

Chip Royal Makes Effort To Choose Best Ball Players

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Features Sports Editor

NEW YORK—Pull up those pot-bellies—pardon me—pull up your chairs around that pot-bellied stove, and we'll get down to the business of reviewing the best baseball season.

It is time to let the leaves fall where they may and select the most valuable players, gab about an all-star team, and all those who disappointed or made good on the majors' diamonds.

As long as the National League is in the senior loop, let's glance at that first. There are a lot of candidates for the most valuable player award. The Cards have two in Stanley Musial and Walker Cooper; the Reds have Easel Cravens; the Dodgers have Billy Herman; the Pirates, Rip Sewell; the Cubs, Bill Nicholson; and so it goes down the line.

We'll take Musial, the greatest hitter to step up in the National League, according to no less a personage than the great Dizzy Dean.

A lot of Walker Cooper fans will dispute this choice, but that's their privilege. Cooper is a whiz for a catcher and has done a lot for the Southwestern this year, but we dread to think what would have happened if they didn't have Musial's bat.

Stan not only pounded the pill for a .357 average, but made 220 hits and scored 106 runs. He also led the league with 47 doubles and 20 triples which you must agree is smacking that old pill.

Over in the American League,

Spud Chandler of the Yanks stands out as the best handling job in the junior circuit since 1919 when Walter Johnson went 290 innings for an e.r.a. of 1.40.

Going a little further, Spud pitched five shutouts, nine one-run games, and didn't give an opposing team more than three runs in any one contest. He completed 20 out of 30 games and struck out enemy batters.

Try to find an American League player who helped his team more than Chandler!

The all-star team selected from players of both leagues is next. Here:

Their records speak for themselves. The hardest choice to make was Wakefield over the Cramer of the Tigers and Vince DiMaggio of the Pirates and Appling over Vaughn of the Dodgers.

Getting down to the nitty-gritty of the year, Johnson is so far ahead of Wakefield, Ed Blanky of the Cubs, Lou Klein of the Cards, Ralph Hodgin and Guy Curtright of the White Sox that there are no comparisons.

The Yankees, from owner Ed Harrow right down to Pat O'Brien, the bat boy, can't say en-

Italy Declares War On Germany

Italy declared war on Germany in depth along the northern bank of the Volturno, which Clark's forces must penetrate in their drive toward Rome.

Despite the adverse weather the British Eighth Army was reported to have gained ground at some points on the Adriatic end of the peninsula.

A Berlin broadcast said German forces along the Calera river at the center of the Italian Ise had retreated to new positions in the mountains near Corroto. Corroto is eight miles west of Pontelandolfo, whose capture the Allies announced yesterday.

In the day's most telling aerial assault, American Mitchell medium bombers escorted by Lightning fighters rained bombs on a Nazi airfield on Corfu, strategic Greek island dominating the entrance to the Adriatic. In addition to raking the Garitza airfield, the Mitchells scored two direct hits on a merchant ship in Corfu harbor.

LONDON, Oct. 13, (AP)—Portugal in an agreement announced by Prime Minister Churchill in the house of commons, yesterday granted Britain naval and air anti-submarine bases in the Azores strategic Atlantic crossroads commanding all routes from the United States to Europe and the Mediterranean.

The new bases, made available to Britain immediately, will give

Pfc. Lambert Palmer Ends Special Course

Pfc. Lambert R. Palmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.J. Palmer of 914 Myrtle Avenue, has just been graduated from Aero Tech, Los Angeles, Cal., in an intensive course in ground crew mechanics under the Army Air Forces Technical Training Command. Subsequently he has been assigned to duty with an active Air Force Unit.

Pfc. Palmer entered the first class in Jan. 1942 of the Aircraft Engine Mechanics course conducted by veteran aviator Dudley McCown, whose pupils became so apt that many of them could assemble an aircraft engine blindfolded. After completing this course Mr. Palmer, who has been described as an exceptionally good pupil, was sent to Lynn Field, Savannah, where he made a fine record. He returned to Sanford to enlist in the Army Air Corps. He formerly attended Seminole High School.

OPA Announces Ceiling Prices On Fresh Vegetables

Ceiling On Celery Is Set At $3.25 Per Crate; Cabbage Is $58.00 Per Ton

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15, (AP)—Country shipping-point ceiling prices for 13 fresh vegetables were announced jointly yesterday by the Office of Price Administration (OPA) and the War Food Administration (WFA).

The first step toward retail control of vegetable items which has boosted the cost of living substantially, the country maximums will be followed soon by ceilings at retail and wholesale levels.

The 13 vegetables priced are lima beans, snap beans, carrots, cabbage, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, eggplant, lettuce, green peas, peppers, spinach and tomatoes.

Maximum prices for additional vegetables are being prepared OPA said. Those next to come under control will be beets, asparagus, watermelon, cantaloupes and the 144 onion crop.

The country levels were released ahead of maximums for other levels, the agencies explained, so that winter vegetable production may be completed their production plans. Details of control and formulas for establishing wholesale and retail ceilings are planned for release before the bulk of the winter crops reach the market.

Consumer level prices will be fixed by the country shipping-point ceilings as beans, with frozen and refrigerated charges added for specific markets.

A number of celery growers based on the railroad or trucking points from which the produce is shipped. Prices for these crops grower is also the shipper.

Funeral Services For T.A. Houlihan Will Be Saturday

Funeral services for Thomas A. Houlihan, 88, well known to his many friends as "Happy" and a familiar personality who had lived here since 1924, will be held Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the All Souls Catholic Church.

The Rev. Father William Nachtrab will officiate.

This evening at 8:15 o'clock at the Erickson Funeral Home, a Rosary will be recited. Many of Mr. Houlihan's friends have contributed so generously toward his funeral that a fund is now being started to secure a headstone. Burial will be in All Souls Catholic Cemetery.

