Court rules against Pennsylvania couple

SARASOTA — A Pennsylvania couple must prove they have a right to seek a blood test of a 10-year-old girl to determine her biological parentage before a judge can hear arguments on the request, the 2nd District Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday.

Ernest and Regina Twigg of Langhorne, Pa., seek to force Kimberly Mays of Sarasota to submit to a blood test for genetic testing in hopes of proving she is their natural daughter, and not that of Robert Mays who has raised her since birth.

The appeal was filed after Sarasota Circuit Judge Andy Owens rejected a motion by Mays' attorney, Arthur Ginsburg, which said the Twiggs' right to seek the blood test and a ruling on the need for the test were separate issues that should be addressed at different hearings.

The appellate court agreed with Ginsburg and also said the Twiggs must prove Kimberly will not be emotionally injured if ordered to submit to the blood test.

Judge rescinds order, girl returns home

DADE CITY — Staci Elmer, who will turn 15 April 7, got an early birthday present Wednesday — she can move back home to be with her parents.

The Elmers live in an adult mobile home park near Zephyrhills and deed restrictions prevent any children under the age of 15 living there, although they can visit.

Pasco County Circuit Judge Wayne L. Cobb upheld the deed restrictions in January and with her parents facing 10 days in jail if she remained at the mobile home park. She moved in with a married brother Jan. 31, visiting her parents on weekends.

But after the federal Fair Housing Amendments Act went into effect March 12, the Elmers asked Cobb to reconsider his order and allow Staci to return home.

Wednesday Cobb said the federal order superceded his ruling and he dissolved his order.

Staci was not at the court hearing and learned of the decision when her mother went to tell her at her ballet class.

The federal housing order makes it illegal, with a few exceptions, to deny housing to minors living with parents.

The senior citizens who filed the lawsuit against the Elmers in May 1988, declined comment but were visibly unhappy as they left the courthouse.

Bones indicate site was burial ground

PENSACOLA — Human bone fragments nearly 1,000 years old have been discovered at an Escambia County construction site and are believed to mark the only known burial ground of the Pensacola Indians' early ancestors.

Researchers have been careful not to move the human remains, which were found this week, project director John Phillips said Wednesday. They estimated the age of the bone fragments by carbon-testing broken pieces of pottery from vessels that were buried with the bones.

The tests indicate the pottery shards are about 920 years old, dating from around 850 A.D. to 1000 A.D.

"They are very definitely native American," Phillips said.

The Indians buried at the site are believed to be from a tribe archeologists know as the Missipian period Pensacola variety. They were the remote ancestors of the Pensacola Indians that the Spanish encountered in north Florida in the 1500s, Phillips said.

Tribes of that period often buried their dead with ceramic vessels containing items they valued, Phillips said. The broken pottery at the site is mingled with pieces of mica and hematite, a red ochre pigment that was highly valued by America's early inhabitants.

Because of their age and the highly acidic soil, the remains are in very poor condition, Phillips said.

The human bone fragments were found in three places on a 10-acre site in southwest Escambia County near the Pensacola Naval Air Station.

Navy training reforms promised

WASHINGTON — Rep. Toby Roth, R-Wis., said Wednesday the new chief of training for the Navy has promised to put into effect training reforms recommended in the aftermath of the death of a Wisconsin sailor.

Lee Mirecki of Appleton died last March during a swimming class at the Rescue Swimmer School at Pensacola Naval Air Station. His death led to an investigation of Navy training, including a review of other deaths.

The General Accounting Office has recommended changes in training and Roth, who represents the district Mirecki came from, said Vice Admiral J.S. DiScher, the incoming Chief of Naval Training, has promised to follow them.

Roth released the GAO report earlier this month but he said he wants to make sure the reforms are put into effect.

"Experience tells me that we have to keep the heat on the Navy, and congressional oversight will be necessary. The whole point of the investigation is to prevent the Lee Mirecki tragedy from happening again," he said. "I feel we are much closer to that goal."

JACKSONVILLE — A federal grand jury indicted five chiefs of Colombia's notorious Medellin drug cartel, an associate of the Bahamian prime minister and 24 others on charges involving the importation of 44,000 pounds of cocaine into the United States in the past 15 years.

Federal investigators believe the cartel is responsible for 80 percent of the cocaine imported into the United States.

The indictment, unsealed Wednesday, grew from a follow-up investigation of Medellin chieftain Carlos Lehder, who is serving a term of life in prison without parole, plus 135 years.

Lehder was captured in Colombia in 1987 and extradited to the United States. He was convicted in Jacksonville in May 1988 of all 11 counts in an indictment that said he smuggled 3.3 tons of cocaine into the United States in 1979 and 1980.

The 12-count indictment Wednesday charges his associates, Pablo Emilio Escobar-Gaviria, Jose Gonzalo Rodriguez-Gacha, Jorge Luis Ochoa-Vasquez, his brother Fabio Ochoa-Vasquez and Gonzalo Mejia, all of Colombia.

All are believed to be leaders in a powerful and violent cartel based in the Colombian city of Medellin, and most face earlier drug charges in the south Florida federal court district.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ernest Mueller said the government was optimistic they would be brought to the United States for trial.

"It took us six years to get Lehder to the Middle District of Florida. We think the chances that they will ultimately be prosecuted are good," Mueller said.

Mueller said eight of the other 25 people indicted are in custody.

The defendants include Lehder's former wife, Yemel Naeel of New York City, and 24 other alleged members of the organization accused of helping move the drugs through the Bahamas, then distribute them in the United States.

Cocaine chiefs indicted in Jacksonville

It alleges 205 separate illegal acts from 1974 to the present, including the importation of more than 44,000 pounds of cocaine.

The indictment traces Lehder's development into a primary overseer transporter for the cartel, and outlines the methods and people involved in distributing the cocaine in the United States.

The indictment says Lehder was aided by an associate of Bahamian Prime Minister Lynden Pindling, Everette William Bannister of Nassau, who is accused of accepting payoffs in exchange for letting drug planes use the islands.

The indictment says Bannister shared the money with unnamed Bahamian officials, but NBC News reported it was told by federal law enforcement authorities that Pindling was one of the unnamed officials.

The authorities told NBC that Pindling's name was dropped from the first draft of the indictment after a review by the State and Justice departments. Also dropped were the names of fugitive financier Robert Vesco and Panamanian strongman Gen. Manuel Noriega, the authorities told NBC.

Edward Ward, the key prosecution witness in the Lehder trial, said Bannister took money from him destined for Pindling, Bannister's son, Gorman, testified in Lehders' trial that his father took the payoffs from Lehder and Ward and gave it to Pindling.

The indictment also charges that Escobar ordered the assassination of Colombian Justice Minister Lara Bonilla in April 1983, and that the cartel leaders fled afterward to Nicaragua.

Once there, the indictment said, they brought 1,400 kilograms of cocaine into Nicaragua and stored it at Los Brasiles Air Force Base.

Unions among creditors on Eastern committee

Co., and Rohr Aerospace.

Jones also named a representative of Eastern's non-contract employees.

The meeting of creditors attracted about 400 people to a ballroom at the Vista International Hotel in New York.

Eastern had urged Jones to appoint the union groups to the committee, despite the hard feelings that divide labor and management at the strikebound airline.

Eastern's largest unsecured creditors and the debt they hold, as listed in the company's bankruptcy petition, include the Bank of New York ($149.9 million), Airbus Industries ($98.9 million), General Electric ($75.4 million), United States Trust Co. ($58.7 million) and Boeing ($53.9 million).

Asked about Eastern's assertion that every creditor will be paid in full, Jones said, "It is every creditor's hope. It is every debtor's dream, but sometimes it lies on prognostication."

Unions representing striking ground workers and pilots at Eastern Airlines were named Wednesday to a 15-member creditors committee in the airline's bankruptcy case, together with some of America's largest corporations.

The creditors on the committee convened their first meeting in New York shortly after being named to the group by U.S. Bankruptcy Trustee Harry Jones.

Creditors named to the committee include the Air Line Pilots Association, the International Association of Machinists, Airbus Industries, General Electric Co., Boeing Co., American Telephone and Telegraph Co., United States Trust Co. of New York and Rolls Royce Credit Corp.

Also, United Technologies, Citicorp., American National Bank and Trust, Marriott Corp., I.B.J. Schroder Bank and Trust

Dwarf tossing may be outlawed

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Three state lawmakers filed legislation Wednesday to outlaw the barroom sport of dwarf-tossing, saying the "dehumanizing" and potentially dangerous sport belongs in the Middle Ages, not modern Florida.

The bill by Sen. George Stuart, D-Orlando, Rep. Mike Friedman, D-Miami Beach, and Rep. Al Lawson, D-Tallahassee, would let beverage agents revoke the liquor license of any bar sponsoring any event "involving the exploitation of any person suffering from dwarfism."

"Our objective is to make it illegal in this state, so that people who want to do this kind of dehumanizing, what I consider almost unbelievable activity, they're just not going to be able to do it in Florida," Stuart said in a news conference.

"This activity is degrading to the people participating in it," Stuart said. "It is more degrading to us to allow it to go on."

"It's embarrassing," said Heidi Heinrich, lobbyist for Little People of America, Inc., and a political science honor student at Florida State University, where student government leaders are pushing the bill.

Dwarf tossing, in which a short person straps on a harness with handles and is hurled across a room, is believed to have originated in Australia in 1985.

Since then, bars in Gainesville, Clearwater, Bradenton, Sarasota, Delray Beach and Fort Lauderdale have sponsored such contests.

Oversupply of Florida foliage prompts shakeout

United Press International

An oversupply of indoor and patio foliage is cutting profits for Florida's ornamental plant growers, causing a shakeout in the state's fourth largest agricultural industry.

Stephen W. Munnell, executive vice president of the Florida Foliage Association, said acreage devoted to foliage plants has tripled in the last 15 years, as has the number of producers, driving prices down. Production costs, meanwhile, have gone up.

"The industry has not been able to keep pace with the increases," association President Bob Mellen said. "The prices on some plants are half of what they were 10 years ago."

"Our cost of insurance has increased, as have pots, soil, chemicals, you can go on down the line," Mellen said.

"Workman's compensation (insurance) went up 20 percent this year. That's a big jump."

Jerry Campbell of the Florida Agricultural Statistics Service said after a rapid jump from 142 growers with sales of $10,000 or more a year in 1986 to 985 in 1984, a slight decline began and in January 1987 the total was down to 985.

"I kind of expect this year to show a continued decline, but we won't know until the survey is completed in April," he said. "But we see from the early returns that some of the smaller ones have dropped."

