Khadafy: Expect 'Tit For Tat'

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy warned Israel and the United States against retaliating for the twin airport attacks in Rome and Vienna, saying any attack on Libya would mean war in the Middle East and Mediterranean.

Speaking to a group of Western reporters Wednesday at his barracks in Tripoli, Khadafy said, "If Israel acts against this action there will be strong and furious counteractions by the Palestinians."

Khadafy said retaliation would lead to a "tit for tat" cycle of violence that would lead to Libyans harassing "American citizens in their own streets."

"We hope that America and the Israelis make a mistake and mount an invasion," Khadafy said.

At least 100 people died and more than 100 were wounded Dec. 27 when Palestinian terrorists — using machine guns and hand grenades — attacked El Al Israel ticket counters at airports in Rome and Vienna.

Khadafy justified the attacks as revenge for Israel's Oct. 1 raid on Palestine Liberation Organization headquarters in Tunisia that killed 68 people. He also expressed support for Abu Nidal, the hardline leader of a PLO faction widely believed responsible for the attacks.

The Palestinians were "compelled to take such an action, because they have been victimized and deprived of their country," he maintained.

"If there is an aggression on Libya... then there is goodbye to peace in the Mediterranean zone," Khadafy warned. "There will be no peace in the Mediterranean, no trade, no American planes, military or non-military."

"Aggression on Libya means war. Libya will not act in a limited fashion. Libya will declare war in the Middle East and in the Mediterranean zone," he said.

Khadafy declared that "unless Palestine is liberated, the centers of terrorism, America and Israel, should be eradicated."

He also called for the removal of the U.S. 6th Fleet from the Mediterranean, and called its presence "hostile and aggressive."

In his wide-ranging statement, Khadafy described Israel and President Reagan as "the most ugly phenomena" on earth.

"There is no craziness, imperialism, irresponsibility and irrationality in this world like Reagan," he said.

Khadafy said although Libya assists Palestinians, it could not be held responsible for the actions of individual Palestinian organizations.

"Otherwise America should be held responsible for the hostile actions taken by the Israelis with the support of American arms and the Americans in the Middle

New Year Dawns Amid Hope, Tragedy

From Staff and Wire Reports

Millions of Americans reveled in the traditional New Year's Day ritual of parades and football, but fires, traffic deaths, violent crimes and an explosion set off by a "very depressed man" cast a shadow over the start of 1986.

A proud mother was convinced she delivered the first baby of the year in the United States five seconds after the stroke of midnight in Chicago.

Scott Cary Demar, believed to be the first Florida baby of 1986, weighed in at 6 pounds, 1-ounce 20 seconds after midnight in a Miami hospital.

In Sanford, Seminole County's first baby of the year was born to Barbara Gillison at Central Florida Regional Hospital. Cassandra Martez Gillison was born at 12:11 a.m. Jan. 1. She weighed-in at 7 pounds, 13 ounces, delivered by Dr. Willie Newman. The Gillisons are Sanford residents.

In Pasadena, Calif., an estimated 1 million spectators lined a 5½-mile route to see the flowered floats and marching bands of the 97th annual Tournament of Roses Parade, while another 100 million people watched on television.

Florida's 17 Deaths Lead U.S.

From Staff and Wire Reports

Florida leads the nation in a grim statistic — the most highway deaths over the short New Year's holiday — according to a UPI poll of the nation's highway patrol districts.

There were no fatalities in Seminole County though at least six people were arrested on DUI charges during the holiday period.

Alcohol was a prime contributor in more than half of the fatalities on Florida's highways during the 30-hour holiday, a spokesman for the Florida Highway Patrol reported today.

The Patrol reported at least 17 people died during the short 30-hour holiday period, nine of which were listed as alcohol-related and four more were listed as unknown.

The count has exceeded the nine-person toll FHP officials had predicted for the holiday period which ended at midnight Wednesday. FHP had started with a prediction of 15, but lowered it Tuesday to nine.

In Seminole County the last person picked up on a DUI charge during the holiday was Thomas Savage, 42, of Macieletta, Ga.

Savage, a self-employed truck driver, was arrested at the Flying Seminole Ranch, State Road 419, after an Oviedo officer said he smelled alcohol on the man's breath and after the man performed poorly during a roadside sobriety test. According to the arrest report, Savage's driver's license was suspended Nov. 22 for habitual traffic offenses. His blood-alcohol level was reportedly 0.151. In Florida a blood-alcohol level of 0.10 determines a person to be drunk by law.

Savage was being held on $500 bond today in the Seminole County jail.

In one Florida traffic fatality, the victim's blood-alcohol level was three times the legal limit.

A blood-alcohol ratio of .32 was found in the body of Corey Richard Young, 31, who died about two miles outside Fountain in Bay County when his car rolled over, the patrol spokesman said.

Thomas Moll, 23, died when his car struck a tree at 12:15 a.m. in Fort Myers, the spokesman said. He added that

Leads Sought In Search For Missing Man, 87

Sanford police are searching for a local elderly man who has been missing for three days.

Robert May, 87, 413 E. Seventh St., Sanford, was last seen in the early morning hours Monday, according to Police Chief Steve D. Harriett.

May is a tall, slender, black male who was last seen wearing a pair of bib overalls, dark flannel shirt, a brown round-brim felt hat and eyeglasses.

Police Officer Curt Schuster stopped to help May, who appeared to be having car trouble, at the intersection of Third Street and Palmetto Avenue around 1 a.m. Monday. Harriett said.

As May drove away from the scene, he committed several traffic violations, including running a stop sign and driving on the wrong side of the road. A check of his driver's license showed that May is restricted to daytime driving.

Harriett said Schuster offered May a ride, but May refused saying he was close to his home and would walk.

A friend of May's, Nellie Mason, told police that she found May's house unlocked and the lights on Monday afternoon. Mason, who Harriett said regularly checks on May, later reported him missing.

An unidentified neighbor said she saw May at home around

Bank To Lemonade Stand, Proposals Flood P&Z

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Although 1986 is hardly two days old, the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission is already prepared to review the year. Tonight the P&Z will address a full agenda of development proposals that include a bank on Orlando Drive, a marine sales and service center on East 25th Street and a permanent lemonade stand on French Avenue.

The commission will also consider a request to locate a lawn mower repair shop at 305 Palmetto Avenue, although neighborhood sentiment and its hours of operation will be ascertained prior to approval. P&Z Chairman John Morris said today.

Assisting P&Z considerations this year

Assisting P&Z considerations this year will be an interim land use map which offers a guide to what the P&Z feels will be development patterns in Sanford during the next 20 years.

will be the interim land use map it developed and formally adopted late last year. Rather than radically alter the city's present zoning structure, through certain land use amendments the map offers a guide to what the P&Z feels will be development patterns in Sanford during the next 20 years.

An example of the map's application will be demonstrated tonight, when the commission considers a request that would transform the state's old auto inspection station at 401 E. 25th Street into a full-service marine outlet. The amendment would be in compliance with the interim map's rezoning of that area from restricted commercial to general commercial use.

In cases where construction proposals do not necessitate rezoning requests, developers must still present the P&Z with site plans before they can obtain building permits. Project approval is contingent on adherence to the city's building codes.

Tonight, representatives of Heritage Federal Savings and Loan will present a plan that would locate a banking facility at 3603 Orlando Drive and Polar Cup representatives will seek approval for a frozen lemonade drink shop at 2521 French Avenue.

Morris said the P&Z "is very cognizant" that 1986 marks the beginning of "landem efforts" to solidify the city's zoning through application of the interim land use map in conjunction with the commission's overall review process.

"Sound development is our bottom line," Morris said. "In taking steps to achieve this, the interim map provides us with another important tool."

1 Hostage Released

Rioters Hold State Prison

MOUNDSVILLE, W.Va. (UPI) — Up to 200 rioting inmates who seized control of West Virginia's State Penitentiary, complaining they were "treated like dogs," released one of 13 remaining hostages early today. Officials say one convict died during the uprising.

Maj. Eddie Littell, a corrections officer, was released by the inmates between 5 a.m. and 6 a.m. EST, state police said. Authorities said Littell had minor injuries, possibly injured ribs. He was listed in satisfactory condition at Reynolds Memorial Hospital in Glen Dale.

No other details of Littell's release were available.

The inmates had released two of 15 hostages Wednesday — an unidentified woman freed almost immediately after the riot broke out in the maximum security prison's dining hall about 5:30 p.m. and a guard with high blood pressure six hours later.

About 100 police officers were "sitting back and waiting now," said Jerrie Clutter, a spokeswoman for the Northern Panhandle prison. "The situation more or less remains the same. They are supposed to be preparing a list of demands, but so far they have not been presented."

Another prison spokesman said inmate Kent Sile, a 38-year-old Putnam County man serving a life sentence for murder and kidnapping, apparently died a violent death. Sile's body was removed from the prison but details of his death were unknown, he said.

The spokesman identified one of the freed captives as Officer Michael Coleman, age late 20s, who had a history of blood pressure problems. Coleman was listed in stable condition at Reynolds Memorial Hospital.

Inmates armed with homemade weapons took control of the century-old prison in West Virginia's northern

Medical Ethics Teacher Revises Hippocratic Oath

BOSTON (UPI) — A tongue-in-cheek revision of the physician's Hippocratic Oath to bring it up to date with 20th century medical ideals contains pledges to treat the insured and guard against malpractice at all costs.

Dr. David Schiedermayer's version of the more than 2,000-year-old oath appeared in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

Schiedermayer said his parody was touched off by a discussion on the Hippocratic Oath in an ethics class he teaches at the Medical College of Wisconsin. Many medical students think the oath is irrelevant but most still believe it contains the essence of what a good doctor should be, he said.

Schiedermayer's Corporate Version of the Hippocratic Oath reads:

"I swear by Humana and the American Hospital Supply Corporation and health maintenance organizations and preferred provider organizations and all the prepayment systems and joint ventures, making them my witnesses, that I will fulfill according to my ability and judgment this oath and this covenant.

"In fear of malpractice I will guard my life and my business.

"I will not use the knife unless I am a surgeon, but I will try to learn some form of endoscopy.

"Into whatever clinics I may enter, I will come for the benefit of the insured, keeping myself far from all except capitated care for the underprivileged, especially if they are not covered by the group contract.

"Things that I may see or hear in the course of treatment or even outside treatment regarding the life of human beings — things that one should never divulge outside — I will report to government commissions or administrators, or will put in my book."

But Schiedermayer said his view of his colleagues is not quite as jaded as his Corporate Oath seems to indicate.

"Whatever we say about the profession of medicine, it has a noble ideal at its heart. I think that essential desire to help people is really there. If you read medical school applications, you realize that these people are not out to make money, but to help people.

"I think if you can nurture that, you can help improve the state of medical ethics," Schiedermayer said.

Like the Hippocratic Oath, Schiedermayer's pledge ends with the promise of a blessing upon those who live up to its terms, and a curse upon those who do not.

"If I fulfill this oath and do not violate it, may it be granted to me to enjoy life and business, and to be able to retire at the age of 50 in the Sun Belt; if I transgress it and cover falsely, may Minerva be my lot."