Mr. Houlihan was born in Savannah, Ga., and for a number of years worked in the post office there, both as a carrier and a clerk. The death of his wife and child is said to have caused him to sever all ties with the post. He found Sanford a kindly home, and is best remembered on holidays when he enjoyed appearing in full dress attire.

Active participants at the funeral will be Mrs. T. A. Houlihan, Mrs. L. B. Boyce, C. P. Lane, Frank Pavlic and J. Dainger.

Civic Clubs Raise $220.10 For Hospital

Local civic clubs raised $220.10 for the benefit of the Fernald-Laughton Memorial Hospital through ticket sales for the three football games which have been played between the various civic clubs at the City Gymnasium Park recently sponsored for the civic clubs.

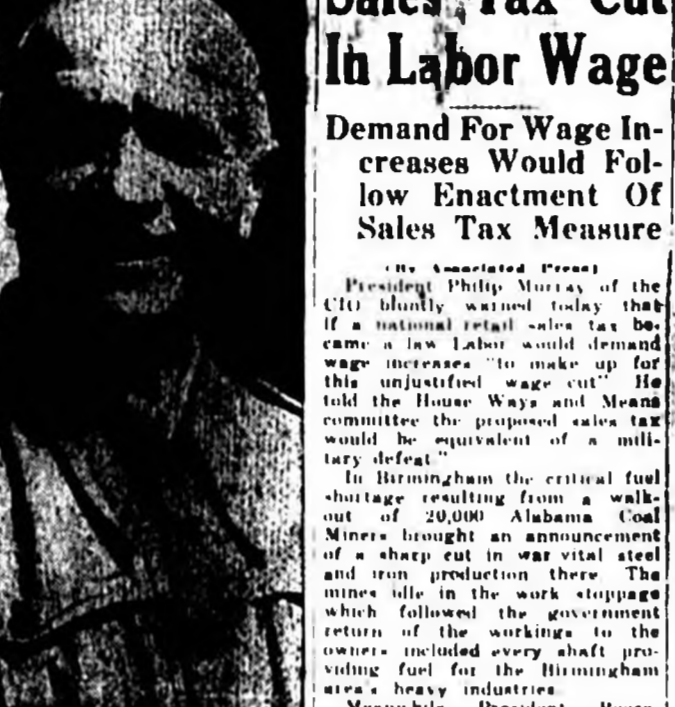

The clubs participating were the Rotary Club, the Kiwanis Club and the Lions Club. The tickets were sold for $1.00 each and the proceeds will be turned over to the hospital board for the purchase of much needed equipment at this institution.

The World's Greatest Book Again Takes the Spotlight

National Bible Week Observed Oct. 11th to 17th

"By do err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God" - Matthew 23:23

THREE years ago, the Laymen's National Committee founded and sponsored the first National Bible Week, designed to turn all Americans' attention to the Scriptures once a year - a long step toward bringing about a consciousness of God, a sense of decency without which liberty cannot hope to survive.

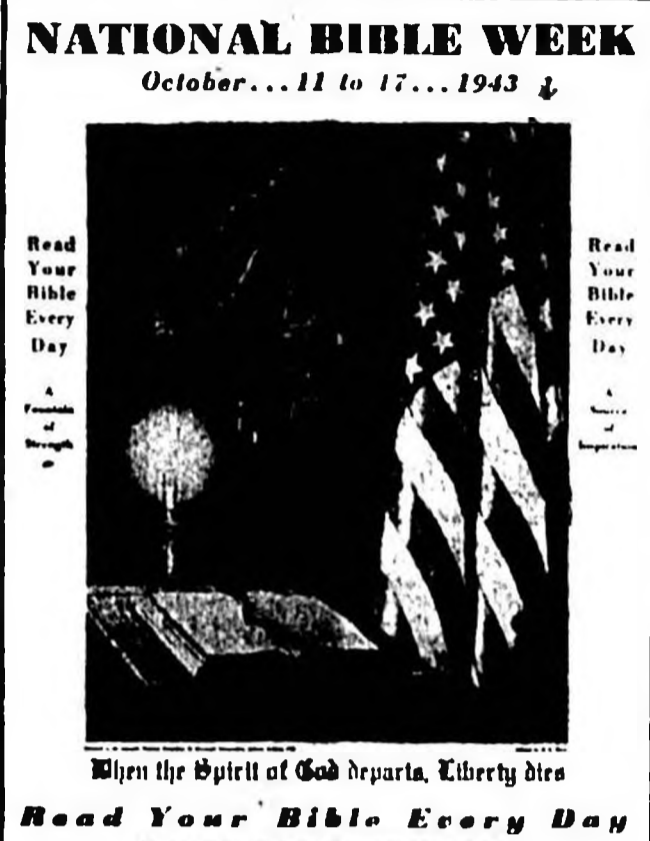

Men and women of every faith throughout every town and city in the United States are joining in plans for the observance of National Bible Week. Under the auspices of the Laymen's National Committee, headed by artist Howard Chandler Christy, National Bible Week, October 11th through 17th will come to the attention of Americans from their governmental, Retail and Jewish churches.

Agreed with Pearl Harbor - A coast to coast broadcast that opened the first National Bible Week was interrupted to announce the attack on Pearl Harbor. The war rather than lessening our interest in the Bible, has greatly increased their dependence on the comfort and solace that can be found in the words of the Holy Scriptures. As their Chaplains tell us, go into battle repeating passages from the Scriptures that they unfortunately should have learned in the days of peace.

Howard Chandler Christy Says - Mr. Christy said, in announcing plans for the nation-wide observance, that it is the aim of the Committee to have every American recognize the fundamental truth that America was founded on men's consciences of God, and that daily labor and the fruits therefrom.