Campbell noted the statistical service reports do not cover the hundreds of "mom-and-pop" operations.

Lynn P. Griffith Jr., spokesman for the A & L Southern Agricultural Labs in Pompano Beach, said he also sees more growers dropping out of the industry.

"It's a fairly new business and like other new businesses, things get oversold. Look at what happened to computers," he said. "I see that happening in the foliage industry now. More (producers) are getting out."

"The better run operations will stay in and do OK."

Janice Dun, spokeswoman for the Foliage Association, said there are about 4,000 producers registered with the state, ranging from family operations to companies with million-dollar investments. The association has as members a little more than 400 of the major producers.

Florida sales of foliage plants for indoor and patio use in 1987, the latest figures available, totaled $299 million compared with $309 million in 1986, $272.2 million in 1985 and $269 million in 1984.

Florida's closest competitor in 1987 was California with $100 million and Texas a distant third at $18.3 million.

The major foliage production in Florida is in the southern part of the state where sales totaled $159.4 million in 1987. Central Florida accounted for $101.5 million in sales.

The crop value of the foliage industry trails only citrus, tomatoes and sugar cane in Florida.

Dun said association members hope for a plant boom in the 1990s, triggered by increased concern about the quality of indoor air and research by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on development of a biological air-purification system using plants.

Poulin, 27, of 155 Sandal Wood Way, Longwood, reported finding less than 20 grams of marijuana in Poulin's pickup truck parked at his house. Poulin was charged with possession of marijuana at home at 7:28 p.m. Tuesday. Bond is $500.

New neighbors charged in burglary

LAKE MARY — A Lake Mary couple reported to police that they spotted furniture stolen from their house at the house of a next door neighbor Wednesday. That led to charges of burglary and possession of stolen property against two suspects. A third man is at large.

Arrested at home at 7:24 p.m. Wednesday were Scott Alan Vincelette, 28, and Richard Jerome Golden, 27, both of 347 E. Lake Mary Boulevard. Bond is $1,000 each.

Lake Mary police report the house of Franklin and Florence Donaldson, at 339 E. Lake Mary Blvd., was burglarized between March 13 and Monday, when the Donaldsons were residing at their other house in Pierson.

They reported the burglary Monday and called police again Wednesday after reportedly seeing some furniture stolen from their house at the house of their new neighbors.

A sofa and chair were among the items stolen, and Mrs. Donaldson said she saw tracks where the chair had apparently been dragged across her yard to her neighbor's house. About $538 worth of the Donaldson's property was recovered from their neighbor's sparsely furnished house, police said.

Woman charged as prostitute

Rights group opposes reporting

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Gay rights leaders said Wednesday a proposal to require doctors to report AIDS cases to public health officials backfired when tried elsewhere and should not be attempted in Florida.

The proposal was suggested by the Governor's Task Force on AIDS, which hoped to enlist the help of people infected with human immunodeficiency virus in tracing their sexual partners or people with whom they shared drug needles.

The government task force said the names of people infected with HIV, the virus that causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome, should be held in strict confidence.

But Jon Klein, chairman of the Florida Task Force, which lobbies for gay and lesbian rights, said South Carolina adopted a similar program in 1986 and within two years saw a 43 percent decline in the monthly rate of identifying infected persons.

"These policies have been proven to discourage testing by high risk groups making testing programs less effective," Klein said.

"This puts the community at greater risk of spreading the AIDS virus by persons who would rather not find out if they are carriers than to have their names reported to health officials."

Creekside zoning changes approved

Sanford Place homeowners lose after waiting two weeks to protest

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — About two dozen Sanford Place residents were disappointed Wednesday night after waiting patiently for two weeks to protest changes to the neighboring Creekside development south of Sanford.

Seminole County Planning and Zoning commissioners voted 3-1 to approve changes to portions of the 155-acre development from residential to commercial and industrial land uses.

They also voted 3-1 to change the development plans for Creekside for the commercial and industrial uses. Seminole County commissioners will consider the plan March 28 at 7 p.m.

The meeting had been cancelled March 15 because four of the seven planning commissioners were absent, preventing voting. Sue Lewis, planning commission chairman, and commissioners Frank Shelton, Harry Hagle, Mike Davis and Harry Kwiatkowski attended Wednesday night's meeting. Kwiatkowski did not participate in the Creekside discussion or voting, citing an undisclosed conflict.

The Creekside site is south of the Cardinal Homes manufacturing plant between County Road 427, Sanford Avenue, and the Atlantic Coastline Railroad tracts. Sanford Place, also developed by Creekside owner Joe Baker, is west of the site.

What disturbed most Sanford Place residents was Baker's plans to build 420 multi-family units east of Sanford Place on a tract previously approved for 165 single-family homes. Creekside was originally approved in 1986 to include 165 single-family homes, 158 patio homes and 155 multi-family units.

"I am strongly against 12 units per acre," said Al Siskanski, a Sanford Place resident. "It is in total contrast to the way the area is designed now."

Baker said shortly after the original development plan was approved in 1986, Seminole County announced plans to build the expressway through the eastern portion of the property.

"One week after we got the PUD (planned unit development) approved, they aligned the expressway," said Baker. "We don't think this area is marketable for single-family homes."

Several residents said during the meeting Sanford Place salesmen had told them the sites for the currently-proposed multi-family units and commercial uses would never be developed and they bought their lots based on those assurances.

"Some of us would not have bought our homes in Sanford Place if we knew what would happen," said Theresa Malecki, a board member of the Sanford Place Homeowner's Association.

Baker apologized to the residents after the meeting, saying he never authorized such statements.

A portion of the site originally planned for patio homes will be developed for light industrial uses under the new plan. That site will be cut off from the residential areas to the west by the expressway. The section originally planned for multi-family homes immediately north of Sanford Place will be developed into a commercial site.

Residents said the commercial and industrial sites are not appropriate for the mostly low density residential area. Creekside planner Ken Steeves said a minimum of a 50-foot landscaped buffer with a six-foot wall and a retention lake would separate Sanford Place from the commercial tract.

"I recently bought in Sanford Place 50 feet from the commercial tract," said Gary Quincey. "Fifty feet won't be nothing."

In their approval, planning commissioners recommended placing a earthen berm between the multi-family section and the commercial tract and Sanford Place.

Portable classrooms spur board debate

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board agreed to study the relocation of portable classrooms at an elementary school in Altamonte Springs after more than 100 residents crowded into the board meeting room Wednesday to complain about them.

The protestors are members of the Bay Pointe Neighborhood Association whose homes face the school and are, in some cases, less than 100 yards from the portables at Lake Orienta Elementary School, 612 Newport Ave.

"We don't feel that there was an honest attempt to work with us on this problem," said group spokesman William Froelich. Froelich's statements to the board were punctuated by an occasional "Amen" and "That's right" from the crowd.

He said the property values in the Bay Pointe neighborhood had decreased an average of nearly $10,000 since the portables were put on the school campus three years ago. He said that of the seven houses currently for sale in the subdivision, three had been on the market for over a year, because some realtors refused to show homes near the school.

Superintendent Robert Hughes said that he is aware that the structures are unoccupied, but said that student enrollment jumped by 88 students, putting it at maximum enrollment despite recently completed additions.

"We could have moved them away after the completion of the current construction, but we'd have to move them back next year," he said.

Moving the classrooms to another part of the campus that is less visible to the houses would be approximately $1,500 per unit. To take them away and return them when they are needed would be about $3,000 each.

Board member Pat Telson asked that each side give a little to the other. Froelich said he felt the $10,000 his house had lost in value was more than he was willing to bend.

Said member Joseph Williams, Jr., "The talks (between the board and the neighborhood association) should not have broken down. We need to have an honest attitude about the needs of others. I know economics is the key in this country and your house is the biggest investment you make, but we also have to run a school system here."

Assistant superintendent for facilities Richard Wells and Hughes argued that the board had met with members of the school's PTA and that the parents were satisfied that the situation was being handled appropriately.

Froelich, before leading the group from the room, explained that the PTA members did not live in the neighborhood so they were not qualified to address the problem.

Hughes promised that the board will continue to work with the Bay Pointe residents to find a solution to their complaints.

Suspect

Casselberry police are seeking to identify the man pictured above. He is a suspect in a grand theft that occurred at 11:31 a.m. Feb. 10, at the Barnett Bank, U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry.

The man is accused of stealing another man's payroll, then making a split deposit at the bank while posing as the victim. The suspect stole $500 from the bank and was photographed during the transaction. Information in the case can be reported to Detective Lynn Cambre at 831-3551.

Bakkers show faces cancellation

United Press International

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Jim and Tammy Bakker's embattled television show appeared on the rocks Wednesday night amid reports that they have cancelled the program on eight of 10 stations now carrying it.

Charlotte television station WATV reported Wednesday night that the Bakkers have notified eight stations miserably on the West Coast that they are cancelling the program within 30 days.

The Charlotte station said Jim and Tammy Ministries can no longer pay the bills and they don't want to pile up more debt.

Jim Bakker could not be reached for comment Wednesday night.

Toward a dialogue

Beneath the cries of victims and the rattling of guns, a strange sound is coming from the jungles of El Salvador. It's the sound of political dialogue.

At least five distinct voices are talking together, although they are never all met in the same room. They are the guerrilla commanders, the rebel political wing, the military command, the rightwing ARENA party and — caught in the cross fire — ailing President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

The guerrillas began the dialogue by offering to lay down their arms and participate in the political process if elections were delayed for three months.

Duarte rejected the offer and then made his own: To postpone the elections for six weeks, if the guerrillas agreed to a cease-fire. ARENA said no to the postponement. But, breaking precedent, ARENA representatives earlier participated in talks with the rebels.

The debate about the timing of elections is less important than the fact that the sides are talking at all. They are talking about the possibility of living in the same country without first exterminating each other. They are talking about transferring the battleground from war to politics. They are talking about coming out of the hills and out of the fortified bunkers. They are talking about new terms for survival, not suicide.

To compare this cautious, position-taking cacophony to sincere dialogue is naive. Each side is posturing to make it appear that it's willing to make peace. But even cynical distrust is a step forward from murderous death squad killings and guerrilla attacks — even though atrocities against civilians continue from all sides. Salvadorans are tired. They know better than any politicians in Washington or Havana that no force has won this war, except death.

Another voice is significant by its absence. The once-strident voice of U.S. interventionism has toned down its rhetoric. America, which did so much to polarize this war, is now letting the sides meet to talk about elections to end it.

Washington should do two things to encourage this dialogue: Stay out of it and tell the military that we no longer will support the war unconditionally.

