State unemployment down

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate shot up in December to its highest level in more than three years, while Florida's rate fell from 6.3 to 5.5 percent. The national unemployment rate hit 6.1 percent as more than 1 million people joined the ranks of the unemployed since June, the government said today.
The worst three-month stretch of job losses since the depths of the 1981-82 recession hit the nation at the end of 1990, as 515,000 jobs were lost during the final quarter of the year, the Labor Department said.
Last month's rise in the civilian jobless rate to 6.1 percent was 0.2 percentage point higher than November's 5.9 percent level. Unemployment has now risen 0.8 percentage point since June — its most rapid rise in eight years.

City begins manager search

SANFORD — The city has begun advertising in local, state and national publications for a new city manager to replace Frank Faison, who resigned last month. Resumes must be received by Feb. 1.
Faison announced his resignation Dec. 17, but gave no explanation for the decision. He has been city manager for about 4 1/2 years and earns about $63,700 annually. Jan. 16 will be his last day in office. No salary levels have been set for the new manager, city officials said.
Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith said the Florida League of Cities will assist city officials in screening candidates and reviewing qualifications.

Hangout for teens proposed

By LACY DOMEN Herald People Editor

LAKE MARY — If Ed Suggs, vice chairman of the Lake Mary Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, and John Holland, director of Parks and Recreation for the city, have their way, the Community Improvement Association Building will be a great place for teenagers to hang out on Friday nights.
The city has scheduled an open forum Jan. 11 at the CIA Building for parents and interested citizens who may offer suggestions for the Youth Program, to begin operating at the CIA Building Jan. 18. Suggestions from that meeting and in the future will be incorporated into the program as quickly as possible, Holland said.

Suggs, who helped operate a similar program at the Old Lake Mary Fire Station once before, said between 35 and 55 kids participated. He said the program was discontinued.
"When my son Chuck got so sick, I just couldn't do it. It's always been my goal to start it up again. It's to take the kids off the streets, get them to quit sitting on street corners," he said.
Equipment, which had been used in the previous center and then stored, has been dusted off and will be moved to the new location.
Suggs said the new center will feature popcorn, ping-pong, foosball, bumper pool, billiards, video

Fire probe turns up theft suspect

By SUSAN LOEHN Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A man questioned about a Dec. 12 arson that destroyed the westside, 300 block business row of S. Sanford Avenue, has been arrested by Sanford police for a burglary to one of the establishments that burned.
Harold Collins, 30, 3631 Lincoln St., Sanford, is charged with burglary and theft. Sanford Police Investigator Pat Smith arrested Collins at 10:20 p.m. Thursday at the police station. He is accused of burglarizing the AMVETS headquarters at 322 S. Sanford Ave. on Dec. 7. That establishment was destroyed along with Al's Army Navy store, and other establishments in the path of the fire that swept that block.

On Dec. 7 at 12:43 p.m., Officer Arthur Burns reported seeing Collins in Sanford carrying a box that held several packs of cigarettes. At 1:44 a.m. that same day Officer Greg Smith discovered the burglary to AMVETS' building and noted that a cigarette machine had been forced open and all cigarettes stolen, the arrest report said.

Iraq seen deploying thousands of troops

By ROBERT BURNS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon says Iraq is deploying thousands more troops along its border with Saudi Arabia, extending a western front to block any U.S. flanking move around heavily fortified Iraqi forces inside Kuwait.
Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said Thursday that Iraq has added about 20,000 troops to its force in and around Kuwait — mostly on the front west of Kuwait. Extra Iraqi artillery pieces and armored personnel carriers also have been deployed in the western area over the past week or so, he said.

In a "last attempt" at peace in the gulf, President Bush offered Thursday to send Secretary of State James A. Baker III to Geneva for talks with the Iraqi foreign minister, Tariq Aziz, early next week Iraq said it was studying the offer.
Swiss authorities today said Baker is due in Geneva Tuesday night for the U.S.-proposed meeting with Aziz, but the White House said that announcement was premature.

"Nothing has been set" in terms of timing for the Geneva visit, said spokesman Steve Hart.
Geneva city spokesman Ernest Bollinger said the Swiss had informed the White House that Baker planned a 24-hour stay in Geneva. Bollinger added that there has been no official reply from Baghdad yet concerning the proposed meeting.
Baker, interviewed on ABC-TV's "Prime Time" program Thursday night, said he would carry a message from Bush for Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.
In that message, Baker said, "I think the president will be very candid and very frank and he will say, 'There are 12 United Nations Security Council resolutions calling upon you to do certain things, the primary one of which is to withdraw

Florida credit union accounts safe, experts say

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Floridians with deposits in credit union accounts not insured by the government shouldn't worry despite a crisis in another states, financial experts say.
In Rhode Island on Wednesday, Gov. Bruce G. Sundlun closed 35 credit unions and 10 banks after their private insurer asked the state to take over a fund protecting accounts. Depositors were outraged when denied access to their money.
In Florida, the private Florida Credit Union Guaranty Corp. insures 124 state-chartered credit unions. It has a reserve of $15 million for $1.5 billion in deposits.
Of the 360 credit unions in Florida, about 235 are government insured.

"It doesn't have the deep pockets of the federal government, but on a dollar-for-dollar basis it's got more money than the feds," McElroy said.
Tom Farnsworth, an operation specialist with the organization in Orlando, said Florida credit unions don't make the kinds of commercial loans that broke the lending fund in Rhode Island.
"We don't have the same situation here as they did in Rhode Island," he said.
But while banks and savings and loans are guaranteed by the FDIC, there is no government safety net for depositors with money in privately insured credit unions.
Farnsworth said, however, that the fund could borrow money from the National Credit Union Administration, a federal agency, if the need arises.

—Terry McElroy, comptroller spokesman

Comptroller Gerald Lewis' office reported that the Guaranty Corp. has about 93 cents per $100 in deposits compared to 50 cents per $100 the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation has for the U.S. banking system, said Terry McElroy, a spokesman for Lewis.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Parents of raped woman sue officer

MIAMI — The parents of a woman who was raped and strangled have filed a lawsuit against an undercover police officer who spotted the woman having sex in an open lot but allegedly did nothing about it.

Anita Spires, 28, was found dead Jan. 22, 1989, 10 minutes after undercover narcotics officer Robert Beaty came upon Spires and the man, according to police records.

Homicide detectives suspect but have been unable to prove that convicted rapist Charles Henry Williams murdered Spires and as many as 31 other women in a 10-year period.

Spires' parents, Alfonso Spires and Jean Jones, accuse Beaty and at least one other Miami police officer of spotting Spires "being raped or having sexual intercourse forced upon her in the open."

Police records show that Beaty was looking for drug dealers when he found Spires and the man in a trash-littered lot. Beaty returned and found her dead, her neck bruised and her bra torn.

Historic preservation offices to close

ST. AUGUSTINE — A budget-paring plan by Secretary of State Jim Smith would close five state-supported historical preservation offices, but keep open those in St. Augustine and Pensacola, Florida's oldest cities.

The plan, if approved by the Legislature, would cut funding to offices in Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale, Key West, Tallahassee and Tampa, as of July 1.

Eliminating the five offices would save about $800,000 from next year's budget and result in about 18 layoffs, said George Percy, director of the state's Division of Historical Resources.

The St. Augustine and Pensacola offices have a combined budget of about $1.5 million. St. Augustine is the nation's oldest continual city. Pensacola was founded first, but was later abandoned for a short period.

Students try to save beached dolphin

CLEARWATER — University of Illinois students, in town for the Hall of Fame Bowl, tried to save a beached dolphin. They got help, but it was too late.

The dolphin died later at the Clearwater Marine Science Center.

