FLORIDA IN BRIEF

1 Killed, 12 Injured As

Tornado Rips Trailers

LARGO (AP) - "Our trailer rolled six times. When it was over, I thought my husband was dead," Rexanne Schwadron said after a tornado struck a community of mobile homes for retirees, killing one and injuring a dozen others.

"Big sheets of metal were coming straight at us," Mrs. Schwadron said. "We just grabbed each other's arms and hit the floor." When the wind stopped, 30 mobile homes lay in soggy ruins and 70 others were damaged in this Florida Gulf Coast city of 55,000.

Women's Bank Effort Fails

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - The first attempt in Florida to establish a bank for women collapsed in a dispute seven months ago and the aftershocks are still shaking Comptroller Gerald Lewis and nearly 1,000 investors

Lewis attempted Thursday to resolve his part of the controversy by ordering the organ-izers of the defunct First Women's Bank of Florida to repay the investors by Aug. 31.

Kovachevich Seeks Post

JACKSONVILLE (AP) - Circuit Judge Elizabeth Kovachevich of St. Petersburg is competing with 15 other judges, two U.S. magistrates and a dozen lawyers for a federal judgeship here even though she's been named to another post.

Earl Hadlow, chairman of the Judicial Qualifications Commission, gave that breakdown Thursday of the applicants to succeed U.S. District Judge Charles R. Scott when he

Aid Stability

How much is enough? The liberal policy which our government has followed in allowing U.S. manufacturers to sell planes, tanks, guns and other military hardware to foreign governments is coming under attack. When Iran alone turns out to be ordering $10 billion worth of weapons, it may be time to take a closer look at what the arms trade implies both for U.S. foreign policy and for the U.S.

It's easy to get the impression that the United States is simply using its defense industries to ease its balance of payments problem. The dilemma of what As do about our staggering expenditures forimported oil would be more acute if a significant amount of that money were not flowing back in the form of arms purchases by Saudi Arabia, Iran and other oil producers.

Tail in

That economic benefit cannot be denied, but is no justification for ignoring the implications of the arms buildup in the Middle East and Africa. That arms buildup, we should remember, does not arise from the availability of U.S. weapons but from the determination of certain leaders to turn the economic strength of their countries into military strength. The United States, for instance, did not give the Shah of Iran the ambition to make his country a major power in the Middle East. If he did not find a source of weapons in the United States he would find it elsewhere.

Arms are flowing into the Middle East and Africa from the Soviet Union and from Western Europe as well as from the United States. King Hussein of Jordan has demonstrated how a leader can try to play one side off against the other in the arms market. Peeved at the rising cost estimates for an American-made missile system, he nounced he would shop for one in Moscow instead. He is now apparently changing his mind, with the assurance of more help from the Saudi Arabians to pay for what he wants.

Our arms-sale policy must not be blind to the uses that might be made of U.S. weapons. In the case of Jordan, and the proposed resumption of arms sales to Egypt, we have sought to keep a balance between the military capability of Israel and the Arab states that confront her. All the Middle Eastern states are dependent on outside sources for weapons. Those nations on which they are dependent gain a measure of influence over their policies. Whether it is the Russians or the Americans who hold that influence can be crucial to the future of the Middle East and Africa.

It is the buyers of arms - not the sellers - who will answer the question of how much is enough. The United States and the Soviet Union are trying to answer that question right now in their strategic arms negotiations - an example of how hard it can be to fix what is an adequate level of defense.

We know from our own experience vis-a-vis the Russians that when two countries are both welldefended they search for alternatives to war. The hopes for a negotiated peace between Israel and the Arabs are based on that principle. The flow of U.S. arms into any region is not dangerous in itself. Danger arises when any nation decides to use weapons available from one source or another to change an equilibrium that serves as an inducement to keep the peace.

Others breach the walls only at their peril; there was no official remorse for the man shot down recently on the White House lawn. Secret Service agents instead said that his sad death was "an ideal operation" insofar as security reaction was concerned.

