Prices for beef and veal jumped 4.7 percent, which was small when compared with a 12.2 percent surge in vegetable prices and a 9.2 percent increase in the wholesale cost of fresh fruits. Fish

Part of the steep food price gains were attributed to bad winter weather in some sections of the country.

Some government officials have said President Carter cannot afford to rely solely on his voluntary wage-price guidelines to There has been some discussion in recent weeks that some additional actions are required, possibily including a further relaxation of meat import quotas. The gloomy inflation news of the past months also is having an adverse effect on pending wage negotiations between the trucking industry and the influential Teamsters Union.

Orienta Gets First Dose Of Life-Saving White Amur

Thousands of white amur, the weed-gobbling fish native to Russia, were dumped into Lake Orienta in Altamonte Springs Wednesday, as a first step in saving that dying lake.

The state Department of Natural Resources (DNR), using $200,000 granted by the state for a research program involving three Orange County lakes and the Seminole County lake, placed 2,322 white amur, ranging in size from 11/2-to-21/2 pounds in the 129-acre Altamonte Springs lake. Pistachio Nuts Imperiled

By United Press International The gas pump isn't the only place reflecting the pain of high price and privation as the result of all that turmoil in Iran. People whose souls cry out for pistachio nuts and Persian beluga caviar are suffering, too. Iran is the primary exporter of both those delicacies and, as it was with oil, supplies have dwindled sharply since revolutionary forces deposed the shah and shut the country down.

Amin Operating Army

NAIROBI, Kany (UPI) — Ugandan President Idi Amin has assumed full operational control of his battered army to repulse a renewed Tanzanian offensive closing in on the capital of Kampala.

Uganda's Defense Council, the country's highest policymaking body, announced its full confidence in Amin's leadership and named him chief of staff of the armed forces, in effect giving him day-to-day control of running

Cocaine Carriers Freed

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI) — Two men who said they were hoodwinked into carrying seven suitcases of pure cocaine, worth $65 million, into the Bahamas were acquitted on smuggling charges by a Bahamas Supreme Court jury Wednesday. Randolph Bullock, 37, of Boulder Creek, Calif., and Saniel Montoya, 31, of Colombia, had been convicted last year, but the verdict was set aside on appeal and a new trial ordered.

The two testified they were hired to fly a place from Colombia to Miami by an unidentified Colombian politician and only found that the suitcases they carried were filled with 446 nounds of sections and the suitcases they carried were filled with 446 pounds of cocaine when they made a stop on Staniel Cay, Eruma Islands, Aug. 22. Let's Not Spurn Russia

It is well that Michael Blumenthal has carried on with his trade visit to China and that the Senate has ratified the appointment of Leonard Woodcock to be our ambassador to China.

But the Chinese invasion of Vietnam makes it inperative that we keep our relationship with the Chinese from becoming too close. There are two reasons for keeping our distance from Peking at

First, the Chinese invasion of Vietnam is a militaristic act of aggression which we cannot

It is a violation of the charter of the United Nations. It was undertaken, apparently, for the primary purpose of "teaching the Vietnamese a esson;" that is, to save Chinese face for having to stand by and watch the Vietnamese invade Cambodia and overthrow a government friendly to Saving face is not a legitmate casus belli. Defending one's pride is not really self-defense. We must condemn the Chinese invasion of Vietnam as the act of a totalitarian power that is practicing the very type of hegemony for which it has condemned the Soviet Union.

Second, our relationship with Russia is far more important to the peace of the world and to our own security than is our relationship with China.

The Russians have a strategic nuclear striking force to match our own, and they have the technology and industrial base to engage us in an arms race that could wreck our economy.

The Chinese have no such power and are not likely to have it in this century. We cannot in our own self-interest become so cozy with China that we forget about the need to keep open our lines of communication with Under no circumstances should we allow the Russians to get the impression that we have encouraged the Chinese to invade Vietnam. Our ambassador to the United Nations, Andrew Young, must make this point again and again during any Security Council debates on the

The move to recognize China as of Jan. 1 was sound and realistic.

But it would seem prudent in the light of the subsequent action of China for us to stand back now and keep Peking at arm's length for the time being.

Of Interest

The Treasury Department is taking a new look at regulations dimiting the amount of interest that banks and savings and loan secciations can pay on deposits.

And a likely beneficiary of changes under study would be the small depositor, who is now cut off from the higher interest rates that attract wealthier investors.

