People To Profit From Flight Into The Stratosphere

Information Gained Will Help Making Weather Forecasts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—The man in the street stands to gain something more than a vicarious thrill from the fact that a huge balloon carried Capt. Albert W. Stevens and Capt. Ovil Anderson to a new high in a mysterious zone called the stratosphere. One benefit of stratosphere flying to "John Doe" is the possibility of more definite information on whether to take his umbrella with him to work and whether to put anti-freeze in the auto radiator. Knowledge gathered of winds and air currents at great heights are considered important to more accurate weather forecasting. On the 1934 flight it was found that at one level the wind was blowing at a rate of 70 miles an hour, and other unexpected weather features were discovered. While such peculiarities would have only an indirect effect on weather at the surface of the earth, meteorologists believe that only by studying such phenomena can more accurate weather forecasting be done. Dr. Lyman Briggs sees in the spore studies a possibility of new light on the lives and distribution of bacteria causing human and plant diseases. A tube with a sticky coating on the inside was dropped from the highest altitude of the flight, collecting spores on the sticky substance. When the tube reached the bottom of the stratosphere it was automatically sealed. Doctor Briggs is director of the national bureau of standards and chairman of the scientific advisory committee of the National Geographic society's air corps stratosphere flight. From this experiment it is hoped to discover if spores live at the rarefied heights and if they are similar to those lower down. One next going to catch the "stratosphere express" for London, though, until a good deal more is added to the sum of flying knowledge. "At the present time it wouldn't be possible to build planes capable of commercial service in the higher parts of the stratosphere," said Doctor Briggs. "By building a stripped plane just light enough to get up there, aviators have taken the heavier-than-air ships up close to 45,000 feet. But thus far airplanes have not been developed to the point where a large ship, carrying a pay load and sufficient fuel for long hops, can be built. "From the standpoint of transportation, the stratosphere is ideal in theory, however. Its thinner air would make for great speeds." Airplane designers now have in view the building of planes which will fly normally at about 15,000 feet and one commercial airline has its pilots fly regularly at 10,000 feet.

'DIXIE' HOWELL ALTAR-BOUND

Millard "Dixie" Howell, star of Alabama's mighty football team that triumphed in the Rose Bowl game of 1934, is about to become a Benedict. Peggy Waters, stage and screen actress, is the bride-elect. They are shown together in Mexico, D. F., where the marriage will take place November 24, which is "Dixie's" 31st birthday. Their childhood romance in Birmingham was renewed after he became football coach at the University of Mexico. (Associated Press Photo)

THE TRAIN THAT CAME IN TEN WEEKS LATE

This train arrived at Miami, Fla., just two months and two weeks behind time—but there was ample reason. On September 2 it was dispatched to the lower Florida keys to evacuate construction camps in the face of a raging hurricane. The storm struck before the job was finished, killing about 400 people and scattering the train around like matchwood. Here's how the cars looked, after they were salvaged and returned to Miami. Open Your Homes And Your Hearts

Suffering perhaps more than any other class of people from the hardships of the depression, the orphans of the country are at present the subject of a widespread appeal for popular support because of the inability of many institutions which have formerly cared for them to carry on as a result of a rapidly dwindling number of charitable contributions. Trying to find homes for some of these motherless and fatherless boys and girls is a task which occupies a large portion of the time of many an orphanage superintendent.

"Is there a home in Brevard county in which there is room, and love, for one of the wards of the Children's Home Society of Florida?" asks the Melbourne Times. "The association is appealing again for homes, real homes, for a large number of boys and girls—fine boys and girls who have the makings in them for fine manhood and womanhood—and from Brevard county there surely must come an answer that will gladden the hearts of some of them."

"Children in the care of the Home Society are normal Florida boys and girls. Some of them have lost their parents through dire poverty that denied their families a place to live and food to eat; some of them are victims of domestic troubles in which they had no responsibility. And each of them; orphan, or forsaken, is a challenge to Florida homes that could be stretched to care for an extra child.