Early Wednesday, some students were walking off their disappointment at the Illinois team's 30-0 loss to Clemson in the New Year's Day bowl game in Tampa.

They came upon the dolphin on Clearwater Beach, said Dennis Kellenberger, center director. "Of course, they had never encountered anything like that, being from Illinois. They were pretty excited."

The animal "was pretty beat up," Kellenberger said. It had serious cuts, was extremely thin and suffered from infection and pneumonia, he said.

Martinez probes sheriff's 'unarrest'

SHALIMAR — Gov. Bob Martinez has appointed a special prosecutor to investigate a sheriff's decision to "unarrest" Shalimar's mayor and the sheriff's refusal to make records of the arrest public.

The governor named State Attorney Jim Appleman of Marianna on Wednesday to investigate the actions of Okaloosa County Sheriff Larry Gilbert.

State Attorney Curtis Golden of Pensacola reversed Gilbert's decision to, as one sheriff said, "unarrest" Mayor Bart Hudson, 33, and asked for the appointment of an outside prosecutor to investigate the sheriff.

Hudson initially was arrested for allegedly masturbating in a public restroom at a park near Crestview on Nov. 5, but Gilbert ordered the charge dropped the next day. More than a month later, Golden filed new charges of lewd and lascivious behavior and committing a lewd act against Hudson.

Chiles picks DNC spokesperson for staff

TALLAHASSEE — The press secretary for Governor-elect Lawton Chiles will be 28-year-old Julie Anbender, who handled media relations for the Democratic National Committee during the 1988 presidential race.

Anbender most recently worked for Gallagher-Widmeyer Group, a Washington, D.C. public relations firm formerly headed by Mary Jane Gallagher, who was named Wednesday as Chiles' communications director.

The Chiles camp also said Thursday that Gallagher, a former television reporter and press secretary to former West Virginia Gov. John D. Rockefeller IV, will earn $90,000 in her new position.

That's $2,000 more a year than incoming Lottery Secretary Marcia Mann, who agreed to accept far less than the $112,000 annually that Rebecca Paul earned in that job under outgoing Gov. Bob Martinez.

Martinez brought in Hugh O'Neill, a veteran Washington public relations hand, in early 1988 as communications director to repair his tattered image following a difficult first year in office. O'Neill left in July 1989 at a salary of $76,000.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Child abuse in state slightly down

By JACKIE MALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Since January 1986 through last June, 114 children were beaten to death in Florida. Twenty-four were shot. Fourteen were suffocated. Ten were drowned. Six were stabbed.

The deaths of another 39 children were also attributed to abuse, including "shaken baby syndrome," fire and other causes.

Seventy-nine of these 207 victims never reached their first birthday. Almost three-quarters — 183 — were babies and toddlers who had not yet turned 4 before they were killed.

A 189-page report issued by the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services Thursday included these and other statistics.

From July 1989 through last June, abusers killed at least 45 children, HRS said. And for the first time ever, six months went by without the abuse death of a child who had ever been in state care.

The 1989-90 fatality figure was up from 41 a year earlier but down from the 52 reported in 1987-88. A year before that, 40 abuse deaths were reported.

Although neglect is a form of abuse, HRS did not include neglect fatalities in its abuse death study because of the difficulty in separating accidents from neglect.

But in light of national data, the agency found encouraging signs in the statistics.

"This second annual report shows that Florida is definitely making progress in combating child abuse," outgoing HRS Secretary Gregory Coler said in a press release accompanying the report. "One death will always be too many, but this study, the second in the history of the department, proves we now have a system in place that can save children's lives."

Coler pointed out in the press release that the rate of child abuse deaths in Florida is less than half the rate for the entire country. In the first half of 1990, 21 abuse deaths in Florida constituted a death rate per 100,000 children of 0.7. The 1989 rate for the nation was 1.94.

And HRS contrasted Florida's 45 child abuse deaths for fiscal year 1989-90 with other large states: Pennsylvania, 55; Texas, 94; California, 97; Illinois, 100; and New York, 187.

The agency also cited a study by the National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse that estimated one third of all U.S. child abuse deaths involved children currently under supervision of the state agencies that investigate abuse.

Police arrest suspect in student death

Associated Press

ST. AUGUSTINE — A 22-year-old man who told police he saw a Flagler College student climb into the back seat of a car shortly before she was reported missing has been arrested for her murder.

Timothy Lee Gatchell of St. Augustine was arrested Thursday for the November murder of Amy Blount, a 21-year-old senior who was majoring in business administration.

But investigators acknowledged later Thursday that Gatchell had not confessed to the killing.

Earlier in the investigation, Gatchell told police he spotted Blount getting into a white, late-model Chevrolet Camaro or Pontiac Firebird with two men after she had several drinks with friends in a local tavern on Nov. 6.

After Blount's remains were discovered late Tuesday afternoon about 8 to 10 miles in an area dotted by homes west of St. Augustine, police decided to question Gatchell again.

Butterworth accuses baby formula firms of conspiring to drive up product costs

By KEITH PHILLIPS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The three companies that control 95 percent of the U.S. infant formula market conspired to drive up the price of their products, according to a civil suit filed by the attorney general's office.

The suit, filed Thursday in U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Florida, accuses Abbott Laboratories of Abbott Park, Ill., American Home Products Corp. of New York City and Bristol-Myers Squibb Company, also of New York City, of violating state and federal anti-trust laws for a series of "lockstep" price increases since 1979.

The suit coincides with a recent federal investigation into infant formula prices that includes the companies.

Attorney General Bob Butterworth said that since 1979, the companies have raised prices 155.4 percent. During the same time, milk increased 36.4 percent and the price of other groceries increased 50.8 percent, Butterworth said.

"The ingredients in infant formula are no different than regular grocery products. The main ingredient in most of the formulas is milk," he said. "There is no reason why the three major companies should have gone up over 150 percent."

Butterworth estimated that consumers paid an extra $1 per can of formula. Some 6 million cans of formula are sold in Florida each month, he said.

Audrey Ashby, director of public communications for Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories — parent company of American Home Products Corp. — denied the allegations and said the company will fight the lawsuit.

"The allegations contained in the complaint are untrue. Abbott Laboratories has never engaged in price fixing, bid-rigging or any other illegal behavior," spokesman Jed Weiner said.

Jerry Elliott, director of corporate communications for Bristol-Myers Squibb, said the company had not seen the suit but said the company never discussed its pricing policies with competitors.

Butterworth said the suit, seeking triple damages and civil penalties of $1 million per company per violation of state law, was filed on behalf of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services — which buys formula for distribution to poor families — and retailers including Publix, Winn Dixie and Toys-R-Us stores.

The attorney general said many retailers — K-Mart, Food Lion and Wal-Mart stores — did not assign their anti-trust claims to the state.

"Many women in our society today just don't have the time to breast feed and are put in the position of having to purchase these particular items which is why we were hoping to have the other (stores) that sell large shares join with us so as to put more pressure on the (producers)," he said.

Representatives of K-Mart and Food Lion said their companies decided to wait and see the outcome of a Federal Trade Commission probe into pricing before taking any action.

The Florida attorney general's office began investigating the possibility of anti-trust violations two years ago. This week, federal authorities also subpoenaed the records of the three companies as well as two others.

There is no reason why the three major companies should have gone up over 150 percent.

Judge awards Bucs fan Super Bowl tickets

Associated Press

TAMPA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers must give one of its fans a pair of Super Bowl XXV tickets to settle a year-long dispute over a promotional contest, a judge ruled.

The ruling by Circuit Court Judge Morton Hanlon came just in time for Joseph M. Cacciatore, a 25-year-old fan with cerebral palsy. He plans to attend the Jan. 27 game with his brother-in-law.