The debate over the timing of elections is tactically crucial to each party, but ultimately it's immaterial. Negotiations are, in themselves, a positive step.

Duarte, dying of cancer, must accomplish one last thing for his country. He must keep the talks going.

The end of 20th Century Communism

We are privileged to live as witnesses to a great historical drama. The communist idea is in its death throes. The communist nations are in economic agony, like ice-age dinosaurs sinking into the tar pits. Lech Walesa would win any honest Polish election.

Columbia professor and former national security advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski has pulled the whole story together in a book that will have classic status, "The Grand Failure: The Birth and Death of Communism in the Twentieth Century."

At the end of World War II, communism was important. In Winston Churchill's words at Fulton, Mo., in 1948, communism brought down an "iron curtain" in the heart of Europe. The United States launched the Marshall Plan and NATO and George Kenan's "containment" policy to curb the advance of communism. The Soviets took over Poland and Czechoslovakia. They threw Jan Masaryk out of a Prague window. They ruled a billion people from the Elbe river in Germany to the Sakhalin peninsula in Asia. They ran the territory from Prussia to Shanghai.

As Professor Brzezinski says, communism was the "compelling doctrine" of the 20th century, representing the belief that the power of the organized state can be mobilized to produce great good. No one knows the extent of the price tag. A consensus estimate is 50 million people killed for the communist idea.

It is still possible to remember the power of that idea. When Whittaker Chambers left the Communist Party, he thought he was joining the "losing side." Important authors contributed to a symposium called The God That Failed, the "god" being communism. George Orwell projected in his novel 1984 a world communist future. In his great novel "Darkness at Noon," Arthur Koestler postulated that 2 plus 2 equals 5 had moral authority behind it. His protagonist Rubashov willingly dies for a doctrinal lie.

Lech Walesa would win any honest Polish election.

But, now, it is finished, over, the Soviet Union is a basket case, out of business.

Mr. Brzezinski thinks that Gorbachev probably will not succeed in restructuring Soviet society, but that the Chinese have a chance of shaking communism. The reason for pessimism about the USSR is that Lenin-Stalin-Brezhnev had 60 years to consolidate a communist bureaucracy that is probably immovable. The Chinese, under Mao, were chaotic, did not consolidate such a bureaucracy, and therefore have a chance.

The material Prof. Brzezinski presents about the internal decline of the Soviet Union are breathtaking. Brzezinski doubts that Gorbachev can break the gridlock of the system, and his doubts are persuasive. The USSR is destined for Third World status. The Chinese, on the other hand, have created "enterprise zones" on their coast, and are pushing into the "Pacific rim" capitalist prosperity.

Brzezinski also calls attention to the Chinese Diaspora, and its political importance. Millions of highly successful Chinese live abroad. Their money and enterprise will have an effect on decisions made in Beijing.

It is an extraordinary fact that no one, even in Moscow or Beijing, believes in the communist idea any more.

ARNOLD SAWISLAK

The revolt at Howard

WASHINGTON — Most of the country probably did not notice, but it was big news in Washington recently when local college students staged a 1960s-style takeover to protest an appointment to their school's board of trustees.

The school was Howard University, one of the nation's preeminent black colleges, and the trustee whose selection provoked the uprising was Lee Atwater, chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Atwater was elected to the board without a lot of fanfare, and it wasn't until students took over a Founders' Day convocation where Bill Cosby was supposed to speak and be honored that most of Washington became aware of it.

The students were upset with the Atwater appointment, along with some conditions at the school, because as head of the 1988 George Bush presidential campaign, many of them felt he was responsible for what they viewed as not-so-subtle racist tactics in the contest against Democrat Michael Dukakis.

A specific objection was the use — by Bush supporters but not the official campaign — of a television commercial linking Dukakis to Willie Horton, a black convict who was furloughed in Massachusetts and committed rape while he was out of prison.

Just as it appeared a potentially violent confrontation was about to take place in the administration building, Atwater resigned, saying he would like to have served but did not want to be the cause of anyone getting hurt.

There was, of course, more to the story. Atwater got his first taste of national politics as an aide to Sen. Strom Thurmond, the South Carolina Republican who originally was a Democrat and, in 1948, the staunchly segregationist Dixiecrat presidential candidate.

Thurmond used political race-baiting during most of his 57-year career, but made a 180-degree turn when blacks got the right to vote in the 1960s and began supporting voting rights and the Martin Luther King national holiday.

Thurmond didn't do a lot to advance civil rights measures, but the mere fact that he stopped fighting them was impressive enough to dampen open black opposition in South Carolina.

Atwater may feel the Thurmond example of loud, if late conversion to racial equality is the way to increase black support for the GOP, which has had trouble getting as much as 20 percent of the black vote in recent years.

One of his first statements as chairman was a pledge to welcome blacks into the party, and some saw his joining the Howard trustees as part of that effort. The students possibly saw it that way too, and their response may have been notice to Atwater that it will take more than soothing words to convince them that he or the GOP really wants them.

Labor leader Sidney Hillman once said politics was about who gets what. That applies here: blacks in the United States were Republicans for many years after the Civil War because Abraham Lincoln gave them freedom and they have been Democrats since the Depression because Franklin D. Roosevelt cut them in on the hope for better times — the New Deal — he offered to all Americans.

The Republicans may be able to reclaim the black vote in the future but it won't come over just because a GOP leader extends an invitation. Blacks, like anyone else, will change their political loyalties when there is something in it for them. So far, they don't see it.

It will take more than soothing words to convince them.

ELLEN GOODMAN

The mommy track or mommy trough?

BOSTON — This winter Felice Schwartz gave the business world a few facts of life. Using the Harvard Business Review as a forum, the longtime supporter of working women told the collectively powerful that, because their attitudes and policies were too inflexible, they were losing many of their best and brightest women. She gave them bottom-line reasons for changing.

But in the middle of this measured advice, there was a red flag waving. Schwartz suggested that businesses identify two sorts of women: Those who put their careers first and those who are more interested in balancing career and family. The first should be encouraged on the fast track. The second should be valued at a less-than-overdrive work pace.

At the time, I expressed unease with distinctions that aren't nearly as distinct in real life. I worried that this tracking might justify a system that had fast-lane men and a few women above; most mommies and a few daddies below.

Well, Schwartz's piece bubbled underground for a while. It was passed around offices and management seminars. Then it erupted again, red flag flying, carrying the headline "The Mommy Track."

Depending on your point of view, the Mommy Track is either: (1) A dream job that allows women the flexibility to do work they enjoy while still having time for school plays and deep-breathing, or (2) a ghettoized second-class job that fits what the employment pages call Mother's Hours.

The conflict between these two points of view has sparked a current and intense argument that is in many ways an updated version of the "Can We have it All?" debate, circa 1975.

The question was whether women could work and mother. Now women who work and mother are asking whether they can head for the top without losing a rich family life. They have ratcheted up their ambitions.

They also ratcheted up their ambivalence. Those who have chosen to work some stretch of the slower track wonder whether they are missing the express. Those who go full-speed ahead wonder if they are missing the landscape.

They may both wonder whether the conflicts between work and family, late '80s style, are personal or institutional. Are we really wrangling over the immutable constraints of time: how to divide up 24 hours a day? Is this a struggle between two sets of wants: wanting to be at the Little League and at the sales meeting? Or are we faced with those choices because of the sluggish pace of change in society, the workplace and marriage?

Women who want it all have typically had to do it all. An offer to ride on the mommy track may look like a sensible compromise or it may look like a capitulation. If a company gives mommies a special ticket to work part-time, flex-time and all that, does it create a separate class that leaves the whole structure unchanged?

At the moment, it is often women doctors who staff the HMOs for their office hours, women managers who job share, women lawyers who work "limited" forty-hour weeks.

These options may give them the best of both worlds, or they could be the route on which women bear the double burden indefinitely. It may be a new way to undermine the goal of shared work and parenting. A new way to keep the room at the top an enclave for workaholics. A new way to exclude men who want the same choices.

Felice Schwartz — who has gotten something of a bad rap in this debate, she never once used the words "mommy track" — is an advocate for flexibility and all the goodies that come with it from child care to respect. But as someone who works with corporations, she spoke in their language, suggesting concrete ways to manage flexibility, to plan for it, to program it. But can you manage flexibility? Is that a contradiction in terms?

Businesses want plans and controls. The new workers want options and individual treatment. Indeed, this may be the ultimate challenge that women initiate in the workplace.

Any business that supports a range of options for men and women short of the rat race is a welcome model. Life is long and complicated. Parenthood is as different as nursing and filling out college applications. Our interests and goals change. We want the workplace to change with them.

But what fuels this debate is a concern that a cry for flexibility could be translated into a new kind of rigidity. We don't want the desire for personal treatment to fall into a single-sex track that looks a lot like a trough. A mommy trough.

An offer to ride on the mommy track may look like a sensible compromise or it may look like a capitulation.

Stocks open higher

United Press International

NEW YORK — Stock prices opened higher early Thursday in light trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 3.04 Wednesday, was up 7.33 to 2270.54 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 574-298 among the 1,365 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Early turnover amounted to about 13,000,000 shares.

Earlier Thursday, the government said real gross national product rose 2.4 percent late last year in a final revision of its report on growth in the nation's output of goods and services for the fourth quarter of 1988. The gain was 0.4 percentage point higher than two preliminary estimates.

Stock prices closed lower in moderate trading Wednesday after the negative effects of a sell-off in the technology sector outweighed buying tied to favorable news of a drop in February durable goods orders.

Fourth quarter GNP up

United Press International

WASHINGTON — In a final revision that showed the economy late last year was stronger than previously reported, the government said Thursday that real gross national product rose 2.4 percent in the final quarter of 1988.

The 2.4 percent increase was 0.4 percentage point higher than reported in two preliminary estimates of growth in the nation's output of goods and services, adjusted for inflation.

In dollar terms, the economy grew by $24 billion from October through December to $4.33 trillion. GNP was up 2.5 percent in the third quarter, according to the Commerce Department's Census Bureau.

All figures were adjusted for seasonal variations.

The fourth-quarter revision was based on larger government purchases and stronger business investment, with the largest downward revision in net exports.

Although the 2.4 percent increase in economic growth is still the smallest hike since a 1.4 percent gain in the fourth quarter of 1986, the greater strength reflected in the revision could prove worrisome. The Federal Reserve Board has been banking on slower economic growth to stent rising inflationary pressures seen in recent wholesale and consumer price figures.

The GNP fixed weights price index rose 4.2 percent in the fourth quarter compared with 5.3 percent in the third. But the GNP report's implicit price deflator, another measure of inflation, increased 5.3 percent in late 1988, up from 4.7 percent in the third quarter.