"The babies in the care of the Society, especially pretty babies, can be given homes. There is always a waiting list among the applicants for a baby to adopt. But the older boys and girls—how wonderful it is for one of them when he is taken into a good home, and made to feel that he is welcome there!

"Brevard county has so many fortunate, happy people. It has so many comfortable, well-to-do homes. It would seem that in reply to the appeal from the Children's Home Society of Florida for good homes, and good foster parents for the children in its care, Brevard county would be the shining example of cordial, generous response.

"Bring the children home before Christmas! Give them the gift of a real home and 'folks' of their own!"

Football Importance

There is nothing quite so thrilling as an exuberant football crowd packed into a fairly bursting stadium and seeing a goal being scored from one end to the other as college boys and beautiful girls, with a sizable sprinkling of parents, friends, old grads, and just ordinary folks, waving their pennants, tooting their horns, and shouting their heads off, cheer their favorite team to superhuman achievements.

We can also understand the irrepressible enthusiasm which combined with parental pride induced a dignified appearing old gentleman to stand up on his bench and, as a brilliant young halfback broke through the opposing line and raced forty yards for a touchdown, to shout at the top of his voice, "That's my son! That's my son!"

But when a man named Russow, a Louisiana cabinet-maker, invaded the Lake Charles High School auditorium the other night where an enthusiastic football rally was in progress, summoned Coach R. S. Killen into a nearby hallway and shot him three times through the stomach, then turned his gun on himself, because his son had been kicked off the team for breaking training rules, it does seem that that is over-emphasizing the importance of football a little bit too much.

Football is a great game, but it is hardly a life and death matter.

THE RESULT OF eight years' work and an outlay of some $14,000,000, the Williamsburg Restoration may now be described as formally completed. To date, 442 "modern" (that is to say, post Early Republican) buildings have been deleted and 18 moved away. Sixty-six Colonial buildings have been restored or repaired. Into the construction of the Governor's Palace went over 30 pages of source material, including a valuable copperplate found in the Bodleian Library, a floor plan sketched by Jefferson, and the so-called Frenchman's Map of 1782—which later handed the Restoration the whole town layout. The archaeologists excavated 160-odd Colonial foundations, exhumed 30 tons of inestimably revealing junk. The broad plan of the city itself has survived time nicely. The problem here was to combine "period" layout with modern traffic. A by-pass road swings the weight of traffic free of town; passageways through a gravel roadway flanked with cobblestone parking balda, shop in a "period" business block, and are guided by costumed hostesses. Williamsburg draws some 60,000 visitors a year, and admission fees are by no means enough to balance off the millions thus far sunk in the project; but that does not seem to worry particularly the sole donor, Mr. Rockefeller.—Fortune.

THE COMPASS

By Bill Lyles
By Arthur Dean

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 25.—Although dead, Huey Long still lives. What he was, what he did, and what was done to him are the issues of the hour in Louisiana.

Nominations for the U. S. Senate, for Governor and for other state offices will be voted on in the primary election. The date of nomination is rapidly being set—probably the 15th or 20th of December. The Huey Long party, the "New Deal" party, and the "Progressive" party will vote against nomination.

There is no middle ground. People are bound to be for or against Huey Long—just as they are for or against the Huey Long party. The Huey Long party will vote against nomination, and the Huey Long party will vote against nomination.

A newspaper publisher said in friendly warning: "I'm glad you're taking a study of Louisiana. Most writers have given us either vituperation and ridicule, or extravagant praise."

An example of the former is the article by Walter Davenport in Columns of Nov. 23. He portrays Senator Long as physical cowardly, big game, mentally unbalanced—a tyrant who probably received his just deserts at the hand of an Emancipator. While asserting that his lieutenant had no loyalty for him, and his following disintegrated with his death, Mr. Davenport, inconsistently concedes that the Long ticket will probably carry the coming election.