Cacciatore made headlines last fall when he sued the team he has cheered since he was a teen-ager.

According to the contest rules, each season ticket holder was mailed a Christmas card from the team. The lucky recipient who received one signed by then-coach Ray Perkins would win the tickets.

Cacciatore did indeed receive a card in December 1989 signed by coach Perkins, but he was denied his prize when he presented his card.

Bucs officials said the card Cacciatore received was actually a personal greeting from Perkins in response to a card that Cacciatore had sent the coach. The team said the real winning card had already been redeemed.

Cacciatore's attorney, David M. Carr said while the Bucs contended there was almost no chance Perkins' personal greeting could have been included in Cacciatore's Christmas card contest envelope, they couldn't prove it hadn't been inadvertently included.

Rick Odioso, a spokesman for the football team, said the Buccaneers won't appeal the judgment, handed down last week.

Super Bowl XXV inspires second hologram stamp

Associated Press

TAMPA — The Super Bowl, long regarded a unique American institution, now has a postage stamp to prove it.

The stamp, with a silvery, three-dimensional hologram of the Vince Lombardi Trophy, was designed partly to coincide with Super Bowl XXV Jan. 27 at Tampa Stadium, said Frank Thomas, U.S. Postal Service marketing specialist.

The agency plans to take 50,000 of the stamps, which come already attached to envelopes, and sell them along with special cancellation markings commemorating the game, said Joe Culbreath, spokesman for the postal service's Tampa division.

The stamp is the second issued by the postal service using a hologram. In 1989, a hologram stamp featured a space shuttle approaching a space station, with Earth and the moon in the background.

The football design, which also shows three football players backed by a cheering crowd, was initially unveiled last September at a Green Bay Packers game.

POLICE BRIEFS

Seminole County DUI arrests

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI) in Seminole County:
 • Ricky Dale Slaughter, 37, 954204 Forest Ridge Court, Lake Mary, was arrested at 8:33 p.m. Wednesday after his car failed to maintain a single lane on State Road 46, Sanford.
 • Shawn Patrick Treadway, 22, of Deltona, was arrested at 11:12 a.m. Wednesday after his truck ran off U.S. Highway 17-92, south of Sanford.

Woman accused of gunplay

GENEVA — Cynthia Ann Klauk, 35, 488 Eagle Circle, Casselberry, is charged with aggravated assault for allegedly firing two shots at her estranged husband Christmas Day.

Michael Klauk, 1480 Swamp Lane, Geneva, had reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that on Dec. 22, his estranged wife had allegedly called him to say he wouldn't live past Christmas. He had a restraining order against her and had allegedly been cut in the abdomen by Klauk in October, a sheriff's report said. He did not press charges in that case.

The victim said on Christmas when he and his 5-year-old son had exited their house, he thought he saw someone in the living room. He went inside and the suspect entered and allegedly fired a .38-caliber shot at his head. The bullet lodged in the wall behind his head and Michael Klauk fled for shelter behind a kitchen wall. A second shot was fired into a kitchen wall, the report said. The victim threw a chair at the suspect and reportedly took the gun from her.

He called sheriff's deputies, but allowed Cynthia Klauk to leave before they arrived, the report said.

Cynthia Klauk surrendered at the sheriff's office and was arrested Thursday. She is also charged with shooting into an occupied dwelling.

Adult entertainment measure OK'ed

By LAGY DOMEN
 Herald People Editor

LAKE MARY — Erotic dancers who wish to perform in Lake Mary may have a hard time finding a place to work, as city commissioners last night unanimously passed on first reading an ordinance severely restricting adult entertainment establishments within the city limits.

"I don't think you could get more strict unless you have a separation between dancers and patrons," City Planner Matt West told the commission.

Commissioner Tom Mahoney considered West's quip.

"I know that was a joke, but that, too, will be addressed later as a code of conduct for such establishments," he said.

Formerly, any operator of an adult bookstore, adult motion picture theater, massage parlor or adult dancing establishment could purchase a permit for $100 and set up shop in any area zoned commercial, including portions of U.S. Highway 17-92 and Lake Mary Boulevard. With the new ruling, adult entertainment establishments will be banished to M-2A zoning areas and cannot exist within 1,500 feet of another such business, a pre-existing religious institution, school, liquor store, bar or residential area. No liquor will be served or sold at such an establishment. West cited six possible locations within the city that fit these conditions.

"We're working hard to minimize this type of commercial venture," City Attorney Ned Julian said.

Julian said the Florida Supreme Court ruled a city cannot eliminate what it considers an undesirable use if the business is legal.

"You can regulate it, but not eliminate it," he said of adult entertainment, which is legal in Florida. "We're attempting to provide the strictest regulations."

All five commissioners voted to adopt the new, stricter ordinance, which will come before Lake Mary residents in a public hearing at a later, unscheduled date.

"We had a commitment to our children and families to do this," Commissioner David Meador said.

State Supreme Court says 'ill fame' charge too vague

By JACKIE MALLIFAX
 Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — For 122 years, operating a house of "ill fame" has been a felony in Florida. But the state Supreme Court ended that era when it dropped the charges against the operator of a nude dancing bar in Tampa.

Also Thursday, Florida's high court said the charge against the owner of an adult theater in Tampa must be dismissed.

The court said the term "ill fame" in the statute, first put on the books in 1868, was un-constitutionally vague.

"While the general population might have understood the meaning of 'ill fame' a century ago, the lack of definition ... is fatal to its continued validity," Justice Parker Lee McDonald wrote in the majority opinion.

"Since the Legislature first adopted the ill-fame statute both our society and our language have changed. The statute, however, has not."

Although the statute that makes it a third-degree felony to keep "a house of ill fame, resorted to for the purpose of prostitution or lewdness" has been invalidated, it is still a second-degree misdemeanor to "keep, set up, maintain or operate any place, structure, building or conveyance for the purpose of lewdness, assignation or prostitution."

A third-degree felony is punishable by five years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine. A second-degree misdemeanor is punishable by 60 days in jail and a $500 fine.

"There are plenty of statutes on the books which still allow law enforcement to take action against prostitution," Attorney General Bob Butterworth said.

The decision came in a Tampa case in which a trial judge dismissed charges against Kathleen Warren, who ran a nude dancing bar. A district appeals court had reversed that decision, and the case was appealed to the state's high court.

"I kind of think people would think a house of ill fame would be a house of prostitution," Butterworth said. "They may not think a house of ill fame ... would house a topless dancer doing so-called 'lap dancing.' So the Supreme Court probably made the appropriate decision."

Patrols step up as Volusia bars reopen

Associated Press

SPRING HILL — A sheriff's order temporarily closing three bars in a high-crime area of Volusia County expired today as law enforcement officers intensified patrols to squelch drug dealing and violence.

A disk jockey arrested Wednesday faces trial on a charge of attempted murder as a result of a New Year's morning shooting attack against a deputy driving through the area.

The patrol car was riddled by six rifle bullets fired from a wooded lot next to one of the bars, but deputy Greg Piser was not hurt.

Volusia County Sheriff Bob Vogel on Tuesday shut down the three bars and a pool hall for 72 hours.

"We felt there was imminent danger to all citizens," Vogel said. "Anybody who's aggressive enough to shoot at a deputy sheriff threatens the public."

Area law enforcement officials said Vogel's action appeared to be justified under the state law, which was amended extensively in the late 1980s in response to civil disturbances.

Kevin Lamar Gillislee, 24, was arrested and charged in the shooting incident after a struggle with deputies at his DeLand home Wednesday night. About a dozen officers assisted in the arrest.

"He was certainly considered dangerous," said sheriff's spokeswoman Cheryl Downs. "It was a volatile situation. He was fighting, trying to get away."