Thief Liberates Feminists' Idol From Kitchen

Police have few clues in the liberation of 950 Susan B. Anthony dollars from the kitchen of a south Seminole County doctor.

The coins, minted in honor of a 19th Century suffragette but discontinued, were whisked away from their kitchen hiding place along with $6,400 in cash, according to a sheriff's incident report.

Owner of the money, Dr. Stuart P. Culpepper, 58, of 57 Goldenrod Road, said the theft occurred between Dec. 19 at 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. New Year's Day.

The dollars, weighing 17½ pounds were, in 38 rolls of 25 dollars each. The cash was in $100 and $50 dollar bills.

There was no sign of forced entry to the home and no feminist group has claimed responsibility.

NATION IN BRIEF

Police Set Rose Parade Arrest Record As Rowdies Mar Beauty

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A million people jammed the route of the 97th annual Tournament of Roses Parade for an eye-filling of marching bands and dazzling floral floats that was marred by a record number of arrests and a bomb scare.

Police made a record 481 arrests — most for public drinking — during the nation's largest parade, which also rang in the New Year Wednesday for an estimated 100 million television viewers. The previous record was 350 arrests in 1981.

Police blamed warmer than normal temperatures for the unusually rowdy behavior of the crowd.

This year's theme, "A Celebration of Laughter," attracted everything from the whimsical to the mystical.

One float, "Carpet Capers," featured a toy train carrying circus animals as it careened along a high-speed roller coaster track.

Kidney Patients Halt Dialysis

BOSTON (UPI) — Increasing numbers of patients on long-term kidney dialysis are choosing to stop the treatments and die, usually because they are old or suffer other medical problems, researchers said today.

Terminating treatment "is a common mode of death" in patients receiving long-term dialysis, and will become more frequent as the population ages and refusing medical treatment becomes more accepted, they said.

While "agony and difficulty" affect all involved in halting treatment, the study in the New England Journal of Medicine found those choosing discontinuation "made deliberate decisions" after nearly three years on dialysis.

The study, the largest of its kind, was based on 1,766 kidney patients who received treatment at the center from 1966 to 1984. The doctors found 155 patients discontinued treatment, accounting for 9 percent of the deaths.

Enforcement Failure Charged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Few penalties are levied against school systems that discriminate against students and employees because the Education and Justice Departments fail to enforce civil rights laws, a congressional report says.

"Despite federal court orders requiring the enforcement of the laws and despite the mandates for enforcement inherent in the laws themselves, the administration only attempts to remedy discrimination after enormous pressures are brought to bear upon it by the courts," the report said.

The subcommittee held hearings in July and September on civil rights enforcement by the Education Department. Weiss said in a statement with the report that the Dillon County case "and others we reviewed reveal flagrant examples of how the administration has derided civil rights law enforcement."

Harry Singleton, who headed the OCR since 1981 but left the job Tuesday, called the charges "ridiculous."

Despondency Causes Gas Blast

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A despondent, middle-aged man whose family recently left him out of fear for his safety killed himself by igniting natural gas from a line in his basement, sparking an explosion that demolished three homes and damaged 40 others.

Six people in the usually quiet neighborhood were treated for minor injuries in the New Year's Day blast that leveled the wood-frame home of Donald Nickerson, 52.

Police later said Nickerson's wife, Stephanie, and their five children had been taken into protective custody Sunday night at her request because she was afraid of her husband and said he had been acting strangely. She said he had been depressed in recent days.

Two nearby homes were torn apart and Mayer said at least 30 to 40 houses in a three-block radius around Nickerson's home were damaged by the blast.

Eight Americans Killed In New Year's Eve Antarctic Crash

PUNTA ARENAS, Chile (UPI) — A small charter plane, on a New Year's Eve excursion flight, crashed into a glacier on the Antarctic Peninsula, killing eight American tourists and two crew members aboard, officials said.

The twin-engine Cessna Titan 404 crashed as the plane approached a Chilean Air Force base on the South Shetland Islands at the northern tip of the Antarctic Peninsula, officials said Wednesday.

The air force said eight Americans died, and a spokesman for the charter firm, Aeropretel, said the company's owner — who was piloting the plane — and his mechanic also were killed.

The spokesman said the probable cause of the crash was bad weather.

Winnie Mandela In Hiding

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Black activist Winnie Mandela went into hiding to plan her opposition to South Africa's racial segregation policies during the New Year, which was ushered in with 12 deaths in 24 hours of violence.

Mandela, wife of jailed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, twice arrested for defying a ban on entering Johannesburg or Soweto, was in a "safe place" contemplating her future, her lawyer said Wednesday.

Attorney Akbar Ayob said Mandela was deciding how to continue her activism in 1986, but refused to say where she was although he confirmed she was not in either of the areas barred to her.

In other developments, police reported 14 arrests in scattered incidents in some 10 black areas on New Year's Eve and New Year's Day.

Airport Attacks Prompt Crisis

ROME (UPI) — Last week's twin airport attacks in Rome and Vienna threatened a new crisis for Italy's government as Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini criticized Prime Minister Bettino Craxi for failing to implement promised anti-terrorist measures.

Spadolini, who sparked the fall of a five-party coalition government in October when he resigned to protest Craxi's handling of the Achille Lauro hijacking, made the charge in an interview published Wednesday in the news magazine Europe.

panhandle Wednesday.

The inmates initially demanded a grievance meeting with Gov. Arch Moore, but Moore was out of town when the rioting erupted and instructed officials not to negotiate until all the hostages were released.

A spokesman for Moore, John Price, reported inmate Kent Slic, a 38-year-old convicted murderer from Putnam County, died sometime Wednesday night, but said, "I don't know if it was the result of violence."

Price said the inmates' demands would probably include increased visitation rights, better living conditions and conjugal visits.

"The governor has no objection to discussing grievances with the inmates but refuses to meet with them until after all hostages are released, all inmates are returned to their cells and control of the institution is returned to the West Virginia Department of Corrections," Price said.

About 125 to 200 convicts, some with homemade weapons, rioted during the Wednesday evening meal, seized 15 hostages and took control of the maximum-security prison. The sound of breaking glass could be heard through the night and smoke occasionally wafted above the prison walls.

"They pretty much have the run of the place, right now," Warden Jerry Hedrick said Wednesday night, but added that guards had control of the prison's lookout towers.

He said the convicts had set no deadlines and made no threats. "The hostages are secure — that is they have not in any way, shape or form been hurt," prison spokeswoman Jerrie Clutter said.

"We want better living conditions, better facilities and better medical conditions," one inmate yelled out a window. "They treat us just like dogs in here. This ain't going to go on."

A man who said he was a brother-in-law of an inmate told UPI the convict wrote his sister three weeks ago warning, "There's a bunch of stuff going on up here and this place is about ready to blow up."

Hedrick said the inmates did not get weapons from the guards during the takeover — the first at the prison in a dozen years — but added, "Of course they manufacture (homemade) weapons in there."

alcohol was a factor in the single-car wreck.

Paris Crittenden died in a two-vehicle crash in Cross City, the spokesman said. No other details of the death were available, but the wreck was also alcohol-related, he said.

Connie Spahr died in an alcohol-related wreck when her car rolled over near Fort Pierce at 12:20 a.m., the spokesman said.

Francisco Lopez Garcia, 25, died in Hillsborough County when his car struck a utility pole. The patrol did not know if Lopez Garcia's death was alcohol-related, but the spokesman said he did not rule it out considering the circumstances of the single car crash.

A male pedestrian, still unidentified today, was killed Tuesday night when he was hit by a car in Callahan.

At least three other pedestrians died during the holiday, the patrol said. Linda Mary Scoles, 36, was killed in Hillsborough County. Rodney Keith Brown, 27, from Caryville, was run over as he lay in the north-bound lane of county Road 179. David E. Loveless, 55, was struck by a vehicle on state Road 45.

James Terrell Mickler and his passenger, Charles A. Greenwood, were killed near Jacksonville when their car struck a power pole, the spokesman reported. Another vehicle in Key West struck a utility pole, killing driver Antonio Pastrana, 24, and Jasmine Reyes, 29, both of Hollywood.

A head-on crash killed Gerald Denoracio in Hillsborough County at 8:27 a.m. Wednesday. Lola Jean Squier, 47, from Hudson also hit another vehicle head-on in Pasco County. Both were ruled alcohol-related.

An 18-year-old man, Glenn Carson Mangum of Bryceville, died when he misjudged a curve and struck another car on state road 115.

The holiday traffic count stretched over a 30-hour period from 6 p.m. Tuesday to midnight Wednesday.

College Students Write As They Go

By John DeMers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Each summer for the past 26 years, a few dozen carefully chosen college students have shoveled a bit of expense money into their jeans or backpacks and set off to discover the world.

The result is not only a rich scrapbook of memories and some of the best educations available anywhere but some 30,000 pages of manuscript aimed at helping others go and do likewise.

"You learn as you're doing," said Scott Campbell of Cambridge, Mass., a recent Harvard psychology graduate who spent two summers researching the Let's Go guides and put in a year as one of six editors.

"We make our own mistakes and figure out our own solutions. Plus, there's a kind of wisdom that's passed on year after year."

From a 20-page mimeographed pamphlet put out in 1960 by a nonprofit corporation called Harvard Student Agencies, the Let's Go guides have expanded to a current series of 10 fact-filled guides.

St. Martin's Press is printing nearly 500,000 copies of the volumes for 1986, retaining the works' original focus on low-cost travel but carrying out the assignment with a freshness beyond price and a surprising dash of sophistication.

In pursuit of values for the blue jean set, Let's Go researchers regularly supply background information or practical tips the splashier guidebooks overlook.

And with a hair-graying annual revision, outdated material is unlikely, even in the volatile world of travel.

According to Campbell, who spent the summers of 1983 and 1984 for Let's Go in Europe and the Middle East, the researcher's job demands equal portions of curiosity, judgment and stamina, mixed with a strong desire to share any and all discoveries with readers.

"We call the job 24 hours a day, seven days a week," he said. "Even if you're sitting at a cafe sipping a cup of coffee, you'll probably end up writing about that cafe before you go to bed."

In all this year, 40 Let's Go researchers put in a total of 198 weeks — each following closely a daily itinerary set down by his editors and working hard to stay within his $25 to $35 a day bankroll.

In every group, inevitably, there's a bit of a showoff — like the guy who camped out all summer and spent only $11 on accommodations. Such austerity is rewarded by savings that help put the student through school.

Most researchers, however, consider themselves fortunate to break even.

When it edged tentatively into publishing, Harvard Student Agencies was doing a booming business in charter flights to Europe. One of its extra services in 1960 was the pamphlet known as the "European Guide," a collection of pointers composed by the corporation's staff.

The next year, Harvard and Radcliffe students traveling in Europe collected notes and researched the first full-fledged edition of "Let's Go: Europe," a slim volume filled with budget tips, irreverent observations and a decidedly youthful slant.

IN BRIEF

Miami Police Chief Charges Old Guard Officers With News Tips

MIAMI (UPI) — Miami Police Chief Clarence Dickson struck back at critics of his leadership by announcing a crackdown on old-guard officers "degrading the department" by leaking tips to the press about the scandal-racked force.

