The Soldiers' Bonus

In order to appreciate the points involved in the controversy surrounding the soldiers' bonus, it is necessary to understand the method by which the face value of the adjusted compensation certificate was arrived at. Unless it is clear that the sum which is printed on the face of certificates and which is the amount the veterans seek immediate payment of, includes interest accruals to 1945, one is apt to get a rather distorted view of the whole argument.

When it was decided by Congress in 1924 to give the veterans a bonus for their services during the war, a basic adjustment of $1 a day for service in the United States, and $1.25 a day for service overseas, for all service in excess of 90 days, was finally agreed upon. This was the amount thought necessary by Congress to offset the differential in wage scales which existed during the war between what was paid the soldiers and what was paid the average industrial worker.

Then, because the bonus was not to be paid at once, but was to be held by the government for the veterans as a sort of nest egg for later life, an extra 25 percent of the basic adjustment was arbitrarily added to the value of the certificate. Interest on this amount was compounded annually at 4 percent over a period of twenty years, from the time of application for the bonus until the time of its maturity in 1945, and written in as the face value of the certificate.

From this it is seen that the bonus certificates include not only the extra $1 or the $1.25 for each day's service, which the veterans were originally voted by Congress, but also an additional 25 percent for waiting until 1945 to be paid, and then 4 percent interest on the whole amount compounded for 20 years. In other words the basic adjustment was increased by 150 percent for the sole purpose of delaying the payment of the bonus for 20 years.

It figures out this way: If a veteran had 400 days service in the United States, his basic adjustment would be $400. Adding 25 percent interest to $200 and compounding the interest to 1945 would further increase the amount to $1,000, which would be the face value of the certificate. The basic adjustment, originally voted for all the veterans, amounted to only $1,400,000,000, but with interest for deferring the payment 20 years, the combined face value of all the certificates becomes $3,500,000,000.

The situation is further complicated by the fact that the veterans have been allowed by various acts of Congress to borrow on their certificates, not on their actuarial value, but up to 50 percent of their face value, with interest originally fixed at 4 1/2 percent, but later reduced to 3 1/2 percent. At the present time the total amount of loans which have been made on the certificates, including unpaid interest to date, is $1,690,000,000, or more than the original basic adjustment voted the veterans.

The difference between the face value of the certificates and the loans already on the certificates is $1,810,000,000. However, most of this amount is due the 600,000 veterans who have not borrowed on their certificates. To those three million who have borrowed, there is a difference of only $150,000,000 between the present value of the certificates and the sum which has already been loaned on them.

However, if the unearned interest on the certificates from the present date to 1945 is paid by the government, and if the interest on the money which the veterans have borrowed on their certificates is cancelled, as the veterans demand, the present value of the certificates would automatically be increased from $2,100,000,000 to $3,720,000,000, which would, in effect be giving the veterans an additional bonus of $1,620,000,000.

Who pays the bill for the high cost of government? It is always the ultimate consumer. True as that remark is, it is too little understood. The tax which the factory pays on its raw state is just as much a part of the price of the finished product from that factory as are the payroll, power bills, or office expense. The following extract from the Manufacturers' Record, as reprinted in the Tampa Tribune, makes this pretty clear:

"The purchaser of a loaf of bread pays 17 kinds of taxes. Shoes are taxed 23 times. Automobile riders pay 42 different taxes. Subway or street car riders pay 58 taxes. All of these taxes, of course, are indirect but the consumer pays them. Every person receiving an annual income of $2,080, although exempt from income tax, pays $480 in taxes each year.

"The electric light and power industry alone has 15 forms of regularly imposed federal, state and municipal taxes and in addition this industry pays 18 special taxes in different cities and states. At the recent tax conference of the American Management Association it was asserted that one corporation doing business in 25 states pays 198 separate taxes and in making out its tax schedule has to use 23 different forms, running from one to 13 forms a state.

"Every individual who buys anything, whether he is a property owner or not, is paying a proportion of taxes collected by federal and local agencies. Whenever taxes are collected, somewhere along the line the consumer pays directly or indirectly. To 'tax the rich' to the point of confiscation or bankruptcy will not relieve the average man of his share."