Gillislee is a disk jockey at the Silver Shadow bar in Spring Hill. The other bars closed were the Virgin Queen and the Friction Disco.

The owner of the Silver Shadow, Willie Ware, said the sheriff's actions were excessive.

"It wasn't our fault," Ware said. "Just because the police got shot or hit or something, why punish the business for it?"

The sheriff's office began intensive patrolling about 18 months ago at the request of residents of the unincorporated area after a sharp increase in drug trafficking and violence.

Two men were fatally shot in the neighborhood in October 1989. Since then, the sheriff's office and a citizens committee have worked to clean up the area.

The sheriff's office had learned from informants about threats that a deputy would be killed on the New Year's holiday unless the patrols were stopped, said sheriff's legal adviser Nancy Egg.

Although deputies have been fired at before in Spring Hill, this was the first time the shots seemed intended to kill, said deputy Ed Bowman. But the officers are not intimidated, he said.

"I'm not leaving and I'm not getting reassigned," said Bowman, who helped raid two houses in Spring Hill in November for drugs and guns.

Sheriff Vogel, who gained widespread publicity as a Florida Highway Patrol trooper stopping suspected drug traffickers along Interstate 95, said closing the bars was justified to remove about 400 people milling around the businesses where the patrol car was hit.

Educational exports

Year after year, one of the most successful American exports is higher education. In 1989-90, according to a new report from the Institute of International Education, the number of foreign students in this country — 386,000 — hit another all-time record. At the same time, an increasing percentage of doctorates in scientific and technical areas is going to foreign students. In fields such as mathematics and engineering, it's more than half.

That's hardly all bad, not only because it indicates that in fields such as business management, engineering and computer science, American universities have highly respected programs, but because America's stature and influence abroad can only benefit when so many of the future leaders of foreign countries are U.S.-trained. Significantly, in 1989-90, the largest number of foreign students in America, 33,400, came from mainland China. Given such numbers, it's not surprising that there have been student uprisings against the regime in China.

And yet, there's also cause for real concern. One of the reasons that foreign students are so dominant in certain fields, especially at the graduate level, is that there are so few qualified American applicants. In the 10 years after 1978, a time when there was new emphasis on the need for vigorous growth, the number of American citizens receiving doctorates in science and engineering actually declined. Part of the reason is that there were good jobs in American industry for people with less than a doctorate, but that doesn't explain the fact that even when admissions committees leaned over backward for U.S. applicants, foreign applicants were often better qualified. Many graduate departments now depend on foreign students.

It was always reassuring that a substantial proportion of foreign students stayed in this country after they finished their formal training. Last year, there were 47,000 foreign scholars doing research at U.S. universities. But in the past five years, as economic conditions have improved in their native countries, many foreign graduates of U.S. universities have been lured back by a combination of higher wages and cultural loyalty. Now, in addition, NEC, Matsushita and other Japanese computer and electronics firms, are opening laboratories in this country, thereby threatening to draw the best American scientists away from the one area — basic research — in which this country still has a clear advantage.

That, too, could turn into a partial blessing, providing greater opportunities for U.S. scientists (or for foreign scientists trained in the United States) as well as a jolt to U.S. industry to be more enterprising in finding and marketing practical applications for the principles and processes that merge from basic research. Yet unless the nation can induce more young Americans to enter technical fields, give them the discipline and schooling needed to compete with foreign students and offer the financial resources to enable them to complete their Ph.D., the country will have neither the scientists and engineers for its industrial growth nor, in the long run, even the teachers to train them.

Active retirement

For many people in our nation guided by a strong work ethic, retirement can be more a burden than punching the clock.

Now there are jobs available for retirees and others with time on their hands that keep you productive and relaxed at the same time. They don't pay much, in fact, some don't pay anything at all, except fresh air and beautiful, natural working conditions.

Our national parks, national forests and other public lands need volunteers to act as trail workers, wildlife observers, researchers, fire lookouts, campground hosts and wilderness guides. The American Hiking Society, 1015 31st St. NW, Washington, D.C. 20007, publishes an annual directory of more than 2,000 jobs in all 50 states.

How about retiring at Admiralty National Monument, a wilderness area on an island in the Alaska panhandle? The volunteer directory lists a job as wilderness ranger on this undeveloped island that "is known for its concentrations of bald eagles and brown bear populations." The work includes trail maintenance and "providing information at our bear-viewing area." There's no pay, but you get food and a cot in a bunkhouse on your days off.

Some retirees spend most of the year moving from one volunteer job to the next in wilderness areas from Maine to Louisiana to Oregon, enjoying America's scenery that they never saw while working 8 to 5. That's active retirement for you.

Bush faced with supreme challenge

WASHINGTON — President Bush is at the crossroads of his presidency.

With two years to go, he must resolve the Persian Gulf crisis, preferably peacefully. Looming on the horizon also is a grinding recession that will bring demands for more government assistance for the jobless.

There is no indication that Bush or his advisers have any bright new ideas to bring the economy around and to put people back to work in the next few months. So problems on the domestic front are bound to grow.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole recently said Bush was at the "make or break" point of his presidency.

It was bound to happen to Bush, or any other president, sooner or later. He went into the Oval Office with supreme assurance, confident that he could handle anything thrown at him.

For all his troubles, he insists he is sleeping well at night. He told Time magazine in its "Man of the Year" interview that he is determined to make the tough decisions. "And I am not churning about it," he said, "because I know what has to be done."

Iraq's Saddam Hussein may think that Bush is not ready to bite the bullet. But aides surrounding him believe that he has come to terms with the U.N.-imposed deadline for Iraq to pull out of Kuwait. But the next two weeks will show a frenetic drive to find a solution short of war.

No Hamlet is Bush. He is not one to concentrate on his navel. To be or not to be is not his repertoire. He is what he is and he does not intend to waver in the contest that has taken the U.S.-led coalition and Iraq to the brink of war.

When he decided to break away from Camp David for a few hours and return to the White House a news agency wrote that Bush was "bored to tears" during his long sojourn at the mountaintop hideaway over the yuletide season. In response, he insisted that he was having a wonderful time, telling reporters: "My wife, Barbara and me, we sit by the fire. We have a wonderful time ... get on the long-distance phone ... dial it up."

He also reported that it was the "Bush family two to one against the Marines" who guard the presidential retreat in "wallyball."

So he works hard and plays hard, and admonished that everyone should take time out to relax.

Bush is capable of an eyeball confrontation, and does believe from a lifetime of experience that Iraq should not be allowed to gobble up its neighbor. He also has a larger vision that if the Iraq aggression can be nipped in the bud, the way will open for a "new world order" where international law and collective security will be the wave of the future.

He also feels the pressure of time not being on his side. He has been told that the battle lines have to be drawn at least by February so that the United States will not get bogged down in weather problems or the Moslem religious fasting month of Ramadan in March.

Bush long ago set his goal to run for president. He has watched presidents fall by the wayside, many through their own mistakes. Few have reached greatness, and none of them could foresee the pitfalls before them.

No matter how much a man watches from the sidelines, it does not quite prepare him.

"They've become more candid about their mistakes, but I don't think it's going to play well with the taxpayers much longer."

Cruzan finally rests in peace

BOSTON — Death did not come gently to Nancy Cruzan.

It took almost eight years from the car accident that left her unconscious to the death certificate. It took almost three years from the time her parents asked to end treatment to the time a Missouri court agreed. It took 12 days from the moment the feeding tube was removed to the moment she stopped breathing.

The last week in the life of the young woman whose body was locked in a fetal position and whose mind was permanently obliterated, was not easy either. Pickets appeared on the hospital lawn. Protesters forced their way onto her floor. Reporters stood death watch, sending out updates on the deteriorating condition.

