurant chain, plagued by thefts, paying $60,000 in cash and hundreds of free meals in one year to buy extra police service.

Massages

The Pennsylvania Crime Commission report, released in March, listed the first names, last initials and badge numbers of hundreds of Philadelphia officers it said were on the take. "About 90 per cent of the officers, I suppose, are well aware of the corruption in the department," said former police Capt. Robert Frederick.

Nature Best Guide In Becoming Pregnant

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
The Herald Staff

DEAR DR. LAMB—My wife and I are desperately trying to have a baby. According to her temperature she has ovulation about 15 days after the start of her last period. We try to have sex, especially at that time. Our local gynecologist said that we should just relax and have sex at any time and if she is going to have a baby she will and if not, she won't.

Well, that may be, but aren't there other factors that enter into it? The doctor said that we can do things to prevent having a baby, but nothing to have one. My wife takes medication. Would this have an effect on pregnancy? She is quite nervous.

Another doctor found she had a cyst or something inside. He wants to take X rays to make sure the fallopian tubes are not blocked. I understand that if a woman gives off acid it can kill sperm. Also, the thyroid can affect pregnancy. Are there other things that we might not be aware of that could prevent pregnancy?

I was checked for sperm, and the doctor said that it was all right.

DEAR READER—It appears that your wife is ovulating and that you have normal sperm. If you are not using anything that would interfere with pregnancy, that combination should result in a pregnancy. Usually doctors want to wait at least a year after a couple has lived together with regular relations before deciding there is a fertility problem.

Since sperm cells live about 72 hours, it follows that if a healthy couple has sex every other night there is likely to be sperm in the tube to cause a pregnancy when ovulation occurs. It is true that if the tube is blocked or if there is some other mechanical barrier then the union cannot take place.

Abnormal thyroid function can affect the ability to get pregnant, but this is common enough that I'm sure your doctor would have recognized this. And, some medications could cause problems, but usually they would prevent ovulation to start with.

Another possibility is the use of lubricants. Most of the common lubricants also kill sperm cells. A couple desiring a pregnancy should not use lubricants but depend only on nature.

Rarely, a woman is "allergic" to her husband's sperm cells. Her body destroys them. This rare condition can be helped by using a condom for a considerable period of time. In this interval a woman loses her allergic reaction and is then able to get pregnant after the condom is discontinued.

If none of these apply and you have tried for a year to have a family, then certainly a complete evaluation, including an evaluation of the tubes, is in order. Your wife could increase her chances of getting pregnant if the tubes were open by being put on a fertility pill that stimulates the ovaries to release a larger number of ova. It is simple, the more targets there are, the more likely that a bullet will strike one.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Why do doctors prescribe Premarin after a hysterectomy for a patient who was told never to take birth control pills? I have a tendency to retain fluid, had a depression following childbirth and also have varicose veins. I was told I was a perfect example of who was not to take birth control pills.

Isn't it true that the same hormones are in both Premarin and birth control pills? I would greatly appreciate an explanation.

With a hysterectomy, if the ovaries are also removed it is like removing the thyroid. The woman would no longer have a natural source of female hormones, so replacement hormones might be in order. This would not provide nearly as much female hormone as she would have gotten from that produced by her ovaries plus the birth control pills.

So, it is all very logical and in many instances is good medicine. Medicine that was dangerous before surgery now becomes important to maintain normal function.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 15-year-old girl and would appreciate some information on a matter which has been bothering me. I am afraid to ask anyone else because of embarrassment. Is it true that if you have sex after the first 14 days after your menstruation there is usually no way you can become pregnant?

Some girl friends have told me that this is a fact, at least for them, but I'm just trying to look out for myself. I have regular periods and am hesitant to take the pills. So, you can understand my need for an answer. I'd be ever so grateful.

DEAR READER—You are right to check it out. Your girl friends are using a form of the rhythm method, and it isn't all that reliable. It is just plain Russian roulette if the girl happens to be irregular.

A girl is likely to get pregnant if she has sexual relations about 14 days before her next period. In other words, the menstruation is 14 days after ovulation, when the egg is released.

The relationship between ovulation and the next period is fairly fixed, but the interval between two ovulations may be entirely different.

The sperm cells may live for 72 hours, so if a woman has had sexual relations within three days of ovulation, there is a chance that she can get pregnant.

The Private Life

Executives Just Realizing Blame Belongs To Them

NEW YORK (AP)—When executives think about raising worker productivity the image that comes to mind is the production line, and they ask: How can we turn out more units per manhour of work?