"Thinking people all over the country are realizing more and more that they have stood too long on the sidelines and permitted the poisoning of minds with ungodly and un-American propaganda, without making much, if any effort to neutralize it."

"The result is today that we are facing such deplorable conditions as race hatred, class hatred, child labor, absenteeism, black markets." Committee members said they hoped observance of the week would "bring to the world that as far as Americans are concerned, we will adhere to a consciousness of Almighty God."

Posters obtainable free from all Salvation Army Posts.

The sponsoring organization is a non-profit, non-sectarian organization. Its contributors, numbering in the thousands, include corporations, labor organizations and other groups representing every corner of the United States.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor has joined forces with leading industrialists, announcing himself in "through accord" with the National Bible Week plan. Green is an Honorary Vice Chairman for the observance. Among nearly 100 leading industrialists serving as Honorary Vice Chairmen are W. A. Atkins, R. C. Atkins & Co., Clarence C. Carlton, Motor Wheel Corporation, Wilbur M. Collins, Canada Dry Glycerin, Inc., Robert J. Land, Lambert Pharmacy Company, Robert F. Nelson, American Corporation, Frank E. MacLain, H. McLeod & Sons, William F. Oberholser, J. American Viscose Corporation, Brock Pemberton, Industrial producer, D. A. Turner, Columbus Manufacturing Company, A. W. Wiley, Allen B. Posters Free - The Salvation Army is prepared to distribute over 600,000 of the Committee's beautiful colored posters free of charge. The local post of the Salvation Army will gladly supply you with all the posters you need. The Laymen's National Committee requests Americans all over this land to cooperate by displaying posters during Bible Week.

Consumers Urged To Buy Carefully And Avoid Waste

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Fashion Editor

You Mr. Consumer, have an important job to do in the total defense of America. In order to conserve our resources, you must learn to buy carefully and take care of what you have.

The necessities of wartime have spurred up a whole new world of unfamiliar goods, fabrics and equipment for you to master. It is usually a good idea to buy what you need, but you must know them well enough to distinguish the good from the bad.

Important in the new lineup of clothing fabrics are the man-made varieties of rayon, which are not such hitting, naturally, as silk, cotton and wool. These are not substitutes, but new products of a new era, in many cases proving more satisfactory than the materials they replace.

When you go shopping for a rayon garment the first thing you want to know is "Will it wear?" Your best guide in this is the label, which should tell you: a Will (a) fabric say

Farm Wages Soar headline

And so are the farmers.

Earl Brown says the state of Florida will be what advertising makes it. As much can be said for any business.

The Deland Sun-News says now is the time that the average high school boy would rather be right than President.

Ho Hum! Italy has declared war against Germany. We hope they are more help to us than they were to the Germans.

The government has lifted the censorship ban on weather. Now we can all talk about it, but we still can't do anything about it.

We see where the Prohibition Party is planning to hold a national convention in November. Now, let's see, what was it they were planning to prohibit?

The Army has its WACS and the Navy has its WAVES but it has remained for married women in New York who have hands in the service to organize the WIVES.

Maybe the reason the pioneers set forth in covered wagons was because they didn't want to wait fifty years for a train.—Titusville Star-Advocate. Maybe they didn't want to wait to get the mortgage paid off.

Millard Caldwell announces his candidacy for governor and some folks begin to delve into his congressional record to see what kind of a man he is. Many others merely wonder whether he is strong enough to beat Lex Green.

A reader says he can well remember when all the English Channel meant to us was whether or not we had an American who could swim it.—Cocoa Tribune. It still means a lot to some Americans whether they can swim it or not.

As if to show the abject injustice of the whole capitalistic system, the Treasury department releases a list of salary earnings which shows that Bing Crosby made $300,000 last year, while certain District made only $200,000 and everybody knows that Marjorie is a lot more fun than Bing Crosby.

Jack hasn't come home. I'm worried. Is he spending the night with "poor" Miss Smith's wife? One of his ladies neighbors says that the husband arrived home and before long a woman came in with five dollars in the purse, his wife had been waiting for him.

Getting More Butter

A Wisconsin butter co-operative, representing 100,000 dairy farmers, advertises to give the reasons for butter shortage. It says there are five.

- 1. Production decrease. Less butter is always made in late summer and fall because of less pasture. This year the decrease is greater because of "an inequitable relationship between dairy prices and other farm prices," making dairying less profitable. Lack of manpower and equipment also contribute.
- 2. Government storage holdings at an all-time high.
- 3. Increased buying power—people buying butter as never before.
- 4. Unequal distribution. Rationed along with meats, cheese, etc., the lowering of point values on these, or shortage of them, makes more points for butter. Near-by production points buy it all before it can be distributed fairly everywhere.
- 5. Lack of price rationing control of cream. Millions of pounds of potential butter are being hoarded in the form of cream. Nobody is getting that butter.

The company suggests remedies: Correct manpower situation, make farm machinery available, adjust dairying prices, ration butter separately, take off the butter subsidy.

Fortunately, the government now has enough stored for some months and will stop buying. These matters are difficult to keep a balance among armies and navies all over the globe, starving peoples in long-occupied countries, farmers, industrial workers moving from here to there and people staying at home on regular jobs. They all need butter. The problem is to make it easier for everybody and not harder. It's a tough assignment!

Plain Words

Diplomats are traditionally supposed to hide their meaning behind clouds of words. The plain man often cannot tell what a given diplomatic document means.

Refreshingly different are the notes sent by Secretary Hull to the French government in June, 1940, according to the official announcement just given out. France was surrendering to Germany at the time, and apparently about to yield all her resources, even her fleet. To stiffen the French backbone Secretary Hull wrote:

"Should the French government fail to take steps, and permit the French fleet to be surrendered to Germany, the French government will permanently lose the friendship and good will of the government of the United States."