Joe and Joyce Cruzan, for their part, spent days in their daughter's room and nights in the mobile home set up on the hospital lawn. But in the end, they wrestled from the state and from modern medicine, the terrible right to bury their child.

Her death did not come gently to any of the Cruzans.

I will spare the family any message about the larger good in their loss. They have been through enough. I can only imagine how this ordeal prolonged and distorted their mourning. There is no upbeat, sunny side for the family.

But for those of us who knew not Nancy Cruzan but the inanimate Cruzan Case, there is an extraordinary legacy. The Cruzan case, like that of Karen Ann Quinlan, became a story that made America talk publicly and at length about death in the technological age.

In the press, the case was often cast as the right to die versus the right to life. In the courtroom, especially the Supreme Court, it was about the right of families versus the right of the state.

But in the everyday language of Americans talking to each other, Nancy Cruzan's terrible fate made spouses as well as lawyers, friends as well as legislators, talk about the quality of life and the quality of mercy. We were forced to confront the paradox that the same technology that can save us can also doom us to what Nancy's own doctor called "a living hell."

As Daniel Callahan, the director of the Hastings Center said in a sort of eulogy, "There is the balance of Greek tragedy here. We want the very advances that have given us this problem."

For much of human history, the medicine man or woman was also the caretaker. Medical mercy meant helping people, and helping people often meant helping them to die peacefully.

But in our lifetime, medicine improved in its ability to save life and doctors redefined kindness as a cure. Death became a technological failure.

As Callahan says, "The National Heart and Lung Institute is not set up to allow us to die more peacefully from heart disease but to cure it."

Our gratitude to science, our own passionate pursuit of medical salvation, now comes with increasing unease about this same technology. We fear that there may be too much of a good thing. That we can't stop it.

This is what Nancy Cruzan came to represent as she lay twisted, bloated, unconscious, in her hospital bed. As people came to feed her what the hospital ludicrously called "supper." As the doctors described her condition as a "persistent vegetative state." As others argued — is this better? — that they had seen tears in her eyes.

She came to represent the unintended consequences of technology, the side effects of our best intentions, the cruelty of our modern medical mercy. She came to represent something worse than death.

In time, people may wonder why Americans spent so much time arguing about sustaining one unconscious woman while so many others in our society died for lack of medical care. They may wonder, how on the brink of deliberate killing of thousands — in war — we paid so much attention to the quality of one life.

But every family that has been prompted to talk about life and death, every hospital that has been forced to think about aggressive treatment, every medical school that has been prodded to teach young doctors about dying, has a piece of Nancy Cruzan's legacy.

May she, at long last, rest in peace.

There is no upbeat, sunny side for the family.

Paderewski home after 50-year stay

WARSAW, Poland — The body of a legendary pianist and Polish patriot, who died in New York in 1941, will be going home this year on the 50th anniversary of his death. But his heart will stay in America, literally.

Unusual and confidential negotiations recently resulted in an agreement by the United States to return the remains of Ignace Jan Paderewski to Poland.

Paderewski, President Franklin D. Roosevelt had vowed that Paderewski's body, sealed in a zinc casket at Arlington National Cemetery, would not be returned to Poland until the country was free again.

The man who tipped us off to the secret "body talks" was Tadeusz Mazowiecki, who recently resigned as Poland's prime minister. He was openly puzzled at being stalled by the White House on the hoped-for return of the remains. One of Mazowiecki's first actions when he became prime minister in 1989 was to inquire about the return of the pianist's body. But he hit red tape in Washington. Mazowiecki visited Arlington last March on a state visit, but still had received no formal promise to return the body to Poland. So a prominent American of Polish ancestry, Lt. Gen. Edward Rowny, got involved in July. He had been chief negotiator for the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks, and this was a job that needed a negotiator. Rowny went to Poland as a private citizen and talked to Mazowiecki and Solidarity leader Lech Walesa. Both were emphatic that Paderewski must be returned.

"For some reason that I cannot explain to you," Mazowiecki told us, "the American government has to take a position on this. We would like to get his body back, so I wrote a letter concerning this to President Bush." That confidential letter, sent Aug. 29, is laudable, but firm: "Poland recalls with gratitude that the remains of one of her most revered and cherished sons ... have been under the care of the United States of America (until) 'Poland shall be free.' ... It would be most appropriate to begin planning for Paderewski's remains to be interred in Poland on the 50th anniversary of his death on June 29, 1991. These plans could be made final in early May 1991."

Mazowiecki heard nothing from the White House before he stepped down from office. But on Dec. 14, the Polish government got a message from the State Department saying the Poles could have their pianist back in time for the anniversary, but that a committee was being formed to oversee the transfer "with full honor and dignity." Nothing gets done in Washington without a committee. One thing the Poles won't get is Paderewski's heart.

Perhaps following the example of his predecessor, Polish-born composer Frederic Chopin (whose heart was enshrined in Warsaw separate from his body) Paderewski ordered that upon his death his heart be removed from his body and buried separately. He directed that it never leave America, and that the rest of his remains should stay in America until Poland was free. But since Paderewski never served in the U.S. military, he could not be buried at Arlington. Instead, his body is in the concrete base of a memorial that holds the mast of the battleship "Maine," which was sunk in Havana harbor in 1898, beginning the Spanish-American war. Paderewski's heart is in a shrine built by the Pauline Fathers in Doylestown, Pa. For propaganda purposes, the successive communist governments of Poland during the Cold War demanded the return of the body, but were rejected.

Nothing gets done in Washington without a committee.

Lake Mary slates park dedication

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary City Commissioners last night set the formal dedication of Central Park for April, in conjunction with Arbor Week.

Parks and Recreation Director John Holland had suggested the dedication coincide with a symbolic action such as a tree planting, with plaques to follow when funding by the city is appropriated. He said lead time for ordering plaques is lengthy and plaques will cost between $2,000 and $5,000.

Commissioner David Meador, who is chairman of the Council of Local Governments, said the group would like to provide a large tree for Central Park's dedication.

Commissioner Tom Mahoney asked that the large tree be the focal point of the dedication, centered around Arbor Day.

Homeless activist gets national post

ORLANDO — The director of the Coalition for the Homeless of Central Florida is becoming spokesman for the National Coalition for the Homeless, a lobbying group in Washington D.C.

Fred Karnas, 42, came to Orlando from Phoenix, Ariz., two years ago to supervise three shelters for the homeless in the Orlando area.

Cushing Dolbar, a board member and acting director of the national group, said her organization sought out Karnas because of his innovative record in Arizona. Karnas directed a multi-shelter housing program there.

The national coalition lobbies for funding for low-cost housing and educates the public about the needs of the homeless, said Dolbar.

sanctions have made life more difficult.

Jordan is Baghdad's only steady link with the rest of the world because of the United Nations' air and sea blockade in retaliation for Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion, and subsequent annexation, of Kuwait.

Iraqis flying in from Jordan are toting suitcases filled with sugar, tea, powdered milk, even hard-boiled eggs.

A dozen eggs cost 8 dinars, or $24 at the artificially high official rate of exchange in Baghdad. The price is beyond the reach of most Iraqis who earn on average the equivalent of about $600 a month.

Also in short supply are meat, rice, beans and medicines, with the prices of all goods hiked by up to 700 percent.

"No doubt it is hurting us. But an Arab will go hungry but never give away his honor," Information and Culture Minister Latif Jassim said of the impact of the sanctions. Health Minister Abdul Salam

Mohammad Sa'id said at least 2,042 Iraqi children below the age of five have died since August because of a lack of medicines.

The report cannot be independently verified.