"I will make every effort to discover those persons who seek to unjustly debate, discredit and undermine our department," Dickson said in his harshly worded New Year's message to the city's 1,500 police department employees.

The department is reeling from last week's arrests of six officers and former officers on charges ranging from drug trafficking to first-degree murder. Police say there may be more arrests in the cases.

Concerning the possibility of more arrests, he said, "When you clean house, and the dust is clearing, you find dirt where you might not expect it."

Connie Francis Hospitalized

MIAMI (UPI) — Singer Connie Francis was taken to a mental hospital at the request of police, but hospital officials declined to say today whether she is still there or what prompted the hospitalization.

Francis, 47, was taken from the Grand Bay Hotel to the Miami Mental Health Center Tuesday by fire rescue officials at the request of Miami police.

Fire rescue officials said privacy laws prevent them from discussing the circumstances, and hotel officials declined comment. Employees at the mental health center said they could not reveal whether she had been released, admitted or transferred.

She was committed to a Fort Lauderdale psychiatric hospital in 1983 by her father, George Franconero. She was transferred to another hospital in Palm Beach County for three weeks, and while there was accused of assaulting another patient, who said she barged into his room, yelled at him and hit him with her fists.

On Dec. 3, Francis was escorted off an airliner after she refused orders to stop smoking while the plane was refueled in Atlanta. She was charged with battery and criminal trespass, and released on $1,100 bond.

She is scheduled to appear Feb. 12 at the State Court in Clayton County, Ga.

Customs Appeals Search Ban

MIAMI (UPI) — U.S. Customs officials are appealing a Miami federal magistrate's ruling which may fix future searches of outbound passenger's luggage for drug-related smuggled money without a search warrant.

U.S. Magistrate Peter Nimkoff threw out as evidence money taken from the suitcases belonging to Edgar Hernandez-Salazar, a Colombian accused of violating U.S. currency law. Nimkoff ruled that a search of outbound luggage made without a search warrant was not legal.

Nimkoff's ruling is believed to be the first in the country that strikes at the ability of Customs to do warrantless baggage room searches on outbound passenger luggage. His ruling was issued last week and was disclosed Wednesday by Customs officials.

Warrantless searches were authorized by a provision of the Comprehensive Crime Control Act passed by Congress in 1984. Nimkoff struck down that part of the law "for vagueness in violation of the federal Constitution."

Miami leads the country in the amount of smuggled cash recovered in baggage room searches of outbound passenger luggage, Guinn said. Seizures exceed $3.7 million each month, he said.

Vandals Smash Vehicle Windows

Windows in ten cars were smashed and radios pried out of the vehicles at a Fern Park dealership.

According to a sheriff's report, someone broke the windows in five Porsches, four Mercedes and an Audi at Silver Star Auto Sales, 940 U.S. Highway 17-92.

The incident occurred between 5:30 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Radios were taken from seven of the cars. The value of the theft and damage was estimated at $7,000.

JEWELRY MISSING

A west Seminole County woman told a deputy someone broke a rear window in her home and stole $1,550 in jewelry.

Evelyn West, 64, reported that the theft occurred between 5:15 and 10 p.m. Tuesday.

Missing is a gold and diamond ring valued at $1,500, a $50 gold ring and a $5 pillow case.

JUST WALKING IN THE RAIN

A man who was walking down the middle of a road in the rain bolted when he saw a police officer.

According to a Winter Springs police arrest report, an officer on patrol saw a man in the middle of S. Moss Road at around 1:47 a.m. New Years Day. The officer noted it was raining when the man saw him and began to run down the road. When the officer caught up with the man and asked him where he was going, the man continued walking along the road. When the officer asked the man for identification he uttered a common two-word profanity, then asked him if he had a similarly described warrant.

The officer then told the man to stop whereupon the man reportedly said "later" and began to run. The officer grabbed him and placed him under arrest and charged him with disorderly conduct.

Arrested and charged was Jerry Wayne Bigler, 34, of 160 Lombardy Road, Winter Springs. He was released without bond New Years Day.

RETAIL THEFT

A Winter Springs woman was arrested on a charge of shoplifting after an off-duty officer said he saw her put a box of candy into her purse then leave the store without paying for it.

According to the report, the off-duty officer detained the woman outside of the store, Albertson's, at state roads 600 and 436. The incident occurred around 3:15 a.m. Wednesday.

Charged by Longwood police with retail theft was Mona Lisa Carrier, 19, of 114 Corey Lane. She was released New Years Day on $100 bond.

TRESPASSING

A Zellwood man was arrested at his wife's Sanford home after he refused to leave.

According to Sanford police arrest report, the woman ordered the man to leave and then an officer told the man to leave but he refused. The incident occurred at 1704 S. Sanford Ave. at 12:32 a.m. Wednesday.

Arrested and charged with trespassing was Normand Harold Ladd, 69, of Zellwood. He was released New Years Day on $500 bond.

OOPS

A Sanford man was arrested after he dropped a bag of marijuana when an officer approached him in a pool hall.

According to a Sanford police report, the officer entered Joe's Pool Hall, 1501 W. 13th St., around 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. As Charged with possession of marijuana was Edgar Ashley, 36, of 1416 W. 16th St. He was being held New Years Day on $500 bond.

SHOOTING COCAINE

An Altamonte Springs police officer arrested a couple on charges of possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia after he saw them acting suspiciously in a parked car.

The officer said he saw a man and a woman parked at a 7-Eleven store at State Road 436 and Grace Boulevard. He said the pair looked down for about a minute then the woman raised her head and held her eyes shut. The incident occurred around 11:35 p.m. Tuesday.

The officer then approached the car and reported seeing a syringe in the man's left arm. When the man saw the officer, he reportedly dropped the syringe onto the car floor. The officer searched the car and couple and reported finding four unused syringes in the woman's jacket.

During booking, the woman's mouth and nose began to bleed and she was released for treatment at Florida Hospital — Altamonte. The officer said he will ask the State Attorney's office to issue a warrant for her arrest.

Charged with possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia was Gerald Charles Mercer, 30, of 210 W. Ventres Ave., Maitland. He was being held New Years Day in lieu of $2,000 bond.

PULLED CLOSED KNIFE

A Cassadaga man was arrested at his son's residence after he pulled a folded pocket knife and made a threat.

According to a Sanford police report, the man got into a fight at 715 Airport Blvd., and then made the threatening gesture towards someone. The report does not state who. A witness came to the victim's aid and the man reportedly threw the closed knife over a fence. The incident occurred at 1:18 a.m. Wednesday.

Arrested and charged with aggravated assault was David Calvin Black, 45. He was being held New Years Day on $1,000 bond.

SCREAMING DISTURBANCE

A man was arrested after he refused to stop screaming while a deputy tried to figure out why he was screaming.

According to a sheriff's arrest report, the deputy arrived at a home at 783 Hillbiew Drive, Altamonte Springs. In time to see several people run out of the home yelling that their brother had beat and kicked one of them. The suspect was yelling and the deputy followed him into the kitchen where the man continued to scream and tried to call the police, the deputy reported.

When the deputy tried to calm the man, the suspect reportedly hit him in the chest. The man was subdued with the help of another officer and as he was being taken to the patrol car he reportedly hit his head on the glass in the home's front door and then kicked the patrol car door, bowing it.

Charged with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest with violence, battery on a law enforcement officer, criminal mischief and possession of a suspended driver license was Robert Lee-Roy Collins, 23, of 783 Hillview Drive, Altamonte Springs. He was being held New Years Day on $1,000 bond.

NATIONAL REPORT: Strong, gusty winds whipped up to a half foot of snow across parts of the Rockies today as warmer temperatures stopped the expansion of a huge ice jam clogging the Snake River along the Oregon-Idaho border but threatened a thaw that could cause more flooding. Fog, sleet and snow were blamed for at least seven deaths in North Carolina Wednesday, bringing the total weather-related deaths since Monday to 12. Five people were killed in icy road accidents in Utah earlier in the week. Winds that gusted to 60 mph in Wyoming Wednesday were expected to hit 60 mph in Colorado early today. Snow that could pile up to 6 inches was predicted for northwest Wyoming, where strong winds caused blowing and drifting snow. Blowing snow was also harassed travelers in parts of Washington state and Montana. Temperatures rose above freezing Wednesday along the Oregon-Idaho border for the first time since early December, halting the growth of a 40-mile Snake River ice jam that pushed its water out of its banks. But the National Weather Service warned a sudden thaw could cause new flooding by quickly melting ice in the Snake and other rivers in Idaho and Oregon. A dozen families remained homeless because of the Snake flooding, but warmer temperatures lifted spirits of area residents.

"This break in the weather is something we have all been looking for," said Bud Town of Ontario, Ore., Malheur County's emergency services director. "This is the first sunshine in three weeks and we're glad for it." No change was reported in a developing ice jam on the Muskegon River in Muskegon County, Mich., where county officials issued a flood watch. Five young people drowned early Wednesday when their car skidded on an icy patch on a fog shrouded mountain road and plunged upside down into a pond near Cashiers, N.C. The group was returning from a New Year's Party when the accident occurred.

New Farm Bill Is Only A Start

We congratulate President Reagan's signing of the omnibus farm bill, given its considerable girth.

Eleven months ago, the Reagan administration outlined a svelte 1985 farm bill that could save taxpayers some $6 billion during the next three years and made American agricultural products more competitive in world markets.

To its credit, the bill that waddled forth from Capitol Hill reduces government income and price supports to farmers for the first time since the 1930s. These changes are designed to enhance sales on the world market and reduce the huge surpluses in government warehouses. As such, the measure is being hailed as the most sweeping agricultural reform since the Great Depression.

Nevertheless, the bill perpetuates many of the extravagant agricultural subsidies that have made millions of American farmers dependent upon federal handouts.

It also falls far short of the administration's plan for phasing out price supports and limiting loans and subsidies. Such a comprehensive reform would reverse 50 years of failed federal policies that have put American agriculture on the critical list.

Farm-bill proponents contended that the troubled American agricultural industry could not withstand major changes in federal policy.

Their answer is incremental changes designed to bring U.S. farm prices gradually into line with the world prices and funnel surpluses into export markets instead of federal storehouses.

The bill calls for increased direct cash payments to farmers over and above the support they receive from government's generous loan program.

Borrowing a discredited idea from five decades ago, farmers are to be paid a bounty to slaughter or export their cows. Presumably, this crackpot scheme would reduce the enormous quantities of surplus milk, butter, and cheese that are piling up in federal storage caves each year.

To prevent a plunge in beef prices, Washington would buy 400 million pounds of beef that would be funneled into school lunch programs or in foreign food-sharing.

Taken together, these bloated farm subsidies are expected to exceed $52 billion during the next three years. If that staggering sum were equally divided among the 700,000 or so commercial farmers, they would receive approximately $25,000 each through 1988.

But, instead of going to farmers in distress, most of the money will make rich farmers even richer.

Little wonder the president wanted to phase out such farm subsidies during the next five years.

Most reasonable persons concede that federal intervention and mismanagement have made a mess of American agriculture. The thorny problem is how best to wean U.S. farmers away from federal handouts and return them to a free-market economy.