Pretty plain speaking that, but it did the work. The fleet was not surrendered. In October, 1940, when there seemed new likelihood that the Germans might get the French ships after all, Mr. Hull told the French ambassador that if that happened, "the United States could make no effort, when the appropriate time came, to exercise its influence to insure to France the retention of her overseas possessions."

All this, too, while we were still at peace with Germany. The clearly foreseen certainty that some day soon we would not be, was of the greatest benefit when war came. This pressure on France before we entered the war was one of the most important of all war measures.

Chinese Citizenship

It would be wise for Congress to act promptly on the President's plea for repeal of the Chinese exclusion laws to the extent of a pending bill, which would permit a very moderate Chinese immigration and enable Chinese residents of this country to become American citizens.

This is not a proposal to "open the floodgates" and swamp the country with Asiatics. It is merely a "token" measure. By permitting an annual quota of 105 Chinese to become Americans, it would recognize that our Chinese friends and allies are people not essentially inferior to Americans, or to other foreign races against whom there is no such barrier. The Chinese government, in supporting such action, is not trying to "flood the country" with Asiatics, but to preserve Chinese self-respect.

The President points out the obvious fact that such a move would not cause unemployment here, nor produce any new competition for employment. But it would be practical acknowledgement that this nation respects the Chinese and considers China a partner in war and a friend in peace. Such consideration has been earned by the Chinese government and people, and would be of advantage to this country now and hereafter.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By RUSSELL KAY

The political pot really began to bubble last week when West Florida's Millard Caldwell tossed his sombrero into the gubernatorial ring and South Florida came forth with Ernest Graham.

Caldwell, former congressman and state legislator, is a man of recognized ability. He knows his way around in the political arena. Green, can talk with authority and as a former colleague of Lex about what the Gentleman from Starks did or did not do on certain occasions.

Respect, not only in his own district but throughout the State, Caldwell may be counted a real contender, and his entry in the race, will do Green no good.

While Ernest Graham will bear the label "Miami," it will be less of a handicap to him than it might be to others, for he looks and acts and talks more like rural Florida—north, south, east, west. As a successful, practical farmer, with the smell of the dairy barn on his clothes and the mist of the fields on his boots, he can talk to ruralists in a language they understand without an interpreter.

When any steps to unify the three candidates on the stump together, the picture presented a intriguing scene. Sam brought with him a large crowd of people. The three candidates of the professional politicians were...

and not assumed. In fact, there is nothing assumed about him. The attire in which he confronts his audience in Ecabon, Lake or Union, is the same he wears unblashed on the streets of downtown Miami.

As a practical farmer and dairy man, he has "held the bag" with the best of them and he knows how they are holding it now and why. He will in all probability have a lot to say about it for he can talk from personal experience. Blunt, strong and vigorous, he tackles his problems head-on and with courage, putting everything he's got in the job. He gets it done, and his record of success in his undertakings is outstanding.

Like Caldwell, he'll be short on promises, but those he makes, he'll mean and he'll carry out, come hell or high water, for he's that kind of man. He won't pussy-foot or beat about the bush. He hits straight from the shoulder and he hits hard. Because of that characteristic he has failed to please some folks, but he has plenty of friends and supporters who will back him and stick with him and ask "What's in it for ME?"

Well, there you have a picture as I see it. I have known all three of the candidates for many years, like them all and admire the coming race should be one certain qualities in each of them, of the most interesting and impressive in years and if there ever was a time when the voters should consider and weigh their action, it is the present. There will be other candidates, of course, and the picture may change later on, but at the moment these three men hold the spotlight and none of them can be discounted.

Selective Service Warns Of Action Against Dodgers

ST. AUGUSTINE, Oct. 15 (Special)—General Vivian Collins, Florida State Director for Selective Service, today warned all men now classified as delinquents in the State of Florida, that a new method of handling delinquents would become effective on November 1.

Under the new regulations delinquents just issued by National Selective Service Headquarters at Washington, to take effect Nov. 1, all delinquent registrants between the ages of 18 and 45 will be classified or reclassified into Class A, Class I-A, O or Class IV-E, whichever is applicable, and ordered to report for induction.

Failure to comply with this order will result in a report being made to the United States District Attorney that the man in question is a violator of the National Selective Service Act, and the District Attorney will accordingly take immediate steps leading to the delinquent's apprehension and prosecution.

General Collins emphasized that between now and Nov. 1, delinquent registrants were given final opportunity to report either to their own local board or to any local board and to fulfill the obligations imposed on them by Selective Service. The continuing manpower demands of the Armed Forces, the manpower needs of war production and in support of the war effort, and the general demand of registrants regularly engaged in agriculture, plantations to men in the Armed Forces and to men, including fathers, who will soon be inducted, make it imperative that every delinquent acceptable to the Armed Forces be made available for service therein.

In General Collins' own words, "We're through temporizing with these delinquents. Our boys are dying all over the world today to protect the American way of life, and after November first, any man who deliberately tries to evade the responsibilities imposed on him by Selective Service to do his fair share in upholding that way of life, is either going into the Armed Services or into jail."

World Community Day To Be November 11
At a meeting of the Inter-denominational Council of churches composed of the leaders of the various churches of the city, held at the Methodist Church Wednesday afternoon, it was decided to observe World Community Day on Nov. 11.

Armistice Day this year has been designated as World Community Day by the United Council of Church Women and by the leaders of women's denominational organizations. The purpose is for all church women to unite in their responsibility for just and lasting peace in a new world order, and to continue programs of study and action in every church in every community. "The Price of an Enduring Peace" will be the theme of the program.