So nervous have the sentries become, actually, that White House visitors no longer even have to break the rules to risk scorn or manhandling. One need be only suspected of being a potential rule breaker. Case in point is a phia taxi driver named Peter Hell age 38. His harmless visit to the White House a year ago in June has since forced him to sue the government for false arrest.

Heller's ordeal, as he relates it, actually began in 1969 when he started writing letters of JOHN CUNNIFF complaint to the president. His grievance, which continues to this hour, was that the nation's intelligence operatives were polluting the ideals of democracy and importing dirty tricks for use domestically. Often his letters have explained that he is not downgrading America, which he feels is a "wonderful country" but that unfortunately, it is being ill-served by its officers.

Thus last summer while in Washington, Heller decided to deliver some of his letters Gerald Gibson, not Rick Nelson, interviewed him. They talked for 30 minutes regarding letters and related matters.

For his honesty, Heller found himself in a jam again. Agent Gibson summoned the Washington police who arrested the visitor and transported him to a local looney hospital for a "mental review." The law says such actions can only be taken with citizens when they are dangerous to Anyone other than Ford, or perhaps former President Nixon, whom Ford pardoned for his part in the Watergate, would have backed out of the race after GOP challenger Ronald Reagan closed the gap and became a serious challenger. At this point the GOP torch bearer is a tossup.

But it's not a toesup as to who is predicted to win the election. Nationwide polls have Carter leading Reagan and Ford by wide margins.

And that is hardly surprising. The people want a change. And Carter has become the symbol of that change. Cronyism and bureaucracy have a stranglehold on the country. And the people are

Bucs Try Again, Spurrier Starts

JACKSONVILLE (AP) - The winless Atlan Falcons, bombed 31-7 by Cleveland a week ago, will try to avoid the embarrassment Saturday night of becoming the first National Football League team to lose to the expansion Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The Falcons, 17-10 losers to Washington in their exhibition opener, don't figure to face the same kind of pass rush from Tampa Bay that Cleveland put on quarterback Steve Bartkowski last week. Bartkowski was caught for losses four times while trying to pass against the Browns. Tampa Bay coach John McKay, meanwhile, will again start veteran Steve Spurrier at quarterback as he tries to improve an offense that has put only nine points on the oard in the first two gar McKay said he also plans to use Parnell Dickinson and James Foote at quarterback. Gary Valbuena, obtained Wednesday on waivers from the Miami Dolphins, is not expected to see action. Dickinson has directed Tampa Bay to its only field goal and touchdown in their 28-3 loss to Los Angeles and 10-6 loss to Green Bay. Foote has yet to see action. "What's killing us is we're not having the ball enough to win," McKay said, "We're not mapping the ball more than 40 per cent of the time." At ticket prices of $12 and $5, advance sales indicate the Gator Bowl crowd will be less than 15,000.

These are classrooms? Hard to believe! The contemporary mall atmosphere of Seminole Community College's brand new Clothing Services department is one of the most exciting developments seen at the college in recent years.

Located at ground level under the library building, the new fashion center boasts seven large rooms leading off the orange-carpeted central mall section. Bleached wood paneling, variations in ceiling heights and light intensity levels, and a broad expanse of glass display areas characterize the mall.

"These interdisciplinary programs blend construction lab, fashion room, drapery workshop, interior design lab, retailing lab, notel-motel lab and general classroom. Credit courses for college degree and vocational training, as well as non-credit courses under the Adult and Continuing Education program will be offered. Courses in Fashion Design, Fashion Merchandizing, Interior Design and Interior

"Statistic of Merchandislog are his lower of the A.S. degree offerings. Day and night Clothing Construction classes, including specialty sewing, basic sewing, fashion fitting and sewing for children, as well as drapery classes are scheduled on a non-credit basis.