For starters, Washington should stop basing its farm policy on outdated notions of American agriculture. The New Deal programs were aimed at a homogeneous farm population that no longer exists. Today, a combination of small, part-time farmers and huge commercial operators is increasingly dependent upon world markets. Yet, thanks in no small part to a succession of flawed farm bills, American crop exports have fallen 25 percent in recent years and predictions are that wheat and corn exports could drop another 20 percent next year.

The president recognized as much last January when he prescribed a prompt return to market pricing that would resuscitate the ailing agricultural industry.

U. S. Lobbyists Active For South Africa

While South African police were rousting Winnie Mandela from her Soweto home, the white supremacist government was preparing to spend more than $2 million to influence U.S. public opinion.

Pretoria's bid to buy influence here comes as the 1986 elections approach and as the anti-apartheid movement focuses on state and local efforts. It follows attempts within South Africa to crush dissent and to sharply limit news coverage of the protests that resulted in more than 1,000 deaths in 1985.

And it marks the "cementing" of the relationship between the white minority government of South Africa and the American right wing — a connection highlighted by Rev. Jerry Falwell's earlier visit to South Africa.

"There's a price to pay for attacking South Africa," said Michael Hathaway, a veteran lobbyist who recently signed a two-year $780,000 contract to represent South Africa.

Joining Hathaway are two lobbyists who are also members of political action committees that have supported and contributed to the campaigns of such New Right war horses as Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala.

One, William Keyes, co-founder of the conservative Black PAC, traveled through North Carolina in 1984 with former football star Roosevelt Grier to support Helms' re-election. The other, Ronald Pearson, is executive director of the Conservative Victory Fund, a 13-year-old PAC that helped more than 75 conservative Republicans in the 1984 campaign.

Hathaway, Keyes and Pearson have each signed six-figure contracts with the South African government since July 1985. Keyes, who is black, heads Public Affairs Consultants Inc., which earns $360,000 a year plus $30,000 in expenses. Pearson and his firm received $180,000 in a one-year contract. Hathaway will receive $360,000 a year for the next two years.

Keyes' conservative roots go back to the 1970s, when he worked as a welfare-policy expert for the American Conservative Union.

After two years in the Reagan White House, he joined with black conservative Jay Parker, who has been on the South African payroll for four years as the $36,000-a-year representative of Venda, a tiny territory created by South Africa and recognized by no other country on earth.

Parker and Keyes' Black PAC gave $1,000 to Helms' re-election campaign and also made contributions to Rep. Robert Dornan of California, Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas and Sen. Thad Cochran of Mississippi, all Republicans.

Keyes is South Africa's liaison to black America. But there are other lobbyists on Pretoria's payroll with impressive conservative credentials: John Sears, who managed Ronald Reagan's campaign early in 1980, is the highest paid spokesman for South Africa, at $500,000 a year. Former Florida Sen. George Smathers has been lobbying for five years.

But the South African story isn't Marxism vs. democracy. It is, instead, the story of a totalitarian government's ruthless suppression of all political and human rights.

Industry's Avoiding Real Issue

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — "Suppose a meteor hit your house and killed you," says Dr. Jonathan E. Fielding. "Would the fact that nobody knew exactly how the meteor was formed or precisely where it came from make you any less dead?"

That's an analogy designed to rebut the tobacco industry's claims that cigarette smoking has not been proven to be the cause of numerous debilitating — and often fatal — afflictions whose origins have never been precisely identified.

"The mechanisms by which lung cancer, heart disease, emphysema and perinatal problems occur are unknown," insists the Tobacco Institute, the industry's leading trade association. "It is not known whether smoking has a role in the development of various diseases."

There is, however, an overwhelming amount of epidemiological evidence illustrating the link between cigarette smoking and the incidence, distribution and frequency of numerous life-threatening afflictions.

Fielding is more familiar with that data than most of his fellow physicians because, several years ago, he embarked upon a comprehensive review of all medical studies on the health effects of smoking.

That project originally was limited to the revision of a medical textbook, but Fielding's work was so impressive that it was published in two successive issues of the New England Journal of Medicine, probably the medical profession's most prestigious periodical.

In addition, the American Cancer Society soon will be reprinting and distributing 50,000 copies of the articles written by Fielding, a faculty member at the University of California at Los Angeles School of Public Health who served as Massachusetts' commissioner of public health.

After examining hundreds of scientific studies, Fielding reached these compelling conclusions:

"Cigarette smoking has been identified as the single most important source of preventable morbidity and premature mortality in each of the reports of the U.S. surgeon general produced since 1964.

"The estimated annual excess mortality from cigarette smoking... exceeds 350,000, more than the total number of American lives lost in World War I, Korea and Vietnam combined and almost as many as were lost during World War II."

Snooping By Fed Agencies Widespread

WASHINGTON — If you think Big Brother is watching you, it doesn't necessarily mean you're paranoid. One thing is certain: Federal agencies have the latest, super-sophisticated surveillance equipment, and they're using it.

What bothers civil libertarians is that federal laws regulating the use of surveillance devices and techniques are hopelessly out-of-date. State-of-the-art technology has not been matched by state-of-the-art legislation.

The result, according to a recent study by the non-partisan Office of Technology Assessment, is that millions of Americans are effectively unprotected from the abuse of their constitutional rights by overzealous — or merely curious — federal investigators. The study was conducted at the request of Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., who chairs a House subcommittee on civil liberties.

Women Of The Year

Some remarkable women made news in 1985. Their names may not be household words, but their actions put them in the headlines. Some performed extraordinary feats of bravery and endurance. Others were moved to act on principle — or risked censure to speak out. Several were exceptionally public-spirited and civic-minded.

For being both distinguished and distinctive, I nominate them for the following awards:

THERE'S-NO-PLACE-LIKE HOME AWARD to Libby Riddles, 28, first woman to win the super-grueling 1,135-mile dog-sled race held annually in Alaska. The trail, from Anchorage to Nome, winds through two mountain ranges and over the Yukon River, a distance covered by Riddles and her 13 dogs in a blizzard-filled three weeks.

TAXPAYER'S-BEST-FRIEND AWARD to Dina Raso who, as head of the privately funded Project on Military Procurement, blows the whistle on extravagant purchases by the Pentagon. She's the one who uncovered the $7,622 coffee pot on the Air Force C-5A cargo planes. Her most recent disclosure is that the new $1.5 million M-2 Bradley tank may be a lemon; its armor is too vulnerable to anti-tank rocketry. The Army plans to purchase 6,832.

STICK-TO-IT AWARD to Gwen Kemp of St. Paul who discovered an intruder in her apartment, chased him out, jumped on his car hood and clung to the windshield wipers as he tried to drive off. He abandoned the car and was arrested nearby.

CLEAN-YOUR-OWN-BACKYARD AWARD to Miriam Grayboff who sued her employer, the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, for pay discrimination. A federal judge, agreeing that she was doing the same work for less pay than two male co-workers, awarded her $26,000 in back pay. Afterward, she said: "It took me about five years to realize that I was actually a victim of discriminatory treatment by the very agency created by Congress to monitor enforcement of civil rights laws."

COOL-HEAD AWARD to Nancy Eaves, 54, of Alamogordo, N.M., who had never flown a plane before yet managed to safely land a single engine aircraft at Albuquerque after her husband collapsed and died at the controls. With coaching via radio from pilots and the control tower, she came to a bouncy but safe landing. The air controller said: "When she first came on the radio, she was excited, but not overly under the circumstances. Overall, she was outstanding."

SAVE-GRAMMA AWARD to Kimberly Brookins, 7, and her 5-year-old sister, Kelly, of Springfield, Mass., who led their partially blind 86-year-old great grandmother out of their burning house. The girls admitted they were frightened by the fire, but knew they couldn't leave grandma behind.

DICK WEST

Congress May Need Sponsors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I certainly mean to imply nothing derogatory about the intelligence of modern musicians when I note that orchestra members back in the big band era apparently were none too swift.

The latter observation is apparent to anyone who hears, as I did recently for the first time in a long time, a recording of "A-Tisket, A-Tasket."

As the vocalist makes clear early in the lyrics, the song is about a yellow basket. That color is mentioned several times.

Yet, at the end, band members ask, in unison, whether the basket is red, blue, green and assorted other hues.

It could be the musicians were too involved with their own parts of the score to pay much attention to what the soloist was singing. Or it could be they were anticipating the day when the Senate would begin broadcasting its proceedings.

A bill authorizing public radio and closed-circuit television coverage of Senate sessions has been approved by the rules committee.

Although Senate leaders say it will be next session before the measure reaches the floor, there is little doubt the committee vote has moved the Senate closer to joining the House in permitting telecasts of its proceedings.

The next question might be: when television rears its head can commercials be far behind?

We already know what happens when the cameras begin to record events. Eventually, they wind up controlling them as well. For example, football rules were changed so that times-out could be called arbitrarily to permit the requisite number of commercials.

Members of Congress, being politicians, probably are more vulnerable than most football players. They already are dependent of campaign contributions, so it would be an easy matter to replace lobbyists with sponsors.

Unfortunately, I can see and hear it all now:

As the Senate gets ready for a decisive vote on a critical issue, the presiding officer says: "We'll be back after this word from your local station."

Senate commercials may need a few designated auditors, and a musician who doesn't know green from yellow clearly would be an apt choice.

surveyed 142 federal agencies to determine which ones were using what surveillance equipment. The CIA, the National Security Agency and the Defense Intelligence Agency were excluded, for obvious reasons.

The agencies' detailed responses were not published by the Office of Technology Assessment. But Kastenmeier provided our associated Donald Goldberg with the raw responses prepared by the agencies. They disclose how many kinds of surveillance technologies the various agencies employ — and the answers are scary. For example:

— The FBI is already using or plans to use 18 of the 19 different surveillance techniques the congressional questionnaire asked about. The only snooping devices the G-men don't use are satellite-based visual surveillance systems.

As the federal government's chief investigative agency, the FBI might very well have a legitimate need for the 18 technologies. But the bureau was disturbingly secretive when the congressional evaluation team asked it to explain the use of each technology.

"Due to the sensitive nature and specific application of the equipment and techniques by the FBI, detailed information regarding the specific technology, application, user, locations etc., cannot be disseminated outside the FBI," the FBI replied.

Among the 18 different technologies being used by the G-men are: radio scanners, miniature transmitters, "pen testers" that keep track of numbers dialed on a targeted telephone, night-vision equipment, microwave interception and other devices that keep tabs on where people are, whom they're talking to and what they're doing.

— The Drug Enforcement Administration uses 11 of the 19 technologies, including a $2 million computer in El Paso, Texas, to monitor electronic mail and other communications for development of suspect "profiles."

— The Internal Revenue Service uses nine of the 19 technologies, and stated that there has been "an increasing use of electronic surveillance since 1980." From 1983 through 1985, the IRS spent nearly $3 million on electronic surveillance equipment.

Kastenmeier and others in Congress acknowledge that the use of sophisticated technologies often means the difference between making a solid case and letting a criminal walk. What concerns them is that innocent Americans are not now protected from unwarranted intrusion by federal agents.

