BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY: THE TWO GREAT COMMANDMENTS: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself. Luke 10:27.

THE TRIANGLE: Then I will lend you to her for a while. And ask nothing but your safe return. Constrained to greet you with a cheerful smile. On guarded lips where bitter questions burn.

Knowing her beauty and your deep delight, I have grave need of courage in this day. Cool courage, pruned sharp by awe and bright. With thrusts deftly your most devious way. But this I charge you in the name of days. Honored with capture if alone the thread. Of duty binds you to me in the ways. Of custom, cut the living from the dead. In my belief though ghosts may intercede. Remembering our love, give them no heed. Hazel Harrington Selby.

Rabson Urges Women Train for Business-headline. Yeah, they couldn't have done much worse than us men.

They say that by the time General Johnson had finished with the code for the pig nose ring industry, he was like a bull in a China closet.

After all, there is some difference between a Democrat and a Socialist. A Democrat actually puts the government into business; a Socialist simply advocates it.

Stocks are beginning to go down until now they have reached a new low for the year. This is, however, no reason for discouragement. They are simply getting ready for a new spurt to make more millionaires.

Since this controversy started with Japan, we have been hearing a great deal about "saving face"; but looking over some photographs of Japanese statesmen, we can't imagine what Uncle Sam would want to save one for.

Very likely the children of Henry Wallace, the young Secretary of Agriculture, will never be thoroughly satisfied with their father's administration of the A. A. A. until he has plowed up every third row of spinach.

The United States government is going after kidnapers and will wear steel helmets and bullet proof vests to ward off machine gun bullets. It's a fight to the finish with the odds on the federal men. They may not look so good at first, but the sun doesn't shine on the same dog's tail all the time.

With this drought continuing throughout the Middle West and threatening to destroy this year's wheat crop, the A. A. A. is liable to have to change its program from one of crop reduction to crop production. After all, as we have said before, the old copy book maxim of "waste not, want not" is a good one.

The Herald hopes that it will not be necessary for J. W. Harwell, who has concluded his week with the liquidation of the First National Bank, to leave this city. During the years that he has been here, he has made many friends and has thoroughly established himself as a first-class citizen. We do not know what his plans for the future are, but we hope that they will be such that he will spend additional years of residence in this city.

Russian Toys

It is not the official recognition of the United States of Soviet Russia by the United States of America that gives rise to the belief that the Communist government may yet surmount the obstacles which are holding back that country. Nor is it the growing tendency on the part of the Supreme Council of Soviet Commissars to distinguish between the various degrees of individual ability and to reward them accordingly that gives some faint gleam of hope for the future of the Stalin government. It is the final admission on the part of the Russians that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.

During the long interval which has followed the collapse of the Czarist regime, the policy of putting children to work at an early age has been rigidly adhered to. Sun playtime as they have been allowed has been confined under strict supervision to games and toys "which instruct." In the kindergarten boys and girls of tender age, after studying their "lessons" for hours were herded together and allowed to "play" with a machine intended to introduce to them the principals of mass production. There was nothing original or diverting about this "play." It wasn't fun. The children were simply being taught to work.

The admission is now made, however, that a childhood without individual freedom, without worthless toys like jumping jacks, toy drums, hobby horses, and building blocks, and the leisure to play with them or not at one's pleasure, is apt to result in lifeless stupid men. Children who are always told what to do seldom know what to do without being told. Children who are not allowed to play for the sheer fun of playing without being required to learn something soon forget how to play altogether. This the Russian Commissar of Education is now beginning to realize.

For he says: "Much harm can result from attempts to turn the child into a Nestor, overtaxed with scientific knowledge and equipped with a microscope instead of toys. The existing pre-school programs are too advanced in subject matter. Thus the program for the first group calls for a study of nations and nationalities. Children of the second group are expected to learn the names of the various instruments and machines, and must know how to distinguish weeds from cereal plants. All of this goes to show that those who make up the programs have not the slightest idea of the characteristics of the mind of the pre-school child."

But all of this is now to be changed. The kindergarten youngsters are to have their toys, games and laughter in quantity. On the shelves of the new toy shops are to be found many playthings of the type which have been favorites with children in other countries for many years. Even teddy bears, dolls, and baby dishes will be displayed copiously. And best of all there are now being imported in large quantities miniature trains, automobiles, airplanes, doll houses, and all kinds of things which move and go and twist and turn, and things which you can put together and take apart, all brightly colored in green and red.

All of this is going to produce a profound effect upon the coming generation. They are likely to become human beings after all. But what is even more encouraging is that it will undoubtedly help the grown-ups too. What in the world would an American father be like if he didn't have a miniature train to play with?

Life Insurance

The value of life insurance is well illustrated by the appraisal of the estate of Ring Lardner recently filed in New York for transfer tax purposes. The appraisal shows that when Mr. Lardner died he left an estate with a net valuation of $192,927.63.

Mr. Lardner was one of America's best known humorists, newspaper correspondents and magazine writers. In his day he was probably one of America's best paid literary folk. It is well known that some of these writers enjoy incomes which often run into six figures.

No doubt Mr. Lardner in his more prosperous days had been able to lay aside ample funds for a rainy day or for whatever rainy days his wife and children might have after he was gone. But unfortunately a depression came along, and whatever savings he had been able to accumulate were practically destroyed by the general collapse.