The dollar was slightly lower Thursday in pre-holiday trading on major foreign currency markets. Gold moved higher.

In early New York trading, the dollar was mixed against key foreign currencies in thin trading following a final Commerce Department revision of the nation's gross national product that showed the economy late last year was stronger than previously reported.

The report, according to market analysts, had no impact on the dollar.

Traders closed out positions on Wednesday before the start of the long Easter weekend.

Markets in Europe and the U.S. will be closed Friday for the Easter holiday and several European markets will be closed until next Tuesday.

Schools

mended construction of 12 new elementary schools, two new middle schools and a new high school during the next decade. The report also suggested several methods for funding the $305,348,241 needed for the implementation of the recommendations.

Current population expansion call for two new elementary schools to be built every year beginning immediately. Current facilities are sufficient, the report stated, to house 20,839 elementary school students. There are presently 21,028 students enrolled in county elementary schools.

Middle and high schools have not yet reached such critical stages. The report said that 11,464 middle school students could be served by the present school buildings, while enrollment stands at 9,987. High schools can house 14,325 students, but only 13,393 are enrolled.

Former deputy commissioner of education Dr. Charles E. Chick, who was hired as an independent contractor by the school board to conduct the survey, explained that the survey staff had used the state's most up-to-date Florida Inventory of School Houses (FISH) information in making their projections and as a result some figures differed from recent rezoning recommendations.

Seminole County's student population has increased significantly at the elementary and high school levels over the last half decade, though there has been little change at the middle school level. The report attributed that trend to the fact that birth rates bottomed out in 1975 and have increased significantly in subsequent years.

As the middle school population moves into high school, the numbers will change to reflect those shifts.

Because of such population patterns, Dr. Chick explained that while the study only officially makes recommendations through the 1993-94 school year, additional information allows the board to make plans through the 1998-99 school year.

"You have to make sure the financing is flexible enough to adjust to any future growth," said assistant superintendent for business and finance Carey Ferrell. "The five year plan doesn't permit us to see growth waves as clearly as we can with the longer range plan."

In summarizing the thrust of the report, Chick said the board could not "procrastinate" in dealing with the school district's growth. The groundwork, he said, had to be set in motion as quickly as possible.

While no action was taken Wednesday evening, the board agreed that they needed to act quickly on the "crisis" situation.

The board approved a work session time of 3 p.m. April 13 to discuss their plans.

Seminole High School principal, who introduced himself as "a principal, a tax payer and the father of a teenage daughter in the public school system" said he was concerned that the placement of a proposed new high school four miles northwest of Lake Mary High School ("in the middle of Seminole's district") would take more students from the school which is struggling to maintain maximum enrollment due to recent redistricting.

"During the rezoning hearings," Epps said, "you told me I'd benefit from future growth." He said he felt the placement of the proposed school would harm his school.

"I just want somebody to tell me the truth," Epps concluded.

Planner

"Beyond that, I've always got things going to the commission. The commission has been really supportive and said they would hire a temporary. I need a planner with some experience," West said.

Cohen could not be reached for comment.

Cohen turned in his letter of resignation March 7 after almost one year with the city. Acting City Manager Charles Lauderdale said Wednesday he has not officially accepted the resignation because Cohen's personnel file is under review.

"There has not been a determination as to what Cohen's status was when he left the city of Lake Mary. I was reviewing his situation when he abruptly left," Lauderdale said.

According to Lauderdale, Cohen gave medical reasons for his absence from February 16 to March 3 and did not inform him "anytime where he was."

Lauderdale said he has asked Cohen for a medical certificate to determine whether that absence is acceptable or unacceptable.

"That certification is the question. If you do not properly notify your supervisor as to your whereabouts, (your) absence could be uncertified and by the third day, you can voluntarily vacate your position," Lauderdale said.

Depending on Lauderdale's decision, there could be one of three possible outcomes: Cohen's letter of resignation could be accepted favorably; he could voluntarily vacate his position; or he could be terminated, according to Lauderdale.

Personnel action is pending an inquiry as soon as City Attorney Ned Julian reviews the situation, Lauderdale said. Neither Cohen's file nor his resignation letter are open to public review at this time because of the pending action, according to Lauderdale. Cohen could not be reached at his Geneva residence either yesterday or this morning.

"I'm just trying to determine the best interest of the city. We don't want to damage this young man. The attorney advises us we need to take a harder look. I'm not sure we're willing to accept that letter of resignation," Lauderdale said.

Cohen officially left his approximately $29,000-a-year position Friday, March 17.

The position for City Planner is vacant and is posted at city hall for local people and city employees until tomorrow so that they get the first chance to apply. Then it will be advertised in newspapers and publications, Lauderdale said.

The task of hiring someone to fill the position will be left in the hands of John Charles Litton, who accepted the city manager position Monday.

"We're trying to get a slate of candidates together and Litton will use whatever procedures he uses to hire someone," Lauderdale said. Those procedures will probably involve some type of scoring system using education, leadership and judgment, he said. The hiring is the sole responsibility of the city manager because the planning department is under his jurisdiction.

Hiring someone to replace Cohen could be delayed because the city has just recently hired a new city manager who will start in about two weeks.

West, 24, said that he will consider applying for the city planner position left vacant by Cohen.

West has been a planner in Lake Mary for 1 year, and 8 months and said he wants the city planner position because of his three to four years hands-on experience.

"It takes a long time for someone to break into it. I've been here about two years. I have a leg up knowing more about the area than a new person coming in," he said.

Atlantis

thousandths of an inch long and one is 20 thousandths of an inch long. They're separated by about an inch. So the leak was small enough where there was no detectable change in any flight parameters (during Discovery's launch).

Even though engineers have not yet had a chance to determine what might have caused the blemishes, the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., issued a statement Tuesday saying "no impact is expected on the upcoming Atlantis flight."

Top NASA managers, however, said Tuesday the problem needed to be resolved before Atlantis can be cleared for launch and that the engine will be removed from Discovery and shipped back to builder Rocketdyne at Canoga Park, Calif., for a complete inspection as soon as possible.

Even so, officials said the problem did not represent a catastrophic threat.

"You would have to have a massive leak there before you would ever lose enough hydrogen to cause a high-temperature shutdown on your high pressure fuel pump," said Larry Salter, another propulsion engineer. "It's not catastrophic or anything like that."

Back at launch pad 39B, Atlantis's payload — the Magellan Venus radar mapper — is housed in a special "white room" awaiting installation in the shuttle's 60-foot cargo bay Friday.

The probe was designed to spend at least 243 days in orbit around Venus, mapping 90 percent of the planet's hidden surface with a cloud-piercing imaging radar system that will allow scientists to study surface features as small as a football field.

Because of the relative positions of Earth and Venus, Atlantis only has a one-month "launch window," which opens April 28 at 2:24 p.m. EST and ends May 28. If the shuttle does not get off the ground during that period, Magellan will be grounded for two years.

While a month-long launch opportunity would seem to be more than enough, NASA managers want to get Atlantis off the pad at the opening of the window to keep as much time available as possible in the event of an on-the-pad engine shutdown, which could delay a second launch try as much as three weeks.

Two such launch pad aborts happened in the pre-Challenger era and NASA never determined conclusively what caused either one.

In any case, agency managers are reasonably confident about making the April 28 launch target and Atlantis's crew — commander David Walker, 42, co-pilot Ronald Grabe, 41, Mary Cleave, 41, Mark Lee, 39, and Norman Thagard, 43 — plans to fly to the Kennedy Space Center April 6 and 7 to take part in a traditional dress-rehearsal countdown that will set the stage for blastoff.

District, which covers the south Gulf and up the East Coast past Palm Beach.

The district has voluntary restrictions in Martin and Palm Beach counties and is considering them in Broward, said spokeswoman Cathy Anclade. Mandatory cutbacks have been slapped on Lee and Collier counties.

Anclade said yard irrigation is responsible for up to 60 percent of residential water use, so in shortage "hot spots" like Marco Island and Bonita Springs such watering is limited to two days a week before 8 a.m.

The St. Johns River water district is free of restrictions, but Duval, Nassau and St. Johns counties could be asked to cut water use if northeast Florida doesn't get a soaking soon.

The Panhandle is in good shape, with Northwest water district spokeswoman Leelle Frye-Anclade lamenting, "In fact, it's been raining constantly lately."

But the South district's Anclade spoke for most of the state: "With April and May being the driest months of the traditional dry season, we still have a long way to go before the rains start to come."

LeRoy Sutton, 30, of 74 Seminole Gardens, was arrested at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday after surrendering at the Sanford police station.

Tracy Brown, 31, was found dead on a sidewalk on Sixth Street at about 6:14 a.m. Wednesday, police said.

A witness identified a possible suspect in the case and Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett said early Wednesday that police were searching for the suspect.

Witnesses told police they saw Brown and Sutton arguing in front of 301 W. Fifth Street, at the corner of Palmetto Avenue.

 SHILOH, the word itself is of Hebrew origin meaning "sanctuary, place of refuge, place of safety, place of protection, and to be in safety. It is a word used in Genesis 28:10-12 and 22:3-4, when the very patriarch Jacob, who was promised to be the father of the nation of Israel, came to the place and named it Bethel, the meaning of which is "house of God." It was here that he had his famous dream of the ladder reaching to heaven, and he named the place "Bethel."

Anti-abortion protests planned

LOS ANGELES — A planned series of potentially volatile anti-abortion protests triggered denunciations from elected officials, warnings of arrests from police, and prompted authorities Wednesday to take the unusual step of ordering courts to remain open Saturday.

The expected protests by the militant Operation Rescue group, which has refused to disclose the locations of its demonstrations, also prompted police to plan on manning an emergency command post under City Hall and order the doubling of the number of officers deployed in some areas.

"We're just hoping that both sides of the issue are going to express their views in a calm and quiet manner," police Capt. Glenn Ackerman said on the eve of the protests.

Operation Rescue held a rally Wednesday night at the Melodyland Christian Center in Anaheim at which about 1,500 people were instructed in what to expect when the protests begin.

Fawn Hall returns to witness stand

WASHINGTON — Oliver North's ex-secretary Fawn Hall has told the jury hearing the felony case against her former boss that she helped him destroy hundreds of documents in the now-famous November 1986 "shredding party."

Hall, who was to return to the witness stand today, also testified that she did "a very stupid thing" when she smuggled secret documents from the White House and passed them to her just-fired boss.