This theme has been prepared for use by the women of the churches in every community throughout the nation. By celebrating Armistice Day in this way, millions of women in every community throughout the land will be participating in the effort to bring the influence of the Christian forces of our country to bear upon the building of a world order based on the principles taught by Christ.

Methodist W. S. C. S. Has Meeting Monday
A resolution on the death of Miss Leola Evans was read by Mrs. Zab Ratliff at the meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Services held in the Methodist Church Auditorium Monday afternoon. A committee to adopt a similar resolution on the death of Mrs. Jno. D. Jenkins was appointed.

An interesting report of the district meeting in Orlando was made by the members who attended. Mrs. R.W. Turner announced that "Week of Prayer" plans had been completed for Oct. 24-26 and on Oct. 27 there will be an evening prayer meeting while the following day, Oct. 28 there will be an all-day meeting with a covered dish luncheon. Mrs. Tolle urged full attendance at the prayer meetings as well as "step in the post-war peace plans."

Grammar School Has Columbus Program
A Columbus Day program was given at the Sanford Grammar School by the boys and girls of Mrs. Jack Berger's class in the school auditorium at the regular chapel hour.

As if to show the effect of inflation on the whole capitalist system, the Treasury department reports that the salary earnings of the highest paid executives of the country will be over $100,000 next year, while the average District judge makes less than $5,000.

The political pot really began to bubble last week when West Florida's Millard Caldwell tossed his sombrero into the gubernatorial ring and South Florida came forth with Ernest Graham.

Caldwell, former congressman and state legislator, is a man of recognized ability. He knows his way around in the political arena. Green, can talk with authority and as a former colleague of Lex about what the Southern States did or did not do on certain occasions.

Respect not only in his own district but throughout the State, Caldwell may be counted a real contender in the contest for the top job in the State.

While Ernest Green has been a hard nut to crack, it will be hard to crack for Caldwell if he has the talent and drive to win.

A typical outdoor "Fireside Chat" will then arise a highly respected lawyer. Modestly dressed, dignified, quiet, even a bit reserved. Slowly and in somewhat unorthodox manner he will talk straight from the shoulder. His promises, if any, will be few—and certain of fulfillment. He will give his listeners plenty to ponder over and think about, but there will be little promise of a future who seek mere "wrecking" of money political advantage, or less work done more pay. While not loud, the talk will be forceful and impressive, as is the man who makes it—Millard Caldwell.

The new man from Miami should prove a delightful and pleasing contrast to some of the men who have been named as possible opponents.

Getting More Butter

A Wisconsin butter co-operative, representing 100,000 dairy farmers, advertises to give the reasons for butter shortage. It says there are five.

1. Production decrease. Less butter is always made in late summer and fall because of less pasture. This year the decrease is greater because of "an inequitable relationship between dairy prices and other farm prices," making dairying less profitable. Lack of manpower and equipment also contribute.
2. Government storage holdings at an all-time high.
3. Increased buying power—people buying butter as never before.
4. Unequal distribution. Rationed along with meats, cheese, etc., the lowering of point values on these, or shortage of them, makes more points for butter. Near-by production points buy it all before it can be distributed fairly everywhere.
5. Lack of price rationing control of cream. Millions of pounds of potential butter are being hoarded in the form of cream. Nobody is getting that butter.

The company suggests remedies: Correct manpower situation, make farm machinery available, adjust dairying prices, ration butter separately, take off the butter subsidy, recognize the fact that food is the No. 1 weapon. Fortunately, the government now has enough stored for some months and will stop buying. These matters are difficult at best—for producer, for consumer, for officials trying to keep a balance among armies and navies all over the globe, starving peoples in long-occupied countries, farmers, industrial workers moving from here to there and people staying at home on regular jobs. They all need butter. The problem is to make it easier for everybody and not harder. It's a tough assignment!

Plain Words

Diplomats are traditionally supposed to hide their meaning behind clouds of words. The plain man often cannot tell what a given diplomatic document means.

Refreshingly different are the notes sent by Secretary Hull to the French government in June, 1940, according to the official announcement just given out. France was surrendering to Germany at the time, and apparently about to yield all her resources, even her fleet. To stiffen the French backbone Secretary Hull wrote:

"Should the French government fail to take steps, and permit the French fleet to be surrendered to Germany, the French government will permanently lose the friendship and good will of the government of the United States."

Pretty plain speaking that, but it did the work. The fleet was not surrendered. In October, 1940, when there seemed no likelihood that the Germans might get the French ships after all, Mr. Hull told the French ambassador that if that happened, "the United States could make no effort, when the appropriate time came, to exercise its influence to insure to France the retention of her overseas possessions."

All this, too, while we were still at peace with Germany. The clearly foreseen certainty that some day soon we would not be, was of the greatest benefit when war came. The pressure on France before we entered the war was one of the most important of all war measures.

Chinese Citizenship

It would be wise for Congress to act promptly on the President's plea for repeal of the Chinese exclusion laws to the extent of a pending bill, which would permit a very moderate Chinese immigration and enable Chinese residents of this country to become American citizens.

This is not a proposal to "open the floodgates" and swamp the country with Asiatics. It is merely a "token" measure. By permitting an annual quota of 105 Chinese to become Americans, it would recognize that our Chinese friends and allies are people not essentially inferior to Americans, or to other foreign races against whom there is no such barrier. The Chinese government, in supporting such action, is not trying to "flood the country" with Asiatics, but to preserve Chinese self-respect.

The President points out the obvious fact that such a move would not cause unemployment here, nor produce any new competition for employment. But it would be practical acknowledgment that this nation respects the Chinese and considers China a partner in war and a friend in peace. Such consideration has been earned by the Chinese government and people, and would be of advantage to this country now and hereafter.

and not assumed. In fact, there is nothing assumed about him. The attire in which he confronts his audience in Escambia, Lake or Union is the same he wears unbuttoned on the streets of downtown Miami.

