

O'Neal, Holman Bitterly Oppose Food Subsidies

Farm Leaders Say Demands For Roll-Back Are Indefensible

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Strong opposition to subsidies to effect a roll back of food prices was voiced by agricultural organization representatives this week before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee at hearings on legislation to extend the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation, which would handle the subsidy.

Both witnesses—Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Charles W. Holman, secretary of the National Co-operative Milk Producers' Federation, attacked O'Neal's support of the subsidy plan. Mr. O'Neal, who suggested an amendment prohibiting C. C. C. funds to be used for subsidies, said "demands of organized labor for subsidies to roll back prices are indefensible."

He pointed out that figures published by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics show that despite the increase in the cost of food, the average non-farm family is paying a smaller percentage of its income for food than at any time in the last 10 years, due to the fact that wages have increased more than food. He added that labor's support of the subsidy program is but "a thinly disguised effort to secure another unwaranted increase in wages—this time at the expense of the public treasury."

Senator Francis Maloney, Democrat of Connecticut, challenged O'Neal's opposition to subsidies by asserting that in the past farmers had no objection to subsidies, "so it must be only when it might hurt them that they oppose them." To this Mr. O'Neal replied that prices were so low during the depression that a subsidy was necessary. Discussing the national food situation, Mr. O'Neal went on record in favor of placing all food production and price control in the hands of War Food Administrator Chester C. Davis.

More picturesque in speech in presenting his opposition to subsidies was Mr. Holman, who described the roll back and subsidy policy thus: "While the drums of inflation roll out the grim dirge of waste, we now witness the great crucifixion of American agriculture." His attack on labor's support followed the same line presented by Mr. O'Neal. He testified at hearings last week by William F. Olson, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Other developments on the food front included statements by War Food Administration officials to the effect that the roll back will be made 41 per cent of the butter and lard for military use and limited export purposes may be relaxed as soon as other controls over slaughter can be made effective.

President Roosevelt signed a bill authorizing the C. C. C. to sell an additional 50,000,000 bushels of government held wheat for feed. The bill, a revision of the limitation contained in the 1943 agriculture appropriation act, provides that the wheat shall not be sold at less than the parity price of corn at the time of sale. It further requires that in making additional adjustments in the sale price of wheat, the minimum price shall not be higher a specific area than the country-wide average parity price of corn.

Although the Office of Price Administration's food problems occupied the spotlight today, additional adjustments in the price of wheat, the subject of MPR335, controlling prices and grades of rayon hosiery was brought up for further hearing by a subcommittee of the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

Dr. Bernard F. Haley, chief of the O. P. A. textile division, defended the agency's hosiery regulations on the basis that "innovations" had sent prices skyward. Price increases, such as had been in MPR335, were ineffective, he said.

Blick Market In Corn Roams Fields By Truck

Grain Men Say Drivers Search Mid-West For High Price Crops

CHICAGO, June 15. (AP)—Truck drivers, roaming the Midwest in an unprecedented hunt for corn, are buying the yellow grain at higher than selling prices and selling it profitably to farmers who need it to feed livestock, members of leading grain firms said this week.

That is one reason, they said, why not as much corn is needed as is coming into marketing terminals, threatening, in the words of the Corn Industries Research Foundation, a complete shutdown in the corn-raising industry within the next 30 days.

A shutdown in corn refineries would affect such industries as textile manufacturing, papermaking, aluminum and steel foundries, brewing, candy manufacturing and innnumerable others which utilize derivatives of one of America's most important grains.

The existence of an illegal market in corn, grain men said, is common knowledge among the trade. The Baldwin Elevator Company, of Decatur, Ill., commenting on the situation, said:

"There probably never was such a storm of truckers roaming over the Illinois highways staging a veritable corn 'bitch' on country elevators as in recent weeks. Now they are contacting the growers direct. With truckers being the privileged characters as to prices they can pay for corn, it does not look as though there will be a normal corn movement through regular channels even after producers have caught up with their requirements."

Reporters to grain firms indicated similar situations in other corn belt states.

Meanwhile, major markets are getting the corn they need. The amount of the maize in principal marketing centers at the start of this week was pitifully small as compared with last year. The figures for three major terminals:

This Week	Year Ago
Chicago	400,000
Kansas City	700,000
Minneapolis	757,000

It is practically impossible to enforce corn sellings at every farm point in the American grain belt, grain men said. The transactions are not officially recorded as they are in marketing terminals and the only persons who know about them are the buyer and the seller.

Local Farmers Asked To Increase Poultry

Seminole County poultrymen are asked by the government to produce approximately 310,000 dozen eggs this year, an increase over 1942 production of less than one percent, the National Poultry Defense Committee estimated today.