The legal safeguards for "old-fashioned" means of communication, like first-class mail, don't exist for electronic mail or wireless telephones. Kastenmeier has introduced legislation that would keep individual protections abreast of government surveillance techniques, by requiring court approval for the new technologies' use.

Oklahoma Dream Comes True, 25-10

MIAMI (UPI) — All the important pre-game numbers favored Oklahoma. So will today's final ratings.

The second-ranked Sooners overcame some shaky quarterbacking from freshman Jamelle Holleway Wednesday night in the Orange Bowl and turned to the nation's most dominating defense en route to a 25-10 victory over No. 1 Penn State.

With third-ranked Iowa dropping a 45-28 decision to UCLA in the Rose Bowl and No. 4 Miami (Fla.) losing to Tennessee 35-7 in the Sugar Bowl, the 11-1 Sooners are virtually assured of their fifth national title when UPI's Board of Coaches releases the final ratings at 6:30 p.m. EST today.

"This is a dream come true," said Oklahoma fullback Lydell Carr, who rushed for 148 yards, including a clinching 61-yard TD dash in the final minutes. "Even if Miami had won, we would have been the nation's No. 1 team in our hearts."

"Penn State has a good, solid defense, but it's not as physical as Nebraska's or SMU's. We were very upset with our offensive performance in the first half, but the defense played great all game."

Football/Orange

The Nittany Lions, 11-1, marched 62 yards on the game's opening possession and Tim Manoa's 1-yard plunge gave Penn State a 7-0 advantage. From that point, Oklahoma's nation's-best defense yielded just 205 more yards and forced five turnovers.

"I think Oklahoma is the best team in the country," said Penn State's Joe Paterno, who ranks second to Oklahoma's Barry Switzer in winning percentage among active coaches with at least 100 victories. "They're certainly one of the best teams we've ever played. I don't know anyone who would be better."

Holleway led the Sooners in rushing this year, but he gained just one yard on 12 carries and lost a pair of fumbles against the Lions. He did almost all of his damage with one lurch of his right arm early in the second quarter. Facing a third-and-24 from the Oklahoma 29, Holleway found tight end Keith Jackson on a post pattern for a 71-yard touchdown and a 10-7 lead for the Sooners.

Tim Lashar kicked field goals of 26, 31, 21 and 22 yards and Carr detoiled the Lions completely with his scoring run down the right sideline with 1:42 left in the game.

"We had a lot of minus yards on first down," Holleway said, "because they did a lot of stunts we didn't think they would do. I wasn't nervous out there, but when I fumbled late in the half and they got a field goal, I thought the game might turn."

Holleman's fears were needless, because the Sooner defense never let up in the final three quarters. Brian Bowworth, who won the Butkus Award as the nation's premier linebacker, led the charge with 13 tackles, and Sonny Brown intercepted two John Shaffer passes, including a critical theft at the Oklahoma 1-yard line six minutes into the third period.

"We felt the key was making Penn State pass," said Switzer. "We were able to play five defensive backs a lot and we wanted them to throw because they have those big running backs that keep hammering at you."

"The talent and ability is what makes this defense great. We had a great defensive team here 10 years ago, but this unit is probably even better."

Whyte Uses More Than 6-4 Height To Befuddle Foes

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Writer

At 6-4, Teri Whyte is believed to be the tallest girl to play basketball in Seminole County history. And, in only her sophomore season, Whyte has already received a number of letters from major colleges.

Sometimes, just being that tall means you will be recruited, but Whyte is out to prove that she is more than just tall. And, after nine games this season, she is doing just that.

Whyte is averaging over 10 points and 10 rebounds per game for Lake Mary High, which has compiled a 7-2 record. Her 10.8 rebounding average leads the team and ranks third in the county behind seniors Kim Forsyth (Lyman) and Catherine Anderson (Seminole) while her scoring average of 10.8 ranks second on the team and 11th in the county.

"She has the ability and skill to be as good or better than any tall girl we've had in this area," Lake Mary coach Bill Moore said of Whyte. "The only thing that holds her back is her confidence. As she experiments and learns what she can do, she will get better and better."

Whyte's father is also 6-4 while her mother is 5-8. Ever since kindergarten Whyte said she has been taller than her peers and although it bothered her at first, it doesn't anymore.

"I've always been tall for my age," Whyte said. "It doesn't get to me anymore because I know I can't change it. It's something I have to live with."

Moore said Whyte has been an

Prep Feature

excellent addition to the team, not only because of her skill, but her personality as well.

"She's got an excellent personality," Moore said. "She's very outgoing and gets along very well with all of her peers. She's a lot of fun to have on the team."

"As a young person, sure she's given it (height) some thought. But she knows there's nothing she can do about it. And playing basketball gives her a chance to associate with other tall people."

Whyte first started playing basketball in eighth grade at Lakeview Middle School and she also played on the AAU 12 and under team, piloted by former Seminole High coach Ron Merthie, which went to the national tournament.

"She wasn't very strong at that point in time," Moore said. "But you could see she had good feet and good hands and the rest would come with time."

As a freshman at Lake Mary High, Whyte played on the junior varsity team that won the district championship under coach Bob Wagner. But Whyte missed a lot of playing time because of problems with her knees.

"It was questionable at first whether she would be able to play," Moore said. "She was given things to do by the doctors that would strengthen them. She couldn't play more than half of a

Dickey-Led Vols Jolt Hurricanes

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Tennessee's Daryl Dickey had been expected to play second fiddle to Miami's second-team All-America Vinny Testaverde in a concert of Sugar Bowl quarterbacks, but Dickey hit the sweeter notes.

The Vols fifth-year senior, never a starter until Tony Robinson ended his college career with a knee injury in the fifth game of this past season, was named the Sugar Bowl's most valuable player Wednesday night when he led No. 8 Tennessee to a 35-7 upset victory over the No. 4 Hurricanes.

Dickey, son of former Tennessee and Florida coach and present Tennessee athletic director Doug Dickey, completed 15 of 25 passes for 131 yards and one touchdown, while being sacked only once.

Testaverde, a junior who became Miami's quarterback when Bernie Kosar turned pro after last season and averaged nearly 300 yards per game while leading the Hurricanes to a 10-1 record, hit on 20 of 36 for 217 yards — but was intercepted three times, was sacked seven times for 84 yards in losses, and set up a Tennessee TD with a fumble.

"We've had some adversity on our football team, but we came together and played as one all year long," said Dickey. "I'm thrilled. This is a great moment for us."

"Tennessee did a very good job of defending us, but it was not anything that we had not prepared for," said Testaverde. "Their game plan was sound."

Ball Rolls Over Iowa

UCLA Freshman Runs For 4 TDs In Rout

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — When he was growing up in Ypsilanti, Mich., Eric Ball dreamed of playing in the Rose Bowl for the University of Michigan.

That dream ended when UCLA coach Terry Donahue won the recruiting battle with Michigan's Bo Schembechler, among others, and brought Ball to Los Angeles two years ago.

After red-shirting one year, Ball this season dreamed of playing in the Rose Bowl with UCLA. Those dreams almost ended too, when he fumbled on the 1 in a 17-13 loss to Southern California that would have cost the Bruins their chance at the Rose Bowl had not Arizona State lost to Arizona that night, making UCLA the Pac-10 champ.

Ball finally made it to the Rose Bowl Wednesday, and it was worth the wait. He rushed for 227 yards and four touchdowns to lead No. 14 UCLA to a 45-28 upset over No. 3 Iowa.

"I went out with the attitude that I wasn't going to let one man stop me," said Ball, whose two scores within 4:43 of the second quarter gave UCLA a 24-10 lead. "I had to run hard every play because it was the last game of the year."

Ball replaced injured starter Gaston Green and carried 22 times in his second four-TD game of the season. He and Freeman McNeil are the only UCLA players to have two four-TD games, and he tied the Rose Bowl TD record set by USC's Sam Cunningham against Ohio State in 1973.

"We planned to split time between Gaston Green and Eric Ball, but Gaston pulled a hamstring and just couldn't go," UCLA coach Terry Donahue said. "The great thing for us was Eric Ball was the guy who was most distraught after our last game. It hurt, but he never let it bother him. What a spectacular game he had."

"I couldn't think straight that night (of the USC game)," Ball said. "I was real down. It could have been the winner, but I fumbled and they came back and won it. It was a big relief when Arizona State lost."

"I was tired of playing in the cold, I like California," Ball said. Ball's TD runs of 40, 32, 30, and 6 yards put Iowa's national title hopes on ice. The Hawkeyes finished 10-2 and UCLA 9-2-1.

Iowa was hurt by five turnovers, including four first-half fumbles by Ronnie Harmon. Harmon, Iowa's leading career receiver, had fumbled once all year.

"It's a shock to anyone who has never fumbled before," Harmon said.

'Possessed' Morris Overruns Nebraska

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — In assessing his performance in the Fiesta Bowl, Jamie Morris said he took a cue from his brother.

That's not a bad idea, considering his brother is Joe Morris, the New York Giants' 1,000-yard rusher and Pro Bowl selection.

"He told me to run like a man possessed," Jamie Morris said of a conversation he had with his brother prior to Wednesday's game.

The sophomore running back piled up 156 yards rushing against Nebraska to lead the No. 5 Wolverines to a 27-23 victory over the Cornhuskers.

The victory was the Wolverines' sixth in a row and left them with a 10-1-1 record. Nebraska lost its second straight and finished at 9-3.

Michigan coach Bo Schembechler said he hoped going into the game that Jamie Morris would have the same kind of day Joe Morris did in a 141-yard performance against the San Francisco 49ers in the NFC wild card game on Sunday.

Football/Fiesta

"Jamie played extremely well," Schembechler said. "I chided him about his brother Joe before the game with his 140 yards in their playoff game, and I assumed he'd do the same for us."

Morris, who was named the outstanding offensive player of the game, broke off five runs of 15 yards or more to make up for a less-than-impressive performance by Wolverine quarterback Jim Harbaugh.

"We felt like we could sweep on them and get to the outside," he said.

Harbaugh did not appear to be too distraught with his day, in which he completed just 6-of-15 passes for 63 yards.

"Statistics don't mean a damn thing," said Harbaugh, the nation's top-rated passer entering the game. "The only thing that counts is taking advantage of your opportunities to win. We did not make any turnovers and did what it takes to get the ball in the end zone."

Meanwhile, the No. 6 Cornhuskers found themselves self-destructing in the third quarter. They committed three turnovers in the period, which led to 24 Michigan points and turned an 11-point halftime lead into a 13-point deficit.

"We played well for three quarters of the game, but the third quarter went badly," said Nebraska coach Tom Osborne following the game.

The Cornhuskers dropped the ball three times in their first offensive five plays of the second half, losing two that led to Michigan's first two touchdowns of the game.

New Smyrna Jetties, Canaveral Provide Bountiful Bluefish

Few anglers realize that some of the best fishing for large bluefish in the state is available to us in the Sanford area. The north jetties at New Smyrna and Port Canaveral both provide hot action with bluefish over 10 pounds each winter.