ROOSEVELT'S FUTURE

BY WALTER LIPPINCOTT

The great task in the second half of the Roosevelt Administration is to discontinue the measures which liberalize enterprise and restrict the great distinctions from those which represent and restrict enterprise, create new maladjustments, and lead through permanent depression to a collective order. If this is done, capitalism in America will recover. As it recovers, the social reforms which have been started, and those which ought to follow, will prosper. For American capitalism is in such condition as was the capitalism of eastern Europe and Russia. It draws on natural resources that are inexhaustible. It is in the habit of a people long accustomed to freedom. It is sustained by that essential hopefulness which is still the dominant characteristic of the New World. It is too strong to be overthrown. It is much too big to be legislated out of existence.

Mr. Roosevelt's future depends upon his ability to work with the native powers of American capitalism, to evoke them, foster them, regulate their excesses, and allow them to provide work, wealth, and economic security for all. He must not attempt to force a new economic order upon the people at any time he ever approached. He who has ever seen collectivization in action in Europe will have no doubt whatever on this point. He will for a moment doubt that, however great the problems of the United States, France, and of other free countries, they are by far preferable to the grinding, degrading, and dehumanizing methods of collectivist states.

Now, there is no doubt about what is Mr. Roosevelt's paramount interest. It is not the NRA or the AAA, or his gold and silver management, or the New Deal, or this or that reform. It is that the standard of life of the great mass of people should substantially improve in ways that the people will want a permanent improvement. By that test he will be judged in 1945, and during the "campaign" which would come from the outbreak of war in the world, by no other test. If there is a real increase in the national income which produces a real improvement in the standard of life, his Administration will be immortal. If there is not such an improvement, no experiments, no reforms, and what will be accepted as a substitute by the people.

I say this not because I am opposed to the principal social reforms but because I believe in them. I want to see the development of our country as a real economic recovery in which men are re-employed because it is again profitable to employ them. Only recovery of this sort will provide a base for the great reforms, a moral base in popular confidence, and a material base in the wealth needed to pay for them. There may be some who think that great reforms will come if the people are sufficiently desperate. They do not know, though all current experience proves to the contrary, that it is only on a rising standard of life that reform can be successfully achieved.

would be comparatively easy for a large number of people to become millionaires, but impossible for anyone to become a multimillionaire or a billionaire.

There will be no poverty or poor people but the lowest one will be permitted to fall, will be a fair standard of living," he said. "Youth will enter life with guarantee of education and opportunity. And those approaching old age, will do so in full security of secured income and living."

"None will be too rich, none too big, none too small, but at the instant and at the most—every man a king."

As an immediate remedy to quiet conditions until necessary relief could be brought about, he said a nation-wide debt moratorium on all debts which people are unable to pay, would be declared.

Here is the "share the wealth" plan:

1. No capital levy on first $1,000,000 earned per year. Levy of one percent on income over $1,000,000 up to $2,000,000. Four percent on three to four million. (Beyond this point the tax will "pinch"); eight percent on four to five million. Sixteen percent on five to six million. Thirty-two percent on six to ten million. Sixty-four percent on seven to eight million. All over eight million 100 percent. Maximum inheritance of $1,000,000.

2. Guarantee a home, food and clothes for every family, and employment at a livable wage to sustain the home.

3. Employment for all, through reduction of hours of labor, not to exceed 30 hours a week, may be less, and working year of not more than 11 months.

4. Extension of the Louisiana system of education so as to include college, professional and vocational education. This means guarantee of education up to college and professional training, limited only by mental capacity of student and not financial capacity. In other words, instead of limiting college education to children of well-to-do parents and those who find employment at college, only bar those with limited mental power to absorb college training.

5. Old age pension of not less than $30 to $40 a month after the age of 65, extending all wealth $10,000 or more, or who own $1,000 or more a year.

6. Farm relief by government providing warehouses, cold storage and heated storage plants in practically every county. Surplus crops be purchased by government and when surplus goes down can be expanded to 12 months, crop be loaned according to Bible and people give something else to do, such as work on public improvements. With surplus wealth and surplus labor thus made available, program of improvements would be expansive, including building of flood waters and making flood waters available to arid and desert regions in proper season. Harvesting of flood waters would include development of power and expansion of water commerce.