The county goal is based on the increase suggested for Florida by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, explained Committee Chairman Hobart Creighton. Because of Florida's relatively high egg production in 1942, the state is asked for one of the smallest increases in the country, well below the national average increase of 8 percent.

"Poultry farmers are working harder than ever in all-out war production," Creighton said, "continuing the fine job they did in this county last year helping to supply civilian military and lend-lease needs. Also two developments during last year have resulted in larger laying flocks on most farms today."

"First, egg prices as shown by purchases of the A & P Tea Company, one of the largest buyers which paid $740,895 last year for 1,774,590 dozen Florida eggs, were so favorable the farmers saw an unusually large proportion of potential layers. Second, raising pullets, as Fall weather conditions in 1942 were good for was generally mild and the average hatching date was early."

Those factors point to increased egg production," Creighton explained. "If an improvement can be made in the farm skilled labor situation and if farmers can get enough protein in feed. There are critical shortages of protein ingredients because imports have been cut so drastically. Even soybean oil meal is not being processed fast enough to meet demands. These are major problems facing the industry."

Florida poultrymen, who produced a total of 17,585,000 dozen eggs in 1942, are asked for 17,613,000 dozen this year as their share of the national egg goal of 4,780,000,000 dozen.

Henry Ford Has Optimistic View On Birthday Eve

Predicts Plenty Of Work For All After War Is Over

NEW YORK, June 15. (Special)—In one of his rare interviews, released today in the July issue of the Woman's Home Companion, Henry Ford, who will celebrate his eightieth birthday on June 30, scans the future of America and pronounces his opinion on a variety of topics ranging from the industrial outlook and new inventions to the importance of a happy marriage.

To anxious mothers and wives who wonder how we are going to find jobs for all the boys when they come back from the war, Mr. Ford, who has just resumed the active presidency of his company, offers the comforting assurance that "unless we are much more foolish than I think we are, this country will find a way to bring back into productive employment after the war without much of a break." Which leads logically to his broader view that, "If we handle our post-war affairs properly and heed the voice of experience, there need be no unmanageable postwar depression."

This faith in the future of American industry, Mr. Ford explains, is founded on the credo that "the more people employed at fair wages, the larger market for the products of industry," and on his belief that the machine age is just beginning. He feels that the machine has been a great civilizing force. "Machines save men's energy and time. They have lightened men's burdens and have brought more economic equality between men than ever existed."

But more machines don't mean unemployment and loafing. Although Mr. Ford acknowledges that work never has been popular he says, "You can bank on this—there is no future without work. Efforts to construct a workless economy are doomed to fail. More and more kinds of work will be developed. There will be new inventions. Not, he points out, that there's any pressing need of new inventions at the moment. Mr. Ford maintains that "we are way behind in the task of completing and refining the inventions we already have. Nothing invented in the last fifty years has yet attained its final form or been made easily obtainable as it should be."

Along with the predicted upsurge of postwar industry, Mr. Ford hopes to see the process of industrial decentralization get under way. "There is little reason any more," he maintains, "for the masses to be crowded in cities. They might just as well move out into the country."

"All that we have learned by concentration of work can now be adapted to decentralized work. For twenty years our company has been moving various smaller departments out into the country. With the exception of a few industries, the average industrial employee can just as well have a country home with a city wage. And I know of no better servant for any family than a modern American village."

A man who has one foot in industry and the other on the soil is about as secure as he can be in this world!

Talking particularly to the wives and mothers of America, Mr. Ford dwells at some length on the more personal aspects of successful living such as the importance of religion and of affection between husband and wife. He feels that "anyone who lives happy thinks long enough finds he has a religion. A great reader of the Bible himself, Ford deprecates that "people don't read the Bible enough nowadays, and makes interesting average statements. "During the first World War, Woodrow Wilson and I took a pledge together to read a chapter of the Bible every day. I have kept my pledge and I understand that he did until his death."

Much of his goodness in the industrial world Mr. Ford attributes to his happy marriage. Every ward but wouldn't back up. So we took it back to the shop and started over. A few days later early one morning we took it out again. And it worked! It went forward and backward too!

"Except for the day we were married, that was the happiest day of our lives."

Mines Are Closed As 500,000 Miners Strike Third Time

Production Is Blocked For Third Time In 2 Months By UMW Chief John L. Lewis

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 21, (AP)—All Alabama mines holding closed shop agreements with the United Mine Workers of America were closed down by walkouts, and the Republic Steel Corp. immediately announced it was forced to curtail its coke and iron production.

NASHVILLE, June 21, (AP)—Local Selective Service boards in Tennessee were ordered today to hold special sessions for the purpose of reclassifying registrants deferred for occupational grounds who have voluntarily withdrawn from essential occupation.