The north side of the north jetties at New Smyrna is good this time of year when there is a north or northeast wind causing waves to break into the jetties. Huge bluefish feed in the white water near the jetty rocks. Helpless baitfish are tossed around by the waves, and the bluefish wait below to take advantage of the situation.

Fishermen should leave their motors running in neutral, and toss float-diving plugs as close as possible to the jetty rocks. If you throw into the rocks, simply give some slack and let the next wave float your plug out and then reel it back in. The Sea Bee lure is particularly good for this type of fishing because it withstands the slashing attacks of the toothy fish.

It is often effective to twitch the lure on top and keep it in the white water as long as possible. The bluefish feed near the rocks and usually will not strike a plug far from the jetties. If twitching the lure on top does not produce a strike, simply reel the plug in at a moderate pace and impart action to the plug to suggest that it is a crippled baitfish.

Experienced anglers gaff these large bluefish because a landing net containing a thrashing bluefish with a mouthful of treble hooks can take a long time to sort out in three to four foot seas. A billy club is recommended for subduing a large fish before an angler attempts to extract the plug.

Fishermen who do not like to bob around in the waves would be advised to fish in the relative calm of the Port Canaveral waters. Giant bluefish up to 16 pounds are caught at Port Canaveral annually.

The best action with the large bluefish is at dawn and dusk. Mullet congregate in huge schools near the shoals and points at these times and the bluefish attack these mullet with ferocity. Big topwater plugs are deadly for the bluefish in this type of feeding frenzy.

The most successful anglers cast their lures close to the shore and work them back as fast as they can reel. The lures hop, skip and jump on their way back to the boat and this seems to infuriate the bluefish. Many times they strike the plug at boatside, snatching the nerves of the most experienced anglers. Later in the morning, the bluefish move into deeper water. During this time of day, many anglers troll through the channels and basins with tube lures and Rag Mops. These anglers are constantly on the lookout for mullet schools, and troll through these schools of mullet when they are located.

Many smaller bluefish are always active when the larger fish are not feeding. Schools of smaller bluefish can easily be located by following the flocks of diving seagulls. These birds feed upon scraps of baitfish left by the feeding bluefish.

During extremely cold weather, the bluefish move into deeper water and may be caught with jigs and spoons. Deep jigging is the preferred method for this type of fishing.

Launching facilities are available at Cape Marina and Coghill's Marina. For current fishing information and fishing supplies, give Captain Jack a call at 305 783-3694. He can tell you where to fish and what lures to use in order to enjoy a good day's fishing in the sheltered waters of Port Canaveral.

JIM'S TIP — When fishing for toothy species of fish such as bluefish, a wire leader is often a necessity. For best results, use a coffee-colored wire leader of the lightest pound test possible in order to maintain low visibility. Never use shiny swivels as

Allen Runs Away With UPI AFC Player Of Year Award

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Marcus Allen, who ran to the NFL rushing title this season, has run away with the UPI AFC Offensive Player of the Year voting.

The Los Angeles Raiders running back, who also set a record for combined running-receiving yardage, received 47 votes to easily outdistance San Diego's Lionel James, who gained five votes.

Chargers quarterback Dan Fouts had two votes while a pair of quarterbacks, Miami's Dan Marino and New York's Ken O'Brien, garnered one vote apiece in the balloting of 56 sports writers and sportscasters.

The flashy Allen, the 1981 Heisman Trophy winner from Southern Cal. ran for 1,759 yards to lead the league and caught 67 passes for 555 yards in a more active role for the AFC West champion Raiders. He carried the ball 380 times, 105 rushes more than his previous high.

Needing 84 yards to overtake Atlanta's Gerald Riggs for the rushing crown, Allen gained 123 yards on 24 carries in the NFL's last regular-season game. It was the ninth straight game the four-year pro had run for more than 100 yards — tying the record set this season by Chicago's Walter Payton.

Veck: 'Baseball Barnum' Dies

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former Chicago White Sox owner Bill Veck died early Thursday of cardiac arrest at Illinois Masonic Hospital in Chicago. He was 71. Hospital officials said Veck had been hospitalized for several days with respiratory problems.

Veck, considered the "Baseball Barnum" because of his flamboyant style for attracting fans, died at 2:55 a.m. CST, hospital officials said. No further details were released.

Born Feb. 9, 1914 at Hinsdale, Ill., a Chicago suburb, Veck landed his first baseball job working in the Chicago Cubs front office. He later brought his promotional stunts to Milwaukee, Cleveland, St. Louis and Chicago and pulled his most famous and controversial stunt in 1951 when he sent a midget to the plate to pinch hit for the St. Louis Browns in a game with the Detroit Tigers.

Veck worked as a full-time Cubs employee until 1941 when he purchased the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association, but Veck enjoyed his greatest success in Cleveland from 1946 through 1949.

Veck sold the Indians after the 1949 season and purchased the St. Louis Browns in 1951. He then acquired control of the White Sox in 1959 and guided the club to its first American League pennant since 1919.

Leafs Shut Off Montreal Power

The Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday night proved that the best way to stop an opponent's power play is to keep out of the penalty box yourself.

"We shut down their power-play, and our goalie, Tim Bernhardt, came up with the big stops," Toronto coach Dan Maloney said after his team scored a 3-2 victory over the visiting Montreal Canadiens.

The Leafs played short-handed only twice, following Maloney's advice to keep their penalties to a minimum.

"When you stay out of the penalty box, you have more chances to score," Maloney said. "This is an aspect of our game that has needed work in the past." Leading 3-1 in the third period, the Leafs blew a chance to take a 4-1 lead when Montreal goalie Patrick Roy stopped Dan Daoust on a penalty shot at 10:53. Daoust had been hauled down from behind on a breakaway by Bob Gainey.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Washington beat the New York Rangers 3-0, and Chicago downed Pittsburgh 7-4.

FAMU Names Riley New Coach

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Ken Riley, an assistant coach of the Green Bay Packers, will become the new head football coach at Florida A&M University, school officials confirmed.

Riley, a 1969 graduate of Florida A&M, will replace Rudy Hubbard, who was fired as coach in November after 12 years with the Rattlers, officials said Tuesday.

The new coach will be introduced at a news conference scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday.

Riley played 15 seasons as a defensive back with the Cincinnati Bengals, retiring after the 1983 season with a total of 65 career interceptions, an American Football Conference record and fourth in the NFL.

A native of Bartow, Riley played quarterback at FAMU, winning four letters and was voted the team's most valuable player in his senior year, 1968. He also won the team's scholastic award his last three years and was a 1969 nominee for a Rhodes Scholarship.

Lendl, McEnroe Lead Challenge

ATLANTA (UPI) — Ivan Lendl and John McEnroe head a field of eight of the world's top players who will compete in a $500,000 tennis tournament which begins Monday.

The event, known as the AT&T Challenge, offers a top prize of $150,000.

The first four days of the event will feature round-robin competition within two four-player groups.

College Hoopsters Open Real Season

Basketball

United Press International The party's over. After two months of trips to exotic places like Hawaii and Alaska, the yearly dosage of paties to pad the record and plenty of time to experiment, college basketball is ready to get down to business.

Conference play begins tonight, and with it the rivalries, the upsets, the excitement.

Second-rated Michigan is the preseason favorite in the Big Ten. The Wolverines, 12-0, return all five starters from last season's 26-4 team. They are led by one of the dominant big men in the country, Roy Tarpley, and the outstanding backcourt of Antoine Joubert and Gary Grant. The Wolverines meet No. 15 Indiana, 8-2, at Bloomington tonight.

No. 14 Illinois, 8-2, opens conference play against Minnesota. The Illini are led by Efram Winters, Scott Meents and Bruce Douglas will host Minnesota.

The Big East Conference may not be as tough as it was a year ago, when it sent three teams to the Final Four, but the conference schedule will get it ready for post-season play.

Fifth-rated Syracuse, 7-0, gets the toughest test of the ranked Big East teams. The Rafael Addison-led Orangemen play

Basketball

Boston College, which traditionally gives Jim Boheim's team fits.

Walter Berry leads eighth-rated St. John's, 12-1, opens up against Providence with new coach Rick Pitino. No. 11 Georgetown, 9-1, will try to rebound against improved Pittsburgh after its initial loss last week to No. 16 Texas-El Paso.

In a game with two teams heading in opposite directions, defending national champion Villanova, 7-6, faces up-and-coming Seton Hall, 9-4, with last season's Big East scoring champ Andre McCloud.

In the South East Conference, two of the country's premier forwards will go head-to-head when Kenny Walker lead No. 10 Kentucky, 8-1, against Auburn and Chuck Person, No. 9 Louisiana State will host Georgia.

Nevada-Las Vegas, ranked 13th, opens play in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association against Utah State, No. 16 Texas-El Paso hosts Brigham Young in its Western Athletic Conference opener.

The Atlantic Coast Conference begins play Saturday when No. 3 Duke faces against Maryland.

76ers Nab 8th Straight

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Philadelphia 76ers coach Matt Goukas was pleased after his team's eight straight victory Wednesday night — sort of. "We're in a cycle right now of playing everybody close," Sixers coach Matt Goukas said Wednesday night after Julius Erving stole a final-second inbound pass in overtime to preserve a 121-119 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers.

"We can't put things away," Goukas said. "Sure, we have won eight straight and four in a row on the road, and that's great. But I think this team can play much better in certain areas."

Maurice Cheeks' lay-in from an Erving feed with 2:04 left in the extra period gave the Sixers a 120-115 lead. Portland's Mychal Thompson cut the margin to three with a lay-in off an offensive rebound and, with 24 seconds to go, Jim Paxson's 16-foot jumper narrowed it to 120-119.

Philadelphia held the ball until Thompson fouled Clemon Johnson on an inbound play with 10 seconds left. Johnson, a former Blazer, missed both ends of the 1-and-1 and Portland called a quick timeout. Clyde Drexler was called for traveling with five seconds left and the shot he made was disallowed.

Moses Malone, another former Blazer who had a game-high 35 points, was fouled with one second left and made one of his two at the line. The Blazers called a quick timeout but Erving stole Paxson's inbound pass to ice the win. "We got the big plays again down the stretch," Goukas said. "The defense especially tightened up to make Portland take shots it didn't want in its last two positions."

The Sixers ran their record to 20-12, second place in the NBA East. The loss snapped a four-game home winning streak for Portland, which fell to 20-16.

Charles Barkley added 31 points for the 76ers. Kiki Vandeweghe led the Blazers with 30 points and Drexler added 23 for Portland.

but our execution was very poor and that is a combination that makes it difficult to come out with any chance to win."

Miami had hoped that losses by top-ranked Penn State (to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl) and No. 3 Iowa (to UCLA in the Rose Bowl) would vault it to No. 1. But although those other bowls turned out the way the Hurricanes had hoped, it was Tennessee which looked like a contender for the national title.

"I think our team deserves to be ranked very, very high," said Tennessee coach Johnny Majors. "I'm not campaigning for a national championship, but I don't think at this time any team in the country is playing any better than we are."

Miami and Testaverde were in tune in the opening minutes Wednesday night, jumping into a 7-0 lead when Testaverde threw an 18-yard TD pass to Mike Irvin.