"People are complaining," said a Western diplomat. "But they are complaining to themselves only. There is no sign that it will snowball into an anti-government feeling or protest, not yet."

"If you are thinking that people will come on the street shouting 'Down with Saddam,' you are wrong," said an Asian diplomat. "The time has not come for anything like that."

"And there is no way we can judge the impact of the sanctions on the Iraqi war machine until they are put to the test by a military confrontation," he added.

U.S. presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater said Thursday that the United States had concluded sanctions alone would not force Saddam to withdraw from Kuwait.

"We don't have months and days and years. We have a United Nations deadline that represents the thinking of the entire world that enough is enough. Time's up," Fitzwater said.

The U.N. Security Council authorized the use of force against Iraq if it does not leave Kuwait by Jan. 15.

CIA director William Webster said Wednesday that Iraqi industry had been hard-hit, with more than 90 percent of imports and 97 percent of exports shut off.

But in congressional testimony he said there was no guarantee that economic hardship would lead to internal unrest or compel Saddam to change his policies.

During a 280-mile journey from Baghdad to the village of Judayyidat Ar'ar on the Saudi border, none of a dozen factories along the way appeared to be in operation.

Stray dogs and camels roamed outside locked cement, cigarette and fertilizer factory gates.

"They are all closed now, there is no raw material to run them," said an Iraqi official.

But some food mainstays are still available at roadside desert stands.

"We still have plenty of chicken, even in the desert, to eat and Pepsi to wash them down," said another official.

In Baghdad, a city of 4 million people, there are no visible shortages, except for the rationed items of rice, sugar, flour, cooking oil, beans, tea, milk powder and detergents.

Shop windows display a cornucopia of goods, which the Iraqis say are from their 19th province — Kuwait.

On sale on a recent day were green asparagus from New Zealand, luncheon meat from Holland, Swiss milk chocolate, green peas with carrots from Spain, mango pickles from India, caviar from Iran, and hot pepper sauce from the United States.

Nearly all the containers carry the markings of a Kuwaiti importer.

"We are managing," said an Iraqi father of three children. "So long as the government continues to give us subsidized food it is OK."

from Kuwait completely and unconditionally."

"If they fully comply with the ... resolutions, they can expect that we will not exercise force against them," the secretary said. "We hope that Iraq picks up on this because this will be the last such proposal we will make."

But, Baker said, "I'm not as optimistic now about the possibility (of a settlement) as I was before Christmas."

Bush outlined his proposal to House and Senate leaders as lawmakers returned to Washington for the opening of the new Congress. He said any Baker-Axis meeting would be "only to underscore the U.S. determination that Iraq comply with the U.N. deadline for withdrawing from Kuwait by Jan. 15."

"No negotiations, no compromises, no attempts at face-saving and no rewards for aggression," the president said.

U.S. military officials have declined to say how many Iraqi troops are on the defensive front west of Kuwait. Williams said most of the 530,000 Iraqis deployed in defense of occupied Kuwait are inside the tiny gulf emirate.

Army officers have said one option if Bush orders an offensive campaign to oust Iraq from Kuwait would be a flanking move by U.S. armored forces to the west of the main Iraqi defenses. Iraq has used the five months since its invasion Aug. 2 to fortify its defensive positions in Kuwait with earthen barriers, anti-tank ditches, land mines and wire barricades.

Williams also announced Thursday that an additional 10,000 American troops had arrived in the gulf area, including elements of the famed "Big Red One" 1st Infantry Division from Fort Riley, Kan.

The U.S. force in the region now stands at 335,000 and is expected to reach about 430,000 by month's end. The Pentagon said 245,500 troops from allied nations are in the area.

Williams said the Iraqis have deployed 200 more armored personnel carriers and infantry fighting vehicles, for a total of 2,700, and an additional 300 artillery pieces, for a total of 3,000. He gave no comparable figures for U.S. forces.

The Pentagon also announced Thursday that vaccination of U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf, as protection against germ warfare by Iraq, will begin this week.

The Defense Department last month confirmed that it planned to vaccinate soldiers against unspecified germ warfare agents to offset a possible biological attack by Iraqis.

Saddam is known to be developing biological warfare agents, and Williams said the United States began laying the groundwork for a large-scale vaccination program "a day or so" after Iraq invaded Kuwait.

It has taken five months to begin the vaccinations, which Williams described as a series of shots for each individual, because the United States had low stocks. He declined to say whether all U.S. troops in the region would be vaccinated.

The spokesman said he could provide no details on the types of agents the U.S. troops will be vaccinated against, but U.S. military medical specialists in Saudi Arabia have said the main agent of concern is anthrax, an animal disease that can be transmitted to humans.

games and "any kind of music the kids want to hear."

"We have a stereo. And they can play the radio," he added.

Lake Mary residents Larry and Cindy Dale have also donated a pool table, which is under renovation.

Suggs said he hopes the kids who patronize the center will form their own youth club, complete with officers.

"We adults would supervise it, but they would have their own responsibility," he said. The center will have rules, including sign-in sheets.

"We had a little problem once before with a few kids not going home after they left here. It only happened one time," he said.

Holland said he is excited about the Jan. 11, 7 p.m. public meeting and about working with youth in the community.

"I'm looking forward to this worthwhile program," he said.

"I'd like this to be a very active program," Suggs said.

Tribe returns with win over Silver Hawks

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald sports writer

SANFORD — Seminole High School didn't let a two-week layoff slow down its pre-Christmas momentum as the Tribe upset Lake Howell 74-68 in a Seminole Athletic Conference boys' basketball contest at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium Thursday night.

Seminole posted its third straight win to continue its recovery from an 0-8 start at the expense of the Silver Hawks, who were coming off a championship in the Central Florida Classic and a respectable showing in the Great Sun Coast Shootout at St. Petersburg last week.

Seminole improved to 1-1 in the conference with the win and will look to go over the .500 mark in a home game against DeLand at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Lake Howell, 8-5 overall and 1-1 in the conference, will host Lake Brantley tonight at 8 p.m. in a rematch of the Central Florida Classic finals.

"I think they (Lake Howell) were a little flat," said Seminole coach Greg Robinson. "They had played seven games in nine days and I think that played into our hands."

"They weren't the same team I saw in the Central Florida Classic and I'm glad."

The Silver Hawks' biggest lead of the game came at the outset as they took a 10-4 advantage behind four points each from Thomas Demps and Roger Johnson.

But Robert Redding came off the bench to hit a three-pointer to start the Tribe on a 9-0 run to give Seminole a 13-10 lead. Lake Howell would lead 14-13 after one quarter, however, as Josh Kohn hit a three-pointer and Joe Smith hit one free throw.

Seminole took its biggest lead of the first half, six points, by out-scoring the Silver Hawks 12-5 to take a 25-19 lead with 3:06 left before intermission. The Tribe took a 29-27 lead into the lockerroom when Carlo White grabbed a rebound off a missed free throw and scored at the buzzer.

The third quarter was close throughout with neither team able to take more than a four-point advantage. Lake Howell trimmed a point off Seminole's lead and the score was 49-48 heading into the last eight minutes of play.

Seminole took control of the game in the middle of the final stanza and stretched its lead to as many as 10 points, 68-58, before a pair of three-pointers by the Silver Hawks

'Hounds speed past cold Rams

By TONY DeBORRNER
 Herald Sports Editor

LAKE MARY — One coach's elation is another coach's frustration.

On Thursday night, as Lyman's Steve Carmichael looked on in delight and Lake Mary's Anna Van Landingham watched in horror, the Lyman Greyhounds outscored the host Lake Mary Rams 25-6 over the final 14:48 to post a 44-35 Seminole Athletic Conference girls' basketball victory.