WASHINGTON, June 21, (AP)—The big coal mining cog of the nation's war machine stalled again today and 500,000 miners who run it looked to the government for their cue. John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers invoked their "no contract, no work" policy for the third time within two months after negotiations with the operators collapsed.

WASHINGTON, June 21, (AP)—The nation's coal mines faced another paralysing strike after negotiations between the operators and the United Mine Workers broke down last night and the work stoppage spread to the rest of the country.

Effort Made To Salvage Subsidy Plan

Hill Leads Move To Restore 35 Million Cut From OPA Funds

WASHINGTON, June 21, (AP)—With some indications of at least partial success, the administration took hasty steps in the Senate over the week-end toward salvaging the food subsidy program left hanging on the brink of oblivion by a House revolt against the price rollback.

There was less hope in administration quarters of restoring $5,000,000 to the OWI budget for OWI's domestic operations, and OWI Director Elmer Davis said he'll quit if the Senate concurs with the House in abolishing these homefront activities.

Introduced by H. J. Lehman, himself a former Representative, who thanked him for the time he had given the people of this county in the Senate and who said he had done an excellent job as chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Senator Housholder said that everyone who attends a legislative session thinks that one is the best and that he too is doing his best.

Some Senate Republicans indicated immediately it will be perfectly all right with them if the OWI is abolished. Among them Senator Nye of North Dakota, a member of the appropriations committee, said he supported the house action in trimming OWI out of the budget.

Honor And Dishonor

A nation is a team up of millions of people, operating in thousands of ways to do things they want to do and produce things they need. Ordinarily in a civilized country the manifold operation proceeds so easily and naturally that nobody pays much attention to it. Individuals and the whole...

But when war comes it is different. Everything has to be tightened and speeded up. The nation suddenly becomes a vast team of people working and fighting for their own lives, and each other's lives. Industrial production becomes war production. Everybody has to work harder and longer and more devotedly and intelligently, to insure the life and safety of all the people and their rights and possessions.

Brains And Nerve

The confidence, self-control and graceful handiness of American fighting men continue to arouse admiration. Hardly a day passes without notable reports.

One of the latest tells of Lieut. Samuel S. Logan, aged 22, of Paola, Kan., who bailed out of a wrecked Corsair plane in a fight with several downed Jap Zeroes and bombers, over the Russell Islands in the Pacific.

As Logan floated down in his parachute, a Zero followed him, keeping up a machine gun fire and making passes at him from beneath, to cut him to pieces with the propeller. It is said to be the first case of the kind on record. Logan fended him off several times by drawing up his feet, but finally was hit by the propeller blade. It cut off his right foot and part of his left leg.

Logan kept his consciousness and his nerve. He fell into the sea. Then he inflated his life raft, took coffee and morphine tablets and applied a tourniquet to his right leg. That done, he looked around and signalled to a reconnaissance plane. He landed on the water, picked him up and flew him to a base hospital. He is reported as "recovering satisfactorily."

Here is a good picture of how the kind of Americans fighting and winning this war. They can't and won't be faked, and brains and nerve work miracles.

Before The Big Push

The war situation lately, especially in Europe, has been dominated by a resolvable "war of nerves." It might be designated, in plain English, as an Allied game of "getting Hitler's Coat."

There has been fighting, to be sure, on both the Pacific and Atlantic fronts. The British have been steadily pushing the Italian peninsula for a show-down. But in neither case is there a "big push" in the sense of massive and powerful thrusts by land, sea and air, such as are probably possible at any time now.

The Allies hit here and there, feeling out the enemy, feeling and hitting and hitting hard unexpectedly. He's busy in the ring who "yacks a wallop" but is in no special hurry for the knockout. Hitler, whose strategy has always been to keep the Allies guessing, has now met his match. And the Führer as well as the new front strategists of his service are more and more puzzled and worried.

One of these days the Allies will strike suddenly and powerfully, and the big push will be on. A grand and reassuring fight it will be, to a civilization lately threatened with destruction, but now confident of victory.

I think one of the most damnable incidents I ever read of was that of a Miami couple who died two of their small children to share and left a six-month-old infant in its crib while they went down town to shop and then to a picture show, remaining away about four hours.

War news looked down to considerable headlines: Roko snatched 191 German planes in a day; the Axis invasion east on the lines of 342 tanks and 1,125 wounded; Chinese troops kill 2,000 Japs in capturing Ho; only four Jap prisoners taken but 1,500 slain in taking Attu; Axis war prisoners in 21 U. Miss Mary Mobley Is Engaged To Mr. Hurt

Mrs. G. S. Mobley Jr., and Mrs. Oscar G. Lewis honored Miss Mary Mobley with a reception Friday afternoon in Jacksonville at the Woman's Club, at which time Miss Mobley's engagement was announced to Brian Hurt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jennings L. Hurt, of Jacksonville.