Classes begin Sept. 7. "These interdisciplinary programs blend arts and sciences, business and home economics courses to produce a pot pourri of new training opportunities for residents in this area," commented Joan Shppard, the excited coordinator of Clothing Services. Mrs. Sheppard will teach the college credit classes in clothing construction and textiles. Other teachers include Margaret Jones. formerly a Seminole High School teacher also in clothing construction; Beverly Brashear,

GOD'S WILL

Trusting In God

- Question: You say God will meet my needs, but how can I trust someone I've never seen? God will have to give me some kind of proof before I can trust Him. Answer: This question reminds me of the old Quaker whose son
- went off to college and came home with a "know it all" attitude. Directors, stated that the will give special recognition to United States as well as 10 fellowship will include Youth He said to his father, "Dad, I don't believe there is a God because I don't believe in anything I can't see." The father thought a moment and said, "Son, has thee brain?"
- "Of course," answered the son. His father asked, "Hast thee ever seen it?" "No," was the reply.
- "Then how dost thee know thee hast one?
- There is proof. The Bible is full of proof. If you can't believe God's Word, you can look all around and see that it took God to create the world . . . the green grass, the beautiful mountains, and the rolling sea. The best way I know to prove God is "to taste and see that He is
- good" (Psalm 34:8). Experience His love for yourself, and when you do, you will have no doubts. You can't see the wind, but you know it blows. You have to
- You can't see the wind, out you know it blows. You have to believe in many things you don't understand. If you didn't have faith that you would be safe, you would near ride an elevator or get on a plane or even sit down in a chair. If it's hard for you to believe that God exists and that He loves you, how do you suppose He could have faith in you? But He does. God loves you so much that He sent His son to die for you. That is the greatest risk anyone even took. God planted a seed of faith by giving His best for you. and He wants you to let Him live in your heart. Suppose He could have faith or you to believe that God exists and that He loves the greatest risk anyone even took. God planted a seed of faith by giving His best for you. and He wants you to let Him live in your heart.

Nun Serving India's Poorest

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - To Mother Teresa, the poor are the great ones, the courageous, noble and kind. "Such dignity, such goodness," she says. In them she sees the Divine image. They suffer, yes, but that, too, she says, is like God.

"He made Himself the hungry one, the homeless. naked, unwanted one," she says. "We meet Him in disguise in the faces of the poor." Mother Teress, a small, fragile, slightly stooper nun of 67, whose work among the "poorest of the poor" in Calcutta, India, has grown into the worldwide Missionaries of Charity, seems to radiate that same selflessness which she finds in those who have

A grieving compassion lines her face, and when the smiles, it seems as if the light wells up from some shadowy, unforgotten place of tears. She was repeatedly referred to as a "saint" at last week's International Eucharistic Congress ere and crowds of people trailed her about, seeking o press her hand or simply to touch her white sari. the habit of her order.

Through her, that customary Eastern impulse to share or absorb the "karma" of some holy person by getting near them seemed to have been transported into the West.

"The poor do not want your pity," she says. "They want your love. But do we see them? Do we know them? Are we with them? When we come before God, He will judge us on what we have been to the poor, on what we have done to the poor."

At the Congress, a global gathering of Roman Catholics centered on faith in Christ's real presence in the bread and wine of the eucharist, or holy communion, Mother Teress gave several talks and "People have told us that we spoil the poor with our work," she said. "It is good to have at least one congregation that spoils the poor because everybody is always spoiling the rich." She told graphic stories of work with the desperately poor, of a family of eight which, on being given some rice, first shared it with hungr neighbors before eating; of a starving woman who died saying "thank you" simply for being picked up . from the street and shown some concern.

"She gave me much more than I gave her, Mother Teresa said. "She gave her grateful love." Strangely, she said, that reversed giving is the case with the poor. "They give much more than we give

She said that while many in Asia and Africa suffer material poverty, the affluent people of America and Europe suffer from a poverty of their own. "It is not less painful," she said. "It is the terrible" poverty of loneliness, of abandonment, a feeling of being lost. They want to be loved, to be somebody to