After Lake Mary took a 23-17 lead at halftime, Karen Morris scored six of the first eight points of the second half to give the Rams a 29-19 advantage with 6:48 remaining in the third quarter.

The Rams wouldn't score again until Morris sank a free throw with 4:23 left in the game, a span of 10:25. By that time, the Greyhounds had slowly chipped away and had forged a 34-29 lead.

Seminole, Lake Mary, Lake Brantley net soccer wins

From staff reports

SANFORD — Dawn Burks scored four goals and Sabrina Reali added two as Seminole thumped DeLand 6-0 in a Seminole Athletic Conference girls' soccer match Thursday night at Seminole High School's Thomas E. Whigham Stadium.

Burks gave Seminole a lead 38 seconds into the match, scoring on an assist from Valerie Bengé. Reali made it 2-0 with a goal in the 36th minute. Reali then scored the first goal of the second half on a corner kick from Jennifer Bengé before Burks scored the game's final three goals.

"We ended 1990 with a win and we started 1991 with a win," said Seminole Coach Suzy Reno, whose team hasn't played since Dec. 15. "I hope that's a good omen."

Seminole took 26 shots on goal and had six corner kicks. Goalkeeper Christy Oliver made five saves in posting the shutout.

"Everyone played well," said Reno. "We played the second string a lot tonight and they played well."

Now 8-6 overall and 2-6 in the SAC, Seminole will play again Saturday in a 5 p.m. game at Mainland.

Lake Mary knocks off Lyman

LONGWOOD — After Dana Hoover and Julie Baumhofer each scored a goal in the game's first five minutes, Lake Mary hung on to topple Lyman 2-0 in Seminole Athletic Conference girls' soccer action Thursday night.

Goalies Jen Preston and Megan Coduto combined on the shutout for Lake Mary, totalling 10 saves on Lyman's 14 shots on goal. Coduto, who came in when Preston was shaken up, made several great saves in the final 40 minutes frustrate the Greyhounds, who dominated the second half.

Lake Mary took seven shots on goal, forcing Lyman "keeper" Becky Carr to make four saves. Lyman had a 3-1 advantage in corner kicks.

Hoover put the Rams ahead to stay when she converted a penalty kick just 1:30 into the game. Baumhofer scored just three minutes later.

Lake Mary, 7-4-5 overall and 5-1-2 in the conference, hosts Deltona this Saturday. Lyman, 13-2-1 and 5-2-1 in the SAC, plays at Bishop Moore in a 3:30 p.m. game Saturday.

Lake Brantley beats Lake Howell

Seminole

Continued from 1B kept the score close. "I thought we played sloppy in the first three quarters then picked it up in the fourth," said Robinson. "I felt Carlo (White) and Shawn (Washington) played their best games of the year. "I was impressed with Josh's (Kohn) ball-handling and with the way Ryan Thomas played for them, but our kids are starting to do what we want them to do and that's what it takes." Kerry Wiggins led four Seminoles into double figures with 19 points. Also in doubles were Washington (16), White (14) and J.J. Wiggins (10). Kerry Wiggins also had 12 rebounds and four steals. Washington grabbed nine rebounds and blocked two shots and J.J. Wiggins handed out 12 assists. For Lake Howell, Kohn had a game high 25-points and five assists. Thomas Depps added 15 points and seven rebounds and Johnson scored 12 points. Thomas had the best all-around game for the Silver Hawks with nine points, 10 rebounds, two assists, three steals, one blocked shot and one charge taken. In junior varsity action Ricky and Richard Anderson, Jonathan Montgomery, Derrick Gilchrist and Matt Parker led the way as Seminole remained undefeated at 4-0 with a 73-44 shellacking of the Silver Hawks.

Lyman

Continued from 1B It would be another 2:43 and another five Lyman points before Lake Mary would score again. Tara Huff's three-point field goal cut the Greyhounds' lead to 39-36. Melissa Mau scored her only basket of the game 27 seconds later to slice the lead to 39-35, but Lyman converted five of six free throws during the final minute to seal the victory. "We didn't play real well defensively in the first half and we missed a lot of easy shots," said Carmichael. "I have to give my assistant, Lisa Little, a lot of credit. She talked to the team at halftime and got them motivated. And the kids, they came out and played their hearts out in the second half." The only real adjustment Lyman made in the second half was to expand its zone defense a few feet and try and get a hand in the face of Morris, who scored 13 first-half points. But the real key was rebounding, the Greyhounds converted several stickbacks while limiting Lake Mary to single shots on the defensive end. Keecah Robinson and Lasha Smith combined for over 25 rebounds alone. "We've been very consistent on the boards all year long," said Carmichael. "We work a lot on box-out drills in practice. We also have a little height advantage. The girls played hard tonight. "When we got back to within four points, that was big key. We just kept chipping away. You don't get back from 10 points in one play. It was a total team effort." For the Rams, the collapse was also a team effort. "We came out cold and just couldn't seem to get our heads together," said Van Landingham. "We tried to work the ball around and get something going but it didn't happen." Lake Mary's offensive scheme deteriorated into getting Morris the ball and watching her take it to the hoop. That worked in the first half as she scored 13 of the Rams' first 15 points. She made 8 of her first 14 shots but cooled off, missing the mark on her final 8 attempts. "We can't depend on Karen to score all the points," said Van Landingham. "Someone else has to step up, work the ball on offense and open things up. Marti (Citraria), Lisa (Mason) and Dawn (Judd) started doing that in the second quarter, but we came out cold in the third quarter." Morris finished with a game-high 20 points. Judd added six while Huff had her three-pointer. Jennifer Kruger led Lyman with 16 points with Smith kicking in nine, Robinson contributing 7 and Shima Clark netting six. Lyman, now 7-3 overall and 4-0 in the SAC, hosts conference leader Seminole next Tuesday night in a boys-girls doubleheader. Lake Mary, 7-6 and 3-2, hosts Deltona on Saturday night.

A glamorous animal trainer cracks the whip at the Great American Circus coming to Sanford Jan. 24.

Everybody loves the circus

SANFORD — Allan C. Hill's Great American Circus will arrive with its entourage of magnificent entertainers and animals on Thursday, Jan. 24, at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m., Pinecrest Shopping Center, Sanford. The circus will travel over 30,000 miles on its zigzag course through 18 states. Some of the features include daring aerial acts, wild and exotic animals, and the whimsical wackiness of the clowns.

Advance discount tickets are available at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. Regular $10 tickets are $8 in advance. Free children's tickets are available at the following merchants: all 7-11 stores, Save-A-Lot, Fun and Games, Specs Music and Jan's Produce. Children's tickets at the door are $5.

The circus utilizes 15 trucks to transport a menagerie of captivating creatures and praiseworthy performers. These trucks travel approximately 450,000 road miles as they move from town to town with amazing speed and efficiency, expending approximately 45,000 gallons of fuel yearly.

The circus is self-contained, supplies its own electricity through a specialized power plant, mounted on a semi-trailer. The "cookhouse" prepares and serves around 8,000 meals yearly. Sleeping facilities are provided for 90 to 100 crew members as well. The well-traveled animals of the circus require special care also. The elephants alone will each consume five to ten bales of hay daily, totaling over 78,000 pounds yearly. These awesome behemoth pachyderms need over 100 gallons of water daily. The average elephant weighs anywhere from five to ten tons, which makes the reality of 78,000 pounds of hay consumed yearly a little easier to believe. There are two kinds of elephants, the Asian and the African. Asian elephants have smaller ears and are much easier to domesticate. African elephants have very large, flowing ears and are very hard to train.