As a practical farmer and dairyman, he has "held the bag" with the best of them and he knows how they are holding it now and why, and in all probability have a lot to say about it for he can talk from personal experience. Blunt, strong and vigorous, he tackles his problems head-on and with courage, putting everything he's got in the job "all he gets it done, and his record of success in his undertakings is outstanding. Like Caldwell, he'll be short on promises, but those he makes, he'll mean and he'll carry out, come hell or high water, for he's that kind of man. He won't pussy-foot or beat about the bush, he'll state straight from the shoulder and he'll stand by it. Because of this characteristic he has failed in please some folks, but he has plenty of friends and supporters who will back him and stick with him and ask "What's in it for ME?"

Well, there you have a picture as I see it. I have known all three of the candidates for many years, like them all and admire them all. Because of their certain qualities in each of them, of the most interesting and impressive in years and if there ever was a time when the voters should consider and weigh their action, it is the present. There will be other candidates, of course, and the picture may change later on, but at the moment these three men hold the spotlight and none of them can be discounted.

Millard Caldwell Is Out For Governor

TALLAHASSEE, Oct. 14 (Special)—Millard P. Caldwell, former congressman and state legislator, announced today that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Florida.

The former congressman from the Third Florida District said he will conduct a vigorous state-wide campaign, carrying directly and frankly to the people of Florida his views on government.

Caldwell said "My campaign is open and frank; it discusses the issues and the problems of government in a direct and vigorous way, and I shall be held to my promises."

He will be based at Tallahassee, and plans for the campaign without unusual and political law-breaking. Government work in the past has brought him to the public eye and he has been a member of the State Bar since 1915.

preliminary and preliminary. General Collins emphasized that between now and Nov. 1, delinquent registrants were given final opportunity to report either in their own local board or to any local board and to fulfill the obligations imposed on them by Selective Service. The continuing manpower demands of the Armed Forces, the manpower needs of war production and in support of the war effort, and the general deferment of registrants regularly engaged in agriculture, plus farmers to men in the Armed Forces and to men, including fathers, who will soon be inducted, make it imperative that every delinquent acceptable to the Armed Forces be made available for service therein.

World Community Day To Be November 11

At a meeting of the International Council of Churches composed of the leaders of the women-workers of the various churches of the city, held at the Methodist Church Wednesday afternoon, it was decided to observe World Community Day on Nov. 11.

Armistice Day this year has been declared by the United Council of Church Women and by the leaders of women's denominational organizations. The purpose is for all church women to unite in a study of their responsibility for just and lasting peace in a new world order, and to continue a program of study and action in every church in every community. "The Price of an Enduring Peace" will be the theme of the program.

This theme has been prepared for use by the women of the churches in every community throughout the nation. By celebrating Armistice Day in this way, millions of Christian community throughout the land will be participating in the effect of a united front in bringing the influence of the Christian forces of the world to bear upon the building of a world order based on the principles taught by Christ," said Mrs. J.B. Root of the Congregational Church.

Methodist W. S. C. S. Has Meeting Monday

A resolution on the death of Miss Leah Evans was read by Mrs. Zeb Halliff at the meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Services held in the Methodist Church Auditorium Monday afternoon. A committee to adopt a similar resolution on the death of Mrs. Joe D. Jenkins was appointed.

The program was under the direction of Circle One of the W.C.S. and Mrs. J. Brodie Williams, president of the organization, presided over the meeting which was closed with a prayer by Mrs. P.R. Mitchell. Mrs. Joe A. Gales accompanied singing.

Bishop O'Gara Back, Spared By The Japanese

Hunan Prelate Faced Firing Line, Saw British Bayoneted

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 15. (AP)—The "Stretcher Bearer Bishop" is home from the Orient, having been bayoneted by Japanese soldiers which were his Christmas greeting Dec. 25, 1941; away from the fifth and vermin of Japanese internment camps, and already making plans to return to China.

He is the Most Rev. Cuthbert M. O'Gara, C.P., Vicar Apostolate of Yuanling, Hunan, China, who was imprisoned by the Japanese, stripped and bayoneted, with thirty-two other priests and religious brothers, for execution.

Interviewed recently at the national office of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, 108 East Thirty-eight Street, Bishop O'Gara recounted many of the indignities and near- atrocities he saw during six months he was a prisoner. With him was his secretary, the Rev. Ronald Norris, also of the Congregation of the Passion, who went through the same experiences.

On Christmas morning, Bishop O'Gara said, he and the others were captured by the Japanese. At Bayonet point they were stripped and their hands bound behind them.

"We took it for granted we were to be executed," Bishop O'Gara said. "We were marched to the firing line and questioned for an hour and a half. When six British officers and men ahead of us were bayoneted to death, we thought our turn had come. But a field radio near by received a message we never quite figured out, and we were marched off to a garage."

They were kept there four days. For two days they had no food. They were without clothes and believed their executions still would go through. They gave each other absolution and exhorted one another to keep faith. On the fourth day they were taken to a "little Chinese hotel," thirteen and a half feet wide and four stories high. It was dirty and vermin-ridden, the Bishop said, and men, women and children were thrown together indiscriminately. The Bishop and two others stayed together in one room, he said. They were eight by ten cubicles, containing a slatted bed and a short wooden bench.

"We remained there three weeks," he said. "It was dark, dirty and alive with vermin. The food was revolting. After that we were taken to what the Japanese call a civilian recreation center. They have nice names for every thing."

Called "The Stretcher Bearer Bishop" because he frequently was seen carrying stretchers laden with victims of Japanese bombings, Bishop O'Gara said he was in Hongkong, when captured, to undergo treatment for a badly infected tooth. All the time he was interned his condition grew worse. "I was lucky to get out alive," he added.