A crystal swan filled with white gladioli and pale pink sweetheart roses centered the lace covered tea table and white canopies burned in silver candelabra at each side of the central arrangements. Individual cakes ornamented with blue and white wedding bells and the names of Miss Mobley and Mr. Hurt disclosed the engagement to the guests.

Accompanying Miss Mobley, Mrs. Mobley and Mrs. Lewis, was Mrs. G. S. Mobley Sr. The Misses Louise Walton, Betty Booser, Mary Noble and Mrs. Cameron Abbott assisted in serving, and spreading at the punch bowl were Mrs. Turnbull Bernard and Miss Vonelle Powell.

About fifty friends of the honor guest called during the afternoon. A graduate of Stetson University, Miss Mobley has visited in Sanford often. At present she is employed by United States Civil Service in Jacksonville.

Mr. Hurt is in his Army Air Corps station at Lowery Field, Colo. Prior to his enlistment, he was employed by the State Road Department for three years and was awarded a scholarship to the University of Florida engineering school which he resigned to enter the service.

Bombing Attacks Continue Against Airfields And Cities Of Island Of Sicily

The reports possibly originated from the circumstance that there are a number of known Italian anti-Fascist in North Africa, but reliable Allied quarters declared they are obscure for the most part and not empowered to ask for peace on behalf of the Italian people.

On the contrary, recent events have shown that the Fascist regime was fighting itself for desperate resistance to any further Allied offensive.

Southern Italy and the island of Sicily are being heavily bombed by groups and air forces of both Italy and Germany. Allied bombers from the Middle East command and the North-west African air force hammered this flag with relentless power Friday night and Saturday.

A Cairo communication announced that Liberators of the United States air force threw nearly 350,000 pounds of high explosive and incendiary bombs on the harbors and supply installations of Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni east of Messina straight on the toe of Italy in a mass raid Sunday, while an Allied headquarters spokesman said the RAF's two-engine bombers shot down the port area of Syracuse on the Sicilian side, with two-ton block-busters in a moonlight attack Friday night.

At Catania the southeast section of the harbor was plastered, the bombs causing a considerable amount of smoke although clouds partly obscured the scene.

Lambasts W.L.B.

The union's policy committee went into session at 4 P. M. and little more than an hour later issued a 750-word statement lambasting the War Labor board, charging bad faith in the negotiations and adding: "We assert the willingness of the mine workers to work and continue the production of coal for the government, itself, under the direction of the custodian of mines."

"The executive officers of the United Mine Workers of America are hereby instructed to hold themselves in readiness to confer with the secretary of the interior, who by Presidential executive order of May 1, 1943, is instructed and empowered to do all things necessary for or incidental to the production, sale and distribution of coal."

"Accordingly, the executive officers of the United Mine Workers of America are hereby instructed to hold themselves in readiness to confer with the secretary of the interior, who by Presidential executive order of May 1, 1943, is instructed and empowered to do all things necessary for or incidental to the production, sale and distribution of coal."

PRIME MINISTER WILLIAM L. MACKENZIE KING OF CANADA, guest of State, addressing the House of Commons and the Senate Tuesday night in history that a woman, not a member of Parliament, spoke at the first session of Canadian legislature.

mine union a contract. But the union made it clear while it was willing to order men to work for the government, it considered impossible the government proposed last week by the War Labor board.

Yellow Dog Contract

A member and an officer of the U.M.W. said, "would be an act of honor as to sign or execute such an infamous yellow dog contract. The congress has enacted no statute and the constitution lacks any prohibition to take from American citizens the right to refrain from participation in such a degrading act."

The union declared there was one major problem preventing of the U.M.W. to accept a "yellow dog" contract. It said, "The U.M.W. has not accepted the government's proposal for a 'yellow dog' contract. It has not accepted the government's proposal for a 'yellow dog' contract. It has not accepted the government's proposal for a 'yellow dog' contract."

Leavenworth, Kansas.—More than 100 of the 254 employees of the Missouri Valley Bridge and Iron Company get 100 per cent of a week's pay into War Bonds here as a practical demonstration of the extent to which war workers are eager to respond to the Treasury Department's call for increased War Savings. Workers of the plant have been allotted 10 per cent of their gross payroll for Bonds since last September, but the special one week 100 per cent drive was held in stress this theme: "With 100 per cent of my current personal earnings I am in the drive for efficiency in war production." Long ago the shipyard employees earned the right to wear the coveted E button for efficiency in war production. U. S. Treasury Department