Miss Perkins Sees Townsend Plan As Socially Unsound

Labor Secretary Puts Okey On Any Sound Pension Program

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The "Townsend plan" for paying pensions of $200 a month to persons over 60 is termed "economically and socially unsound" by Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, in an interview released today.

Miss Perkins puts her approval on an old-age pension which would be "economically possible."

"Its supporters are utterly reckless in their use of figures," she says of the backers of the Townsend plan. "Under it there would be distributed $3,000,000,000 a month in pensions."

"Why, the entire national income in 1933 was less than 40 billion, and this pension scheme alone would be annually $1 billion. It would give to nine percent of our population more than half the entire income of the country."

"What is an adequate old-age pension which is economically possible? It is hard to answer this for the entire country. An adequate pension in one section is not large enough in another."

"Average relief costs vary from $5 to $7 a month per family in some states to $45 per month in others," she said.

"Such pensions will cost much less than old-age homes, and the human saving, in self-respect, will be beyond estimation," she asserts.

"But there will be large savings in cash as well. One student of the problem has estimated that out of every $100 which has gone to keep up the nation's almshouses, $70 is spent for overhead. That enormous overhead will be almost entirely eliminated under a pension plan."

Landis Clarifies Most Points Of Homestead Bill

An exemption for taxes up to a valuation of $5,000 on the homestead of the head of a family who is a citizen of and resides in the state was provided by the Constitutional amendment.

"Head of a family," the attorney-general said, means a person who lives with one or more persons who are dependent upon him, and who recognize him as the head of the family. The exemption does not apply where one person, without others who recognize him as the head of the family, lives in a house which he owns.

Business property in a city is entitled to exemption up to $5,000.

NAZIS CAPTURE 90 PERCENT OF VOTES IN SAAR

A politician warned the Associated Press correspondent to "get inside," asserting "The situation might become serious at any moment."

Frightened women and children, crying for protection, filled local headquarters.

Refugees fled from the Territory by hundreds.

The result of Sunday's plebiscite was made known by the League of Nations today after a night-long tabulation gave more than 90 percent of the vote to the Nazis.

The vote:

For a return to Germany, 477,000.

For status quo, 66,500.

For annexation to France, 1,124.

Powerful ties of blood and tradition stood in Sunday's plebiscite.

March in the Saar, sending an ominous message to the world.

The ballot resulted in a sweeping victory for Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and his Nazi party in the Reich, it learned officially today.

Neutral countries continued their check on the initial tally—but it was only to determine how great the Hitlerite victory would be.

Semi-official sources estimated the Nazi majority would run between 85 and 88 percent of the 540,000 votes cast, ending 16 years of separation while the Saar was under control of the League of Nations.

Max Braun, leader of the anti-Nazi opposition, at 2 A. M. (8 P. M. EST) admitted the returns looked "bad for us" but added: "We have just been informed, the cities and villages being counted after midnight are better." But he fought a losing battle in a lost cause.

The Saarlanders, loyally German, voted to return to the Reich, regardless of who rules there. It is now up to the League to put their mandate into effect by a decree returning the Saar to Germany.

One result was the start of a mass migration of thousands of men, women and children across the French frontier, fearing reprisals against them for opposing the Nazi landslide.

The mass migration began when an early unofficial estimate of the ballot indicated nearly 85 percent of the voters had cast their ballots for return to Germany.

The ballot boxes were brought through snow-covered streets to the central hall. Members of the League of Nations Commission supervised the counting by neutral judges from neighboring countries. The seals were broken at 5:15 P. M., and the counting proceeded swiftly.

Thousands of Saarlanders remained up all night to salute the boxes as they arrived from rural districts and shout "Heil Hitler!" Ballots within, they fell silent, and of fifteen years of separation from the fatherland and assured early.

ROOSEVELT'S 1935 BUDGET IS ATTACKED

point which the people were told a year ago should mark the end of continued treasury deficits.

"A huge emergency fund which permits executive allotments which may lack economic justification and may not accomplish the purpose for which they are intended."

Within congressional circles, there has been criticism of the President's request for $4,500,000,000 in a lump sum to relieve unemployment.

"Congress," the league statement said, "is asked to waive entirely its right and duty to make proper segregation of the purposes for which the money is to be spent."