The Hurricanes showed their confidence on the previous play when, on 4th-and-5, they faked a punt and sent Melvin Bratton on a 25-yard burst up the middle.

The Vols tied the score on the first play of the second quarter — Dickey's 5-yard TD pass to Jeff Smith, and took the lead with 3:28 left in the half when Tim McGee fell on teammate Jeff Powell's fumble in the Miami end zone.

The Vols, 8-point underdogs despite having lost only to Florida (also the only team to beat Miami during the regular season) and winning the Southeastern Conference championship for the first time since 1969, also scored twice in a two-minute span of the third quarter — Sam Henderson going over from the 1 and Powell erupting on a 60-yard TD jaunt on the Vols' next offensive play.

Tennessee's final tally was set up by Chris White, who made the third of the Vols' four interceptions and returned the ball 68 yards to the Miami 5; Charles Wilson scoring from the 63 three plays later.

"We certainly are disappointed," said Miami coach Jimmy Johnson. "It's a tough loss to take. But Tennessee had a great game plan and took a lot of things away from us. I said all along that when we are playing our style of game, we can compete with anyone in the country. But not tonight."

Sooners' Defense Shows Way To No. 1

MIAMI (UPI) — Just like the last time they won the national championship 10 years ago, the Oklahoma Sooners did it with defense Wednesday night in the Orange Bowl.

Oklahoma defeated top-ranked Penn State 26-10 and will be crowned the national champion when the UPI coaches poll is completed later today.

"It comes down to great defensive play," said Sooner Coach Barry Switzer who wore a towel around his neck as he discussed the victory outside the Oklahoma locker room.

"The offense did some things, but the defense was the key," Switzer said. "Ten years ago we won the national championship and I thought we had a great defense. But I think this is the greatest defense I've had."

Penn State was limited to just 267 yards total offense and the Nittany Lions turned the ball over five times. Penn State had gone into the game ranked third in the nation in turnover differential with plus 17.

"We felt the key would be to force them to pass and we were able to play five defensive backs a lot tonight," Switzer added.

The No. 2 Sooners had begun the night ranked in the top two in all four major NCAA categories during a 10-1 regular season.

The Sooners used the punishing inside running of fullback Lydell Carr — who clinched the game in the fourth quarter with a 61-yard touchdown run — and a 71-yard pass in the first half from freshman Jamelle Holloway to tight end Keith Jackson.

"This is a dream come true," said Carr, who ranked second to Holloway in rushing yardage during the regular season. "Even if Miami (Fla.) would have beaten Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl, we would have been the No. 1 team in our hearts."

"Our offense was frustrated with our first-half performance, but our defense was tremendous for the whole game. We guys on offense felt we weren't carrying our share of the load but we got things going in the second half," Carr said.

"We knew the fullback plays up the middle would work because they wanted to stop Jamelle ... they had to stop Jamelle," Carr said. "Penn State had a good, solid defense, but not as physical as Nebraska and SMU." Holloway found Jackson on a deep post pattern with the Sooners facing a third-and-24 early in the second period.

"We caught them in a blitz and I saw Keith open downfield. He simply blew past their coverage."

Jackson said, "They were in a man-to-man defense, and by the time the safety saw me I was by him and he couldn't catch up."

"Our defense was playing extremely well and Coach Switzer was telling me to be patient," said Holloway, who gained just one yard in 12 rushing attempts and fumbled twice.

"Jamelle learned some humility tonight, but he made some big plays," Switzer said.

Switzer improved his record as Sooner head coach to 126-34-4, tying him with Bud Wilkinson. He said he thought about it going into the game.

"I knew by golly that fate had something to do with it."

"We beat the second-best team in the nation tonight," said Switzer. "No way the national championship ever comes easy and it didn't tonight."

bluefish and Spanish mackerel will mistake them for baitfish and strike the swivels, causing the fishermen to lose his rig and possibly a fish that he is fighting.

FISHING FORECAST — Due to the recent fall moon and cold weather, fishing has been slow. Heavy cold weather is predicted for later in the week.

Dell Abernathy of the Ocean Bridge Fish Camp reports that bass fishing is slow. Speckled perch are the best bet for fishing action and Lake Manatee is the place to go. Robert Kunkler and his daughter Diane caught 21 specks on Missouri minnows.

Ron Collins of the Hialeah Park Fish Camp said that fishing was also slow. A few large bass are being caught on wild shiners while fishing near the cover of Lake Woodruff and in the St. Johns River.

Shark fishing is at a standstill at the Sebastian Inlet. Bluefish and large flounder are providing most of the action.

Captain Jack of Port Canaveral reports that offshore action is decent when the seas are not too rough. Sailfish, wahoo and dolphin have been caught at 100 feet. Bluefish and flounder are biting inside the port. Trout and redfish are working the swarms of the deeper water in the Banana and Indian rivers. The hot water discharges from the power plants in the Indian River will provide fast and furious action during the cold snaps.

Port Canaveral will provide fantastic action with sailfish for the next few months. Look for the sails due east in 120 feet of water.

Large bluefish and bluefish are hitting at the New Smyrna jetties. Look for trout and redfish at El Dero and the Blue Hole at Oak Hill. Shrimping has been very slow due to the cold weather.

Aggies Stack Up Auburn

DALLAS (UPI) — For much of its 50-year history, the Cotton Bowl has been known as a passer's paradise and a runner's nightmare.

Texas A&M sophomore quarterback Kevin Murray and Auburn's Heisman Trophy-winning tailback Bo Jackson added to that tradition Wednesday.

Murray threw for a Cotton Bowl record 292 yards while Jackson was stopped time and again in critical situations when the game was still in doubt.

Those ingredients combined to serve up a 36-16 victory for Texas A&M in a game that was far closer than the result showed.

Over the years, such well-known ballcarriers as Earl Campbell and Eric Dickerson have struggled in the Cotton Bowl. The game has played host to such famous throwers as Ken Stabler, Roger Staubach, Bobby Layne, Joe Theismann, Joe Montana, Dan Marino and last year's Heisman Trophy winner, Doug Flutie.

No member of that famous passing group, however, threw for more Cotton Bowl yards than Murray did Wednesday.

His long-range aerials rallied the Southwest Conference champions twice in the first half. Then, after Jackson was thwarted in his bid to give the Tigers the lead, Murray guided the Aggies to the game-clinching touchdown.

"This has been the most fun I've ever had in my life," said Murray, who completed 18-of-26 passes. "We set our goals so high at the start of the season, and we made them."

Jackson, meanwhile, gained 129 yards in 31 carries and surprisingly was named the game's most valuable offensive player.

But when Auburn had a chance to take the lead early in the fourth quarter, Jackson was stopped on three successive carries from the A&M 2-yard line. Moments later, he was stopped again on 4th-and-2 from the A&M 27.

"The crowd noise got louder and louder, and we kept stopping him," said A&M sophomore nose tackle Sammy O'Brient. "We expected Bo would run the ball, and we were ready for him."

Until the final stop of Jackson, the game's momentum had swung back and forth, just the way it should in a good bowl matchup.

Auburn jumped on an early A&M turnover, and Jackson scored on a 5-yard run. By the end of the first quarter the Aggies had moved in front, 12-7, on runs of 11 yards by Harry Johnson and 22 yards by Keith Woodside.

The longest play of the day, a 73-yard screen pass from Pat Washington to Jackson, put Auburn back in the lead. But a field goal (the first of his career) by Scott Slater gave the Aggies a 15-13 halftime advantage.

The Aggies padded their lead to 21-13 in the third quarter on a 21-yard run by Anthony Toney, but a field goal of 26 yards by Chris Johnson brought the Tigers within five.

quarter and two quarters a game at a time. She probably only played half the time she would have played otherwise."

Whyte said, although her knees occasionally still give her trouble, she has a weight training program that is helping her considerably.

After playing outstanding ball in the AAU 14 and under tournament this past summer, where she was selected to the all-state team, Moore thought Whyte was ready to move up to varsity as a sophomore.

"She played really well in the AAU tournament," Moore said. "I knew she could handle playing varsity. And she keeps working hard to be more than just a tall basketball player. She's working to be a complete player and making excellent progress."

Whyte said she wasn't sure about playing varsity at first, but she fit right in after she got a few games under her belt.

"I had a feeling I would go up to varsity," Whyte said. "I didn't think I was ready at first, but after a couple games, I started to feel good. I wanted to show my teammates I could be on varsity, not just because of my height, but because I could really do something to help the team."

Whyte said her goals for her sophomore year are to average 15 points and 15 rebounds per game. And she would also like to help the team to post-season success.

"I think we're as good or better than the other teams in the county," Whyte said. "Our goal is to go to state and, the way we've been playing, I think we can do it."

Since she is only a sophomore, there is a chance Whyte will get taller by the time she's a senior but she said she might grow another inch at the most. Although she may not grow much more, Moore believes Whyte has the potential to develop into a great player.

"There's nothing standing in her way," Moore said. "She's going to get stronger in the shoulders and arms and hands. And that's something she'll need to play college ball. She's working hard on her shooting and the form on her shot is improving. She's as consistent around the basket as any tall girl I've seen."

Moore said Whyte has already received letters from a dozen or so colleges and one college is so interested that it is keeping track of Whyte's progress weekly.

"She's taken it in a very mature-like way," Moore said of the college letters. "She's looking at the letters and responding to the questionnaires."

Despite her handling of the attention, the interest came as a surprise. "I was shocked when I got the first letter from one of the colleges," Whyte said. "I'm only a sophomore and didn't expect it this soon. I've thought about it, though, and hopefully I'll get a scholarship. I saw some college teams play and they have a whole bunch of 6-3 or 6-4 girls."

Which would mean a return to normalcy for the Sanford resident. "I would just be average height for a college center. That would be the first time I was average height."

Before she goes to college, though, Whyte may also have a shot at trying out for the 1988 Olympics. The Olympic trials will be held right around the time Whyte graduates from Lake Mary High.

"We've talked about the possibility of her one day being in the Olympics," Moore said. "It's an extraordinary thing to think about, but that chance is there. Teri has the potential to be a real superstar. It's just a matter of her continuing to work as she has been and keeping the attitude she has now."

One more thing Whyte could accomplish before her prep career is over is dunking the basketball. Both Moore and Whyte believe it is possible.

"She has to get her knees stronger and work on jumping but I think she could do it," Moore said.

"By my senior year I'd like to be able to dunk it," Whyte said.

"My knees should be strong enough by then. That would be something for a high school girl to be able to dunk."

Even at 6-4.

Greedy Guests Treat Holiday Buffet As Barnyard Banquet

DEAR ABBY: I have had it! For the last six years my husband and I have had a cocktail party on Christmas Day for our neighbors and close friends. We have an open bar and a beautiful buffet, which is quite expensive.

Here's my problem: One couple (man and wife) arrive early and gorge themselves at the buffet table. They eat so much and so fast, little is left for the other guests. Honestly, Abby, between them they polish off over half of a special meat dish that most guests have complimented me on. After they have sated themselves, the husband concentrates on our liquor.

The other guests have noticed how piggy they are, and my husband said he has had these pigs at our parties for the last time. But how can we avoid having them? They are very close neighbors, and it would be awkward to exclude them.