THE HEAVY ATTACK on Jap-held Wake Island on October 5 was commanded by Rear Admiral Alfred Montgomery (above). U. S. warships and planes smashed heavily at Jap installations and the garrison. The base is approximately 1,000 miles west of the Hawaiian Islands. (International)

Gen. Kirby-Smith's Grandson Is With Marines In Pacific

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC. Oct. 15.—Traditions of the fighting generals of the Confederacy have been brought into this war with arrival here of Second Lieut. Ephraim Kirby-Smith, U. S. Marine Corps, of Seawann, Tenn.

Lieut. Kirby-Smith is a grandson of General Edmund Kirby-Smith, commander of the Confederate Trans-Mississippi forces and one of General Lee's lieutenants, and Florida's most important citizen at that time.

Now, when officers here argue tactics of the War Between the States they have an authoritative referee in the Leatherstocking lieutenant. Military strategy as developed during the struggle between the South and the North, and particularly that used by General Lee and aides, is accepted as the most effective ever devised. It is still in use today.

General Lee, for instance, is said to have been the first to use the "blitz" method of attack. German officers spent some time in the United States studying the Confederate wizard's tactics prior to the Nazi invasion of Poland.

General Kirby-Smith was a West Point classmate to Lee and Jackson. He was a colonel in the Federal army when the war broke out and followed his chief into the Confederate Army.

He was the last Southern general to surrender to the Yankees, being captured at New Orleans while attempting to escape into Mexico to raise a new army. "That's why we're so brave today," Lieut. Kirby-Smith laughed.

Altogether, 24 of the General's direct descendants now are in the armed services, including two of Lieut. Kirby-Smith's sisters, Pvt. Catherine Smith, Marine Corps Women's Reserve, is the first Tennesseean to join the Women Marines. She now is doing secretarial work at the New River, North Carolina, Marine base. Pvt. Ellis Kirby-Smith, also of the Marine Women's Reserve, was inducted recently.

Censors Insist Photos Show All Aspects: Some Men Against Scenery

LONDON, Oct. 15. (AP)—Just about the most ardent bunch of amateur photographers in the world right now must be the American soldiers in Britain. Nine thousand times a day some soldier stands up against some scenery with his red click the shutter.

It's possible to find the number exactly because all the amateur pictures have to go through a periphrastic little knot of United States Army censors who must make sure the soldier's lenses didn't take in any scenery helpful to the enemy.

All negatives go from the camera to the Army Pictorial Service in London, which develops them and makes one print of each picture free, passing the results on through the long-suffering censors before the picture snappers can send them home or do anything else with them.

"Long-suffering" censors describe them, because the quartet of officers striving to dispose of this tide of photography report that practically all the pictures are the same thing—a soldier against some scenery—and practically all are down to the usual amateur standard, which isn't so good.

The foreman of the quartet, Lieutenant Leonard Berman, of 250 West Eighty-fifth Street, New York, a former advertising man, has been mixed up in photography both professional and amateur for fifteen years, and feels qualified to comment.

"The subjects are all practically identical," he said. "A guy stands up against some historic background and his friend snaps a picture of him. London, Bridge, Buckingham Palace, Piccadilly Circus. Or in the park, or across a girl. Or around an airplane, or a guy will start at one end of a plane and move along it, having his picture taken at half a dozen different places on it."

The chief fault in the pictures is underexposure, he said, adding, "They don't realize the daylight averages only about half as bright here as it does in the United States."

The mystery is where the boys get so much film, when it's so scarce both here and in the United States. Apparently they brought a big supply with them.

The four amateur-picture censors, the others are Lieutenant Harold Algren, of 1859 Sixty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, who used to work on "The New York Journal-American"; Lieutenant Lawrence Mead, of Chicago, and Lieutenant James Ennis, of Tampa, Fla., also handle amateur movies and report that Hollywood doesn't seem to have much competition from the Army.

Electric Company of Florida

If you buy electricity from a self-supporting, business-managed electric company, 24c out of every dollar you pay is promptly passed along to you. (1942 figures. 1943 will be higher.) On an annual household electric bill of $37.50, the total tax is about $9.00.

25% of this goes to local governments for streets, parks, schools, and $27.50 to the Federal Government. As Army rates, the $27.50 and 25% you pay will make one soldier and his equipment worth here.

The total national cost of this industry is $2,200,000,000 - enough to buy the same number of soldiers as the Army has.

When you remember that the service operated by electric companies under business management is the only electric service actually used, it emphasizes even more the outstanding job these companies have done in supplying electric production up, up, up to meet every war demand - while keeping prices down!

Sloan Outlines Post-War Plan To Assure Jobs

Head Of General Motors Urges Incentives To Enterprise

DETROIT, Oct. 15, (AP)—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors Corp., asserted here recently that the ability of free enterprise to create jobs for those who are willing to exchange their time and talents for a proper wage will make an important contribution to winning the peace and constitutes the challenge to management.

Declaring that the first job is to win the war, Mr. Sloan told a luncheon meeting of the Economic Club of Detroit that the winning of the war is not the end objective.

"The real objective is a sound and constructive peace," he said. "Winning the war makes such a peace possible. It provides an opportunity that is all."

Three Post-War Objectives

Mr. Sloan urged management and industry to prepare realistically now for the attainment of three clearly defined post-war objectives.

"1. Jobs for those who are willing to exchange their time and talents for a proper wage."

"2. Means must be found to prevent further attacks on our civilization. There must be no World War II."

"3. Our international relationships must be on the basis of a 'two-way' street."

The third of these points means that there must be no "world-W.F.A. at the expense of the American taxpayer," Mr. Sloan said. "No lowering of our standard of living to that of other countries. Our sovereignty must remain at all times unrestricted."