In addition, Hall, 29, said Wednesday that four days before North was fired from the National Security Council on Nov. 25, 1986, she altered original documents, at North's request, to remove material about his secret work for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

While little of what Hall said was new — she gave generally the same story to the 1987 congressional committee investigating the Iran-Contra scandal — her presence generated fresh interest in North's trial, now five weeks old.

From United Press International reports

House debates minimum wage

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The House, mindful of President Bush's threat to veto a higher minimum wage without a subminimum "training wage," has taken the first step toward higher pay, debating a compromise Bush may find more acceptable.

The president has proposed a minimum wage of $4.25 an hour, up 90 cents over three years from its current level of $3.35 — including a lower "training" wage for new employees. House Democrats support a bill for a minimum wage of $4.65 but do not want the subminimum salary included.

However, a bipartisan measure was ready that could set the stage for later negotiations between the House and Senate, and Congress and the White House. The compromise could be more acceptable to Bush.

The bipartisan proposal set the wage level at $4.55 — speeding up its timing and setting a 60-day "training" wage at 85 percent of the minimum wage; the provision for lower wages would expire Jan. 1, 1993.

Votes on the various proposals were not expected until Thursday. House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, told reporters before the session that he expected the compromise plan to win approval.

Wright

Reacting to Bush's threat of a veto for any measure without the lower "training" wage, Wright said: "I don't want to speculate on that. I think the president ought to have a more open mind than that." Wright termed $4.65 "a modest increase," noting the minimum wage has not been raised since 1981 and its buying power has been eroded by more than 30 percent.

Bush said Tuesday that in making his proposal of a $4.25 hourly minimum wage with a six-month "training" wage, he was making his "best offer first." Bush is armed with enough Senate GOP votes to sustain a veto of any plan without the lower wage.

In opening debate, Rep. Jim Kolbe, R-Ariz., argued that the $4.65 rate would "tragically result in a loss of jobs, and more tragically in a loss of job opportunities for people just coming into the job market."

But Rep. Robert Garcia, D-N.Y., whose Bronx district is the poorest in the nation, argued for the $4.65 level, saying, "In districts like mine, the minimum wage is the maximum wage. People are supporting families on the minimum wage. ... If we're going to put them to work, let's try to escalate the salary to the point they can bring something home. It's a time, and frankly I don't think it's enough."

Elderly spend $2,400 on health care

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Elderly Americans personally spent $2,400 last year — 18 percent of their income — on health care, the chairman of the House Aging Committee said Thursday, criticizing proposals to cut the Medicare budget.

Rep. Edward Roybal, D-Calif., released the report "Health Care Costs For America's Elderly, 1977-88" as his Select Committee on Aging prepared to open a hearing at which budget director Richard Darman was expected to explain the Bush administration's proposals to cut $5 billion from the 1990 Medicare budget.

"Continuing the tradition of his predecessor, President Bush's insensitivity to the health cost pressures on America's elderly is reflected in his proposal requiring Medicare beneficiary Part B premiums to cover 25 percent of program costs — a proposal expected to cost beneficiaries an extra $13 per month by 1994," Roybal charged.

Roybal said it is the first time his committee has called upon the head of the Office of Management and Budget to testify on administration health policy. He said it appeared the budget office, not the Department of Health and Human Services, "is setting overall health policy, especially for Medicare and Medicaid."

"OMB's heavy hand in directing administration health policy is extremely troubling for those of us trying to protect vulnerable Americans of all ages," Roybal said.

The committee study, Roybal said, is based on a study by the department's Health Care Financing Administration and documents "that America's elderly are getting into deeper and deeper trouble even without further budget cutbacks."

General Henry Shelton Sanford, for whom the City of Sanford was named, died in 1891 on the 20th anniversary of New Upsala, a Swedish community which he founded near here. An account of this anniversary and General Sanford's death is published in the Sanford Journal of May 28, 1891, recently made available to the Herald by Mrs. Carola Sanford Dow, the General's daughter, now living in Derby, Conn.

Account of death of Gen. Sanford Found in Sanford Journal of 1891

By JIM FISHER

A first-hand account of the death of General Henry Shelton Sanford and the resulting dampening effect it had upon the twentieth anniversary celebration of New Upsala, Swedish community which he settled, is given in the pages of the issue of The Weekly Journal of Sanford, dated May 28, 1891.

New Upsala, now simply known as Upsala, located near Grapeville, was carved out of the semi-tropical forest by hardy Swedes who could hardly have settled in a spot more foreign to their Land of the Midnight Sun.

These Swedes, together with General Sanford under a mutual contract arrangement, following the fulfillment of which General Sanford presented five acres of land to each Swede who remained and sufficient lumber to build a house.

In describing these early settlers, one writer in the Journal stated, "When the little village of New Upsala was started, the forest was yet in its virgin growth. Out of it was hewn material for many a crude hut and fence, the land was cleared and broken and at such time as could be spared from work necessary to provide bread for wives and little ones, the foundation of their independence was laid.

"The Swede is the pioneer par excellence, by reason of his love of liberty, his love of adventure and his love of religion, and so these people prospered as less industrious ones would not. Little by little from nothing was evolved much and today, we repeat, New Upsala is unique among Florida settlements. A tiny old world village in the midst of free America, with all its citizens Americans, save for the accident of birth."

These Swedes, together with others who settled in and around Sanford, gathered on May 23, 1891, in the opera house to observe the twentieth anniversary of their landing in Sanford and to pay homage to their benefactor, General Sanford, who had died two days previously.

El Salvador certifies Cristiani is new president

United Press International

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — The head of El Salvador's electoral commission certified the victory of president-elect Alfredo Cristiani following a mandatory recount of nearly 1 million votes cast in Sunday's violence-marred election.

Central Election Council President Ricardo Perdomo congratulated the 41-year-old Cristiani Wednesday for his "indisputable, unquestionable victory."

Perdomo issued the confirmation after a mandatory official recount of all 999,543 votes cast in an election scarred by widespread violence and a rebel intimidation campaign aimed at reducing voter turnout.

Election officials said Cristiani, leader of the right-wing Nationalist Republican Alliance, received 510,132, or 53.9 percent, of 946,687 valid votes, compared to 345,064, or 36.4 percent, for governing Christian Democratic Party candidate Fidel Chavez Mena.

Nearly 53,000 ballots were thrown out because they were blank or not filled out properly.

The total 999,543 votes cast represented about 54 percent of El Salvador's 1.8 million registered voters.

"We would like to be a government of all 5 million Salvadorans," Cristiani said in a brief statement after his victory was certified. "From this very moment we are king off the jerseys of our people and putting on only the blue and white" of the Salvadoran flag.

President Bush telephoned Cristiani from Washington to congratulate him Wednesday on his victory, and also paid tribute to ailing President Jose Napoleon Duarte as a "great patriot and champion of democracy," a White House spokesman said.

Finishing third in the election was Rafael Moran of the centrist National Conciliation Party, who had 38,635 votes, or 3.9 percent, according to official election results. In fourth place was Guillermo Ungo of the leftist Democratic Convergence, who garnered 35,794 votes, or 3.8 percent.

Meanwhile, suspected leftist rebels attacked military installations near the capital in a new outbreak of violence, and the Salvadoran defense minister announced the arrest of a soldier who allegedly shot and killed one of three journalists slain in election-day violence.

Defense Minister Eugenio Vides Casanova promised a full investigation into the shooting of the three journalists and vowed steps would be taken to prevent similar incidents in the future.

He said the army had detained a corporal who allegedly shot and killed Mauricio Pineda, a Salvadoran television crewman, as the victim's press vehicle passed a military checkpoint.

The Defense Ministry, in a statement issued later in the day, said guerrillas of the leftist Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, attacked a military intelligence center and an army barracks near the capital with mortars and grenades.

An anonymous caller to a local radio station said the attack on the intelligence center was carried out by the Vladimir Umuna Santamaria urban commando, a previously unknown group.

Moderates vow to end Sudan war

United Press International

KHARTOUM, Sudan — Moderate and southern parties will receive key Cabinet posts including foreign affairs, attorney general and agriculture in a new government committed to ending a 5-year-old civil war, Prime Minister Sadiq al Mahdi announced.

Sadiq, who wrapped up negotiations on the composition of the new Cabinet just minutes before opening a televised evening news conference Wednesday, said he could not release the names of the new ministers until they have been endorsed by the five-man presidential council, Sudan's collective head of state.

The agreement brings the country nearer to the end of a monthlong political crisis sparked by military demands for the formation of a broad-based government including parties that want an end to the war against the Sudan People's Liberation Army rebels.

Western aid donors have been appealing for a cease-fire in the war to facilitate the delivery of massive food stores to southern Sudan, where tens of thousands of people are threatened by starvation.

The new government will be dominated by Sadiq's Umma, or Nation, party and the pro-Egyptian Democratic Unionist Party, but will include representatives of non-parliamentary parties and the powerful trade and professional unions.

All the groups have endorsed a program of government which calls for reversing Sudan's foreign policy tilt toward Libya and Iran and prompt action on a peace plan negotiated in November between the DUP and the SPLA.

Sadiq said he regretted the new government would not include the fundamentalist National Islamic Front, the second party in a coalition that was dissolved earlier this month. The NIF refused to endorse the peace plan because it would suspend the introduction of Islamic "sharia" law.

Sadiq said Umma would hold eight posts in a 23-seat Cabinet, including finance, interior, education, energy and transport, while the DUP would receive six seats, including foreign affairs, attorney general, social welfare and information.

Death toll rises from plane crash

United Press International

SÃO PAULO, Brazil — The death toll from the crash of a Boeing 707 jet in a Sao Paulo slum rose to 21 as government officials said the disaster may have been caused by a sudden loss of altitude linked to pilot error.

Aeronautics Ministry sources said Wednesday that the Transbrasil transport plane apparently was flying too slow, about 120 mph, with its wing flaps set too low, just before its fiery crash Tuesday in Jardim Ipanema, a shanty district of the capital of Sao Paulo.

The sources said the plane should have been maintaining a minimal speed of 135 mph as it approached a runway at Sao Paulo's Guarulhos International Airport, which was closed for several hours after the disaster.

The sources, who requested anonymity, said the slow speed and low flap positions could have caused a sudden loss of altitude.

The plane's pilot, Dorival Stanovachi, and two crew members died in the crash along with 18 people on the ground about 2,500 yards from the airport runway. Hospital officials said a 50-year-old man died Wednesday from injuries suffered in the crash, increasing the death toll to 21.