The stultifying weight of government regulation keeping interest rates down for the small saver is surely the main reason memo has been superseded, but justified it on associations. the rate of saving is so low in this country, less than 5 percent of the grounds that "quite a few of the auditors had The modern business association seeks personal income. Giving the small saver access to the higher interest now enjoyed only by large depositors is an objective that should be pursued with greater urgency than has yet been shown, either by the savings industry or the Congress.

Do you know what it costs you to put gasoline n your car for a year?
Uncle Sam has figured it out for you — and the answer may surprise you, and impel you to try to save some money on your gasoline bill.

If you drive a 1979 model, get 20 miles to a gallon of gas, pay 80 cents a gallon and put 15,000 miles on your car during the year, you'll pay $600 or gas alone. If you pay 60 cents a gallon and get 30 miles per gallon, you'll pay $300 in a year, but if you pay 70 cents a gallon and get only 14 miles per gallon, you'll pay $750. The figures come from the Environmental rotection Agency's "Gas Mileage Guide" for 1979 cars. The 28-page guide tells you the estimated mileage on all cars, station wagons and light trucks sold in the U.S. And this year 'estimated" means city mileage, making the estimates more realistic.

You can't do much about the price you pay for gas, except by shopping around. But you can do something about your mileage, which is enormously affected by the size of your car, number of its cylinders, its transmission (manual or automatic), air-conditioning use (or abuse), and your mileage. Temperatures for one: summer provides better fuel economy than winter. "At 29 degrees F. there can be an 8 percent fuel economy loss," the guide says. Voyager's Surprise Bonus

Ring Of Debris Found Around Jupiter

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) In a surprising bonus from its journey of discovery, Voyager 1 has discovered a ring of rock debris around the planet

The finding announced Wednesday promises to help scientists better understand the makeup of the solar system and may add new clues to the details of its origin.

Jupiter now becomes the third planet known to have a ring. Saturn's spectacular rings of ice or frosty rock were discovered by Galileo in 1610 and Uranus's five lumpy rings were sighted two years ago from a space agency airplane. Voyager 1, working smoothly as it cruises away from Jupite and its 13 known moons, is scheduled to rendezvous with the other day, I asked him who he thinks comes closest to him for showing the most hustle and aggressiveness and he picked Dave That wasn't a bad call, but he should check out Glenn Hubbard a their first pre-season game used mostly minor leaguers and Atlanta's little pepperpot is like someone who has just been told second-stringers and scored all their runs in the first four in-

Rose hasn't seen too much of Hubbard and neither have too mahy others in the National League because the righthanded second baseman played in only 44 games for the Braves after they called him up last July from Richmond, where he was hitting .336. If you're around the Braves' stocky 21-year-old for any length of time, you can't help noticing some of his resemblance to Rose. He's not only built like him, he runs like him and talks like him. And Hubbard admires Pete Rose. "I like the way he plays," he says. "I like his style, his consistency, his hustle and his aggressiveness. When we played the Bid Owners Reds last year and I met him for the first time, I had my picture taken with him and he signed a ball for me." ast two years, while playing in the minors, Hubbard had a picture in his locker of Rose diving into third base. Every time he looked at the picture, it sort of inspired him.

"I kalt it imiti I got hare," he says, a little self-conscio Hubbard was with the Braves when they stopped Rose's consecutive-game hitting streak, although he was on the disabled list with a knee injury at the time. "I really wanted him to break the record," Hubbard admits,

"but not against us. I wanted him to keep going. If anyone stopped hirt, though, I wanted it to be us." Starting slowly with the Braves last July, Hubbard began coming on toward the end and wound up hitting .258 with 42 hits in 163 times up. He connected for his first majorleague homer off Manny Sarmiento of the Reds on Sept. 23, and nicked Tom Seaver for his second one eight days later, so Rose saw both his homers. Hubbard is a much better fielder than Rose was when he first came up with the Reds, also as a second baseman, in 1963. 'I think he'll be the outstanding second baseman in the league,' says Braves' Manager Bobby Cox. "Nobody turns the double play better than he does right now. He'll hit, too.' Born at Hann Air Force Base in Germany where his father was stationed in 1957. Hubbard came to this country two years later and was drafted by Atlanta in the 20th round after he graduated high school in Ogden, Utah. The Braves' brochure lists him as 5-feet-9, but he's closer to 5-7.