Commenting on estimates that the public debt at the end of the fiscal year 1935 might total $34,220,000,000, the league said the President's failure to limit the total as a "new limit" for debt increase "adds a further reason for a feeling of uncertainty."

The statement said there was no certainty that four billion asked for would "mark the end of emergency outlays which must be financed by borrowed money."

"In effect," the league said, "it wipes out the savings of upwards of a billion dollars in necessary governmental costs which were accomplished in the attempted drive for economy which was commenced during the final year of the last administration and was carried forward with a marked degree of success in the early months of the present Administration."

which permits of executive allotments and executive orders.

Mr. Tommasello said the league would continue to work for a group of persons who are interested in the future of the country.

He pointed to two points which led him to believe that the league's position was not simply meant to obstruct the work of the government but to "work another," namely, the league's having made the yacht club headquarters available to the body headquarters and the trade body's reference to numerous persons in the annual summary of work accomplished as having "worked hard" in putting the organization's objectives across.

Declaring that "We shall always have the destructive critic with us," Mr. Tommasello stressed his belief that "None is so rich and mighty that they can get along without co-operative effort of such organizations as this, and none is so poor that they won't be enriched by association with it."

Mr. Tommasello pointed to the average American city as a high type of co-operative effort which has, among other things, resulted in an addition to man's freedom.

In another reference to criticism usually heaped, Mr. Tommasello commended the audience that "It is a much better to a judicial adviser than a hearing critic."

Nearing the end of Mr. Tommasello's remarks, he said that the accomplishments of the past year were the result of the fact that we are gradually co-operating that we can be assured of the best.

"In this type of work," he said, "we have found that we cannot spell success without the letter 'o', and just as the word success depends on the letter 'a' so the success of this organization depends upon each of you."

In conclusion, Mr. Tommasello read from King's "Law of the Jungle" and its reference to the "strength of the wolf is the pack and the strength of the pack is the wolf," and declared that "Coming together is a beginning, keeping together is progress, and working together is success."

COI Membership Drive Gets Hearty Co-Operation

Thousands of women testify that they are benefited by the best of the best things in Florida is that business has been better than a year ago. I regret that I will be unable to be present, but I was very sorry of the committee a great big success."

Also introduced as speakers were T. H. Eckstein of Jersey City and B. F. Haines of Alameda Springs, while Karl Lehmann, trade body secretary, in his last minute summary of instructions for the workers, reminded them not to lose sight of the goal—400 memberships in 26 hours.

Workers will gather at the Chamber of Commerce offices at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night for a "Victory supper." Announcement will be made there as to the details of the drive with the special percentage of membership. Those who are members of the team will be decorated the winner of Mr. Schmitt's offer of a $1 meal ticket and J. L. Marantette's offer of a theater party.

Prefacing his remarks as "Community Co-Operation" with a reference to his pleasure at being invited to "enjoy the fellowship of the group," Mr. Tommasello said the league would continue to work for a group of persons who are interested in the future of the country.

He pointed to two points which led him to believe that the league's position was not simply meant to obstruct the work of the government but to "work another," namely, the league's having made the yacht club headquarters available to the body headquarters and the trade body's reference to numerous persons in the annual summary of work accomplished as having "worked hard" in putting the organization's objectives across.

Declaring that "We shall always have the destructive critic with us," Mr. Tommasello stressed his belief that "None is so rich and mighty that they can get along without co-operative effort of such organizations as this, and none is so poor that they won't be enriched by association with it."

City Commission Unable To Agree On Liquor Laws

The commission on liquor laws, which was organized last week, failed to reach an agreement on a set of laws to be presented to the city council today.

The commission, which is headed by Mayor J. H. D. Williams, has been working on the matter since its organization last week. It has held several public hearings and has received many suggestions from the public.

The commission's report will be presented to the city council today. The council will then have to decide whether to accept the commission's recommendations or to refer the matter back to the commission for further study.

The commission's report is expected to be a comprehensive one, covering all aspects of the liquor problem in Sanford. It is expected to include provisions for the regulation of the sale and distribution of liquor, as well as for the control of the consumption of liquor.