The huge canvas big top covers approximately 22,500 square feet, which measures about a half an acre. There are 300,000 lineal feet of canvas, and the rope used to hold it all together measures five miles in length. The "raising of the tent" occurs around 7:30 a.m. daily, and is a spectacle which usually draws a sizeable crowd. The elephants are used to help put up and take down the BIG TOP. These pachyderm workhorses raise the tent poles, pull up the tent stakes, and occasionally pull the trucks out of the mud on rainy days. In fact, the elephants were originally used to pull wagons and trucks from the mud, prior to the training of elephants for performances. To this day, all tent circuses are still called, "Mudshows."

Don't miss this spectacle when the Great American Circus rolls into town, and sets up this small city to perform for the kids of all ages.

Sleepy smoker hazardous to family's health

DEAR ABBY: I have a very serious problem that could be a matter of life or death. My husband falls asleep while he's smoking cigarettes. I just found another 3-inch-long burn on my sofa. There are 15 burn holes in the carpet in front of the sofa, 10 burn holes on the coffee table — not to mention the burnholes in my sheets and in the carpet beside our bed.

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Twice I have been awakened by our fire alarm — and found smoke rolling through the house because he fell asleep while cooking breakfast. The first time, he was cooking bacon, and it burned a two-foot area on the kitchen floor. The second time, he fell asleep while boiling eggs. This is a constant source of fear and fights in our house. I have begged, pleaded, threatened and have even thrown his clothes on the porch over this, but it keeps happening. Sometimes I catch him, but most of the time, I find another burn hole. A few years ago, he was told he had a disorder called "sleep apnea" — he stops breathing while he's asleep. Could this be related to his problem?

5-year-old daughter who is blind. She is constantly confronted with pity — a reaction she does not understand. Strangers come up to her saying, "Oh, bless your heart. You poor little thing!" Abby, my daughter is not a "poor little thing." She is a beautiful, happy, healthy child who cannot figure out why people she has never met before are touching her and feeling sorry for her. It seems that ignorance still runs rampant in the 1990s, and blind people are still considered helpless. Please, let sighted people know that — like them — blind people will ask for help if and when it is needed, and they do not appreciate being patronized. Contrary to popular belief, blind people can hear, think, speak and feel, and they are not to be pitied.

AFRAID OF FIRE IN LAKE CITY, ARK.
DEAR ABBY: Please get your husband to a physician before the sun sets on another day! He needs a total evaluation of his physical and mental condition. In the meantime, he should not smoke in the house unless he's supervised. His life, and the lives of everyone in your family, depend upon it.

BARTANA PARENT
DEAR PARENT: I have had many letters from sightless people asking me to remind sighted people of the important message in your letter. A major complaint: When a blind person is accompanied by a sighted person while traveling, the sighted person will be asked, "And what will your friend have?"

DEAR ABBY: I have a

CONFIDENTIAL TO HURDING IN LAWRENCE, KAN.: It takes a friend and an enemy to really hurt you: the enemy to say something rotten about you, and the "friend" to tell you about it.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I dine out at a restaurant, we have encountered what we consider a disgusting, offensive practice. When we are in the middle of our meal, invariably some middle-aged to older man at another table will whip out a handkerchief and vigorously blow his nose, making loud honking noises. Obviously this does little for our appetite and dining pleasure. Naturally, we would never bring this to the attention of the offending person, so we thought Dear Abby would relay the following message: "There are at least two people on this planet who regard blowing one's nose at the table as grossly ill-mannered."

See a specialist about spasms, pain

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 33-year-old female who suffers from spasms. They travel from my stomach to esophagus, from my shoulders down my back and arms to my left leg. I also experience headaches and face pain on half my face. My doctor says I have either a herpes infection, or it is related to my sinuses. I don't agree. Extensive testing has revealed a rushing noise in my aorta. What's going on with my body?

DEAR READER: Your unusual symptoms are certainly puzzling. However, I agree that herpes infection or sinus inflammation are unlikely causes. In order to diagnose your ailment, a doctor should sit down with you and take a complete medical history. When, for example, do these "spasms" occur? What triggers them? What makes them worse? Are they associated with any other symptom, such as fever, flushing, diarrhea, high blood pressure or weakness? The answers to these and other questions will shed light on your unusual affliction.

One possibility is pheochromocytoma, a rare glandular tumor that periodically secretes a substance causing hypertension and a variety of symptoms similar to yours. This can be diagnosed by a special test that measures the quantity of vanillylmandelic acid in your urine.

Also, circulatory disturbances, such as "migraine equivalents" (inappropriate constriction and dilation of blood vessels in your body), must be considered. These can usually be diagnosed by examination during one of your attacks. I do not believe that the "rushing noise" in your aorta contributes to your spasms; this could result from a narrowed valve. Ask your doctor about this.

Finally, acute anxiety could be contributing to your problem. You mention that you've had extensive testing. The tests must be reviewed by the doctor who questions and examines you. This should preferably be a well-trained family practitioner or an internist, a specialist in diagnosis. If your local doctors have been unable to help you, I suggest you request a referral to a diagnostic clinic at a teaching hospital, where super-specialists are equipped to diagnose unusual afflictions.

By James Jacoby

The basic common-sense bidding approach, when the opponents are competing, is to pass to show minimum card values and to bid to show something extra. But today's exception to this rule should be noted. After North opened with a strong two-club (artificial) and South responded with a negative two diamonds, West stuck his vulnerable neck out with a lead-directing overall. North's pass now simply informed South that the two-club opening was based on a strong balanced hand (22-24 high-card points). With some trepidation, South now bid three spades; North was happy to raise to game. Four spades was a decent contract. It seemed that the defenders had two diamond tricks and a club, so apparently the fate of the deal rested on the location of the queen of hearts. But declarer had sharp eyes, and he noticed that he held a particularly attractive diamond spot. He played the club ace and then cashed A-K-Q of spades. His next play was a low diamond from dummy. When East played low, declarer put in the eight. That was good enough. West won the king, cashed one club and played a heart. Declarer won and played another diamond. East took the ace, but dummy's Q-J of diamonds now became a parking place for two heart losers. (C)1991, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Jan. 5, 1991

You could have more luck in joint ventures during the upcoming year than in independent endeavors. Analyze your involvements carefully to determine which of these can be strengthened by a union.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Unless your advice is explicitly requested today, it is best to keep your suggestions to yourself. However, if your counsel is required, demonstrate rather than merely explain. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The less said today the better, especially if an inquisitive friend tries to enter into a confidential matter that affects only you and an associate.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be reluctant to make an adjustment today if you feel you've made a decision that does not serve your best interests. It can be done in a tactful manner that others will not find offensive.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your co-workers won't be inspired today by an old-fashioned pep talk. If you want to stimulate their productivity, be sure that your actions speak louder than your words.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your initial impulses regarding things of a speculative nature should not be given too much credence today; upon review, you're likely to revise your early assessments.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although minor domestic issues will likely be treated in a casual fashion today, the same will not be true with you, particularly if there is something serious with which you'll have to contend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's best not to make major domestic decisions on your own today. Two heads are better than one, so be sure to get your mate's points of view before rushing to judge.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're a reasonably good manager of your resources today, but there are still some small expenditures that should be reviewed to see if they can be modified or eliminated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be extremely careful today not to play favorites in your involvements with friends. A sensitive pal's feelings will be severely hurt if a hint of neglect becomes evident.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone of whom you may make a special request today is likely to grant what you ask, but there could be strings attached. Be sure it is worth the price you'll have to pay.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try not to spend too much seed money at this time on a new endeavor in which you're involved. Use your head instead of your wallet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You are still in a good achievement cycle, but you could be nurturing some self-doubts regarding your abilities. Focus your efforts on success, not negative presumptions. (C)1991, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