Furthermore, he admits that no evidence has been found to show that Huey amassed wealth for himself, yet he graciously contributes the suggestion that Huey's will may be concealed and not prepared for years to come. Or, that the Senator may have given his spoils directly to his beneficiaries in his life time. Or, that a young man aiming to be President would have "plenty of time to take in a few millions in cash." It does not seem to occur to Mr. Davenport that an occasional man can find something more entertaining in life than accumulating riches.

At the same time the Davenport article appears, a Washington dispatch from the New Orleans Item-Tribune bureau reports a movement to place a statue of the late Senator Long of Louisiana in Statuary Hall at the capitol, with the illustrious dead of the nation.

When Thomas W. Lamont was testifying before a Senate committee, Senator Long elicited from him that the company producing Collier's Weekly was owned by the Crowell Publishing Company, affiliated with J. P. Morgan and Company. In "My First Days in the White House," written a short time before his death, Huey pictures himself as elected President in 1936. One of his early acts was to call together the greatest American financiers to recommend the best method for putting his Share-the-Wealth program into effect. All are described as co-operating except J. P. Morgan and Company. Evidently there was no love lost between Huey and the House of Morgan.

It is entirely proper to publish facts about the illustrious dead, but abuse and conjecture (which he can no longer refute) seem hardly sporting. The Morgan partners are, of course, above this sort of thing, and for that reason it is regrettable that Mr. Davenport did not select some other magazine as a medium for his fulminations.

Illustrative of the reverse attitude was that of a small restaurant owner. He assured me that Long was the greatest man who had ever lived, and seemed rather proud there was no one big enough to take his place. "O. K. Allen's got a cold right now because Huey wasn't here to tell him to put up his umbrella when it rained," he said.

In such an atmosphere it is natural that an investigator finds difficulty. The tendency is to accept some one picture of Long as the correct one. He was many-sided—lawyer, politician, reformer, builder, educator and dictator. A true picture must be a composite of all.

Because he is still a factor—because his agitation about dividing property and income started a debate throughout the nation which shows no sign of dying with him—both his achievements and his movement demand impartial treatment. What I shall write about these in future articles will probably please neither his friends nor foes, but will be my best effort to be accurate and fair.

Wildcats, Deer, Quail And Even Salmon Are Bagged At Opening Of Hunting Season

Newspapers throughout the state report varying luck and a great variety of game the first week of the hunting season. The biggest game bagged, according to these press reports, were wildcats, none of the hinds claiming to have shot a bear. Quail was reported as quite plentiful, but a scarcity of ducks is bewailed by the hunters. Reports of deer being shot come from several sections.

Salmon might not be classed as game, but the fact that one was caught off Panama City makes a item of news unusual in the South. The Tampa Times reports that Chris and John Strang, of Panama City found, a 20-pound salmon in their net when they pulled it in while fishing for mullet and trout. Old residents said the only other salmon they recalled was caught in East Bay in 1912.

A group of Wauchula game hunters, according to the Advocate of that town, returned to town early last Friday morning with two large wildcats killed about two miles north of Wauchula, near Peace River. Both cats were brought down by Alex Hendry.

The Gainesville Sun reports that four bucks have been bagged by hunters of that section to date. Otto F. Stock and Aubrey Williams of Hawthorne bagged a buck each yesterday in the Oklawaha Scrub. Sheriff J. P. Ramsey was reported to have killed one yesterday near his camp at the headwaters of the Wauchula River near Monticello. It was reported here today by Dr. W. T. Elmore, Jimmy Williams, another member of the sheriff's party was reported to have killed one Tuesday.

"Plenty of doves and quail but a scarcity of ducks," is the general report coming from the woods and lakes reports the Gainesville paper. It says that ducks flew at their own risk but the unseasonably warm weather has held most of them north of here. Hunters are looking forward to better duck hunting later in the season.