The challenge of the post-war period is jobs, Mr. Sloan said, and this challenge cannot be met by adopting panaceas. It can be solved permanently only within the structure of sound economic policy, he continued.

"We should do those things in a national way that will serve to encourage and stimulate enterprise in all its forms," he said. "The objectives can not be achieved otherwise. We must provide the necessary incentives. We must rebuild a foundation of confidence in the future opportunities of individual enterprise."

"Business cannot plan ahead with confidence if uncertainty exists as to the continuance of our existing economic system. Of this system it is to be hamstrung by those in power who believe in something different and act to prevent the system of competitive enterprise from working efficiently."

Mr. Sloan differentiated between the two post-war periods: the early years of war-created consumer goods shortages and the longer period which follows. Jobs will in all likelihood be available during the earlier period, he said, and the real problem will be to control the inflationary influence of an abnormal reservoir of purchasing power in the face of the initial extreme shortage of goods.

The most dramatic attack on the problems of the two post-war eras would be a governmental pronouncement of the nation's firm belief in competitive enterprise and the profit motive as the keystone of national economic policy.

An error is scored against Crosetti in the second inning of the Fifth World Series game. He dropped the ball thrown to him by Chandler, who would have been in time to put Cardinal's Sanders out at second. Crosetti is in center of photo. Yankee won game 2-0, winning series. Bird Dog Trails Are Continuing In Spite Of War

By ROMNEY WHEELER
AP Features Sports Writer

It would rate hardly a line in a crowded sports page, but the fierce competition from Canada's prairie combed more than its words to bird dog followers.

Said the item "The Dominion Club's stakes on prairie chickens opened the fall and winter field trial season."

But the lines told veteran field trial enthusiasts more. It was an indication that another center of wartime restrictions won't stop setter and pointer competition.

In the prairie provinces, Manitoba and Saskatchewan are the summer training grounds favored by professional handlers from the United States. And the Dominion Club's stakes open the trial season.

They'll do a more thorough job with what they have than in the days when kennels were over-crowded.

Despite threats of tighter transportation restrictions, most of the recognized clubs in the South, East and West are claiming trail stakes. There has been no indication that the championship stakes on quail, prairie chickens, pheasants and grouse will be abandoned.

Old timer followers of the sport believe that bird dog trails will weather the war, come what may.

Sport started in South.

They argue and with a good deal of logic that bird dog field trials reached national proportions in America long before an omnibus monopolized the high seas. The sport originated in the South in the wake of the Civil War, and for nearly 50 years outdoor men rode day coaches and drove teams to reach field trial grounds.

After the Canadian and border trails, handlers bring their dogs southward for a series of competitions in the middle-Atlantic and mid-west states.

October brings the National Amateur Pheasant championship to Cranbury, N.J. followed by Standardized One Course classic at Marlford, N.J.

November brings the 30th Quail Fertility to Mount Vernon, Ill., the New England Bird Dog Championship at Scotland, Conn. and the U.S. Grouse Dog Championship at Gladwin, Mich.

In addition to these headlines there are scores of local and regional meetings 96 in all, right up to December.

RURAL COMMON SENSE

By Spuds Johnson

OF GENERAL McNARNEY

"If we become over confident or get back in the army or on the production front, we will be in a 'winning disaster'."

That statement by Lieut. Gen. McNarney, deputy chief of staff of the United States Army, expressed in simple but forceful style the imperative need for Americans to keep the pace they have attained thus far in this war and, if possible, to increase it.

Production of all the necessities for winning the war must be maintained and increased as much as possible.

The strenuous efforts of the farmers of Florida and the rest of the Nation have produced enough food and other agricultural products that are needed in war to enable the United States to turn to the offensive after being on the defensive for many long months. It is up to the farmers to continue to produce food for the production of other necessities, such as tanks, guns and other weapons must be maintained and increased so must the production of food continue at the highest possible level.

Farmers have accomplished tremendous tasks during the past three years, accomplished them despite shortages of labor, machinery and supplies, and the results of these accomplishments are now being seen in the favorable trend in the war. Food from the farms of America has been used as a powerful weapon of war, and it must be available for continued use against our enemies. It has enabled Americans to see industrial workers to outdo all past efforts in production, it has made the armed forces of America strong enough to carry the war vigorously and successfully to the enemy, and it has been an instrument augmenting our strength in the lands where our armed forces have gone by abating the peoples of those lands actively and forcefully with us.

Farmers and others certainly will heed the warning words of Lieut. Gen. McNarney, for certainly he knows whereof he speaks, he knows of the pressing need for continued all-out effort until victory is won.

Alabama Operator Declares Picture Is Hopeful Despite Numerous Idle Miners

BIRMINGHAM, Oct. 18. (AP) Seventeen of Alabama's 21 union mines were reopened today...

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 18. — Alabama's 22,000 coal miners almost unanimously rejected yesterday an order of the War Labor Board...

Reports from almost all the mining camps throughout this area showed that the diggers, union and better over absence of a contract, would refuse to return to the pits until their demands are met.

The work stoppage has sharply cut steel and pig iron production in the war plants of this area...

It was certain last night that none of the larger, captive or commercial mines in this area would be worked today...

The next move appeared to be up to the W.L.B. The story at all the local meetings today was the same. No contract, no work.

Civilian Food Supplies May Drop In 1944

Sufficient Cereals, Chickens, Fresh Fruits, Vegetables Are Still in Sight

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18. (AP) — Civilian food supplies may be slightly cut next year...

Shorter allotments of meats in dairy products are predicted. A smaller civilian supply of canned fruits and vegetables is seen in the first half of 1944...

The estimated total food production is expected to decline in 1944, but to be present above the 1943 average. Milk production is expected to decline.