But what about executive productivity? Seldom asked in the past except during recessions or serious lags in profits, the question now has become a matter of serious concern for large and small companies.

A bad executive decision, it is realized, is magnified on the production line. And time lost on the golf course may cost far more than the secretary's few minutes at the water cooler. But this isn't always obvious.

In a survey of executives by the American Management Association, respondents were asked to name the personnel area in which the most severe productivity problems existed. Most named production.

But when asked to name the factors responsible for the unsatisfactory productivity of the executives, inadvertently perhaps, pointed the finger at themselves.

Volusia Tax Assessor Nixes Campaign Donations

Acting Volusia County Tax Assessor Robert D. Bolin, among the first to qualify for office in that county has announced he will not accept campaign contributions to win his first full term as assessor. Bolin had been deputy assessor in charge of the Deland office and was appointed in April to serve out the term of elected assessor Warren Greenwood. Greenwood resigned to enter private business.

"My campaign will be underwritten entirely out of my own funds," Bolin said.

Bolin's expenses when he ran against Greenwood in 1968 were close to $10,000, he said.

"I certainly can't afford to conduct a campaign like that out of my own pocket," he continued. "I have chosen not to accept campaign contributions because I do not want to be in the position of having anyone think he can pull strings in my office."

The Energy Conservationist... WEATHERTRON HEAT PUMP

MODERNIZE YOUR OLD CENTRAL AIR CONDITIONING SYSTEM WITH GE'S ANSWER TO THE ENERGY SHORTAGE—THE WEATHERTRON HEAT PUMP

General Electric pioneered the heat pump principle of taking the heat from the indoor air in summer, and from the outdoor air in winter to maintain consistent comfort in your home. Being an all-electric system, it's flameless and produces no fumes, smoke or soot. The ultimate in quiet, clean comfort! The Weathertron Heat Pump gives you up to 150% power savings over straight resistance heat at 45 degree outdoor temperature as rated in ARI Directory dated 1/1/74. Ask your electric utility for cost comparison and estimate on operating cost.

Ecology Began In Aleutians Long Before America Born

STORRS, Conn. (AP)—Modern ecologists would be jealous of the ways of living developed by a group of sturdy Asians who settled along the Aleutian Islands chain 8,700 years ago, according to a professor who has specialized in Aleuts since 1938.

"They have learned to live in an environment without destroying the ecosystem," said Dr. William Laughlin, University of Connecticut anthropology professor.

He heads the U.S. contingent in an American-Russian effort this summer to study the Aleuts whose islands extend more than 1,200 miles southwest from the tip of the Alaskan Peninsula.

The current project began five years ago under a National Science Foundation grant. This summer is the first time scientists of the two countries have cooperated on it.

Laughlin said the Russian group, led by A.P. Okladnikov, Siberian department director of the U.S.S.R. Science Academy's Institute of History, Philology and Philosophy, will join in attempts to discover the origin of the Aleuts and study their ways of living.

"They use many things that other people throw away," including the skins, meat, bones and internal organs of animals and fish, Laughlin said.

"The Aleuts live a little longer than we do," he added. "If you take an Aleut woman of 83 she is without heart disease or other cardiovascular problems."

Shredder Helps Old Autos Find New Life

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The derelict hulks ride a conveyor belt into the mouth of the four-story machine. Eighty-seven, 450-pound hammers pulverize the cars into pocket-sized pieces that dribble out another conveyor belt two blocks away.

The machine, a $2 million shredder, carves one last buck out of yesterday's fleet. Cadillacs, Buicks, Dodges, Fords, a bread truck, stacked like pancakes, await their last ride.

The shredder resembles a kid's Erector Set with its tubes and sprockets and bright yellow hoppers. It separates the cars into "dirt" and "frag."

The "dirt" is the nonrecyclable material—the seats, fan belts, plastic dashboard knobs, steering wheels and other nonmetallic parts.

Spinning magnetic drums claim the ferrous metal, while the nonferrous metal and the "dirt" are dumped onto a separate belt. The process is repeated until all impurities are removed.

Only the gas tanks and tires must be stripped from the cars. Many are fed through with engine blocks still intact.

The metal is shipped off to foreign and domestic steel mills to be recycled. The "dirt" is dumped in a New Jersey landfill.

The shredder and the 10-acre yard that surrounds it are owned by Pollock Abrams, Inc. Donald Chelius, a cigar-smok-