The Sarasota Herald states that while hunters invariably reported obtaining the bag limit, conservation officials reported that the game laws were rigidly observed. Indicating that the county's hunting group is comprised of true sportsmen. Reports indicate that wild game, particularly quail and doves, is plentiful in the back country of Sarasota county.

Another issue of the Sarasota paper states that the taking of fresh water fish in Myakka State Park No. 4, comprising a large area in Sarasota and Manatee counties, has been legally prohibited by an order from I. N. Kennedy, executive secretary of the Florida commission of game and fresh water fish.

It is said that turkeys are scarce, reports the New Smyrna News, and hunters are not looking for them except in dreams, but in the far off "hinterlands" of the state it is said deer and even bear are plentiful.

The Bradenton Herald reports the issuance of 375 hunting licenses and the Ft. Pierce News-Tribune reports issuance of 181 licenses, the latter paper adding the information, that aimless who have returned from the woods report varying degrees of success, some bagging a good batch of quail and others not so good.

One hunter, returning from the woods near Chattahoochee with 11 squirrels, told the Tallahassee Democrat he never before saw this wild game quite so plentiful in the deep woods. J. C. Camp, who bagged seven ducks on Lake Miccosukee on opening day, said he saw F. G. Byrd kill eight ducks with the first eight shots Byrd fired. Byrd got his bag limit of 10 within 30 minutes after the season opened.

The Winter Haven Chief says: "The Tribune's headline, 'Duck Hunters Requested Not To Shoot WPA Workers,' gets into laughs around this man's town. Wouldn't it be a good thing to equip the WPA workers with bullet-proof vests, or better still, with suits of armor and some sort of a whistle of unusual sound to be blown every five minutes to warn the hunters not to mistake 'em for deer? It would require a success from labor to do the stunt every five minutes, but the WPA workers wouldn't mind that. We have noticed that lots of 'em take plenty of leisure anyhow."

Some of the finest duck hunting marsh in South Florida has been closed to hunters, states the Miami Herald in reporting that "to meet to find they could not hunt this year on the 2,000 square miles of Dade, the northern part of Monroe and a large part of Collier county. The Herald says that "turkey, duck, deer and some bear and quail are the chief attractions for sportsmen. Their protests will be loud and long, but unavailing. The law is written, and we do not expect it will be repealed."

"The framers of the closed season for this park area were confronted with the choice of putting a stop to the taking of game and birds there, or of seeing it given over wholly to the buzzards, the snakes and hawks within a short time. Florida either will have a game preserve and national park with some wild life in it, or by allowing unrestricted hunting, condemn that beautiful tropical wilderness to a future devoid of those living things that make a wild country attractive to sightseers."

Miss Katherine Park Discusses Girl Scouts

What the young people of America need is a sympathetic attitude toward their interests, according to Miss Katherine Park of the National Girl Scout field staff, who is in Sanford to conduct the Seminole County Girl Scout training course at the Girl Scout Little House today, tomorrow, and Wednesday.

"Every Girl Scout troop, and there are now 13,956 in the United States, was started at the request of some child," declared Miss Park, "and there could be thousands more, if older people would help in giving girls what they want and need."

"Grown-ups sometimes complain," Miss Park continued, "that they do not understand the behavior of the next generation. I wonder how many have ever tried? I wonder how many make a habit of listening. Instead of lecturing, when children come to them about what they really want to do?"

"Girl scouting," Miss Park pointed out, "takes girls just at the age when they are getting free of their childish dependence on their parents and beginning to adventure with life outside the home for the first time."

"Girls at this stage are apt to be emotionally unstable," Miss Park declared. "They are often doubtful of their own and their parents' ability to help them adjust themselves to life, and need someone outside the home, who, in a sense, will act as a parent-substitute and will certainly be a parent's assistant. That is where Girl Scouting comes in."

The Girl Scout leader, according to Miss Park, is ideally fitted, by reason of her training, to direct the girl's emotional energy into the right channels, and to introduce her to the great variety of useful and delightful activities which have a natural charm for the teen-age girl.