BASKETBALL

Detroit firing on three Pistons

Detroit Coach Chuck Daly went to a three-guard lineup out of design, not necessity. "I didn't want to get in foul trouble," Daly said of why he went to a lineup that had Isiah Thomas, Joe Dumars and Vinnie Johnson in a 115-94 victory Wednesday night over the San Antonio Spurs. "(Dennis) Rodman had two fouls and (Mark) Aguirre had three. I didn't want to get in any deeper with just a few minutes left."

Daly went to the alignment while clinging to a 48-46 lead with 3:40 left in the first half and the Pistons outscored San Antonio 17-3 the rest of the way to take control of the game.

In other games, Philadelphia defeated Cleveland 100-97, Miami surprised New York 107-103, Indiana topped Washington 101-92, Chicago nipped Phoenix 112-111 and, and the Los Angeles Clippers turned back Dallas 116-112.

FOOTBALL

Rozelle calls it quits

PALM DESERT, Calif. — Pete Rozelle, who guided the NFL from an uncertain enterprise to a multibillion-dollar industry, Wednesday resigned as commissioner after holding the job 30 years.

In a startling and tearful announcement at the NFL owners' meeting, Rozelle said he will remain commissioner until the league finds a successor. A league committee will immediately try to find a replacement for the man often considered the most powerful official in American sports.

AFC President Lamar Hunt of the Kansas City Chiefs and NFC President Wellington Mara of the New York Giants will head the search.

Rozelle, 63, said he made the decision last October, saying he wanted to spend more time with his family.

Boggs trade talks heat up

BOSTON — Rumors about the Boston Red Sox trading batting champion Wade Boggs heated up Wednesday as team officials expressed anger over the slugger's upcoming television interview and general manager Lou Gorman conceded he has been spending a lot of time on the phone talking with other teams.

Boston television stations reported that Red Sox Chief Executive Officer Haywood Sullivan was furious that Boggs ignored the team's wishes and agreed to be interviewed by Barbara Walters for ABC's news program, "20/20."

One unnamed team official told The Boston Globe, "Don't think we can't trade (Boggs) — we can," and Gorman told the Boston Herald, "There is some basis for a trade, but no complete basis."

"If you asked me today if Wade Boggs would be with the team a week from now, I'd say yes," Gorman told the Herald.

Flyers in playoffs for 17th time

The Philadelphia Flyers may head into the playoffs in fourth place, but they certainly would be the best fourth-place team around.

Dave Poulin's rebound goal with 1:54 remaining Wednesday capped a three-goal third period that enabled the Flyers to clinch their 17th consecutive playoff berth with a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks.

The Philadelphia victory eliminated the New Jersey Devils from the Patrick Division playoffs and raised the Flyers to 34-33-7. Philadelphia is seeking to avoid its first losing season in 17 years.

Elsewhere in the NHL, the NY Rangers defeated Minnesota 3-1, Toronto beat Vancouver 5-3, Hartford edged Boston 4-2, St. Louis nipped Buffalo 2-1, Montreal slammed Quebec 8-0, and Washington slipped by Pittsburgh 5-4.

Rain, rain go away

Rain stops 'Noles, Pats

By MARK BLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

Seminole High School came up with a strong performance over four and a half innings and played Lake Brantley to a 4-4 tie before the game was called due to rain.

The game will be continued when the two teams play each other at Sanford Stadium later this season.

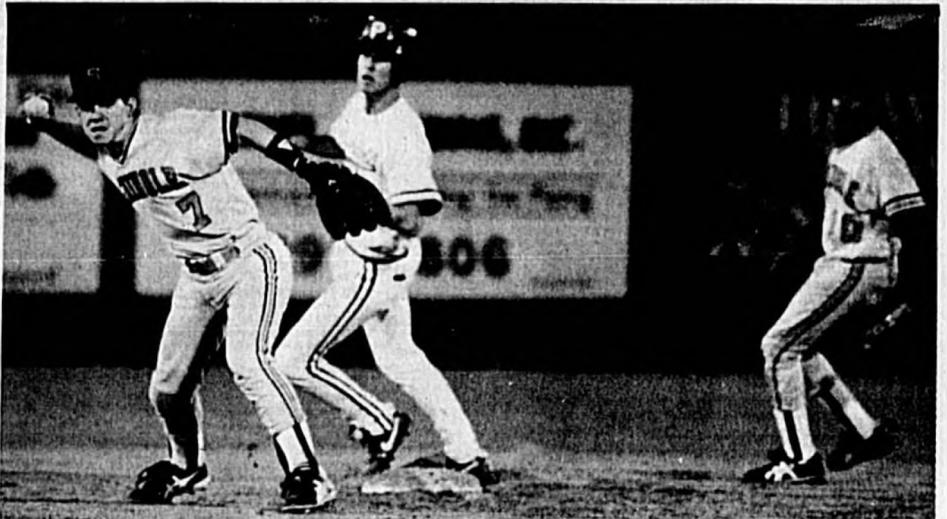

"We played real well tonight," Seminole coach Mike Powers said. "When you play a team the caliber of Lake Brantley as well as we did tonight it really helps your confidence. Mike Taylor played excellent at short and Mike Senecak was baffling them with his curveball. It's a shame the game was called."

Lake Brantley's Mark Gabrovic blanked the Seminoles in the early going with a tricky curveball and a deceptive fastball. The Tribe, though, got used to him after a couple of innings and finally put some runs on the board.

Brantley opened the scoring in the bottom of the first inning with Eddie Zarembo leading off by ripping a double of the center field wall. Greg Thomas then grounded out moving Zarembo to third and after the second out of the inning Jason Varitek singled to plate Zarembo and give the Patriots a 1-0 lead.

Seminole evened the game in the top of the second and did so without a base hit. Bubba Corsi reached on a walk and moved to second on a wild pitch. Harvey Clinger then dropped down a nice bunt to advance Corsi to third. Taylor then sent a sacrifice fly to center to score Corsi and even the game at 1-1.

Brantley scored a single run in the bottom of the third inning with Thomas leading off the inning and reaching on an error. Jim Morse then hit into a fielder's choice with Thomas being taken out at second. See Rain, Page 2B

Shortstop Mike Taylor (No. 7) and his Seminole teammates were locked up in a 4-4 tie with Lake Brantley in the fifth inning on Wednesday night when the rains came and forced the game to be suspended. The game will be resumed at a later date.

Eltonhead, Tribe J.V. post win

From staff reports

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Winning pitcher John Eltonhead ran his personal record to 5-0 as he pitched the Seminole High School junior varsity baseball team to a 9-3 win over the Lake Brantley Patriots on Wednesday.

Eltonhead allowed seven hits while striking out four and walking three.

Seminole, which improved to 6-4 with the win, scored all of its runs in the third and fifth innings.

With the score 0-0 in the top of third, Tim Hampton led off the Seminoles with a single. Chris Dowling singled Hampton to third, the sole second while Eltonhead was striking out. But B.J. Osborne, the Tribe's lead-off hitter, delivered a two-run single to put Seminole up 2-0.

After Demetry Beamon singled, W.L. Gracey ripped a double that scored both Osborne and Beamon, making the score 4-0 going into the bottom of the third.

It stayed that way until the bottom of the fourth when the Patriots scored twice to cut the lead in half. But the Seminoles answered with a five-run rally in the top of the fifth to break the game open.

The inning opened with Beamon hitting a double, Gracey drawing a walk and Ray Adcock laying down a sacrifice bunt that was so perfect, it went for a base hit and loaded the bases.

Andre Stokes drove in the first run of the inning with a sacrifice fly, then Steve Wilbur hit a two-run double. After a strike out, Dowling hit an rbi single and came all the way around to score on the play when the Lake Brantley centerfielder misplayed the ball.

The Patriots scored one run in the sixth to complete the scoring.

Seminole will play again on Friday night, traveling to Lake Mary for a 7 p.m. game. The Tribe will return home on Saturday, hosting New Smyrna Beach at 1 p.m.

Clark breaks through, leads Hawks past Rams

By TONY DeSORMIER
 Herald sports editor

LAKE MARY — You want to talk about a kid pitching in bad luck, you should hear what Lake Howell junior Dwayne Clark has had to put up with.

Going into the Silver Hawks' baseball game with the host Lake Mary Rams on Wednesday night, Clark had a microscopic .84 earned run average. But for all his troubles, Clark was 0-3 in the win-loss department.

Part of Clark's problem was that his teammates had made 12 errors in the games that he pitched and scored little or no runs. On Wednesday, Chris Trier provided the runs with a two-run home run and the defense turned in a sparkling performance as Clark completed an eight-inning 3-1 win over the host Rams.

The reason for the defensive turnaround was a new lineup of mostly underclassmen.

"That's the best we've played all year long," said Lake Howell coach Birt Benjamin. "The kids really did a good job. They went out and played good defense. They didn't make any mistakes."

"This is the first time that we've played with this lineup. It's made up primarily of juniors (six, to be exact). Our defense was dead. That's a big part of the game. It's one of the things that was missing. Tonight, the kids were helping each other out."

Clark was very appreciative of the added assistance.

"I didn't have any defensive help," said Clark of his contradictory earned run average and record. "Coach is letting other people have a chance and they came through."

Early in the game, Lake Howell centerfielder Jason Gilman made Clark's job much easier by chasing down several Lake Mary fly balls hit

Lake Mary pitcher Aaron Iatarola (right) only made one mistake on Wednesday night, but it resulted in a two-run home run by Chris Trier in the top of the eighth as Lake Howell knocked off the Rams 3-1.

Twiggs twirls three-hitter, leads Lions to SAC win

From staff reports

Kevin Twiggs allowed just three hits, struck out 10 and did not walk a batter to lead the Oviedo Lions to a 2-0 decision over DeLand Wednesday night in Seminole Athletic Conference at Oviedo.

Oviedo improved to 5-7 with the victory and 3-3 in the SAC and will return to action at home against Lyman. DeLand dropped to 0-14 and 0-6.

"DeLand played anything but like a team that hadn't won a game all year," Oviedo coach Mike Ferrell said. "Bobby Lundquist is one tough pitcher and they definitely have some kids that can play, they'll be getting some breaks pretty soon."

Twiggs was in command for most of the night as he allowed just four base runners and his defense did not make an error behind him.

Twiggs was only in trouble in the top of the fourth inning as he struck out the lead off batter, the ball hit the front of the plate, though, and bounced away allowing the batter to reach first safely. Rich Baldwin followed with a single for the Bulldogs to place runners on first and second with cleanup hitter Brian Cole coming to the plate. Twiggs went 3-0 on Cole before reaching down and coming up with a strike out before retiring the next two batters to get out of the innings.

"That showed me something right there," Ferrell said. "When a player can get himself out of that kind of predicament then he's tough. It was still 0-0 at the time and it could have been trouble if the bases were to have been loaded with no one out."