The commission's report is expected to be a landmark one, as it will be the first time that the city has had a commission to study the liquor problem. It is expected to be a landmark one, as it will be the first time that the city has had a commission to study the liquor problem.

MILLIONS OF FOLKS HAVE BEEN SAVED BY OUR GOVERNMENT

"You earn your wages" THAT handy servant, the telephone, is a go-getter. He chases after groceries, runs to the drug store, carries messages here, there and everywhere, and only asks a few cents a day as his wages.

It does not matter who you want or why, whether it be day or night, storm or sunshine. Lift the receiver to order a loaf of bread - usually call a friend for a brief chat - or speed a frantic summons to the doctor, it is all in the day's work to the telephone.

If you are trying to get along without a telephone in your home, it will pay you to investigate the small cost, and the different types, of telephone service.

You will then very likely agree with most folks, who believe it costs more to try to do without telephone service than it does to have it.

For information, just ask any of your friends with the telephone company, or talk to the telephone Business Office.

Rumor Has German Confessing Crime

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The New York Times prints the following from Florence, N. Y.: "Rumors that Richard Hauptmann has confessed or is going to confess... were in circulation. It could not be confirmed. In prosecution circles the belief was expressed the accused may confess because of the weight of evidence that the state has presented. The state has no intention of making any deal with Hauptmann during the trial, it was said, but a confession naming other persons might be considered after a verdict is returned. Edward J. Reilly and C. Lloyd Fisher of defense counsel emphatically denied the rumors."

Federal Agents Fight It Out In 6-Hour Machine-Gun War; Three Are Slain

OCCLAWAHA, Fla., Near Ocala, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Gangsters who had barricaded themselves in a summer home here and fought it out with federal agents surrendered this afternoon after a six-hour battle.

Two of the three killed in the machine gun battle with the agents were identified by the Department of Justice as Fred Barker and his mother, "Ma" Barker, both sought for the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker. After a bloody battle with machine guns, the agents resorted to tear gas, and two men of the gang made a break for it. They were promptly mowed down. Just how the woman met death was not immediately known nor was it learned at once how many had surrendered. The agents suffered no known casualties. The battle raged for nearly six hours. C Of Cs Annual Membership Drive Ends At 6 Tonight

The 1935 Seminole County Chamber of Commerce membership drive comes to its conclusion in the trade show office tonight when the army of workers gathers for the "Victory Banquet." That victory will be theirs was a prediction made today by Major-General W. H. Schmidt, of the campaign staff who will preside over the supper session. Reports turned in to him during the day indicated that the goal of 800 memberships appears certain to be reached and passed.

Daytona Seeks Plan To Replace Sales Tax

DAYTONA BEACH, Jan. 16.—Substitute for the 2 percent retail sales tax ordinance that went into effect here Jan. 4 will be laid before the city commissioners at a conference here today by representatives of a number of mercantile organizations that oppose the ordinance. The ordinance is the one that it has passed by vote 6-4, which was a 5-4 vote. Whether or not the substitute will replace the sales tax, which was suspended for a week last Saturday, will be decided by the city commission at a special session Saturday.

Tampan In Pain From Black Widow's Sting

TAMPA, Jan. 14.—J. E. Thompson, 36, an automobile mechanic, was confined to his home yesterday suffering intense pain from the bite of a black widow on his left foot near the ankle. He was bitten several days ago while at work on an old automobile near his home. The spider, he said, was in a crevice of the car's body. His physician said he would recover.

Tax Assessor Has Blanks To Be Used In Proving Right To Tax Exemption

Assistant tax assessor Sanford Doudney stated today that a large supply of application and proof of right to tax exemption on household blanks now are available at his office in the County House for all persons interested. All property owners who come under the terms of the Household Exemption Amendment are required to fill out one of the blanks if they expect to check in the benefits of the Amendment. Mr. Doudney stated: "It is the duty of the Tax Assessor to assess all property of whatever nature for taxation when not otherwise specifically provided; therefore in order to prevent your household from being assessed for taxation for the year 1935 and subsequent years, it will be necessary for you to file the application and proof of right to exemption as provided on the reverse side of this blank with the Tax Assessor of the county in which the household is located, on or before April 1 of each year. Your failure to do so will result in your household being assessed for taxation." (Continued On Page Four)