HE'S A NAVAL CADET NOW

MY BABY

What's sweeter than the patter of feet,
And a childish cry of delight,
When a baby glimpses its daddy
Coming home from work at night?
You pick up baby with joy in your heart,
And hoist it above your head,
You think of the happy hours you'll spend,
Before it is put to bed.
Supper is finished, you sit in a chair,
With baby upon your knee,
You'll jog it to Boston on the old grey mare,
While it chortles in baby glee.
And later you'll tell it a story,
About the old lady who lived in a shoe,
Who had so many children that
She didn't know what to do.
Soon the old sand man'll come stealing,
Baby will cuddle up close in your arm
Secure in the knowledge that daddy
Will shield his baby from harm.
You'll put it to bed with pride in your heart,
Lean over and kiss it goodnight;
Then you'll tuck in the covers so snugly,
And silently extinguish the light.
This is nothing more dear than a baby,
To brighten the dark spots of life,
Unless it be the combination
Of daddy, sweet baby, and wife!

in egg yearly. They see how cows give 5,000 pounds of milk yearly are brought up to 11,000 pounds. The scene after another unfolds the marvelous changes taking place in the rearing of poultry and livestock.

The picture is a challenge to Mary and Walter. They catch the spirit of opportunity with the cows, hogs and chickens on the farm. It's a hidden harvest revelation to them. As time goes on, changes on the Allen farm are many. Hens lay more eggs, cows give more milk and the hogs get ready for market sooner. The success of the Allen's is an example to others and soon the whole country side discovers the hidden harvest on the farm.

The story ends with Walter buying the farm near the Allen's. Combining his own name with that of Mary's, he names the farm "Marywall" when she consents to marry him.

The aromatic Turkish tobaccos used in Chesterfield give them a more pleasing aroma and taste...

Every year we import thousands of pounds from Turkey and Greece

THE IMPORT DUTY alone is 35 cents a pound—but Turkish tobacco is necessary to a good cigarette.

Chicago And Villanova Won, But Many Pick-The-Winner Lists Didn't Contain Them

14 Answer Correctly And First 10 Will Get Milane Tickets

Chicago's unexpected victory over Illinois and Temple's fall at the hands of Villanova caused most of Sanford's Pick-the-winner fans to lose in last week's contest, but 16 out of the 86 lists turned in were correct.

Those who will receive two Milane Theater tickets each for Wednesday's double feature program are: H. D. Lagona, E. H. Cullum, Dorothy Warren, Mrs. Hudson, Hester, John Morgan, Donald Lamson, Charles Satcher, Mrs. W. C. Satcher, D. D. Welborn, and Webber Welborn.

Six others also submitted correct guesses but since only the first 10 correct lists win, these

Pick-The-Winner Lists Must Be In By Thursday Noon

Pick-the-winner fans must get their lists into The Herald office not later than noon Thursday (Thanksgiving Day) this week in order to be eligible for next week's theater tickets.

Since some of this week's games are played on Thursday some on Friday night, and others on Saturday, it was decided to allow fans to choose any games played any time from Thanksgiving through Saturday night.

This is the last week of The Herald's pick-the-winner contest and the sponsors hope that a record breaking number of lists will be submitted before noon Thursday this week.

Black-Draught's Refreshing Relief

Don't neglect constipation! Take Black-Draught at the first sign you need something to help restore regular elimination.

"I feel like Black-Draught is a mighty good medicine and don't know how I would get along without it," writes Mrs. W. D. Jewers, of Minden, La. "I take it for constipation and biliousness. When I let myself get constipated, I feel dull, sluggish and drowsy; can't settle down to my work for that tired feeling. I take a small dose of Black-Draught at bedtime for several nights and soon feel fine. If I am bothered with a tight feeling of gas on the stomach, I take a pinch of Black-Draught after meals."

Black-Draught costs less than most medicines for constipation. Get a 25-cent package, today! -Adv.