For the appraisal showed a net item of only $25 in stocks and bonds. There was some $34,000 in real estate, and $1,762 in miscellaneous properties. Aside from about $3,000 in cash, all the rest of his estate consisted of life insurance, payable immediately to his wife.

In other words, in spite of the fine income which Mr. Lardner had enjoyed, his death would have left his family practically penniless with nothing but their home, had it not been for life insurance policies in strong companies.

These, amounting to around $150,000 will enable them to continue to live in almost as much comfort as if he were still alive.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

The play, "A Man's Voice," given by the members of Miss Gertrude Green's class in expression last night in the High School auditorium was a very creditable performance and was witnessed by an appreciative audience. The following formed the cast: "Miss Matilda Perkins," Miss Gladys Morris; "Miss Arabella Parkins," Miss Annie Cameron; "Gwendolyn Perkins," Miss Mary Gatchel; "Mrs. Joseph Ingalls," Miss Gladys Green; "Hanna," Miss Maud Cameron; and "Betty," Miss Ruth Kanner.

Mrs. Warden of Memphis, Tenn. is the guest of her friend, Mrs. John Brady. Mrs. Warden attended the Confederate reunion at Jacksonville and came to Sanford to visit her girlhood friends for several days.

Dr. and Mrs. T. A. New and Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Puleston attended the meeting of the Florida Medical Association at Orlando yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. McLaughlin motored to Orlando Tuesday where they spent the day. Mrs. W. W. Dresser left Monday night for Washington, N. Y. where she was called by the nation illness of Mr. Dresser's

Commission To Act In Face Of Disease Menace

(Continued From Page One) public examples, we face a serious situation. Why only today I visited a class room where ordinarily there are 25 children. There were only five of that number present. The rest were out with some form of communicable disease."

Mrs. Lamb stated that several persons have died recently in the county because of the effects of a communicable disease. "People think that measles, mumps, and chicken pox are diseases that all children have," she said, "but few people stop to think that many of their children are going to be left with defects by the result of their lives because of lightly treated cases of measles or chicken pox or small-pox."

Law enforcement of the ordinance, provision of which requires all physicians, nurses, and midwives to report any case of communicable disease to city health authorities within 12 hours, is being having assisted in the spread of the disease.

"We must have some safe guard," Mrs. Lamb stated, "positively against careless people who will test a quarantine station to bite the minute you have turned your back."

Clerk E. S. Lanson stated during the discussion, that the Woman's Club of Sanford had, by letter, petitioned the commission to pass an ordinance of the type which already is on the books.

Mayor W. A. Jelfler asked Mrs. Lamb that "The City is inclined to enforce our ordinance, and he authorized the issuance of a letter to all physicians reminding them of their responsibilities under the ordinance."

Harry M. Papworth, physician for a group of Sanford baseball fans, asked the Commissioners for a small appropriation to take care of immediate repairs to the grandstand. The commission authorized the expenditure of not more than $100 at this time.

Ralph Wacht, appearing in behalf of the Winn Lovett Grocery Co., which proposes to erect a warehouse and dock on lakefront property to be leased from the city, requested the commission to give him for the company a copy of the resolution making the lease, a guarantee that money already paid in to the city will be returned provided the War Department does not grant a permit to build a dock, and the right to tear down the old dock warehouse at the foot of Myrtle Avenue when the new one is completed. His requests were complied with.

Ernest Gatchel, independent grocer protested against the city's ordinance requiring persons to pay $15 a year license for the privilege of distributing handbills. He said that larger concerns who operate several stores could distribute one hand bill covering all of their stores, while the independent merchant had to pay $15 and have to distribute from one store.

Gatchel stated that he had distributed handbills in the city and had been fined for it. He said that he had been fined $15 for distributing handbills in the city and had been fined $15 for distributing handbills in the city and had been fined $15 for distributing handbills in the city.

Commissioner H. J. Lehman's view was that "No doubt plenty of liquor is now being sold and will be sold in the city regardless of whether we modify our ordinance or not. If the government is to make it legal it seems to me that the city, county, and state should do likewise."

The matter was ordered deferred until the next meeting.

The Commissioners learned that a 10-day option they had given to Captain Hurlbut at Mt. Dora on the Mayfair Hotel had expired yesterday without any favorable

Chief Williams was told to discuss the problem with the Sheriff's office and find out whether or not the County Commissioners would be interested in paying half of the expense.

A request by the Florida Power and Light Co., that inasmuch as it had paid $171,405 of a large amount of taxes it owes the city, an unpaid balance of approximately $1300 due the city for white-way lighting be paid at once, was tabled again.

It was disclosed that members of the Commission had been advised by H. H. Coleman, local manager for the firm, that the city will be given a new light rate very soon.

Mayor Jelfler, asking for the commissioners' views on the sale of land liquor in small quantities, declared that it is a nuisance which must be met at once. He pointed to reported "safe spots" in other cities, and urged that a stand be taken at once.

When Commissioner T. J. Thomas had declared "Why, it's against the laws of the state," Commissioner S. O. Shubolter reminded him that "The City has no right to enforce any state law."

Commissioner V. A. Speer declared that "We certainly have the right to enforce our own ordinance and modify them if necessary. However, I wouldn't think of issuing a license to allow the sale of drinks."

Commissioner H. J. Lehman's view was that "No doubt plenty of liquor is now being sold and will be sold in the city regardless of whether we modify our ordinance or not. If the government is to make it legal it seems to me that the city, county, and state should do likewise."