The Lions came back to score both their runs in the bottom of the fourth inning thanks to some bad defense and timely hitting. Jodie Spelman led the inning off and reached on an error by the second baseman and Chet Tulp came in to pinch run for Spelman. On a hit and run play with Hubba Fore at the plate Tulp took second as Fore grounded out to third. Brian Macinness then singled up the middle to score Tulp.

Mike Vern then grounded out to short to move Macinness to second. Twiggs then hit a high fly just out of the infield and both the second baseman and the right fielder converged on the ball. Both backed off the ball before the right fielder took a stab at it and it bounced out of his glove. Macinness, who was off with the pitch, scored to give Oviedo a 2-0 lead.

Ram netters stay unbeaten

From staff reports

CASSELBERRY — Perfection is getting redundant for the Lake Mary High School boys' tennis team.

After the Rams defeated the Oviedo Lions 5-2 at Red Bug Lake Park, Lake Mary's match record improved to 8-0. During the match, four different players improved their personal marks to 8-0.

The only Ram to lose his singles contest on Wednesday was Scott Farmer at No. 1 singles. Weakened by illness, Farmer lost a tough 8-5 match to Oviedo's Chris Westberry.

After that, Doug Barr, Jason White, Brett Thorpe and Ryan Rogers all won their matches to improve their respective records to 8-0.

At No. 2 singles, Barr defeated Scott Lugering 3-1. White won at No. 3 singles, beating P. Schurmann 8-3. The Rams' roll continued at No. 4 singles, where Thorpe defeated J. Griffin 8-2. Finally, Rogers grabbed an 8-5 win over Boyle at No. 5 singles.

In doubles play, Thorpe substituted for Farmer and joined Barr at No. 1 doubles to beat Westberry and Lugering 8-6.

With the loss, Oviedo's match record fell to 7-3.

A pre-natal breast-feeding class will be presented the mornings of March 25 and April 29 at the Family Birth Center, 211 W. Warren Ave., Longwood. Fee for the class is $15 and pre-registration is required due to limited class size by calling 699-4087. Topics covered will include advantages, prenatal preparation, how-to's of breast-feeding, expectations for the early days, necessary supplies and resources, working, and weaning. The class will be presented by Debby Kearney, certified lactation consultant.

Class to teach kids to make breakfast

Seminole County 4-H will sponsor "Breakfast for Champions," another special interest foods and nutrition class in its EZ Cookin' For Kids program. The class will be held on Wednesday, March 29, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Seminole County Agriculture Center at Five Points. The class will give 4-H and non 4-H youth aged 8-18 the chance to learn how to make fast and easy breakfast items with little help. A $2 charge covers cost of materials. Because class size is limited, pre-registration is required by Monday, March 27, by calling 323-2500, ext. 183.

Sweet Adelines croon a la barbershop

They won't let men monopolize 4-part harmony

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald staff writer

CASSELBERRY — At a meeting of the Sweet Adeline's Sounds of Sunshine chorus, the women laugh a lot and tease one another, but when the music starts, they become very serious.

The Sounds of Sunshine is the Seminole County chapter of Sweet Adelines, Inc. a national organization that was founded 30 years ago to help promote four-part harmony music for women. Men had been singing four-part harmony (most commonly known as barber shop quartets) for years, so in 1959, a group of wives of these crooners decided to form their own group.

A national headquarters was established in Tulsa, Okla. Chapters began forming in every area country and overseas. Today there are "several hundred thousand" members Internationally, according to Diane Marshall, assistant director of the Sounds of Sunshine chapter.

In Florida alone, there are 35 choruses comprised of more than 2,000 singers.

"We're like sisters," said Florence Korgan, who has been a member since the local group was founded 12 years ago.

"Just a bunch of fun-lovin' gals—that's us," Korgan continued. "And I've never seen so much warmth and compassion in a group."

While the gatherings take on

certain characteristics of a social club, the ladies don't take their music lightly.

"Most of us aren't trained in music, but we love to sing," Korgan said.

No experience in music is required to gain membership in the group. However, a pre-joining audition will test to be sure potential songsters can at least carry a tune.

"I'd say that 75 percent of our women can't read music, but they can listen and sing the songs as they hear them," Marshall said.

The Sounds of Sunshine chapter counts only three among its 60-plus membership who are trained in singing. Other members include teachers, nurses, housewives, secretaries, administrators and an engineer.

There is no upper age limit for the members, and the local chapter boasts a couple of septuagenarians. Applications are not accepted from girls less than 18 years old unless their mothers are also members.

"Because we sometimes travel, younger girls would need a chaperone and we don't provide chaperones," Korgan explained.

Most of the group's efforts are geared toward the competition at the state, and if they prove to be good enough, the national level.

Sweet Adelines sing traditional barbershop songs, Broadway tunes and popular songs in four-part harmony. They dance a bit as well, though "usually pretty simple steps," Korgan admitted.

The ladies make their own costumes, often show-stopping sequined numbers that catch the light and bring the music alive.

Such costumes, even though they're made by members, can be expensive. And this year, the Sweet Adelines have hired music teacher Shirley Kout to travel from Texas to coach them for the upcoming state contest (March 30, 31 and April 1). Add to that the cost of traveling to contest sites and you've got a serious need for fund-raising.

Diane Marshall (center) gets fitted for her Sweet Adelines skirt by costume chairman Babo Haynes.

Members pay dues of $15 per month, which includes fees for membership in the international organization. But that alone can't cover the group's expenses.

"So we perform for all kinds of occasions," Korgan said. "Everything from a 15-minute minishow to a two-hour extravaganza." They have performed for parties and in concert halls, wherever people will pay to listen. "I like to sing," Korgan said. "And this is a nice way to have a night out with the girls."

To express interest in joining, one may attend a rehearsal of the Sound of Sunshine Sweet Adelines women's barbershop singing group. Rehearsals take place each Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Community United Methodist Church, 321 Piney Ridge Road, off U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry.

Compulsive disorders not so rare

DEAR ABBY: You were right to tell Count Dracula that compulsive counting is fairly common. Some people are always counting something—the number of stairs they go up or down, the number of posts in a fence, cars on the highway, light bulbs in a sign, etc. It can be harmless, or carried to the point where a person thinks he's going insane. Doctors call it "Obsessive Compulsive Behavior Disorder" or "OCD."

An estimated one in every 40 men, women and children has some form of OCD. I know, because I am an OCD sufferer. For years I thought I was the only person in the world who couldn't stop counting everything.

The good news is that doctors now realize that OCD is a physical illness—and there is medication that can bring it under control.

Three years ago, many of us who were being treated in the Yale Clinic OCD program in New Haven, Conn., formed an organization to educate and offer support to the estimated 5 million OCD sufferers throughout the country. Today, this national non-profit OCD Foundation offers advice, information, newsletters, referrals to treatment centers and "phone pals" to OCD sufferers and their families in all 50 states.

ADVICE

It's not just a compulsion to count; it includes saving things until there is not more space to accommodate the collection, and the uncontrollable habit of pulling one's own hair or eyelashes out. The list goes on and on.

Thank you, Abby, for giving this hidden disorder national exposure so those who have it will not feel so alone and can seek the help they need to control this disorder.

FRAN SYDNEY,
NEW HAVEN

DEAR FRAN: Thank you for providing me with this information so I could publicize it. Those who are interested may write to The OCD Foundation, P.O. Box 9573, New Haven, Conn. 06535. This is a non-profit group, so please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (25 cents) envelope.

Oddfellows to celebrate 100 years with barbecue

SANFORD — A covered dish dinner will be held on Saturday, March 25, for members of Sanford Oddfellows Lodge No. 27, their families and friends at the Shriners Club in Sanford in honor of the lodge's 100th birthday.

Barbecue pork will be the main course served at the 6 p.m. dinner.

A $5 fee is being charged per person to cover the cost of meat and drink.

Thomas B. Sanders heads the Sanford Oddfellows Lodge, one of many of a worldwide fraternal organization that contributes millions of dollars each year to relief and educational efforts.

The Independent Order of Oddfellows is the only fraternal organization permitted to hold services at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, which will take place this year on May 7.

Among members of the Sanford lodge are Henry M. Jameson, grand patriarch of the Grand Encampment of Florida, and Robert M. Morris, grand warden of the Grand Lodge of Florida.

Plans are being formed to have the Oddfellow Rebekkah Assembly in this area in 1991.

Lou Gehrig's disease ruins nervous system

DEAR DR. GOTT: My friend has been told she has Lou Gehrig's disease. The writings are so very technical about it. Could you please explain the disease in simple language?

DEAR READER: Amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS) is sometimes called Lou Gehrig's disease, a remembrance of the great baseball player who died of the ailment and thereby attracted much public attention.

ALS is a neurological disorder of unknown cause, marked by progressive degeneration of nervous system tissue that supplies muscles. It causes weakness and wasting of the muscles of the hands, forearms and legs. Cramps and difficulty speaking (and swallowing) are common.

ALS usually starts in middle age and progresses rapidly, with death occurring in two to five years. Although there is no known treatment, patients can be aided by physical therapy and nursing care.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I read an article in a popular magazine about herpes and fever blisters. It said that if someone with fever blisters only (Herpes 1) had oral sex while he or she had a blister, the partner could get Herpes 2. True?

DEAR READER: Herpes simplex virus causes painful, recurring crops of blisters in various parts of the body. Type 1 infections tend to occur around the mouth and nose, type 2 in the genital area.

To a degree, this categorization is useful in defining herpes infections, but from a practical standpoint, herpes is herpes: type 1 and type 2 look and behave the same way, are transmitted by direct human-to-human contact and are treated with the same drug (acyclovir).

I think that if someone with oral herpes type 1 had oral sex, the virus could be transmitted to the genital area, causing type 1 infection. However, genital herpes is generally considered to be type 2. Rather than wasting time trying to figure out who gave what to whom, I'd simply treat both partners.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Despite the double heart-stopper, three no-trump would have been rough going because of the tricky communication between South's hand and dummy's high cards. Declarer would make nine tricks by dropping the spade queen, but would likely fail by taking a first-round spade finesse. So four spades was not a bad contract.

Declarer won dummy's king of clubs and finessed to his spade jack. When a club came back, declarer won dummy's ace, cashed A-K of diamonds shedding a club and led the heart jack from dummy. East now made a fine play, against all textbook advice, when he failed to cover. So West won the king of hearts. Later declarer had to lose the 10 of spades and another heart trick, so the result was down one.