If we don't invite them, they are brassy enough to come uninvited when they see all the neighbors going into our house. Any suggestions?

ANGUIISHED IN ARIZONA

DEAR ANGUIISHED: Inviting people you do not want in order to "avoid awkwardness" is a cop-out. Do not invite them. And if they come anyway and proceed to attack your buffet, slide up to them, and whisper with a wink and a smile, "Whoa! Save a little for someone else!" Or be prepared to spend a little more to feed the pigs.

DEAR ABBY: I read with a great deal of amusement the letter from "Bill Wadley, Kimberling City, Mo." wherein he referred to bachelors as "two-legged jackasses." He also asked, "What do bachelors do besides avoid marriage and responsibility?" May I tell him? For one thing, they bear more than their fair share of the tax burden. Although bachelors have no children, they're heavily taxed to educate the children of married men. And their tax dollars go to support families who are on welfare.

Tell Mr. Wadley if I ever want to meet a genuine two-legged jackass, I'll head for Missouri.

FROUD BACHELOR

DEAR BACHELOR: And let's not forget that bachelorhood has its privileges. In time of war, they get to go first.

DEAR READERS: Sign seen in the stockroom of a New York department store: "Please pick up after yourselves. Your mother doesn't work here."

Need A Kitchen Challenge? Try Serving Deem Sum

By John M. Leighty
UPI Feature Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The myriad tastes of Deem Sum, a form of Chinese cooking going back to the Sung Dynasty seven centuries ago, can now be sampled at home — without making a "to go" order from the local restaurant. However, preparing Gal nup fun gwor (chicken crescents) and other bite-size delicacies in the home kitchen will take some planning and special shopping for unusual ingredients and wrappings. Deem Sum, which literally means "heart's delight" are small delicacies esteemed for their savory fillings and light, airy wrappings and coatings. Depending on the ingredients, the taste treats can be steamed, baked, roasted, deep-fried or pan-fried.

"A person who loves to cook will find this to be a real challenge," says Henry Chan, whose Yank Sing Restaurant in San Francisco uses the cooking method exclusively and who has co-authored an authoritative book on the subject, "Classic Deem Sum." (Holt, Rinehart, Winston, $17.95).

The book offers 32 of Yank Sing's favorite recipes and includes line drawings on how to wrap the tidbits. They are traditionally sold in teahouses from a rolling cart to diners who pay the check after counting the numbers of empty dishes on the table.

Chan said he was reluctant to do a book on the difficult cooking form until he was persuaded it could be done correctly by veteran cookbook writers Yukiko and Bob Haydock of Mill Valley, Calif., the co-authors.

"I've tried to make it a real Deem Sum book, one that is true to life," said Chan. "One of the difficulties was to make it applicable and practical for home cooking. More than half the work is preparation — chopping, dicing and wrapping."

The Poughkeepsie Bridge spans the Hudson River, about 70 miles north of New York City. The railway bridge was hailed when it was built in 1888. Now it's an idle landmark. The obsolete bridge can be kept as a historic curiosity, restored for some commercial purpose, or torn down. In any case, it seems to be a unique liability.

Historic Span Is Poughkeepsie Bridge Doomed?

By Tom Tiede
POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (NEA) — When the Poughkeepsie railway bridge was built across the Hudson River in 1888, it was hailed as an economic as well as an engineering marvel. The 6,767-foot behemoth was the first direct link between Pennsylvania's coal fields and the energy hungry industries of New England.

and, as a result, the Poughkeepsie Bridge diminished in importance. The owner of the bridge then was the Central New England Railway. But the structure was soon sold to the New York, New Haven and Hartford system. The bridge was later peddled again to the Penn Central Railroad, and it was eventually acquired by Conrail, the federally administered operation.

but it's very weak beneath the surface. I guess the bridge is mostly supported by its suspension now. That's not the way it was designed, and I don't know how long it can stay up like that.

But what was marvelous in the last century has become something else in the present. The Poughkeepsie Bridge has been largely abandoned by time and circumstances. The market patterns have shifted, the energy requirements have changed, and the railway route across the Hudson River is no longer required.

The last change was the most fateful. Conrail managers did not like the rail route over the lower Hudson. They decided it would be easier and more efficient to send New England freight by way of Albany, N.Y., to the north; so the Conrail corporation closed the Poughkeepsie span completely in 1974.

At the least, Alfano hopes the bridge can stay up until a solution to the dilemma is adopted. And that means one of the alternatives mentioned before. Some people in Poughkeepsie want the bridge to be torn down immediately, while others insist that it should be refurbished and put back in commission.

Thus the bridge is idle today. And, worse, it is disintegrating in neglect. The structure still runs in fine majesty across the water here, like a steel web stretched by the wind, but the rails are rusted, the road ties are warped, and weeds of disregard are growing out of its stone foundation.

The bridge has not been used since. Neither has it been maintained to any appreciable extent. The steel latticework has not been painted, the security fences have not been kept in order, and the historic tracks have been allowed to meander on their blocks as if they are trying to break free.

Preservationists are pushing for the latter plan. They say that demolition is out of the question. They point out that the bridge, constructed two years after the Statue of Liberty, is now in the National Register of Historic Places, hence it deserves to stand and to serve indefinitely.

Some people say Poughkeepsie Bridge is now falling down. And no one knows what to do about it. That is to say, no one knows what to do for certain. The options are well known but very debatable. The bridge can be restored for some commercial purpose, or it can be torn apart entirely. In either case, the only marvel left in Poughkeepsie, an industrial river port of about 30,000 people, is that the 100-year-old span has become a unique liability.

Sometimes they do break free, Poughkeepsie residents say debris is always falling from the bridge. One resident, Howard Leroy, says something dropped right through his automobile window in 1983.

The trouble is the group does not seem to be in a hurry. The word is it may take 10 years to raise restoration funds. Charles Alfano, for one, says the bridge may not last that long. The suspension could hold, he says, the structure might somehow hang together, but what if there were an accident? "There are large barges on the river," Alfano explains. "They come up and down at all hours of the day and night. I worry that sooner or later one of the barges is going to lose its course in bad weather. If it hits the bridge, well, I think gravity would take over from there."

The liability began, at least chronologically, when the coal trade to the Northeast fell into decline following World War II. The major factories from Rhode Island to Maine started changing to cleaner fuel oils at the time.

"It gave me a real shock," he recalls. "If it had landed on the driver's side I would have been killed."

Leroy believes the bridge is falling down. And Charles Alfano is one of many others who agrees with him. Alfano lives near the bridge, he also works for the New York Bridge Authority, and he notes solemnly that he is more concerned with the structure's foundation than he is with the falling objects.

Diabetes Can Cause Nerve Complications

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am a diabetic and keep my blood sugar under reasonably good control. Nevertheless, I have developed extreme pains in my feet. My doctor says this is diabetic neuropathy and nothing can be done. Can you help me?

DEAR READER — Nerve complications of diabetes constitute one of the most troublesome aspects of the disease. Doctors know basically what causes the neuropathy of diabetes, but they have thus far been unsuccessful in finding a consistent cure. You, and the many other readers who have questioned me on this subject, will be encouraged to know that recent advances show great promise.

Diabetic neuropathy is now thought to be due to metabolic degeneration of the nerves, beginning in the actual bodies of the cells. When glucose enters a nerve cell, it is converted by a series of chemical reactions to sorbitol, then to fructose. This sequence of events involves the enzyme known as aldose reductase. If too much glucose is present — as in diabetes — there may not be enough aldose reductase to enable the normal reaction to proceed. Nerve swelling and irritation may result from a buildup of sorbitol; finally, the nerve may cease to function normally.

This nerve malfunction has been found to occur in up to 50 percent of patients who have had diabetes for more than 20 years. The damage may affect both the somatic and autonomic nerve systems.

When the somatic nerves are involved, typical neuropathy results. Patients experience pain, tingling, numbness, weakness and muscle wasting. If the autonomic system is impaired, patients will suffer a whole different set of disturbances. These include: gastric distention, diarrhea, constipation, impotence, urinary retention (because of bladder distention) and uncontrollable low blood pressure.

Traditionally, physicians have advocated control of blood sugar to help neuropathy. This makes sense because, as I noted above, less glucose means less nerve swelling (and relatively more aldose reductase). Weight loss, attention to diet and the use of insulin or oral antidiabetic agents often help reduce the severity of neuropathy. However, good sugar control is not always effective. Many diabetics with painful nerve conditions require analgesics, including narcotics, the side effects of which are unacceptable. Some diabetics respond to anticonvulsant drugs, like phenytoin and carbamazepine. However, beneficial results are inconsistent.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio 44101.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

In today's deal South could easily make slam in either minor. If North's queen of spades could be changed to the king, Declarer would win the opening lead, draw trumps, play out all his diamonds, cash dummy's other high spade and then lead a heart from dummy. He would insert the nine and West would be end played.

With the actual hand and actual bidding, South knows where the spade king is. (East's lead-directing double of three spades was the tip-off.) It's therefore obvious to declarer that a spade finesse will fail. But even without the double, declarer, in a five-club contract, should go right up with the spade ace. Why?

Opponents' clubs will divide 3-2 almost 70 percent of the time. So declarer can draw trumps after winning the spade ace, play out enough diamonds to strip that suit from the East-West hands, and then exit with a spade. The play can now proceed as described in the first paragraph. If East has won the spade king and leads a heart, declarer simply inserts the nine.

Why was it wrong to try the spade finesse? If East wins the king and plays a heart back (the obvious play), declarer will no longer be in control and will need the heart king outside. In that scenario West would be able to win the heart jack and get off lead with any other suit, eventually setting the five-club contract.

How did the contract get so high when three no-trump is a laydown? That's what often happens with 32 combined high-card points.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY JANUARY 3, 1986

You will be luckier than usual in the year ahead where your material interests are concerned, but the stars also warn you not to be wasteful or extravagant.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Involvements that have possibilities for personal gains will be the ones likely to be luckiest for you today. Think financial growth. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something important might start off in an unfavorable manner today. But this condition will dissipate and be replaced by luck. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Lady Luck will be in your corner today at the times you need her most, but this does not mean you should tempt fate with reckless actions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It could prove unwise today to alter an arrangement you made with another once the conditions are established. Proceed in accordance with your agreement.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be alert in career matters today so that you will be able to capitalize on mistakes made by your competition. Move swiftly when you spot an advantage.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will fare better in the long run today if you don't take yourself or your involvements too seriously. Try to think of life as a game.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you try to put yourself in the other guy's shoes today, mutual benefits will be derived in your personal relationships. Fairness stimulates a like response. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) For your plans to be effective today, they must not be implemented in a piecemeal fashion. Keep the big picture before you at all times.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) For today, your best possibilities for financial accumulation will be through your normal channels. Don't gamble on the unknown.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Something advantageous is stirring for you at this time, but even if it breaks today, don't broadcast what occurs to others. They'll know soon enough.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be sure to express your gratitude to anyone who goes out of his way to assist you today. Acknowledgment is essential.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to be stingy when dealing with friends today, but by the same token, make sure that your out-of-pocket cost is not greater than theirs.