Hubbard weighs 168 pounds and feels the reason he was drafted so low was because he is so short. He has shown he can hit minorleague pitching with averages of .317 and .385 at Greenwood in 1975 and 1977 and .336 at Richmond over the first half of last What Hubbard would like to do most is play in the majors 1 years and the best way he knows of doing that is by showing the drid of consistency Pete Rose has shown in his career. One of the big differences between Rose and Hubbard now are their salaries. Rose is drawing slightly more than $800,000 this season and Hubbard is getting slightly more than the $21,000

But Hubbard isn't worried too much about that. Look, Hubbie, go out and have a good year for us and I'll tear p your contract and give you a new one," Bill Lucas, the Braves' ide president and director of player personnel, told the curlya red infielder when he signed his last contract.
That's nice of you, but it isn't necessary," Hubbard answered. 'I was telling my wife the other day, I don't play this game for money, I play it for fun because I love it. The club has been very fair to me. I'm sure I'll make my money as I go along."

Pete Rose had the exact same attitude when he first came up. He still has, he insists. He also says, however, he needs money to pay his bills, so nobody can blame him for trying to make as much as he can as he goes along.

physically," notes Fran Tarkenton, one of the oldest regular performers. "Sixteen games is too much." Too much for what? L. don't think it made a bit of difference because the total games played was no different - exhibition games were cut from six to the four, leaving the same old 20 contests. The players actually were less worried about being worn out than being compensated extra for the two additional regular games. Final injury tabulations haven't been made, but I suspect they won't vary from previous"

Q. In baseball, what does the term designated hitter mean? -Rich Fisher, Roseburg, Ore.

I thought everybody was already settled into this. Several years the first inning off Angel starter ago - 1973 to be exact - the American League instituted the removal of the pitcher from the regular batting lineup. It replaced him with a man designated to take his turn at bat and remain in Randy Jones earned the win. the dugout when his team took the field. for it. - Adrain Bodnar, New Britain, Conn. Pole vaulters wear regular track spikes, with nothing on the back of the heel. High jumpers, however, use longer spikes for planting their feet, on the heel of their shoe, most of the time on the left foot. That's their general take-off foot. For the Fosbury Flop, I am told, most high jumpers wear regular track shoes.

DOES THE EVENING HERALD COVER LITTLE LEAGUE???

LITTLE LEAGUE DASEDALL

Little League baseball is everyone's favorite season, including us here at the Evening Herald.

It's more than the All-American thing to do, it's a pacesetter for the youth of our community in their formative years.

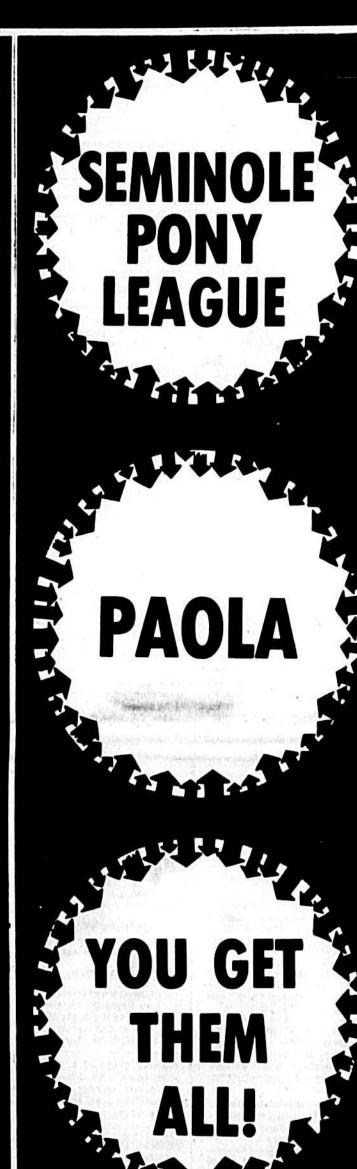

That's why we treat Little League as being on a higher plateau than even major league baseball.

The Evening Herald has already earned its reputation as the No. 1 authority on Little League and the other baseball groups which cater to the 8 to 18 set here in Seminole County.

Keep an eye on the sports pages for our usual coverage of all leagues — from Seminole Pony to Paola, from Oviedo to Altamonte Springs, and a thorough rundown of Sanford's games.

We keep readers well informed of all the games with photos, stories, standings, schedules and box scores. And we do that the day right after the game.

Particularly appealing to our readers is the box score format, which lists every player who appeared in the game. Johnny didn't have to get a hit to make our paper. He's right there in the box score, no matter what, pop.