South misplayed the hand by two tricks. The spade queen will be with East 50 percent of the time, but the chances that the heart honors will be split or will both be in the East hand are 75 percent. It's then better for declarer to give up the trump finesse and maintain the timing and communication to take two heart plays. So win the king of clubs and play a heart to the 10. West wins and continues clubs. Play A-K of diamonds, discard a club, and play a heart to the nine. That wins. Now cash A-K of spades, dropping the queen, and give up a spade to the 10-spot, making one overtrick.

PLO: Stop Israeli terrorism

United Press International

CARTHAGE, Tunisia — The Palestine Liberation Organization countered U.S. calls that it try to curb violence against Israel with a demand that Washington make efforts "to stop the Israeli terrorism directed at our people."

The exchange came Wednesday during the first formal U.S.-PLO talks of the Bush administration and coincided with another "attempted attack on Israel by Palestinian guerrillas trying to infiltrate from southern Lebanon."

U.S. Ambassador Robert Pelletreau said after Wednesday's nearly five-hour meeting that there is "a new dynamic" for Middle East peace that could lead to direct Israeli-Palestinian talks if the PLO can curb terrorism and violence.

"The immediate objective is to create a political environment in which productive direct negotiations between Palestinians and Israelis can be sustained," Pelletreau told reporters.

Pelletreau indicated he spent much of the meeting trying to persuade the PLO to try to control terrorism and cross-border violence against Israel, which Washington believes is counter-productive to the peace process.

"The PLO is fully aware of our strong views on terrorism and violence," Pelletreau said.

But PLO delegation leader Yasser Abed Rabbo said the United States must exert pressure on Israel to recognize the rights of Palestinians and called on Washington to support efforts for the creation of an independent Palestinian state.

"There is a responsibility on the United States to make all efforts possible to stop the Israeli terrorism directed against our people," he said. "We believe that creating a new atmosphere for a peaceful settlement needs a clear position in recognizing the rights of our people and the establishing of an independent Palestinian state."

Rabbo said the talks marked progress in the search for Middle East peace and that the PLO wished to continue the dialogue, the second since the Reagan administration approved the contacts late last year after PLO chief Yasser Arafat renounced terrorism and implicitly recognized Israel's right to exist.

The first session, which took place Dec. 16 despite strong objections from Israel, marked the first time the two sides met since the formation of the PLO in 1984.

Earlier Wednesday, a U.S. Embassy source said the three-man American delegation intended to deliver "some tough words" to the PLO negotiators about the need to discourage Palestinian raids on Israel, even if they are committed by hard-line Palestinian groups outside the direct control of Arafat.

Late Wednesday afternoon, pro-Israeli militants in Lebanon intercepted and killed the three Palestinian guerrillas as they tried to slip into northern Israel, Lebanese security and militia sources said. There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the infiltration attempt, the fifth in six weeks.

At Wednesday's meeting, Pelletreau sat at a rectangular table alongside embassy political officer Edmund Hull and deputy chief of mission Gordon Brown.

Rabbo, a PLO Executive Committee member and official of the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, sat at another table facing the U.S. delegation. The pro-Soviet DFLP is one of the most radical factions within the PLO.

Guerrillas killed entering Israel

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Members of the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army killed three Palestinian guerrillas trying to slip into northern Israel in the fifth such infiltration attempt in six weeks.

A spokesman quoted by the militia-run Voice of the South radio said an SLA patrol spotted the guerrillas on their way to northern Israel late Wednesday afternoon near the village of Houla, 1 mile north of the Lebanon-Israel border.

He said three guerrillas were killed in a 30-minute firefight with automatic rifles and rocket-propelled grenades.

An SLA gunman was gravely wounded and was transported by helicopter to a hospital inside Israel, the spokesman said, adding that a military vehicle was destroyed during the clash.

In Israel, an army statement said "three terrorists and one SLA soldier" were killed. "The SLA spotted the terrorist group in the eastern sector of the security zone about 1 mile west of Houla, the SLA opened fire at the group, thus killing them."

The SLA said troops found the bodies of the three guerrillas in an olive grove. Soviet-made Kalashnikov rifles, hand grenades, rockets and ammunition were recovered near the bodies, the spokesman said.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the infiltration attempt, the fifth from southern Lebanon in six weeks.

The attack coincided with the second meeting between U.S. officials and the Palestine Liberation Organization in Carthage, Tunisia, where the American delegation urged the PLO to try to control cross-border violence against Israel.

Israelis investigate leak of secret PLO intelligence

United Press International

JERUSALEM — Government and military officials called for an investigation into the leak of an intelligence analysis saying Israel inevitably will talk to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

In the Israeli-occupied territories, soldiers Wednesday shot and killed an 11-year-old Palestinian and wounded at least 39 in widespread violence, Palestinian sources said. One Palestinian woman was wounded when another Arab attacked by stone-throwers opened fire in a West Bank refugee camp, the sources said.

An army spokesman said at least nine Palestinians were wounded in clashes and the military was investigating reports of the Arab's death in the West Bank Tulkarm refugee camp.

At least 388 Palestinians and 13 Israelis have been killed during the 15-month-old Palestinian uprising.

Palestinians also observed a general strike Wednesday marking the one-year anniversary of the closure of the PLO offices in Washington as American officials met with PLO members in Tunisia for the first such dialogue of the Bush administration.

In Jerusalem, several Israeli government officials and a former military intelligence chief called for an investigation into the widely publicized leak of an intelligence assessment given Israel's inner Cabinet last week.

The assessment, according to reports in the Israeli media, cited a significant change in the PLO's policies toward Israel and maintained there was no alternative to talks with the PLO. On Tuesday, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, a firm opponent of talks with the PLO, described the media reports as a "lie" and said he did not know anything about the information published.

But a top aide Wednesday admitted the existence of an intelligence evaluation, although there was no document officially presented to government leaders during a closed inner Cabinet meeting.

"The problem is not semantic. There really was no document," Yossi Ben-Aharon, director general of Shamir's office told Army Radio. "What there was was an intelligence evaluation that was leaked. The fact that selective parts of it became public knowledge is a serious matter."

Israeli sources confirmed a senior intelligence officer had briefed the inner Cabinet on the highlights of an annual intelligence report, expected to be completed within two weeks. But they said the analysis was not a formal recommendation for the government on its policy toward the PLO.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin also said he was sorry members from his center-left Labor Party were raising the suggestion of talking to the PLO.

"It will not achieve anything," Rabin told young Labor Party members. "In my opinion it will only cause harm to the Labor Party. Of course, it will not advance the political process."

But in Tunisia, U.S. Ambassador Robert Pelletreau said after talking with PLO representatives that the "immediate objective is to create a political environment in which productive direct negotiations between Palestinians and Israelis can be sustained."

While rejecting talks with the PLO, Shamir has met with unidentified Palestinians within the occupied territories who are not PLO members and aides have said he will continue such talks. Other government leaders also have made a distinction between negotiating with Palestinians in the territories, which they consider appropriate, and talking with the PLO.

Shamir Wednesday closed the three-day Prime Minister's Conference on Jewish Solidarity with Israel with an emotional speech at the Western Wall.

Shamir did not mention the PLO or his trip early next month to Washington. Instead he called forth memories of the destroyed Jewish Temple before his audience of more than 1,500 Jewish leaders from around the world gathered before the Western Wall.

"Whenever I come to this old city I have visions of the flames rising to the sky when the Temple was burnt and the city was razed because our people were divided," Shamir said standing on the plaza before the holiest Jewish site, a remnant of the outer wall of the Temple's courtyard.

"Therefore, I believe with every fiber of my being in Jewish unity, in Jewish strength, in Jewish commitment to this city and to the land of Israel."

Khomeini ridicules Europeans

United Press International

Britain expelled nine Iranians on security grounds as Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini ridiculed the 12-nation European Community for allowing its ambassadors to return to Tehran after withdrawing them over the Salman Rushdie affair.

The Soviet Union claimed Wednesday its mediation efforts played a part in the softening of the EC stance toward Iran.

The EC withdrew its senior envoys from Tehran for consultations a month ago in solidarity with Britain's condemnation of a death threat issued by Khomeini against the British writer of the novel "The Satanic Verses."

The Europeans, who want to maintain contacts to secure a share in Iran's lucrative post-war reconstruction, agreed Monday to allow their ambassadors to return to Tehran but not to hold high-level meetings with Iranian officials until the decree is lifted.

Rushdie remains in hiding in Britain.

Khomeini made fun of the European countries for abandoning their position.

"Maybe they had not predicted such shame and disgrace in the process of achieving their ominous aim," Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted Khomeini as saying.

"Today, they are returning humiliated, disgraced and in wretches, regretful of what they did," Khomeini said.

For the first time since he accepted a cease-fire in the war with Iraq last summer, Khomeini said his decade-old Islamic revolution is the starting point of "the great global Islamic revolution."

"Our officials know that our revolution is not limited to Iran ... the revolution of the Iranian people is the starting point of the great global Islamic revolution," Khomeini was quoted as saying.

The British Home Office Wednesday ordered nine Iranians to leave Britain, raising to 18 the number of Iranians told to leave since Tehran broke relations with London March 7 over the Rushdie dispute.

The latest expulsions include two former staff members at the Iranian Embassy and Iranian students, a Home Office spokesman said. None of the Iranians were identified. The nine Iranians, cited as security risks by the Home Office, have until March 27 to leave or face deportation.

"Normal relations between Great Britain and Iran must depend on Iran's renunciation of the use of violence against our citizens," the Home Office spokesman said. "We are keeping the actions of other Iranians under close scrutiny."

Britain has withdrawn its diplomatic staff from its embassy in Tehran and appointed Sweden to take care of its interests in the Iranian capital.

In Moscow, a Soviet Foreign Ministry statement said the Soviet Union helped mediate the crisis between Iran and the EC.

The statement said the decision about the ambassadors "is in line with the Soviet approach, with efforts made by the Soviet side, including those during the Soviet foreign minister's meeting in Tehran and Vienna, to ease tension in relations between the EC countries and Iran."

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze was given a rare meeting with Khomeini in Tehran a few days after the leader issued the death edict.

The Soviet Union has refused to condemn the death threat and one Tass commentary defended Iran's actions in the affair.

Austrian President Kurt Waldheim, meanwhile, told a news conference ending a visit to the United Arab Emirates that Austria rejected "The Satanic Verses" as "blasphemous and offensive to the religious feelings of the Islamic countries," but did not agree with Khomeini's death order.

Last Thursday, the foreign ministers of 46 Moslem nations meeting in Saudi Arabia called for "The Satanic Verses" to be withdrawn from circulation.