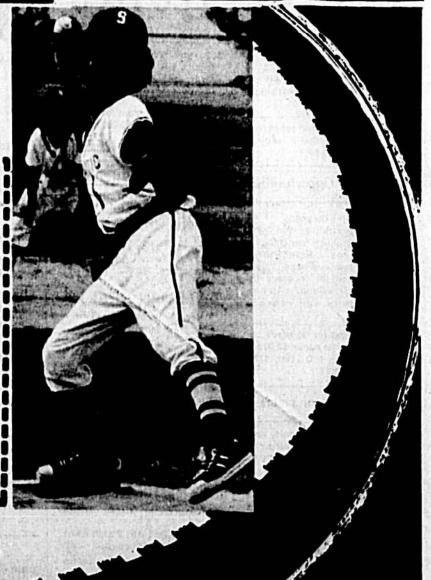

Don't miss a single edition of Seminole County's most complete Little League Coverage...subscribe to The Evening Herald today! Fill out coupon and mail.

Woes HardTo Detect

Of all the problems you're likely to have with your landscape plants, one of the hardest to identify could be improper soil Sometimes, even if you water and fertilize the way you should, a plant just won't grow very well.

When this happens, soil pH could very well be the problem but unless you have your soil analyzed, you may think it's something else.

Ph is just a scentific term for a relative scale describing soil acid level. The scale goes from 0-14, with 7 being neutral. Any reading below 7 is on the acid or sour side and reading above 7 are alkaline or sweet

Most popular Florida landscape ornamentals like soils ranging from neutral to slightly acid. Dogwood, azaleas, holly, camellias, hydrangeas, gardenias, and ixora like soil that is quite acid. Only a few plants like sweet soil: yucca, oleander and cabbage palm are Florida examples.

Unfortunately, alkaline soil is quite common around Florida Homes.

In many areas, the soil is mostly sand, naturally low in the organic matter that increases soil acidity. Also, building residue, lime from stucco or cement buried in the yard can raise soil pH

So, when soil pH is a problem, it's usually because it's too high. That is, the soil is too sweet alkaline. The reason we worry about soil pH is that in alkaline soil acid loving plants can't take up some of the minor elements they need for healthy growth. As a result leaves and grow in a sparse, sickly manner. The soil pH problem may not kill the plant, but since it is in a weakened condition, insects and plant diseases can attack it more easily.

Since yellowy leaves and sparse growth can be caused by so many problems, the only way to be sure your plant is suffering from the wrong pH level, is to have a sample of your soil analyzed. Once you determine the natural pH level of your soil you can either choose plants suited to that level, or change the pH level to suit the plants you want.

There are three common methods homeowners can use to lower soil pH; adding organic matter, adding chemical formulations sol for this purpose, or using seid forming fortilizer.

Roses: Year Round Growth, Care Too

Roses grow and bloom all year long in south and central Florida, and for at least nine morths out of the year in north Florida.

This year-round growing pattern has its advantages. of course, but it also means that roses in Florida need year-round maintenance.

There are four basic types of roses. . . bush types, climbers or ramblers, miniatures, and tree roses. Bush roses are the most popular. In this group are the hybrid teas, which produce large blooms, the floribundas, which have medium sized clusters of small flowers, and the grandiflora bush roses, which produce clusters of medium sized bloms.

When choosing a rose to grow in Florida, you need to know something about the kind of root system the plant has. Most roses in Florida are grafted plants, com-posed of two different roses. One forms the root system and the other forms the top of the plant. Our specialists tell us that roses grafted on the "Rosa Fortuniana" rootstock will grow larger, live longer, and produce more flowers than roses grown on any other root-

So if you want to grow roses, you will usually have more success if you choose plants with the Fortuniana rootstock.

And, a few more tips selecting roses...always buy plants from a reputable dealer. He should have both container grown and bareroot plants available Bareroot plants are graded number one, one-and-a-half, and two, based on the size and number of the canes.

A number one is the best grade. Container grown plants are ranked as Florida fancy Florida number one, and Florida number two, according to standards set up by the Division of Plant Industry. The best quality rose plant you can buy is a Florida fancy, container grown plant with the rose Fortuniana rootstock.

Remember that roses grow year-round in Florida, so the bark on the canes should always be firm, plump, and green. If the wood is dry and shriveled, don't buy the plant.

Choosing the right planting site and preparing the soil correctly are important first steps in rose culture. You should plant roses in an area that receives full sun for at least six hours a day. If this isn't possible, try to make sure that the roses receive morning sun; rether than afternoon.

Carter, however, took a more subdued approach on the second day of his Middle East peace journey.

"We don't know yet what will happen until we get through with the talks," Carter said. "It's hard to predict what will happen."
